The first attack occurred before dusk and the others followed at about 90 minute intervals.

Each raid encountered terrific antiaircraft fire and the guns scored successes but some missiles exploded inland.

The attacks followed Tuesday's respite, the first in six nights.

Lady Astor Opposes Compassionate Leaves

LONDON, Oct. 11—(AP) Virginia-born Lady Astor, member of Parliament for Plymouth, said today that a good soldier doesn't want to go home until the war is over—even on compassionate leave for the purpose of raising babies.

Childless husbands who have served long terms with the British army in the Middle East were recently reported to have flooded the Compassionate Leave committee with applications to return home to start families before their wives became too old to bear children.

"I have never heard of a good soldier wanting to return home to start a family—they realize the war is not over yet," Lady Astor told the Associated Press. "Such requests would necessitate an involved investigation of wife and husband and much meddling into private affairs."

Nazi Ace, With 102 Victories, Is Killed

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—The death in action of Germany's "most successful night fighter," Lieut. Col. Helmut Lent, credited with 102 aerial victories, was announced by Berlin today.

Hitler ordered a state funeral for the squadron leader and Reichsmarshal Goering praised him as "a pioneer of German night fighting," the broadcast said.

Most Of British Industry Will Have To Be Retooled

London, Oct. 11 (AP)—Practically all of Britain's industry will have to be retooled and redeveloped for peacetime production, Labor Minister Ernest Bevin said in Commons today.

Speaking for a bill to increase unemployment insurance benefits Bevin said "we are not quite in the happy position that they are in some places where they've been able to keep large factories on a care and maintenance basis and build entirely new factories."

Bursting Wheel Gives Town Air-Raid Scare

Douglas, Isle of Man, Oct. 11 (AP). This island town in the Irish Sea had a brief air raid scare tonight when a 20-ton fly wheel in a powerhouse suddenly disintegrated, hurling chunks of steel over the landscape within a radius of a half-mile.

No casualties were reported.

PRESIDENT HAILS WORK OF CHURCHES

London, Oct. 11 (A. P.)—President Roosevelt said in a letter to the Archbishop of Canterbury, received today:

"In these victorious days and in the times to come we need more than ever that spiritual strength which is essential to a just and enduring peace."

The letter, brought here by the Bishops of Albany and Southern Ohio, delegates from the American Episcopal Church, was read at the convocation of Canterbury at Westminster. Due to an attack of gout the Archbishop was unable to preside, necessitating the formal commissioning of Bishop of London G. F. Fisher as presiding officer—a ceremony believed unprecedented in the history of the Church of England.

Nazis Arrest Schacht, Swedish Paper Reports

Stockholm, Oct. 11 (AP)—Hjalmar Schacht, former head of the German Reichsbank and the financial wizard who devised most of the Nazi financial and economic controls, has been arrested in Germany, the newspaper Dagens Nyheter said today.

Dagens Nyheter said Schacht's niece, Sigrid Schacht, 27, told Swedish authorities of the arrest of her uncle. She has been working in the German legation in Stockholm and last week turned in her German passport for a Swedish foreigner's pass.

She was quoted as saying she had planned to take this action for a long time, but had deferred it "out of regard for her uncle." When he was arrested, she explained, there was nothing to prevent her turning in her passport.

Phone Break Hints At New German Rift

Stockholm, Oct. 11 (AP)—The newspaper Stockholmstidningen declared today that telephone communication between Berlin and Stockholm had been interrupted by the German Gestapo because a new opposition group composed of army officers was trying to establish contact with Allied legations in Stockholm through industrial representatives.

The newspaper said all those suspected by the Gestapo now were believed arrested. It did not cite the authority for its statements.

Contact Broken Saturday

Telephone communication between Berlin and Stockholm ceased last Saturday after heavy Allied air raids on the German capital.

Reuter dispatches said the belief is growing here that the Germans are trying to conceal something from the outer world.

Spasmodic connection with Berlin through Copenhagen is available but direct communication—the longest suspension of the war—continues interrupted.

One Official Call Received

The suspension cannot be due to a technical breakdown because one official Swedish call—the only one—was received direct from Berlin today, Reuter reported. The news service added that rumors are sweeping Stockholm, one of the most persistent of which, though unconfirmed, is that Goering had been arrested.

Neutrals in Berlin who tried to contact Goering are reported to have been told by his wife that this was impossible and that it was better not to press the matter, Reuter said.

BOLOGNA ROAD STILL BLOCKED

Germans Show No Signs Of Writing Off Italy Campaign

Rome, Oct. 11 (AP)—Wet and muddy American troops prodded the stubborn Germans south of Bologna today, but the enemy was far from being out of the hills before that big communications center and there were no signs that the Germans were ready to write off Italy in their campaign book.

The Americans reached the southern outskirts of the town of Livergnano, 11 miles south of Bologna on Highway 65, but a new hill loomed beyond and the Germans were sitting on it, well entrenched.

Small Gains, New Hills

It was the same story with the British troops, both with the Fifth and Eighth armies; small gains scored here and there, then new mud and new hills.

British troops with the Fifth Army in the center knocked the Germans off Mount Cece and occupied it, and also put troops on Mount Freddo, where the Germans had resisted the British advance for days.

Yanks Hold On To Gesso

American troops occupied Gesso in the hills northwest of Fontanence and held it against a strong German counterattack. They also captured another hill and the villages of Maceratoio and Campagne to the east of Highway 65. West of the highway, advance elements were approaching Vado.

Despite almost constant rain, British and Indian troops of the Eighth Army on the Adriatic front reached the summit of a new ridge extending from Montigallo to Mount Farneto northwest of San Marino and occupied the villages of Roncofreddo and San Paolo.

Yanks Repel Nazi Blows In Italy

Rome, Oct. 11 (AP)—American troops, still slowed by rain and deep mud, have reached the southern outskirts of Livergnano, 11 miles due south of Bologna on Highway 65, and advance elements there are meeting fierce German conter-attacks, it was announced today.

The pace of the fighting along the entire Italian battlefront generally was reported retarded by adverse weather.

Peaks Occupied

After several days of bloody fighting British troops of the Fifth Army occupied Mount Cece. The British also put troops on Mount Freddo.

American troops moved into Gesso in the hills 11 miles southwest of Imola and clung to it de- counterattacks, it was announced Another hill and the villages of Mageratoio and Campagne east of Highway 65 also were seized by the Americans.

West of the highway, too, the Germans were fighting for every mud puddle, but some progress was made in the drive for Bologna and advance elements were approaching Vado, 12 miles to the southwest. South African troops were reported locked in bitter fighting on Mount Stanco, on the American left.

Eighth Army Gains

The Eighth Army appeared to be making some progress in the hills of the Adriatic front despite almost constant rain. British and Indian troops reached the summit of a new ridge extending from Montigallo to Mount Farneto, northwest of San Marino, and threw the Germans out of a few houses they attempted to hold in Roncofreddo and San Paolo.

Air operations again were restricted by the weather, but there was some activity against rail bridge and gun targets by fighters and fighter-bombers.

Meanwhile, headquarters disclosed that the Third Battalion of the 362d Infantry Regiment, a part of the 91st Division, was the unit which broke through the Germans' Gothic Line September 22 and took Futa Pass in the Italian mountains between Florence and Bologna.

Operating along icy ridges, often hidden by clouds, the Third Battalion, under command of Lieut. Col. George White, of Medford, Ore., fought alone and out of communication with its regiment and division until it reached Futa summit.

Trust Nobody, Nazis Told

Rome, Oct. 11 (AP)—The commander of the German Fifth Infantry Division in Italy has ordered his troops "never to ride or walk alone in Patriot territory."

Asserting that "German deserters are screening Patriots," the order added that Italian civilians had obtained German equipment, including uniforms. "Do not doze off or sleep. Be on your guard. Trust nobody and shoot on sight," the order said.

The commander said a house garrisoned by Germans near Civitella had been surrounded by a score of Patroits, four of them armed and wearing German tropical uniform helmets. The four, speaking fluent German, overpowered and dragged away two sentries.

ALLOWS ITALY PURCHASE FUND

President Announces New Money Plan.

Washington, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—Italy is being permitted to accumulate dollar balances with which to buy essential civilian goods in this nation through purchases by United States Army troops in Italy, exports to the United States and gifts from Americans.

President Roosevelt announced yesterday that the dollar equivalent of the American-printed lire issued to United States troops fighting in Italy will be turned over to the Italian Government.

In addition, the dollar proceeds of gifts made by Americans to persons in Italy and of any products exported by Italy to this country will be made available to Italy, he said.

Saying "it is to our interests that Italy be able to contribute as fully as possible to the winning of final victory," Mr. Roosevelt said in a statement that "the dollars will be used by the Italian Government to pay for essential civilian supplies purchased in this country for use in liberated Italy."

Shipments Increase.

These supplies will supplement substantial amounts of civilian goods such as food, clothing and medical supplies distributed by the United States Army as a necessary part of military operations in Italy, he said.

Clothing, vitamins and medicines collected by American relief for Italy, Inc., already are being moved to Italy on Army vessels, the War Department announced. Foreign Economic Administrator Leo T. Crowley said food shipments to Italy are being increased and arrangements are under way for shipments of other supplies and individual gift packages.

British Are Informed.

Italy already has received 35,000 bales of salvaged clothing, 498 cases of new clothing, 1,722 cases of shoes, 3,128 cases of vitamins and food supplements and 170 cases of medical supplies, the War Department said. These goods were donated by private relief organizations.

Warehousing and distribution are being handled by an Italian committee named at the suggestion of Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the board of American relief for Italy, Inc.

Mr. Roosevelt said the decision to make available to Italy the dollars equivalent to Italian lire was made after consultation with the British Government. Britain, he added, will continue to provide supplies to Italy under separate financial agreements.

ITALY HONORS AMERICAN HERO

INDIANTOWN GAP, Pa., Oct. 11—(AP) Pfc. Alton R. Knappenberger, 20-year-old "one-man army" of Spring Mount, Pa., was honored a second time for heroism in action on the Anzio beachhead when he received the Italian War Cross at a retreat parade and review of 4,500 enlisted men and officers here today.

He previously received the Congressional Medal of Honor for single-handedly routing a whole Nazi platoon. The official citation credited him with disrupting an enemy attack for more than two hours.

Col. E. H. Taliaferro, Jr., commanding officer at Indiantown Gap, pinned the medal on Knappenberger on behalf of the Italian government.

A certificate accompanying the medal, read by Capt. L. R. Chapman, adjutant, stated:

"This award, in recognition of the services which you rendered in the operations which resulted in the liberation of Rome, is made to you by General Bencivenga, civil and military governor of Rome."

German Flight Sp[illegible] Balkan Sta[illegible] Unlikely

Rome, Thursday, Oct. 12 (AP)—British units in Greece and southern Albania and Russians and Yugoslav Partisans in the north drew tighter yesterday the noose around German forces remaining in southeastern Europe.

Allied advances on these fronts have been so rapid the Germans already may have abandoned hopes of a stand anywhere in the Balkans.

Allied Flags Fly In Greece

[A dispatch from Ankara said Allied flags were hoisted for the first time in Greek Thrace yesterday, when the Greek administration took over. A Bulgarian army still remains in Thrace.

[The dispatch said the German retreat from the Aegean and Dodecanese Islands as well as on the Greek mainland northward, has been accelerated with the report that the Russians had cut the main railway link with Budapest north of Belgrade.

[A Cairo broadcast early Thursday said the Germans had abandoned Thrace and were concentrating in northern Macedonia and the area of Salonica. Another broadcast from Rome said Greek patriots and German SS troops were fighting inside Athens.]

The British in southern Albania, after a hard battle, captured Sarande (Porto Edda), supply port for the German garrison on Corfu Island. Five hundred prisoners were taken in the action, and the Germans on Corfu, last reported to total a regiment, were isolated with little possibility of escaping to the mainland.

Fight Only When Trapped

The Nazis retreating before light British forces in Greece and Albania are fighting only when trapped. In Yugoslavia they have concentrated on attempting to keep open their communications in the face of swift gains westward by the Red army both north and south of Belgrade.

There was no fresh news of the British column which surged through Corinth Monday without firing a shot. This secured an operational springboard only 40 miles from Athens.

The official Allied headquarters announcement said only that "patrolling is active" in Greece.

Sarande was taken by troops which first broke into the western outskirts against stubborn resistance. It fell after a big attack on the hills overlooking it had been completed, headquarters said.

Air And Naval Forces Aid

Balkan air force Beaufighters attacked barracks and railyards at Kriz, in Yugoslavia, 30 miles southeast of Zagreb, and at Senj, on the Dalmatian coast southeast of Fiume, an enemy ship was left afire by other Beaufighters which struck it with 25 rockets.

The British destroyer H. M. S. Wilton and a heavily armed landing craft shelled German troops and installations on the Albanian coast north of Corfu on October 8, the naval command announced.

British Capture Sarande In Albania

Rome, Oct. 11 (AP)—British troops in Albania have captured the port of Sarande (Porto Edda), isolating the German garrison on the island of Corfu, it was announced today.

An official announcement from Allied headquarters said also that "patroling is active" in Greece, but there was no indication whether the land forces of the Adriatic have moved beyond captured Corinth toward Athens.

500 Prisoners Taken

Sarande, supply port for the Germans on Corfu, was captured after a hard battle, it was said. About 500 prisoners were taken.

With the port in British hands there appeared little possibility that the Germans on Corfu, last reported to total a regiment, would be able to escape to the mainland.

"The troops who first penetrated into the western outskirts of the town met with stiff resistance but the launching of a big attack with artillery support resulted in the taking of the area . . ." said the official description of the Sarande battle.

"Pockets of resistance continued, but by 10 A. M., October 10, these had been overcome and consolidation in the town and on the hills overlooking the port was completed."

Mopping-up operations continued around the town of Gjashdle.

Both air and naval operations were reported in connection with the Allied campaign to wipe out the last enemy units in the whole of the Balkans. Balkan Air Force Beaufighters with Mustang escort attacked barracks and rail yards at Kriz, in Yugoslavia, 30 miles southeast of Zagreb.

Greeks Retake Thrace.

Ankara, Oct. 10 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Allied flags were hoisted over the Greek province of Thrace on Monday when a Greek administration took over. A Bulgarian army remains in Thrace, however, despite that Axis kingdom's surrender to the Allies.

The German retreat from the Ægean and Dodecanese Islands and on the Greek mainland has been reported accelerated. The enemy is striving to evacuate his best men and materiel before lateral escape routes from Belgrade westward are snapped by Marshal Tito and the Russian Army.

Reports to Turkey said that the Germans had abandoned all Greek Islands which seemed worthless to them, especially those in the Cyclades group. Some 60 per cent of the garrisons of Crete and Rhodes were said to have fled, though the remaining Germans are expected to make a sulcide stand in these outer defense islands.

Smuts Says Last Phase Of War In West Reached

Johannesburg, Union of South Africa, Oct. 11 (AP)—Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts said tonight "the war is now everywhere at or near the doors of Germany and the last phase has now been reached in the west."

"The German people are desperate and are led by desperadoes who expect no mercy and to whom none will be shown," the field marshal said in a speech opening the Transvaal provisional congress of the United party.

Smuts continued:

"The bitterness and horror of this final struggle in the west may well surpass anything that has so far happened in this war.

"Let our thoughts, our prayers and our efforts be concentrated on that final clinch in the west."

Village In India Taken From Japs

Southeast Asia Headquarters, Celon, Oct. 11 (AP)—Capture of the village of Mowdok in southeastern India near the Burmese border by West African troops was announced today by the Allied command, which said contact with the enemy still was reported in the frontier hills to the northeast.

On the Arakan front farther north, the Royal Garwhal Rifles repulsed an attack by 80 Japanese with a bayonet charge, while southeast of Maungdaw, Burmese town on the Bay of Bengal, Allied positions in the Mayu hills were shelled by Japanese artillery.

In the Chin hills, Indian troops were reported moving on Tiddim from the east, while the enemy on the Tiddim-Fort White road was being shelled by Allied guns. The Indians, the communique said, beat off a number of Japanese counter-attacks in their advance.

Planes Support Troops

Planes of the Eastern Air Command provided support for the ground troops in the Arakan and Chindwin areas and attacked Japanese communications in north Burma as well.

Lieut. Gen. W. J. Slim, British Fourteenth Army commander, in an order of the day congratulating his troops, reported that 50,000 Japs had been killed in India and northern Burma and declared "we have paid him (the enemy) something of what we owe. There still remains the interest. He will get it."

Slim said the whole plan of battle in the India-Burma theater was based on air support and termed the role of the air forces in the victory "magnificent and historic."

Japanese Chased From India Town

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Celon, Oct. 11 (AP). West African units, fighting in the southeastern corner of India, near the Burmese border, have captured the village of Mowdolk, the Allied command disclosed today, dislodging Japanese defenders who had held the area throughout the monsoon season.

Continuing contact with the enemy was reported, indicating a steady push into the frontier hills. The action occurred about 45 air miles northeast of the Burmese coastal town of Maungdaw, on the Bay of Bengal.

Attack Broken Up

Hand-to-hand fighting flared elsewhere on the newly activated Arakan front, with an attack by 80 Japanese being broken by bayonets of the Royal Garhwal Rifles, Southeast of Maungdaw Japanese artillery shelled Allied positions in the Mayu Hills, whence the Japs recently were driven.

Enemy forces are fighting to hold the approaches to Akyab, about 55 air miles down the coast.

Japs' "Greatest Defeat"

Lieut. Gen. W. J. Slim declared his British 14th Army had "inflicted on the Japanese the greatest defeat" their army had yet suffered.

In an order of the day congratulating his troops on their success in the India-Burma campaign, the 14th Army commander said, "We have paid him (the enemy) something of what we owe. There still remains the interest. He will get it."

JAPS ADVANCING TOWARD KWEIPING

CHUNGKING, Oct. 11—(AP) The Fourteenth airforce struck at the west river front in an effort to check a Japanese advance toward the southern China highway junction of Kweiping, a communique from the headquarters of Gen. Joseph H. Stilwell said today.

The Japanese were advancing toward Kweiping, 70 miles south-southeast of Liuchow, and on Monday pushed to points six miles northeast and 12 miles southeast of the junction. Fighting still is in progress.

No mention was made of activities on the Hunan-Kwangsi railway front or around Foochow on the Fukien province coast. Fourteenth airforce fighters continued activity in other areas without loss.

P. H. Chang, a cabinet spokesman, told a press conference the principal reason for China's military reverses was the lack of supplies.

"Help China and you help the Allied cause," he said. "In spite of reverses, China is still in the ring. She may be down, but she is not out, and she never will be."

(The Chungking radio, in a broadcast recorded by U. S. government monitors, said today that Gen. Lu Chung-Lin, a member of the Central Executive committee of the Kuomintang, had been named to head a newly-created national ministry of conscription. The new ministry, the broadcast said, has been authorized to exercise "wider powers" than the previous bureau of conscription, which has been abolished. Gen. Lu, now high in the councils of China's Nationalist party, also has held the post of minister of war and, earlier in his career, was governor of the provinces of Chahar and Hopei.)

China Makes Plea For Guns, Tanks

Chungking, Oct. 11 (AP)—A Chinese Cabinet spokesman asserted today that prior to the end of May lend-lease supplies received by the armies in East and South China totaled 50 anti-tank guns, 60 mountain guns and 30,000,000 rounds of rifle and machine-gun ammunition.

The spokesman, P. H. Chang, said China appreciated the immense transportation difficulties involved, but he reiterated that aid so far received in the way of equipment and supplies has been inadequate.

He attributed recent Chinese reverses in Honan province primarily to lack of anti-tank guns and tanks.

In a renewed plea for aid, he said:

"Help China and you help the Allied cause. Despite reverses, China is still in the ring. She may be down, but she is not out and she never will be."

Correspondents Complain To Chinese on Censorship

By The Associated Press.

CHUNGKING, China, Oct. 11—Complaints against Chungking censorship of dispatches filed from the Communist area of China were voiced today by two correspondents at a government press conference

Guenther Stein, correspondent of The London News-Chronicle, spent four and one-half months in the area. On his return, Mr. Stein said, he found that censors here had excised more than 5,000 words from seventeen messages. Chungking is the relay point where messages from Communist territory are handled by the censor before retransmission abroad.

Brooks Atkinson of THE NEW YORK TIMES, who recently returned from a fortnight in the area, also complained about the severity of censorship on news about the Communists.

K. C. Wu, Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs, suggested that the matter be discussed with government spokesmen at his office, rather than at a press conference.

Chiang Receives U. S. Journalism Teachers

Chungking, Oct. 11 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek received today a group of Americans, five of whom comprise the American faculty of a post-graduate school of journalism at Chungking sponsored by Columbia University and operated by the Chinese Government.

The journalism faculty included Dean Rodney Gilbert, of Bernardsville, N. Y., on leave from the New York Herald Tribune; Anthony Dralle, of Hornell, N. Y.; Richard T. Barker, New York city; Floyd D. Rodgers, New York city and Columbia, S. C., and Robert Ackerman, Louisville, Ky.

Chiang addressed the first graduating class of the journalism school—23 men and 7 women—and a new class, stressing promptness, truth, accuracy and high moral standards as indispensable qualifications for journalists.

LIBERATORS BLAST BALIK PAPAN AGAIN

Japan's Borneo Oil Base Gets 4-Hour Battering—Ryuku

Targets Identified by Foe

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NEW GUINEA, Thursday, Oct. 12 (AP)—Balik Papan, source of 15 per cent of Japan's aviation gasoline and lubricating oil, was bombed for four hours Sunday night by American Liberators. They attacked refineries and airdromes.

[The Tokyo radio, in a short-wave propaganda broadcast directed to the United States, said Wednesday night that closs to 100 American B-24 bombers, escorted by thirty P-38 fighters, made the attack. The broadcast was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.]

This fifth strike in recent weeks on the Borneo base was announced in today's communiqué of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. The bombers, operating from advance bases, already have heavily crippled Japan's 3,000,000-barrel capacity refineries at Balik Papan, on Borneo's east coast.

Today's communiqué also reported an air raid on oil stores at Bula. It was among targets in the Amboina-Ceram sector that were blasted with seventy-four tons of explosives on Monday.

Headquarters announced that six barges the Japanese were trying to sneak into Morotai, 300 miles south of the Philippines, were sunk. Morotai is the most advanced invasion point of General MacArthur's forces and yesterday he told of fighter planes and patrol-torpedo boats sinking or damaging eighteen barges carrying reinforcements to oppose the Americans.

The latest bag of six was made by fighter planes that also damaged six grounded planes in a strike at Namlea on Buru.

Mitchell bombers, manned by Netherland and Australian pilots, destroyed a small enemy freighter and a schooner off Kupang, Timor.

Hungry Japs March To Surrender

Biak Island, Dutch New Guinea, Oct. 7 (AP—Delayed)—Outposts guarding an American infantry bivouac in Biak's interior plateau were amazed one morning recently to see eight unarmed Japanese, in line, marching briskly toward them across the grass-covered plateau.

The eight obviously were starving and weak, but they held themselves erect and in close order, keeping step unfailingly. Their leader, a second lieutenant, saw to that. Discipline to the last.

Salutes Smartly

Lieut. Hans Jensen, commander of the forward American element, recounted the incident. "When the column reached our outpost," he said, "the Jap officer saluted smartly and ordered his men to left face. Then he indicated he wanted to surrender."

During this procedure one of the outpost guard, Pfc. Anthony Perone, of Greenvale, Nassau, N. Y., offered a cigarette to one of the Japanese, who reached for it gratefully, relaxing necessarily from strict attention to do so.

"The officer marched down the line until he came to the Jap GI," Jensen said, "and slapped him sharply across the face."

Food Issued

Then the procession moved on into camp, the enemy officer holding his men as closely in hand as before.

"We issued the Japs a batch of canned food and let them divide it among themselves," Jensen related. "One Jap apparently got hold of an extra can, but he didn't have it for long. The officer went over to him, grabbed the can and beat him on the head with it." That guy certainly seemed determined nobody should have any ground to criticize either his conduct or that of his men."

Bong Gets Thirtieth As Lesson to Class

By The Associated Press.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, In the Southwest Pacific, Thursday, Oct. 12—Maj. Richard Ira Bong, leading American ace in the Southwest Pacific, has run his string to thirty Japanese planes shot down.

Recently returned to action as a gunnery instructor of the Far Eastern Air Force, the flier from Poplar, Wis., was credited with downing two more enemy aircraft.

It had been understood that Major Bong, on his second tour, would make no combat missions. But he accompanied his "class" of fighter pilots on a recent mission, and they were jumped by more than a score of Zeros.

Their teacher went to work. In rapid succession, he sent two down in flames.

When Major Bong left the Pacific after his first tour he was credited with twenty-seven planes. He claimed a twenty-eighth plane downed over Hollandia Harbor and gave its position. Salvage crews found the wreckage and he received credit for it.

TROOPS LAND ON 11TH ISLE IN PALAU GROUP

81st Division Units Occupy Bairakaseru Without Opposition

Pacifice Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 11 (AP)—Troops of the 81st Infantry Division landed unopposed Tuesday on Bairakaseru islet, seven miles northwest of recently occupied Garakayo, strengthening the American grip on the southern Palaus, the navy announced in a communique tonight.

This was the 11th island invaded by American forces during the Palau campaign.

Garakayo, two and one half miles north of Peleliu Island, was invaded Sunday and secured within 24 hours.

Explode Ammunition Dump

Meanwhile, marines, fighting on Peleliu Island, exploded a sizable Japanese ammunition dump in one of the cave positions still held by enemy remnants. Peleliu is largely in American hands.

Marine Corsairs also bombed Babelthuap, largest island in the chain to the north, and strafed small shipping near by.

Other planes raided Iwo Jima in the Volcano group, shooting down two enemy interceptors and probably downing a third. A fourth Japanese plane was damaged.

American Pilot Saved

In the other neutralization raids, an American plane was shot down by anti-aircraft fire over Pagan Island, in the Marianas, but the pilot was rescued. Wake Island also was bombed.

Japanese dead in the Palau campaign totaled 12,470 through Tuesday, headquarters announced today, disclosing that 184 civilians had been interned on Angaur, southernmost of the invaded islands.

The totals: On Peleliu, 10,305 killed, 284 soldiers captured; on Angaur, 1,165 dead, 11 imprisoned, plus the civilians.

Tonight's announcement said the Sunday communique had erred in listing 11,083 Japanese dead on Peleliu. The figure should have been 1,000 less. The new totals include that revision.

58 Jap Vessels Hit

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 11 (AP)—In the boldest naval stroke of the Pacific war, struck 200 miles south of Japan, the American Third Fleet defied both Nippon's home fleet and air force by pouring carrier planes in overpowering strength against the Ryukyu Islands.

As the climax of powerful blows delivered since August 30 in the Philippines, Palaus and Bonins Admiral William F. Halsey's task force wiped out 89 planes and sank or damaged 58 surface craft—every vessel sighted—in the Ryukyus on Monday.

Not A Warship Hit

Not one American warship was hit in an operation which, in ways, was more daring than the 1942 carrier-based strike at Tokyo, inasmuch as the carrier in that case retired while the planes flew on to China. In Monday's strike, Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carriers stayed around for the raiders' return.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, announcing the Ryukyu raid yesterday, said the planes swept over the 570-mile-long chain "in great force." They shot down 14 planes, wiped out 75 on the ground and could find no warship bigger than a destroyer. It was among 12 definitely sunk. Japan's home fleet and home-based air force failed to come to Ryukyu's aid.

Reports Incomplete

In the detailed account of the Ryukyu attack, based on admittedly "preliminary reports," Nimitz said these results were achieved:

SUNK—A destroyer; a minesweeper; a submarine tender; two medium cargo ships; two small cargo ships; five coastal cargo ships. Total 12.

PROBABLY SUNK—Two medium cargo ships; four small cargo ships; one medium oil tanker; seven coastal cargo ships. Total 14.

DAMAGED—Three medium cargo ships; six small cargo ships; one destroyer; two small oil tankers. Total 12.

In addition to the foregoing, more than 20 luggers and other small craft were sunk or damaged.

The raiders also left buildings and installations on shore wrecked or burning.

"Complete surprise was achieved in the attack," the communique said.

Mitscher's task force raids, which have overwhelmed such strategic areas as Manila, have resulted since August in knocking out more than 1,100 enemy planes and 500 surface craft.

In all these raids not a warship has been damaged.

Demonstrating how the American fleet can disperse its units in strength, this blow fell one day after battleships spent all day Sunday blowing to bits the Japanese defenses on Marcus Island.

Garakayo Secured

In another communique last night, Nimitz announced that 81st Division troops which invaded a tenth island in the Palaus Sunday completely secured it within 24 hours. It is the tiny island of Garakayo.

Three hundred miles south of the Philippines at Morotai, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today, fighter planes and patrol-torpedo boats broke up an enemy attempt earlier this week to reinforce Japanese remnants holding out against American forces which landed September 15. Eighteen barges were sunk or damaged in the action.

Tokyo claimed that "more than 26 of the enemy planes were shot down," and asserted only "slight damage" was done.

Mexican Congress Upholds Press

Mexico City, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—A bill to prohibit the press and theaters from "ridiculing Congressmen" was defeated today by the Chamber of Deputies.

Congressman Jose Maria Suarez Tellez of Guerrero, who introduced the measure, contended that "the dignity of the representatives of the people must be upheld." Other speakers replied that it was more important to uphold the freedom of the press.

Rail Sabotage Seen in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11 (AP).—The British-owned railway operating between Mexico City and Vera Cruz has asked the Department of National Defense to investigate what it terms "indisputable acts of sabotage" which might result in disastrous wrecks. The railway company, according to defense officials, cited fictitious train orders issued Sept. 25 which might have been serious if they had not been detected.

Mexican Gas Troubles Laid To Transportation

Mexico City, Oct. 11 (AP)—No less than 22,500,000 gallons of gasoline are in the Tampico refinery of the Mexican Petroleum Administration, said Efran Buenrostro, general manager of that organization, today.

He said that scarcity here and elsewhere throughout Mexico was due mainly to transportation trouble.

He added that his organization had finished construction of a new pipeline and new refineries which would revolutionize the petroleum supply throughout the country.

26 Ryukyus Raiders Bagged, Japs Say

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—A Japanese imperial communique today said 400 United States carrier planes made Monday's attack on the Ryukyu Islands, striking in four waves at islands lying within 200 miles of the Nipponese homeland.

The communique said the American raiders attacked from 7 A. M. to midafternoon.

It said American planes ranged from Amami Oshima, 200 miles south of Japan, to Miyako Island, nearly 500 miles farther south near Formosa. Okinawa Island was

Portugal Denies Asylum To Nazi War Criminals

New York, Oct. 11—Portugal has denied Nazi war criminals the right of asylum within her borders, BBC said tonight in a broadcast.

The broadcast said the Portuguese decision was reported by a Government spokesman during a debate in the British Parliament and the Eire was expected to announce its decision regarding Nazi refugees within three weeks.

FOUR YEARS AGO TODAY

By Associated Press.

Oct. 11, 1940.—British warships and planes bombard Cherbourg. German air raids on London shift from mass attacks to constant stream of single lanes sent over at high altitudes. Germans say they are sending troops into Romania to protect country's oil wells from "British sabotage."

Relief For China Awaits Seaports

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—Dr. T. F. Tsiang, Chinese delegate to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, said today that China is not counting on receiving UNRRA relief supplies before 1946 because "nothing can be done until seaports are opened."

His estimate reflected the general belief of Chinese officials that the liberation of China and the war in the Pacific will take at least a year after the victory in Europe.

China, he said, is asking UNRRA to contribute $945,000,000 worth of supplies for her relief and rehabilitation, about 50 per cent. of the total funds available to the United Nations Board.

He said the Chinese realized the figure is large, but that it amounts to only about $3.64 per person now in the occupied parts of China. The total amount of relief that China will need, he estimated, including what that nation will pay for herself and obtain from private sources, is $3,439,000,000.

He said the figure did not contemplate any aid which Allied armies might distribute in areas they may occupy in China because he believed Allied troops would land only in coastal areas and that Chinese armies carry the burden of liberating the interior.

Transport Critical Item

The most critical item needed for Chinese relief, he said, is repair of transportation facilities so that food, clothing and medical supplies can be distributed.

Tsiang, formerly Chinese Ambassador to Moscow, said China had asked for the appointment of three UNRRA experts to help plan administration of relief and that 3,200 foreign experts would be needed to carry out the program. It was reported that Ben H. Kizer, of Spokane, Wash., is being considered for appointment as head of the UNRRA mission in China.

Franco Financial Props Pulled Out By America

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—The United States, in the process of liquidating economic warfare activities against Germany, has pulled one of the financial props from under the Franco regime in Spain, it was reported tonight.

The political effect of the action was incidental to the closing up of economic warfare, one diplomatic official said, but it was learned that as a result of this and other dislocations, the Spanish Government is confronted with increasing difficulties in maintaining its position in the country.

The latest development in Spain's economy is that the United States has closed down its "commercial corporation" for both Spain and Portugal. That has put a complete stop to preclusive buying operations in both countries. (Preclusive buying means purchasing goods to keep them out of the enemy's hands.)

Portugal is said to have accumulated a substantial dollar balance and to be in such a good position that she will be able to make satisfactory adjustments to the loss of income from preclusive buying.

Philippine President Leaves Washington

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—President Sergio Osmena of the Philippine Government-in-exile has left Washington, presumably to be ready for a quick return to his homeland once Gen. Douglas MacArthur's troops begin the promised liberation of the island commonwealth.

His departure follows closely that of Brig. Gen. Carlos Romulo, Philipine resident commissioner, who told Congress September 21 he was leaving "on what I trust is my way back to the Philippines."

The 61-year-old Osmena moved up from the Vice-Presidency of the exiled Government after the death in August of President Manuel L. Quezon. The two left Corregidor by submarine on February 20, 1942, as the invading Japanese closed in. Osmena was forced to leave his wife and ten children behind in the islands.

Peace League Okay By Congress Seen

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—Senator Johnson (D., Col.) expressed the view today that sentiment in Congress is so strongly in favor of a world peace league that "you can be sure Congress is not going to block our entering into such an organization."

Johnson said, however, many differences of opinion are sure to arise in working out details of United States participation in the United Nations peace machinery outlined at Dumbarton Oaks.

Public sentiment will be greatly different after this war than after the first World War, Johnson said.

Change Foreseen

"The people weren't ready to accept the League of Nations. The feeling that we must avoid foreign entanglements was too strong. But there will be a changed public sentiment this time."

Johnson said he thought "too great emphasis" had been placed on the proposed international military force. He proposed that a strong United Nations intelligence organization—a "world-wide G-2"—be established to keep a close tab on any nation's movements.

"If every nation knows what every other nation is doing, countersteps can be taken in time."

SAYS U. S. COUP WAS NAZI IDEA

Rauschning Tells Of Interview With Adolf Hitler

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—Dr. Herman Rauschning, author and onetime Nazi official, testified today that Adolf Hitler told him in 1933 that he would be able to "paralyze the unity of the United States" and cause a revolution if America ever threatened to join England in war against Germany.

Dr. Rauschning, former President of the free city of Danzig under Hitler, was a Government witness at the trial of 24 defendants charged with conspiring to undermine the morale and loyalty of the armed forces. Chief Prosecutor O. John Rogge brought in Rauschning's testimony as the first direct attempt to prove the indictment charge that Hitler was the arch conspirator in the case.

Was At League Meeting

The witness, who left the Nazi party in 1935 and came to the United States in 1942, said he talked with Hitler at the Berlin chancellery in the fall of 1933, upon Rauschning's return from a meeting of the League of Nations Assembly in Geneva.

Germany had just withdrawn from the League and Rauschning said he warned Hitler that the situation at Geneva was tense, with the possibility that Great Britain and even the United States might wage war on the Reich.

"Bloody Revolution"

"Adolf Hitler said," Rauschning testified, "he had no fear that the United States would join a coalition of western democracies against Germany. He said the United States was threatened with a bloody revolution. He said he would be able to make this latent revolution come to pass. He explained the methods by which he would be able to paralyze the national unity of the United States and the power of resistance in this country."

The witness related that Hitler then spoke of the racial minorities in the United States, asserting that such cleavages could be widened to disunite the country.

"A German Nation"

The Fuehrer indicated, he said, that the United States "must become a German nation," but that he would not depend upon the German minority alone in this country, using all minority groups to bring about his purpose.

Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher, presiding, deferred a ruling on a group of defense motions for a mistrial based on President Roosevelt's reference in a speech last week to the Silver Shirts, one of the organizations through which, the Government charges, the alleged conspiracy was affected.

French Honor Eight U. S. Naval Officers

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—The navy announced today award of the French Order of the Legion D'Honneur to eight United States naval officers by Vice-Admiral Raymond Fenard, chief of the French naval mission.

They are:

Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, Jr., Waterford, Conn., naval aide to President Roosevelt.

Rear Admiral Milo F. Draemel, commandant of Fourth Naval District and Philadelphia Navy Yard, Seattle, Wash.

Rear Admiral William S. Farber, sub-chief of naval operations, Cazenovia, N. Y.

Rear Admiral William Brent

Young, chief of Bureau of Supplies and Accounts, Washington, D. C.

Commodore Vance D. Chapline, director of fleet maintenance division, Washington.

Rear Admiral Edward J. Marquart (retired), former commandant Third Naval District, Pasadena, Cal.

Rear Admiral Robert A. Theobald, commandant First Naval District, Pasadena, Cal.

Capt. Oswald S. Colclough, Washington.

Capt. Cuthbert A. Griffiths, Cincinnati.

NAVY CASUALTIES

Washington, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—The Navy Department announced today the names of 243 casualties in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, which makes a total of 66,801 casualties reported by the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Of this total 26,271 are reported dead, 26,318 wounded, 9,732 missing and 4,480 prisoners of war. Included in the list today are the following, with their next of kin:

Eisenhower Invasion Chair, Desk Displayed

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—The seats of the mighty in Washington have made way for a new addition—the chair and desk from which Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower commanded the Allied invasion of fortress Europe.

The Smithsonian Institution has put them on display, with the consent of Eisenhower and the War Department.

NAZIS' GREENLAND STATION CAPTURED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 — (AP) American forces have captured what is believed to be the last of German's hidden weather stations in Greenland, an army air force official disclosed today.

Three officers, nine men and a considerable quantity of tactical, radio, scientific and ordnance equipment were seized.

It could not be stated where in Greenland the station was operating or why the War department believed it to be the last Nazi weather outpost. Several similar installations had been captured previously.

The Germans used such stations not only to provide data for their own operations but to give them clues as to what the Allies might be doing or planning to do.

Rabbi Wise, President Confer On Palestine

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—Rabbi Stephen S. Wise conferred with President Roosevelt today and later said the President "as a candidate" gives his full support to Democratic platform plank favoring unrestricted immigration in Palestine.

Dr. Wise requested the President to send a message to the Zionist Organization of America which opens its 49th convention in Atlantic City Friday. He said the Presidential message probably will be delivered to the convention by Senator Wagner (D., N. Y.).

Asked how he stood in the Presidential campaign, Dr. Wise chuckled and said:

"I am absolutely neutral as between the President and the Democratic candidate."

3 New Army Planes Due After V-E

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—Production of half of the 20 types of army airplanes currently in service will continue on full scale after Germany surrenders, work on three entirely new planes will be expanded and output of ten models will be cut in varying degrees.

That is the over-all picture drawn by the army in its plans for the aircraft industry during the period immediately following the end of fighting in Europe, although the schedule is subject to revision.

The three new planes include two fighters which promise sensational performance and a transport which can be used as a troop carrier.

Still On Secret List

The fighter planes are still on the secret list, but one in particular has been attracting considerable attention among military and industry groups, and reports indicate that its performance will exceed anything now in the air.

The cargo plane is Fairchild's C-82, a twin-engine craft of radical design which made its first flight last month. The engine nacelles extend from gull wings back to the twin tail in the manner of the P-38 Lightning.

This arrangement permits rear loading. The plane has been reported to gross around 50,000 pounds and to have a range of more than 3,500 miles.

B-32 Not Yet In Service

One of the ten models which will continue at then current production schedules after V-E day is Consolidated Vultee B-32 Dominator, big brother of the B-24 Liberator and not yet in service. No details of the B-32 have been made public.

The other planes which will have a full place in the design for smashing Japan are already working at it. Heading the list are the giant Boeing B-29 Superfortress, now being produced at four plants, and its smaller but older brother, the B-17 Flying Fortress.

No change in output is contemplated for the North American B-25 Mitchell, the Douglas A-26 Invader, the North American P-51 Mustang, the Northrop P-61 Black Widow night fighter, the Bell P-59 Airacomet jet propulsion fighter now being used in a training program, and two large cargo planes, the Douglas C-54 Skymaster and the Lockheed C-69 Constellation.

Greatest Reductions

The sharpest schedule reductions will be ordered for the B-24 Liberator, the Martin B-26 Marauder, the Bell P-63 Kingcobra, the Curtiss-Wright P-40 Warhawk and the Republic P-47 Thunderbolt.

Other cuts will affect the Douglas A-20 Hahov, the Lockheed P-38 Lightning and all types of trainers, which will be cut back sharply.

U. S. TOLD TO SEND YOUNG GIRLS HOME

Washington Social Hygiene Expert Urges Action

OCT 12 1944

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—A proposal that all teen-age Government girls be sent back home came today from a social service expert as Washington debated the question of how to safeguard the thousands of young girls who have come here from rural communities to take wartime Federal jobs.

Ray H. Everett, executive secretary of the Social Hygiene Society, made this suggestion with the comment, "Most girls under 20 are too immature to be running loose in Washington."

The problems imposed by a tremendous wartime influx of young women have been discussed by civic leaders for months, but the discussion has reached a new peak in press, pulpit and among Government workers themselves since the tragedy of Dorothy Berrum.

Career Ends In Death

Dorothy's three-month Government career ended in death. Just 18, she came here to work for the War Department when she graduated from high school at Chippewa Falls, Wis., last June. Last week, raped and strangled, her body was found in a Potomac river park. A young marine has been accused of the killing.

While the Government hires the girl workers, it does not undertake a close supervision of their off-duty hours. Most of the agencies and departments have personnel advisers to whom a girl can take her problems if she likes. But that is strictly up to her.

A girl coming to Washington to work for the Government can take living quarters anywhere she pleases. If she prefers to live in a Government-constructed dormitory, she will find advisers and a rule requiring that she "sign in" if she is out later than 2 A. M. But she can come and go as she pleases.

Supervision Matter Of Dispute

Whether the Government should exercise closer supervision is a disputed matter.

In a discussion at her press conference today, Mrs. Roosevelt made the observation that "no amount of rules and regulations ever really did the job."

"No one ever can really police any one else except the individual himself who uses self-discipline," she said.

A Government girl, entering the discussion via the Washington Evening Star's open forum, suggests that parents say "no" to a daughter wanting to work in Washington "unless they have taught her to take care of herself in all ways—and especially when it comes to men."

Sex Ignorance Frequent

"It isn't uncommon," she added, "to meet a girl who is ignorant in sex matters—who actually wouldn't know if, when or how she got into trouble."

Editorially, the Washington Post called for more police. "Reports reaching us," it said, "are to the effect that East Potomac Park and some of the city's other parks are the scene of many sex crimes every night."

WLB PASSES BOOK TO ROOSEVELT ON WAGE BOOST ROW

Labor Members Bitter Over 'Timidity and Double Talk.'

VOTE IS 8 TO 4

Factual Report May Not Reach President's Desk Until After Election.

OCT 12 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11— (AP) The War Labor Board voted 8 to 4 today to pass the dispute over the Little Steel formula on to President Roosevelt without advice, thereby provoking from the minority of labor members a protest which reached new heights of bitterness.

Hit Double-Talk

The minority statement labeled the proposal of the public and the industry members of the board a compound of "timidity, contradictions, and double-talk." The action of the boards, said the AFL-CIO group, "is an inexcusable dereliction of duty."

One labor member, Emil Rieve, of the CIO Textile Workers, called the majority's action comparable to a statement from the Army Chief of Staff that "we have no recommendation on how to prosecute the war because we don't know what the Germans are going to do."

The Board's action does not mean that the case goes immediately to the White House. There is a distinct possibility that the Board's factual report may not actually reach Mr. Roosevelt's desk until after the elections, first, because the report has not been fully prepared and and passed upon by the Board, and second, because the report will go first to stabilization director Fred M. Vinson.

The resolution adopted by the majority said in effect:

Board to Gather Data

The Board will gather all data regarding the relationship of wages to the cost of living and attempt to appraise the inequities, if any, suffered by wage earners. However, the Board is not sufficiently informed to advise the President whether a change in the Little Steel formula would cause or contribute to inflation.

The formula limits wage increases to 15 per cent above the level of January, 1941. Asking that it be revised, organized labor contends living costs have gone up out of all proportion to the rise of wages.

The Board's report also will discuss phases of wage stabilization outside the Little Steel formula, such as substandard wages and reconversion problems.

The Board will act upon pending wage cases under the present wage stabilization policy. This means a rejection of the increase of 17 cents an hour demanded by the CIO steel workers and other unions which have already received all the increase allowed by the Little Steel formula. However, such rejection will include "appropriate provisions for reopening in case any change in the policy should be made."

Thus, the wage demands would be kept alive technically and if the formula is changed later the benefits accruing to labor could be applied retroactively. A decision in most of the pending wage cases involves many months of back pay which might be lost if the government switched suddenly to a reconversion wage policy without making specific provision for retroactive benefits in the long pending wage disputes.

"If circumstances permit," the majority resolution said, "the Board may act upon some of the issues in the pending cases prior to the completion of said report" to the President. These issues in the case of the steel workers include demands for a guaranteed annual wage, discharge pay, vacations and night shift differentials.

Labor to File Report

Labor members, announcing that "we intend to make our own recommendations to the President," expressed doubt that the WLB report would reach the White House very soon. R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, said that "if the public members proceed the way they have been proceeding the President will get it some time next year. We expect ours will get there first."

George Meany, AFL Secretary-Treasurer, said that "labor can only hope" the President will "act with common sense and justice" without consultation with the War Labor board.

William H. Davis, WLB chairman, told a news conference that "from the beginning of the wage stabilization program, it has been the purpose and the hope of the public members to maintain if possible the established peacetime standards of the working man, including their wage standards."

Davis said that the differences between the public and the labor members "is not a difference of purpose but a difference of method."

Court Dismisses 6 Suits Of Montgomery Ward

Actions Sought to Halt W. L. B. Directive Enforcement

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—Justice Matthew F. McGuire, of District of Columbia Federal Court, today dismissed six suits in which Montgomery Ward & Co. sought injunctions to prevent enforcement of War Labor Board directives. The directives all involve union maintenance of membership and some of them other matters, such as wages and arbitration.

The dismissals were asked by the government last Thursday in line with recent Court of Appeals decisions to the effect that W. L. B. directives are not subject to court review. The Supreme Court on Monday refused to review a Court of Appeals decision of this kind, involving a group of motor carriers.

The suits dismissed today involve Montgomery Ward stores in Oakland, Calif.; Portland, Ore.; Chicago and St. Paul, and the Hummer Manufacturing Company at Springfield, Ill., a Montgomery Ward subsidiary. Two suits concerned the St. Paul plant.

The government seized and is operating the Hummer plant. Earlier, it seized the Chicago plant, which has been returned to company control.

Henry F. Butler, attorney for Montgomery Ward, opposed the government's motion to dismiss the six cases. Still pending in the Supreme Court is Montgomery Ward's petition for a review of another case in which the Court of Appeals reevrsed a lower court decision denying a government motion to dismiss.

Petrillo's Telegram Referred To Vinson

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—James C. Petrillo's telegram rejecting President Roosevelt's plea that he lift his musicians' union ban on making recordings was referred to Fred M. Vinson, stabilization director, by the White House today without comment.

Petrillo telegraphed Mr. Roosevelt that he could not permit members of the AFL American Federation of Musicians to make records or transcriptions for the two companies to whom the ban applied unless they sign contracts similar to those entered into with other recording firms. The wire was in reply to a request from Mr. Roosevelt that the ban be lifted.

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said Petrillo's telegram was sent to Vinson because he had been handling the case. The President's appeal to Petrillo followed a decision by Vinson that the union's stand was not "unduly impeding the war effort."

Fish Calls 4-Power Plan 'Wise Beginning'

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—The Dumbarton Oaks conference has been indorsed by Representative Hamilton Fish (R., N. Y.) as "a constructive, sound and wise beginning of the solution of the world peace problem."

Fish spoke with Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.) on the radio program, "American Forum of the Air," which had been described as a debate. Fish, however, said: "I find myself in accord with most of the proposals to achieve world peace and the arguments advanced by Senator Ball."

Ball said the foreign policy of the United States between the two world wars was built "on the craven foundation of fear."

Isolationists Agree

Fish declared: "There is no difference of opinion between pre-Pearl Harbor isolationists and non-interventionists about the desire, importance and necessity of developing and putting into effect a world peace program that will assure world security for all peace-loving nations."

The New York Congressman added: "No one has the right to indict 80 per cent. of the American people for being non-interventionist prior to Pearl Harbor."

New York-To-Calcutta Air Service Planned

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., is planning a low-rate airplane service from New York to Calcutta by way of London and Cairo as soon as the Civil Aeronautics Board approves, Jack Frye, TWA president, announced today.

CAB hearings on the proposed service will begin next Monday. Similar application has been made by Pan American Airways.

The proposed new service embraces seven round trips from New York to London each week, two from London to Cairo and one round trip from Cairo to Calcutta, Frye said.

Fare: $699.40

The fare from New York to London would be $263.80 compared with the present fare of $572. The rate from New York to Cairo would be $428.70 and from New York to Calcutta, $699.40.

Frye said the proposed route would be New York to Bangor, Maine, Northwest River, Canada, Greenland, Iceland, Scotland and London.

Paris would be the only stop between London and Cairo, and Bagdad, Karachi and New Delhi between Cairo and Calcutta.

JOHNSTON'S TRADE PLAN

U. S. Needs Bigger Foreign Business, Meeting Told

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Eric A. Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, told the National Foreign Trade Convention tonight that "we don't want the old pie of world trade divided into smaller pieces. We must have a bigger pie."

Johnston, globe-trotting representative of American business, was presented the Captain Robert Collar Memorial Award for 1944 at a world trade dinner, for "distinguished contribution to the advancement of American foreign trade."

Offers 3 Fundamentals

In his speech of acceptance, Johnston offered "with the naivete of an amatuer," what he called three fundamentals for the "task of building a workable peace from the world's shattered ruins." They were:

1. "The absolute necessity for a vastly expanded post-war trade among nations."
2. "If there is going to be a larger volume of foreign trade, we must have more prosperous people. You can't sell goods to the penniless or the bankrupt."
3. "A strong, a prosperous, a free America."

"For three decades now we have been having a gradual hardening of the arteries of trade," Johnston said. "This commercial arteriosclerosis has increased the economic tensions in every land. Unless intelligent application of known curatives can be applied, our post-war world will suffer a paralyzing stroke. I am talking to you, the doctors, tonight.

'No. 1 Must'

"It seems to me that the duty of selling our people the necessity of a greatly expanded trade is your No. 1 must."

Johnston said an immediate post-war increase in American foreign trade would be necessary to maintain a national income of $140,000,000,000 mentioned as a goal by some economists, until expenditures for capital goods reach an estimated $25,000,000,000 annually.

He proposed long-term credits for the industrial development of war-ravaged areas, to create the prosperity needed for foreign trade markets.

'Millions' Thrown Away'

"We will not make the foolish loans that we did after the last war," he said. "Then Americans threw millions away. Some of this money went for parks and swimming pools and even stuck to the hands of politicians. That was a mistake.

"In extending credit this time we should make sure that it will be used to produce jobs and new wealth, and thereby provide a higher standard of living and means for repayment."

Aldrich Is Speaker

In urging relaxation of Government control of export and import trade after the war, Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Chase National Bank, told the convention that "Government assistance and relief is no substitute for an efficient organization of private industry."

"There is no more important subject to discuss as this war approaches its end than how we may best mobilize and marshal our economic resources so as to contribute most to lasting peace and to the restoration of world prosperity," he said.

Shouldn't Be Deluded

"We should not allow ourselves to be deluded," he said. "The solution of the problems we shall face after this war calls for the utmost effort on the part of businessmen, and of the whole community, as well as of Government."

Asserting that "great issues are at stake in the decisions that will be taken within the next few months," Aldrich predicted that the successful operation of private industry "will give us the standard of living our people want and deserve." He added that although politicians were inclined to "take credit for prosperity they never assumed the blame for a depression."

Control Withdrawal Necessary

B. F. Haley, director of the Office of Economic Affairs of the Department of State, told the convention that withdrawal by the Government from control of foreign trade is "most essential," adding that "this is not just my own view, or just the view of the Department of State; it is the view of the Executive Department and agencies concerned with the subject, and, I am sure, also of Congress.

"You have already seen in the press and experienced in your business operations very effectual moves in the direction of the relaxation of wartime controls," he said.

James A. Farley, former Democratic national chairman and now chairman of Coca-Cola Export Corporation said "we are in favor of 'free private enterprise,'" as best calculated to release the greatest energy of persons, and insure full production employment and a high standard of living. We look forward to the removal of trade controls and restrictions. The same ends should be pursued in world trade if we are to bring about the highest possible development of world markets."

SOLDIER VOTE IS ESTIMATED

OCT 12 1944

Figures Indicate Over Two Million Ballots Will Be Cast

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Well over 4,300,000 men and women in the armed forces have applied for absentee ballots and the best estimates of State election officials indicate that more than 2,300,000 of the ballots will be cast in the November 7 election.

In the 18 States which have kept a record of them, more than 600,000 GI ballots already have been marked and returned. The percentage of service men and women who have cast the ballots they requested—or received without asking—ranges from five per cent. in Wisconsin to around 50 per cent. in Ohio.

October 3 Picture

These figures, gathered in a nation-wide survey by the Associated Press, reflect the soldier vote picture as of October 3, slightly more than a month before the general election.

The exact number of military ballots cast may never be known, since many States do not count them separately.

Similarly, thousands of ballots are reaching local and county officials in each day's mail and State officials have no record of them.

New York Situation

The situation in States where exact figures or close estimates are available:

New York, with its vital 47 electoral votes, has received 166,836 soldier votes from the 589,054 men and women who applied. Republican officials estimate that the State's total soldier vote will reach 375,000. Many Democrats, holding that the failure of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's administration to indorse the Federal ballot will prevent many service persons from voting, say the total will be smaller.

Ohio, with 236,985 applications, has received approximately 118,000 ballots. An Associated Press spot check in Pennsylvania, which mailed some 600,000 ballots without wating for applications, indicates that 120,000 have been returned. A fourth State over the 100,000 mark is New Jersey, which sent 379,920 ballots without applications and has received 101,953.

'Sound Peace Treaty' Seen If Dewey Wins

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 11 (AP)—Election of Governor Dewey to the Presidency would "assure" adoption of a sound peace treaty by elimination of "partisanship, personalities and prejudice" in Congress, Senator Harold H. Burton (R., Ohio) declared last night.

Burton spoke before the Albany Foreign Policy Association, which heard Harry D. Gideonse, president of Brooklyn College, argue that the record of Republican party leaders in dealing with the peace treaty after World War I and the present GOP platform called for reelection of President Roosevelt to assure a durable peace.

Claims Majority For House

Asserting that "any man who remains President for 12 years is bound to accumulate frictions, disappointments and prejudices," Burton said:

"It is clear that the majority in the House of Representatives will be Republican in the next Congress.

"It is not equally clear that there will be a Republican majority in the Senate, but it is unquestionably true that there will be an anti-Roosevelt majority in the Senate.

"The best way, therefore, to eliminate partisanship, personalities and prejudice and to assure a two-third vote for the treaty is to elect an anti-Roosevelt President."

"Imaginative Leadership"

Winning of the peace, Gideonse stated, "will call for the type of imaginative leadership that was prepared to invent and use the idea of lend-lease early enough to support our future allies with the aid of our economic resources when we were not yet ready to use our military power."

Governor Dewey's early attitude on lend-lease, Burton said, "is a fair test of his intellectual resourcefulness in meeting a problem full of angles. He described its original proposal as a "so-called defense" bill which was "a grave blow, not only to national unity but to all government everywhere."

U. S. Missionaries Interned at Foochow

Boston, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—Three Congregational missionaries of the American Board of Foreign Missions were interned in mission premises after Japanese occupation of Foochow, China, and seven others were reported unharmed at a station in the mountains, the board announced today.

The interned missionaries, members of the staff of the Willis F. Pierce Memoral Union Hospital in Foochow, were: Dr. Lora G. Dyer of Worcester, Miss Lydia S. Houston of Hollis, N. H., and Miss Jennie Jacobs of Boyden, Iowa.

Two New Yorkers were among those at the mountain station. They are the Rev. Elmer W. Galt, husband of Mrs. Elmer W. Galt of 503 West 168th street, and Dr. Charles L. Gillette, father of R. Donald Gillette, of 128 Macdougall street.

NAZI DEFENSES LEVELED BY SUPER EXPLOSIVE

BOSTON, Oct. 11 Known only by the cryptic "RDX," a super explosive was built by army ordnance for engineers to blast a way through miles of concrete anti-tank defenses on the approaches to the pivotal city of Aachen.

Col. H. B. Sheets, commander of the Boston ordnance district, explained that these obstacles, "known as 'dragons' teeth' and looking like martian molars," had to be leveled to permit passage of tanks and other combat vehicles.

Aerial reconnaissance disclosed the "teeth", and army ordnance was put on the job. The result is "RDX" which takes up much less space and, said the Colonel, is much more effective.

The engineers, said the Colonel in explanation, placed the plastic explosive around the bases of the obstacles, embedded a detonator cap, withdrew to a safe distance and then blasted the obstacles from their bases.

Battle-Broken Soldier Appeals for Better World

New Yorker Writes Letter on Behalf of Dead Comrades

BOSTON, Oct. 11 (AP).—A soldier has appealed to Americans, in the name of his dead comrades, to "learn to be a little kinder, a little more gentle and to love thy neighbor."

In a letter made public by one of his officers, Morris Litsky, thirty-two years old, of New York, who exhausted himself trying to keep up with Ranger comrades during the Normandy invasion, said that was what American soldiers were fighting for.

The officer, Lieutenant John T. Shea, former Boston sports writer, described Litsky as the possessor of a "beautiful sense of the comic," who "in an exaggerated Yiddish accent, kept up a continuous beefing" as the battle blazed on Normandy.

In with the first wave on D Day, Litsky lasted until D plus 14, Lieutenant Shea said, when he collapsed, broken from seeing men die on all sides of him. Lieutenant Shea said what Litsky had seen impelled him to write this letter to a friend:

"Oh, weary world, open your ears to our cries that rise from beneath the sand and earth," the letter said. "We hated to die. There was so much we wanted yet to do. But for us nothing now can be done. Only little white crosses and a woman's tears.

"But remember us and how dearly bought has been that liberty of which we so lightly boasted throughout our nation's life.

"We are not heroes. We are just plain dead Americans. We died prematurely. We can only rest in peace if only we can be sure that we haven't died in vain. If our death brings everlasting peace to this—our world—then it is worth the blood . . . spilled.

"You that are left, the world over, turn to God and love. . . . In God we trust, and in humanity we can only just hope that they have learned that lesson for which they have paid. . . .

"Learn to be a little kinder . . . a little more gentle. Learn to love thy neighbor."

Saltonstall Won't Act To Repeal Vote Provision

Boston, Oct. 11 (AP)—State Senator Joseph L. Murphy (D., Boston) today called upon Governor Saltonstall to use his emergency powers or call a special legislative session to repeal the State law which prevents counting of dead servicemen's ballots.

The Governor, who lost one of his sons in action, voiced strong personal opposition in a statement and added that "the Supreme Court has made it clear that I cannot change the election laws by an executive order."

"I will not call a special session," he added.

HILLMAN BLASTS RECORD OF G.O.P.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—(AP) Sidney Hillman, chairman of the C.I.O. Political Action Committee, said tonight that the Republican party stood for a "return to normalcy—to do—nothing Hooverism at home and narrow, stupid nationalism abroad."

Addressing the C.I.O. shop stewards' convention in the Academy of Music, Hillman said in a prepared speech, the advance text of which was distributed by the P.A.C.:

"It was clear to us last June that the choice before us was not merely a choice between men or parties but a choice between two fundamentally different attitudes toward government—a choice between government by the few for the few and government by the people for the people."

Hillman said the Republican "Old Guard", in an attempt to regain power, nominated Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for president "because of his lack of convictions and his ability to confuse the issues."

"Many of us were puzzled," Hillman asserted, "to understand why the Old Guard, having recaptured control of the Republican party, did not nominate either Robert Taft or John Bricker."

Declaring the reason had become fully apparent," he said:

"The Old Guard strategists did not want to fight an honest campaign in which they stood forthrightly upon the record of their party and proclaimed with sincerity the principles in which they believed."

Flyer Lost Eye, Leaves Army—'Feels Like Heel'

Phoenixville, Pa., Oct. 11 (AP) Sergt. Forrest L. Vosler, of Livonia, N. Y., Congressional medal winner who lost the sight of one eye in aerial combat with the Nazis, received his honorable discharge from the army at Valley Forge General Hospital today.

"I feel like a heel," said Vosler, "I'm 'getting out, but other guys are staying in."

After a final physical checkup here, Vosler will go to Savannah, Ga., to take a job as a radio technician. He plans to go to college next year.

Wallace Says Labor Merits Political Role

Upholds Right to 'Meddle,' Assails 'Taftism' at Home Town of Senator Taft

CINCINNATI, Oct. 11 (AP).—Vice-President Henry A. Wallace opened a Mid-Western Democratic campaign tour tonight with an assertion that labor has a right to "meddle in politics."

The Republican view, he told a mass meeting in Music Hall, is "just give Wall Street the green light and everything will be happy."

Mr. Wallace attacked what he called "Taftism" in the home town of Republican Senator Robert A. Taft, declaring that policies advocated by Senator Taft were "backed by strong newspapers, banks and real estate," then added:

"Many say labor should not meddle in politics, but I never heard the same ones say that banks, industrialists, insurance executives and capitalists should not meddle in politics.

"It is well that in America all sincere men can have their say. But it is also important that the common people can have their vote on what is said—and against Taft, the king-maker behind Dewey (Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential candidate).

"Taftism may win Nov. 7, but I don't think so."

"Blackmail and fear no longer rule among men who sweat. The men who make tools know why they made them and for what they made them. And they have as much right to political action as capitalists."

Mr. Wallace defined the current Presidential campaign as one of three issues, offering a choice as to which of two men could best finish the war, develop a workable peace, and provide full post-war employment.

The Democratic party stands in the lead on the first two, he declared, in its record of Congressional approval of defense measures for the current war and advocacy of the League of Nations and a World Court after the last. The choice as to the issue of post-war jobs, he said, is "about even," though he said the Democrats had a better record on social legislation.

Earlier, in a press conference, Mr. Wallace described Senator Taft as "the sincerest reactionary I know."

MESA STRIKE CALLED OFF

Mechanics' Union Will Negotiate Cleveland Dispute

Cleveland, Oct. 11 (AP)—Mechanics Educational Society of America officials abandoned late today plans to call 63,000 members out on strike at 64 Ohio and Michigan war plants and announced the unaffiliated union would enter negotiations with the Cleveland Graphite Bronze Company to settle a long-standing dispute.

Matthew L. Smith, national MESA secretary, had scheduled a widespread sympathy strike for tomorrow in protest, he said, against refusal of Graphite Bronze to discuss settlement of a controversy involving the discharge of a single worker.

Company Will Comply

James L. Myers, Graphite Bronze executive vice-president, said the company stood ready to comply with a War Labor Board conciliation order "at the proper point in the grievance procedure."

Smith called off the threatened walkout after the War Department declared settlement of the dispute must proceed according to a regional WLB plan. The army seized Graphite Bronze properties September 5, ending an MESA strike precipitated by the employe's discharge.

The MESA officer had protested against the WLB's designation of Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland, Democratic Gubernatorial nominee, to appoint a public member of a tri-partite panel if the dispute reached the arbitration phase and the parties were unable to agree on a third board member.

In accepting initial conciliation procedure, Smith informed Lieut. Col. George D. Lynn, the army's officer in charge at Graphite Bronze, that if no agreement is reached on a third member of the panel "the MESA will not agree to Mayor Lausche appointing such a member."

Shipyard Strike Heads Agree To Arbitration

Quincy, Mass., Oct. 11 (AP)—Leaders of between 4,000 and 5,000 striking workers at the Fore River yard of the Bethlehem Steel Company late today announced that they had accepted a proposal to submit grievances to the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration.

The executive board of the independent union of Fore River workers announced that the proposal will be presented to the striking employes tomorrow morning. The proposal for conciliation was offered by the plant management after a series of conferences with State and Federal officials.

State Labor Commissioner James T. Moriarity said that the company agreed to "submit all issues and grievances of all plant departments to the State Board of Conciliation." The company also specified that "all issues that cannot be settled through the State board will be carried to the War Labor Board or the shipbuilding commission."

The walkout had threatened to tie up the big yard in its warcraft construction and resulted in efforts by the United States Navy to end the work stoppage.

Kiwanis Disclaims Rickenbacker Talk

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 11 (AP)—The Memphis Kiwanis Club has apologized to Mayor Walter Chandler "for any embarrassment" that may have been caused him by a speech delivered by Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker under the club's sponsorship here October 4.

Chandler introduced Rickenbacker, who climaxed a talk on the war effort with a political comment.

Asserting it had always refrained from political activity, the club in a resolution said, "The Kiwanis members, directors or officers did not know or have any reason to expect that a partisan political issue would be brought into this address. . . .

"We deeply and sincerely regret any embarrassment that may have been caused Walter Chandler, Mayor of Memphis. . . ."

Rickenbacker, speaking to a public gathering in a traditionally Democratic stronghold, gave a 15-point outline of what he termed requirements for the Presidency, declaring:

"The man America needs for President is:

"A man who will go to the American people with a promise of legislation for their approval limiting the Presidential term to six years, or two terms of four years each.

"A man who will respect States' rights . . . who will guarantee to return all delegated wartime powers to the elected representatives of the people when the war is over . . . who will eliminate bureaucracy to the minimum."

Truman Maps His Fight Strategy

New Orleans, Oct. 11 (AP)—Senator Harry S. Truman, Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate, took time out today from a heavy schedule of engagements to discuss with a personally picked board of strategy plans for his 7,500-mile campaign tour.

Hugh Fulton, who resigned as chief counsel for the Senate war investigating committee when Truman gave up the chairmanship of that group, joined Matthew Connelly, Truman's executive assistant, and Edward McKim, of Omaha, for the first of a series of conferences.

Greets Shipbuilder Higgins

The candidate, here for the annual session of the Mississippi Valley Flood Control Association, which he will address in what he calls a "non-political" speech tomorrow, greeted Andrew Jackson Higgins, New Orleans shipbuilder, at a morning press conference.

Higgins said he agreed with Truman's view that the "solid South" would remain solid in the November election despite activities of anti-Roosevelt groups in some States in this section.

As national honorary president of Business Men for Roosevelt, Inc., Higgins told reporters his interest "is to have the voters' mandate for this Administration as overwhelming as possible."

Passes Up Baby Kissing

Truman plans his first major speech at Los Angeles, October 16. He put the finishing touches on his flood control speech here after viewing the New Orleans harbor with a party which included Senators Overton (D., La.), McClellan (D., Ark.), Maloney (D., Conn.) and Bilbo (D., Miss.).

He met during the day with 350 mothers who gathered at the Roosevelt Hotel with babies born since their husbands went overseas.

"I posed with them," Truman told reporters. "However, I was afraid to hold them since I have a slight cold, and I didn't want to drop one."

HAILS TELEPHONE FOR PART IN WAR

Chicago, Oct. 11 (A. P.).—Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, declared today that world war II "is a telephone-run war, from the production plants up to the front lines, on land, on sea, and in the air."

In an address prepared for delivery to the national convention of the United States Independent Telephone Association, Mr. Gifford said more than "70,000 members of the telephone team" had joined the armed forces and that during the first twenty-two days of the invasion of Italy, American Signal Corps units laid more than 5,300 miles of assault wire, field wire and cable.

He added that the radio-telephone, according to one naval expert, has brought about a complete change in the conduct of naval war.

He told the convention that the telephone industry today is serving some 26,500,000 telephones in the United States, or about 5,000,000 more than in 1940, when the national defense effort began.

As a post-war objective he suggested that the industry unite on the problem of furnishing telephone service to the farmer at a lower cost.

BOEING TO BUILD 700 MORE B-29'S

Wichita, Kan., Oct. 11 (A. P.).—The Wichita division of the Boeing Airplane Company received authorization today to proceed with the procurement of materials for 700 additional B-29 Superfortresses, J. E. Schaefer, vice-president and general manager, announced.

The order, the fourth placed for giant bombers at Boeing-Wichita, means production plans will be projected far into the future, Mr. Schaefer said. He added that the total numbers of Superfortresses now under contract could not be revealed for security reasons.

Release of the information concerning B-29 delivery contracts, made with the approval of the Army Air Forces, was the first such announcement authorized.

NEW DEAL CALLED FASCISTIC BY DIES

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 11 (A. P.).—Representative Martin Dies (D.-Tex.), told the newly formed Texas Regulars party last night that the New Deal is anti-Democratic and "a form of Fascism disguised as a liberal movement to deceive gullible and unthinking people."

He addressed the first Statewide rally of the party seeking the support of Texas Democrats for its twenty-three presidential electors, named after pro-Roosevelt forces took control of the Democratic party machinery and ousted fifteen electors, who had said they would not cast their Electoral College vote for President Roosevelt.

In a speech prepared for delivery Mr. Dies said that in his work as chairman of the House Committee on UnAmerican Activities he had made discoveries which he said showed the New Deal opposed democracy as Texas and Southern Democrats have known it.

"I studied its leaders, their utterances, backgrounds and connections and I declare to you, my fellow Texans, that the New Deal is anti-Democratic and un-American," he said. "It is a form of Fascism disguised as a liberal movement to deceive gullible and unthinking people."

Mr. Dies asked how any true Democrat could stay under the same political roof "with Earl Browder, Sidney Hillman, Felix Frankfurter, Sam Rosenman, Harry Hopkins, Harold Ickes and Madame Perkins.

"Some Democrats have stayed in hoping that the party would get rid of the Hillmans and Browders," he said. "Others stayed because they had no other place to go. Others are getting enough out of the New Deal to compensate them for the company they keep. One by one the real Democrats, the Garners, Byrds and Farleys, have been compelled to come out for air."

yards vicinity of Bremerton on August 12 he said, President stated:

"We were not allowed to fortify Guam, nor did we fortify Wake, or Midway or Samoa."

Refers To Corregidor

Bricker, referring to the valiant stand of American soldiers on Corregidor, said:

"If ever there was an argument for the retention, after this war, of a strong system of outlying military bases wtihin the sphere of American responsibility for world security, Corregidor is that argument."

As for Guam, Bricker said available evidence warranted the conclusion that fortification of it was not in the President's program.

Blames President

"He was afraid of offending Japan," Bricker said. "It was the same reason for which he kept providing Japan with oil and scrap iron. He did not ask Congress to fortify Guam. Guam was not fortified—Japan struck. The responsibility rests squarely upon the President."

Bricker declared that America also needed "those Pacific bases which we once so tamely yielded to Japan and ourselves neglected."

Opposing, too, the surrender of newly acquired bases, he continued:

"As a responsible nation we can not afford to close our eyes to the evidence of Administration policies which would surrender to others many of the strategic military bases and establishments for which our sons have died and for which we have spent our wealth of natural resources.

Cites Seabee Motto

"The Seabees have a motto: 'We Defend What We Build.' For our own national safety, for the peace of the world, we should adopt that motto as a cardinal principle of our diplomacy.

Bricker contended that this nation should retain strategic military bases for the sake of world stability.

This nation, he said, has demonstrated that it is not an aggressor and does not intend to become one.

"The retention by the United States of strategic military bases," he added, "is not an imperialistic matter. It is a matter of world stability. Our Allies have trusted us in this war. We have not let them down. They should also trust us in this matter of military bases necessary to our responsibility in the maintenance of a world order to be mutually agreed upon by all free nations."

Further Proof, He Says

As further proof that America should be strongly prepared "to use our power in the air, on the seas and on the land," Bricker declared, history and "our own sad experiences since 1917 and 1918 also demonstrate that international respect and weak diplomacy do not mix."

Turning to the issue of why Guam was not fortified, Bricker said the Administration had sought "to blame Congress, more particularly the Republicans in Congress, who voted against an authorization to appropriate $5,000,000 to make certain engineering improvements at Guam."

"I call your attention to the fact," he declared, that neither the navy, the Administration nor the President had asked Congress to fortify Guam."

The Guam appropriation which Congress rejected, he said, was primarily to provide a commercial airport, and "such would have only given Japan more to capture."

The Republican and Democratic Congressmen who voted against the $5,000,000 proposal, he added, "did so on the ground that the Administration was trying to get something by subterfuge which it could not get by coming out in the open."

Bricker said that Admiral Leahy, chief of naval operations, "made it plain that the Guam project did not include fortifications."

Bricker came here aboard his special train after a speech last night at Wenatchee.

He recommended there that local governments be authorized, "with proper restrictions," to tax Federally-owned property. He said that the Federal Government now owned 395,000,000 acres — more than 20 per cent. of the country's total area—which would have yielded $91,000,000 a year to local governments if taxed at their rates.

Failure To Arm Guam Blamed On Roosevelt

Gov. John W. Bricker, GOP Vice-Presidential candidate, will speak tonight from Tacoma, Wash., over a nation-wide hookup. In Baltimore his address will be carried by Station WFBR at 10.30 o'clock.

Bremerton, Wash., Oct. 11 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker today advocated that America maintain a "strong system of outlying military bases" after the war, and blamed President Roosevelt for the failure to fortify Guam.

The Republican candidate for Vice-President, setting forth what he described as his party's position, in an address from the great shipyards vicinity of Bremerton, in a speech prepared for nation-wide broadcast and released in advance by his campaign staff, said Great Britain within three years after the low point of 1932 restored national income and employment to her 1929 figure.

The United States, on the other hand, "never recovered her 1929 income or employment until war came," he added.

Remarks About Guam

Earlier in his two-day tour of Washington the Ohio Governor told an audience in the shipyards community of Bremerton that America should maintain "a strong system of outlying military bases" after the war for the sake of world stability.

He also opposed the surrender of new military bases and establishments "for which our sons have died and for which we have spent our wealth of natural resources."

Appearing in the same vicinity where President Roosevelt said on August 12 that "we were not allowed to fortify Guam," Bricker declared that "neither the navy, the Administration nor the President had asked Congress to fortify Guam."

Takes Issue With F. D. R.

He said Mr. Roosevelt was "afraid of offending Japan," and added: "It was the same reason for which he kept providing Japan with oil and scrap iron. He did not ask Congress to fortify Guam. Guam was not fortified—Japan struck. The responsibility rests squarely upon the President."

Bricker is his Tacoma speech again took issue with President Roosevelt's October 5 address.

"In weak terms," the Republican candidate said, "he told us that he neither seeks nor welcomes the support of any person or group committed to Communism or Fascism.

"But he did not repudiate their support—as he did on September 29, 1936, in an address before the Democratic State convention at Syracuse, N. Y. That is a significant fact! Is he now resigned to their support?"

Economic Chaos

Turning to other statements of the President, Bricker continued:

"It is not true, as Mr. Roosevelt implied in his acceptance speech, that the New Deal 'rescued American business, agriculture, industry, finance and labor in 1933.'

"It actually plunged them into economic chaos and stagnation. It put our economic machinery on dead center, and kept it there until war started its wheels moving again. . . .

"No, people of America, the New Deal cannot be trusted to provide productive peacetime jobs in the United States."

Comparing the United States' handling of depression problems with Great Britain's, Bricker said that after "years of unprecedented spending, pump-priming and economic tinkering—after exercising power never dreamed of by a preceding Administration—and after killing live stock, destroying crops and hamstringing business, the New Deal dragged this country to the bottom of the list of nations in terms of industrial recovery."

Bricker's Recommendations

The Governor recommended these steps to "provide jobs and to maintain a high national income":

Settle war contracts at the earliest possible date.

Dispose of surplus Government plants, equipment and supplies "equitably and fairly."

Inaugurate a tax policy "that will enable industry to create jobs" and encourage venture capital, and End deficit financing soon after victory.

Bricker will speak tomorrow in Vancouver, Wash., and Eugene and Portland, Ore.

Bricker Compares U. S. And England

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 11 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker asserted tonight that the "New Deal dragged this country to the bottom of the list of nations" in industrial recovery and could not be trusted to provide productive peacetime jobs.

The Republican Vice-Presidential

Both Roosevelt and Dewey Will Observe Columbus Day

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey expanded his speaking itinerary; prospects developed of a heavier soldier vote than heretofore anticipated; and signs increased yesterday (Wednesday) that the presidential campaign may yet wind up in a foreign policy debate.

Dewey now has eight major speeches scheduled; President Roosevelt one.

A survey by the Associated Press, meanwhile, showed that well over 4,300,000 men and women in the armed services have applied for absentee ballots and more than 600,000 have already been marked and returned in the 18 states which record them separately from other returns.

Both President Roosevelt and his Republican opponent will observe Columbus Day today. The chief executive will speak for about ten minutes at 4 p. m., Eastern War Time, before Latin-American government representatives at the White House. Gov. Dewey will review the annual parade in New York city in honor of Columbus and will register for the coming election.

Republican sources confirmed yesterday that Dewey not only now has eight speaking engagements, but one of these is in Madison Square Garden on the last Saturday night before the voting. This is the prize spot on the pre-election calendar and usually is competed for by both parties.

It was also announced that his speech Wednesday before the New York Herald Tribune forum would deal exclusively with foreign affairs and would be titled "This Must Be The Last War." It will be broadcast over the Blue network starting at 9:30 p. m. The President will discuss foreign affairs before the Foreign Policy Association in New York Oct. 21.

With less than a month left before election, Dewey's speaking calendar reads: Oct. 16, St. Louis; 18, New York Herald Tribune forum; 24, Minneapolis; 25, Chicago; 31, Buffalo; Nov. 1, Boston; 4, Madison Square Garden; 6, Studio Address election eve.

The only speech the President has definitely set besides today's and that in New York Saturday week is a routine five-minute National War Fund appeal next Tuesday.

Other developments yesterday:

The War Labor Board voted 8 to 4 to refer to the President without recommendation the question of easing wage controls. There were indications the matter would not reach Mr. Roosevelt's desk before election day much less be acted on by Nov. 7.

Gov. John W. Bricker, G.O.P. vice presidential candidate, said in an address prepared for delivery at Tacoma, Wash., that Republicans "will believe the President's disclaimer of Communist support when he fires the last Communist from the government payroll—and when he publicly repudiates Hillman and Browder."

Bricker also asserted the New Deal "dragged this country to the botom of the list of nations" in industrial recovery prior to the war and could not be trusted to provide productive peace-time jobs. Earlier, at Bremerton he advocated maintenance of a "strong system of outlying military bases" by the United States to aid world stability.

New York registrations approached the million mark, the two-day total reaching 943,335, exceeding enrollments for the same period in 1940 by 113,000.

Republican Chairman Herbert Brownell, Jr., told a Pittsburgh news conference the CIO Political Action Committee by splitting the Democratic party would make certain election of Dewey.

Democratic Chairman Robert E. Hannegan in New York described James Scott Kemper, New finance chairman for the Republicans, as "an old champion of isolationism and one of the main pillars of America First." Kemper, ill in Chicago, had no comment.

The campaign almost reached the baby-kissing stage, but Senator Harry S. Truman, in New Orleans, who had an opportunity to kiss 300 of them, turned it aside saying he had a slight cold. "Only a mother should hold a baby," said the Democratic vice-presidential nominee in admiring but refusing to hold a set of twins.

SZEGED IS 95 MILES SOUTHEAST OF BUDAPEST, AND ALTHOUGH RUSSIAN TROOPS ALREADY WERE ONLY 47 MILES FROM THE HUNGARIAN CAPITAL AT OTHER POINTS FARTHER NORTH, LOSS OF THAT CITY OF 132,000 WAS A BLOW TO THE SHAKY MORALE OF HUNGARY, LAST GERMAN SATELLITE OF ANY CONSEQUENCE.

CLUJ, DEEP IN THE TRANSYLVANIAN MOUNTAINS, WAS A PARTICULARLY PALATABLE PRIZE TO THE ROMANIANS, WHO LOST THE CITY OF 100,000 AND MOST OF TRANSYLVANIA TO HUNGARY IN 1940 BY A GERMAN "GIFT," AND NOW ARE WINNING IT BACK WITH SOVIET HELP.

THE GERMAN RADIO ADMITTED THAT MEMEL, CHIEF CITY OF MEMELLAND WHICH THE NAZIS ANNEXED TO EAST PRUSSIA IN MARCH, 1939, WAS COMPLETELY SURROUNDED AND UNDER ATTACK FROM THREE SIDES. ITS FALL APPEARED TO BE A FORECONE CONCLUSION. IT IS BUT 72 MILES NORTHEAST OF KONIGSBERG, EAST PRUSSIA'S CAPITAL.

A GERMAN RADIO MILITARY COMMENTATOR DECLARED, "THE AUTUMN OFFENSIVE IS IN FULL SWING; IT MAY NOW BE SAID THAT THE GENERAL ATTACK ON EAST PRUSSIA HAS OPENED." HE PORTRAYED IT AS A PINCERS PLAN, WITH THE DRIVES FROM THE NORTH AND NORTHEAST AIMED AT TILSIT AND KONIGSBERG COUPLED WITH THE NEW ONE FROM POLAND TOWARDS ALLENSTEIN AND DANZIG.

THE GERMANS SAID THE DRIVE IN POLAND WAS IN THE SECTOR AROUND ROZAN, WHICH IS 47 MILES NORTHEAST OF WARSAW AND 40 MILES SOUTHEAST OF EAST PRUSSIA. THEY CREDITED IT WITH GAINING SIX MILES IN A DAY UNDER A TITANIC ARTILLERY BARRAGE FOLLOWED UP BY STRONG TANK FORCES.

A GERMAN SPOKESMAN DESCRIBED THE ATTACK AS PROCEEDING ALONG A 35-MILE FRONT ROUGHLY BETWEEN ROZAN AND LOMZA.

WITH THE DRIVES FROM SAKIAI AND TAURAGE ALREADY ANNOUNCED BY THE RUSSIANS, THREE OF THE FIVE FRONTS BUILT UP AGAINST EAST PRUSSIA THUS WERE IN ACTION, WITH THE ONE NORTHWEST OF BIALYSTOCK AND THAT IN THE SUWALKI TRIANGLE REMAINING QUIET FOR THE MOMENT.

STEADILY WIDENING THE BARRIER THEY DROVE TO THE BALTIC SEA TUESDAY, GEN.IVAN C.BAGRAMIAN'S FIRST BALTIC ARMY APPEARED POSITIVELY TO HAVE BLOCKED THE ESCAPE OF GERMAN TROOPS IN NORTHWESTERN LITHUANIA AND WESTERN LATVIA. ESTIMATED AT 100,000 TO 150,000, INCLUDING THE CLOSELY-BESIEGED GARRISON OF RIGA.

BESIDES THE GERMAN ACKNOWLEDGEMENT OF PERIL IN THE NORTH, THEY AND THE HUNGARIANS ALSO DISCLOSED A DANGEROUS SITUATION FOR THEMSELVES IN THE SOUTH, STATING THAT THE RED ARMY MEN OF MARSHAL RODION Y. MALINOVSKY HAD REACHED KECSKEMET, 47 MILES SOUTHEAST OF BUDAPEST, AFTER CROSSING THE TISZA RIVER, LAST IMPORTANT WATER BARRIER BEFORE THE HUNGARIAN CAPITAL.

THE ENEMY HAD NOT ADMITTED THE LOSS OF SZEGED OR CLUJ, BUT BOASTED OF A CLEVER WITHDRAWAL NEAR CLUJ.

THE HUNGARIAN HIGH COMMAND CLAIMED THE RUSSIANS LATER WERE DRIVEN BACK FROM KECSKEMET, A CITY OF 54,000, AND THAT A BATTLE NOW WAS RAGING TO ELIMINATE THE SOVIET BRIDGEHEAD IN THE VICINITY OF CSONGRAD.

THE GERMANS AND ROMANIANS SAID THE RUSSIANS HAD REACHED THE TISZA ALONG THE 30-MILE STRETCH FROM SZEGED TO CSONGRAD AND HAD CROSSED IT AT SOME POINTS, BUT CONTENDED THEY HAD BEEN DRIVEN BACK FROM SZEGED.

FARTHER NORTH, THE HUNGARIAN COMMAND SAID, THE GERMAN ARMORED FORCES HAD SURROUNDED A MAJOR FORCE OF RUSSIAN ARMOR AND CAVALRY ADVANCING TOWARD DEBRECEN. THIS STATEMENT IGNORED THE SOVIET COMMUNIQUE OF TUESDAY WHICH ANNOUNCED STREET FIGHTING IN DEBRECEN'S SUBURBS. FALL OF DEBRECEN, A SYNTHETIC OIL PRODUCTION CENTER, APPEARED NEAR.

IN YUGOSLAVIA BOTH SIDES MAINTAINED A POSSIBLY SIGNIFICANT SILENCE CONCERNING THE BELGRADE AREA WHERE THE RUSSIANS AND YUGOSLAV PARTISANS WERE CLOSE TO THECITY ON THE NORTHEAST AND HAD CUT THE BELGRADE-NIS RAILWAY TO THE SOUTHEAST.

ON THE ARCTIC FRONT IN FINLAND, THE GERMAN RADIO SAID THE RUSSIANS HAD STARTED A MAJOR ATTACK IN THE PETSAMO AREA BUT DETAILS WERE FEW.

A LATER BROADCAST COMMUNIQUE FROM THE HEADQUARTERS OF MARSHAL TO SAID GEN. LIST, GERMAN COMMANDER IN BELGRADE, FLED WITH HIS AFF BEFORE THE CITY WAS ENCIRCLED.

LONDON--FIRST ADD FIRST LEAD BULGARIAN X X X MOLOTOV.

BULGARIA HAS BEEN DICKERING FOR PEACE FOR TWO MONTHS. SHE STARTED OUT FIRST WITH GREAT BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES WHILE SHE STILL MAINTAINED DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH THE RUSSIANS. HOWEVER, WHEN SHE DIDN'T ACT FAST ENOUGH THE RED ARMY DROVE ACROSS THE BULGARIAN BORDER SEPT. 8.

SINCE THEN THE RUSSIANS HAVE BEEN BUSY IN BULGARIA ROUNDING UP NAZI OFFICIALS AND PRO-GERMAN ELEMENTS WHO HAD LAUNCHED THE COUNTRY ON A ROAD OF TERRITORIAL AGGRANDISEMENT WITH HITLER'S HELP IN 1940.

WITH PRELIMINARY PEACE NEGOTIATIONS SET-UP FOR BULGARIA, THE RUSSIANS ARE NOW FREE TO CONCENTRATE THEIR ATTENTION ON FORCING THE CAPITULATION OF HUNGARY--LAST OF THE BALKAN SATELLITES.

FOLLOWING IS THE TEXT OF THE MOSCOW BROADCAST, ATTRIBUTED TO TASS, THE OFFICIAL RUSSIAN NEWS AGENCY:

"IN CONNECTION WITH THE FACT THAT THE BULGARIAN GOVERNMENT REQUESTED THE SOVIET, BRITISH AND UNITED STATES GOVERNMENTS TO GRANT AN ARMISTICE, THE THREE ALLIED GOVERNMENTS ON OCTOBER 11 INFORMED THE BULGARIAN GOVERNMENT OF THE FOLLOWING:

"TH GOVERNMENTS OF THE U.S.S.R., UNITED KINGDOM AND UNITED STATES, HAVING CONSIDERED THE BULGARIAN GOVERNMENT'S REQUEST FOR AN ARMISTICE, HAVE DECIDED THAT AS AN ESSENTIAL PREREQUISITE FOR STARTING ARMISTICE NEGOTIATIONS THE BULGARIAN GOVERNMENT MUST UNDERTAKE TO EVACUATE ALL BULGARIAN TROOPS AND OFFICIALS FROM GREEK AND YUGOSLAV TERRITORY. THIS EVACUATION MUST COMMENCE IMMEDIATELY AND BE COMPLETED WITHIN 15 DAYS FROM TODAY.

"FOR CHECKING AND CONTROLLING THIS EVACUATION THE THREE ALLIED GOVERNMENTS WILL SEND TO BULGARIA THEIR REPRESENTATIVES WHO WILL ACT AS A JOINT ALLIED MILITARY COMMISSION UNDER THE CHAIRMANSHIP OF THE SOVIET REPRESENTATIVE.

"THE BULGARIAN GOVERNMENT HAS ACCEPTED THE PRELIMINARY CONDITIONS OF THE ALLIED GOVERNMENTS."

LONDON, M OCT. 11-- (AP)---IN A MAJOR SHOWDOWN ON RUSSIA'S POST-WAR AIMS IN EUROPE AND PLANS FOR WIDENING HER SPHERE OF INFLUENCE MAY DEVELOP AT THE MOSCOW CONFERENCE IN THE WAKE OF A DECISION TO UNDERTAKE IMMEDIATE SETTLEMENT OF POLAND'S FUTURE, IT APPEARED TONIGHT.

POLISH PREMIER STANISLAW MIKOLAJCZYK, WITH THE BLESSING OF HIS EXILED GOVERNMENT IN LONDON, HASTILY ACCEPTED AN INVITATION --- TANTAMOUNT TO A SUMMONS--- TO JOIN THE TALKS BETWEEN PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AND PREMIER STALIN, AND WILL HUSTLE OFF TO MOSCOW HOPEFUL OF AN EARLY END TO HIS LONG DISPUTE WITH MOSCOW.

THE IMMEDIATE OBJECTIVE OF HIS SECOND MISSION TO MOSCOW WAS SETTLEMENT OF DIFFERENCES WAS SETTLEMENT OF DIFFERENCES INVOLVING THE SOVIET-POLISH BORDER AS WELL AS THE COMPLEXION OF THE POLISH GOVERNMENT, BUT THE TASK RAISES QUESTIONS OF EVEN GREATER IMPORT CONCERNING INTER-ALLIED RELATIONS AND THE POST-VICTORY SHAPE OF EUROPE.

IT IS BELIEVED HERE THAT CHURCHILL AND FOREIGN SECRETARY ANTHONY EDEN HAVELONG BEEN CONVINCED THAT AN AMICABLE SETTLEMENT OF THE POLISH-RUSSIAN RIFT IS ESSENTIAL TO THE FUTURE PEACE OF EUROPE, AND THAT THEY HAVEPERSUADED STALIN THAT THE TIME HAS COME TO LAY THE CARDS ON THE TABLE.

THE PROBLEM IS EXPECTED TO PROVIDE A CLUE TO HOW FAR STALIN IS WILLING TO GO IN DEMANDING ETRRITORIAL ACQUISITION AND IN DICTATING THE POLITICAL IDEOLOGY OF NEIGHBORING GOVERNMENTS.

CHURCHILL HAS SUPPORTED BOTH SOVIET CLAIMS IN SOME DEGREE. "AFTER ALL," HE TOLD THE HOUSE OF COMMONS SEPT. 29, "THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE HAVE SUFFERED AT THE HANDS OF GERMANY," HE TOLD THE HOUSE OF COMMONS SEPT. 29, "THEY ARE ENTITLED TO SAFE FRONTIERS AND TO HAVE FRIENDLY NEIGHBOR ON THEIR WESTERN FLANK."

BUT ON THE QUESTION OF THE POLISH GOVERNMENT CHURCHILL IS UNLIKELY TO GO FURTHER THAN MIKOLAJCZYK IN HIS MEMORANDA DRAFTED DURING A PERIOD OF CONSULTATIONS WITH THE BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE AND SUBMITTED--- AND SINCE IGNORED--- TO RUSSIA.

IN THIS THE POLISH PREMIER PROPOSED FORMATION OF A COLATTION GOVERNMENT IN WHICH THE COMMUNIST PARTY, THE BACKBONE OF THE POLISH LIBERATION COMMITTEE, WOULD BE INCLUDED ON A BASIS OF EQUAL REPRESENTATION WITH THE COUNTRY'S FOUR OTHER POLITICAL PARTIES.

ON THE MATTER OF TERRITORIAL CHANGES, IT IS EXPECTED THAT CHURCHILL WILL SUPPORT THE CURZON LINE, WITH THE STIPULATION THAT BOTH RUSSIAAAND BRITAIN BACK A POLISH CLAIM AFTER VICTORY FOR A BIG PIECE OF GERMANY 'S EAST PRUSSIA AND A WIDER OUTLET TO THE SEA.

IN THIS PORTION OF THE BATTLE TO FREE THE PORT OF ANTWERP, A BATTLE WHICH THE GERMANS REPEATEDLY HAVE BEEN TOLD CAN BE ONE OF THE MOST DECISIVE OF THE WESTERN FRONT CAMPAIGN, THE ENEMY IS NOT OFFERING THE SAME QUALITY OF RESISTANCE MET BY THE CANADIANS WHO HOLD A FOOTHOLD ON THE NORTH BANK OF THE LEOPOLD CANAL AFTER WIPING OUT NEARLY 2,000 NAZIS.

BUT THE ENEMY ON SOUTH BEVELAND HAS GIVEN NO SIGN AS YET THAT HE INTENDS TO EVACUATE THE ISLAND. INSTEAD, MEN HAVE BEEN SENT TO THE SPIT CONNECTING THE ISLAND WITH THE MAINLAND AT WHAT MIGHT BE CALLED THE LAST MOMENT TO DIG HASTY DEFENSES.

UP TO THIS MORNING THERE WAS BITTER FIGHTING IMMEDIATELY EAST OF WOENSDRECHT AROUND THE VILLAGES OF HOOGERHEIDE AND NEDERHEIDE. IT IS HERE THAT FANATIC YOUNG NAZIS ARE BELIEVED DISENGAGING WHERE POSSIBLE TO RETIRE AND FORM FOR A DEFENSIVE FIGHT OUTSIDE OF BERGEN OP ZOOM, A TOWN WHICH, ALONG WITH ROOSENDAAL, BREDA, TILBURG, AND 'S HERTOGENBOSCH, IS A POSSIBLE STRONGPOINT ON THE NEXT ENEMY DEFENSE LINE.

ALSACE LORRAINE, OCT. 11-(AP)-A FORMER UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE WRESTLING COACH WHO TEACHES HIS TANK CREWS TO "SHOOT FROM THE HIP" WAS REVEALED TODAY AS ONE OF THE KEY SPARKPLUGS IN THE U.S. THIRD ARMY'S 1,000-MILE RIGHT HOOK THROUGH FRANCE TO ALSACE LORRAINE.

LIFTING SECURITY REGULATIONS ON HIGH OFFICERS, THE ARMY PERMITTED USE OF THE STORY OF COL. BRUCE C.CLARKE, SYRACUSE, N.Y., AND HIS COMBAT COMMAND OF THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION, WHICH HAS SPENT MORE TIME BEHIND THE GERMAN LINES THAN BEHIND THE ALLIED FRONT.

TANNED, HUSKY CLARKE, WITH SMOOTH FEATURES THAT BELIE THE COLD DETERMINATION OF HIS ACTIONS, IS ONE OF THE MOST SUCCESSFUL ARMORED COMBAT TEAM COMMANDERS IN FRANCE.

IN AN ARMORED DIVISION THAT IS NOTED FOR ITS DARING HIS COMMAND HAS PUT OUT ITS NECK FARTHEST. BUT THAT IS IN KEEPING WITH CLARKE'S IDEA OF ARMORED WARFARE. HE BELIEVES THE SAFEST PLACE HIS COMMAND COULD BE IS MOVING BEHIND GERMAN LINES, CHOPPING NAZI COMMUNICATIONS TO PIECES.

"WARFARE IS MENTAL, NOT PHYSICAL," CLARKE EXPLAINED, SITTING ON THE EDGE OF A COT IN A FIELD TENT WHILE RAIN POURED OUTSIDE. "TANKS ARE WEAPONS OF TERROR AND WHEN THEY GET BEHIND GERMAN LINES THEY CREATE CHAOS AND THE GERMANS TAKE TO THE WOODS."

IF YOU UPSET THE OTHER FELLOW YOU HAVE WON."

A WEST POINTER WHO HOLDS DEGREES IN ENGINEERING AND LAW FROM CORNELL AND LA SALLE UNIVERSITIES, CLARKE BELIEVES THAT TANKS SHOULD GET IN CLOSE ENOUGH TO USE MACHINEGUNS AND ON THE OFFENSIVE SHOULD ALMOST NEVER HAVE TO FIRE A BIG GUN.

THAT HIS THEORIES HAVE PAID DIVIDENDS IS SEEN IN THE CASUALTIES. HIS COMMAND HAD FEWER CASUALTIES IN SIX WEEKS BEHIND THE GERMAN LINES THAN IN TWO WEEKS OF DEFENSIVE WARFARE ON A NOW STABILIZED WESTERN FRONT.

IN ONE RAMPAGE ALONE, BEHIND THE GERMAN LINES, AFTER CROSSING THE MOSELLE RIVER IN THE SIX DAYS FROM SEPT. 13 TO 19, CLARKE'S COMMAND DESTROYED 121 NAZI TANKS, 511 OTHER VEHICLES AND 33 LARGE CALIBER GUNS, AND CAPTURED 1,903 GERMANS.

DURING THIS TIME HIS COMMAND WAS SURROUNDED BY SUPERIOR GERMAN FORCES WHICH COULD HAVE TURNED AND DESTROYED HIM IF THEY KNEW WHAT WAS GOING ON OR WHERE TO ATTACK. AT TIMES CLARKE'S COMMAND WAS 30 MILES BEHIND THE MAIN GERMAN LINE.

CLARKE'S THEORY OF GETTING AT THE "SOFT SIDE" OF THE GERMANS HIT A PEAK WHEN HIS COMMAND'S LIGHTNING ADVANCE SENT TANKS INTO SENS AND CAUGHT GERMAN OFFICERS IN THE STREETS IN THEIR BEST CLOTHES, WITH PACKAGES UNDER THEIR ARMS, GOING ABOUT THEIR BUSINESS. THE GERMANS SEIZED BICYCLES FROM FRENCHMEN AND TRIED TO RIDE OUT OF TOWN, ONLY TO BE RUN DOWN BY AMERICAN TANKS.

THE ATTACK CAME SO FAST THAT GERMAN 88S WERE CAUGHT WITH RAIN-COATS OVER THE MUZZLES AND THEIR GUN CREWS NOWHERE NEAR.

CLARKE'S COMMAND FIGHTS UNORTHODOX BATTLES.

THE RULE BOOKS SAY TANKS SHOULD NOT FIGHT IN TOWNS. CLARKE TOOK HIS TANKS INTO ORLEANS AND FOUGHT THERE ALL NIGHT. THEY CAPTURED THE CITY AND NEVER LOST A TANK.

THE RULE BOOK SAYS TANKS SHOULD NOT ATTACK THE GERMAN 88S, BUT CLARKE'S SHERMANS HAVE CHARGED 88S AND KILLED THE CREWS BEFORE THEY COULD PULL THE LANYARDS.

RECENTLY A BATTLE EXPERIENCE NOTE TO COMMANDERS GAVE A DETAILED REPORT, THE GIST OF WHICH WAS THAT AMERICAN SHERMANS COULD NOT MATCH THE 45-TON, HEAVILY ARMORED PANTHERS OF THE GERMANS. THE REPORT ARRIVED AT CLARKE'S COMMAND JUST AFTER HIS SHERMANS HAD KNOCKED OUT MORE THAN 100 PANTHERS IN A SIX-DAY STRUGGLE, FOR LOSSES OF A FRACTION OF THIS NUMBER.

"THAT REPORT SURE WOULD HAVE SCARED HELL OUT OF US IF WE HAD READ IT BEFORE GOING INTO BATTLE," THE 43-YEAR-OLD CLARKE OPINED.

THE SHERMANS OUTMANEUVERED THE PANTHERS, HITTING THEM ON THE SIDE BEFORE THEY COULD MOVE THEIR SLUGGISH TARGETS.

CLARKE, WHO HAS BEEN AWARDED THE SILVER STAR WITH TWO OAK LEAF CLUSTERS, EITHER LEADS HIS TANKS INTO BATTLE PERSONALLY IN THE LEAD TANK OR FLIES OVER THE BATTLE AREA IN A CUB PLANE, YELLING ORDERS OVER THE RADIO.

NANCY SECTOR, FRANCE, OCT 11-(AP)-"BAZOOKA CHARLIE", FORMER MOLINE, ILL., HISTORY TEACHER, BECAME A TANK "ACE" TODAY WHEN HE KNOCKED OUT HIS FIFTH GERMAN TANK WITH BAZOOKAS TIED TO THE WING OF HIS CUB PLANE.

MAJ. CHARLES CARPENTER HAS SIX BAZOOKAS ON HIS CUB OBSERVATION PLANE, AND WHEN HE IS NOT OUT ON A SPECIAL MISSION FOR THE ARMORED DIVISION TO WHICH HE IS ATTACHED, HE PROWLS THE BATTLEFIELD LOOKING FOR GERMANS TO SHOOT.

CARPENTER BAGGED TWO TANKS SEVERAL WEEKS AGO AND IN RECENT ENGAGEMENTS ADDED THREE MORE.

SITTING IN HIS TENT DURING A TORRENT OF RAIN AND BREWING COFFEE OVER A GERMAN BLOWTORCH HE HAD CAPTURED FROM ONE OF THE TANKS HE HAD KNOCKED OUT, CARPENTER SAID:

OCT 12 1944

"WORD MUST BE GETTING AROUND AMONG THOSE KRAUTS TO WATCH OUT FOR CUBS WITH BAZOOKAS ON THEM. EVERY TIME I SHOW UP NOW THEY SHOOT WITH EVERYTHING THEY HAVE. THEY NEVER USED TO BOTHER CUBS. BAZOOKAS MUST BE BOTHERING THEM A BIT."

GRAVEST AND MOST DELICATE TASK CONFRONTING FRANCE TODAY IS HOW TO SYNTHESIZE THE FRENCH FORCES OF THE INTERIOR WITH THE REGULAR FRENCH ARMY, MAJ. GEN. JEAN DE LATTRE DE TASSIGNY SAID TODAY IN AN EXHAUSTIVE DISCUSSION OF THE FFI AND MILITARY PROBLEMS AT X HIS HEADQUARTERS.

"THERE MUST BE THE GOOD SENSE TO GIVE AND TAKE ON BOTH SIDES, FOR EACH HAS MUCH TO CONTRIBUTE," SAID THE FIRST ARMY'S COMMANDER. "FOR THE REGULAR ARMY IT IS NOT A QUESTION OF 'ABSORBING' THE FFI, AS THE FFI HAS A TRADITION OF ITS OWN AND HAS THE RIGHT TO A VOICE IN THE MILITARY AFFAIRS OF FRANCE. GENERAL DE GAULLE FULLY RECOGNIZES AND AGREES TO THIS."

GEN. DE LATTRE DE TASSIGNY SAID THAT, NOT WITHOUT SOME JUSTIFICATION, THE FFI REGARDED ITSELF AS THE REAL ARMY OF FRANCE, FOR IT WAS THE ONE THAT ROSE UP FROM ONE END OF FRANCE TO THE OTHER ON A PURELY VOLUNTARY BASIS, RISKING EVERYTHING, AND, WHEN THE ALLIED LANDINGS CAME, IT LOOKED AT THE REGULAR FRENCH ARMY XXX AND QUESTIONED ITS ABILITY.

"THE FFI SAID, 'AFTER ALL, YOU XXXXX ARE THE ARMY THAT WAS DEFEATED IN 1940,'" GEN. DE LATTRE DE TASSIGNY EXPLAINED.

HE DECLARED ONE TASK WAS TO ACQUAINT THE PEOPLE AT HOME WITH THE NOTABLE ACHIEVEMENTS AT TREMENDOUS SACRIFICE GAINED BY THE REGULAR ARMY IN TUNISIA, ELBA AND ITALY AND AT THE SAME TIME TO MAKE EVERY INSURANCE AGAINST LOSS OF ANY PRESTIGE AND INDIVIDUALITY BY THE FORCES OF THE INTERIOR.

AS EVIDENCE THAT THE NECESSARY "GOOD SENSE" OF WHICH HE SPOKE WAS BEING EXERCISE, HE REMARKED THAT SEVERAL THOUSAND MEMBERS OF THE FFI WERE WAITING TO BE TAKEN INTO THE ARMY AT THIS MOMENT.

THE METHOD IS TO FEED BATTALIONS AND SMALL X DETACHMENTS INTO THE LINES TO GAIN EXPERIENCE UNDER FIRE, AND WHEREVER POSSIBLE TO RETAIN THE BATTALION NAMES AND ORIGINAL OFFICERS. [redacted]

LIUCHOW, KWANGSI PROVINCE, CHINA, OCT. 10-(AP)-(DELAYED)-THE CHINESE STRATEGY OF MEETING THE JAPANESE DRIVE TO ESTABLISH NORTH-SOUTH COMMUNICATIONS THROUGH CHINA APPEARS TO BE BASED, WITH QUESTIONABLE REALISM, ON THE HOPE THAT ADMIRAL CHESTER W. NIMITZ' LANDING PLEDGE WILL BE FULFILLED WITHIN A FEW MONTHS.

HERE IN THE SOUTHEASTERN CHINA WHERE THE JAPANESE HAVE BEEN ACHIEVING SOME OF THEIR GREATEST SUCCESSES OF THE CHINA WAR, THE CHINESE COMMAND'S FONDEST DREAM SEEMS TO BE TO HOLD FAST AS LONG AS POSSIBLE IN DEFENSE OF SUCH PIVOT POSITIONS AS KWEILIN AND LIUCHOW IN KWANGSI PROVINCE, ON THE CHANCE THE AMERICANS SOON WILL BE ABLE TO COME THROUGH WITH AN AMPHIBIOUS OFFENSIVE ON THE CHINA COAST.

THIS HOPE IS NOURISHED BY THE VERY EXTREMITY OF CHINA'S POSITION IN THE SOUTHEAST, AND IT IS NOT IMPOSSIBLE THAT IT HAD PERMEATED CHINESE DEFENSIVE PLANNING EVEN BEFORE THE JAPANESE DRIVE WAS IN FULL SWING.

IN RECENT DAYS, THIS CORRESPONDENT HAS HEARD THE THOUGHT VOICED BY BOTH MARSHAL CHANG FAK-KWEI, COMMANDER AT PRESENT ACTIVE IN THE SOUTHEASTERN WAR ZONE, AND BY GENERAL WEI LUNG SUNG, WHOM CHANG HAS NAMED HEAD OF THE DEFENSE OF KWEILIN.

WHILE WORKMEN TOILED ON THE KWEILIN CITY DEFENSES, THE ELDERLY WEI DECLARED HIS FORCES WOULD HOLD KWEILIN IN THE GENERAL PLAN, DELAYING FULFILLMENT OF JAPAN'S DRIVE UNTIL THE EUROPEAN WAR IS FINISHED AND GREATER AMERICAN EFFORT IS BROUGHT TO BEAR IN THE ORIENT.

"WE ARE FIGHTING FOR TIME IN AN EFFORT TO PREVENT CLOSING THE COMMUNICATIONS LINE FROM NORTH CHINA TO FRENCH INDO-CHINA," HE SAID. "WE WILL HOLD AS LONG AS POSSIBLE. HOPING TO PREVENT SUCH ENEMY SUCCESS UNTIL THE WAR IN EUROPE IS FINISHED."

HE SAID THE DEFENDERS OF KWEILIN ARE PREPARED FOR A TWO OR THREE-MONTH DEFENSE OF THE CITY, AND THAT SO LONG AS THE CITY CAN BE HELD THE JAPANESE CANNOT EXPLOIT THE KWANGSI-KUNAN RAILWAY. HE SAID THE SAME APPLIES TO LIUCHOW.

AT CHANG'S HEADQUARTERS, THE WAR ZONE COMMANDER SAID IN A CANDID INTERVIEW THAT THE REASON JAPANESE MAINLAND FORCES HAD BEEN SO SUCCESSFUL WAS THAT THEY HAD NO CHINESE REGULARS TO STOP THEM.

"REGIONAL TROOPS WERE ALL WE HAD," THE MARSHAL SAID, REFERRING TO EARLY STAGES OF THE ENEMY DRIVE WESTWARD AND NORTHWESTWARD FROM THE CANTON REGION. HE SAID, HOWEVER, THE JAPS WOULD FIND IT DIFFICULT TO TAKE BOTH KWEILIN AND LIUCHOW.

"EVEN MORE IMPORTANT THAN THAT," CONTINUED THE FORMER MEMBER OF THE ROOSEVELT ADMINISTRATION, "IS THE NEED FOR PUBLIC OPINION IN THE UNITED STATES TO KNOW THE WHY AND WHEREFORE OF THE COURSE WHICH OUR OWN GOVERNMENT IS FOLLOWING."

NEW YORK, OCT. 11-(AP)-THE FOREIGN POLICY ASSOCIATION, WHICH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IS SCHEDULED TO ADDRESS HERE OCT. 21, SAID IN A BULLETIN TONIGHT THAT THE WORLD ORGANIZATION PROPOSED BY THE DUMBARTON OAKS CONFERENCE "COULD EASILY BE TRANSFORMED INTO A DICTATORSHIP OF THE FOUR GREAT POWERS."

"RUSSIA'S RELUCTANCE," IT ADDED, "TO ACCEPT A PROPOSAL THAT A GREAT POWER CHARGED WITH AGGRESSION SHOULD ABSTAIN FROM VOTING WHEN ITS CASE IS CONSIDERED BY THE SECURITY COUNCIL WILL BE INTERPRETED BY SMALL NATIONS AS A PROTENT OF AGRESSIVE ACTION."

THE BULLETIN, PREPARED BY VERA M.DEAN, THE ASSOCIATION'S RESEARCH DIRECTOR, SAID THERE WERE TWO CHIEF "BLANK SPOTS" IN THE PROPOSED ORGANIZATION:

"FIRST, WHETHER A PERMANENT MEMBER WILL HAVE THE RIGHT TO VOTE WHEN CHARGED WITH AGGRESSION; AND SECOND, THE AGREEMENT BY WHICH MEMBERS WILL SPECIFY THE ARMED FORCES THEY WILL PLACE AT THE DISPOSAL OF THE UNITED NATIONS ORGANIZATION."

DECLARING BOTH QUESTIONS INVOLVED THE ISSUE OF SOVEREIGNTY AND THAT BOTH COULD BE EXPECTED TO CAUSE FAR-REACHING DISCUSSION, ESPECIALLY IN THE UNITED STATES, THE BULLETIN CONTINUED:

"THE FEATURE OF THE PROPOSED ORGANIZATION WHICH WILL CONCERN THE GENERAL PUBLIC MOST IS THAT IT COULD EASILY BE TRANSFORMED INTO A DICTATORSHIP OF THE FOUR GREAT POWERS -- ON THE PLEA OF PRESERVING PEACE -- COULD ENFORCE THEIR WILL ON WEAKER NATIONS."

THE BULLETIN SAID THIS POSSIBILITY WAS STRENGTHENED BY REGIONAL SECURITY ARRANGEMENTS WHICH COULD BE INTERPRETED BY GREAT POWERS IN SUCH A WAY THAT ADJOINING AREAS WOULD BECOME "SPHERES OF INFLUENCE UNDER ANOTHER NAME."

"BUT IT MAY BE JUST AS WELL," THE BULLETIN SAID, "THAT THE UNITED NATIONS CHARTER RAISES NO HIGH HOPES AND DOES NOT LEND ITSELF TO SENTIMENTAL ORATORY ABOUT ETERNAL PEACE.

"FOR WE MUST NEVER FORGET THAT THE ALTERNATIVE TO AT LEAST SOME KIND OF INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION, NO MATTER HOW INADEQUATE, IS A POLICY OF EACH ONE FOR HIMSELF AND THE DEVIL TAKE THE HINDMOST -- WHOSE PREDICTABLE OUTCOME IS ANOTHER WORLD WAR."

NEW YORK, OCT. 11-(AP)-ANETA, THE OFFICIAL NETHERLANDS NEWS AGENCY, REPORTED TONIGHT THAT THE VILLAGE OF PUTTEN, 12 MILES NORTHWEST OF APELDOORN IN GERMAN-OCCUPIED HOLLAND, HAD BEEN BURNED BY THE GERMANS IN REPRISAL FOR THE REFUSAL OF DUTCHMEN TO DIG NAZI DEFENSE WORKS.

THE ENTIRE MALE POPULATION OF APELDOORN, WHICH IN 1940 WAS A CITY OF 72,666, HAS GONE INTO HIDING AFTER THE GERMANS SHOT 30 MEN ON THE STREETS FOR SIMILAR REFUSAL TO BUILD DEFENSES, THE AGENCY SAID.

QUOTING REPORTS FROM THE DUTCH UNDERGROUND, ANETA SAID THE BODIES OF THE 30 VICTIMS IN APELDOORN WERE MARKED WITH GERMAN PLACARDS AS "TERRORISTS," AND THAT THE BODIES WERE ORDERED TO STAY WHERE THEY FELL UNTIL THE CITY FURNISHED ITS "QUOTA" OF 4,000 WORKERS. ONLY EIGHT MEN APPEARED IN ANSWER TO THE GERMAN DEMAND.

ANETA SAID THE GERMANS WERE TRYING EVERYWHERE TO PRESS DUTCHMEN INTO LABOR DRAFTS BUT THAT RESISTANCE WAS GENERAL AND HUNDREDS HAD BEEN ARRESTED.

Doughboys Repulse Enemy Troops Trying to Relieve Doomed Garrison.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 13.—(AP) The German High command hurled 150 fighter planes into the defense of flaming Aachen last night as American infantry wrested a northeastern factory suburb from the stand-and-die garrison and massed for the final assault on this ancient invasion gateway to the Reich.

Eighty-five per cent of Aachen—subjected to a greater ordeal by fire than any part of the Reich had undergone before—lay in smoking ruins, pilots reported after 500 tons of bombs were rained during the day on this historic city of German kings.

Attack Siege Lines

The swarm of Messerchmitts and Focke-Wulfes droned over, apparently bent on attacking the siege lines, just as the last American bombs were crashing down, and some U. S. fighterbombers turned to attack with a ton of bombs still lashed to their wings.

In the aerial melee, 12 German planes were shot down, six were damaged and two other probable kills were registered, while four American fighters were shot from the sky.

Out of the smoking, rain-drenched ruin that was Aachen straggled a few soldiers and civilians, unwilling to stand longer with the 1,500 of the garrison who since 1 p. m. yesterday have been plastered with hundreds of tons of shells and bombs from artillery massed near the outskirts and clouds of warplanes roaring over in endless procession.

Fighting methodically from factory to factory, the Doughboys were routing the Germans in the outskirts with rifle and grenade, and a field dispatch said that among buildings cleared were two war plants, one making halftracks and the other artillery wagons.

It was not known how close the Americans were to the main part of Aachen after driving the enemy from the northeastern suburb, but Supreme Headquarters said it might be anywhere from 100 to 1,000 yards.

Doughboys Repulse Enemy Troops Trying to Relieve Doomed Garrison.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 13.—(AP) The German High command hurled 150 fighter planes into the defense of flaming Aachen last night as American infantry wrested a northeastern factory suburb from the stand-and-die garrison and massed for the final assault on this ancient invasion gateway to the Reich.

Eighty-five per cent of Aachen—subjected to a greater ordeal by fire than any part of the Reich had undergone before—lay in smoking ruins, pilots reported after 500 tons of bombs were rained during the day on this historic city of German kings.

Attack Siege Lines

The swarm of Messerchmitts and Focke-Wulfes droned over, apparently bent on attacking the siege lines, just as the last American bombs were crashing down, and some U. S. fighterbombers turned to attack with a ton of bombs still lashed to their wings.

In the aerial melee, 12 German planes were shot down, six were damaged and two other probable kills were registered, while four American fighters were shot from the sky.

Out of the smoking, rain-drenched ruin that was Aachen straggled a few soldiers and civilians, unwilling to stand longer with the 1,500 of the garrison who since 1 p. m. yesterday have been plastered with hundreds of tons of shells and bombs from artillery massed near the outskirts and clouds of warplanes roaring over in endless procession.

It was not known how close the Americans were to the main part of Aachen after driving the enemy from the northeastern suburb, but Supreme Headquarters said it might be anywhere from 100 to 1,000 yards.

All day long a crack German division with 20 to 25 tanks beat without success against American lines north of Aachen, trying to relieve the doomed garrison through a mile-wide corridor between the siege positions.

Nazis Meet Terrific Barrage

The assault waves broke in a terrible barrage from American artillery, including 250-MM and eight-inch guns, which girdle the corridor.

"Nothing has come through that corridor in any size in any direction," declared a high ranking U. S. First Army officer. "Certainly the Germans have not and are not evacuating Aachen. Try to tell that to the boys up there who are doing the fighting and give them a laugh."

The German radio, still pledging resistance to the death, described the Aachen action as "the greatest battle ever fought on the Western front."

Associated Press Correspondent William S. White reported from outside Aachen that Doughboys with rifles and grenades cleared the Germans from the factory suburb of Schlachthof on the northeast and were harassed only by the sporadic fire of snipers.

But American commanders held their troops back from the big assault on the main section of this city at the frontier of Germany while for the second day the big guns ringing Aachen poured in cascades of steel and bombers struck in waves at 15-minute intervals.

The enemy garrison, under Hitler's orders to stand and die, covered with from 5,000 to 6,000 civilians in the ancient caves, basements and sewers of this city which Charlemagne made the seat of empire.

Few Germans Surrender

Through the smoke and rain a few enemy soldiers and civilians, ignoring the Nazi dictum, slipped through into the American lines, but the groups were small, the largest numbering about 50, White said.

Meanwhile, action flared in Holland, where the Germans were reported to have blown up more than 10 miles of quays and docks in that country's second largest city of Rotterdam.

Roads south and east out of Rotterdam were clogged with German transport, a front dispatch said, indicating the Germans were preparing to pull out of northwestern Holland or were shifting the bulk of their estimated 150,000 garrison southward to meet the Canadians and British.

In favor of the theory that they were being called home for the final battles inside the Reich was the discovery by the British Second army that the Germans had abandoned abruptly a bridgehead 12 miles on the south bank of the Neder Rhine between Arnhem and Rotterdam.

The Canadians, keeping up the pressure on this German force from the south, poured reinforcements into their widening beachhead on the Scheldе estuary west of Antwerp and to the east fought within two miles of the enemy base of Bergen Op Zoom, 19 miles north of Antwerp.

Allies Close On Breskens

From their beachhead they were closing on Breskens, five miles west of their landings near the village of Hoofdplaat. Breskens lies across the estuary from Vlissingen (Flushing), where German defenses blocking the use of the port of Antwerp are concentrated.

The U.S. Third army in northern France slugged it out with counter-attacking Germans north of Nancy and at Maizieres-les-Metz, six miles north of Metz, where the enemy had converted basements into anti-tank nests.

The U.S. Seventh army on the southern end of the 460-mile front repulsed counterblows around Le Thillot, 15 miles north of Belfort, and made limited advances through the foothills of the Vosges mountains north of that strategic doorway to the southern Rhineland.

Most significant was the capture of the Village of Sapois, only 13 miles west of Schlucht pass, one of four main ones through the Vosges. Schlucht pass is 28 miles north of the gap at Belfort.

But the heavies fighting anywhere on the front raged around Aachen.

Two enemy columns in division strength were turned back at dusk yesterday in the area of Haaren, the Allied communique said, indicating that the relief expedition actually had fought to within a mile and a half of the besieged city before being repulsed.

Today heavy fighting broke out six miles north of Aachen in the area of Bardenberg, which for days has been a bloody battlefield. This was the scene of the main effort to relieve the trapped garrison, but the day-long attacks got the Germans nowhere.

The Berlin radio, admitting heavy losses, said the Americans summoned flamethrowing tanks in the bitter struggle.

The German radio declared that "if American hordes should carry out their threat to destroy Aachen, this jewel of culture, German resistance will only grow even more fierce."

Fires Rage in City

As fires raged in the stricken city, refugees reported that water supplies which might have checked them had been cut by the bombardment. Food also was running low.

Eleven miles southeast of Aachen, however, the Americans were forced to fall back from the area of Germeter under furious counterblows, but this was regarded as a local engagement.

Counterbalancing this reverse, the Americans to the north, fighting through strongly-defended Hurtgen forest, cut one of two main highways leading south out of Duren, road junction 20 miles west of Cologne. The road was severed one mile southwest of the village of Hurtgen.

The German military commentator, Capt. Ludwig Sertorious, speculated tonight that the British Second army soon would join the American First in the eastward push into Germany, and that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower might uncork a new invasion "either from the air or sea."

Eisenhower renewed a warning two days ago that all North sea shipping would be subjected to air attack to prevent German reinforcements from leaving Norway.

Wait For Canadians

Sertorious declared that the British army was waiting only on the Canadians on the west flank to pull up into Holland along a line stretching from Breda eastward through Tilburg and 'S Hertogenbosch.

Certainly, the pressure was on from the Canadians. In addition to their Scheldе beachhead move westward, they struck southward beyond captured Biervliet, three miles southeast of their original landings.

To the south they widened their bridgehead across the Leopold canal and were advancing on the Dutch city of Aardenburg.

The Germans in the islands of Walcheren and South Beveland in the Scheldе estuary to the north were cut off by land by the Canadian army force driving on Bergen Op Zoom, and fresh bombings of the dikes left the island of Walcheren two-thirds flooded.

The British Second army attacked sharply on the southern flank of its front facing the German frontier along the Maas river in eastern Holland, driving the enemy back a mile on a front of a little over a mile near Overloon before the surprised foe brought up mortars and artillery.

ENEMY RETREATS IN HOLLAND

Shows Signs of a Breakup in Netherlands — Demolishing Rotterdam Port.

London, Oct. 12 (A. P.). The American First Army closed in on burning Aachen today in an action which the Berlin radio called "the greatest battle ever fought on the western front" while to the north and west there appeared signs of a possible Nazi break-up in Holland.

DAY

It was disclosed that a crew of 6,000 German demolition experts had blown up more than ten miles of quays and docks during the last ten days in Rotterdam, Holland's second city and biggest port. Roads around Rotterdam were clogged with Nazi transport, moving generally to the south and east.

OCT 13 1944

American infantry fought into the factory district on the outskirts of Aachen late today, while to the north foot troops and armor beat off a day-long counter-attack by the Germans, who were supported by twenty to twenty-five tanks.

On the south bank of the Neder Rhine the Germans suddenly abandoned a stretch between Arnhem and Rotterdam.

Yanks Close In From North.

While the German radio admitted American gains around Aachen and mouthed threats of vengeance if "the American hordes should carry out the threat to destroy Aachen, this jewel of culture," Associated Press War gave a detailed account of what was happening to the city.

American infantry began to close in from the north and northeast, he said, after divebombers and more than 200 big guns, including the heaviest of American field pieces, had resumed yesterday's blasting of the burning city.

A front dispatch said the factory section on Aachen's northeastern outskirts had been cleared by infantrymen who met only slight sniper resistance. An American patrol had penetrated the city proper yesterday.

Gray smoke cast a pall over the sprawling German border city as the infantrymen moved against it. Mr. Whitehead said fires and smoke could be seen boiling up from the bombardment, but he added that Aachen, battered and beaten though it was, still was not destroyed.

Air Barrage Resumes.

American fighters and bombers returned to Aachen today and resumed bombing and strafing of the city. Sweeping over in waves at fifteen-minute intervals, the airmen blasted Aachen's outer defenses, including dug-in tanks.

One fighter formation attacked fifteen tanks which were protected by earthworks in the northeast sector of the city. Another ripped into eight tanks three miles northeast of the city limits.

The Germans have thrown one of their finest divisions into the battle in a desperate but so far abortive attempt to relieve or reinforce the Aachen garrison. Every counter-thrust has been beaten back under a barrage of heavy artillery.

No Sign of Evacuation.

The corridor in the American arc about the city still is about a mile wide, and it is under artillery and small arms fire.

"Nothing has come through that corridor in any size in any direction," a high ranking officer said. "Certainly the Germans have not, and are not, evacuating Aachen. Try to tell that to the boys up there who are doing the fighting for Aachen and give them a laugh."

The Americans are not yet in the main part of Aachen. They are methodically cleaning up the outlying factory district, building by building, and getting into position for an assault on the main part of the town.

The Germans' daylong counter-attack was in the Bardenburg area, six miles north of Aachen, which has been the scene of some of the heaviest fighting inside Germany. There the foe has thrown in attack after attack in a frantic effort to shatter the force oft he advance which broke through the Siegfried Line on the north. The Americans gave no ground under this assault and late in the afternoon had contained it.

Yanks In a Withdrawal.

In the Germeter area, eleven ciles southeast of Aachen, the Americans were forced to fall back in the Hurtgen Forest under a fierce counterattack by Nazi infantry. This was a localized action. The depthe of the withdrawal was not reported by Army headquarters, but an officer indicated it was not considered serious.

Meanwhile, Allied troops improved their positions both north and south of the Aachen breach in the Siegfried Line.

The Supreme Command said that west of Arnheim in Holland the Germans had withdrawn from one area on the south bank of the Neder Rhine. Fighters and fighter-bombers shot up and bombed enemy strongpoints and troops in that area.

Although it appeared that the Germans were preparing to abandon Rotterdam—otherwise they hardly would be destroying its essential installations—the Nazis' full intention in Holland was not yet clear.

The south and easterly movement of transport around Rotterdam might mean an attempt to establish a line running roughly from Bergen Op Zoom, near the East Schelde, to Arnhem, or it might mean an effort to pull out of northwestern Holland in order to provide more strength for the defense of the Reich.

Canadian troops were reported to be within two miles of Bergen Op Zoom today with their positions to the south and west in the Scheldе estuary area universally improved.

The American infantry began its move on the city at 8 A. M. today, driving toward the factory district on the northeast side, known as Schlachof, and toward Observatory Hill, which looks down on Aachen from the northern edge of the city.

"The enemy is hidden in ancient caves, sewers and basements which are almost impregnable to air and artillery attack—but we'll take it," a high-ranking officer told Mr. Whitehead.

The dive bombers came over at 10 A. M. They circled swiftly in the blue sky and then plummeted down. The first bombs fell east of Crucifix Hill on enemy troops who were beaten back in yesterday's counter-attack. Great columns of smoke rolled up, and there was one terrific explosior as though an ammunition trucl or dump had received a direct hit

Nazis in Aachen Wage Hopeless Struggle Without Water, Food

By DON WHITEHEAD AND WILLIAM S. WHITE

WITH AMERICAN TROOPS ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF AACHEN, Oct. 12.—(AP) The ruin that was Aachen—chosen by the conqueror Charlemagne as the seat of Frankish empire—was under obliterating assault tonight by shells and bombs.

OCT 13 1944

The attack on the main portion of the city has yet to begin, but the Germans have been driven from the factory suburb of Schlachthof (slaughterhouse) on the northeast and Doughboys are methodically moving into position for the final assault.

Fires can be seen blazing through the rain, which is falling as impersonally on the stricken city as the barrage from the massed American guns. Divebombers are screaming down, plastering the dug-in tanks and other positions on the edge of the city.

There is no water in Aachen, say the few civilians who have straggled out of the burning city, and little food.

NIGHT

Holed up in the ancient caves, sewers and basements, the estimated 5,000 to 10,000 civilians of the 165,000 who once lived there dig out by night to forage through the ruins for what stores they can find.

Even a few soldiers, ignoring Adolf Hitler's decree that they must stand and die, have slipped past watchful SS (Elite Guard) officers into our lines. One batch of about 50 gave up today.

Perhaps they realized by now that there was no help coming from the north, where all day long a crack division around Bardenberg tried to break through artillery fire to their relief.

There is no foundation for a story that the garrison, estimated at 1,000 or so, is evacuating the city, a high ranking officer declared.

"Try to tell that to the boys up there who are doing the fighting for Aachen and give them a laugh," he said grimly.

On the contrary, the German soldiers are holed up in the underground shelters which make Aachen a fortress, and they will have to be routed out when we move in.

Divebombers turned their attention today from the blazing heart of the city to the tanks and concrete outposts which the American infantry must hurdle when the drive against the city begins.

But smoke still billows from the center of the city, and fires gleam through the haze of smoke and rain. Silhouetted against the sky is the spire of ancient Aachen cathedral, still untouched.

Most of the remainder of Aachen, however, is a skeleton city, and many of the walls that still stand are only the stone framework of what once were Aachen's buildings and factories.

besieged Germans and divebombers blasted their hiding places.

Fires burned in the southeastern part of Aachen and gray smoke drifted over the sprawling city.

Under a bright sun, Aachen lay like a festering sore in the path of the 1st Army—battered and beaten by a terrible weight of explosives, but not destroyed. It is too big to be wiped out entirely except by weeks of steady pounding.

Fires Rise from Wrecked Buildings.

From a ridgetop overlooking the city, however, fires and smoke could be seen boiling up from exploding shells and bombs and from wrecked buildings in which the Germans who declined a surrender ultimatum were hiding.

In a move of utter folly late yesterday, the Germans brought their columns from the east toward Aachen in broad daylight, to attack the Americans' virtual ring of steel about the city. The two-pronged assault force, estimated at division strength, moved into the open under direct observation of the Yanks.

More than 100 big guns, including 240-millimeter rifles, turned on these columns, which moved into action at about dusk. A battle raged for two hours. Then the shattered enemy columns fell back. They had failed either to relieve or reinforce Aachen's defenses.

At 8 a.m. today the American infantry began its move on the ancient city of Charlemagne, driving toward the factory district on the northeast side, known as Schlachof, and toward Observatory Hill, which looks down on Aachen from the northern edge of the city.

Hide in Ancient Caves.

"The enemy is hidden in ancient caves, sewers and basements which are almost impregnable to air and artillery attack—but we'll take it," a high-ranking officer said.

Despite the fires and smoke, in the clear sunlight of noontime I could see the tall, blackened spire of the cathedral in which Charlemagne was buried.

The dive bombers came over at 10 a.m. They circled swiftly in the blue sky and then plummeted down. The first bombs fell east of Crucifix Hill on enemy troops who were beaten back in yesterday's counter-attack. Great columns of smoke rolled up and there was one terrific explosion as though an ammunition truck or dump had received a direct hit.

Pvt. Herbert McCabe of Neodesha, Kans., stared out of the window of our vantage point—an old barracks overlooking Aachen—and said:

More Heavy Attacks.

"Last night at 6 o'clock we couldn't even see across the town at any place, there was so much smoke from the artillery barrage. They really laid it on."

And they were laying it on again today. Another flight of Thunderbolts dived in and laid a pattern of explosives on Observatory Hill. There was a fury of sound in diving planes, exploding bombs and the crash of artillery.

Then suddenly it was so quiet in one of those strange lulls in battle that you could hear the birds singing and the wind sighing through the trees. There was not even the sound of a single rifle shot. At our feet a black cat with white stockings lay in the straw and purred.

This lull was broken by another flight of planes—this time Lightnings. They made long slanting runs. When the bombs were dropped they climbed back steeply, circled and then came down again and strafed the enemy. They were not even challenged, and I did not see a single burst of ack-ack thrown against them from inside or outside Aachen.

100 Tons of Bombs.

This was in addition to 5,000 rounds of shells poured into the city yesterday along with more than 100 tons of bombs. The principal targets were Lousberg and Observatory Hill north of Aachen, the Quelleinhof Hotel area and the factory area on the northeast side of the city which the enemy has been using as a command post and supply area.

During the day one patrol entered the city.

It is believed now there are five enemy battalions in Aachen and that from 5,000 to 25,000 civilians remained in their homes.

Nearly 300 prisoners surrendered yesterday just before and after the expiration of the time of the ultimatum which demanded surrender of the city. Most of them carried the leaflets dropped by the Allies, bearing the text of the ultimatum.

"But our artillery and mortar fire still are the deciding factors which make the German soldier at this stage of the campaign say 'kamerad,'" said Lt. Col. Robert Evans of Davenport, Iowa. "The leaflets had a good effect, for the prisoners said they did not want to die for the Fuehrer at this late hour."

Positions Improved.

Meanwhile, Allied troops improved their positions both north and south of the Aachen breach in the Siegfried Line.

Heavy casualties were inflicted on the Germans in the Haaren area north of Aachen as counterattacks were beaten off. Enemy infantry and tanks were engaged in Bardenberg on that sector.

Southeast of Aachen American troops cut through strong resistance and thrust across the Monschau-Duren road, a mile from Hurtgen.

Nazis Call Battle Greatest Fought On Western Front

By DON WHITEHEAD,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

OUTSIDE AACHEN, Oct. 12.—Infantrymen of the American 1st Army moved against the burning and wrecked city of Aachen today after smashing a desperate enemy effort to reinforce and relieve the Nazi garrison.

(The German radio, admitting American gains around Aachen, today described the battle as "the greatest ever fought on the western front.")

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' doughboys attacked this morning, while heavy artillery pounded the Water Supply Is Cut Off—Food Becoming Scarce —Smoke Hides City.

By WILLIAM WHITE.

With American Troops at the Edge of Aachen, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Its water supply wholly cut off, its food running low and its people cowering for the second successive day in basements and sewers, Aachen huddled miserably this afternoon under the First Army's unending air and artillery bombardment.

Slowly the city is being drained of all life. Little groups of civilians are creeping out and into our lines. Soldiers—those who can escape the watch placed over them by their officers—are coming out in similar small bodies, although just a while ago one group numbered about fifty.

Some of these prisoners have told interrogators today that many civilians still in Aachen are hoarding bottles of wine and fruit with which they hope to ingratiate themselves with American troops.

Bombs and Rain Fall.

The sun shone this morning, but now, late in the afternoon, it is raining again, slowly and coldly, but no more impersonally and inevitably than the rain of our bombs and shells on the city.

In the crown of hills that encircles this lost and tomblike city the trees are dark and glistening. They are trees turning beautifully brown and reminding G. I.s of every pleasant picnic spot they ever knew - just like Rock Creek Park in Washington, wooded slopes along the Skyline Drive in Virginia or any one of a dozen wooded areas along any parkway in Connecticut.

But just below in the center of Aachen is a scene like some imaginative painting of the Last Judgment. Smoke boils and shifts but never lifts from the center of the city, and fires gleam only fitfully and thinly through this almost impenetrable cover.

The spire of Aachen cathedral is still standing, unhit, but nothing of the rest can be seen below its roof.

The northeastern factory section on the outskirts has been cleared by our infantrymen, and they met only light sniper resistance. But this is all that has yet been attacked anywhere in Aachen by foot soldiers. It is still an artillery and air attack and the Yanks are taking their time at it, for certainly time is working for them here.

There is no competent evidence of how many civilians are left here, but the best available estimate puts them at from 5,000 to 10,000.

German prisoners say that these people are slipping out of their subterranean hideouts at night and looting such stores as are still standing.

If Aachen fell to the First Army at this moment, it would be a mere skeleton of a city, for most of the buildings still upright are no more than walls.

LUFTWAFFE SHORT OF GAS

General Arnold Says Reich Also Lacks Pilots

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—The Luftwaffe now has more aircraft than when Hitler sent it against Poland in 1939, Gen. H. H. Arnold said today, but it is grounded for lack of gasoline and oil.

The commanding general of the United States Army Air Forces said that the non-flying status of the Nazi warplanes resulted from carefully planned and boldly executed Allied attacks on their sources of supply, their communications and their storage places.

Output Cut To 30%

Germany's present productive capacity for synthetic fuels, he told a meeting of the Wings Club, is down to 30 per cent of normal. Much of the petroleum it had hoped to use is in Norway and Greece—cut off by lack of communications—and in pipelines and storage places where it cannot be used.

He said the fuel shortage led the Germans first to reduce training, then to cut out miscellaneous missions, next to cut flying by "brass hats" and finally to end training altogether, so that in addition to a lack of fuel there is also now a shortage of pilots.

Raids On Japan Worth While

Later, in answer to a question General Arnold asserted that "of course" the Superfortress operations against Japan have been worth while.

"Some day they will be flying over Japan in the same numbers that the Flying Fortresses now are flying over Germany and then you won't ask me that question," he said.

In addition to his over all AAF command, Arnold heads the 20th Air Force which flies the Superfortresses on a world-wide assignment.

Reich Cities Face U. S. Blasting

Stimson Says Other German Towns to Share Blows Being Dealt Aachen.

Washington, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Other German cities may expect to suffer the fate now being dealt out to explosive-blasted Aachen if the Nazi High Command incorporates them into the battle line, War Secretary Stimson said today.

Discussing for a news conference the ultimatum which was ignored by the Aachen garrison, Mr. Stimson said:

"No German cities may expect to have immunity from destruction so long as they are maintained as a part of the enemy's battle line. As Gen. Hodges of the American First Army has stated, there is no middle course. Either surrender or destruction must be chosen by the Nazis. German civilians will necessarily have to bear the burden of any decision imposed upon them by their military leaders which makes their city a part of the defense line."

Mr. Stimson described the offensive in the Aachen sector as designed "to give us elbow room within the Siegfried Line after testing and overcoming some of its most formidable obstacles."

Enemy artillery fire has been strong and enemy troops willing to fight desperately, he said, adding:

"Again I should point out that the German line is cohesive and the discipline of the German troops good. The mobilization effort of the Nazis reaching into every last source of German man power is producing recruits, even if their training and quality are not all the German commanders would desire."

Referring to the stepped-up air offensive within recent days, the Secretary said: "Allied air power has given to enemy industry a taste of what is to come on a larger scale, now that the Germans are driven back to their own frontier and the German air force is losing the advantage of coastal bases and warning systems."

Mr. Stimson told reporters: "It is heartening to see the liberation of the Greek people who fought so heroically against Fascist and Nazi invaders and kept the torch of freedom burning even when the Germans occupied their land."

In the Pacific war, Japan has felt American blows "at close quarters," he said, with carrier plane attacks on the Ryukyu islands only 450 miles from the China mainland and from a surface unit attack on Marcus Island, 1,150 miles southeast of Tokyo.

U. S.-Run French Trains Move 10,000 Tons Daily

Army Expects to Triple Capacity of War-Torn Roads Soon

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (AP).—French railways operated by the United States Army Transportation Service are carrying more than 10,000 tons of military freight daily, and War Department officials expect to triple that figure soon.

The French estimate that 60 per cent of their railroad rolling stock

To guarantee the prompt movement of supplies to the fighting front, locomotives, freight cars and other equipment—most of it from America—were brought from England immediately after the Normandy invasion.

EISENHOWER TO PRESS WAR

OCT 13 1944

Voices Confidence As Allies Meet Inner Defenses

KENNEDY

Supreme Allied Headquarters, France, Oct. 12 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower said today that Allied armies now had struck powerful German inner defenses, but he is resolved to wage war unabated through the winter and beyond, if it takes that long to crush the enemy.

The supreme commander made it clear at a press conference that although he regards a sudden German collapse as a possibility, he sees no reason to rely on it, since the weapon of fear, which the Hitler regime uses to whip the home front into line, now is stronger than ever.

Threat Can Have No Effect

The threat of the Red army in the east and the Allied army on German soil in the west can have no effect on a leader who faces the loss of everything once he admits defeat.

The general reaffirmed his confidence in complete Allied victory although it was pointed out there may be pauses in the Allied advance because of the strength of German resistance, the advantage of prepared defenses and the Allied supply problems.

There will be no letup, he declared, in the aggressive action with which the Allies have routed the enemy from France.

Field Tactics, Not Policy

The present American destruction of Aachen following refusal of the German commander to surrender is a matter of field tactics rather than general American policy toward German cities, the general said.

The Allied armies are entering Germany as conquerors, he reiterated, explaining:

"In Germany there will be no fraternization. We go in as conquerors. We shall treat them justly in conformity with civilized standards as exemplified by our governments. We will have nothing else to do with them except in necessary official relationships."

His view of the situation could be summed up as one of full confidence in the outcome but fully appreciative of the difficulties ahead, with any reliance on a speedy German crackup sheer wishful thinking, and any despair over the strength of resistance unjustified.

Credits Airborne Army

Discussing recent operations, he declared:

"I felt myself that not enough cerdit had been given to the tremendous advantages that accrued to us through the operations of the First Allied Airborne Army.

"The First British Airborne Division not only gave all Allied forces one of the most gallant examples of bravery, fortitude and courage in all this war, but by drawing upon itself the fury of German counterattack enabled us to hold important bridges.

"It was a valiant maneuver and it does not detract in the slightest degree from the excellent work and courage of the 82d and 101st Airborne United States divisions, who came behind them. They did beautiful work, and I am proud of them all."

Puts Confidence In People

In a reaffirmation of his faith in ultimate victory over Germany, he said:

"I have complete confidence in the peoples of the United States, Great Britain, France and all United Nations to see this war through to final victory, and as long as they will see it through I know well that the soldiers, sailors and airmen possess the indomitable will to win. We have a hard job ahead, but victory is certain."

Eisenhower Predicts Hard Job, Bans Fraternizing in Reich

By EDWARD KENNEDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

SUPREME ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Oct. 12.—Gen. Eisenhower declared today that "we have a hard job ahead, but victory is certain."

The supreme commander said he would permit no fraternizing with the Germans as his invasion armies move deeper into the Reich.

He is resolved on one thing: That the fight will continue unabated through the winter, if necessary, and as much longer as it may take to crush the enemy. There may be pauses in the Allied advances due to the ferocity of German resistance and our own supply problems, but there will be no letup in aggressive action on the part of the Allies.

The present destruction of Aachen by the American 1st Army, after the refusal of the German commander to surrender to spare the town, is a matter of field tactics, rather than general American policy toward German cities, he said. Field commanders, it was made clear, can use their own methods as long as they observe the rules of war.

While the general regards a sudden German collapse as always a possibility, he sees no reason to rely on its coming at any given time. The threat of the Red Army in the East and the Allied army on German soil in the west can have no effect on the leaders who face the loss of everything, once they admit defeat, in Gen. Eisenhower's opion.

He told correspondents today:

"I have every confidence in the peoples of the United States, Great Britain, France and all the United Nations to see this war through to final victory, and as long as they will see it through. I know that the soldiers and sailors and airmen possess the indomitable will to win. We have a hard job ahead, but victory is certain."

The general appeared in excellent health.

Gen. Eisenhover said the Allied armies were entering Germany as conquerors and would treat the Germans justly.

"In Germany there will be no fraternization," the commander said; "we go in as conquerors. We shall treat them justly in conformity with civilized standards as exemplified by our governments. We will have nothing else to do with them except in necessary official relationships."

Discussing recent operations, the general praised the fight of the British 1st Air-borne Division at Arnhem in Holland.

"I feel myself that not enough credit has been given to the tremendous advantages that accrued to us through operations of the 1st Allied Air-borne Army," he said. "The 1st British Air-borne Division not only gave all the Allied forces one of the most gallant examples of bravery, fortitude and courage in all this war, but by drawing upon themselves the fury of the German counterattack, they enabled us to hold important bridges.

"It was a valiant maneuver and it does not detract in the slightest degree from the excellent work and courage of the 82d and 101st United States Air-borne Divisions, which came behind them. They did beautiful work and I am proud of them all."

He added:

"The Allied expeditionary force will continue to fight aggressively until the war is won."

Nazis Urge Resistance To Eisenhower's Decrees

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The German press appealed today to the people of Allied-occupied zones of Germany to resist the decrees of Gen. Eisenhower, which Nazi editors called "signs of enslavement."

A Berlin broadcast of a DNB report told of the appeal.

At the same time, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, writing in Das Reich, asserted: "We will fight without compromise and not ask how long the war will last. We will struggle until it is convenient to our enemy to make peace."

Acknowedging that "our country is gravely endangered," Goebbels asserted "they will never be able to dictate a peace to us."

Terming Gen. Eisenhower "Morgenthau's bailiff to carry out a plan to make Germany an agricultural nation," the Nazi newspapers called on the people in occupied areas to "act in the way the nation expects from them."

Aachen Commander Just Couldn't Yield 'City of Emperors'

By the Associated Press.

Berlin said today that a lieutenant colonel named Leier was in command of the garrison at Aachen.

A broadcast designed for overseas propaganda use said Col. Leier had given this reply to the American surrender ultimatum:

"Even as an American one cannot ask a city like Aachen, where 37 German emperors were crowned, to surrender."

Hogs, Shrapnel Hard On Colonel's Drawers

With An American Infantry Division in Germany, Oct. 6 (AP—Delayed) — What with hogs and German artillery fire, Lieut. Col. Raymond E. Bell, of Cornwall-on-Hudson N. Y., and Pensacola, Fla., had a tough time today with his underwear.

The colonel washed out his shorts and gave them to Pfc. Michael Callahan, of St. Mary-of-the-Woods, Ind., to hang up to dry.

A short time later Callahan was seen washing them all over again in a helmet.

"Unfortunately I hung them where the darned hogs get into 'em," said Callahan.

Tonight when Callahan went to get the shorts hanging on a hedge he found they had been hit by German shrapnel.

"Good thing I wasn't in them," chuckled Bell.

Third Armored Group's Commander Disclosed

With the United States First Army, Oct. 12 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose was disclosed today as the commander of the United States Third Armored Division, which drove across Belgium in ten days and made the first American penetration of Germany, taking Rotgen September 12.

Maj. Gen. Louis A. Craig is commanding the United States Ninth Infantry Division, it was announced. He is a brother of Gen. Malin Craig, former chief of staff.

About that time a column of Germans came around the corner. The sergeant opened up with his machine gun and the salute to his new son brought down ten Nazis. The others fled.

CANADIAN TROOPS GAIN IN HOLLAND

HEADQUARTERS FIRST CANADIAN ARMY, Oct. 12.—(AP) Canadian veterans of the Normandy hedgerows fought from dike to dike tonight in the Schelde estuary's southern bank, steadily widening their "backdoor beachhead."

They have pushed the western edge of the beachhead beyond the village of Hoofdplaat, near where they landed, and the southern extremity is more than three miles below Hoofdplaat beyond the settlement of Biervliet.

Fighting has stiffened since the first dominion troops touched down on the beach from amphibious craft in the pre-dawn darkness of Monday.

Fledgling German parachute troopers have been thrown in alongside elements of the 64th division in an attempt to halt the Canadians in this vital sector of the battle for Antwerp's approaches.

At the same time the Canadians have been strengthened by shuttle service by amphibious craft, which is unbroken despite often intense fire from the big naval guns around Breskens, five miles west of Hoofdplaat, from near Cadzand, on the seacoast six miles west of Breskens, and on Holland's Walcheren and south Beveland islands in the estuary to the north.

Fighting over the flat, almost treeless farmland where dikes are the main objectives, the Canadians have piled up a sizeable toll of enemy dead and have taken more than 500 prisoners.

North of Antwerp Canadian units settled into positions controlling the causeway from south Beveland, while feeler thrusts in the direction of Bergen Op Zoom, 19 miles north of Antwerp, ran into stiff opposition.

Germans contained by a 29-mile ring around Dunkerque, meanwhile, were coming out in a series of strong night forays in which they make small local gains which the Canadians erase in daylight.

German Farmers Called Phlegmatic As French

Supreme Allied Headquarters, Paris, Oct. 12 (AP)—German farmers tilling their fields near embattled Aachen are paying as little attention to the war breaking about their ears as did the phlegmatic French of Normandy.

Lieut. Col. Paul P. Douglas, of Paragould, Ark., who flew with a fighter-bomber formation which attacked Aachen's defenses, said today he saw German farmers going about their work while bombs fell a short distance away.

'Flying Stretchers' at Front

LONDON, Oct. 12 (AP).—Small American reconnaissance planes, which have proved invaluable as artillery spotters, are being converted into "flying stretchers" and soon will sweep down alongside front-line foxholes to pick up battle casualties, the Air Service Command said today.

GEN. DE GAULLE MEETS LE BRUN

Paris, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Gen. Charles de Gaulle conferred last night with Albert Le Brun, France's last President, who has been living in retirement in the south of France and who came to Paris at Gen. de Gaulle's invitation. It is likely that they discussed the new Consultative Assembly which is preparing for its first meeting. The Assembly is temporarily replacing the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate.

The conference has great political implications, since M. Le Brun is held in affectionate memory by large numbers of the French people. Also, the Allies have indicated that to some degree recognition of Gen. de Gaulle's government hinges on the performance of the Assembly, and it is possible that M. le Brun, now 70 years old, may return to public office.

M. Le Brun, supplanted by Petain, is not, however, regarded too highly by the Resistance people now in control. Some express the belief that he was not aggressive enough in resisting capitulation.

JAPANESE REPORT BIG AERIAL BLOW AGAINST FORMOSA

U. S. Fleet Pounds Airbases, Military Installation in Luzon Raid.

NO DETAILS GIVEN

Enemy Claims 1,000 Warplanes Participated in Raid on Island.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 12—(AP) A large force of carrier-based planes struck Luzon, the main island in the Philippines, Tuesday afternoon, blasting airbases and military installations, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced tonight in a communique.

The Admiral maintained silence concerning Japanese reports of a powerful air smash at Formosa.

It was the third fleet action announced in three days—the other two were attacks on Marcus and the Ryukus Sunday and Monday respectively — indicating the wide scope of American warships in the Pacific.

No Details Revealed

No details were given of damage caused at Luzon, on which Manila is located. The communique said the planes struck from "a task force of the Pacific fleet."

It was the fifth such carrier plane strike at Luzon. Two of these smashed the Manila area.

Tonight's communique also announced American 81st Infantry troops had landed on the 12th island in the Palaus to come under American domination since Sept. 15. The soldiers went ashore Wednesday on Arimaskuku, four miles northwest of Peleliu, and found it unoccupied.

This was the third new landing in the southern Palaus in four days.

Claim Formosa Raided

The Japanese have reported at length by radio an attack Wednesday (Thursday Japan time) on Formosa, saying it was made by 1,000 planes and lasted more than eight hours. Absence of word on this from Nimitz indicated radio silence pending further moves of the Fleet.

The fact Arimaskuku island in the Palaus was found devoid of Japanese was taken as a possible indication the Japanese are retiring north of their better protected islands.

On Angaur, southernmost island of the Palaus, Japanese remnants were pinned into an area 150 yards square.

A Japanese plane bombed Angaur Tuesday night but headquarters said it caused no damage.

The plane was shot down by an American night fighter.

Islands in the north Palaus where the Japanese may be concentrating include Koror and Babelthuap.

The communique reference on the Luzon raid to enemy air bases possibly meant the Manila area again was the principal target.

The almost continuous fleet actions suggest a stepped up offensive in the Pacific.

The actions serve to recall the assertion of Adm. William F. Halsey, Jr., that he would hit close to Japan, in vital spots, hard and often.

Strikes Worry Japs

Without a doubt, the strikes have Japan worried as to where the next blows will fall and where the next amphibious operations will be aimed.

(Taking into consideration the unconfirmed raid on Formosa, the American Navy has struck swiftly in along, direct line from the very doorstep of Japan down the Ryukyus, Formosa to the Philippines.

(Last night the Japanese radio quoted an Imperial communique as claiming Nipponese fliers had "cornered" an American task force off Formosa, sinking one carrier and damaging another. The Federal Communications commission recorded the broadcast).

American planes, 1,000 of them, attacked Formosa, just north of the Philippines, concentrating on the island's three most important towns, the Tokyo radio announced today. The report was not confirmed by the Navy here.

This would be the greatest air armada ever sent against the Japanese in a single operation in the Pacific.

"It appears that some units of the China-based American Air Force also participated in this raid," the Japanese radio reported.

3 Towns Bombed

Takao, Tainan and Taichu, the three most important towns on Formosa, took the brunt of the American attack, the Tokyo broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications commission, said.

The three towns are on the railway which runs the length of the island. Tainan and Takao are also ports on the southwestern shore.

An Imperial communique reported "enemy aircraft" launched the attack at 7 a. m. today (Tokyo time) "in strength" and that the air "battle was continuing" eight hours later. The Japanese claimed 100 Yankee planes had been downed and that the "enemy continued to carry out his persistent attack with a total of 1,000 planes.

[Artemus L. Gates, assistant secretary of the Navy, said in an address at Washington last May that sixty-five carriers were serving with the United States Fleet and declared 1,000-plane raids by carrier-based planes against the Japanese would be "only the beginning."]

Formosa has been raided previously by the Allies. Small groups of land-based Fourteenth United States Air Force bombers hit Formosa several times before losing their forward bases in east China.

Earlier this week Admiral Nimitz warned "so long as Formosa is in the hands of the Japanese, it will be a very strong point, as they can continue to supply it with air power."

A Domei (Japanese news agency) broadcast reported that Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, Governor General of Formosa, visiting in Tokyo, was received by Emperor Hirohito for twenty minutes while the raid was in progress.

"So they have come at last," the admiral was quoted as saying when informed of the raid. "The enemy is very audacious, but we too, have made every preparation to meet him."

Battle Going On After 8 Hours, Tokyo Asserts

Another Pounding of Balikpapan by 100 Aircraft Announced

By the Associated Press.

A 1,000-plane raid on Formosa today was reported by the Tokyo radio, which said Allied planes attacked the island off the China coast from early morning until midafternoon (Japanese time).

The broadcast, heard by the Federal Communications Commission, said attacks were directed against the "entire area" of Takao, Tainan and Taichu, three of the most important towns on the island. All three are on the railway which runs the length of the island. Tainan and Takao are ports on the southwestern shore.

A broadcast beamed to Italy indicated that other towns along the railway were hit by "fighter and bomber planes."

An imperial communique reported that "enemy aircraft" came over at 7 a.m. (Tokyo time) "in strength" and the air "battle was continuing" eight hours later.

Tokyo Claims 100 Planes.

Tokyo claimed that in the first six hours of the mass assault "approximately 100 enemy planes" were shot down.

"The enemy continued to carry out his persistent attack," Tokyo said "raiding with a total of 1,000 planes."

The Japanese reported the Formosa assault shortly after the Tokyo radio told of another raid Tuesday on Balikpapan, important Borneo oil base. The Balikpapan raid, Tokyo said, was made by nearly 100 Liberators and 30 escorting fighters, and followed a Sunday attack on that area which Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Sunday's assault, Gen. MacArthur said, lasted four hours and was the fifth attack in recent weeks on the center, which produces 15 per cent of Japan's aviation gasoline.

Raided Several Times Before.

The reported mass attack on Formosa came on the heels of expressed Japanese fears that the powerful American aircraft carrier force which hurled its planes two days earlier at the nearby Ryukyu Islands was "still lurking" in the area.

Tokyo said some of the 400 planes making the Ryukyu assault had swept to within 200 miles of Formosa. Admiral Chester W. Nimitz has announced that 80 planes and 58 surface craft were destroyed in the Ryukyu Islands, where the Japs were caught completely by surprise.

Formosa was raided a number of times by small groups of land-based Liberators of the 14th United States Air Force before they lost most of their forward bases in East China.

"So long as Formosa is in the hands of the Japanese," Admiral Nimitz said earlier this week, "it will be a very strong point, as they can continue to supply it with air power."

The Ryukyu Islands lie between Formosa and Japan proper.

Air bases on Formosa presumably would have to be neutralized before Admiral Nimitz carries out his announced plan to land amphibious forces on the China coast.

Says Iron Wall Protects Isle.

While the raid was in progress Domei, the Japanese official news agency, announced over the Tokyo radio that Admiral Kiyoshi Hasegawa, Governor-General of Formosa, was received by the Emperor Hirohito for twenty minutes to make a detailed report on wartime Formosa. Hasegawa had been in Tokyo for a week, Domei said, and quoted the admiral as declaring: "So they have come at last." The enemy is very audacious, but we, too, have made every preparation to meet him. For a long time Formosa's 6,700,000 people have not only been prepared for air raids but have also given serious thought to the possibility of enemy landings. Accordingly, they have established an iron wall of defense. There is not a single Japanese in Formosa who is thinking of evacuating the island."

Months ago the Tokyo radio had reported that non-essential civilians were directed to leave the island.

RUSSIAN FORCES APPROACH TILSIT

Hurl Nazis Back Across East Prussian Border on 110-Mile Front.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 13—(AP) Russian troops battled their way to within nine miles of the big German rail center of Tilsit yesterday, hurling the enemy back across the East Prussian frontier on a 110-mile front in western Lithuania as they prepared for their first crossing in strength into pre-war Germany.

A Moscow communique announced that other Soviet forces had driven to within five miles of Riga, Latvian capital, and to within 15 miles of the west Latvian port of Liepaja, steadily hacking up the estimated 150,000 Axis troops cut off by the Red army's salient which three days ago reached the Baltic coast north of imperilled Memel.

Report Fighting in Memel

Although the Algiers radio reported that Russian troops had broken into Memel's streets, and Berlin said that a furious tank battle was underway just a few miles from the East Prussian port, the Moscow bulletin did not announce any further gains in the immediate Memel area.

In the south other Soviet forces captured the western Romanian rail hub of Oradea, main escape route for Nazi troops retreating in Transylvania and drove another spearhead to within 60 miles of imperilled Budapest as they widened their hold along the east bank of the Tisza river, last big water barrier before the Hungarian capital.

In Northern Yugoslavia the Russians toppled Subotica, an eight-way road and rail junction connecting the Axis' front in Yugoslavia and Hungary. Subotica is 23 miles southwest of Szeged, Hungary's second city which fell to the Russians Wednesday.

Below the Danube river Red army troops and Marshal Tito's partisans seized Smederovo, only 23 miles southeast of Belgrade, Yugoslav capital which appeared to be on the verge of early liberation.

Reach Baltic Sea

A midnight Soviet bulletin announced that the Russians had reached the Baltic at a second point above Memel during the day, capturing Skitsi, 15 miles south of the Latvian port of Liepaja.

Ozolmezi, point inland from the coast and 23 miles southeast of Liepaja, also was seized, along with several other points along the coast between Skitsi and captured Palanga, 15 miles north of Memel.

In filling out their positions along the East Prussian frontier southeast of Memel the Russians captured Javne and Rymzentsi, both only about six miles from Heydekrug, German communications center, and 14 miles from the Kurisches Haff, big Baltic lagoon below Memel.

Farther south the Russians wrested Sartininkai from the savagely-resisting Germans. This frontier village is only nine miles north of Tilsit.

In the sector below the Niemen river the Russians reached the Sesupe river frontier of East Prussia on a 10-mile front between Zury and Ponove. The latter point had been captured Wednesday.

Compressing the siege arc around Riga, the Russians announced that their troops had captured Jaunciems, less than five miles from the Daugava river which flows through the Latvian capital, Baltesers, five miles on the northeast, Saveli, the same distance on the east, and Salaspils rail station eight miles on the southeast.

Reds Capture Oradea

Oradea's capture in western Romania, in territory ceded under German pressure to Hungary in 1940, was announced in an order of the day by Premier-Marshal Joseph Stalin addressed to Marshal Rodin Y. Malinovsky, Second Ukraine army commander.

The big road and rail junction is 35 miles southeast of Debrecen, another important communications hub where Russian troops were reported fighting in the streets, and is 113 miles east of Budapest.

Soviet troops which had by-passed Oradea in their invasion of Hungary captured several large populated places during the day, including Abadszalok, 65 miles east of Budapest, and Tiszafoldvar, on the east bank of the Tisza river 60 miles southeast of the capital.

Abadszalok fell to an assault force which advanced 18 miles beyond the severed Debrecen-Budapest railway.

The Tisza river stronghold of Kunszentmarton also was seized. It is 27 miles east of Kecskemet, where the Germans said Russian troops now were battling the hard-pressed Hungarians after crossing the Tisza river. Kecskemet lies only 45 miles southeast of Budapest.

The fall of Subotica in northern Yugoslavia cut the Belgrade-Budapest trunk railway, a backbone of Axis defenses in the Balkans, and the midnight bulletin said that 2,000 Germans and Hungarians were captured along with a vast amount of war material in Wednesday's seizure of nearby Szeged in Hungary.

Below the Danube River in Yugoslavia the Russians were closing steadily on Belgrade from the south and east after crossing the Morava River and severing the Belgrade-Athens rail route.

Besides taking Smederevo, on the south bank of the Danube twenty-three miles from the capital, one column captured Glibovac, thirty-seven miles below the capital, in an eight-mile advance along the Lug River, a western tributary of the Morava. Natalinci, eleven miles southwest of Glibovac and thirty-seven miles from Belgrade, was another of the sixty localities seized, the bulletin said.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE NAZI STRONGPOINT GUARDING HUNGARY

London, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—The capture by the Russians of the west Transylvania strongpoint of Oradea was announced tonight in an order of the day by Premier Stalin. Oradea lies at the approaches to Hungary, eighty miles northwest of newly captured Cluj and 130 miles southeast of Budapest.

30. 24— 19513

The Stalin order, broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor there, said it fell to Russian and Romanian forces commanded by Marshal Rodion Malinovsky. A Moscow victory salute of twelve salvos from 124 guns was ordered.

[In a broadcast picked up by CBS at New York today, the British radio announced on the authority of its own Stockholm correspondent. "The Hungarians have got in touch with the Allies, asking for an armistice. If the results are satisfactory, it's likely that a Hungarian delegation will go to Moscow shortly."]

Reds Battle Inside Debrecen.

Earlier today the Moscow radio announced that the Russians have broken into Debrecen, third largest Hungarian city, on the Orient railroad 116 miles east of Budapest. This ancient city of 122,517 is an important rail center which Allied planes from Italy frequently have bombed.

The Germans said their tanks had thrown a twenty-mile-wide ring around strong Russian armored forces in this area and had beaten back relief columns moving up from Oradea, in Romania, and from Karcag in Hungary.

In its daily communique, broadcast by the Berlin radio, the German High Command acknowledged the loss of Cluj, the capital of Transylvania.

Memel Surrounded.

In the north, meanwhile, Russian forces smashed forward to within five miles of the Prussian port of Memel in a battle of growing ferocity after invading what Hitler considers German soil by occupying the town of Plikisi inside the Memel metropolitan area acquired by Germany in the spring of 1939.

A concentric attack was launched against Memel by more than 200 Russian tanks, Berlin said, emphasizing that Memel was encircled. Of these ninety-eight were reported destroyed, fifteen by the guns of German warships supporting the beleaguered garrison.

Tonight the Algiers radio reported that the Russians had broken into Memel and that there was fighting in its streets.

All along the frontiers of East Prussia, the Germans reported violent battle. "Near Tilsit, heavy fighting continues on the eastern border of East Prussia," the Berlin radio said. "The Soviets at the same time continued their flank attack with strong forces from the south out of the Narew sector against East Prussia."

Russian attacks north of Warsaw and south of Rozan on the historic Narew River were checked, Berlin asserted, as was another thrust from the Lithuanian frontier town of Cilkaviskis toward the eastern frontier of East Prussia.

Tonight Berlin said that Russian shock troops actually fought their way into Rozan but were thrown out again.

The Germans said the Red Army had renewed its assault on Riga, the capital of Latvia, with fresh divisions and material. The Russians have been at the edge of the port for weeks. The German garrison on the big Estonian island of Saare (Osel) at the mouth of the Gulf of Riga was compressed into the Sworbe Peninsula, Berlin said, but Russian attempts to liquidate the force with an amphibious operation were declared beaten off.

Returning to the battle of Hungary, Berlin said that the Russian forces that reached the fourth largest city of Hungary, Keckemet, fifty miles southeast of Budapest, had been pushed back by a German - Hungarian counter - attack. The Germans admitted, however, that their Tizla River line had been shattered, and said that "heavy fighting is raging west of the river."

Russians Push Into Hungary's Third City

LUCE

Complete Collapse Of Resistance May Be Near

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Oct. 12.—Hungary appeared on the verge of a military knockout today as Russian forces overran Magyar defenses on a 120-mile front guarding Budapest.

(The Russians have broken into Debrecen, third largest Hungarian city, on the Orient railroad 116 miles east of Budapest, the Moscow radio said in a broadcast recorded in London today. The ancient city of 122,517 is an important rail center which Allied planes from Italy frequently have bombed.)

The developing debacle, with apparent imminent collapse of Hungarian resistance, emphasized final disintegration of Hitler's Balkan defenses, and indicated an early assault by the Red Army on Austria.

The Army newspaper, Red Star, said Soviet troops already were more than half-way from the Hungarian-Romanian border to Budapest, which would place them less than 60 miles from the capital.

Hungarian Army Confused.

The Hungarian Army was reported in the utmost state of confusion, with its elite divisions trapped in Northern Transylvania or scattered among the Carpathian passes of Ruthenia. Neither the army nor the people appeared willing to fight an hour longer on the side of Germany, Red Star said.

Moscow military sources expressed belief that the German high command already is reckoning on Hungary's complete elimination from the war.

Russian and Romanian forces yesterday captured Szeged, second largest city in Hungary, and Cluj, capital of Transylvania, with general advances elsewhere on the Balkan front. (Marshal Tito announced that Russians and Yugoslav Partisan forces had surrounded Belgrade.)

Meanwhile, to the north, the battle for East Prussia seemed under way, with the Germans being thrown back from their border defenses 15 miles northeast of the fortress city of Tilsit.

Nazi Infantry Pushed Back.

A Soviet column, following the Tilsit-Siauliai highway and railroad, pressed back German infantry while low-flying Red Air Force Stormoviks slashed at the Nazi ground forces and turned green-camouflaged tanks and self-propelled guns into blazing wrecks.

A second column pushed forward along both the north and south banks of the Niemen River, and at the closest point was less than 30 miles east of the city's fortifications.

Still a third sweep on the Nazi bastion came southward from besieged Memel, almost reaching the Baltic coastal highway which now has been severed along a wide stretch north of Memel.

As in previous attempts to hold defensive positions, the Germans fought furiously at all three major Baltic ports—Memel, Liepaja and Riga—which are under heavy Soviet attack.

The East Prussian frontier was reached when the Russians seized the town of Panowi. There was savage fighting southeast of Memel as the Germans threw in four divisions of reinforcements with 30 counterattacks. Russian reports said more than 2,000 Nazis were slain.

The advance on Liepaja steadily contracted the Latvian pocket in which from 100,000 to 150,000 German troops are trapped.

There was no Soviet confirmation on Berlin radio reports that the Red Army had opened a fresh offensive in Poland, in the area of Rozan.

UNREST SPREADS THROUGH AUSTRIA AS REDS ADVANCE

WERNER

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(AP) Signs of panic multiplied in Germany tonight as the Red army's advanced units neared Budapest and the prospect of Hungarian collapse opened visions of a grand assault on Austria, the backdoor of the Reich.

Turkish sources said Berlin had launched a "last appeal" to the Hungarians to hold fast and not abandon Germany, but the Nazis themselves appeared to have little faith that Hungary would or could hold. They were busy urging Austrians to dig for their lives in frontier defense spadework near Vienna.

People Dig Trenches

All able-bodied men and women in the Vienna region were at or on their way to the diggings after a mass callup of age groups between 16 and 65. Proclamations appealed to them to "follow the example of East Prussians and Rhinelanders."

The Ankara radio quoted Stockholm advices tonight reviewing reports that Hungary definitely had asked for armistice terms.

In London, Czechoslovakia's President Eduard Benes received Count Michael Karolyi, who was president of the short-lived Hungarian republic established after the last war, for a discussion of future Czechoslovak-Hungarian relations—a hint that Dr. Benes expects important developments.

The Nazis warned Austrians living away from the frontier against spreading rumors, one rumor specifically denounced and denied was to the effect that Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, pretender to the Austrian throne, had married Premier Stalin's daughter "and Austria would be spared."

In Budapest, the newspaper Pesti Hirlap said of the new front on the Hungarian plain that "there can be no question of a coherent front line in this wide, flat area where it is almost impossible to build the necessary defenses."

The Budapest Deutsche Zeitung, while urging continued resistance, admitted that "militarily speaking, it looks as though victory would go to our enemies."

"The Anglo Americans, in the west are attacking German territory," the paper said. "In Italy they are trying to push open the door into southern Germany. In the east and south the Bolsheviks are forcing their way into Hungarian territory. Many a fainthearted person already regards the war as lost."

The Hungarian News agency mentioned an appeal issued by the primate of Hungary to all clergy to "remain at their posts under all circumstances, whatever turn events may take."

Austrians Urged to Surrender

Austrians in the German army, meanwhile, were urged in a "free Austria radio" broadcast heard here to "desert if in the rear and surrender if at the front. War has been carried into Hungary. That is the signal for us to strike."

Notices appearing in the German press indicated that Hitler's Brownshirted party Stormtroop RS (pledged to keep civilians in line) were already deserting in considerable numbers. The notices called on stormtroopers who "have lately changed their addresses without registering their departure" to inform the party at once where they are and to report to the nearest unit for duty.

Nazi editorial writers increased their output of warnings against the "negligible minority" of Germans who have lost heart and want to quit.

Goering's National Zeitung said these doubters and fainthearted could be scorned and ignored "if it were not for the danger emanating from them in critical times when they may infect others."

Possibly the former Reichsbank president, Hjalmar Schacht, was found to be among the "negligible minority," for his arrest by the Gestapo was reported in Stockholm by a woman identified as his niece.

Connally Urges Hungary To Break With Germany

By the Associated Press.

Only by breaking with Germany now and coming over to the Allied side can Hungary hope for "a better existence in the postwar world," Chairman Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee warned the Hungarian people yesterday in a message broadcast by the Office of War Information.

"It is high time for the Hungarians to take a realistic stand and to shake off the German yoke and show the world that they are willing to act as an independent, self-respecting nation," Senator Connally said. "Only by breaking with Germany and contributing their strength to the final defeat of Germany can the Hungarians of today lay the basis of a better existence for the Hungarians of tomorrow."

BULGARIAN TROOPS EVACUATE GREECE

Moscow Says Forces Withdrawn in Compliance with Allied Demands.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 13—(AP) The Moscow radio carried a Bulgarian announcement early today that Bulgaria's troops and administrative officials have now been withdrawn from Greek territory in compliance with Allied demands established as a preliminary to armistice negotiations.

While there was no specific mention of evacuation of Yugoslav territory—another Allied stipulation—the broadcast said Premier Simon Georgiev of Bulgaria had agreed to all the conditions set forth by the Allies.

Georgiev, in note to the Russian commander in Sofia, Marshal Feodor I. Tolbukhin, said, "the evacuation of Bulgarian troops from Greek territory was undertaken Oct. 10 by decision of the Council of Ministers and the evacuation of the officials and transfer of administrative power to the local population was begun much earlier. It has already been completed."

MIKOLAJGZYK,

EDEN CONFER

Polish Premier Flies To Moscow For Unity Parleys

Polish-Americans wish both the retention of Poland's 1939 eastern boundary and addition of East Prussian land..... Page 4

Moscow, Oct. 12 (AP) — Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, who flew here today from London with other leaders of the Polish Government in exile, conferred with Anthony Eden, British Foreign Minister, late today on the initial phase of negotiations for unity between the London and Moscow sponsored Polish groups.

As Mikolajczyk and Eden conferred, there was general belief that the differences between the Soviet-sponsored Polish Committee of National Liberation and the London Government in exile would be settled before Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Premier Joseph Stalin close their conferences.

To See Highest Leaders

It was understood that the Polish Premier would see the highest Anglo-Soviet leaders before he again met the chief members of the Lublin committee with whom he failed to agree here two months ago.

Mikolajczyk, it was learned, carried no "blank check" from his Cabinet for negotiations and even if a provisional agreement is reached at Moscow, he must return to London and submit it to his associates for approval. On the other hand, Churchill is reported to be vigorously determined to see some basis for Polish harmony established before terminating his own visit here.

Foreign attention is riveted on this phase of Anglo-Soviet coordination. Many feel Churchill has committed his personal prestige on getting a tentative compromise at least.

Position Little Changed

Mikolajczyk has plunged heartily into the parleys here but in effect he is faced with the same demands as put by the Lublin group in August. His London Government has shifted little from its position at that time. Although it wants to discuss the border question with the Soviet Union, the London body is not offering to renounce the 1935 constitution which it claims is the sole legal authority.

The Polish Premier never received an answer to his late August proposal to the Lublin Poles to reconstruct his Government on the basis of five major political parties, including the Polish Workers, or Communist party.

Mikolajczyk, with a political and military staff, flew to Moscow in a four-engined plane placed at their disposal by Churchill. The Liberation group arrived earlier from Lublin.

No time or place was set immediately for the first meeting between the rival Polish factions. The London delegation was put up at the Hotel Metropole, a half mile from the former Polish Embassy where the liberation committee has its quarters.

Asked about the outlook for a reconciliation—admittedly important to the major Allies—a member of the London party said: "We are hopeful."

[Both the Algiers and Marseille radios reported that Marshal Tito, leader of the Yugoslav Partisans, also was on his way to Moscow to join in a review of Europe's diplomatic problems. London raised the possibility that formation of a Balkan-Polish federation might be under consideration.]

Churchill is known to have stressed since his arrival Monday the importance of straightening out the Polish problem in his long daily talks with Stalin and Foreign Commissor Molotov.

The Russian-sponsored Poles were said to be firm in demanding that the president of Poland be shorn of his powers, the 1935 constitution abandoned and that the Lublin commander-in-chief, Col. Gen. Rola Zymierski be made head of the Polish armed forces.

If unity between the factions is achieved, it is believed that Mikolajczyk, in order to become premier of the coalition, would have to agree to drop many members of his present government in London. Both the Lublin Poles and the Russian government like Mikolajczyk, but not some of his ministers.

Moscow broke relations with the London Poles in 1943 when the latter asked the international Red Cross to examine German charges that the Russians had executed 10,000 Polish officers in the Katyn forest near Smolensk after the partition of Poland in 1939.

Among those accompanying Mikolajczyk from London were Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer, Prof. Ladislas Grabsky and General Stanslaw Tabor, deputy chief of staff of the Polish army. General Tabor is the first high Polish officer to visit Moscow since the rupture in 1943.

In an address at the British embassy last night Premier Stalin praised the industrial might of the United States and said that without American war aid the course of the European war might have been different. British and Russian guests called it a "great tribute" to the U. S.

Russian Leader Says America Helped Turn the Tide— Toasts Roosevelt.

Moscow, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Representatives of the Polish Government in Exile flew to Moscow today and the Polish question appeared to be the next item on the agenda of the Moscow Conference begun on Monday by Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Marshal Stalin.

Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, head of the exiled Polish government at London, arrived here with a political and military staff. They had come by way of Lublin, seat of the rival Polish Committee of National Liberation, to renew negotiations for a united government.

TODAY

Accompanying the Premier from London were Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer, Prof. Ladislas Grabsky and Gen. Jabor, deputy chief of staff of the Polish Army.

A few hours earlier Premier Stalin had praised the industrial might of the United States before a gathering at the British embassy, and had said that without American aid the course of the European war might have been different.

No time or place was set immediately for the first meeting between Premier Mikolajczyk and the Russians. It was learned that the United States may be represented at their preliminary discussions.

The Premier arrived at the Moscow military airport in a British plane at noon. Suites awaited the party at the Hotel Metropole.

After a brief luncheon Mr. Mikolajczyk had a round-table discussion with his aides and arranged to confer with British representatives in the afternoon.

Lublin Poles are staying at the former Polish Embassy, a half mile from the Hotel Metropole, which is situated within two blocks of the Kremlin.

The rival Polish regimes were invited to sit at the same conference table, with Mr. Churchill and Premier Stalin acting as intermediaries.

Accompanying the Premier from London were Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer, Prof. Ladislas Grabsky and Gen. Jabor, deputy chief of staff of the Polish Army.

There was general belief that the Polish question would be settled one way or the other before Mr. Churchill leaves Moscow.

The importance of Polish reconciliation to the major Allies was admitted on all sides in Moscow.

Asked about the outlook one member of the Polish delegation said, "We are hopeful."

The London delegation was the same which went to Moscow last summer, except for the addition of Gen. Jabor. He was the first high Polish officer to visit the capital since the Russian-Polish rupture in 1943.

Considerable Spadework.

It is a matter of common diplomatic knowledge that Mr. Churchill has done considerable spadework on the Polish problem in his long daily talks with Premier Stalin and Foreign Commissar Molotov.

The Soviet-sponsored Poles from Lublin were reported firm in demanding that the 1935 constitution be abandoned, that the President of Poland be shorn of his powers and that the Lublin commander in chief, Col. Gen. Rola Zymierski, be head of the Polish armed forces.

It is believed in Moscow that Mr. Mikolajczyk will assume the premiership of the merged Polish regimes if unity is achieved. Many members of the Polish government in London would have to be dropped by Mr. Mikolajczyk, it was understood. While the Premier is persona grata to both the Lublin regime and to Russia, many of his ministers are opposed.

Russia severed relations with Poland after the London Poles asked the International Red Cross to examine German charges that the Russians had killed 10,000 Polish officers in the Katyn Forest near Smolensk. Since then the Lublin committee of Poles, who were in Russia has gained ascendancy with the Kremlin and the breach has widened.

Frank Understanding Seen.

A frank understanding between Russia and Britain in dealing with the Balkans and Poland appeared to be emerging from the Churchill-Stalin conferences.

Indications of unity of purpose in dealing with the Balkan situation developed last night when Moscow announced that Bulgaria had accepted preliminary armistice conditions agreed on by the Allies and had promised to evacuate within two weeks territory seized from Greece and Yugoslavia.

Marshal Tito, commander of Yugoslavia's fighting forces, has left his country for Moscow to participate in the Churchill-Stalin talks, the Marseille radio reported today.

The announcement concerning Bulgaria's acceptance of preliminary armistice conditions said withdrawal of Bulgarian troops from Greek and Yugoslav soil would be supervised by a tri-partite military commission under the chairmanship of a Russian representative.

Must Start at Once.

The evacuation must start immediately and final armistice conditions for Bulgaria will not be settled until it is completed, the announcement added.

The Allied governments, through the European Advisory Commission, have been considering these armistice conditions since September 9, when the Russians ended hostilities against the Bulgarians after a one-day war.

The withdrawal demand does not apply to Bulgarian troops fighting in Yugoslavia in co-operation with the Russians and Marshal Tito.

Speaking at the dinner given in his honor by Prime Minister Churchill, Premier Stalin said both Russia and Britain had played big parts in the war, but the stupendous production and organizing ability of the United States had helped turn the tide.

Lauds American Aid.

It was the most generous public utterance of any Russian in this war and British and Russian guests called it a "great tribute."

Premier Stalin spoke long and earnestly of the part played by the United States—the longest talk of a formal dinner which lasted until almost midnight.

Mr. Churchill recalled to Mr. Stalin the bleak days of 1942, when German armies stood at Stalingrad and El Alamein. Since then, he said, there had been a succession of Allied victories.

Premier Stalin broke all precedent by attending the dinner in the British Embassy—the first time he ever had visited any Embassy in Moscow. The dinner was interrupted by the sound of Moscow's victory guns saluting the Red Army's capture of Cluj, the capital of Transylvania. Mr. Churchill exclaimed it was the first salute he had heard in Moscow, and led a group of 30 guests to the broad windows of the dining room, where they watched until the last rocket had arched over the Kremlin.

Toast to Roosevelt.

When the meal progressed for some time without toasts, Premier Stalin inquired if it was against the law to make a toast. Mr. Churchill responded with one to the leaders of both countries—King George VI of Britain and President Michael Kalinin of Russia.

President Stalin's first toast was to President Roosevelt and his second to the United States for her part in bringing victory to the United Nations. There were many subsequent toasts to the importance of co-operaton and friendship between the three great powers.

After the dinner Mr. Churchill, British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden, Mr. Molotov and United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman talked together with British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr.

Anti-Russian Leader In Finland Keeps Post

By the Associated Press.

HELSINKI, Oct. 12.—Vaino A. Tanner, anti-Russian leader of Finland's dominant Social Democratic party, announced last night his determination to retain his post—a decision generally interpreted as ending the possibility of mending a growing split in the party.

Other political leaders aiming at closer collaboration with Russia have been attempting to oust him. The party split began last summer when Tanner, then finance minister, failed to support peace efforts.

Nearly 5,000 Allied Planes Hit Scattered Axis Targets

London, Oct. 12 (AP)—A fleet of 750 American heavy bombers, part of a force of nearly 5,000 Allied planes attacking widely scattered Axis targets, raided an aircraft plant and motor transport factory at Bremen today as hundreds of British and United States dive bombers pounded burning Aachen.

The 650 Mustangs and Lightnings escorting the Flying Fortresses and Liberators bagged 18 German fighters in the Bremen-Hannover area but none of the enemy fighters molested the big bombers, three of which failed to return. Six fighters are missing, a communique said.

Bombing visually, the Liberator and Fortress crewmen concentrated on the Karl Borgsward truck factory, believed to be a producer of armored fighting vehicles, and a Focke-Wulf airplane parts factory.

Osnabruck Yards Hit

Rail yards at Osnabruck, between Bremen and Munster, also were attacked along with other undisclosed targets in northwestern Germany. The fighters dropped down and strafed locomotives, radio location installations and other targets.

"We caught the Hun napping," said Lieut. Robert R. Bedell of Cleveland, Ohio, copilot of one of the bombers. "Some Fortresses hand-dumped their bombs on the target before the Huns sent up a single burst of flak."

Sergt. Melbin D. Dryson, of East Salt Lake City, Utah, said he saw one Liberator flip on its back and crash when hit by anti-aircraft fire. The communique itself described enemy ground fire as moderate.

RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes pounded hastily repaired synthetic oil plants at Wanne-Eickel in the Ruhr northeast of Essen, and a smaller force of Lancasters bombed German gun installations at Breskens, Holland, dominating the sea approaches to Antwerp. A large number of Germans are trapped in this area.

NIGHT

Two British Shot Down

Two British bombers were shot down by ground fire in this daylight strike which followed the 173d raid on Berlin Wednesday night.

American and British pilots, flying nearly 1,000 sorties, swept in waves over Aachen at 15-minute intervals during the day, further gutting that German city whose German commandant has refused to surrender. One pilot who struck the city yesterday said he saw a ten-story building crumble under two direct hits. Great fires were reported in the heart of the city.

Some of the French-based medium bombers attacked Aachen's outer defenses, including dug-in tanks, and ranged farther inland, where they battered railway yards in the Dusseldorf area.

Heavy bombers of the United States 15th Air Force were reported to have attacked Bologna heavily, suffering some losses from ground fire although encountering no aerial opposition.

U. S. Bombers Blast

Bremen Plane Plant

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Approximately 750 Flying Fortresses and Liberators attacked an aircraft components factory at Bremen today while RAF heavies pounded synthetic oil plants at Wanne-Eickel in the Ruhr.

The American bombers, escorted by Thunderbolts and Mustangs, also bombed other unspecified targets in Northwestern Germany as the German radio reported still another raid on Central Austria by United States 15th Air Force bombers from Italy.

Wanne-Eickel is an industrial city northwest of Essen.

While these two big fleets were out, a smaller force of Lancasters shot across to Holland, ripping gun installations at Breskens, where a large number of German troops are trapped.

Mosquitos, which seldom miss a night, made the attacks with the loss of a single plane.

RAF heavies were sent out late yesterday to crack the sea wall around Walcheren Island, off the Dutch coast, for the third time. They breached the dike on the east side, making the escape of flood-trapped German troops virtually impossible.

BRITISH AIRWAY PLAN DRAWN UP

Railways Ask for Approval of Great Network.

London, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Plans for a huge air transportation network throughout Great Britain and Europe have been drawn up by the British railways and sent to the Government, it was announced in the House of Lords today, and in the course of debate on civil aviation it was brought out that the railways propose to operate nineteen routes within the British Isles.

They contemplate flying 20,000,000 miles a year at the outset, and progressively increasing that figure. The services would call for upward of 100 planes to carry twenty-five passengers each, probably of the DC3 type at first.

cized, in the debate, what he called Great Britain's lack of air-mindedness, and said that the air activities of America were progressing on a prodigious scale. Urging that Britain play a leading part in the air, he said: "We shall find when this war cames to an end, the lines from America radiating throughout the universe. If we have to say we have no machines, we started late in the race, then we shall find the Dominions will speak to us in terms which we may not understand."

Lord Beaverbrook, who intervened to make a statement on Government policy, referred to the recent appointment of Lord Swinton as Minister of Civil Aviation, and said that the Government had created machinery likely to give satisfactory results. The future of civil aviation, Lord Beaverbrook said, will be determined not in Whitehall but in the factories and on the air routes of the world.

The railways propose to form a new company and to operate the air routes without subsidy on the assumption that by agreements between governments no subsidies will be granted to any one in the European field. They would offer partnership to other air operators and shipping interests which had regular surface routes before the war. The railways say that their aircraft would fly to Paris in 62 minutes, it was brought out; to Berlin in 3 hours; to Rome in 4 hours and 44 minutes, and to Athens in 9 hours and 5 minutes.

Britain Won't Delete Optimistic Dispatches

LONDON, Oct. 12 (AP).—Information Minister Brendan Bracken told the House of Commons today he would not seek to prevent newspapers from publishing overly optimistic reports on the western front fighting.

"War correspondents," he said, "may be occasionally optimistic—so, for that matter, are the fighting men they work among—but I do not think their reports would be better, and they would certainly merit less confidence, if they were edited by the government."

12 Nations Study Chaos Of Europe's Roads, Rails

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 12.—Transportation experts of 12 countries set to work here today on the task of unscrambling the biggest traffic jam in history—the chaos of Europe's war-torn road and rail network.

Their immediate task was to speed movement of troops and supplies in freed territories by rehabilitating damaged railways. Their ultimate aim is restoration of normal communications throughout all Europe.

Represented were Belgium, Czechoslovakia, France, Greece, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, the United Kingdom, the United States, Russia and Yugoslavia. Ambassador John G. Winant heads the American delegation.

Curb Vengeance, Archbishop Urges

London, Oct. 12 (AP)—The Archbishop of York today appealed to Christians to "oppose wholesale and indiscriminate vengeance on the German people."

"But we have no right to forgive them light-heartedly," he added. "The murder factory near Lublin, the wholesale asphyxiation or machine-gunning of tens of thousands, the wiping out of villages like Lidice and Oradour—these are crimes which we have no right to pass over."

Addressing the convocation of York, the Archbishop said it was the Christian attitude that Germans proved guilty of atrocities be punished, that Germany be completely disarmed as a step toward preventing her from making another war and that a positive and constructive policy toward the country be adopted.

"The Christian churches should, as soon as the war is over, get into contact with the Christian churches of Germany," he said. "We must help the State in running new cultural and recreational centers and colleges for youth work."

Soldier Vote Increases

LONDON, Oct. 12 (AP).—A United States Army spokesman reported today a step-up this week in soldier voting in Britain. The deadline for use of the Federal ballot is Sunday.

The spokesman said that it would be impossible to tell when the bulk had voted and added that there would be no announcement on how many cast ballots in this theater.

Use of the Federal ballot is restricted to those who applied for and failed to receive a state ballot by Oct. 1, and is further limited to men from states with laws permitting its acceptance.

ENGLISH WOMEN WANT CORSETS

London, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—England's women are demanding more and better corsets and the Corset Guild is seeking action from the Government.

"If Mr. Dalton [Hugh Dalton, President of the Board of Trade] does not agree to see us and listen to reason," said the Guild's secretary, "the leaders in the corset industry are ready to stage a sit down strike on the steps of the Board of Trade."

Corsetiers report that in the black market women are paying as high as $80 for inferior corsets.

Britain's Post-War Coal Needs

LONDON, Oct. 12 (AP).—Reconstruction Minister Lord Woolton declared today that Great Britain's need for coal in the post-war period would be much greater than during the last generation. If Great Britain is to recover its world position the wheels of industry must not be taken when peace comes, he told the Institute of Fuel.

U. S. Soldier Hanged For Rape

London, Oct. 12 (AP)—Private Madison Thomas, of Krotz Springs, La., was hanged today after being convicted by a United States Army Court-Martial for rape. The sentence was reviewed and confirmed by General Eisenhower.

First Aerial Free Port Planned by Eire

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Oct. 12.—The Eire government is planning to make the Shannon airport at Rinneanna the first free port for air transport in the world as soon as wartime travel restrictions are relaxed, it was learned last night.

Intransit passengers, baggage and merchandise will be allowed to enter and leave without customs and immigration inspection.

Spain Denies Meddling In Western Hemisphere

Foreign Minister Professes Friendship for U. S.

MADRID, Oct. 12 (AP).—Spain through her Foreign Minister, today made an open bid for the friendship of the Allies—especially the United States—and denied she acted as a "troublemaker" in Latin America.

Foreign Minister Jose Felix Lequerica, stating that he was "thinking especially of the United States," said at a Columbus Day ceremony: "Spain maintains and must always maintain friendly relations with that illustrious European race whose labor and expansion on the other side of the Atlantic gave birth to a people of colossal physical and spiritual proportions that today marches at the head of civilization."

Lequerica denied that Spain was creating a "disturbance" in Latin America, adding that the "most foolish thing I ever heard in my life" was stories that Spain was the country from which were sent "troublemakers who must be kept under surveillance like the Mediterranean fly."

U. S. Planes Blast Pathway Into Po

Rome, Oct. 12 (AP)—American planes in their greatest blow yet in the Italian campaign delivered a "Cassino-type" assault on German bivouacs and stores in the Bologna area today, attempting to blast a pathway into the Po Valley for the United States Fifth Army which has been halted by a Nazi death stand in the Apennines mountains just south of Bologna.

The force of United States Flying Fortresses and Liberators was the largest 15th Air Force armada ever sent over a single target area—even greater than the one which left Cassino in ruins last spring—and was integrated closely with powerful attacks by tactical, medium and fighter-bombers.

Stores, Barracks Hit

The heavy bombers cast a tremendous load of fragmentation and demolition bombs on German barracks, bivouacs, stores and dumps in a rough circle around Bologna. The Libertors hit four stores and depots, two barracks, a group of workshops, an ammunition dump and an ammunition factory, early reports disclosed.

Seven separate waves of Mitchells also swooped through morning clouds on a similar mission, but concentrated mostly on enemy positions just a few miles north of where the United States ground troops were locked in fierce battle with the Nazis.

Eight waves of Thunderbolts then attacked occupied buildings in the area south of Bologna with what were officially termed "excellent results."

No Opposition In Air

A few heavy bombers were lost from ground fire, but there was no enemy fighter opposition. Three ME-109s were seen, but did not attack the United States sky fleet.

In other aerial operations rocket-firing RAF Beaufighters attacked two uncompleted ships at Portorose, near Trieste, one of their missiles bouncing off a concrete wall and punching through a large illuminating gas tank which burst into flames.

The RAF announced that Italy-based Mosquitos also set fire to six enemy planes during an attack yesterday on two Zagreb airfields in Yugoslavia.

Germans Fight Bitterly

Reinforced German ground troops were accepting heavy losses in a desperate effort to prevent the Allied flood from bursting into northern Italy.

An official report today of the fierce battle raging ten miles south of Bologna at Livergnano declared that "contrasted with their former tactics of withdrawing after a tough delaying action, the enemy now is making an all-out stand and is fighting strenuously until killed or captured."

The Nazis threw one counter-attack after another against Lieut. Gen. Mark W. Clark's veterans, and the number of enemy prisoners being taken was increasing rapidly.

Be Outflanked On Adriatic

Headquarters said gains by the Eighth Army near the Adriatic coast in recent days had outflanked German positions north of the Fiumicino river and had compelled the enemy to withdraw to a new line running northeast and southwest through Gambettola. There, as well as along the Fifth Army front, blustery weather and frequent rainstorms seriously impeded the Allied attack.

Gambettola is two and a half miles beyond the newly captured towns of Gatteo and Sangiovanni and four and a half miles southeast of the important junction town of Cesena on the main highway between Rimini and Bologna.

British troops holding the Fifth Army's right flank smashed a German attempt to regain Monte Battaglia, which commands the road to Imola, and took 75 prisoners.

A Brazilian division advancing up both sides of the Serchio river near the west coast made continued progress, apparently against light German resistance. One column moving up the east side of the river reached Barga, 15½ miles north of Lucca and about 35 miles east of the naval base of La Spezia.

GREAT AIR FLEET BLASTS BOLOGNA

Rome, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—A great force of American heavy bombers delivered a massive attack on German barracks, bivouacs, stores and dumps in a rough circle around besiged Bologna while Allied ground forces deployed ten miles from the city.

The force of Flying Fortresses and Liberators was larger than that which left Cassino below Rome in ruins last spring and was the largest the American Fifteenth Air Force ever dispatched over a single target.

Brazilian expeditionary forces smashed today to the vicinity of Gallicano, twenty-nine miles inland from the big Italian west coast naval base of La Spezia. Another column, advancing up the opposite side of the Serchio River Valley, reached Barga, four miles east of Gallicano. The apparent objective was to outflank La Spezia itself.

In central Italy, American and British forces of the Fifth Army met increasing enemy resistance in their attempt to break through the last of the Apennine Hills into the Po Valley, Allied Headquarters announced.

The only other significant gains in yesterday's fighting came on the 8th Army front, where British troops captured Longiano, 12 miles west of Rimini, and the neighboring village of Lacrocetta. The 8th Army also pushed additional forces across the Fiumicino River and occupied the towns of Gatteo and San Giovanni.

Headquarters said the 8th Army gains in the foothills west of Rimini in recent days had outflanked German positions behind the Fiumicino River sufficiently to compel the enemy to withdraw the Adriatic sector of the line to positions running northeast and southwest through Gambettola.

Bombers of the Mediterranean Air Force, flying 1,700 sorties yesterday, hammered industrial targets in the Vienna area, airfields in Austria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia and supported ground operations in Italy.

ROOSEVELT SEES

FREEDOM AS GOAL FOR THE ITALIANS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP) President Roosevelt said tonight that when the Allies complete military operations in Italy the Italians "will be free to work out their own destiny, under a government of their own choosing."

In a radio address from the White House, Mr. Roosevelt said the American army entered Italy "not as conquerors, but as liberators. Their objective is military, not political."

The President's address was directed to the meeting of the Italian-American Labor Council in New York in acceptance of the council's Four Freedoms award granted to the Chief Executive.

"Of course, the people of Italy have suffered terribly and it will not be humanly possible to make wholly adequate measures to relieve all suffering until Germany has been finally and decisively defeated," Mr. Roosevelt said. "But the United Nations are determined that every possible measure be taken to aid the Italian people directly, and to give them an opportunity to help themselves."

In New York, Attorney General Francis M. Biddle presented the "Four Freedoms" award with the declaration that President Roosevelt maintained "his faith in the Italian soul" even when Italy under "captivity by the lackey Fascists" was brought into war against the United States.

Hails Roosevelt Aid

"Long, long after Mussolini is only a half-forgotten nightmare," Biddle declared, "American and Italian scholars will be discussing their two great common heritages—the principles of Columbus-navigator and of Roosevelt-liberator."

Biddle said it was the President's "settled determination to bring the provisions of the Atlantic Charter to bear upon Italy's problems."

"One day soon—sooner than most Italians dare hope—Italy will be restored to her proud place among nations," Biddle continued. "And among the statues of her great—Cavour, Garibaldi, Mazzini—there will be a statue of a man who loved Italian culture well enough to preserve Rome from destruction; who knew the tapestry of Italian history well enough to trust her sons as brothers-in-arms; and who asks only that her people continue in the path of peace and of dignity for which they have always worked and fought."

Mr. Roosevelt's address was his second of the day in which he spoke in warm terms of Italy.

Address Diplomats

This afternoon, he received chiefs of diplomatic missions from the other American republics on the occasion of Columbus Day. Addressing them and an all-network radio audience, Mr. Roosevelt recalled the millions of Italians who have followed Columbus to the western world.

"This is one of the many reasons why the forces of liberation have been welcomed so cordially by the Italian people after 22 years of Fascism," he said.

The President emphasized that aviation has narrowed the margin between the old world and the new.

"This means," he said, "that if we do not now take effective measures to prevent another world war and if there were to be a third world war, the lands of the Western Hemisphere would be as vulnerable to attack from Europe and Asia as were the island of Crete and the Philippine islands five years ago."

Declaring there is "no time to lose," he said "our objective is to establish the solid foundations of the peace organization without further delay and without waiting for the end of hostilities."

Alone among the Western Hemisphere republics, Argentina was omitted from the diplomatic guest list for today's White House Columbus Day observance. The United States does not maintain relations with the present regime in Buenos Aires, which the President recently denounced for what he termed the growth of Nazi-Fascist influences in the Argentine.

HILLMAN STATES FDR PLANS TO HELP ITALY

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP) Sidney Hillman, chairman of the C.I.O. Political Action committee, said tonight "Americans of Italian descent have the opportunity to strike a great blow for the future freedom of Italy on Nov. 7" by voting for President Roosevelt.

Election of a Republican government "would mean collaboration with those who would oppress and exploit the people of Italy, rather than cooperation with the Italian people themselves," he said in an address before the Free Italy American Labor Council.

The council, claiming to represent 350,000 Italian-American trade union members, earlier today telegraphed an appeal to President Roosevelt for the lifting of "the restrictions against direct mailing of packages to Italy."

The telegram was sent, the council said, after George Baldanzi, council secretary, returned from Italy with a report of "want and suffering" in that country.

Hillman addressed a Columbus Day dinner meeting held by the council in honor of Baldanzi.

600 GERMANS SEIZED WITH ARMS IN ALBANIA

ROME, Oct. 12 (AP)—More than 600 Germans and large stores of guns and material have been captured in the Allies' clean-up of the Sarande area of Albania the past two days, headquarters announced today.

With the Sarande area firmly in the Allies' hands, there appeared to be little hope of escape for a German garrison isolated on the nearby island of Corfu. British destroyers were ranging the coast, bombarding enemy batteries and making it impossible for the Germans to attempt a surface evacuation.

Among the stores captured were many artillery pieces and anti-aircraft guns, staff cars, small arms and oil. Albanian partisans turned one captured gun on the Germans yesterday with telling effect.

British warships and planes battered harbor installations and shipping in the Aegean Sea to hamper German withdrawals from the Athens area in Greece. A striking force from an aircraft carrier smashed at the island of Leros, near the Turkish coast.

There was no official announcement that the British force that cleaned up the Peloponnesus in whirlwind fashion and seized the city of Corinth had yet completed crossing of the Corinth Isthmus to the Greek mainland. Athens lies near the head of the isthmus, forty miles from Corinth.

Partisans in Albania Clear Germans From Town 2 Miles Inland

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Oct. 12.—Albanian Partisans have cleared German troops from Gjashdle, 2 miles inland from Sarande (Porto Edda), Albanian port opposite Corfu, which British invaders captured yesterday, an Allied communique announced today.

More than 600 prisoners were taken in the area by the forces of the Adriatic. Gi[illegible] which was mopped up before noon yesterday, fell to Partisans who turned a captured artillery piece on the Germans. Many Germans were killed.

Allied headquarters said a considerable quantity of guns and stores was captured in the Sarande area.

The bulletin gave no information on the situation in Greece.

The British destroyers Belvoir and Wilton and two armed landing crafts aided troop operations on the Albanian coast by bombarding enemy batteries Monday, naval headquarters announced. An enemy craft was captured.

Meanwhile, other British naval vessels have been battering harbor installations and shipping in the Aegean to hamper German withdrawals.

British carrier aircraft attacked installations at Porto Largo on Leros Tuesday.

Allied bombers sank a 1,000-ton merchantman in the Gulf of Petali Sunday, hit a siebel ferry and destroyed two locomotives and 20 trucks on the west shore of the Gulf of Salonika in Greece.

R.A.F. HITS MANDALAY

Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 12 A. P.).—British Beaufighters and Mosquito bombers yesterday attacked railway targets at Mandalay and Moulmein and slipping in the Gulf of Artaban, Allied headquarters announced today. The Beaufighters, swooping in on the Moulmein railway yards, shot up rolling stock and damaged three factories, while others ranging over the gulf sank a schooner and damaged three other vessels. One 400-ton craft was set afire.

The Allied command made no mention of developments in land fighting in southeastern India where yesterday the village of Mowdok on the Indo-Burman border was occupied.

JAPS HAMMER FOR KWEILIN

Brisk Fighting Reported 25 Miles From City

Chungking, Oct. 12 (AP)—Brisk fighting is continuing along the Hunan-Kwangsi railway front 25 miles north of Kweilin, vital defense center of Kwangsi province, where reinforced Japanese troops are hammering against Chinese positions, the Chinese high command announced today.

The Japanese attacks were pressed against defense points about 12 miles west of the Japanese-held town of Hingan. This battle is considered by observers as one of considerable importance. If the enemy succeeds in penetrating Chinese lines, he would be in a position to make a frontal attack on Kweilin itself or by-pass the city on the west.

9 Miles From Kweiping

On the Kwangtung-Kwangsi border, Japanese troops moving from Pingnan are now about nine miles south of Kweiping, their objective. Kweiping is 70 miles southeast of Liuchow. Hard fighting is also in progress here, the communique reported.

On the Yunnan front, American fighters and bombers hit Mangshih, Japanese position on the Burma road, twice in the last three days, causing large fires and secondary explosions. A Japanese-held bridge was knocked out and the Burma road was also damaged at a point between Mangshih and Tingka.

Chinese troops occupied a hill five miles southeast of Mangshih and attacked two hills about four miles east of that Japanese-held city.

In the Lungling area, a Chinese patrol forced the enemy from positions just southeast of the city.

Japanese Launch Attack 25 Miles From Kweilin

By the Associated Press.

CHUNGKING, Oct. 12.—Japanese forces have launched an attack on Chinese positions 23 miles north of Kweilin, vital defense center of Kwangsi Province, the Chinese high command announced today.

Fighting along the Hunan-Kwangsi Railway flared suddenly yesterday after the enemy was reinforced. The attacks were thrown against defense positions about 12 miles west of the Japanese-occupied rail town of Hingan and brisk fighting still was in progress this morning.

If the enemy should succeed in breaching this sector he would be in a position to hurl a frontal attack against Kweilin or to bypass the city.

Chinese General Killed in Action

Chungking, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Gen. Wang Cha Pen, 43-year-old Chinese officer, was killed in action September 9 in the battle of Lingling in Hunan province, it was disclosed officially today. Gen. Wang fought at Shanghai in 1937 and later participated in the Hunan battles of Changsha and Changteh.

CHIANG SAYS CHINA WILL KEEP UP FIGHT

Washington, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Genralissimo Chiang Kai-shek assured President Roosevelt today that China, as one of the Allies, will do her utmost to drive the enemy from her shores and help bring about his final collapse. He was replying to a congratulatory message from the White House on China's National Day, celebrated last Tuesday.

The Genralissimo in his message said: "In our present war of resistance, which has already lasted more than seven years, the unbounded sympathy of the American people has always been an unfailing source of encouragement to us. . . . The people of China are deeply indebted to the American nation for her friendship in lending hearty support to China's cause.

"We have the deepest admiration for the prodigious efforts you have made to lay a solid foundation for a better world order and will never cease to strive for the realization of the democratic ideals we have long cherished so as to usher in a new era of peace, freedom and justice for all mankind."

Kizer Is Named As U. N. R. R. A. Head in China

He Plans to Organize Staff in Chungking; Emphasis To Be on Clothing Needs

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (AP).—The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration today announced appointment of Benjamin H. Kizer, of Spokane, Wash., to be head of its office for the China area with headquarters at Chungking.

Mr. Kizer, who is now at his home, will come to Washington before leaving for Chungking, probably in late November.

Mr. Kizer and U. N. R. R. A. officials here will organize the nucleus of a staff for the Chungking office and advance plans for the administration of the U. N. R. R. A.'s part in the relief of China. The Chinese, it was said at U. N. R. R. A. headquarters here, will need particular and immediate assistance in clothing.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek assured President Roosevelt today that China "as one of the Allies will do her utmost to drive the enemy from her shores and help bring about his final collapse." He was replying to a congratulatory message from the White House on China's national day, celebrated last Tuesday.

Lehman Praises Co-operatives

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 (AP).—Herbert H. Lehman, director of the U. N. R. R. A., told the Co-operative Centennial Congress today the "application of the co-operative principles will facilitate the relief and rehabilitation and promote enduring peace." The message from the former New York governor was presented to the congress by Dr. Lincoln Clark, of the U. N. R. R. A. staff.

Dr. Vojta Benes, Senator in the Republic of Czechoslovakia and brother of President Eduard Benes, declared the co-operatives would be one of the first instruments of democracy to be restored in Czechoslovakia.

H. H. Kung, vice-president and finance minister of China, said in a telegram that the prineiples of the co-operative movement "are in harmony with the fundamental philosophy of world commonwealth taught by our great teacher, Confucius. They have proved to be the torchlight of our times and should become the cornerstone of enduring peace and prosperity among nations."

Chinese-Soviet Tie Urged

BALTIMORE, Oct. 12 (AP).—The disarming of Japan and a new mutual-aid relationship between China and the Soviet Union were proposed tonight by Dr. Hu Shih, former Chinese Ambassador to the United States, as essential to an enduring peace in the Far East.

Prefacing his remarks with the disclosure that his "words were written long before publication of the Dumbarton Oaks plan for international organization," Dr. Hu said it "gladdened his heart to think that we can now look forward almost with certainty to the founding of an international order . . . dedicated to the new idea that the organized force of the world must be employed for maintenance of international peace."

Declaring that his statements were not a conjecture of what China might demand at the peace conference, he hinged Oriental peace on two phases—"negatively, to remove all possible sources of friction, and, positively, to support some effective scheme of collective security."

To achieve this dual purpose Dr. Hu proposed also a revision of the status of the colonial areas, the peaceful and democratic development of China and a world-wide system of international government and collective security.

He spoke before the Baltimore Young Men's Christian Association at a celebration of the anniversary of the founding of the Y. M. C. A.

MacArthur Flyers Hit Hardest Blow On Borneo

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Friday, Oct. 13 (AP)—Facilities supplying Japan's war [illegible] with gasoline and oil were wrecked Tuesday at Balikpapan by 135 tons of bombs dropped by fighter-escorted Liberators, and from 36 to 46 enemy planes were shot down trying to break up the heaviest blow of the war at the Borneo base.

A cracking plant was rendered totally, perhaps permanently, inoperable and a paraffin refinery was heavily damaged. Today's communique, announcing the raid, said heavy explosions and fires sent up smoke for 20,000 feet.

Pictures Verify Damage

Storage tanks were [illegible] ablaze. Photographs conclusively verified the destruction.

Thunderbolts preceded the heavies in a midmorning raid, engaging a stronge force of Japanese fighters. Then Lightnings formed close cover while the bombers pushed through intense flak to the target. Three bombers and a fighter of the attacking force were lost.

It was the sixth raid in the recent neutralization campaign against Balikpapan.

Fighters Fly 1,500 Miles

This raid also was the first escorted attack on the Borneo base. Fighter planes flew over 1,500 miles to protect the heavy bombers.

(The Tokyo radio, reporting the raid Wednesday night, said more than 100 Liberators and 30 fighter planes made the assault.]

Thirty-six Japanese fighters were destroyed, with 10 more probably, during Tuesday's raid. American losses were three bombers and one fighter.

BONG BACK IN LEAD

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—Major Richard I. Bong is again America's leading fighter ace with thirty planes to his credit after giving a class under his instruction an unscheduled demonstration on how to shoot down Japanese planes.

The Poplar, Wis., Army flyer is a gunnery instructor who is not supposed to be fighting. But he went into action again when a class he was leading was jumped by more than twenty Zeros. He shot down two.

Sydney Newspaper Workers Ordered To Return To Jobs

Sydney, Australia, Friday, Oct. 13 (AP)—Sydney may have its regular daily newspapers back in circulation next week.

It has been nearly a week since this greatest city in Australia has seen one of its regular daily newspapers because of what was described as a "minor dispute" between the printers and publisher of the Sydney Sun.

But it developed into something serious.

Backed By Other Papers

Proprietors of other Sydney newspapers decided to support the Sun publishers by suspending publication in favor of a composite newspaper. Some mechanical staffs and writers were dismissed or suspended for refusing to work for the composite publication.

The non-working printers and newsmen then began publication of a 12-page tabloid through an arrangement with the Australian Labor party's weekly Standard.

Yesterday the printers were ordered back to work by the South Wales Industrial Commission, but there was no indication the men would comply before next week. Meanwhile the dispute between the publishers and those publishing the tabloid goes on.

Writers Claim Lockout

The journalists were called strikers by the publishers' association, while the newsmen claimed they were locked out.

Charges that the journalists' tabloid was operating without a license and that Australian Federal and local governments were encouraging the dismissed men in the dispute were hurled by the publishers. They also criticized the Government for banning reporters of the composite paper from entering the gallery in Parliament for two days.

Japs Admit East Indies Barred To Their Ships

Melbourne, Oct. 12—Japanese surface shipping has been driven out of the waters surrounding the Netherlands East Indies archipelago, the Tokyo radio bluntly told its listeners today in a broadcast recorded by the Ameta listening post here.

Japanese submarines have been diverted to sneaking supplies through to isolated outposts since the American invasion of Guadalcanal in August, 1942, the broadcast said.

Eggleston Succeeds Dixon as Envoy Here

By the Associated Press.

CANBERRA, Australia, Oct. 12.—Sir Frederic Eggleston, former Minister to Chungking, was appointed today as Australian Minister to the United States. He will fill the vacancy created by the retirement of Sir Owen Dixon, who has served since 1942.

Sir Frederic returned from China on leave beginning this year, after serving three years in China.

Uruguay Emphasizes Solidarity With Allies

Montevideo, Oct. 12 (AP)—More than 100,000 Uruguayans led by President Juan Jose Amezaga and his cabinet joined in a demonstration tonight of Uruguay's solidarity with the United Nations.

Huge columns formed in down town Montevideo and then marched to Congressional Palace where they were addressed by the President. One column was led by a group of Argentine political exiles, who were cheered by the crowd.

Minister Of Interior Becomes Chile Head

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 12 (AP)—Alfonso Quintana Burgos, 52, Minister of Interior, became acting President of Chile today, repl

President Juan Antonio Rios, who is entering a hospital for treatment of stomach ulcers.

A physicians' bulletin said the President's "general health is very good," despite the ulcers. Burgos assumed the title of Vice-President to become acting chief executive.

Canadian Dynamite Ship Sunk In Fog

Vancouver, B. C., Oct. 12 (Canadian Press)—A dynamite-laden ship sank in a fog off Point Grey early today after being rammed by the Canadian Pacific steamships passenger boat Princess Joan. The freighter, the Squid, carrying 400 cases of dynamite, went down in ten minutes. Her five-man crew escaped to the Princess Joan. There was no explosion.

The Squid was operated by Frank Waterhouse & Co., of Vancouver, and was valued at between $12,000 and $15,000.

PRESIDENT SAYS PEACE CHARTER MUST SPEED UP

Roosevelt Warns That It Is Necessary Foundations Be Laid Without Delay.

ELASTIC FRAMEWORK STRESSED

Provisions Must Be Adaptable to Changing World Conditions, Executive Asserts.

Washington, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt said today it is this nation's "objective to establish the solid foundations of the peace organization without further delay, and without waiting for the end of hostilities."

"Substantial progress has already been made "and it must be continued as rapidly as possible," Mr. Roosevelt said in a radio address prepared for delivery at the White House before the chiefs of the diplomatic missions of other American republics.

There must be time for thorough discussion of the peace organization by "all the peace-loving nations—large and small," Mr. Roosevelt said, adding that the charter of the United Nations, like the United States construction, must be adaptable to changing world conditions.

The President, speaking on the occasion of Columbus Day, asserted that "we shall do well to remember that we are the inheritors of the tradition of Christopher Columbus. . . .We shall require the same determination, the same devotion, as we steer our course through the great age of exploration and discovery which lies before us."

Nazi Deception Failed.

Mr. Roosevelt said the Fascists and Nazis tried to deceive and divide the American republics not only through propaganda but through fifth columnists operating in the western hemisphere.

"But they failed," he continued. "The people of the United States will never forget how the other American republics, acting in accord with their pledges of solidarity, rallied to our common defense when the continent was violated by Axis treachery in an attack on this country."

"We have maintained the solidarity of the governments of all the American republics—except one," he said in an obvious reference to Argentina, "and the people of all of the republics will have the opportunity to share in the achievement of the common victory."

Alone among the western hemisphere republics, Argentina was omitted from the diplomatic guest list for today's White House Columbus Day observance. The United States does not maintain relations with the present regime in Buenos Aires, which the President recently denounced for what he termed the growth of Nazi-Fascist influences in the Argentine.

Asserting that the bonds between the American republics must remain strong, Mr. Roosevelt cautioned against "any period of post-war indifference" which he said would weaken the New World system of security and co-operation.

The inter-American system, he went on, must play a strong role within the framework of the coming peace organization of the United Nations.

"I know that Secretary Hull, and Under-Secretary Stettinius who led the United States delegation at Dumbarton Oaks are looking forward to further exchanges of views with our good neighbors (the American republics) before the meeting of the general conference to establish the world organization," he said. "We must press forward to bring into existence this world organization to maintain peace and security.

"There is no time to lose."

Must Speed Measures.

Mr. Roosevelt said the margin between the old warld and the new is growing constantly narrower, making it necessary to speed measures to prevent another world war. Without them "the lands of the Western Hemisphere would be as vulnerable to attack from Europe and Asia as were the island of Crete and the Philippine Islands five years ago," he said.

"It is a significant fact that today in Italy, the homeland of Columbus, forces from many parts of this hemisphere and from many distant parts of the civilized world are fighting for freedom against the German threat of medieval tyranny."

Serving the Allied armies in Italy, he continued, are men from the United States, Great Britain and France as well as "strong, well-trained, well-equipped forces from Brazil."

NAZI REPARATIONS SOUGHT BY DUTCH

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP) Dr. Hubertus Van Mook, Netherlands minister of overseas territories, put in a claim tonight for reparations in kind from Germany not only for spoiled lands and looted materials but also "for the abor they enslaved."

In an address prepared for broadcast over the Mutual network, Dr. Van Mook attributed to the Nazis a drive for "systematic destruction of the fabric of [the Netherlands'] economic existence." He asserted the Dutch right to "exact some reparation from Germany," and added:

"I know that the Nazi blight has been so terrible that none of us can expect anything like full restitution from that evil country. But there should be a possibility of acquiring some compensation in kind for the land they spoiled, for the materials they looted, and—maybe—for the labor they enslaved."

He did not expand the point or make it fully clear whether he meant forced German labor.

With reference to overseas territories, Dr. Van Mook said his country will continue, after the defeat of Germany, the fight against Japan. He said the "age of exploitation is gone" but the East Indies still need help, after the Japanese are expelled, to prepare themselves for self government.

a young man born in Oakland, Calif., and a young woman born in Sacramento.

The man, Fred T. Korematsu, asked the high tribunal to rule on validity of evacuation orders which resulted in his being placed in a war relocation authority center at Topaz, Utah. The woman, Miss Mitsue Endo, demands freedom from the same center and a court declaration that she has the right to go wherever she pleases.

The court was told that there is no question of the loyalty of either to the United States, and that there was no evidence involving any Japanese-American citizen in espionage or sabotage on the West coast.

The cases arose from a proclamation by Lt. Gen. J. L. DeWitt excluding persons of Japanese ancestry from certain West coast areas.

Attorneys for Korematsu argued that neither Congress nor the President intended such action and said that only in Nazi Germany could a similar "imprisonment program" be found.

Counsel for Miss Endo contended that the only legal ground for her detention was "implied authority" said to be conferred by Congress and the President. He said she had been told she may leave the camp if she does not return to California or several other West Coast states. But she refuses to leave unless she can go to her home.

"Does that imply," demanded Chief Justice Stone, "that she will be loyal in one place, and not loyal in another?"

Solicitor General Charles Fahy urged the court to consider circumstances involved in the cases in the light of sacrifices made by millions of other citizens so far in the war.

"Many persons have been re-

Legality of Evacuating Citizens Of Jap Ancestry Being Studied

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 — (AP) The Supreme court took to its conference room today for decision one of the most complicated legal problems faced by the government since Pearl Harbor—the constitutionality of evacuating and confining American citizens of Japanese ancestry.

The justices listened through five hours of argument and fired pointed questions frequently at attorneys as they developed unique legal points involved in appeals of

Navy Women To Serve in Hawaii

Washington, Oct. 12 (A. P.).—First women's reserve officers of the Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Corps to be assigned to overseas duty will depart soon, the Navy said today, for duty in Hawaii.

They include two representatives each of the Waves, Spars and women Marines, and are assigned to survey housing conditions in preparations for billeting of women's reserve personnel in the Hawaiian Islands.

Stimson Omits Weekly Army Casualty Report

By the Associated Press.

Secretary of War Stimson omitted his weekly report on Army casualties today, explaining that the system of compiling the figures is being revised.

He said the present method has not been sufficiently up to date to meet requirements and "We are now taking care of that."

Foreign Policy Group Says Security Council Could Be Dictatorship

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The Foreign Policy Association, which President Roosevelt is scheduled to address here October 21, said in a bulletin last night that the world organization proposed by the Dumbarton Oaks conference "could easily be transformed into a dictatorship of the four great powers."

"Russia's reluctance," it added, "to accept a proposal that a great power charged with aggression should abstain from voting when its case is considered by the security council will be interpreted by small nations as a portent of aggressive action."

Two "Blank" Spots Cited.

The bulletin, prepared by Vera M. Dean, the association's research director, said there were two chief "blank spots" in the proposed organization:

"First, whether a permanent member will have the right to vote when charged with aggression, and second, the agreement by which members will specify the armed forces they will place at the disposal of the United Nations organization."

Declaring both questions involved the issue of sovereignty and that both could be expected to cause far-reaching discussion, especially in the United States, the bulletin continued:

Peace Could Be Excuse.

"The feature of the proposed organization which will concern the general public most is that it could easily be transformed into a dictatorship of the four great powers—on the plea of preserving peace—could enforce their will on weaker nations."

The bulletin said this possibility was strengthened by regional security arrangements which could be interpreted by great powers in such a way that adjoining areas would become "spheres of influence under another name."

"But it may be just as well," the bulletin said, "that the United Nations charter raises no high hopes and does not lend itself to sentimental oratory about eternal peace.

"For we must never forget that the alternative to at least some kind of international organization, no matter how inadequate, is a policy of each one for himself and the devil take the hindmost—whose predictable outcome is another world war."

Air Line Plans U. S.-Argentina 1-Day Service

New High-Speed Routes for South America Travel Are Submitted to C. A. B.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (AP).—Post-war plans for high-speed air service to major cities of South America from both New York and Los Angeles were presented today to a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing on future Latin-American routes.

Western Air Lines, Inc., proposed a "short-cut" flight from Los Angeles to Mexico City, the Panama Canal Zone, Buenos Aires and Rio de Janeiro, and Pan-American-Grace Airways requested a new route from Balboa to Buenos Aires, which it forecast would cut flying time between New York and the Argentine capital from three and one-half days to less than twenty-three hours.

Leo K. Dwergkotte, executive vice-president of Western, said the line's proposed route would make Los Angeles a major gateway to the traffic crossroads of the hemisphere at Balboa, Canal Zone and to the chief commercial triangle of South America, including Asuncion, Paraguay; Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo, Uruguay, and Buenos Aires.

Proposed fares on the Western routes from Los Angeles: To Mexico City, $79.20; Balboa, $169.92; Buenos Aires, $485.01, and Rio, $511.56. Flying time to Balboa was estimated at seventeen hours and to Rio thirty-five hours and forty-six minutes.

Western opposed Los Angeles-Mexico City service, which has been proposed to the board by American Airlines and Pan American Airways. Western spokesmen said their company's route via La Paz, Lower California, is 190 miles shorter than the proposed American flight, and contended Pan American should not be allowed to parallel the present route of its subsidiary, Clo Mexicana de Aviacion.

Western's route: Los Angeles, La Paz, Mexico City, Central America, Panama Canal Zone, Bogota, Colombia; Quito, Ecuador; Cobija, Bolivia; Santa Cruz, Bolivia; Asuncion, Paraguay; Buenos Aires, Montevideo, Porto Alegre, Sao Paulo and Rio.

Passengers from New York, flying by Pan American Airways or another connecting carrier to Balboa, northern terminal of the Panagra system, could reach Guayaquil, Ecuador, in twelve hours; Lima, Peru, in fifteen hours, and Santiago, Chile, in twenty-two hours.

Harold J. Roig, Panagra president, told the board his company plans a 25 per cent cut in passenger fares and air express tariffs on the route.

Applications of four domestic air lines and a steamship company to extend air service to the West Coast of South America were opposed by Panagra. Competition of other American companies, Mr. Roig said, would result in losses of capital, government subsidies and national prestige.

AIR LINE ASKS U. S. AID

Washington, Oct. 12 (A P.).—Pan American-Grace Airways opposed today applications by five American companies to inaugurate air service to the west coast of South America and asked undivided support by the United States Government of its own post-war development program.

Panagra's president, Harold J. Roig, opening the concern's case before a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing on future Latin American routes, urged that his company be considered "an instrumentality of national policy" in good neighbor relations.

Domestic applicants opposed by Panagra are Braniff Airways, Colonial Air Lines, Chicago & Southern Airlines, Western Airlines and Moore-McCormack lines.

Defends Moving Japanese

Fahy Asks Court to Weigh Legality Against Hardships of Millions

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 (AP).—Solicitor General Charles Fahy asked the Supreme Court today to consider evacuation orders, under which thousands of persons of Japanese descent were removed from the west coast, in the light of sacrifices already made by millions of citizens in the war effort.

He argued the government's side of a case to test constitutionality of evacuation orders which resulted in Fred Toyosaburo Korematsu being removed from his home in San Leandro, Calif., to a relocation center in Utah. Korematsu was born in Oakland, Calif., of parents who were nationals of Japan. His attorney told the court yesterday that his loyalty to the United States is unquestioned.

Mr. Fahy reported about 112,000 persons had been affected by relocation orders, of whom about 60,000 are American citizens.

Ballot 'Censorship' Called 'Infinitesimal'

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, said today there had been an "infinitesimal" number of reports of military censors inspecting servicemen's election ballots. He added that the number indicated the ballots were inspected "through accident or mistake" and "not by design."

Of more than 4,000,000 ballots sent overseas by the States, plus thousands of Federal election blanks, Stimson told a news conference, only 268 reports have been received by the War and Navy departments of even the outer envelope being stamped by army and navy censors. In just two instances, he said, was the inner envelope of an army ballot opened.

Reports have been heard in Congress and elsewhere recently that military censors were inspecting ballots along with all other mail. Stimson previously had said the ballots were not subject to censorship.

SECURITY PLAN SEEN HELPING AMERICAS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP) Undersecretary of State Stettinius declared today that the plan drawn up at Dumbarton Oaks to enforce world peace will in effect "enhance the position" of the Inter-American system.

Stettinius told representatives of all the American Republics except Argentina that he and Secretary of State Hull are anxious to exchange views on the Dumbarton Oaks proposals with diplomats of the neighboring countries.

He spoke at a reception for the Latin American ambassadors and Charge d'Affairs at Blair House in celebration of Columbus Day.

ATTORNEY CHECKS STATLER BRAWL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 — (AP) The Senate Campaign Expenditure committee sent its attorney, Robert T. Murphy, to New York city today to ask Daniel J. Tobin, president, and other officials of the AFL Teamsters' union about the "battle of the Statler."

Chairman Green (D-RI) announced that Murphy left for New York after failing in efforts to reach Tobin by telephone to learn if he was in Union Headquarters and available for questioning.

The committee is conducting a preliminary inquiry into the fistic encounter between two Navy officers and a group of unidentified men the night of September 23 following a political address by President Roosevelt to a Teamsters' meeting at the Statler hotel. The Navy men said the fight developed when they objected to questions as to whether they would vote for the commander-in-chief.

Asked if the committee had been given assurances of cooperation by the Union, Green replied: "That's about all we have got."

He said that the assurances had come earlier in the investigation "either from Mr. Tobin or someone on behalf of Mr. Tobin—I don't remember — but since no statement from the Union was forthcoming, it was decided to send Murphy in quest of the Union's version of the episode."

BOWLES DECLARES COUNTRY FACES BIG INFLATION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP) Price Administrator Chester Bowles said tonight that this country "has all the makings of an inflation and eventual collapse on a far greater scale" than occurred after the last war.

"The whole tempo of our economy is stepped up to a far higher and potentially more dangerous level," he said in a speech prepared for delivery before the Washington Board of Trade.

"The answer lies in a wholly new concept of America. It is a concept in which everyone has a part to play. It cannot be done alone by any one group. We will need the close cooperation of our farmers, workers, businessmen and government."

He said farmers must prosper if they are to provide huge markets for manufactured goods, and "our workers must be assured of high wage levels and high relative purchasing power to buy the products of mass production."

"Business must prosper," he continued. "Our national economy can not be run without profits. This means that we must encourage competitive free enterprise in every possible way. It means there must be a sufficiently high level of total capital investment to keep our whole economy in balance and provide full employment."

Such a program, Bowles stated, calls for a tax policy for reconversion and the post war period "which will encourage investment of risk capital and discourage the hoarding of savings by either corporations or individuals."

ROOSEVELT TO GET LABOR REQUEST TO BOOST WAGES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 — (AP) Labor members of the War Labor Board laid plans today to take directly to President Roosevelt recommendations for an immediate revision of the "Little Steel" formula to permit upward boosts in wages.

They agreed on this procedure, but R. J. Thomas, president of the C.I.O. United Automobile workers, said they were trying to work out something on paper before seeking a White House conference.

Information came from a principal White House adviser, however, that the administration would not risk a change in basic wage policy until victory in Europe is clearly in sight and production cutbacks relieve some of the pressures and bidding for manpower.

Meantime, public members of the WLB went into a huddle to draft a proposed factual report to the President without recommendations. It was decided to recess discussions of the issue of wages vs. living costs until Tuesday when the public members expect to have a first report prepared for the consideration of the full board.

The decision to send the President only a factual report was reached by an 8 to 4 vote yesterday with public and industry members forming the majority and the labor members of the minority.

Although the WLB is now committed to a report without recommendations, a broad field still remains for controversy over the preparation of that report.

Debate will center on the yardsticks to be use in determining whether living costs have outrun wages and if so, how much. The principals in the controversy cannot agree on how much the cost of living has increased.

Even more controversial is the measurement of wages, that is, whether the yardstick should be base rates, straight time earnings which include incentive payments and merit increases, or gross earnings whic hinclude income from a long work week and overtime.

UMW ARTICLE ASSAILS ICKES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12—(AP) Secretary of the Interior Ickes, who ran counter to War Labor Board policy to negotiate a contract with the United Mine Workers while the coal strike was in progress last November, got nearly a full page of criticism today in the union's official organ. Before and since the UMW case it has been WLB practice to refuse action on labor disputes while men are out.

30. 24— 1951 9

An editorial in the UMW journal assailed Ickes' criticism of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey and then recalled the coal wage dispute in which Ickes played the role of intermediary between the administration and John L. Lewis.

Ickes, the editorial said, "demonstrated over and over again that his fanaticism always played safety first when it came to any real controversy. This was demonstrated in the coal controversy when White House advisors condemned him for negotiating an agreement obviously necessary to keep the mines in operation.

"He whined and cried all over Washington about the injustice being done him. He tried to play in with the Mine Workers officials, but the officials knew 'the Ick' record and they stood him at arm's length at all times."

MAYER RETAINS TOP POSITION ON U.S. SALARY LIST

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12 — (AP) The pay-check f L. B. Mayer, the movie magnate, stiH is tops.

Mayer moved back into his customary first place position today as the Treasury released a supplementary list of 140 persons who received from corporations compensation in excess of $75,000 for personal services in the calendar year 1942 or fiscal year ending in 1943.

Loew's incorporated paid Mayer $1,138,992.47. Of this $104,500 was for salary, the remaining $1,034,492.47 as commission.

The original list, released in July, placed Sidney R. Fleisher, New York attorney, in first place, much to his surprise and apparent chagrin.

Second place in today's list went to producer Walter F. Wanger who received $710,372.03 from Universal Pictures Company, Inc. Nicholas M. Schenck received $512,291.33 from Loew's Incorporated to rank third.

The movie industry figured largely in the supplementary list.

Among those receiving big paychecks from Loew's were: Edward Arnold, $99,583; Wallace Beery, $150,000; Joan Crawford, $194,615; Brian Donlevy, $141,250; Tommy Dorsey, $165,817; Irene Dunne, $200,000; Greer Garson, $159,083; Katherine Hepburn, $110,333; Harry James, $128,559; William Powell, $251,250; Robert Taylor, $176,983; Spencer Tracy, $219,871; Robert Young, $108,500.

Budd Abbott and Lou Costello jointly received $139,625 from Universal Pictures. Other compensation reported by that company included:

Charles Boyer, $80,000; Edna Mae (Deanne) Durbin, $282,250; Ole Oleson and Chic Johnson, $151,795; Randolph Scott, $132,187; Franchot Tone, $101,372.

The list shows the amount paid to officers and employes by reporting corporations in the form of salary, bonus, commission, or other compensation for personal services, but not income from investments, such as bonds or stock. The amounts reported are before payment of taxes.

The Internal Revenue act directs the Secretary of the Treasury to make public the list.

Half Of Naval Reserve Would Stay In Service

Washington, Oct. 12 (AP)—Approximately half of the navy's reserve officers want to remain in the service after the war.

Questionnaires have been sent to all of the 226,000 reserve officers and about 60 per cent. have replied. Of those, 80 per cent.—approximately 48 per cent. of the total—have said they want to remain in the regular navy, it was learned today.

Navy sources said the survey was undertaken in connection with postwar navy plans and that it does not indicate any immediate action on transfers or reservists to regular navy rolls.

JEWISH COMMONWEALTH IN PALESTINE ENDORSED

OCT 13 1943

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 12—(AP) Sumner Welles, former under Secretary of State, Rep. John W. McCormack (D-Mass.), majority leader of the House of Representatives, and Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr. (R.-Mass.), House minority leader, endorsed the establishment of a Jewish commonwealth in Palestine in messages today to delegates assembling for the 47th annual convention of the Zionist organization, which opens here Saturday at the Breakers hotel.

"The record of the Jewish people during the past quarter-century has been outstanding," Welles said. "Their faith and persistence in the face of grave dangers and notwithstanding innumberable obstacles have been superb and a cause for inspiration to all who believe in Democracy and in the principles of human liberty. What they have achieved is in reality a modern miracle."

LEGION HEAD URGES DEWEY'S ELECTION

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 — (AP) Warren H. Atherton, chairman of the War Veterans division of the Republican National committee, tonight attributed what he termed "tragic neglect" of war veterans to the Roosevelt administration and said he believed the election of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey would insure "adequate assistance to the dependents of the war dead and to the war disabled."

Asserting that President Roosevelt had vetoed numerous bills providing aid to veterans, Atherton, a former national commander of the American legion, said in a speech prepared for broadcasting (Mutual) and released by the War Veterans division of the Republican national committee.

"Isn't it strange that President Roosevelt enthusiastically endorsed billions for leaf raking, leftist drama, art, ballet dancing and hay wire orchestras but not one cent for men who fought for their country?"

Atherton said the soldiers and sailors he had visited from Africa to the South Pacific "emphatically demanded a just and lasting peace to follow victory, an American government that exists to serve the people, adequate assistance to the dependents of the war dead and to their comrades disabled in service, and business opportunities and real jobs for the soldiers and sailors who return."

"None of these typically G.I. wants will be obtained by voting for the man who seeks to command the American people for 16 years," he said, asserting that the Republican candidate's record "points the road to world peace, to a free America, to new business and more jobs."

DEWEY REVIEWS COLUMBUS PARADE

NEW YORK, Oct. 12—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, here to register for the November election, reviewed 50,000 marchers in New York's annual Columbus Day parade today and later, after a conference with a Zionist leader, declared himself in favor of "the reconstitution of Palestine as a free and democratic state."

Dewey said in a statement issued after his conference with Dr. Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, chairman of the executive committee of the National Zionist Emergency Council, that "in order to give refuge to millions of distressed Jews driven from their homes by tyranny" he favored "the opening of Palestine to their unlimited immigration and land ownership."

"As President," he said, "I would use my best offices to have our government working together with Great Britain to achieve this great objective for a people that have suffered so much and deserve so much at the hands of mankind."

Dewey was the 671st to register at a polling place in the Automobile Club of America's midtown office. His wife, who also registered, prompted him as he hesitated when the registrar asked the number of his room in the Hotel Roosevelt.

"What, no rush tonight?" he asked when he entered the polling place. "That's swell. It's a welcome relief not to have a hundred people out there."

Arriving in the reviewing stand 15 minutes before the first parade contingent passed, Dewey led the applause when Mayor F. H. LaGuardia appeared at the head of 10,000 city employes. LaGuardia saluted snappily in return. Later the Mayor returned to the reviewing stand and took his place with Dewey and other state and national officials.

Police estimated that 1,000,000 persons watched the parade, which halted at St. Patrick's cathedral for review by dignitaries of the Catholic church. Dewey's classmates, meeting with him at the Ambassador hotel, showed the candidate a bust of himself by Don Curran, New York sculptor. "It's much more attractive than I am," Dewey commented. J. Kingsley Gould, chairman of the University of Michigan alumni committee for Dewey, said the bust would be placed in an appropriate place at the university.

Veteran Correspondent Back In U. S. For Rest

New York, Oct. 12 (AP) — Gault Mac Gowan, the New York Sun's veteran war correspondent, who was captured by the Nazis in France and later escaped, has returned to New York for a brief rest, the Sun announced today.

Mac Gowan covered the London Blitz, the buzz-bomb Blitz, the Dieppe raid, and the North Africa, Sicily, Italy and Europe invasions for the Sun. After a rest, he will return to Europe to cover the Allied victory and reconstruction, the Sun said.

NORMAN THOMAS SEES FASCISM DEVELOPING

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP) Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, predicted today that a strong Fascist movement would develop in the United States within 10 years.

The raw materials for such a movement, he told a press conference, will be unemployment, racial tensions, the question "what did we get out of the war," and the national debt.

Declaring that "the choice of the future will be democratic socialism or totalitarianism," Thomas said he was firmly convinced that the policies of both President Roosevelt and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey "are leading us along the road to a hell of chronic depression and new wars."

Both major party candidates, he added, are "staging a show instead of discussing the issues facing the nation."

"They are arguing," he said, "about the past, about who blundered worse prior to Pearl Harbor."

Thomas, who three times previously has been his party's presidential nominee, said he believed the Socialist would receive their highest vote since 1928 in the 26 states where they are on the ballot.

CANADIAN ENVOY EMPHASIZES NEED FOR ALLIED UNITY

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 12 — (AP) Canadian Ambassador Leighton McCarthy declared tonight that "unless Americans, Britishers and Russians can get along together, there can be no freedom from fear" and urged the great powers to agree on a system of post-war collaboration which he said must include "all peace-loving powers, great and small."

In an address prepared for delivery to the annual founder's day exercises at Carnegie Institute, the ambassador described the Dumbarton Oaks conference as "an encouraging first step" in the effort to create a new world order of security. He continued:

"International economic policies must be agreed to which will be in the general interest and tolerable to the separated and widely differing economic regions of the world.

"A Modus Vivendi must be found under which peoples of different cultures, languages, races and religions can live under the same roof, the dimensions of which are continually shrinking.

"The new world state must be not merely a police state — one which does no more than attempt to maintain order. It must embody a dynamic idea and ideal.

"We know that the task of creating a world order will be tough and endless, that it will involve drudgery as well as drama, that, if the new world order is to grow surely, it must grow slowly."

With reference to Dumbarton Oaks, McCarthy said:

"We know that if those powers can closely co-operate to ensure peace and promote prosperity, the rest of us can look forward to the future with confidence.

"We know also, that if they cannot so co-operate, it will make little difference if the other states swear eternal friendship and sign pacts of mutual defense.

"Let us not deceive ourselves. Unless Americans, Britishers and Russians can get along together, there can be no freedom from fear."

At the Carnegie Institute's exhibition of "painting in the United States, "Room 110," a sophisticated still life work by Yasuo Kuniyoshi of New York, won first prize of $1,000.

Hero Discharged

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., Oct. 12 (AP).—Sergeant Forrest L. Vosler, of Livonia, N. Y., Congressional Medal of Honor winner who lost an eye in aerial combat, has received an honorable discharge and says he "feels like a heel." "I'm getting out but other guys are staying in," he said at Valley Forge General Hospital. Sergeant Vosler won his medal when, badly wounded, he urged bomber crew mates to throw him from a crippled plane to lighten the load. They refused and the plane crashed in the English Channel, where he kept a wounded comrade afloat until help arrived.

TAFT OUTLINES 6-POINT PLAN

GOP Senator Urges 'Progress Without Socialism'

Cincinnati, Oct. 12 (AP)—Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) today outlined a six-point program which he said would return 55,000,000 men and women to work in a country reorganized for peace.

Taft, seeking reelection in November, told the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants that his program would result in resumption of "progress without socialism."

"We have the job of putting 55,000,000 men and women to work," said Taft. "Certainly it cannot be done by any public work program. . . . Our program must be to stimulate and encourage countless individuals to go into new business, enlarge their old business, develop new products and put men to work."

Makes Six Proposals

He proposed that:

"1. The moment the Government cancels a contract, it should remove Government machinery from the plant or sell it to the manufacturer, remove all unnecessary inventory and pay the contractor all that the Government owes him. This should supply the capital necessary for reconversion and enable every business to start on peace manufacture at the earliest possible moment.

OCT 13 1943

"2. We should remove at once all wartime controls regarding prices, wages and priorities, except that in a few cases where the shortage is great these controls might be extended for not more than twelve months.

Would Reduce Regulation

"3. Post-war regulation should be reduced and confined practically to the laws governing labor regulations and requiring fair competition.

"4. Taxes should be reduced, particularly on the lower income groups and on business activity.

"5. The Government must convince the people that it intends hereafter to pay its way as it goes, even though the tax burden will remain heavier than it was before the war.

"6. Eliminate from the Government any bureaucrats who regard every businessman as a crook, and put those in who propose to encourage small business and big business, new business and old business to move ahead with confidence."

Asks Fighting Support

In another departure from text at the close of his remarks, Truman said that with "the greatest age in history approaching," he believed that "Almighty God intends that we should assume the leadership which he intended us to assume in 1920 and which we refused to assume."

In a broadcast to Southern States, he asked for "fighting support" of Roosevelt's flood control policies, asserting "we must not leave the job half done."

"I want to see every farmer and city dweller safe from the ravages of flood, and I want to see them happy and prosperous in the enjoyment of conveniences and labor-saving devices made possible by cheap and abundant power," Truman said.

Must Act Boldly, Fast

These things can be accomplished "if we have the determination and vision to act boldly and fast," he continued, adding:

"This Administration has demonstrated that it has that kind of determination and vision. Its efforts are worthy of fighting support."

Taking the same theme at the association luncheon, he declared that the Roosevelt Administration, recognizing water as "the most valuable of natural resources," will not cease "to fight for the continuation of policies which for the first time in our country's history have been designed to bring the greatest good to the greatest many."

Differences in the Missouri Valley over water control, he said, are "now being reconciled" as they previously were reconciled in the Tennessee river area—"not by sacrifice of the American system of free enterprise—not by the creation of a Wall Street-dominated private monoply—but by the ability of Americans to intelligently determine their common needs and to carry out plans to fulfill them."

Truman Pledges Roosevelt To Back Mississippi Power

OCT 13 1944

New Orleans, Oct. 12 (AP)—Senator Harry S. Truman, Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate, pledged President Roosevelt today to sponsor expanded hydroelectric power and river transportation development in asking "fighting support" for the Administration.

Truman told the Mississippi River Flood Control Association the President's program includes creation of a proposed Missouri Valley Authority which, he said, "will bring new wealth, new opportunity and new security to millions of our people."

"We are hearing much in the present political campaign about 'free enterprise'," he said. "We are being told by those with little experience and with little real knowledge that free enterprise is being stamped out by your Government in Washington."

Will Not Fool The People

He said this "campaign oratory will not fool the people of America" because "free enterprise" is "thriving and healthy" in the area served by the Tennessee Valley Authority, where he said "both big and little business are "booming."

The address, his second of the day, was the last of what he called "non-political" speeches prior to his scheduled departure for the first major political address at Los Angeles Monday on a 7,500-mile transcontinental campaign tour that will carry him to New York for a Madison Square Garden appearance October 31.

After saying that machinery to carry out flood control plans "must be ready when hostilities cease," and that "we no longer can afford to send a boy on a man's errand," Truman departed from his prepared speech to assert:

"And don't forget that on November 7, either."

New Deal Vs. U. S. Clare Luce Topic

St. Louis, Oct. 12 (AP)—Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.) said here tonight that "our choice in this election is either a free people ordering their own destiny or a State bureaucracy pushing us toward a destiny that we do not desire, but are helpless to avert."

Her speech, titled "The New Deal State vs. the United States of America," was given at a mass meeting in Municipal Auditorium's Opera House under sponsorship of the Missouri chapter of Pro-America, Republican women's organization.

The Congresswoman said, "Today our Government is exactly the kind of Government the men who signed the Declaration of Independence and wrote the Constitution planned against."

Asserting that the Federal Government now has more than 3,000,000 civilian employes, one for every 45 citizens, Representative Luce said travel expenses alone last year amounted to "upward of $70,000,000—spent to pay the way of these bureaucrats back and forth, hither and yon through the country."

BRICKER ASSAILS U. S. BUREAUCRACY

EUGENE, Ore., Oct. 12 — (AP) Gov. John W. Bricker declared tonight that "we should not indict the so-called bureaucrats themselves," but rather "the bureaucratic system" in which they are involved.

The Republican candidate for Vice President, concluding a five-speech day in Oregon, took this position in renewing his recommendation for a reorganization and streamlining of Federal government functions.

"This," he said, "is another reason why this nation needs a change of leadership."

At Portland he issued a Columbus Day statement saying, "the people of America are hopeful that the people of Italy, who gave Christopher Columbus to the world will speedily find a cooperative and constructive role in the community of nations and return to the peaceful pursuits which heretofore have made them a great force in world progress."

At a press conference Bricker said if there was any religious issue in the campaign, it had "been injected by the opposition." His statement was prompted by a newspaperman's report that House Majority Leader McCormack last night accused Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of injecting a "vicious religious issue" into the campaign.

Any such accusation, Bricker declared, is "the cheapest kind of lowdown demagoguery."

Crew Of U. S. S. Nevada Given Chest Of Silver

San Francisco, Oct. 12 (AP)—A magnesium chest containing 2,368 silver dollars, was en route today to the crew of the U. S. S. Nevada, the gift of residents of the State for which the battleship was named.

The chest was made at Las Vegas from magnesium mined in Nevada, and the silver dollars were coined in the old mint at Carson City.

The gift, a tribute to the heroic exploits of the battleship crew, was brought here by plane by Lieut. J. F. Kievit, of Reno, who is returning to the U. S. S. Nevada after a 20-day leave. The chest was presented to him by Gov. E. P. Carville.

A SMALL FORCE OF FLYING FORTRESSES STRUCK AT THE RHINE..D CITIES OF COBLENZ AND COLOGNE YESTERDAY AND RAF LANCASTERS HIT OBJECTIVES IN HOLLAND. A COMMUNIQUE SAID HEAVY CLOUDS NECESSITATED THE USE OF SPECIAL INSTRUMENTS TO GET THE BOMBS AWAY--A TECHNIQUE APPARENTLY NOT ADAPTED FOR HIGH ALTITUDE BOMBING OVER A COMPARATIVELY SMALL TARGET AREA LIKE AACHEN--ESPECIALLY WHEN IT IS VIRTUALLY RINGED BY U.S. TROOPS.

AS MANY AS 300 OF THE FASTER AMERICAN FIGHTERBOMBERS, HOWEVER, SLASHED AND CUT AT THE BURNING AND DOOMED GERMAN CITY LATE YESTERDAY, TURNING BOTH THEIR BOMBS AND GUNS ON ENEMY REINFORCEMENTS ATTEMPTING TO SLIP IN FROM THE NORTHEAST.

THE FIGHTERBOMBERS AND 200 OR MORE HEAVY ARTILLERY PIECES PUNISHED THE CITY WITH FIRE AND STEEL FOR FIVE HOURS JUST BEFORE DUSK.

FIELD DISPATCHES LAST NIGHT SAID ENORMOUS FIRES RAGED UNCONTROLLED IN THE HEART OF THE 1,100-YEAR-OLD CITY. NO WATER AND NO POWER WERE AVAILABLE TO FIGHT THE FLAMES.

AS THE FIRES LIGHTED UP THE SKIES SOME CIVILIANS AND NAZI TROOPS TRIED TO FLEE TO THE AMERICAN LINES, BUT SOME WERE SHOT IN THE BACK BY STORM TROOPERS.

MEANWHILE, CANADIAN TROOPS IN BELGIUM AND HOLLAND REPORTED PROGRESS IN THE DRIVES TO CLEAR UP THE COASTAL SECTIONS AND OPEN ANTWERP AS A MAJOR SUPPLY PORT FOR THE WESTERN FRONT. THE GERMANS THERE, HOWEVER, HAVE BEEN TOLD THAT THEIR EFFORTS CAN BE AMONG THE MOST DECISIVE OF THE WESTERN FRONT WAR AND ARE FIGHTING WITH FANATICAL ZEAL.

ADVANCES ON THE U.S. THIRD ARMY FRONT WERE VIRTUALLY FOOT BY FOOT. THERE WAS NO NEW REPORT ON THE SITUATION BEFORE THE BELFORT GAP WHERE THE FRENCH FIRST ARMY IS TRYING TO BREAK INTO GERMANY.

HUNDREDS OF AMERICAN BOMBER CREWS THAT HAD BEEN ALERTED FOR POSSIBLE PARTICIPATION IN THE ANNIHILATION OF AACHEN STILL WERE STANDING BY. THE HEAVY BOMBERS WILL NOT BE CALLED IN UNLESS THE WEATHER IS PERFECT FOR VISUAL BOMBING. AMERICAN TROOPS ARE DUG IN TOO CLOSE AROUND THE CITY RO RUN ANY RISKS.

LONDON, OCT 12-(AP)-"BRITAIN'S EFFORT IN CIVIL AVIATION MUST PARALLEL THE IMMENSE EFFORT BEING MADE BY AMERICA," LORD BEAVERBROOK, MAKING ONE OF HIS LAST APPEARANCES AS MINISTER IN CHARGE OF CIVIL AVIATION, TOLD THE HOUSE OF LORDS TODAY.

"DESIGNS MUST BE GOOD ENOUGH, PRODUCTION MUST BE BIG ENOUGH TO INSURE FOR BRITAIN A FAIR SHARE OF THE WORLD MARKET FOR CIVIL AVIATION," BEAVERBROOK SAID.

HE DISCLOSED THAT THE NEW AVIATION MINISTER, LORD SWINTON, WAS HAVE CABINET RANK AND WILL GO AHEAD ON PLANNING AT ONCE TO PROVIDE FOR GIVING THE GREATEST EMPLOYMENT IN CIVIL AVIATION IN AIRCRAFT FACTORIES.

BEAVERBROOK SAID THAT THE POLICY WHICH THE GOVERNMENT WILL PROPOSE AT THE COMING CHICAGO AVIATION CONFERENCE WILL BE INTERNATIONAL CONTROL.

BEAVERBROOK'S REMARKS WERE MADE DURING A HOUSE OF LORDS DEBATE ON POSTWAR AVIATION DURING WHICH A BRITISH RAILWAYS PLAN FOR AN AIR TRANSPORTATION NETWORK OPERATING THROUGHOUT EUROPE AND BRITAIN WAS DISCLOSED AND THE MARQUESS OF LONDONDERRY CALLED ATTENTION TO BRITAIN'S LACK OF AIRMINDEDNESS.

OCT 13 1944

THE PROPOSAL, ALREADY SUBMITTED TO THE GOVERNMENT, CALLS FOR THE OPERATION OF 19 LINES WITHIN THE BRITISH ISLES ALONE AND CONTEMPLATES FLYING 20,000,000 MILES ANNUALLY AT THE BEGINNING OF THE PROGRAM, WITH PROGRESSIVE INCREASES.

A NEW COMPANY WOULD BE FORMED TO OPERATE ALL THE AIR ROUTES WITHOUT SUBSIDY UNDER THE PLAN AND PARTNERSHIP WOULD BE OFFERED TO AIR OPERATORS AND SHIPPING INTERESTS WHICH HAD REGULAR SURFACE ROUTES BEFOR THE WAR. THE RAILROADS PROGRAM WOULD PROVIDE THE PUBLIC WITH LAND, SEA OR AIR TRAVEL.

LORD LONDONDERRY, ASSERTING THAT AIR ACTIVITIES OF AMERICA WERE PROGRESSING ON A PRODIGIOUS SCALE, EMPHASIZED THE VITAL IMPORTANCE OF BRITAIN'S PLAYING A LEADING ROLE IN THE AIR.

"WE SHALL FIND WHEN THIS WAR COMES TO AN END," HE SAID, "THE LINES FROM AMERICA RADIATING THROUGHOUT THE UNIVERSE. IF WE HAVE TO SAY WE HAVE NO MACHINES, WE STARTED LATE IN THE RACE, THEN WE SHALL FIND THE DOMINIONS WILL SPEAK TO US IN TERMS WHICH WE MAY NOT UNDERSTAND."

LORD BEAVERBROOK BROKE INTO THE DEBATE, STATING THAT THE GOVERNMENT HAD RECENTLY APPOINTED LORD SWINTON MINISTER OF CIVIL AVIATION AND CREATED MACHINERY LIKELY TO GIVE SATISFACTORY RESULTS IN THE FIELD.

"CIVIL AVIATION IN OUR VIEW," HE SAID, "HAS AN IMMENSE FUTURE--AS GREAT AS THAT OF THE MOTOR CAR INDUSTRY IN 1910."

LORD CHATFIELD ENTERED THE DEBATE BY ASSERTING THAT ALTHOUGH THE GOVERNMENT HAD IGNORED A SHIPPING LINES' OFFER TO OPERATE A SOUTH AMERICAN SERVICE, PAN-AMERICAN AIRWAYS HAD INAUGURATED A SERVICE BY WAY OF BRAZIL TO THE BELGIAN CONGO AND THAT A BELGIAN COMPANY WAS FLYING FROM THE CONGO TO BRITAIN.

"THUS IT WOULD APPEAR THAT AT A TIME WHEN ANY EXPANSION OF BRITISH COMMERCIAL ENTERPRISE IS RIGIDLY RESTRICTED AND PROFITING BY OUR HOPELESS INDECISION, OUR AMERICAN FRIENDS HAVE ALREADY QUIETLY ESTABLISHED A CONNECTION BY AIR BETWEEN SOUTH AMERICA AND THIS COUNTRY."

LONDON, OCT 12-(AP)-A FRANK UNDERSTANDING BETWEEN RUSSIA AND BRITAIN IN DEALING WITH THE BALKANS AND POLAND--TWO POTENTIAL THREATS TO ALLIED UNITY--APPEARED TODAY TO BE EMERGING FROM THE CONFERENCES OF PREMIER STALIN AND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL IN MOSCOW.

INDICATIONS OF UNITY OF PURPOSE IN DEALING WITH THE BALKAN SITUATION DEVELOPED LAST NIGHT WHEN MOSCOW ANNOUNCED THAT BULGARIA HAD ACCEPTED PRELIMINARY ARMISTICE CONDITIONS AGREED UPON BY THE ALLIES AND HAD PROMISED TO EVACUATE WITHIN TWO WEEKS TERRITORY SEIZED FROM GREECE AND YUGOSLAVIA.

THE TWO RIVAL POLISH POLITICAL FACTIONS WERE CALLED TO SIT AT THE SAME CONFERENCE TABLE WITH STALIN AND CHURCHILL SERVING AS INTERMEDIARIES. THE LAST OBSTACLES TO A MEETING APPARENTLY WERE REMOVED WITH THE DISCLOSURE THAT LEADERS OF THE SOVIET-SPONSORED POLISH COMMITTEE OF NATIONAL LIBERATION HAD ARRIVED IN MOSCOW AND THAT PREMIER STANISLAW MIKLOAJCZYK OF THE EXILE GOVERNMENT IN LONDON WAS READY TO FLY THERE.

THESE DEVELOPMENTS WERE GREETED WITH APPLAUSE IN LONDON, WHERE IT WAS GENERALLY BELIEVED THAT CHURCHILL'S HURRIED TRIP TO MOSCOW WAS MAINLY CONCERNED WITH PREVENTING ANY CLASH OF SOVIET AND BRITISH INTERESTS OVER THE BALKANS OR POLAND WHILE LEAVING THE QUESTION OF GERMANY TO THREE-WAY CONFERENCES LATER WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

PROSPECTS OF SETTLEMENT OF THE POLISH DISPUTE WERE ESPECIALLY WELCOME TO BRITONS, WHO HAVE ADMITTEDLY BEEN ALARMED AT THE IDEA OF A DIVIDED POLAND. SAID THE BRITISH LABOR PARTY ORGAN, THE DAILY HERALD:

"AN ANGLO-SOVIET-POLISH AGREEMENT WOULD PROVIDE THE CORNERSTONE FOR SOLID RELATIONS BETWEEN OURSELVES AND OUR GREAT ALLY IN THE EAST."

THE ANNOUNCEMENT CONCERNING BULGARIA'S ACCEPTANCE OF PRELIMINARY ARMISTICE CONDITIONS SAID WITHDRAWAL OF BULGARIAN TROOPS FROM GREEK AND YUGOSLAV SOIL WOULD BE SUPERVISED BY A TRI-PARTITE MILITARY COMMISSION UNDER THE CHAIRMANSHIP OF A RUSSIAN REPRESENTATIVE.

THE EVACUATION MUST START IMMEDIATELY, AND FINAL ARMISTICE CONDITIONS FOR BULGARIA WILL NOT BE SETTLED UNTIL IT IS COMPLETED, THE ANNOUNCEMENT ADDED.

THE ALLIED GOVERNMENTS, THROUGH THE EUROPEAN ADVISORY COMMISSION, HAVE BEEN CONSIDERING THESE ARMISTICE CONDITIONS SINCE SEPT. 9, WHEN THE RUSSIANS ENDED HOSTILITIES AGAINST THE BULGARIANS AFTER A ONE-DAY WAR.

THE WITHDRAWAL DEMAND GOES NOT APPLY TO BULGARIAN TROOPS FIGHTING IN YUGOSLAVIA IN COOPERATION WITH THE RUSSIANS AND MARSHAL TITO, YUGOSLAV PARTISAN LEADER.

IT WAS UNDERSTOOD HERE, INCIDENTALLY, THAT TITO PROBABLY WILL GO TO MOSCOW SHORTLY, POSSIBLY BEFORE CHURCHILL LEAVES, FOR JOINT POLITICAL AND MILITARY DISCUSSIONS.

OUTSIDE AACHEN, OCT 12-(AP)-AMERICAN INFANTRY FOUGHT INTO THE FACTORY DISTRICT ON THE OUTSKIRTS OF AACHEN LATE TODAY WHILE TO THE NORTH FOOT TROOPS AND ARMOR BEAT OFF A DAYLONG COUNTERATTACK BY THE GERMANS WHO WERE SUPPORTED BY 20 TO 25 TANKS.

THE GERMANS HAVE THROWN ONE OF THEIR FINEST DIVISIONS INTO THE BATTLE IN A DESPERATE, BUT SO FAR ABORTIVE, ATTEMPT TO RELIEVE OR REINFORCE THE AACHEN GARRISON. GERMAN TROOPS INSIDE THE WRECKED AND BURNING CITY WERE BEING BATTERED FROM THE LAND AND AIR.

EVERY COUNTERTHRUST HAS BEEN BEATEN BACK UNDER A BARRAGE OF HEAVY ARTILLERY.

THE CORRIDOR IN THE AMERICAN ARC ABOUT THE CITY STILL IS ABOUT A MILE WIDE AND IT IS UNDER ARTILLERY AND SMALL ARMS FIRMS.

"NOTHING HAS COME THROUGH THAT CORRIDOR IN ANY SIZE IN ANY DIRECTION," A HIGH RANKING OFFICER SAID. "CERTAINLY THE GERMANS HAVE NOT, AND ARE NOT EVACUATING AACHEN. TRY TO TELL THAT TO THE BOYS UP THERE WHO ARE DOING THE FIGHTING FOR AACHEN, AND GIVE THEM A LAUGH."

INSIDE THE BOMB-POCKED CITY, THE DEFENDERS STILL WERE FIGHTING TO HOLD ONTO THEIR POSITIONS. ORDERED BY HITLER TO FIGHT TO THE DEATH, THEY IGNORED AN ULTIMATUM WHICH GAVE THEM THE CHOICE OF SURRENDER OR DESTRUCTION. AND NOW THE ATTACK IS UNDERWAY TO DESTROY THEM.

THE AMERICANS ARE NOT IN THE MAIN PART OF AACHEN. THEY ARE METHODICALLY CLEANING UP THE OUTLYING FACTORY DISTRICT, BUILDING BY BUILDING, AND GETTING INTO POSITION FOR AN ASSAULT ON THE MAIN PART OF THE TOWN.

OCT 13 1944

THE GERMANS' DAYLONG COUNTERATTACK WAS IN THE BARDENBURG AREA, SIX MILES NORTH OF AACHEN, WHICH HAS BEEN THE SCENE OF SOME OF THE HEAVIEST FIGHTING INSIDE GERMANY. THERE THE FOE HAS THROWN IN ATTACK AFTER ATTACK IN A FRANTIC EFFORT TO SHATTER THE FORCE OF THE ADVANCE WHICH BROKE THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED LINE ON THE NORTH. THE AMERICANS GAVE NO GROUND UNDER THIS ASSAULT AND LATE IN THE AFTERNOON HAD CONTAINED IT.

IN THE GERMETER AREA, 11 MILES SOUTHEAST OF AACHEN, THE AMERICANS WERE FORCED TO FALL BACK IN THE HURTGEN FOREST UNDER A FIERCE COUNTERATTACK BY NAZI INFANTRY. THIS WAS A LOCALIZED ACTION. THE DEPTH OF THE WITHDRAWAL WAS NOT REPORTED BY ARMY HEADQUARTERS, BUT AN OFFICER INDICATED IT WAS NOT CONSIDERED SERIOUS.

AMERICAN FIGHTERS AND BOMBERS RETURNED TO AACHEN AND RESUMED BOMBING AND STRAFING OF THE CITY. SWEEPING OVER IN WAVES AT 15-MINUTE INTERVALS, THE AIRMEN BLASTED AACHEN'S OUTER DEFENSES, INCLUDING DUG-IN TANKS.

ONE FIGHTER FORMATION ATTACKED 15 TANKS WHICH WERE PROTECTED BY EARTHWORKS IN THE NORTHEAST SECTOR OF THE CITY. ANOTHER RIPPED INTO EIGHT TANKS THREE MILES NORTHEAST OF THE CITY LIMITS.

THE ATTACK BEGAN AT NOON AFTER ALLIED MEDIUM BOMBERS POUNDED STRONG ENEMY COMMUNICATIONS POINT OF VENRAIJ, FOUR MILES EAST OF OVERLOON. THE INFANTRY ADVANCED ONE MILE ON A 2,000-YARD FRONT.

OCT 13 1944

HE SURVIVED A MASS AMERICAN BOMBING JULY 25 AND A TERRIFIC ARTILLERY BATTLE PRECEDING THE AMERICAN PUSH SEAWARD.

WHEN RESCUED, HIS LIPS WERE SWOLLEN, HIS BODY SORE FROM MOSQUITO BITES AND HE WAS SO WEAK HE HARDLY COULD TALK ABOVE A WHISPER. BUT:

"I NEVER GAVE UP HOPE BECAUSE I KNEW OUR MEN WOULD BE COMING THROUGH SOON. I WAS DETERMINED TO STAY UNTIL THEY ARRIVED."

(EDITOR'S NOTE: PORTER HAS SINCE RETURNED TO THE UNITED STATES.)

THE DAY BEFORE HE WAS SHOT DOWN, PORTER WAS AWARDED THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS FOR DESTRUCTION OF TWO NAZI PLANES IN ONE ENGAGEMENT LASTING LESS THAN A MINUTE.

PORTER SUFFERED NO CRASH INJURIES, BUT LOST 15 POUNDS WHILE HIDING FROM GERMAN PATROLS WHO PROBED FOR HIM WITH BAYONETS IN A HEDGEROW WHERE HE HID. HE HAD ONE SIP OF WATER WHICH HE TOOK IN DESPERATION FROM A BUG-INFESTED SWAMP WHILE CRAWLING THROUGH A FIELD TO THE PROTECTION OF ANOTHER HEDGEROW.

PARIS OCT 12-(AP)-ALBERT LE BRUN, FRANCE'S LAST PRESIDENT WHO NEVER FORMALLY BOWED OUT OF THE FRENCH PRESIDENCY, IS EXPECTED TO MAKE SOME PUBLIC GESTURE OF RETIREMENT BEFORE THE APPROACHING CONVOCATION OF THE PROVISIONAL CONSULTATIVE ASSEMBLY, IT WAS LEARNED TODAY.

THE LIKELIHOOD OF THIS MOVE TO PAVE THE WAY FOR THE MEETING OF THE NEW ASSEMBLY, WHICH IS TEMPORARILY REPLACING THE CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES AND THE SENATE, AROSE AFTER A CONFERENCE BETWEEN LE BRUN AND GEN.CHARLES DE GAULLE.

THE PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT'S ATTITUDE IS THAT THE THIRD REPUBLIC, BY ITS CESSION TO MARSHAL PETAIN'S REGIME, TERMINATED ITS TENURE OF OFFICE. HOWEVER, THE DE GAULLE-LE BRUN TALK MAY HAVE POLITICAL IMPLICATIONS, SINCE LE BRUN IS HELD IN HIGH REGARD BY A LARGE NUMBER OF FRENCH PEOPLE.

THE ALLIES HAVE INDICATED THAT IN SOME DEGREE RECOGNITION OF THE DE GAULLE GOVERNMENT DEPENDS ON THE WORK OF THE CONSULTATIVE ASSEMBLY. LE BRUN CAME TO PARIS AT DE GAULLE'S INVITATION AND IT IS POSSIBLE HE MAY FIND A PLACE IN THE NEW GOVERNMENT.

STOCKHOLM, OCT 12-(AP)-A SWEDISH COMMISSION IS STUDYING WAYS TO PUT TEETH INTO THE GOVERNMENT'S RECENTLY-DECLARED POLICY OF CLOSING THIS NATION'S DOORS TO WAR CRIMINALS.

THE SWEDES ARE FULLY AWARE OF ATTEMPTS BY NAZIS AND QUISLINGS TO SEEK HAVEN HERE DESPITE NOTICE THAT THEY ARE UNWELCOME, AND THEY ARE PLANNING MEASURES TO MEET THE PROBLEM AND RETURN SUCH INDIVIDUALS TO JUSTICE. PRELIMINARY MOVES ARE BEING MADE ALTHOUGH THE ALLIES HAVE NOT YET ANNOUNCED A LIST OF WAR CRIMINALS.

IN THE CASE OF FORMER FINNISH STATE POLICE CHIEF ANTHONI, WHO ENTERED SWEDEN ILLEGALLY AFTER THE RUSSIAN ARMISTICE, SWEDISH POLICE HAVE DETAINED HIM ON A TECHNICALITY AND PUBLICITY GIVEN THE CASE HAS MADE IT PLAIN THAT HIS PRESENCE IS REGARDED AS UNDESIRABLE. HE WAS ACCUSED OF USING NAZI GESTAPO METHODS.

COMMENTING ON QUISLINGS FLEEING FROM NORWAY, THE NEWSPAPER AFTONBLADET OBSERVED THEY COULD NOT BE GIVEN ASYLUM AS POLITICAL REFUGEES "BECAUSE THEY HARDLY ARE ANYTHING MORE THAN CRIMINALS." THE PAPER ADDED: "HIGH TREASON IS A CRIMINAL ACT. TO STEAL PROPERTY OF JEWS, TO MISTREAT NORWEGIANS ON THE STREETS, TO DENOUNCE COUNTRYMEN TO THE GERMANS, TO EXPROPRIATE MILLIONS OF CROWNS IN PROPERTY FROM OTHERS--THESE MAY BE REGARDED AS CRIMINAL ACTS. AND THEIR PROBLEM IS EASY TO SOLVE. THERE ARE NO INTERNATIONAL CONVENTIONS ABOUT TURNING OVER CRIMINALS."

THERE HAS BEEN A STEADY FLOW OF REFUGEES AND EVACUEES INTO SWEDEN FROM NORWAY, FINLAND, DENMARK AND THE BALTIC STATES INCLUDING MANY QUISLINGS WHO HAVE BEEN SORTED OUT AND INTERNED IN SPECIAL CAMPS. THAT WILL HAPPEN TO THEM WILL BE SETTLED AFTER THE WAR, BUT THE SWEDISH GOVERNMENT IS EXPECTED TO TURN THEM OVER TO THEIR LEGAL GOVERNMENTS FOR JUSTICE.

UNDATED FORMOSA (WITH BUDGET)
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
FORMOSA, JAPAN'S "GREAT PLANE CARRIER IN THE SOUTH," HAS BEEN THOROUGHLY EXPLOITED BY THE JAPANESE SINCE 1895 WHEN THE NIPPONESE FORCED THE CHINESE TO CEDE THE STRATEGICALLY LOCATED ISLAND
GETTING THE ISLAND WAS ONE THING, BUT CONTROLLING IT WAS FAR MORE DIFFICULT. A FULL SCALE INVASION THAT REQUIRED SIX MONTHS BECAUSE OF STIFF FORMOSAN RESISTANCE FOLLOWED THE CESSION.
FOR ALMOST FIVE DECADES RICE, SUGAR, TEA, SWEET POTATOES, FRUIT AND CAMPHOR MOVED NORTHWARD ACROSS THE EAST CHINA SEA TO THE JAPANESE MAIN ISLANDS. SHORTLY BEFORE PEARL HARBOR OTHER ITEMS APPEARED ON THE SHIPPING MANIFESTS FROM FORMOSA.
GREAT QUANTITIES OF ALUMINUM, ALCOHOL, MANGANESE, CAUSTIC SODA, FERRO MAGNESIUM, FERRO-SILICON AND SULFURIC ACID WERE SENT TO JAPANESE WAR PLANTS.
AFTER "TAKING OVER" IN FORMOSA THE JAPANESE INTENSIFIED INDUSTRIALIZATION OF THE ISLAND BUILDING SHIPYARDS, ANCHORAGES AND REPAIR DOCK FACILITIES.
TAKAO, ONE OF THE CITIES THE JAPANESE SAID WERE HIT BY AMERICAN BOMBS, HAS A SIZEABLE HARBOR AND ALUMINUM, ELECTRO-CHEMICAL, ALCOHOL AND CEMENT WORKS.
THE POPULATION OF THE ISLAND STILL REMAINS PREDOMINANTLY CHINESE DESPITE AN OFFICIAL JAPANESE CAMPAIGN STARTED IN 1909 TO TRANSPLANT COLONIES OF JAPANESE NATIONALS TO FORMOSA.
LAST APRIL THE CHUNGKING RADIO QUOTED AN ESTIMATE BY HSIEH NAN-KWANG, FORMOSAN REVOLUTIONARY LEADER, ON THE 1944 POPULATION AS 5,970,000 CHINESE, 370,000 JAPANESE AND 160,000 ABORIGINES FOR AN OVER ALL TOTAL OF 6,500,000. ADMIRAL KIYOSHI HASEGAWA, JAPANESE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF FORMOSA, WAS QUOTED BY THE JAPANESE RADIO TODAY (U.S. TIME) AS SAYING THE PRESENT POPULATION WAS 6,700,000.
ADMINISTRATION OF THE ISLAND BY THE JAPANESE HAS BEEN VIGILANT AND RIGOROUS. THE FORMOSAN REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENT, HOWEVER, WAS ORGANIZED THREE YEARS AGO IN FREE CHINA AND HAS SINCE CLAIMED A SERIES OF OUTBREAKS IN THE ISLAND.
AT THE CAIRO CONFERENCE RETURN OF FORMOSA TO CHINA WAS PROMISED.

THE GOVERNMENT WAS CRITICIZED FOR PREVENTING REPORTERS FROM THE PROPRIETORS' COMPOSITE PAPER FROM ENTERING THE GALLERY IN PARLIAMENT YESTERDAY AND TODAY.
FEDERAL INFORMATION MINISTER ARTHUR CALDWELL, AT MELBOURNE, SAID HE WOULD MOVE FOR WITHDRAWAL OF THE PROPRIETORS' LICENSES WHICH WERE ISSUED UNDER NATIONAL SECURITY REGULATIONS. THIS MOVE IF SUCCESSFUL WOULD FORCE THE NEWSPAPER OWNERS OUT OF BUSINESS.
HOWEVER, CAPITAL SOURCES SAID IT WAS UNLIKELY THAT OTHER CABINET MINISTERS WOULD SUPPORT CALDWELL'S MOTION.
THE TABLOID WAS RECEIVING EXCLUSIVE INTERSTATE SERVICES ON POLICE NEWS AND STATE AND FEDERAL POLITICAL COVERAGE. PROPRIETORS IN OTHER STATES, FEARFUL OF BECOMING INVOLVED IN THE SYDNEY DISPUTE, WITHHELD WIRE SERVICES, WHILE POLICE AND MINISTERS OF STATE OF THE LABOR GOVERNMENT REFUSED TO SEE NEWSMEN FROM THE PUBLISHERS PAPER.
THE TABLOID WAS SELLING MORE THAN 100,000 COPIES A DAY WHILE THE PROPRIETORS' PAPER WAS SELLING 350,000 AND PREDICTING A CIRCULATION OF 750,000.
THE PUBLISHERS ASSOCIATION CALLED THE JOURNALISTS STRIKERS. NEWSMEN SAID THEY WERE LOCKED OUT.
THE DISPUTE STARTED WITH THE PRINTERS, WHO HAVE BEEN ORDERED BACK TO WORK BY THE NEW SOUTH WALES INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION. THERE WAS NO INDICATION THAT THEY WOULD RETURN TO WORK BEFORE SATURDAY, WHICH WOULD LEAVE SYDNEY WITHOUT ANY OF ITS REGULAR PAPERS FOR A WEEK.

MEXICO CITY, OCT. 12-(AP)-BRITISH AND MEXICAN MILITARY AUTHORITIES ARE STUDYING A PLAN FOR BRITISH AND OTHER UNITED NATIONS PLANES TO USE MEXICAN BASES AND PORTS ON A PROPOSED AIR ROUTE TO THE PACIFIC FOR EVENTUAL USE IN THE WAR AGAINST JAPAN.

AIR COMMODORE GRIFITH POWELL OF THE RAF, NOW STATIONED IN CANADA, HAS BEEN HERE SEVERAL TIMES TO CONFER WITH MEXICAN AUTHORITIES. NEGOTIATIONS WERE OPENED LAST SPRING AND THERE HAVE BEEN SEVERAL VISITS HERE BY BRITISH AND CANADIAN AIR OFFICIALS AND EXPERTS TO LAY OUT A POSSIBLE ROUTE.

ONE OF THE POINTS BEING CONSIDERED IS CLIPPERTON ISLAND, ABOUT 600 MILES SOUTHWEST OF THE MEXICAN COAST. IT IS PRACTICALLY A DESERT CORAL ISLAND BUT MIGHT MAKE ONE GOOD STEPPING STONE WESTWARD.

SO FAR, BRITISH MILITARY MEN SAID, THERE HAVE BEEN NO DECISIONS EITHER AS TO THE EXACT BASES THAT MIGHT BE USED OR EVEN WHETHER THE ROUTE ACROSS MEXICO IS THE MOST DESIRABLE ONE.

MEXICO CITY, OCT.12-(AP)-DR.EDUARDO SANTOS, DEPUTY DIRECTOR OF UNRRA, AND HIS MISSION, LEFT MEXICO AT 1:53PCWT TODAY BY PLANE FOR GUATEMALA ON THEIR TRIP TO ALL LATIN-AMERICAN REPUBLICS EXCEPT ARGENTINA TO ARRANGE EACH COUNTRY'S CONTRIBUTION TO WAR RELIEF.

DR.SANTOS MISSION SPENT EXACTLY SEVEN DAYS HERE COMPLETING ITS WORK IN A MOST CORDIAL ATMOSPHERE AND WITH RESULTS WHICH DR.SANTOS SAID WERE "VERY SATISFACTORY."

CONSULTATIONS WITH MEXICO OFFICIALS BROUGHT AN AGREEMENT FOR MEXICO TO MAKE CONTRIBUTIONS OF APPROXIMATELY 17,500,000 PESOS (ABOUT $3,608,000 AT CURRENT EXCHANGE RATES) DURING THREE YEARS BEGINNING JANUARY 1, 1945, WITH THE PROVISION THAT NINE-TENTHS OF THE VALUE MIGHT BE IN GOODS OR SERVICES.

OCT 13 1944

TENTATIVE ASSURANCES BY THE SECRETARY OF NATIONAL ECONOMY THAT MEXICO WOULD INCREASE HER PART IN WORLD RELIEF LATER WERE ACCEPTED BY DR.SANTOS AS MORE CERTAIN TO BE FULFILLED THAN THE SECRETARY'S WORDS INDICATED. DR.SANTOS SAID THE DISASTROUS FLOODS HERE AND ECONOMIC CONDITIONS WERE ADEQUATE EXPLANATION OF MEXICO'S TEMPORARY CAUTION IN PLEDGING HER AID TO UNRRA IN WHICH, HE SAID, MEXICO BELIEVED FIRMLY.

THE SANTOS PARTY CONSISTS OF:

DR.SANTOS AND MRS.SANTOS, JOSUE SAENZ OF MEXICO, ALEXANDER ARGYROPOULOS OF GREECEN, CARLOS GARCIA PALACIOS OF CHILE, LOUIS SWENSON OF THE UNITED STATES AND THE MISSION'S SECRETARY, MISS MARGARET THOMPSON OF THE UNITED STATES WHO LIVED HERE WITH HER FAMILY FOR YEARS.

THE OTHER MEMBER OF THE MISSION, LAURENCE DUGGAN, ITS DIPLOMATIC COUNSELLOR, LEFT LAST WEEK TO VISIT THE CARIBBEAN AREA.

AFTER AN OVERNIGHT REST IN GUATEMALA, THE MISSION WILL GO TO PANAMA AND THEN TO COLOMBIA, WHERE THE MEMBERS WILL SEPARATE TO VISIT DIFFERENT LATIN-AMERICAN REPUBLICS AND THUS HASTEN THE MISSION'S TASK OF CONSULTING ALL OF THEM EXCEPT ARGENTINA. OCT 13 1944

DURING HIS VISIT HERE DR.SANTOS GAVE HIS VIEWS ON SPAIN AT A MEETING OF SPANISH REFUGEES TUESDAY NIGHT.

THE "PREBELLIGERENCE" OF SPANISH REPUBLICANS SHOULD NOT BE FORGOTTEN AT INTERNATIONAL PEACE TALKS, SAID DR.SANTOS, IN ADDRESSING THE MEETING.

"BEFORE THE UNITED NATIONS BEGAN TO FIGHT, SPAIN WAS SACRIFICING HERSELF FOR THEM," DR.SANTOS SAID. "SPAIN WAS FIGHTING, ALONE, AGAINST THE AXIS POWERS."

DR.SANTOS ADDED: "A REPUBLICAN SPAIN, FREE AND PROGRESSIVE, IS A NECESSITY FOR LATIN AMERICA. THE SPAIN THAT I DESIRED WILL BE THE VANGUARD OF OUR CONTINENT BEFORE THE CIVILIZED WORLD, THE BEST OF OUR DEFENSES. BUT IF THAT BELOVED NATION REMAINS IN TOTALITARIAN HANDS IT WILL SIGNIFY THE GRAVEST MENACE FOR US ALL."

NEW YORK OCT 12-(AP)-YEHUDI MENUHIN, JUST BACK FROM A SIX-WEEKS CONCERT TOUR IN ENGLAND AND THE EUROPEAN BATTLEFRONTS AT THE REQUEST OF THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT, SAID TODAY THAT LIFE IN PARIS "IS JUST AS FRENCH AS EVER."

THE TOUR, HIS FIFTH OVERSEAS TRIP THIS YEAR, WAS LENGTHENED AT THE REQUEST OF GENERAL DWIGHT D.EISENHOWER AND THE BELGIAN MINISTRY OF EDUCATION FOR CONCERTS IN ANTWERP AND BRUSSELS.

HIS FIVE CONCERTS IN EUROPE, MENUHIN SAID, WERE THE MOST "THRILLING." THE FIRST TWO WERE PERFORMED IN BRUSSELS AND ANTWERP, BEFORE BELGIAN CIVILIANS, WHO, HE SAID, "WERE WAR WEARY, AND FOR THEM, MUSIC WAS THE ONLY LINK WITH THE PAST." IN ANTWERP, HE SAID, GERMAN TROOPS WERE THREE MILES FROM THE CONCERT HALL.

NEW YORK, OCT 12-(AP)-SUMNER WELLES, FORMER UNDERSECRETARY OF STATE, TONIGHT DECLARED THAT THE POLICIES OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT HAD MADE POSSIBLE "POPULAR SUPPORT" OF "THE ACTIVITIES OF A FEW MILITARISTIC ELEMENTS IN CERTAIN PARTS OF THE AMERICAN CONTINENT."

SPEAKING AT A "BIRTHDAYS OF THE AMERICAS" DINNER SPONSORED BY THE AMERICAS FOUNDATION, WELLES DECRIED WHAT HE CALLED THE "RAPID DETERIORATION OF INTERAMERICAN RELATIONSHIPS" AND ASKED FOR A GOOD NEIGHBOR POLICY WHICH WOULD "REGAIN LATIN AMERICAN CONFIDENCE."

HE DECLARED "I THINK THE ACTIVITIES OF A FEW MILITARISTIC ELEMENTS IN CERTAIN PARTS OF THE AMERICAN CONTINENT ARE SINISTER AND POTENTIALLY DANGEROUS. BUT I BELIEVE THE STEPS WHICH THIS GOVERNMENT HAS TAKEN HAVE MADE IT POSSIBLE FOR THEM TO FIND POPULAR SUPPORT WHICH THEY OTHERWISE WOULD HAVE LACKED. I BELIEVE THEY WOULD NEVER HAVE BEEN ABLE TO ACHIEVE THE IMPORTANCE THEY HAVE NOW ASSUMED HAD WE ADOPTED A WISER AND MORE UNDERSTANDING COURSE TEN MONTHS AGO."

WELLES SAID THAT IN ADDITION TO DEALING WITH ARGENTINA WITHOUT CONSULTING OTHER LATIN AMERICAN COUNTRIES, OUR GOVERNMENT ALSO HAD FAILED TO ASSURE A PRACTICAL FORM OF COOPERATION AMONG AMERICAN NEIGHBORS IN POSTWAR YEARS AND HAD FAILED TO ASCERTAIN THEIR DESIRES IN THE FORMATION OF AN INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION."

AT THE DINNER, JAMES A.FARLEY, FORMER POSTMASTER GENERAL, PRESENTED AN "AMERICAS AWARD" TO JUAN T.TRIPPE, PRESIDENT OF PAN AMERICAN WORLD AIRWAYS, FOR HAVING "MADE THE GREATEST CONTRIBUTION TO INTER-AMERICAN FRIENDSHIP AND GOOD WILL OF ANY CITIZEN OF THE AMERICAS DURING THE YEAR 1944."

ADDRESSING MORE THAN 2,000 VOLUNTEER WORKERS IN THE NATIONAL WAR FUND-WELFARE FEDERATION DRIVE IN THE ORANGE ARMORY, HALIFAX SAID:

OCT 13 1944

"WHEN THE COMMON DANGER IS OVER, THE LARGE QUESTION FOR THE WORLD WILL BE WHETHER WE CAN FIND ANOTHER MOTIVE AS POWERFUL TO MAKE US WORK TOGETHER AS THE COMMUNITY SPIRIT WHICH HAS EMPHASIZED OUR RELATIONSHIP DURING THE CONFLICT.

"THE UNITED NATIONS HAVE FOUGHT SIDE BY SIDE UNDER PRESSUE, BUT THE PROBLEM OF PEACE IS AS DIFFICULT AS THAT OF WAR. OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO THINK AND ACT TOGETHER FOR THE WORLD'S SALVATION, OR THE DANGER OF CONFLICT WILL LIFT ITS HEAD IF WE DRIFT APART."

HALIFAX, WHO WAS INTRODUCED BY U.S. SENATOR ALBERT W. HAWKES (R-NJ), CONTINUED, "THE TRAIL OF DEVASTATION LEFT IN TTE WAKE OF THE NAZIS MUST BE REPAIRED. MILLIONS OF PEOPLES SWEPT FROM THEIR HOMES BY NAZI TERROR AND ENSLAVED IN FOREIGN LANDS IN LABOR BATTALIONS MUST BE RETURNED TO THEIR NATIVE LANDS."

OCT 13 19...

IN OUTLINING THE THREE-FOLD PURPOSE OF THE DRIVE, HALIFAX SAID, "FIRST, IT WILL BE FOR THE HELP OF YOUR OWN MILITARY FORCES; SECOND, TO HELP YOUR ALLIES; AND THIRD, FOR THE NUMEROUS HOME FRONT AGENCIES IN THE NATIONAL WAR EFFORT."

REVERTING TO THE CONFLICT, HALIFAX SAID THE DICTATORS MIGHT HAVE BEEN HESITANT IN AROUSING A WORLD CONFLICT IF THEY COULD HAVE FORESEEN WHAT IT MEANT TO AROUSE "A GREAT WORLD DEMOCRACY LIKE YOURS."

"NEVER BEFORE HAS AMERICA FOUGHT ON SO MANY BATTLE FRONTS," HE SAID, "OR UNDER SUCH TRYING CONDITIONS. THE BRITISH EMPIRE KNOWS WHAT THEY OWE TO YOUNG AMERICA. IT IS A DEBT THAT IS GROWING EVERY HOUR AND REACHES BACK TO THOSE BLACK DAYS FOR ENGLAND IN 1940 WHEN AMERICA CAME TO HER AID."

WASHINGTON,OCT.12-(AP)-SENATOR BALL (R-MINN) DECLARED TODAY THE VOTERS SHOULD DEMAND "CLEAR, UNEQUIVOCAL ANSWERS" FROM THE RIVAL PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES ON THE SUBJECT OF AN INTERNATIONAL PEACE ORGANIZATION.

IN A STATEMENT ISSUED AT A NEWS CONFERENCE HE SAID "IT HAS BECOME CLEAR IN THIS CAMPAIGN THAT GENERAL STATEMENTS BY CANDIDATES FAVORING AN INTERNATIONAL SECURITY ORGANIZATION OFFER NO MORE ASSURANCE TO THE PEOPLE THAN THEY DID IN 1918 AND 1920."

BOTH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND GOVERNOR THOMAS E.DEWEY, HE SAID, SHOULD ANSWER THREE QUESTIONS BEFORE THE ELECTIONS:

"1. WILL YOU SUPPORT THE EARLIEST POSSIBLE FORMATION OF THE UNITED NATIONS SECURITY ORGANIZATION AND THE UNITED STATES ENTRY THEREIN BEFORE ANY FINAL PEACE SETTLEMENTS ARE MADE EITHER IN EUROPE OR ASIA?

"2. WILL YOU OPPOSE ANY RESERVATIONS TO UNITED STATES ENTRY INTO SUCH UNITED NATIONS ORGANIZATION WHICH WOULD WEAKEN THE POWER OF THE ORGANIZATION TO ACT TO MAINTAIN PEACE AND TO STOP AGGRESSION?

"3. SHOULD THE VOTE OF THE UNITED STATES REPRESENTATIVE ON THE UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL COMMIT AN AGREED-UPON QUOTA OF OUR MILITARY FORCES TO ACTION ORDERED BY THE COUNCIL TO MAINTAIN PEACE WITHOUT REQUIRING FURTHER CONGRESSIONAL APPROVAL?"

BALL TOLD REPORTERS HE WOULD BASE HIS OWN DECISION AS TO WHICH CANDIDATE TO SUPPORT UPON THE STATEMENTS THEY MAKE BEFORE NOVEMBER 7 ON THE SECURITY ISSUE.

BALL RECENTLY SAID HE WAS WITHHOLDING HIS SUPPORT FROM GOVERNOR DEWEY UNTIL THE GOP NOMINEE HAD FURTHER CLARIFIED HIS FOREIGN POLICY VIEWS.

JAMES WECHSLER OF PM ASKED:

OCT 13 1944

"DO YOU BELIEVE MR.DEWEY COULD ANSWER THE QUESTIONS TO YOUR SATISFACTION WITHOUT AN OPEN BREAK WITH THE ISOLATIONISTS IN THE REPUBLICAN PARTY WHO ARE SUPPORTING HIM?"

"I DOUBT IT," BALL RESPONDED. HE THEN WAS ASKED IF HE MIGHT DECLARE FOR PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SHOULD THE PRESIDENT'S STATEMENTS ON SECURITY MACHINERY BE MORE TO HIS LIKING, AND HE REPLIED:

"I'LL LET YOU KNOW WHEN I MAKE MY STATEMENT."

AMAMI OSHIMA WAS OMITTED BY DOMEI, JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY, N TRANSMITTING THE IMPERIAL COMMUNIQUE, BUT TOKYO RADIO INSERTED T IN THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE BROADCAST.

THIS BOLDEST CHALLENGE TO JAPAN'S HOME FLEET EMPLOYED THE LEMENT OF SURPRISE WHICH, FORSOOTH, MAY NOT HAVE ALLOWED ENEMY ARSHIPS TIME TO ARRIVE FOR BATTLE BUT EIGHT HOURS CERTAINLY WERE NOUGH FOR JAPAN'S LAND-BASED BOMBERS.

YET THE RYUKYUS, BY ALL AVAILABLE REPORTS, WERE DEFENDED ONLY Y THEIR OWN AIRFORCE, WHICH WAS OVERWHELMED.

THE THIRD FLEET OF ADM. WILLIAM F. HALSEY JR. HAS IN TWO ONTHS SHARPLY WHITTLED DOWN THE PLACES WHERE THE ENEMY FLEET IGHT BE -- BUT ISN'T.

HE DIDN'T FIND IT AT PALAU WHEN HE ATTACKED PRIOR TO THE NVASION. PALAU HAS A BIG NAVAL BASE.

HE DIDN'T FIND IT AT MANILA ALTHOUGH HIS PLANES WERE AROUND OR TWO DAYS. MANILA HAS CAVITE. HE DIDN'T FIND IT IN THE ONINS, SOME 600 MILES FROM TOKYO.

NOW HE HASN'T FOUND IT WITHIN 200 MILES OF JAPAN. PERHAPS OME GOOD GUESSES WOULD BE KAGOSHIMA, YOKOSUKA, SASEBO AND KURE. HAT'S HOME PLATE FOR THE OTHER SIDE.

Americans Fight Street by Street in Aachen; Formosa Foe Lost 396 Planes and 27 Ships

84 GERMAN TANKS ARE DESTROYED IN ASSAULT ON CITY

U. S. Forces Force Enemy Back After Fierce Bombing Attacks.

30 NAZI PLANES DOWNED

German Reinforcements Crushed by Artillery, Fall of Bastion Near.

LONDON, Saturday, Oct. 14.—(AP) American Doughboys with flame-throwers grenades and tommyguns carried the battle of Aachen into the debris littered streets of the dead city itself today after 48 hours of bitter air and armored combat which cost the Germans 84 tanks and 30 fighter planes.

Infantrymen broke into the bomb-ravaged city from the east and south behind another terrifying dive-bombing attack of American Thunderbolts and Lightnings, which have dropped 1,600 loads of explosives in two days onto the ruins of the first German city ringed by an invader since the days of Napoleon.

64 Tanks Knocked Out

Sixty-four tanks were blown apart by the withering curtain of bomb and shell fire draped about a German Panzer column which attempted to force through a half-mile wide gap northeast of Aachen, but was smashed to pieces three miles away.

Twenty other tanks were destroyed Thursday night south of Eischweiler, eight miles southeast of Aachen.

The Berlin radio claimed that 5,000 Americans had been slain and 14,000 wounded or taken prisoner in the mighty battle for the fortress which refused a surrender ultimatum, but front line reports from Allied sources said Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army had suffered only light casualties and that resistance was collapsing under the assault.

One German tank division was being rushed down from the northern end of the 460-mile Western front at Arnhem to join the battle for Aachen, which the German radio said had been all but flattened "by an unprecedented steamroller of fire."

Yanks Penetrate Aachen

Doughboys crossed the railway tracks on the southeast and entered Aachen proper at 9:30 a. m., routing dirty, bearded Germans from the rubble, while self-propelled artillery prowled the ruins knocking out cores of resistance described as spotty.

Even as the ancient city of Charlemagne entered its dying hours, the whole British Second army and American First army front at the western gates of Germany showed signs of imminent eruption.

Mid-way between Aachen and Arnhem, the British Second army, paced by American tanks, hammered out a gain of more than a mile beyond the captured Dutch town of Overloon on a front of nearly four miles, neared Venray, three miles southeast of Overloon, and were operating six miles from the Maas river, which faces the German frontier.

The Allied communique announced limited gains had been made 11 miles east of Aachen from positions four miles beyond Stolberg, indicating that the drive on the Rhine may be about ready to resume. Slow and steady progress was made in Hurtgen forest southeast of Aachen.

Both Allied and Axis sources referred to activity in the Geilen-Kirchen area 12 miles north of Aachen. A German military commentator said the American troops had been concentrated there "possibly for a grand-scale assault" on the flat lands to the Rhine.

The Canadians along the sea clearing out the Schelde estuary approaches to the port of Antwerp gouged out gains in bitter fighting on the estuary's south banks.

The Germans were reported hurrying up reinforcements in an effort to rescue an estimated 11,000 of their comrades who have been cut off by the Canadians from escape by land from their imperiled positions on two Dutch islands in the Schelde.

In northern France, the U. S. Third army was locked in hand-to-hand combat with the Germans in Meizieres-Les-Metz, six miles north of Metz, but there were no developments elsewhere on this front.

Seventh Seizes 4 Villages

The U. S. Seventh army to the south seized four villages in driving to within 12 miles of Schlucht pass, 28 miles north of Belfort, and had the city of Le Thillot, 15 miles north of Belfort, hemmed in from three sides.

There was yet no word that the Americans who yesterday cleared a northeastern suburb of Aachen had joined in the attack on the main section of the city.

The attack rolled up from the southeast under cover of the same sort of artillery barrage which had ruined at least 85 per cent of the city. Divebombers wheeled over the center of the city, blasting the garrison trying to maneuver in the rubble, a front dispatch said.

A great smoke pall hung over the city, but observers on the edges still could see the spire of Aachen cathedral, where Charlemagne lies.

The first American units found the Germans willing enough to surrender. In their first batch was a lieutenant who received the American ultimatum to surrender earlier this week.

Some civilians who came out of the ruins said German officers forbade them to leave the city. It was estimated that no more than 10,000 of the 165,000 population remained behind.

Beat Back Reinforcements

Meanwhile, Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' artillery, with close support, administered a merciless beating to strong reinforcements who moved in from the northeast in an attempt to obey Adolf Hitler's orders to "chase the terrorist bandits off German soil."

"They have moved against us in broad daylight," a high-ranking officer said, "and no man in his right mind would attempt such a thing unless some idiot ordered him to attack."

The enemy rushed immediately into battle on arriving at the front, but artillery, fighter bombs and rockets drove them back before they could reach the American infantry outposts.

Dive bombers caught one force of tanks hiding in some woods and plastered the area, while artillery pin-pointed a heavy movement of armor on a secondary road near Rohe, six miles northeast of Aachen.

Nazis Shift Troops

The shift of German troops from Holland to this front apparently meant that the German High command figured the situation around Arnhem had eased.

The bridge across the Neder Rhine at Arnhem has been destroyed by Allied bombers, front dispatches said. The British discovered yesterday that the Germans had abandoned a bridgehead on the south bank of the Neder Rhine west of Arnhem.

The Germans continued to send patrols across in boats, but these were intercepted and dispersed, or contained after landing.

In addition to the drive from Overloon, the British have strong forces poised 25 miles southwest at Weert, only nine miles from the Reich frontier.

The Germans were shifting considerable troops to western Holland, either to strengthen their south Dutch strongholds of Bergen Op Zoom, Breda and Tilburg or to try to break through to the relief of other enemy forces in the Schelde islands.

One column was caught by Allied air patrols moving west from Tilburg toward Breda and 31 vehicles were destroyed.

On the south bank of the Schelde, rockets and bombs blasted pillboxes and machinegun posts which had been holding up Canadians driving from their beachhead west of Hoofdplaat.

Allies Maintain Pressure

While landing reinforcements on the beachhead, the Canadians kept up strong pressure on the German force from the south by deepening their bridgehead across the Leopold canal west of Antwerp.

Half of a flotilla of 100 barges, assembled in the Schelde apparently to evacuate these menaced German troops, were struck by RAF fighter-bombers who flew 800 sorties yesterday.

It was a slow, slugging match on the southern end of the front, where the Germans are holding back the Seventh army threatening to burst into the southern Rhineland through the Vosges mountains.

While the French struck dug-in defenses and heavy artillery fire, they drew up their lines 12 miles west of Schlucht pass by capturing the villages of Grimont, Gerbamont, Planois and Trougemont, from seven to eight miles east of Remiremont.

They also held positions five miles west of the Bussang pass through the Vosges 16 miles north of Belfort.

Strategic Le Thillot north of Belfort was closely invested on three sides, but the Germans were holding out in an effort to deny the Allies the use of its network of roads leading into the mountains.

U. S. Infantry Drives Into Aachen, Digs Out Germans

London, Oct. 13 (AP)—American infantry gained slowly tonight inside the smoking ruins of Aachen proper, narrowed the Nazi escape gap to a half mile and, with shells and bombs, smashed strong German columns forming up for counterattacks to relieve the battered city's garrison.

The suburban Schlachtof factory district on the northeast outskirts of Aachen was taken. The enemy had counterattacked earlier in the Bardenberg area after wheeling up one of Hitler's finest tank divisions. The Nazis lost 60 tanks in two days, fighting around Aachen, including those knocked out in today's attempted counterattacks.

Opposition was surprisingly weak as the doughboys entered the city, which had been bombed and blasted for two days by hundreds of divebombers and an almost ring of heavy artillery pieces which shells by the thousands into its ancient structures.

Over 16 Rows Of Tracks

The Americans entered the city itself at 9.30 A. M. along a path blasted by artillery and mortars. The Yanks gingerly crossed 16 rows of tracks and started routing out dirty and bearded Germans holed up in the narrow streets which were cluttered with debris.

The fighting was at close quarters, sometimes with bayonets, sometimes with small arms and it went from house to house, from street to street. Self-propelled artillery moved into the city with the infantry.

The Americans fought near fires in many parts of the old city.

Big Tank Battle Seen

The appearance of a fresh German armored division, shifted from the Arnhem sector in Holland, stirred expectation that a major tank battle would soon be joined.

A terse dispatch from Don Whitehead of the Associated Press said artillery and air power had been used to smash German counterattacks near the city and that the Americans were gaining slowly in Aachen against spotty opposition. At no place had German counterattacks budged the staunch men of the United States First Army.

Berlin asserted that the Americans already had suffered 19,000 casualties in the battle of Aachen, including 5,000 dead, but nothing from Allied quarters supported such a claim.

Aachen was dissolving under the weight of American shells and bombs, but there was no sign of a major break in the 1,500 to 2,000 Nazi SS troops who fought from the rubble and sewers.

Conflicting Accounts

Fighting intensified, too, at Wurselen and Haaren, the tips of the Allied spearheads crowding the thin escape hatch toward Cologne. A German pocket was destroyed at Wurselen, three miles north of Aachen.

The end for Aachen seemed inevitable—but there was no telling how long the battle would last.

Whitehead reported surprisingly little resistance in the outskirts of Aachen.

The Berlin radio gave conflicting accounts. One broadcast said the American assault had slackened and that the Aachen corridor had been widened to four miles. Another said huge United States reinforcements had arrived, indicating major operations were contemplated well beyond the city.

Meanwhile, the Allies impoved their positions in Holland in fighting described as desperate. Signs appeared that Field Marshal General von Rundstedt was preparing a stiff defense in southwestern Holland, despite reports of the destruction of the Rotterdam docks.

Front correspondents said the Germans were strengthening their forces near the Schelde Estuary, possibly for a major attack gainst the Canadian First Army to retain approaches to the Belgian port of Antwerp. Planes spotted heavy German traffic moving west from Tilburg toward Breda. Thirty-one vehicles were destroyed.

Ten Miles From Border

Considerable movement was noted on the western waterways, where planes damaged 50 or more barges.

British forces lunged a mile forward from the right flank of their Dutch salient pointed toward Arnhem and moved within 10 miles of the German border. The advance was south of newly-captured Overloon.

Supreme headquarters disclosed that Canadians on the south bank of the Schelde estuary had been reinforced and gained new ground beyond their Leopold Canal bridgehead.

A British staff officer said the Germans had shifted one tank division south from the Arnhem sector to Aachen and that there were signs of more Germans being moved from the Dutch salient into the Aachen battle zone.

Battle In Meizieres

North of the fortress city of Metz, Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's American Third Army was fighting the Germans hand-to-hand in the streets of Meizieres les Metz. The situation on the remainder of the Third Army front, including the strange underground battle for Fort Driant, was unchanged, a field dispatch said.

East of Luneville, the Third Army captured the French town of Parroy and pushed patrols to the eastern edge of the Parroy forest.

At the southern end of the western front, the communique said, the American Seventh and French First Armies "have made substantial gains over rugged country" in the Epinal-Belfort sector leading to the Belfort Gap between the Vosges and the Alps. Several villages were captured and heavy counterattacks were repulsed. Positions near Le Thillot were improved.'

The overwhelming Allied air superiority was used in the heightening battle of the north. The Allied communique said:

"Aachen was divebombed and strafed yesterday by hundreds of fighter bombers."

Nazi Thrusts Repelled

Earlier, German counterthrusts from the east in the vicinity of Verlautenheide and Haaren were repulsed by American artillery.

One front dispatch said German armor in strength was seen plunging down "Hell's Highway," the narrow gap between the American forces northeast of the city. Earlier, American fighter bombers had spotted Nazi tanks moving toward Aachen and attacked them in a wood where they went into hiding.

The Canadians captured the village of Biezen near the Leopold Canal and repelled a German counterattack north of the great Belgian port of Antwerp. Until the Schelde Estuary has been cleared, Antwerp—second largest port in all Europe—cannot be used by the Allies to supply and power their attack into Germany.

Air Support In Holland

Fighters and fighter bombers were used to support the Canadian drive against a division or so of trapped Germans south of the river and on the Dutch islands, flooded by bomb-broken dikes. Fortified positions were bombed at Oostburg, Sluis and Schoondijke. Heavy bombers pounded gun emplacements at Fort Frederick-Henrik. Mediums attacked batteries north of Knockeiere. Other planes supported ground troops in the Dutch salient, around Arnhem and Nijmegen. Transport targets were bombed near Amersfoot and Appeldoorn and elsewhere in Holland.

On the northern end of the front, the British Second Army was exploiting a surprising German withdrawal from a bridgehead 12 miles wide on the south bank of the Neder Rhine between Arnhem and Rotterdam. The Dutch town of Overloon, ten miles from the German border, was captured after a sharp attack launched at noon yesterday against German positions west of the Meuse river.

Jolting Off Balance

A field dispatch said that the British tactics were the same as those which finally led to the annihilation of the bulk of Field Marshal General Guenther von Kluge's German Seventh Army in the Falaise gap in Normandy—a series of jabs which jolted the enemy off balance from Caen to Caumont, until at length the befuddled Nazis broke and ran.

Pacing the British thrust from Overloon, American armored forces operating under Lieut. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's command probed German defenses farther south. The extent of their thrusts was not disclosed.

Supreme headquarters noted increased German artillery fire southeast of Geilenkirchen, north of Aachen, and said the enemy had bombed Allied troops near Schaufenberg and Siersdorf, east of Alsdorf.

At the deepest point of penetration inside Germany, the Allied communique said, there was a slight advance four miles east of Stolberg, a captured German town six miles due east of Aachen.

Through Hurtgen Forest

A little further south, Americans drove clear through the Hurtgen forest and captured Vossenack, but the communique said they were "pushed back slightly by a counter-attack."

Fighter planes estimated at 150 were hurled by the Germans against American siege lines around Aachen last night. Twelve of the Nazis were shot from the sky, six were damaged and two other probable kills were registered by American airmen. Four American fighters were lost.

The Messerschmitts and Focke-Wulfs made up one of the largest forces of aircraft committed by the Germans to a single action in recent weeks.

85 Per Cent. Destroyed

American pilots said possibly 85 per cent. of Aachen already is in smoking ruins. Five hundred tons of bombs were dropped on the historic city yesterday while American artillery hurled a new avalanche of shells.

An American First Army officer declared emphatically that the Germans had not tried to evacuate the city and that no reinforcements had gotten in.

Germans Suffer Heavy Losses In Fanatic Stand at Aachen

OUTSIDE AACHEN, Oct. 13 (AP)—American Doughboys are fighting slowly this afternoon into Aachen—ruined city of German Kings—and the opposition they have struck wes described by one officer as "soft, spotty and not very well organized."

On the north, heavy artillery bombardments and air attacks smashed strong German columns forming for counterattacks to relieve Aachen's battered garrison, and the lane out of the city between the American siege lines has been narrowed another mile and now is only half a mile wide.

Thus the defenders of Aachen have been virtually sealed off either from escape or reinforcement.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' heavy artillery, plus magnificent air support, gave a sound beating to the strong reinforcements who rushed up toward Aachen in an attempt to carry out Adolf Hitler's orders to throw the invaders off Reich soil.

"For two days the Nazis have been given a whipping by our artillery and air," a high-ranking officer said, "and he spent today licking his wounds. Heavy fire and bombardment broke up threatened heavy attacks."

The Germans have lost more than 60 tanks in two days of battle around Aachen.

"They have been ordered to chase 'terrorist bandits' off German soil, and that is what they are trying to do. This is a major effort. They have moved against us in broad daylight, and no man in his right mind would attempt such a thing unless some idiot ordered him to attack with all speed."

The enemy is expected to press the counterattacks despite reverses which have cost him heavily. The Germans rushed large and powerful formations into this sector and they were thrown into combat immediately.

"We got darned fine artillery and air cooperation," the staff officer said, "and we didn't lose a foot of ground. The enemy was smashed in assembly as well as in the approaches to our ground troops."

This support was so effective that the enemy in most cases was not even able to get to grips with the infantry.

One enemy combat team with T[illegible] tanks started with 43 tanks and had only eight left at the end of two days, according to prisoners' reports. Another started with 35 and had only six left. The casualties within one group were such that it can be written off the books as destroyed.

Today artillery, fighter bombers and rocket bombers kept the enemy on the recoil while the assault was made against Aachen.

"There's no question but that the enemy has been beaten soundly for two days," the officer said, "but there is not much doubt that he will still try to save Aachen and we can expect further counterattacks to try to break the circle around the city."

Street-By-Street Battle In Aachen Described

By Don Whitehead

Before Aachen, Oct. 13 (AP)—Doughboys of Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' United States First Army, supported by heavy air and artillery bombardments, fought their way into Aachen street by street today against surprisingly light opposition.

But the Germans were rushing up crack reinforcements from the east in a desperate effort to save the city.

At 9.30 A. M., Capt. Ozell Smoot, of Oklahoma City, Okla., led his troops across the railway tracks on the southeastern edge of Aachen and began working through the streets, house by house.

Burning, Smoking City

Then another unit under Capt. Roland Weeks, of Long Island, moved into the attack while the thunder of battle rolled over the burning, smoking city being punished by screaming dive-bombers and crashing artillery.

By darkness last night American troops had seized all the suburban Schlachthof factory district on the northeastern outskirts.

From the vantage point of an old shell-wrecked building near the railway tracks we watched artillery and dive-bombers battering Aachen which at close range looks like a hulk of old ruins. Many buildings are intact, but the city has taken a terrible beating. Fires burned in many parts, cloaking its sprawling length with spirals of gray and black smoke.

Sound Of Guns

Out of the broken clouds roared dive-bombers with machine guns and cannon clattering. Then bombs fell and great columns of smoke mushroomed upward.

Self-propelled guns thundered near-by and made the old buildings shudder and the windows rattle.

Lieut. Col. Derill M. Daniel, of Geneva, N. Y., pointed out the line of attack.

To Keep Nazi Heads Down

"It's very slow going," he said, "because the boys have to search every room, cellar, outhouse and well where the enemy might be hiding."

Asked what the guns were shooting at, Daniel said: "They are shooting up everything they can to make the Germans keep their heads down. If there is a housetop which looks like a good observation point they take a crack at it."

While Smoot and Weeks led their units into the edge of Aachen proper, Lieut. Beasor Walker, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., waited for the signal to cross the railway tracks.

"When you stop those krauts from shooting from the west," Daniel told Smoot, "I'll send Walker in."

Docile Prisoners

Smoot reported back that the Germans were not resisting as stubbornly as had been anticipated and were surrendering at every chance they got.

"We have taken 13 prisoners who were pretty docile and we are doing all right," he said.

"Well, Walker is champing at the bit, waiting to go so let me know when you have things under control," the colonel said.

Capt. James Libby, of Burlington, Vt., said resistance inside Aachen appeared to be disorganized and was by small groups hidden in cellars and strongpoints covering street approaches.

Troops, Armor Bombed

Others watching the battle from a window were Capt. Gilbert Gilly Fuller, of Ludlow, Va.; Capt. Bernard Kotin, of Chicago, and Lieut. Allan Orrenman, of Conneaut, Ohio.

While the fighting carried into Aachen, shells and bombs poured on enemy troops and armor moving along secondary roads in the vicinity of Rohe, five miles northeast of Aachen.

The enemy kept his columns off the main roads and no traffic moved on the broad Adolf Hitler Highway from the direction of Cologne. But on the side roads there was a heavy movement of troops toward Aachen.

With the Germans pouring in reserves of their best troops, a major battle appeared to be developing in an enemy effort to break the Allied pincers closed around the city.

"Those roads near Rohe are alive with people," said Major Wilson McNamara, of Northfield, Vt.

Artillery Batteries Smashed

Planes smashed two German artillery batteries in that area.

Over Aachen an observer reported the telephone and telegraph building still intact.

"Do you want it bombed or shelled?" asked Capt. Phil Dunley, of Manlius, N. Y.

"Shelled," was the answer.

"Okey doke," McNamara said, and immediately gave directions to the artillery.

There was an occasional rattle of small-arms fire from across the railroad as the infantry moved forward.

Behind the infantry came self-propelled guns which had found a way to get across the tracks. They were commanded by Lieut. (Smoky) Sanders, of Texas.

Making Hot Coffee

While guns shook the building we were in, Pfc. Marion Krusienski, of Cannonsburg, Pa., calmly brewed hot coffee at the entrance, where a little knot of soldiers watched the drama unfolding before them.

Smoke boiling up from the center of the city enveloped the dome and spire of the Aachen Cathedral, burial place of Charlemagne. We could not tell from where we stood whether the historic monument had been hit, but it will be a wonder if it escapes all the destruction being hurled into the town.

Among the prisoners taken in the factory district was the lieutenant to whom the surrender ultimatum was presented last Tuesday. He had remarked when he received the ultimatum, to be handed to his commander, that he did not think it would be accepted and that the garrison would fight on. But when his troops met the Americans, he surrendered.

Veteran Leader Taken

One lieutenant colonel, a veteran soldier of 18 years who had received a decoration for breaking through with his regiment in Russia, was captured. He broke down in tears because his military career was ended in such an unheroic manner. Before his capture, he told his men:

"I have led regiments and I have led battalions and I will be damned if I cannot lead a squad out of this mess."

During the night, German raiders bombed the village of Brand, two miles southeast of Aachen, with the net result of killing two German civilians and wounding six.

Aachen—Dirty Derelict Of What Was A City

By William Smith White

Aachen, Germany, Oct. 13 (AP)—American infantrymen of a famous American division are digging and shooting dirty and bearded German soldiers today out of Aachen, street by street, house by house and block by block.

Ahead of us American dive bombers still are screaming down against the Germans holed up and in some cases trying to maneuver in the narrow and debris-filled streets.

This outfit entered the city of Aachen proper at 9.30 A. M., our artillery and mortars having cut out a lane ahead of us.

Nazis Holding Out Bitterly

The Americans had to cross 16 rows of railroad tracks to reach the main part of the town.

We are encountering no artillery fire as yet, but a few German machine-gun and rifle nests are holding out bitterly.

We are in the eastern section of the city and just now are working our way in. Buildings are aflame ahead of us and to our right and left and the sharp crackle of machine-gun and rifle fire resounds in these desolate streets.

First To Enter City

This outfit was the first actually to enter Aachen proper, although troops have been in the suburbs for days. What we found here is not really a city at all any more but only a dirty derelict of what had once been a city. Ruins are everywhere. Many of them go back to past months of heavy bombing. Even the trees are stripped. Pools of water stand in the streets. There is the smell of ashes, old and new. Occasionally we stumble across German dead.

Aside from the two little groups of evacuees who moved through our lines a while ago, I have not seen a single German civilian. Every ostensible civilian man from 15 to 60 is being carefully guarded, for the Americans do not know yet how many of these "civilians" may have been wearing Jerry uniforms earlier.

Object Lesson

When it is all over it will be surprising if it is found that as many as 10,000 of Aachen's normal population of 165,000 remained behind.

This city which refused an ultimatum is going to provide an object lesson to all Germany.

Much of what had appeared from the perimeter of the city to be still standing is in fact standing only like the bare bones of some flayed animal.

German prisoners are coming in rapidly. One company alone had taken 60 Germans by 1 P. M. Our tankbusters as yet have no German tank targets but are working as needed under the command of Lieut. August L. McColgan, of Catonsville, Md.

Food Situation "Bad"

Just how acute Aachen's food situation has been we have not yet been able to determine, although the prisoners all say it was "very bad."

Some of the civilians who have been escorted out of here have declared that they could not flee before this because SS troops had been shooting those who attempted it.

These people said this was the new SS attitude since the ultimatum: "If we have got to die, you have to die too."

"Another Day's Work"

In all this our troops—the finest I have ever seen in action—are going forward with a precise efficiency that is beautiful to see. Nearly all of them are old timers and this isn't exciting to them at all.

I just inquired "How's it going?" of Staff Sergeant Richard Mooney, of Greensburg, Pa., who has been overseas for 28 months and a veteran of the African, Italian, Sicilian, French and Belgian campaigns.

He spread out his hands, shrugged his shoulders, and grinned and said:

"Comme-ci comme-ca. It's just another day's work."

'Steamroller Of Fire'

London, Oct. 13 (AP)—The German radio said today that Aachen had been virtually flattened by "an unprecedented steamroller of fire."

Against the "mighty technical apparatus" the American forces were throwing against the city and a narrow Nazi-held corridor out of the city the Germans have moved in Tiger tanks and artillery, the broadcast said.

"At many points of the Aachen front, the opposing lines are so interlaced that the Americans had to call off their air support for fear of hitting their own ground troops," the radio said.

175 MORE ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED; 45 AIRCRAFT LOST BY U. S. TASK FORCE

OCT 14 1944

396 Of Foe's Airplanes Have Been Blown Up, 63 Of His Vessels Have Been Sunk Or Damaged In Two Days Of Bombing

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 13 (AP)—Spreading destruction over the strategic island of Formosa for the second day, powerful American air forces destroyed 175 Japanese planes, sank or damaged 28 surface ships and seriously damaged shore defenses and installations.

Nine hours after Admiral Chester W. Nimitz had given preliminary figures on Wednesday's (United States time) strike against Formosa, he released figures on the second strike which occurred yesterday (United States time).

At least 45 American planes were lost.

"Small groups of enemy aircraft made repeated attempts to torpedo or bomb carriers or supporting ships, but no damage was done to our surface ships," the admiral said.

Yesterday's action cost the Japanese 11 more ships sunk, 14 probably sunk and three others damaged. Thirty-seven small craft were sunk or damaged. Some 221 planes were shot down or destroyed on the ground the first day. Yesterday the Japanese lost 175 more.

Two-Day Score

The score for the two days was:

396 planes destroyed.
27 ships sunk.
14 ships probably sunk.
22 ships damaged.
37 small craft sunk or damaged.

The reports from the task force, under direct command of Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher and a part of the Third Fleet, tabulated the losses as follows:

Ships Sunk — Two large cargo ships, four medium cargo ships, nine small cargo ships, twelve coastal cargo ships.

Ships Probably Sunk—One large cargo ship, three medium cargo ships, three small cargo ships, one oil tanker, five coastal cargo ships and one mine sweeper.

Ships Damaged—Six medium cargo ships, 15 small cargo ships and one large troop transport.

From the reports it was indicated the Halsey-Mitscher task force achieved complete surprise in its Wednesday attack, which began before dawn.

Futile Defense

The Japanese were forced to concentrate on futile attempts to defend bases and shipping rather than attack American warships in force.

What attacks they were able to mount against the American ships cost them at least 11 planes, three to carrier night fighters and the remainder to ship ack-ack.

Nimitz said it was obvious the Japanese had few planes based on either Formosa or the Pescadores, a small island group west of Formosa off the China coast.

Heavy damage was inflicted on Formosa air base, port facilities and shore instlltions.

1,497 Planes Destroyed

Since August 30 the Halsey-Mitscher combination has destroyed 1,497 Japanese airplanes and damaged 89. In the same period 428 Japanese ships were sunk or damaged.

(First reports on both strikes against Formosa came from the Japanese radio. The Nipponese said 1,000 American planes attacked and that at least 110 had been shot down. They also claimed destruction of one United States carrier and one unidentified vessel and damaging of two ships. A DNB (German news agency) broadcast quoting Japanese sources said two American aircraft carriers and two battleships were sunk or damaged by the Japanese.)

Americans Destroy 396 Jap Planes In Two-day-long Attack on Formosa

OCT 14 1944

27 Ships Are Sunk, 14 Probably Sunk, and 22 Damaged in Powerful Assault—U. S. Losses Are but 45 Aircraft.

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—American carrier planes returned to Formosa on Thursday and destroyed 175 additional Japanese planes and sank eleven more ships. In the two-day-long attack, thus, a total of 396 Japanese aircraft were destroyed, twenty-seven ships were sunk, fourteen ships were probably sunk, twenty-two ships were damaged and thirty-seven small craft sunk or damaged.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, reporting the second day's action in a communique nine hours after he had given preliminary figures on Wednesday's assault, said that small groups of enemy aircraft made repeated attempts to torpedo or bomb the American carriers or supporting ships, but that "no damage was done to our surface ships."

He said that the American losses were forty-five planes in the two-day attack. Reports on the number of flight personnel rescued have not been received.

The concentrated Wednesday-Thursday bombing also took in the Pescadores Islands, immediately to the west of Formosa, an island fortress of the Japs which lies north of the Philippines blocking the approach to the China coast.

Complete Surprise Hinted.

Admiral Nimitz gave this preliminary resume of the damage done to Japanese shipping for the two days:

Ships Sunk: Two large cargo ships, four medium cargo ships, nine small cargo ships, twelve coastal cargo ships.

Ships Probably Sunk: One large cargo ship, three medium cargo ships, three small cargo ships, one small oil tanker, five coastal cargo ships, one minesweeper.

Ships damaged: Six medium cargo ships, fifteen small cargo ships, one large troop transport.

The wording of the communique suggested to some observers that the American task force achieved a complete surprise in its Wednesday attack which began before dawn; and that the Japanese were forced to concentrate on futile attempts to defend their Formosa bases and shipping rather than attack American warships.

The only mention of a Japanese counter-attack on the mighty Third Fleet was this: "During the late evening of October 11 and night of October 11-12, following the first day of the attack on Formosa, small groups of enemy aircraft attacked one of our fast carrier task forces operating in the approaches to the Japanese position in Formosa and the Ryukyus, and repeatedly attempted to torpedo or bomb the carriers or supporting ships in the force." Carrier-based night fighters shot down three enemy fighters in the early evening and the ships' anti-aircraft batteries brought down eight more later, Admiral Nimitz added.

The Japanese, it seemed obvious, had comparatively few aircraft based on either Formosa or in the Pescadores for the defense of those very important bases only 875 statute miles south of their homeland.

Admiral Nimitz said that heavy damage was done to air bases, port facilities and shore installations as well as to shipping and the Japanese air force.

The Formosa-Pescadores strike raised to 1,497 the number of Japanese planes destroyed by the same task force in its widespread attacks throughout the Western Pacific since August 30. In addition, eighty-nine planes were damaged. American planes and ships' guns have sunk or damaged 428 Japanese ships in the same period, and have sunk or damaged 247 small craft.

—Powerful American carrier forces destroyed 221 Japanese planes, sank 16 ships and damaged 19 at Formosa in the fourth successive powerhouse blow at Japan's inner defense line, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

This was the first confirmation of Tokyo radio reports that a thousand planes had raided the island blockading the approach to the China coast. The strike Wednesday (United States time) only 575 miles south of Japan proper climaxed a series of attacks on the Philippines, Formosa, the Ryukyus and Marcus within four days.

Ship Toll Listed

(Tokyo radio reported the punishing blows were carried into the fifth day when carrier planes returned to Formosa Thursday (United States time).

Without identifying the harbors where Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier planes discovered Japanese shipping, Admiral Nimitz reported this score:

SHIPS SUNK—Two large cargo, two medium cargo, 12 small cargo.

SHIPS DAMAGED—Two large cargo, seven medium cargo, ten small cargo.

Once again Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr.'s mighty Third Fleet failed to find any Japanese warships willing to resist his bold thrust inside the enemy's long-planned, inner-defense perimeter.

124 Bagged In Air

Of the Japanese airplanes destroyed, 124 were shot out of the air and 97 finished off on the ground.

American losses were 22 airplanes and "there was no damage to our surface ships," Nimitz said.

Loss of 221 airplanes was a severe blow to Japanese defenses, but comparative smallness of the number once again emphasizes how pinched the enemy apparently is for air power.

Air Defense Weak

Formosa is one of the largest islands in the Pacific, 239 miles from north to south and ranging to 93 miles wide. Strong defense would dictate that thousands of airplanes be based there. However, the fact that only 22 United States aircraft were downed is the strongest possible evidence that the enemy could have sent comparatively few more interceptors than Mitscher's pilots destroyed.

American airmen bombed and strafed Formosa from end to end.

Nimitz reported they did "extensive damage to hangars, buildings, oil dumps, warehouses, docks and industrial establishments at Einansho, Okayama, Tamsui, Heito, Reigaryo and Taichu."

Work Down West Side

The ships may have been found in Tamsui harbor on the north or at Heito near the southern tip. The raiders apparently worked down the western side of the island only about 100 miles from the China coast. They struck the most important rail centers on western Formosa, concentrating on the southwestern section where Einansho, Okayama, Heito and Reigaryo lie within a semi-circle 25 miles in diameter.

Never before has so much power been unleashed in such a brief period, as the last four days, against Nippon.

Expanding this offensive picture, a bomber armada completely knocked out plants supplying the enemy war machine with aviation gasoline and oil at Balikpapan on Borneo and American invaders of the Palaus swept on to their twelfth island in the south end of those stepping stones to the Philippines.

Luzon Targets Hit

Nimitz also announced last night that "a large force of carrier aircraft" pounced on Luzon in the Philippines Tuesday. He did not identify the targets but his reference to attacks on "enemy air bases" might be taken to mean the Manila area, twice hit in September, again was the target.

That made the four-day offensive read like this:

Sunday, October 8—Marcus Island, 1,135 miles southeast of Tokyo, methodically shelled day by warship guns, including the 16-inch guns of battleships. The defenses of this vital outpost were pulverized.

Monday, October 9—The Ryukyus, swept from end to end, including Amami Oshima, 200 miles south of Japan, by hundreds of carrier-based planes in an eight-hour assault, during which fifty-eight enemy surface craft were sunk or damaged and eighty-nine planes were destroyed.

Bong Takes Lead Again.

Tuesday, October 10—Luzon attacked. Last night's communique said that detailed reports of the damage inflicted here were not yet available.

Wednesday, October 11—Heavily fortified Formosa raided.

Gen. MacArthur announced today that five flights of Liberators took 135 tons of bombs on Tuesday to Balikpapan, source of 15 per cent of Japan's aviation gasoline and lubricating oil. Escorted for the first time by long-range Lightnings and preceded by Thunderbolts, they wrecked a cracking plant beyond repair, heavily damaged a refinery and started fires among storage tanks which sent up smoke for 20,000 feet.

At least thirty-six, and possibly forty-six enemy planes were shot down, two by Major Richard Bong of Poplar, Wis., who ran his string to thirty, making him America's leading combat ace. Headquarters listed three bombers and one fighter as lost.

The new landing in the southern Palaus was made on Wednesday on Arimaskuku Island more than six miles northwest of Peleliu. The Eighty-first Division troops found it deserted, possibly indicating that the Japanese are retreating northward for concentrated stands on the greater islands of Koror and Babelthuap, already under air attack from American planes based at Peleliu. The Japanese holding out on Angaur, southernmost of the Palaus, were squeezed into an area 150 yards square. On Peleliu, First Division Marines seized a height which overlooks the Bloody Nose Ridge area where the survivors of a Japanese garrison which has lost more than 10,000 men are making a last stand.

What the Enemy Says.

In a communique broadcast by the Tokyo radio and picked up today by the Associated Press, Japanese Imperial Headquarters declared that Japanese planes sank an Allied aircraft carrier from an Allied task force east of Formosa on the night of October 12 (Japanese time), and also sank an unidentified vessel and heavily damaged a second aircraft carrier. This enemy claim was wholly unconfirmed.

Domei, the Japanese official news agency, said in an English language broadcast intercepted by the FCC, that China-based planes of the Fourteenth United States Air Force participated on the Formosa raid. Domei noted that this was of particular significance, for it indicated that future attacks would be joint operations of land-based and sea-borne planes.

SUPERFORTRESSES HIT JAPS ON FORMOSA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14—(AP) A large force of B-29 Superfortresses attacked Japanese military targets on the island of Formosa today, the War department announced.

General H. H. Arnold, commanding general of the 20th Air Force, issued the announcement, through the War department, saying a detailed communique covering this operation would be issued as soon as sufficient details are available.

Photos Of Japan Sought By Navy

San Francisco, Oct. 13 (AP)—An urgent call for photographs of the Japanese mainland and of islands of Japan's war empire, to be used in invasion plans, was issued today by the navy.

Analysis of ground-level photographs, a statement from 12th Naval District headquarters said, "adds immeasurably to data gleaned from aerial photographs made under operational or combat conditions.

"In particular, shoreline photographs aid planners of landings on hostile areas in determining exactly the best zones for invasion and in estimating the requirements for operations preliminary to the invasion itself. Photographs may save lives."

Pictures are needed of the Japanese mainland, Japanese mandated and other islands, including Korea, Formosa and the Kuriles; Manchuria, the Philippines, occupied China, the Netherlands East Indies, Indo-China, Thailand, Malaya and Burma.

In addition, the navy wants to interview persons with first-hand knowledge of those areas.

Attacks Continuing, Japanese Declare

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—American warplanes renewed their attack on Formosa today, a Japanese imperial communique reported.

The broadcast said the "enemy planes" which made a 1,000-plane raid on the big island guarding the central China coast Thursday, struck again Friday morning (Japanese time).

"Fighting still continued on both sides up to about noon," the communique said.

Hits On Carriers Claimed

A previous Tokyo broadcast asserted one American carrier was sunk and another damaged off Formosa in night-long attacks Thursday. Another unidentified vessel also was reported sunk.

The broadcast followed a Japanese announcement yesterday that 1,000 American planes attacked Formosa's three most important towns.

A Domei news agency dispatch reported the attacking planes outnumbered the Japanese force. It said the interceptors teamed with a "fierce anti-aircraft barrage" so that the United States planes were able only "to bomb blindly and to strafe with machine guns before being forced to flee."

Says China Planes Aided

Domei also said in an English-language broadcast that China-based planes of the 14th United States Air Force participated in the Formosa raid. Domei said this was "of particular significance," and indicated future strikes would be joint operations of land-based and sea-borne planes.

The broadcast saw a three-fold purpose in the raids—(1) to hit the Japanese air force in Formosa, (2) to cut communications between Japan and the Philippines, (3) and as part of the general plan to conquer the Philippines "and ultimately to launch landing operations on the China continent."

Jap Communication Lines Disrupted in Philippines

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor Oct. 13 — (AP) Japan's communication lines probably were so badly disrupted by carrier strikes—strikes which still may be in progress—that Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Adm. Chester W. Nimitz now can halt Japanese freedom of movement between the various Philippine islands whenever they choose to combine forces for this purpose.

The Japanese said more than 1,000 American planes took part in the raids on Formosa. Judging from the huge forces available, this seems a reasonably accurate estimate.

This suggests that an American naval-air armada, one of the largest ever assembled, inflicted blows which shattered Japan's inter-island security in the Philippines.

The Formosan blows are believed to have deprived the Philippines of support from Japan.

The Japanese probably have replaced most of the pilots and part of the planes lost in the Philippines during September attacks. Most of the planes were destroyed on the ground, with comparatively small loss of pilots.

There is a strong likelihood, however, that shipping destroyed this week carried personnel replacements as well as vital machinery spare parts and other supplies needed for an estimated 150,000 Japanese combat troops in the Philippines.

(A Tokyo radio broadcast today referred to the "difficulties" of the Philippines obtaining imports from "other countries.")

In four days since Monday morning, carrier planes ranging from the Philippines almost to Japan have destroyed 485 planes and sunk or damaged 101 ships and 57 small craft.

The steady subtraction of the enemy's usable ships, confronting the Japanese with a difficult repair problem, is greatly interfering with Nippon's shipbuilding program.

Jubilation over the American successes was tempered by realization that the Japanese fleet almost has had time to reequip and restaff its carrier forces so badly smashed by the Fifth fleet of Adm. Raymond A. Spruance and Task Force 58 of Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher in the Philippines sea last June.

Japanese carrier strength is believed to be much less than that of the United States. Enemy carriers have not operated against the Allies since the Philippines sea defeat.

A minimum of three months would be required for the Japanese to reequip and restaff their carriers but they might have the strength now for another try. If the Japanese can maneuver into a favorable tactical position to meet the American fleet without facing overwhelming odds, it is likely to seek battle somewhere soon in defense of its shaky possessions.

Typhoon Aided U.S. Fleet In Attacks on Formosa

Battered Foe's Territory Just Ahead of Carrier Force

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 12 (AP).—A typhoon aided the Pacific Fleet this week in its raids on Formosa and the Ryukyu Islands, bringing the Japanese the worst storm of the year in that area just ahead of the big American carrier task force.

Weather charts show that the typhoon started near the equator in the Carolines area and was midway between Guam and Formosa Saturday. It was moving westward at the rate of about ten knots an hour.

Accelerating to twenty-five knots, it curved northward across the Gyukyus Monday and dissipate ditself along the Japanese coast Tuesday.

The American task force, taking advantage of the situation, moved in about two days behind the storm. While the violence of the storm undoubtedly hindered launching of planes, it must have brought far greater problems to the Japanese than to the Americans.

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 13 (AP)—Revising figures upward, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported tonight 77 Japanese ships, including four small submarines and more than 50 small craft, were sunk or damaged off the Ryukyu Islands Monday and 119 planes were destroyed or damaged.

Nimitz' first report on the strike listed 38 ships sunk or damaged, as well as more than 20 luggers. The total for planes was given as 89.

Riga Is Captured By Russian Troops

Fall of Latvian Capital Releases Veterans for Assault on Reich.

LONDON, Saturday, Oct. 14 — (AP) Russian shock troops captured the Latvian capital and big Nazi naval base of Riga yesterday, smashing seven miles through a strong maze of Axis defenses in a conquest which released hundreds of thousands of Soviet veterans for the battle of Germany itself.

At the same time Marshal Tito's headquarters in a special communique announced that partisan forces had "penetrated to the walls of Belgrade," Yugoslav capital, capturing en route the village of Beli Potok, six miles southeast of the Balkans cross-roads city on the Danube.

Battle for Reich Started

Berlin's high command indicated that the battle for pre-war Germany already had begun with massed Soviet tank attacks on the East Prussian garrison at the port of Memel, and a large-scale Red army attack across the Narew river in northern Poland on the lower side of East Prussia.

Moscow's communique was silent on the East Prussian drive, which is not unusual on the eve of major events, but there were unofficial reports that the Russians already had crossed from Lithuania into Memelland, annexed by Germany in March, 1939, at three points, and had also fought their way into the streets of Memel city.

The Russians apparently have been fighting on the outskirts of Memel since Wednesday at least, because Berlin's communique declared the Memel garrison on that day had shot up 44 Red army tanks.

Moscow likewise was silent on the operations across the rain-sodden Hungarian plains, but Berlin broadcasts told of a swirling battle by hundreds of tanks near Kecskemet, a rich provincial city famed for its apricot brandy 45 miles southeast of Budapest.

Moscow dispatches said the Russians to the northeast were within 15 miles of cutting the Budapest-Miskolc-Ungvar railway, the supply backbone for Hungarian and Nazi troops fighting to hold their Carpathian mountain positions along the Czechoslovakian border on the northern side of Hungary.

Nazi Troops Imperiled

These troops were increasingly imperiled in the rear by the Soviet surge toward Budapest, and may have to abandon their positions hurriedly in an Axis retreat similar to that under way now in Transylvania to the south.

An Algiers radio broadcast said that Russian and attached Czechoslovak troops threatening Hungary on the north already had cleared all the mountain passes between Poland and Slovakia, and the Czechoslovak press bureau announced in London last night that Czechoslovak officials already had entered the country in the wake of troops fighting their way through the Dukla pass into their homeland.

Frantisek Nemes, minister of reconstruction in the London exile regime, and Gen. Rudolf Viest, his deputy and commander of free Czechoslovak forces, had entered the country, the bureau said.

Premier-Marshal Joseph Stalin announced the fall of long-besieged Riga.

Riga Falls to Reds

A midnight Soviet bulletin said Riga, last big Nazi core of resistance in Latvia, fell after "street fighting of an extremely fierce character in which the Hitlerites were driven out street by street," and suffered heavy losses. Many cannon, machineguns, mortars, trucks, military stores and railway cars were captured.

The supplementary communique also said tha Russian planes and artillerymen had killed hundreds and perhaps thousands of Germans who attempted an amphibious strike behind their lines at Palanga, on the Baltic coast in western Lithuania 14 miles above embattled Memel. The Germans approached in 24 barges, and the Russians sank four of them, spilling the occupants of others into the sea where they perished, and capturing 300.

Gen. Andrei Yeremenko's Second Baltic army troops and those of Gen. Ivan Maslennikov's Third Baltic army crashed into Riga, a city of 385,000 which the Germans occupied from 1917 to 1919 in the First World War and which they captured July 1, 1941, in the attack on Russia.

Yeremenko's men struck from the east and southeast, and Maslennikov's forces descending from freed Estonia hit from the northeast. The Russians had to reduce a savagely resisting enemy entrenched in some of the strongest fortifications on the eastern front, rows of concrete and steel pillboxes, tank traps and barbed wire.

Stalin ordered a salute of 24 salvos from 324 of Moscow's guns for the conquest, a development which promises early liquidation of from 10 to 15 Nazi divisions cut off in Western Latvia. Tuesday when Gen. Ivan Bagramian's First Baltic army drove a wedge to the sea just north of the East Prussian port of Memel.

Releases Soviet Veterans

Besides giving the Russians another valuable port for easing the supply problem, the fall of Riga released perhaps 1,000,000 men for the big battle for the soil of Germany itself.

A few hours before Stalin's announcement, Berlin acknowledged that the Russians had captured the eastern half of Riga, which is bisected by the mile-wide Daugava river. Under a violent Soviet shelling the Germans retreated across to the western side of the river, Berlin said.

"Several Russian attempts to capture river crossings were smashed," said the Nazi military commentator, Col. Ernst Von Hammer.

The Germans also announced the fall of Rozan, west bank town on the Narew river in northern Poland, 45 miles northeast of Warsaw and only 33 miles from the lower East Prussian frontier.

Berlin said a "large-scale Soviet offensive" had begun beyond the Narew river by Gen. G. F. Zakharov's Second White Russian army, intended to slice northwestward toward Danzig and lop off East Prussia in cooperation with other Soviet forces attacking from Lithuania on the north and east.

RIGA IS CAPTURED BY SOVIET TROOPS IN LATVIAN DRIVE

Tito Announces Russians and Yugoslavs Have Entered Belgrade.

London, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—Marshal Joseph Stalin tonight announced the capture of Riga, Latvian port and capital.

An order of the day broadcast by the Moscow radio and recorded by the Soviet monitor said the Baltic stronghold fell to the combined assault of the second and third Baltic front armies and a salute of twenty-four salvos from 324 guns was ordered.

DNB in a Berlin broadcast said Rozan, forty-four miles north of Warsaw and thirty-three miles southeast of the East Prussian border had been evacuated by the Germans.

At the same time a special communique from Marshal Tito's Partisan Army in Yugoslavia said that Russian and Yugoslav forces had penetrated the walls of Belgrade, Serb capital.

In a broadcast Col. Ernst von Hammer, German military commentator, stated "the last remaining German positions east of the Daugava, even those inside Riga, were taken back to the western bank of the river."

Running north and south through Riga to the Gulf of Riga, the Daugava splits the city in two.

"Several Russian attempts to capture the river crossings here were smashed," Von Hammer reported.

Reds Gain on Wide Front.

Moscow, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—Russian tanks and infantry stormed the centuries-old Junkers lands of East Prussia, barely nine miles northeast of the important city of Tilsit today, while in doomed Hungary the victorious Red Army raced for the 160-mile distant Austrian frontier.

The East Prussian frontier was cracked in the Memelland sector. Hitler annexed this region from Lithuania in 1939 thus recovering territory which was held by Germany for hundreds of years before the first world war.

[A Paris broadcast heard by Reuters said today that the Russians are reported to have crossed the east Prussian border at three different points.]

Hungary Close to Quitting.

Great offensives against the northern and southern extremity of the Reich rolled back maimed German divisions like driftwood in a flood.

Hungary's admission of defeat was expected hourly as Russian columns were converging on Budapest along the main rail lines, approximately sixty miles east of the capital and reportedly less than that on the south. All major communications between Hungary and Serbia were reported in Russian hands.

Reds Face No Big Barrier.

No natural barriers stood in the way of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's four-pronged attack on Budapest across the Hungarian plains.

Russian forces were less than fifteen miles from the only Hungarian rail lines connecting Budapest with Magyar troops at the Carpathian passes in Ruthenia. The routed German-Hungarian forces in northern Transylvania were virtually cut off.

Southern Hungary was a race-track for Russian armor. The Hungarians were reported resigned to the immediate loss of Kecskemet, rich provincial city famed for its peach brandy, situated forty-nine miles southeast of Budapest.

Wilting Hungarian resistance all along the invasion front seemed to substantiate diplomatic hints that the exhausted satellite nation was about to quit Hitler.

Russians Look To Austria

The mop-up of Hungary was counted on to prepare the springboard for the invasion of Austria, as well as to assure early liberation of the Croatian and Slovenian areas of Yugoslavia, and to pinch off the Germans in Slovakia.

While the campaign in Hungary took on the appearance of a push-over offensive, East Prussia and the remainder of the German front of the Baltic coast was a heavy slugging match all the way.

Nazis Bolster Forces

The Germans, again scraping reserves from the rear bases in East Prussia, were determined to wage along the Szeszuppe the same fanatical defense that held up Marshal Ivan Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian Army two months. Nevertheless, attacks toward Tilsit brought the Russians within 42 miles of Insterburg and 65 miles of Konigsberg, East Prussian capital.

(The Czechoslovak Government has officially announced that all Carpathian passes leading into Czechoslovakia have been cleared of German troops, BBC said today in a broadcast recorded by NBC in New York.)

34 Nazi Vessels Sunk By Russian Bombers

LONDON, Saturday, Oct. 14—(AP) Russian planes and torpedo boats sank 34 German vessels, including eight transports, in two-day attacks on the Norwegian port of Kirkenes and shipping in the Barnets and other northern seas, said a Russian communique broadcast early today by the Moscow radio.

Kirkenes is the port which German troops would most likely attempt to reach in their flight from northern Finland.

The communique, recorded here by the Soviet monitor, said on Wednesday and Thursday planes of the Russian northern fleet sank the following 31 vessels in attacks on Kirkenes and Barents sea shipping: six transports, one gunboat, four patrol ships, one mine sweeper, five barges, five patrol launches and nine motorboats.

Big Red Force Seizes Port in North Finland

Finns Attack Germans Near Swedish Border; Nazis Fear Invasion of Norway

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP).—Soviet troops have occupied the port of Liinahamaraio in the Petsamo area of northern Finland, the German International Information Bureau said today.

Across from this northern terminus of the Arctic highway and near the Swedish border, a Helsinki communique reported, Finnish troops were attacking German lines.

In the Kemi River area the Finns reached the Koivy River.

D. N. B., German official news agency, reported that large-scale fighting by German Alpine troops west of Murmansk continued against strong Soviet formations.

The importance attached by the Soviets to these engagements, D. N. B. said, may be gauged from their having concentrated about seventeen to eighteen divisions west of Murmansk and at the Arctic coast, including several tank formations with a total of about 300 tanks.

The German agency said that such a concentration in a comparatively small area showed a Soviet intention not only to destroy German groups in northern Finland but also to advance into Norway.

DNB said that at the focal point of Soviet attacks yesterday near Luostari, Alpine troops were able to maintain their positions and inflict heavy losses on the enemy. Fresh Soviet landings at Petsamo bay were reported. DNB said all Soviet attacks on the Arctic front were foiled by strong German defenses.

The German transocean news agency said only a minor German garrison protected Liinahamara when it was occupied by Russian troops. Before withdrawing, transocean said, the Germans destroyed all port establishments, fortifications and batteries.

Reds Occupy Petsamo Area Port

London, Oct. 13 (AP)—Soviet troops have occupied the port of Liinahamari, in the Petsamo area of northern Finland, a Berlin broadcast said today.

The Petsamo area was turned over to Russia under terms of Finland's armistice with the Soviet Union and Britain.

Petsamo itself still is in German hands, the Transocean agency reported later.

Reds 12 Miles From Norway

Liinahamari is the northern terminus of the Arctic highway, at the top end of the Bothnian Gulf, and the landing puts the Russians only 12 air miles from Norway.

Light German naval forces and Russian speedboats were reported to have clashed off Petsamo, which has been attacked constantly by the Russians from the air during the last few days.

Mastery of the area would menace the escape route of German armies trying to get into Norway.

Finns Report Advances

Stockholm, Oct. 13 (AP)—Finnish troops advancing behind the retiring Germans near the Arctic Circle in the direction of Rannu and Rovaniemi have captured defense lines in the Tainale area, a Helsinki communique said today. The Finns said they passed Korpikylae and reached the Koivy river.

Allied Bombers Strike Hard on Western Front

Austria, Hungary, Holland and German Frontier Towns Are Pounded

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP).—Between 750 and 1,000 long-range 15th Air Force heavy bombers and escorts from Italy today attacked Nazi war plants in Vienna and western Hungary, while hundreds of fighter bombers on the western front paced the ground fighting with raids on Aachen and German garrisons in western Holland.

Aachen is reported about 85 per cent destroyed.

Dismal weather grounded British-based heavies, but the American 9th and Royal Air Force 2d Tactical Air Forces shuttled from French airfields to the front lines.

The score still remained to be tallied tonight, but a recapitulation of recent activity on the air front demonstrated the ever-increasing imporance of the air arm for tactical operations.

The R. A. F. Bomber Command reported complete destruction of Kleve and Emmerich, German frontier towns in the Nijmegen area, attacked Oct. 8 by Lancasters and Halifaxes.

"The towns which served as advanced bases for defense of the German frontier now are so completely devastated as to be useless to the enemy," the Air Ministry said.

American heavy bombers "severely damaged" six war plants in attacks on Bremen and Osnabruck yesterday.

Half of a flotilla of about 100 barges in the Scheldt estuary were hit by R. A. F. fighter-bombers which flew about 800 sorties yesterday.

The powerful formations of Italy-based heavies went as far as Silesia, pounding industrial targets and railroads over which the Germans are supplying their troops opposing the Russian drive toward Budapest.

It was the second successive day that the 15th Air Force had dispatched unusually large forces to batter the Germans, yesterday's attack on the outskirts of Bologna having been of unusual intensity.

Liberators bombed the Floridsdorf rail yards and near-by Austrian motor works in the western quarter of Vienna, where trucks, tools and transport components are manufactured.

Rail yards thirty-five miles west of Budapest on the main line to Vienna were struck by Liberators. Rail yards at Szekesfehrver, forty-five miles southwest of Budapest, also were attacked.

BIG YANK BOMBERS BLAST VIENNA AREA

London, Oct. 13 (A. P.). — Powerful forces of American heavy bombers from Italy attacked the Vienna area, German Silesia and western Hungary today while fleets from Britain and France pounded heavily at Nazi front line positions on the western front.

The heavy bombers from Italy attacked industrial objectives and railroads over which the Germans were supplying their troops in the swaying lines in Hungary before the Red Army march against Budapest.

Overnight, British Mosquitoes from Britain bombed the German port of Hamburg and unspecified targets in western Germany.

Up to 1,000 planes from Italy participated in attacks in the south.

Liberators bombed the Floridsdorf railyards and the nearby Austrian motor works in western Vienna. The Banhida north and east railyards, thirty-five miles west of Budapest on the trunk line to Vienna, and the yards at Szekesfehrver, forty-five miles southwest of Budapest, also were attacked.

One night plane was lost. A German minesweeper was set afire off the Dutch coast last night.

United States medium and light bombers based in France added their weight to the siege of Aachen by attacking bridges and road junctions outside the Prussian frontier city.

The United States Ninth Air Force yesterday flew more than 1,300 sorties, 1,000 of them by fighter-bombers, in attacks on Aachen and German communications in the Ruhr, where sixty-two locomotives were destroyed and thirty-one damaged. Railways were cut at twenty-six places and 207 railway cars knocked out.

Long-range British Mosquitoes flew all the way to Czecho-Slovakia and Yugoslavia and destroyed fourteen aircraft and damaged a number of others on the ground. A Canadian wing racked up eight on two airfields sixty miles south of Prague and another group got six on two fields near Zagreb, in Yugoslavia. For the latter outfit it was a round trip of more than 2,000 miles.

W. Va. Pilot Downs Five Nazi Planes In Day

London, Oct. 13 (AP)—Lieut. Charles E. Yeager, Mustang pilot from Hamlin, W. Va., was credited today with shooting down five Nazi planes over Hanover yesterday instead of four.

Fellow-pilots reported seeing Yeager's fifth Messerschmitt crash to earth in the dogfight over the German city. The 21-year-old pilot now has seven Nazi planes to his credit officially and an eighth that he cannot claim. A Junkers 88 went down under his fire while he was flying a "non-operational" mission before receiving orders to return to combat after being wounded.

UNREST SPREADS THROUGH HUNGARY

Wenner

LONDON, Oct. 13—(AP) Early capitulation of Hungary was awaited tonight as Russian tanks battered their way toward Budapest and reports from neutral sources told of mounting panic and confusion in that capital.

In Moscow, the official newspaper Izvestia surmised that "the whole country is going to blow up at any moment."

Ankara and Stockholm dispatches said the Hungarian cabinet was meeting tonight to decide finally on capitulation or a suicide stand. The Paris radio reported the cabinet already had decided to begin evacuating Budapest tomorrow.

Other reports told of thousands now fleeing the city, and of looting and rioting in some quarters. Censored news from Budapest itself screened, but did not hide, the seriousness of the situation. The government-controlled press and radio poured out admonishments against panic and frantic arguments against thoughts of surrender.

A "national committee of Hungarian members of parliament," representing a fusion of former right wing political groups, held its first meeting last night in Budapest with the avowed aim of "consolidating all national forces for the defense of the Hungarian people."

Meanwhile, another member of the government, minister of interior Nikolaus Bonczos, quit his post "for reasons of health," and DNB, official German News agency, said Baron Peter Schell had been appointed to succeed him.

German news agencies and radio commentators admitted the great tank battle raging in southern Hungary was "increasing in ferocity," but declared that German and Hungarian forces were stemming the Russian advance. The Nazi-controlled Oslo radio reported that "Soviets have been formed by the Russians" in Hungarian areas already occupied.

Bulgarian Withdrawal Advances

London, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Moscow radio said today that withdrawal of Bulgarian troops and administrative officials from Greek territory, begun October 10, has been completed in compliance with Allied demands preliminary to armistice negotiations.

There was no specific mention of evacuation of Yugoslav territory—another Allied stipulation.

ROMANIA ARRESTS GROUP OF TRAITORS

Bucharest, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—The arrest of Romanians accused of war crimes began today. A decree authorized the Government to use whatever measures to establish the political and criminal responsibilities of "the authors of the country's disaster."

Immediately arrested were Ion Gigurtu, Premier under former King Carol and director of Romania's gold mining company, Mika; Orwaler Pop, former Minister of Justice, and Mihail Manoilescu, former Minister of Foreign Affairs. Orwaler Pop and Manoilescu signed the Vienna dictate which ceded Transylvania to Hungary.

A number of higher administrative officers of Transnistria also were taken into custody. Gen. George Potopenanu, Minister of Economy and Finance, who held a similar post under Marshal Antonescu and for two weeks was governor of Transnistria, resigned today.

100,000 Men Repairing Bombed London Homes

London, Oct. 13 (AP)—Lord Woolton, Minister of Reconstruction, said today that 100,000 workers had been assigned to repairing robot-damaged homes in the London area, but he warned the public against expecting a quick solution of the housing problem.

Since Prime Minister Churchill reported to Commons in August that it was estimated 800,000 homes in the London area had been damaged by robots, the number has been raised to well over 1,000,000.

Referring to homes made uninhabitable, Lord Woolton said that "as a result of the bombing we have lost 130,000 houses in the London area" and that "even with all the facilities we can bring to bear" reconstruction will take many months.

ROBOT KILLS TWINS

London, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—Flying bombs were launched over the North Sea against southern England and the London area last night.

Again the familiar "damage and casualties have been reported" appeared in the official announcement.

One robot burst in the air, another struck a tavern causing damage but no casualties, and another crashed in open ground, but its spreading blast wrecked a number of houses and caused casualties.

Three British fighter pilots pounced on one robot after it passed over an east Anglian town and, in a simultaneous attack, brought it down in open country.

Mrs. J. Disbrey heard one bomb coming and threw herself across her 16-year-old twin sons, asleep in bed. The bomb wrecked her home and two adjoining houses. Rescuers found the twins dead and Mrs. Disbrey severely injured.

Bombings of Hull Killed 1,200

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP)—The mercantile city of Hull has been hit by high explosive and incendiary bombs in eighty-two air raids since the war began, suffering 3,000 casualties including 1,200 deaths, the Hull emergency committee reported tonight. Only 5,938 of 92,660 houses in the city of 315,000 population remained intact.

Eric M. Knight Honored

Legion of Merit Awarded Posthumously to Author

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP).—Eric M. Knight, noted author who was killed Jan. 14, 1943, in a transport plane crash while en route to Africa from the United States, has received a posthumous award of the Legion of Merit, it was disclosed today by a statement that the medal had been given to his widow, Captain Jere Knight, W. A. C., of Pleasant Valley, Pa., now stationed here.

Mr. Knight, who was born in England and became an American citizen, was the author of "This Above All," "Lassie Come Home" and "The Flying Yorkshireman."

Japs Cite Plan To Carry Goods To U. S. Prisoners

London, Oct. 13 (AP)—The Japanese news agency, Domei, said today the Japanese Government soon would send a ship to Nakhodka, a Soviet port near Vladivostok, to pick up accumulated relief goods intended for United States war prisoners and civilian internees being held in Japan.

The State Department announced in Washington, on September 1, that arrangements had been completed for a Japanese ship to enter the Soviet port to take on 1,500 tons of accumulated relief supplies.

The American Red Cross announced September 27 that the Japanese now were holding 29,250 Americans, 19,934 of them prisoners of war and the remainder civilians.

Lyttelton Quick To Offer Apology

New York, Oct. 13 (AP) — Capt. Oliver Lyttelton made a personal apology in the House of Commons last June 21, the day after he made his remarks about America which Representative Clare Booth Luce quoted tonight in her Chicago speech.

The British Minister of Production did not deny he had remarked at an American Chamber of Commerce luncheon in London that the United States had provoked Japan to attack but disclaimed any intention of giving this as his belief.

Asserting that he only was trying to express gratitude for lend-lease aid prior to the Japanese assault, Lyttelton said:

"I ask the House to believe that the fault was one of expression and not of intention, and I hope that this apology will undo any harm which the original words may have caused here or in the United States."

Paratroop Chaplain Missing

LONDON, Oct. 13 (AP).—Father Bernard Egan, thirty-seven years old, first Roman Catholic chaplain in England to win parachute wings was reported today among parachute troops missing in northwestern Europe. He was awarded the Military Cross in March for conspicuous service with parachute troops in Sicily.

German Novelist Killed in Air Raid

London, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—Jakob Schaffner, 69 years old, Swiss-born German novelist, and his wife were killed in the bombing of Strasbourg on September 23, the German radio said today.

British Paper Hopes AFL Will Join World Talks

London, Oct. 13 (AP)—The British Labor party's organ, the Daily Herald, expressed hope today that the American Federation of Labor would join in the January World Trade Union conference in Britain.

The Federation has refused to sit with Russian delegates, contending Soviet trade unions are not free and independent organizations, the newspaper said. The CIO has agreed to participate.

Asserting that the conference must play a part in shaping the peace, the Daily Herald said:

"The issues which will face us at this great gathering are so vital to organized workers that the AFL should surely feel justified in putting aside its objections."

Yorkshire Miners Give Strike Notice

London, Oct. 13 (AP)—Miners in the Yorkshire coal-field district, largest in Britain, will strike three weeks hence unless an agreement is reached with employers on minimum pay, their leaders have advised the Government.

Spokesmen said last night the miners had agreed to work Saturday afternoons to increase production, but, they said, this brought complications involving the guaranteed minimum pay of $20 weekly.

The owners have refused to make up the difference in subminimum earnings in an ordinary work-week when the extra afternoon brings the miners's pay above $20.

Hollywood Returns To Screen In Paris

Paris, Oct. 13 (AP)—Paris moviegoers saw their favorite Hollywood stars tonight for the first time since 1940 as the resumption of electric service permitted film houses to reopen.

Parisians had their choice of seeing Ginger Rogers, Deanna Durbin, Robert Young and Charles Laughton.

During the Nazi occupation, Paris theaters were allowed to present only German-supervised pictures.

Dempsey and Carpentier Meet Again in Paris

PARIS, Oct. 13 (AP).—Jack Dempsey met his old ring antagonist, Georges Carpentier, for the first time in more than a decade last night in the Champs Elysees Night Club, where the retired French boxer, now fifty, is manager.

Dempsey, former heavyweight champion and now a Coast Guard physical instructor, was on an overnight trip from England.

Caffery Arrives in Paris

PARIS, Oct. 13 (AP).—Jefferson Caffery, American representative to the French provisional government, arrived at Paris late today by plane from New York via England.

[Caffery holds the personal rank of Ambassador, but Washington has not recognized General Charles de Gaulle's organization as a government.]

FRANCO MEN SEIZED BY SPANISH MAQUIS

Captives, Taken in Frontier Skirmishes, Are Moved to Hideouts in France

PARIS, Oct. 13 (AP) — Several small clashes between Spanish frontier guards and Spanish Republicans of the French Maquis have been reported from the frontier region.

Republicans have crossed the border in isolated places and in some cases have taken prisoner Franco guards, bringing them back to mountain hideaways on the French side, it was said.

The Spanish Republican newspaper in Paris, Reconquista de España, which was part of the underground press during the German occupation and now is published openly, said today that the French army had issued instructions to the French Forces of the Interior that Spaniards serving in the FFI either be enrolled in the Foreign Legion or in labor battalions.

The newspaper quoted a captain of a Spanish unit fighting in FFI ranks against the German pocket remaining in the Lorient area as replying:

"We don't want to go into the Foreign Legion or labor battalions. We want to remain in the FFI for the duration under the same conditions as the French, but conserving our autonomy in view of the problem of the armed struggle toward the Pyrenees. We hope that when the war is finised here democratic France will help us re-establish a republic in Spain."

Reports that Generalissimo Francisco Franco had sent a note to Gen. Charles de Gaulle offering aid against "rebel" French Maquis caused a stir among Spanish Republicans in Paris, who asserted that until recently the Franco Government of Spain had been bitterly anti-de Gaulle and strongly pro-Vichy.

Banshee-Yelling Yank Takes Pillbox

By Franklin Banker

With a United States Infantry Division Inside the Siegfried Line, Oct. 9 (AP—Delayed)—A fearless 25-year-old farm boy from Pores Knob, N. C., who kept a German garrison awake half the night by yelling like a maniac and firing a captured machine gun, laconically informed his company commander today he had captured a Siegfried Line pillbox after killing 4 of the enemy and capturing 18.

In almost the same breath Staff Sergeant Roy C. Russell, with an embryo arsenal strapped to his waist, announced his next objective would be another pillbox a short distance away.

A Terror With A Gun

"If I could get that I'd command the whole valley," said this genial Southerner, whose squirrel hunting at home made him a terror with a gun.

"He's crazy enough to get down into that, despite all kinds of German guns around there," said the company commander, Capt. Daniel J. Manning, of Northampton, Mass., chuckling over the way Russell unnerved the Germans by yelling at the top of his voice.

"Not A Bit Of Trouble"

First Sergeant Clarence Umberger, Tennessee, Ill., said:

"I'll bet they thought a wild man was after them."

Although the whole regiment praised his prowess in taking the pillbox, Russell said that it hadn't been a bit of trouble.

The dramatic scene occurred 40 miles south of Aachen.

Manning told how the sergeant started the job last Saturday by machine-gunning three Germans who were running toward the pillbox. The entrance to the fortification had been covered with dirt by a bulldozer at least a week before, trapping the garrison.

Puts Nazi Out Of Business

Russell saw shovelfuls of dirt being thrown up by a German who was trying to uncover the entrance. The sergeant put him out of business with three grenades.

On Sunday afternoon after American mortar fire knocked out an enemy machine gun and mortar batteries protecting the pillbox, Russell worked his way up to it through sniper fire and coaxed out its nine occupants with a couple of grenades and plenty of yells.

By the time he conducted his prisoners to the company command post, nine more Germans sneaked into the pillbox under cover of dusk and drove him off with automatic pistols and machine guns. When he returned today after a night of his best banshee yells, Russell frightened out this second shift with a half-dozen rifle grenades.

Lost Track Of Kills

From foxholes Pfc. Dennie Richardson, Shelbyville, Ind.; Private Cortland Dennison, Cane Valley, Ky., and Private William Ahlvorn, Arlington, Cal., had covered Russell during his hazardous forays on the pillbox. They and Sergt. Robert Lamphere, Chicago; Pfc. Paul J. Champagne, Reserve, La., and Private Clement E. Mejia, El Paso, Texas, are in the pillbox tonight.

The sergeant has killed so many Germans he's lost track of the total. Sergt. Joseph Anton, of Fairfax, Minn., estimated the total at 50, and remarked that "he's killed more than I've seen on the front."

Russell has a couple of bullet scars he received in Normandy, but he is prouder of two holes in his helmet, where a bullet went in and out. He escaped with only a slight burn.

Disturbances in Belgium During Franc Trade-Ins

Some Profiteers Try to Collect New Government Notes

BRUSSELS, Oct. 13 (AP).—Scores of disturbances broke out in Brussels and other Belgian cities today as Belgians lined up before public buildings in an effort to exchange their old franc notes for new government-issued notes.

From tonight the old notes of 100 francs or more are invalid. Thousands had waited until the last day of the five-day period given to exchange the old for the new.

Every Belgian was able to exchange 2,000 francs immediately. Remaining francs had to be turned in to allow the government to determine how many notes were put into circulation during the German occupation and to prepare war-profit taxation.

War profiteers sought to make partial declarations an dto have others turn in their francs. Many were arrested, including sixty in Brussels, and millions of francs were confiscated by police.

GERMANS SURVIVE WORST AIR ATTACK

Still Give Only Inches Before Bologna In Italy

Rome, Oct. 13 (AP)—German troops before Bologna, like their predecessors at Cassino, came up out of their foxholes today after enduring what the 15th Air Force described as the "greatest aerial assault of the war on a single target area" and rejoined the furious struggle for the final hills before the Po valley metropolis.

There was little doubt that yesterday's tremendous strike by hundreds of American heavy and medium bombers inflicted serious damage on Nazi installations, yet today's Allied communique reported heavy fighting in progress with "no material advances" around the embattled highway center of Livergnano ten miles south of Bologna.

"Minor Local Dents"

(A German broadcast said Yank troops, attacking in the wake of the bombers, made "minor local dents" in the Nazi line, but declared they were eliminated by counterattacks. It said "grim fighting" continued.)

East and west of the Florence-Bologna highway the Americans captured several more hills, while the British Eighth Army near the Adriatic moved up Highway 9 to a point about three miles northwest of Savignano.

Livergnano, to which the Germans have clung with grim tenacity for several days, is partly outflanked by American infantry moving through the hills on either side.

Mountain Taken

Mount Delle Formiche, two and a half miles east of Livergnano, was captured yesterday. Other troops, moving forward west of the highway, seized Monteramici, overlooking a subsidiary road to Bologna. American troops have taken over 300 prisoners in recent fighting.

In their advance beyond Savignano near the Adriatic, British troops captured Balignano, Massa, Badia and Montiano.

On the west coast American troops clung to Mount Canala, about four miles southeast of Massa, western terminus of the Gothic Line.

Drive On Bologna Is Resumed

Rome, Oct. 13 (AP)—Heavy fighting flared up in the hills along the Florence-Bologna road today following yesterday's massive air assault on German positions and installations south of Bologna, key communications center of the Po Valley.

Allied headquarters announced that Fifth Army troops took more than 300 prisoners in the new assault in the central Italian sector.

Aided by warm weather American forces pushed ahead in the wake of yesterday's tremendous aerial attacks and partly flanked Livergnano, ten miles south of Bologna on Highway 65, the communique said.

Little Gain Made

The doughboys again encountered stiff enemy resistance. In describing the heavy fighting astride Highway 65 the communique said "no material advances have been made."

Foot troops reached the summit of one hill only nine miles southwest of Castel san Pietro on the Bologna-Rimini road, while other forces captured Mount Delle Formiche, two and a half miles east of Livergnano where the fiercest fighting seems to have centered.

Yesterday's pulverizing raids by American planes in their greatest blow yet in the north Italian campaign were made in an attempt to blast a pathway into the Po Valley for Fifth Army forces, which have been virtually stalled south of Bologna.

Cling To Peak

West of Highway 65, Fifth Army units pushed a mile beyond Monteramici, overlooking a subsidiary road to Bologna. On the west coast troops of the 92nd American infantry Division clung to Mount Canala, about four miles southeast of Massa, western terminus of the Cothic Line.

Meanwhile, the Eighth Army found itself on firmer ground and appeared to be moving steadily forward everywhere, except in the immediate Adriatic coastal sector, where a succession of streams at short intervals gave the Germans a wide choice of defensive positions.

Headquarters disclosed the three heavy bombers and seventeen other planes were missing from yesterday's aerial operations in the Mediterranean sector, which included strafing of airfields and other targets in Austria and Hungary.

GERMAN TROOPS EVACUATE ATHENS

Gen. Wilson Tells Greeks Day of Liberation is at Hand.

ROME, Oct. 13—(AP) Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied commander in the Mediterranean, told the Greek people in a broadcast tonight that "your day of liberation is at hand," and the Allied-controlled Rome radio declared German troops had evacuated the capital city of Athens.

Unofficial reports said the Greek flag was flying over the acropolis in Athens after three and a half years of Nazi domination of the ancient city. (The French-controlled Algiers radio declared that both Athens and its nearby port of Piraeus had been liberated.)

Final Victory Assured

"We come now to sweep away all traces of the invader, and, by use of your ports and airfields, to harass his retreat," General Wilson said in his broadcast. "Final victory is now assured."

A simultaneous proclamation by the Greek government-in-exile called on all Greeks to obey the government, promised "just punishment" of everyone who had collaborated with the Germans and urged avoidance of political disputes.

Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British forces which this week swept into Corinth, 40 miles from Athens, after a swift clean-up of the Peloponnesus peninsula, asked the Greeks to stay off the roads and to conserve such supplies as they had as relief could not be immediate.

"For the second time in this war a force under my command is about to land in Greece, but, I am thankful to say, under very different conditions," General Wilson said, referring to the ineffectual British effort to defend Greece in the spring of 1941.

(Allied authorities in London said they could not interpret General Wilson's announcement that his troops were "about to land" in Greece, inasmuch as they landed in the Peloponnesus late in September. They suggested the proclamation might have been written before the invasion, or that he was referring to reinforcements.)

[London newspapers unanimously interpreted the statement to mean new week-end landings, and one dispatch said Wilson had "taken the unprecedented step of announcing a British landing before it has been made." Stories from Cairo and Allied Mediterranean headquarters said new landings would be made in the Athens area.

[The Brazzaville radio, commenting on the prisoner's, said that in North Africa the "assumption is there will soon be more British landings in Greece."]

[The London radio, in a broadcast recorded by the Columbia Broadcasting System, said that the proclamation, although broadcast yesterday, was recorded " a few days ago" by General Wilson.]

"At that time (1941)," Wilson said, "the armies of the German aggressor were building up in the north in preparation for their treacherous attack. Now the picture is very different. The aggressors have been defeated, but not before they have inflicted three and a half years of untold suffering and privation on a brave nation.

"When we were forced to leave Greece in April, 1941, you called to us 'come back again,' and we are now responding to that call."

The Allied commander said administrative services would be restored as quickly as possible in order to speed relief to the Greek people.

Calls for Cooperation

"To achieve this object I call on you all to work together, both amongst yourselves and with us and devote to that end the qualities of determination and self-sacrifice you have shown during these last bitter years."

The Greek government-in-exile called upon all guerrillas, police officers and patriotic organizations to obey every Allied order.

"People of Greece," the proclamation said. "The great hour of freedom has come. Allied troops, victorious on all fronts, already are on Greek soil. Their intention is to dispose of the enemy that still exists in Greece, to reestablish our national sovereignty and to cooperate with us towards the complete and speedy defeat of the enemy."

British naval planes carried out heavy attacks against Nazi shipping off the eastern coast of Greece yesterday and swept inland to destroy two locomotives and an ammunition train on the Athens-Salonika line. A communique said five Nazi landing craft were heavily damaged and severe losses inflicted on enemy troops.

Rome, Oct. 13 (AP) — Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Supreme Allied Commander in the Mediterranean, said in a broadcast tonight that "a force under my command is about to land in Greece" and that the kingdom's liberation was at hand.

Unofficial reports said that the Greek flag was flying over the Acropolis in Athens and that the Athens radio was in Allied hands.

Allied proclamations were broadcast promising immediate aid to the Greeks.

"Liberation At Hand"

General Wilson told the Greeks: "Your day of liberation is at hand. For the second time in this war, a force under my command is about to land in Greece but I am thankful to say, under very different conditions."

The Allied commander declared: "We come now to sweep away all traces of the invader and, by use of your forts and airfields, to harass his retreat." He said the Allies were also returning to restore Greece's administrative services.

Britons In Peloponnesus

Late in September, small British forces landed in the Peloponnesus, the large southern peninsula of the Greek mainland, and with Greek patriots cleared the Germans from most of that area, capturing Patrai, Pyrgos and Corinth. Ancient Corinth is but 40 miles southwest of Athens, the Greek capital.

General Wilson's broadcast tonight indicated an Allied landing in force was imminent, as contrasted to the rather small forces employed in the Peloponesus.

A proclamation by the Greek Government called upon all Greeks to obey the regime of King George II and promised "just punishment" of everyone who collaborated with the Nazis.

The Government warned that "any punitive action attempted against such persons (collaborators) by isolated individuals or organizations "not guaranteeing dispensation of real justice would constitute arbitrary usurpation of the functions of the state."

The Greek Government declared Allied foodstuffs would be immediately available and pleaded "at this critical hour avoid political disputes and everything that could disturb the spiritual unity of Greeks."

Given Seven Orders

A proclamation from Lieut. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, commander of British forces in Greece, laid down seven points for the conduct of Greeks. They were:

1. Comply fully with the instructions of the Government and himself.
2. Make certain they do not unwittingly obey false instructions.
3. Assist the British by maintaining order and keeping the roads clear.

Officals Stay At Posts

4. Public officials remain at their posts.
5. The people are to stay where they are even though far from home.
6. Conserve supplies and avoid black-market speculations.
7. Cooperation of all Greeks regardless of political differences until the enemy is gone and relief arrives.

The three proclamations by Wilson, Scobie and the Government were broadcast to Greeks and also distributed by leaflets over the entire country.

The leaders of various Greek guerrilla forces already have agreed to place themselves under Scobie's command.

Nazi Craft Bombed

Allied planes operating over the Greek coast in close cooperation with land forces of the Adriatic heavily bombed large concentrations of small enemy craft, and British naval aircraft sank a heavily loaded enemy landing craft, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Allied communique today made no mention of land forces in Greece, last reported holding Corinth on the road to Athens.

Greeks Take Over Athens

Patriots in Control as German Forces Flee—Bulgars Reported Out of Country.

London, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—The Rome radio today broadcast an official announcement that Athens has been evacuated by the Germans and that its administration is in the hands of the Greek Patriots.

The Allied-controlled radio said its report came from Allied headquarters.

In a Cairo dispatch Reuters announced that the Germans had quit Athens and declared it an open city.

The French radio at Algiers said that Piraeus, the port of Athens, also had been liberated.

SPELLMAN RETURNING

Rome, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—Archbishop Francis J. Spellman left by air for the United States today expecting to make a later tour of Army camps in the Far East.

The archbishop, who is mentioned prominently for a cardinal's hat when the next papal consistory meets, had his tour of world battlefields commemorated by a medal struck by a Vatican designer.

BORN MADE DEPUTY OF 15TH AIR FORCE

Rome, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—Appointment of Brig.-Gen. Charles F. Born, former West Point football star, as deputy commander of the United States Fifteenth Air Force, was announced today by Major-Gen. Nathan F. Twining, its commanding general.

Gen. Born, whose home is in Deadwood, S. D., is succeeded as operations officer of the Fifteenth Air Force by Col. Elmer J. Rogers of Quincy, Mass., who has been deputy operations chief.

Gen. Born was graduated from West Point in 1928, after playing for three seasons as an end on Army's football teams. He later was a member of the academy's coaching staff for several years.

As air operations officer at a naval operational base in Trinidad, British West Indies, in the summer of 1943, he earned the Legion of Merit from the Navy for development of anti-submarine technics. The Army later gave him an Oak Leaf Cluster to the award.

Col. Rogers brought a Liberator group overseas early this year. He was shot down and wounded over Anzio March 2, 1944, spending eight hours in a dinghy before being rescued.

Archbishop Spellman Returning

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Archbishop Francis J. Spellman, of New York, who has been conferring with Pope Pius at the Vatican, left Rome today to return to New York, the Vatican radio said tonight in an Italian language broadcast reported by the Federal Communications Commission.

Polish Premier And Stalin Meet With Churchill

Compromise Hopes Rise; Mikolajczyk Also Has Talk With Lublin Group

MOSCOW, Oct. 14 (Saturday) (AP).—Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the Polish government in exile at London conferred with Premier Josef V. Stalin and Premier Churchill for two hours here last night, following talks with leaders of the Lublin Polish Committee of National Liberation.

Present at the discussions of the Polish Premier with Stalin and Churchill were British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, Soviet Foreign Affairs Commissar Viacheshlav M. Molotov, American Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and Tadeusz Rober, Foreign Minister of the London Polish group.

Observers predicted that the next step in the attempt to resolve the differences between the two Polish groups would be a conference, probably tomorrow, with all principals, including Edward B. Osubka Morawski, head of the Lublin faction, and his aids attending.

As the Anglo-American, Russian and Polish talks took shape, some sort of settlement was seen likely. The belief grew that a tentative compromise was near. Mikolajczyk also had conferred earlier in the day with Harriman and Molotov.

The talk with Harriman was described as a "friendly conversation" on "the general situation."

Mikolajczyk said: "Naturally, I am most hopeful" of an accord with the Lublin group, which has the backing of the Soviet government. He did not comment on his talk with the Lublin leaders.

Mikolajczyk said he believed that his invitation to Moscow at this time was part of a sincere effort to settle the Polish problem. Although belief grew that a tentative compromise might be reached before the end of the Stalin-Churchill talks, no quick public announcement was expected, because Mikolajczyk probably would have to return to London first and confer with his Cabinet.

Responsible diplomats here emphasized the difficulties to be surmounted. Mikolajczyk was not given a "blank check" by his exile government in London. His group is willing to discuss the border question with Russia, but has not offered to renounce the 1935 constitution, which it claims as sole legal authority.

Seek Reorganization

Mikolajczyk suggested to the Lublin committee two months ago that his government be reorganized on the basis of five major political parties, including Communists, but has not received a reply to this idea.

The Lublin group, headed by Edward Osubka-Morawski, wants the Polish president, Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz, shorn of his powers, the 1935 constitution abandoned, and the appointment of the Lublin commander in chief, Col. Gen. Rola Zymierski, as head of all Polish armed forces. The Lublin committee has suggested that Mikolajczyk join its group, perhaps as premier, but has said it would not join the London regime.

(A Moscow broadcast relayed fresh criticism of the London group today, saying that a captain in the national committee forces recently told a Polish youth meeting at Lublin that the capitulation in Warsaw of Lt. Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski's (Bor's) home army was "premeditated treachery." Komorowski previously had been called a "criminal" by the Lublin group for ordering the Warsaw uprising).

Meanwhile the newspaper Izvestia declared that the arrival in Moscow of Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden had heavily impressed the Germans.

"The Germans understand that the Moscow negotiations precede the last stage of Germany's defeat," Izvestia said.

London Pole Hopes For Accord

Moscow, Oct. 13 (AP)—Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the London Polish regime said today "I am most hopeful" of accord with the Soviet-sponsored Lublin Committee of National Liberation after a conference with the American Ambassador, W. Averell Harriman.

The belief prevailed that a compromise would be reached before Prime Minister Churchill concludes his talks with Premier Marshal Stalin.

Mikolajcyzk, who flew here from London yesterday by invitation, conferred with British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden. He was to talk with other high British and Russian leaders before meeting the Lublin Committee.

His Power Restricted

Mikolajczyk was granted no "blank check" by his London exile Government. "Even in event of a provisional agreement, he would have to return to London and submit it for approval.

His Government is willing to discuss the border question with Russia but has not offered to renounce the 1935 constitution which it claims as sole legal authority.

The Lublin Committee has stood fast on its contention that it speaks for liberated Poland; that Mikolajczyk can join the group, perhaps even as Premier, but that the Lublin Committee will not join the London government.

The Lublin group wants the Polish President shorn of his powers, the 1935 constitution abanboned, and appointment of the Lublin commander in chief, Col. Gen. Rola Zymierski, as head of Polish armed forces.

Fresh Denunciation

(Indication that Moscow has not warmed toward the London Polish Government developed today when the Moscow radio broadcast fresh denunciation of the exiled group.

(The criticism was contained in a Moscow report of a mass meeting of Polish youths at Lublin "a few days ago" at which a captain of the National Liberation Committee's Security Corps charged capitulation in Warsaw of Lieut. Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski's (Bor) home army was "premeditated treachery.")

PRESIDENT IN TOUCH WITH MOSCOW TALK

Washington, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt explained his tardiness in arriving for his news conference today as being due to his keeping in touch with developments of the Churchill-Stalin talks in Moscow. He told a questioner that he did not know—and that is literally true—if he would meet with the British Prime Minister and Marshal Stalin before the end of this year.

He added, however, that he was being kept abreast of what was going on there and that was why he was more than half an hour late for his news conference.

Lights Go On In Leningrad

Moscow, Oct. 13 (AP)—Lights went on last night along Leningrad's main street after three years of blackout.

Some 3,000 electric lamps illuminated the districts of Nevsky, Liteiny, Kirovsky and Suvorosky, and 7,000 more will be turned on again before the end of the year.

JAPS HELD OFF NEAR KWEILIN

But Enemy Breaks Into Kweiping, Chinese Admit

Chungking, Oct. 13 (AP)—Advancing Japanese columns have been repulsed by Chinese troops 25 miles north of Kweilin, key point in South China's defense system, after fierce fighting, but other enemy units have broken into Kweiping, an important communciations center about 70 miles southeast of Liuchow, the Chinese high command announced today.

Maj. Gen. Chang Tung-Chuen, Chinese spokesman, acknowledged at a press conference today that the Japanese had reduced the area of free China between Manchuria and Hongkong to a 60-mile-wide strip with their pincerslike gains on Kweilin from the north and Liuchow from the east. General Chang reported that street fighting is continuing in Kweiping. He admitted that Foochow fell to the Japanese on October 5.

Could Still Aid Landings

General Chang insisted that even if the Japanese succeed in splitting China in half, the Chinese still will be able to give active support to any American forces landing on the China coast.

He said that the Chinese recapture of Loting, south of the West river, and Kwangtung and Szewui, north of the West river—which have already been announced—would have the effect of threatening the communications of Japanese forces which pushed westward from the Canton area toward Liuchow. Fighting is progressing about 12 miles from Pingnan, 80 miles southeast of Liuchow.

Air Blows Reduced

On the aerial front, Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell disclosed that adverse weather had reduced 14th Air Force operations Wednesday and Thursday. However, he said that on both days medium bombers got through to the Salween front for attacks in support of Chinese ground operations.

B-25's, P-38's and P-40's hit enemy objectives in the Mangshih and Burma road areas and raked Japanese positions and boats on the West river from Kweiping to Tengyum. The B-25's destroyed a bridge in the Mangshih sector.

FREE CHINA COAST IS CUT TO 60 MILES

Chungking, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—Pincer-like Japanese columns, advancing on Kweilin from the north and on Liuchow from the east, have reduced the strip of free China between Hongkong and Manchuria to an area sixty miles wide, Major-Gen. Chang Fung-chuen, Chinese military spokesman, acknowledged today. The high command reported that Japanese forces had broken into the communications center of Kweiping, seventy miles south-southeast of Liuchow, and street fighting was in progress.

Another column was reported driving upon Pingham, eighty miles southeast of Liuchow, engaging Chinese defenders seventy-two miles from the town. Gen. Chang also acknowledged the loss of Foochow, which he said fell on October 5

Meanwhile, Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell disclosed that bad weather in the south China sector had hampered operations of the Fourteenth Air Force, but on both October 11 and October 12 fighters and medium bombers got through to the Salween front to support Chinese ground operations. B-25s knocked out a bridge at Mangshih and also bombed Japanese-held sections of the Burma Road, while P-40s attacked Japanese supply dumps and positions in the Mangshih area, starting large fires.

ALLIES IN BURMA RAID FOE IN TIDDIM AREA

KANDY, Ceylon, Oct. 13 (AP)—Allied forces have raided a Japanese post twenty-two miles south of the enemy's base at Tiddim in northwestern Burma and have beaten off an artillery-supported Japanese attack east of Tiddim, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced today.

The raid below Tiddim was conducted "successfully" and casualties were inflicted on the enemy, the daily communiqué said, while east of Tiddim the Japanese suffered "heavy" casualties. In addition two enemy strongpoints were cleared out north of Tiddim by ground forces who advanced with air support, and the air forces blasted Japanese positions at Tiddim itself.

West African troops pushed beyond Mowdok in the Sangu valley region of southeastern India near the Burmese border, but contact was lost with Japanese troops who had penetrated India near the Goppe Pass.

JAP COUNTER-BLOW NEAR TIDDIM FAILS

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—Japanese forces, counter-attacking with artillery support east of Tiddim, were beaten off with heavy casualties yesterday by British troops, Allied headquarters announced today.

A raiding force operating in Burma twenty-two miles south of Tiddim attacked successfully a Japanese post.

Patrols of the Fourteenth Army have been operating for some time in the area of the Tiddim-Kalmyo Road, the enemy's main outlet from the Chin Hills.

On the Arakan front, British West African forces pushed beyond the captured village of Mowdok in the Sangu Valley, but lost contact with Japanese units which had attacked them near Gopper Pass.

Two Liberators Get Jap Ship Apiece At Leyte

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Saturday, Oct. 14 (AP)—Bomber and fighter patrols maintained "milk run" harassing attacks Tuesday over the Philippines and Dutch East Indies, headquarters announced in today's communique.

Other patrols ranged over New Guinea and in the Bismarcks and Solomons.

The Southwest Pacific planes even ranged into the central Philippines. Two Liberators, on separate patrols, each sank or damaged a small freighter at Leyte. Two small freighters were hit at Zamboanga on the southwest coast of the Philippines. Davao and Tacloban airdromes on Mindanao were attacked.

Balikpapan Hard Hit

Allied airmen have taken much of the profit out of Japan's East Indies petroleum conquests with repeated attacks on the Balikpapan refinery and storage center on Borneo.

Heaviest and most damaging of six recent assaults on Balikpapan was the Tuesday smash by fighter-escorted Liberators which plastered plants, tanks and facilities with 135 tons of explosives. It was the first time fighters participated in the raids.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said the attack put the cracking plant out of operation, perhaps permanently, and heavily damaged a paraffin refinery. Flaming storage tanks sent up smoke pillars 20,000 feet.

Defended With Engergy

The Japanese have defended Balikpapan with energy, using fighters and anti-aircraft guns in efforts to keep intact plants which produce 15 per cent. of the gasoline and oil for their war machine.

Six Allied attacks since October 4 cost 13 bombers and one fighter, three of the bombers and the fighter being lost in the Tuesday foray. But the attackers dropped at least 249 tons of bombs and shot down 62 enemy intercepti for sure and perhaps 15 more the six attacks.

The fighters flew more than 1,500 miles to protect the bombers. The flight of the Thunderbolts and Lightnings was thought here to be the longest operational flight ever made by battle planes of this type. They helped shoot down 36 enemy planes for sure and probably ten more.

SETTLEMENT SOUGHT OF AUSTRALIAN STRIKE

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 13—(AP) As the latest development in Sydney's newspaper strike, employes decided at a mass meeting today to ask the State Industrial commission to order restoration of normal work at the Herald, Telegraph and Mirror, leaving settlement of the Sun dispute for separate consideration.

It was a dispute at the Sun last Saturday which grew to such proportions that this city and the state of New South Wales were left virtually without a newspaper.

Printers at the Sun sought to have their hours cut from 44 to 40 a week plus four weeks annual leave. Employers refused, saying the matter already was before the compulsory conference.

The printers quit. Other newspaper employers, supporting the Sun, suspended publication in favor of a combined newspaper. Many printers and writers then refused to work on the combine. Dismissals and suspensions resulted.

Argentina Passes Labor Law

Buenos Aires, Oct. 13 (AP)—Terming labor conditions in rural districts "almost medieval," the Government tonight announced a statute fixing a six-day work week, minimum wages and improved working conditions for rural laborers. The law requires proper housing, food, sanitation and vacations with pay for farm and forestry workers.

Mexico Scans Price Violations

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 13 (AP).—Attorney General Francisco Castellanos, of the Federal District, instructed agents of his office today to campaign vigorously against ceiling-price violations. He said there apparently is widespread violation, and asked the arrest of every store owner where ceilings are not adhered to.

HONORS AIR HERO

Ottawa, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—The Government announced today the award of the Distinguished Flying Cross to Royal Canadian Air Force Flying Officer R. G. Holden of New York city.

Holden received the decoration for unswerving devotion to duty when his plane became temporarily uncontrollable during a raid on Hamburg last July. The citation said that he brought his plane home safely through a most heavily defended area of Germany.

His wife, Mrs. C. E. Holden, lives at 245 East 37th street, New York.

Statue Of Faithful Dog Off To War, Tokyo Says

San Francisco, Oct. 13 (AP)—Even Hachiko, the statue erected at Tokyo in memory of a dog's faithfulness, is off to the wars.

The Tokyo radio said tonight the metal dog had to be taken to a munitions plant to be converted into a "vital war weapon."

Hachiko belonged to a professor whom he saw off to work every morning and awaited each evening. One day the professor died in his classroom but the dog kept coming to meet him every day until he, too, died. The statue stood at the Shibuya station.

GI Paper Says Entertainers Shirk China-Burma-India Job

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—An army newspaper's assertion that some of the nation's top-ranking entertainers remain in the China-India-Burma theater "just long enough to send out their laundry" and then "sneak home" with a lot of publicity" met prompt denials today from stars involved.

Ann Sheridan, Joe E. Brown, Joel McCrea, Paulette Goddard and Al Jolson were named by the C. B. I. Roundup, the theater's official newspaper published weekly at New Delhi, India, as some who developed "an overpowering desire to go home" after discovering that C. B. I. is "hot, wet and full of mosquitos."

The paper said in an editorial it had remained silent rather than "scare away the next outfit that thought of coming out to the rice-paddy league" or "kiss off the efforts of those who came out here and really did a job."

"Hammy Routines"

"But when the soldiers in this or any other theater are promised big-time entertainment and the entertainers show up with hammy routines that would get yawns at a free-dish matinee in Springfield, Ohio, and then dog it after a month or six weeks, something ought to be done," the newspaper said.

In sending a copy of the issue of C. B. I. Roundup containing this editorial comment on the Hollywood entertainers, Maj. John E. Nixon, special service officer of the theater, wrote:

"We have one hell of a time with the Hollywood pets, to put it mildly, and we are very sick of their returning home and getting very favorable publicity nation-wide for the things they didn't do and for a job only partly done."

Miss Sheridan, quoted as saying she did not wish to return to the theater because "it is too rough," immediately offered to "fight boy fashion, no holds barred, with anybody who thinks I, or any of the gang I accompanied, dogged it in the overseas theater."

As for publicity: "Any girl who flexes her curves in a bathing suit in a studio shot can get ten times as much lineage as one who plays the C. B. I.," the red-haired Texan declared in New York.

"We traveled 60,000 miles in a few days less than 60," she continued, "and we tried to play two shows a day of one and one half hours long. . . . We traveled under army auspices, and that goes for routine jokes, songs and the way you brush your teeth.

"I'm wondering if your wife, sweetheart or sister has bucket-feeded her way 60,000 miles, some of them even possibly dangerous for men, at better than 1,000 miles a day, playing even two bad shows, eating C or K rations more often than hot groceries, much of it standing up—and then, when it's little-girl's-room time, go down to the men's toilet and wait till it's cleared so that the girl troupers may use it."

Brown, 53, whose army flyer son was killed in a crash early in the war, said in Hollywood he "thought I'd covered all the places I could go, and one of their officers told me there weren't 200 men in the whole theater I had missed."

"I Love Those Kids"

He said in Hollywood that he wouldn't "enter into a controversy over the charges" because "I love those kids too much to criticize 'em—even the ones who did the criticizing."

Friends said Brown, who has spent 10 months overseas, had copies of a previous issue of the newspaper in which his four-month C. B. I. tour was praised.

Miss Goddard, also in Hollywood, said one of her very close friends had gone to the theater because "I preached the need of the men there for entertainment."

Stimson Alters Stand Against Palestine Entry

Declares Military Factors Barring Congress Action Now Have Lost Strength

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP).—Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, who objected on military grounds last spring to legislation calling for the United States to use its influence to open the doors of Palestine for free entry of Jews, said today that the military factors have lost strength and political considerations now should govern.

Senator Robert A. Taft, Republican, of Ohio, who with Senator Robert F. Wagner, Democrat, of New York, sponsored the resolution, wrote Mr. Stimson Sept. 12 asking whether his reasons for opposing the measure still existed. The Secretary, in a reply released today, said he had reviewed the situation and added:

"I find that there is still strong feeling on the part of many officers in my department that the passage of such a resolution would interfere with our military effort. However, I do feel that the military considerations which led to my previous action in opposing the passage of this resolution are not as strong a factor now as they were then.

"In my judgment, political considerations now outweigh the military, and the issue should be determined upon the political rather than the military basis."

ROOSEVELT HINTS AT POSSIBILITY OF BIG-THREE PARLEY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13—(AP) President Roosevelt left wide open today the possibility that he may meet with Marshal Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill in the next two months to seek new big-three agreements on the future of Europe and the preservation of United Nations unity when peace comes.

The President touched briefly on the subject at his news conference, where he responded to several questions on foreign affairs. One answer indicated he may be thinking of the French administration of General Charles de Gaulle now as a regular "de facto government" rather than merely an "authority."

Discusses French Recognition

He said you could call it either an authority or a de facto government. Some of his most-trusted advisers are urging him to recognize the de Gaulle regime as a provisional or de facto government and stop dealing with it on a limited military basis. A new American ambassador, Jefferson Caffery, left recently for Paris but pending some further act of recognition he goes only as a representative to the de facto French "authority." Heretofore Mr. Roosevelt has been careful to avoid the word government in talking of the de Gaulle set-up.

The President came to his news conference fresh from a study of the latest reports on the conference of Churchill and Stalin at Moscow. There has been some speculation that if the Moscow meeting makes good progress, Churchill, who only recently met Mr. Roosevelt at Quebec, might arrange a conference of all three leaders and possibly also Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek of China.

About the first question put by newsmen was whether the President saw any prospect for a big-three parley. He said he did not know. While there was no further discussion of the question the reply was interpreted as meaning that nothing which has happened at Moscow would close the possibility.

Studies Moscow Reports

It was in response to a question whether he was being kept abreast of Moscow developments that the President made it known he had just been studying reports.

One questioner wanted to know whether Churchill was speaking to Stalin on behalf of both Britain and the United States since he had so recently met with Mr. Roosevelt at Quebec, but the President said it would be silly to assume that.

On other foreign affairs questions, the Chief Executive said:

There's no decision yet on exactly how to close the gap in the Dumbarton Oaks security plan over voting rights of big powers.

He's not concerned with who is paying for his foreign policy speech on October 21, or whether it should be called political.

It would be what Mr. Roosevelt called a little bit ahead of time now for him to answer the question raised by Senator Ball (R-Minn.) in a statement yesterday about United States participation in a world security organization. Ball asked whether presidential and Congressional candidates favor a flat commitment by Congress guaranteeing American forces would be used at the order of the proposed world council.

It will be about a week more before he will have anything on the rumored appointment of Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia to a top position in Italian affairs and while the President has read in the papers that Leon Henderson might be named to some sort of position in military government of Germany he would make no comment.

Roosevelt Bypasses Ball Query

Says Final Phases of Peace Organization Are Still to Be Worked Out

Oct. 24 — 1947

Washington, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt said today that Senator Ball (R.-Minn.) is a little bit ahead of time in asking whether United States representatives on a world security council could commit military forces to action without further congressional approval.

The President said that he wasn't going to talk about it when a reporter asked him if his ideas followed those of the Senator.

Mr. Ball, who recently said that he was withholding his support from Gov. Dewey until the Republican nominee clarified further his views on foreign policy, yesterday proposed the following question to both candidates:

"Should the vote of the United States representatives on the United Nations Security Council commit an agreed upon quota of our military forces to action ordered by the council to maintain peace without requiring further congressional approval?"

Mr. Roosevelt said that there had been no decision yet on the higher-level conferences left over by the Dumbarton Oaks world security talks to work out final phases of the international peace organization.

A reporter asked whether the higher level meant that the final questions would be discussed by the top officials of the governments or by some one else inside the administration. The President replied that was a detail, and added that we are going ahead as fast as we can on completion of the world security organization.

Senator Ball meanwhile promised an announcement before the November 7 election on whether he will support Gov. Dewey for the presidency.

In any case, the Senator told a reporter, he would not decide between the Republican nominee and President Roosevelt until both speak next week on foreign policy.

In a statement at St. Paul on September 29, Senator Ball said: "I would violate my own defense convictions (on foreign policy) if I were at this time to campaign for Gov. Dewey."

Senate Treaty Power Upheld In Brief

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—A lawyer's brief strongly upholding the Senate's advice-and-consent powers with respect to treaties was published as a Senate document today at the request of Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Connally (D., Texas).

Unanimous consent to print the brief as a public document was obtained just before the current Congressional recess by the Texan, whose committee normally would be expected to pass on the peace treaty and other international commitments which may arise with the end of the war.

Fraser's Explanation

The argument was prepared by Harry S. Frazer, assistant counsel to the special committee investigating petroleum resources, of which Connally is the ranking Democratic member. In obtaining consent for its publication September 21, the day Congress began its eight-week recess, the Texan explained:

"This is a brief treating with the difference between executive agreements and treaties, and in view of the many treaties which will probably come before the Senate, I think it would be useful to have this document in the hands of Senators."

Attitude Unknown

Connally left the capital this week and it could not be ascertained immediately what is his attitude toward Fraser's statement that "the increasing employment of the 'executive agreement' in the conduct of the foreign relations of the Government indicates the desirability of a careful analysis of the validity of this technique in view of the treaty-making power under the Constitution."

Fraser's argument, buttressed by 54 footnotes and legal references, took this stand:

"If the subject matter of the executive agreement corresponds with or is analogous to that which was ordinarily cast in treaty form by the nations of the world when the Constitution was adopted, it must still be cast in treaty form."

Opposition Seen

It seems evident that his conclusion would be disputed within the Foreign Relations Committee, if not on the floor of the Senate, by those lawmakers who contend that the peace can be concluded most efficiently through executive agreements, sanctioned by a simple majority of both houses of the Congress.

Fraser's argument is based on the constitutional provision that the President, "shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two thirds of the Senators present concur."

It was that two thirds rule which League of Nations opponents used to keep the United States out of the league following the first World War.

Wilmington-to-Paris Line Opens

New Castle, Del., Oct. 13 (A. P.).—The Second Ferrying Group at the New Castle Army air base has opened a Wilmington-to-Paris line as part of its present caravan run, the air base announced. Wilmington is now less than 21 hours from the French capital.

BERLIN (N.H.) RESIDENTS WILL NOT CHANGE NAME

BERLIN, N. H., Oct. 13 — (AP) Officials of Berlin dismissed as "impractical" a suggestion by Playwright Maxwell Anderson that it change its name to "Distomo."

Anderson's proposal that Berlin take the name of the Greek town came in a telegram which also was sent to other Berlins throughout the country.

New Hampshire residents pronounce Berlin with the accent on the first syllable.

Lehman Felicitates Premier

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP).—Herbert H. Lehman, director of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, today sent the following message to Premier George Papandreou of Greece at Cairo:

"Ambassador Diamantopoulous has just informed me of glorious news of the liberation of Athens and Piraeus. All U. N. R. R. A. rejoices with your government and the Greek people over triumphs of your gallant forces and liberation of your nation's capital. We are ready and eager to bring aid and succor to your heroic people at the earliest possible moment."

Tells of Last Philippines Days

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP).—Incidents that preceded the fall of the Philippines are told in a book just completed by Lieutenant Commander Malcolm M. Champlin, of Newport, R. I. Commander Champlin, a former Annapolis man now assistant chief of staff of the amphibious training command in Norfolk, Va., depicts the bloody days which came before the "end" in April, 1942. The naval officer, as aide to the commandant of the 16th Naval District at Cavite, received high Navy and Army awards for outstanding action in the Philippines.

Protests UNRRA Aid Through Tito Agency

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—Constantine Fotitch, former Yugoslav Ambassador and a member of the Central National Committee of Yugoslavia which is opposed to the leadership of Marshal Tito, protested today against any move to allow distribution of UNRRA supplies in Yugoslavia through Tito-controlled machinery.

Fotitch, in a public statement, asked that the United Nation's Relief and Rehabilitation Administration reject any request from Tito's committee for the liberation of Yugoslavia that it be allowed to control the distribution of supplies there.

NO LAGUARDIA NEWS

Washington, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt said today it will be a few days more before he has any news about anything that might be in store for Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York, who has repeatedly been rumored as a likely selection for a government job in Italy.

Asked at his news conference about reports that Leon Henderson is being considered as an economic aid to Gen. Eisenhower, the President simply said that he had heard a great many things, including that one which he read in the papers.

"Don't you think I'm too busy running the city to comment?" Mayor LaGuardia retorted to reporters at City Hall who questioned him about President Roosevelt's statement.

"Get in out of the rain," the Mayor added as reporters pressed the question. The brief press conference took place on the City Hall steps.

W. P. B. Drops 2 Units and 5 $1-a-Year Men

Its Internal 'Reconversion' GoesOn;TextileDivision Frees Group of Experts

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP).—Pushing ahead its internal "reconversion," the War Production Board today announced the abolishment of a division and a bureau, the departure of five $1-a-year men from operating jobs and the resignation of another official.

The Controlled Materials Plan division, which handled the W. P. B.'s machinery for allotting war materials, is being abolished along with the Production Controls Bureau. Their work is being taken over by the W P. B.'s program office. Liquidation of two other major W. P. B. units, the conservation division and the redistribution division has already begun.

Walter C. Skuce, who was director of the C. M. P. division and deputy director of the abolished bureau, was named executive officer to Hiland G. Batcheller, chief of operations. John Gregg, who was chief of staff in that office, has resigned.

The five departing $1-a-year men, all in the textiles division, are to be used hereafter only as consultants to the W. P. B. They are Harry L. Dalton, of Charlotte, N. C.; Dr. A. L. Lippert, of Wilmington, Del.; Alex Barth, of New York; Walter E. Greer, of Greenville, S. C., and H. G. Woodbury, of New Bedford, Mass.

The textile division director, George H. Lanier jr., said the W. P. B. was "happy to be able to relieve these men who have served so long and faithfully" from day-to-day duties but would call on them for adavice in the future.

"The fact that we are streamlining our organization should in no way be interpreted as the end of the emergency," Mr. Lanier added. "Over-all production of cotton and synthetic textiles this year will be an estimated 25 per cent short of meeting stated requirements."

New assignments resulting from the five departures are: M. V. Macfarlan, of Hawthorne, N. J., deputy director of the cotton and synthetic textiles division; Walter P. McGowan, of New York, chief of the synthetic textiles branch; Roger C. Walcott, of Rye, N. Y., assistant director of the cotton and synthetic textiles division; K. C. Sparnon, of New York, assistant branch chief of the cotton branch; M. H. Goldman, of Boston, chief of the dye and finishing branch; T. E. Heatley, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., chief of the combed goods section; L. S. Trundle, of Washington, deputy chief of the cotton yarn branch.

200,000,000 Simplified Forms To Aid in Contract Terminations

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP).—A contract termination questionnaire drafted with the aid of business and described as so simple it will result in a "vast saving in time and expense" is being mailed this week to companies winding up their war work for the government.

Two hundred million copies of the form are being printed.

The simplification description came from F. Stuart Fitzpatrick, chairman of the advisory committee on government questionnaires, a business group which helped the Budget Bureau and other government agencies develop the questionnaire.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, an official of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said the joint efforts resulted in five important improvements:

(1) Standard forms to be used by all government agencies as well as by contractors and sub-contractors; (2) reduction of forms to standard typewriter size; (3) elimination of Office of Price Administration price ceiling data and similar information formerly required; (4) full descriptive information not required except for items having commercial value other than for scrap, and (5) inventory classification detail not required except for items possessing commercial or scrap-plus value.

Explaining the reason for the large printing order, a representative of the advisory committee commented that one corporation alone holds about 300,000 contracts of all types, including subcontracts. He added that in most cases a company will file seven or eight copies for each contract.

FARMERS TO GET MORE MACHINERY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 — (AP) President Roosevelt directed the War Production board today to provide in its reconversion program for increased supplies of farm machinery, saying plans for a "fully-employed" postwar America mean high food consumption. He said he also expects substantial postwar exports of food.

"American agriculture must be prepared for these demands upon its productive capacity," the President said in a letter to WPB Chairman J. A. Krug.

The latter issued a one-sentence statement to reporters, saying:

"Of course we are going to do everything possible to give the farmers all the farm machinery they want."

Other WPB officials said tentative steps toward the reconversion of the farm machinery industry are under consideration, including the lifting of production quotas from more than 400 items. Details of the proposed changes have not been made public.

Mr. Roosevelt read his letter to his news conference, halting from time to time to interpolate comments.

After reading that "there has been a substantial increase in the production of most types of farm machinery during the past year," he remarked that a year ago the farm machinery situation was pretty critical but that now the problem was in hand.

He read another statement that farmers are operating with "equipment much of which is obsolete or depreciated beyond the point where it can be used with maximum efficiency," lifted his head and explained:

"It's just plain worn out."

His letter said that "farm machinery has been scarce because of the fact that the materials and facilities which would otherwise have gone into the production of farm machinery have been needed for military trucks, tanks, planes, landing craft, guns and other urgent war purposes."

U. S. Pays 4 Billions Interest

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP).—It now costs more than $4,000,000,000 annually to pay the interest on the national debt. The Treasury's monthly bulletin, out today, placed the public debt at the end of August at $209,764,000,000 and the annual interest charge at $4,033,000,000. This is at an annual rate of interest of 1.923 per cent.

W.L.B. Vote Unanimous In Nearly Half of Cases

Board Issues Survey of Rulings for 3 Months

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 (AP).—The tripartite membership of the National War Labor Board has been unanimous in nearly half of its decisions, the board said today on the basis of its survey of a three-month period ending Sept. 15.

The survey also showed, the announcement said, that in the split decisions the public and the industry members outvoted the labor members slightly more often than the public-labor combination outvoted the industry side.

Chairman William H. Davis interpreted the results as buttressing the tripartite method of settling labor disputes and as evidence that there is no combination on the board consistently prevailing over the will of a minority.

The Honor Roll

NAVY CASUALTIES

Washington, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—The Navy Department announced today the names of 300 casualties in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, which makes a total of 67,301 casualties reported by the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Of this total, 26,434 are reported dead, 26,666 wounded, 9,721 missing and 4,480 prisoners of war.

Mayer's Pay Check Still Tops

Movie Magnate's Intake Put at $1,138,992 —Treasury Reveals More High-wage Names.

OCT 14 1944

Washington, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—The pay check of L. B. Mayer, the movie magnate, still is tops. Mr. Mayer moved back into his customary first-place position today as the Treasury released a supplementary list of 140 persons who received from corporations compensation in excess of $75,000 for personal services in the calendar year 1943 or fiscal year ending in 1943.

Loew's Incorporated paid Mr. Mayer $1,138,992.47. Of this $104,500 was for salary, the remaining $1,034,492.47 as commission.

The original list, released in July, placed Sidney R. Fleisher, New York attorney, in first place much to his surprise and apparent chagrin.

Mr. Fleisher was listed as receiving $645,000 from 20th Century-Fox Film Corporation. He acknowledged he received that amount, but said all but $15,000 went to playwrights and producers he represented in the sale of picture rights on Broadway plays.

Wanger in Second Place.

Second place in today's list went to Producer Walter F. Wanger, who received $710,372.03 from Universal Pictures Company, Inc. Nicholas M. Schenck received $512,291.33 from Loew's Incorporated to rank third.

The movie industry figured largely in the supplementary list.

Among those receiving big pay checks from Loew's were: Edward Arnold, $99,583; Wallace Beery, $150,000; Joan Crawford, $194,615; Brian Donlevy, $141,250; Tommy Dorsey, $165,817; Irene Dunne, $200,000; Greer Garson, $159,083; Katharine Hepburn, $110,333; Harry James, $128,559; William Powell, $251,250; Robert Taylor, $176,983; Spencer Tracy, $219,871; Robert Young, $108,500.

Bud Abbott and Lou Costello jointly received $789,628 from Universal Pitcures. Other compensation reported by that company included:

Charles Boyer, $80,000; Edna Mae (Deanna) Durbin, $282,250; Ole Olesen and Chic Johnson, $151,795; Randolph Scott, $132,187; Franchot Tone, $101,372.

The list shows the amount paid to officers and employees by reporting corporations in the form of salary, bonus, commission, or other compensation for personal services, but not income from investments, such as bonds or stock. The amounts reported are before payment of taxes.

The internal revenue act directs the Secretary of the Treasury to make public the list.

Gap In Labor's Ranks Called Widening

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP) — The AFL and the CIO, losers together in the War Labor Board's decision to give President Roosevelt no recommendation on easing wage controls, may start swinging at each other again before the year is over.

Despite the ostensible unanimity of the AFL and CIO members on the board, there are some important differences in their positions.

Their association is more formal than intimate. Feelings run deep into the stratum of politics. There have been no personal recriminations so far, but they may come after the election. The gap in the labor movement is widening.

Murray On Spot

On the surface, two groups of labor leaders clamored for a liberalization of the Little Steel wage policy and both suffered equally by the WLB action. But there is more to it. CIO President Philip Murray is in the position of having assured his members more than three weeks ago that the Little Steel formula would be revised soon.

He is in the position of publicly advocating the candidacy of President Roosevelt and hence has risked some personal prestige in a labor movement that is already divided. He has specific contract disputes before the WLB involving large amounts of retroactive pay, which might be lost to his members if the wage formula went unchanged until the reconversion period. Murray antagonists wisecrack that the CIO members have already spent the retroactive pay.

No Personal Chagrin

None of the circumstances fit the AFL as an organization or the AFL individuals on the WLB. There is no evidence of personal chagrin among them. They feel that Murray overplayed his hand and has placed more dependence upon the Government than AFL doctrine tolerates. They feel no sympathy for him and less for the people whose advice he has taken. The AFL is merely in the position of having been turned down by a New Deal agency.

The AFL members who actually participated in the board deliberations are George Meany and Robert J. Watt, with Watt substituting for Matthew Woll, whose name was signed to the labor dissent.

Called Pro-Dewey

The CIO regards Woll as a Republican and privately speaks of Meany as pro-Dewey in the current campaign. Meany would not commit himself.

It was Meany who forced an immediate vote on the AFL petition to request Presidential modification of the Little Steel formula, although he knew a rejection by the board was certain. The public members brought in their resolution proposing no recommendation "one way or the other" to avoid an interpretation that they were necessarily opposed to any change in wage policy.

FDR HINTS ACTION AGAINST PETRILLO

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13 — (AP) President Roosevelt said today that if he could find a legal way he intended to do something about the AFL Musicians union's defiance of the War Labor board.

The President was asked at his news conference whether he planned any action now that James C. Petrillo, the Musicians' head, had rejected his personal request for compliance with the WLB's order that the union lift its ban on making records for two companies.

With a wry smile, the President replied that people wrote that he was a dictator one day and wrote the next day that he should do something about Petrillo.

He would like to do something, Mr. Roosevelt added, but it was a great question whether he could legally. He said he expected to go into that question in the next few days.

"Which law might apply?" a reporter asked.

Oh, there were about 20 that might have a bearing, the President replied, repeating that he had not had a chance to go into that matter.

Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson ruled last week that the union's defiance was not "unduly impeding the war effort" and since the government could not act under the Connally-Smith war labor statutory authority to "seize" WMU Mr. Roosevelt then made his request for compliance with the WLB directive in the interest of "orderly government."

Petrillo rejected the request last Tuesday. He pointed out that the ban now is applied to only two companies, RCA-Victor and Columbia, and said that to lift the ban would take business away from other record-making companies which have made agreements with the union.

The ban originally was issued Aug. 1, 1942. The WLB directed last June 15 that it be lifted.

President Plans More Speeches

Says Nothing Definite Has Been Decided—Hannegan Unaware of Talks.

Washington, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt told reporters today that he and his campaign advisers are talking about future speech-making plans for him but that nothing definite has been decided yet.

He added that if any decisions are reached they probably will be announced locally in the place where the speech is to be made or by the Democratic National Committee in New York.

Mr. Roosevelt would not say whether he considers in the political classification the speech he will make before the Foreign Policy Association October 21.

OCT 14 1944

When the question was put to him at his news conference he wanted to know if the questioner wished to turn the room into a debating society. All he would say was the speech would be on Foreign Policy and that he was not interested in who was going to pay for the radio time.

Hannegan Not Informed.

Although the President placed the burden of the announcement of his campaign plans on the Democratic National Committee and local political leaders, the chairman of that committee appeared loath to take any such responsibility.

"All that I can say is that any announcementt of the President's plans for speeches must come him," Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, asserted at a press conference at committee headquarters in the Hotel Biltmore.

Mr. Hannegan expressed complete ignorance of any trips to be made by his chief and declared that the President had probably not made up his mind.

"Invitations from many of the larger cities of the country have been extended to the President and he is probably giving them consideration," he said.

Democratic leaders here are of the opinion that the President is plainly worried by the strides made by his Republican opponent in the past fortnight and are almost certain that the President will make a half dozen or more major speeches before election day, less than four weeks hence.

The state of the President's health was injected into the press conference by Mr. Hannegan himself. After calling attention to a newspaper story quoting Vice-Admiral Ross McIntire, the President's personal physician, as saying that Mr. Roosevelt's health was good, Mr. Hanegan continued:

"It is apparent that a whispering campaign is on about the President's health and it is being intensified," he asserted. When asked who was conducting it, he replied:

"The opposition — the people who don't want Roosevelt." Asked if he meant the Republicans, the national chairman said, "They are the people who don't want Roosevelt." Mr. Hannegan said that on his last visit to Washington he had found the President "the picture of health —very vigorous."

HANNEGAN ALLEGES WHISPER CAMPAIGN

Says Opposition Is Talking About President's Health

New York, Oct. 13 (AP)—Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan said today that "the opposition" was conducting "a whispering campaign" about President Roosevelt's health—a statement that the Republican national chairman, Herbert Brownell, Jr., immediately labeled "some more of Hannegan's shenanigans."

"Apparently," Hannegan told a press conference, "there is a whispering campaign going on and being intensified about the President's health."

Brownell Calls It Unfounded

Brownell, meeting the press a short time later, said the assertion was completely "unfounded."

Hannegan brought up the subject of the President's physical condition while being questioned at a press conference concerning a published report that Democratic leaders felt President Roosevelt would do intensive campaigning in the final weeks before election.

"Any statement about that (campaign plans) must come from the White House," Hannegan said. "Many invitations from the larger cities have been extended to the President. He is probably giving them consideration and will make up his own mind about what to do."

Lays It To Opposition

Hannegan then called attention to a newspaper article which quoted Vice-Admiral Ross McIntyre, the President's personal physician, as saying "The President's health is perfectly okay."

"Apparently there is a whispering campaign going on and being intensified about the President's health," Hannegan said.

Asked who was conducting the campaign, Hannegan replied:

"The people who don't want Roosevelt—the opposition."

Hannegan was asked whether he had the Republicans in mind.

"They are the people who don't want Roosevelt," he answered, but said his statement about "the opposition" should stand.

Says F. D. R. Is In Good Health

Hannegan, who visited President Roosevelt recently, said he found him "very vigorous, the picture of health."

In Washington, McIntyre said today that the President is in good shape, no colds or anything.

DEWEY SEEN 'CONFUSED'

Wallace Says Nominee Tries To Be Liberal, Conservative

Cleveland, Oct. 13 (AP)—Vice-President Henry A. Wallace declared tonight the Republican party's "real power consists of big capitalists, monopolists and cartel builders."

In an address at a political rally in Cleveland's public hall Wallace said Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, "is likely to become even more confused if he continues half the time to talk liberalism and half the time to express the thoughts of the real power in the national Republican party.

"Party Of Pews And Grundys"

"This real power consists of big capitalists, monopolists and cartel builders," Wallace continued. "The national Republican party is the party of the Pews and Grundys of Pennsylvania, the Gannetts and Ham Fishes of New York, the Hearst-Patterson-McCormick newspaper axis, the Tafts, Girdlers and Hannas of Ohio. . . .

"These are the people whom the Republican candidate would ultimately have to reckon with if he tried to make good on any genuinely liberal promises. He cannot go back on them, as Hitler handled Theissen. They pay the piper—they call the tune.

"Brain Trust Unhappy"

"That is why the Republican candidate's brain trust is so unhappy and confused. They know the world has moved since 1896 and 1920, and that any candidate who talks only the Union League Club language is certain to be defeated."

The Vice-President added that "here we have the explanation of why it is that 'the young man on the flying trapeze' spends part of his time talking like a liberal, part of the time like an old-fashioned reactionary, and part of the time pretending that he really believes Roosevelt is a Communist."

The Vice-President said millions of voters "are neither Republicans nor Democrats."

"In the North," he added, "most of them are Republicans when it comes to voting on local issues. On national issues, most of them are Democrats."

Vice-Presidential Nominees Speak From Campaign Trains

Bricker

En Route With Bricker, Oct. 13 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker's special train loafed through southern Oregon today while the Republican Vice-Presidential nominee stacked oratorical ammunition for the greatest venture of his Western campaign—the invasion of California.

OCT 14 1944

Only three brief platform speeches—at Roseburg, Grants Pass and Medford—were on the day's program. The rest of the time the Ohio Governor spent on the draft of another major address, to be given tomorrow night at San Francisco.

Nine Engagements Noted

The San Francisco speech, to be broadcast at 8.30 P. M. (P. W. T.), will open a six-day drive for California's block of 25 electoral votes.

Nine more speaking engagements were added today to the Western itinerary of Governor Bricker, increasing to 94 the total for the four-week tour.

Five In California

Five of the new engagements are in California. Tomorrow he will speak from the rear platform of his special train at Martinez, Richmond and Berkeley. He will deliver an off-the-train speech at Oakland. A rear-platform appearance has been added for Ventura on Monday.

October 20 Bricker will make an off-the-train speech at Sparks, Nev., and a rear-platform talk at Lovelock, Nev. A breakfast speech will be given at Ogden, Utah, October 21. A rear-platform speech at Trinidad, Col., has been added for October 24.

OCT 14 1944

Warrens To Join Them

Governor and Mrs. Earl Warren, of California, close friends of the Ohio Governor and Mrs. Bricker, will join them at Sacramento and accompany them through part of the State.

Nearing the end of the second week of his four-week, 9,250-mile tour, Bricker indicated he was just beginning to hit his stride, and that his heaviest attacks on the Democratic Administration were yet to come.

Truman

En Route With Truman, Oct. 13 (AP)—A prediction that President Roosevelt will poll a minimum of 750,000 Texas votes November 7 if the State casts as many as 1,000,000 was made today by three outspoken supporters who boarded Senator Harry S. Truman's special car at Houston.

James V. Allred, former Governor; Harry L. Seay, Dallas, chairman of the State Democratic executive committee, and Harry I. Tyson Corsicana, chairman of the Roosevelt speakers bureau, also told reporters with the Democratic Vice Presidential candidate that the anti Roosevelt Texas "regulars" will not poll in excess of 50,000 votes for their Presidential electors.

Sees Danger Only In Apathy

Truman's car is attached to the Southern Pacific's Argonaut carrying him to Los Angeles for a major political address Monday night.

In platform appearances and press conferences at Beaumont and Houston, the candidate asserted "the only thing that could cause difficulty for the ticket in the South would be public apathy."

He said the Senate Finance Committee would work out "a sensible approach" to post-war tax problems. "The bills for the war will have to be paid," he said. "We will need a tax structure that will meet the situation."

Working For Million Votes

Germany, he told another group, "must be completely whipped so that she can't start another war in 25 years."

Asserting three fourths of Texas' vote would go to Roosevelt, Allred said his supporters "are working to build up 1,000,000 votes for the President."

"Texas is organized as never before in her history," Seay said. "By November 1, we will have a working organization in every precinct."

LAYS BLUNDERS TO ROOSEVELT

Pennsylvania Governor Says New Deal Has Failed.

Springfield, Mass., Oct. 13 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Edward Martin, Republican Governor of Pennsylvania, said today that "we are winning this war not because of Mr. Roosevelt, but regardless of Mr. Roosevelt." In an address prepared for delivery before the Springfield Women's Republican Club, he quoted Senator Harry S. Truman, Democratic Vice-presidential candidate, to support his assertion.

"When Truman was a United States Senator, anxious to win the war and not a member of the fourth term ticket begging for your votes," Gov. Martin declared, "Truman said: 'We are in danger of losing this war in Washington' because of 'the lack of courageous, unified leadership and centralized direction at the top.'"

Gov. Martin said "that could refer to no one in America other than Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

"What becomes then," he asked, "of the doctrine of the 'indispensable man' and of the Commander in chief who sees all, knows all and does all? The plain truth is that we are winning the war not because of Mr. Roosevelt, but regardless of Mr Roosevelt."

OCT 14 1944

New Deal Blundering.

Gov. Martin told the Springfield women: "As a responsible American citizen, I indict Franklin D. Roosevelt for his failure to prepare for world war II; for his domestic policies that left us 10,000,000 unemployed, years after the world-wide depression had ended in other nations; for his attempted packing of the Supreme Court and his political debauchery of that tribunal; for the buying of elections by long lists of Federal employees trained to snoop into the private affairs of the people for New Deal blunders, quarrels, crackdowns, mistakes and indecisions, and for lifting into high places of this nation men and women of doubtful loyalties; for the steady swing of the Federal Government toward the left and toward the dangerous totalitarianism that has made a bloody shambles of the Old World and has turned back the clock of civilization."

The Governor said that the people of America "are tired of defeatism at home," and that "in their twelve blundering years the New Dealers have shown themselves unwilling and unable to do the job."

Clare Luce Calls Roosevelt 'Untrustworthy, Incompetent'

Chicago, Oct. 13 (AP)—Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.) asserted tonight President Roosevelt is "not only untrustworthy but also incompetent" in the field of statecraft.

The Congresswoman, in an address prepared for delivery at a Republican-sponsored meeting in Orchestra Hall and distributed in advance to the press by Western Republican headquarters, set forth:

"Shall we trust the making of a new peace to the tired and shaking hands of a man who could not keep the one he inherited when he was young and strong?

Calls "Pearl Harbor Shame" His

". . . Although a majority of the American people may forgive him, history never will, in the end. For he is the only American President who ever lied us into a war because he did not have the political courage to lead us into it. Thus, in the end, the shame of Pearl Harbor was Mr. Roosevelt's shame."

Mrs. Luce contended "Mr. Roosevelt, far from being a great statesman, is in the field of statecraft not only untrustworthy but also incompetent." She added:

"In the precise words of President Roosevelt, in 1937, I quote: 'To keep the peace is the fundamental policy of the United States. . . .' Did Mr. Roosevelt prevent war? In other words, did Mr. Roosevelt's fundamental policy succeed or fail?"

Quotes Oliver Lyttelton

She said "New Dealers" often presented "extenuating circumstances," among them that the United States was the victim of an unprovoked attack by Japan. She continued:

"In June of this year, Oliver Lyttelton, British Minister of Production, declared in London, I quote: 'Japan was provoked into attacking America at Pearl Harbor. It is a travesty on history to say that America was forced into the war. It is incorrect to say that America was ever truly neutral. . . .'

Says Theory "Will Not Wash"

"No, the theory of the unprovoked attack will not wash. . . . Why did he (President Roosevelt) never tell us that if Japan conquered China, and Germany overwhelmed Great Britain, they would then completely dominate our oceans, and that this one fact alone made the war our war?

"He did not tell us. First, because he did not have the courage to admit that his seven-year policy of isolation and appeasement had been a failure, which had contributed to bringing the war about, and that the only way left to redeem this failure of his statesmanship was for the nation to go to war. Secondly, he did not tell us the truth because he wanted a third term."

Asserts "He Did Not Ask"

The Representative said that during his seven peacetime years, the President did not seek to achieve greater collective security in the world, and "not a single hint . . . did he give to the people . . . of the many secret and specific warnings he was receiving from his ambassadors and his military observers abroad of the growing danger to America" from Japan.

"Arms for the nation were the President's for the asking," she asserted, "he did not ask."

LUTHERANS ASK FOR TOLERANCE

'Rising Tide of Anti-Semitism' in U. S. Denounced.

Minneapolis, Oct. 13 (A. P.).—The biennial convention of the United Lutheran Church in America adopted a resolution today pledging the aid of the church in the preservation of Jewish liberties throughout the nation. The resolution was proposed by Dr. Arnold F. Keller of Utica in connection with the report of the Board of American Missions.

It followed a protest by the Rev. William G. Arbaugh of New York, superintendent of missions of Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, against the denial by the United States Government of passports for missionaries to Latin America. The resolution concerning Jews said that the church viewed "with concern the manifestations of a rising tide of anti-Semitism in American life."

"Recognizing that the Jewish problem has been made one of the central elements in the present assault on civilization," it read, "the United Lutheran Church in America, viewing with concern the manifestations of a rising tide of anti-Semitism in American life, begs its members to consider their Jewish brethren in the spirit of Luther, who spoke kindly things of them as 'blood brothers of our Lord,' to use every available means to assure the Jewish people of their communities of the efforts of our church for the preservation of their rights; and to offer prayers on their behalf."

Mission Report Discussed.

The Rev. Mr. Arbaugh, discussing the mission report said: "Latin America is not truly Roman Catholic, only nominally so. We are not there to make poor Lutherans out of good Catholics, but to gather the unchurched.

"Protestant missionaries are denied passports because of our Government's good neighbor policy. Thus, it practically denies evangelical spiritual heritage to Latin Americans in spite of the loudly proclaimed four freedoms.

"The Government sends advisers in economics, education, sanitation and the like, but, as it were, none on religion."

Delegates last night heard Dr. Charles M. Stine of Wilmington, Del., vice-president of the du Pont Company, sound a challenge to Lutheran laymen and pastors to make it possible for American service men and women to return to a Christian America, and to an America better than the one they left.

Roosevelt's 'Millstones'

Washington, Oct. 13 (AP)—Senator Johnson (D., Col.) said today that President Roosevelt's campaign managers "ought to put Earl Browder, Sidney Hillman and Henry Wallace in cold storage, along with Eleanor" (Mrs. Roosevelt), for the remainder of the campaign.

"They are proving to be a millstone around the President's neck," Johnson told a news conference. "Browder just antagonizes people; Hillman has been so far out in front in the campaign that he has made himself an issue, and, as for Wallace—well, that angle speaks for itself."

He said Mrs. Roosevelt acted wisely in staying out of the campaign, but that "Bob Hannegan (chairman of the Democratic National Committee) didn't go far enough in that respect."

Johnson, frequent critic of the New Deal, opposed the third term and also the fourth-term nomination, but has publicly taken no part in the current campaign since Democratic convention.

LONDON OCT 13-(AP)-AMERICAN ELECTION TACTICS WERE CRITICIZED SHARPLY TODAY BY THE SPECTATOR, CONSERVATIVE BRITISH WEEKLY. IT SAID THAT THAT THE OUTCOME OF THE PRESIDENTIAL CONTEST "PROBABLY DEPENDS IN LARGE MEASURE ON THE WAR SITUATION."

"THE SHADOW OF NOVEMBER," HE SAID, "THROWS ITSELF OVER ALL THAT IS SAID AND DONE BY POLITICIANS OF BOTH PARTIES FOR MANY PRECEDING MONTHS--NEVER A RESOLUTION OR APPOINTMENT, NEVER A SPEECH OR VOTE BUT IT MUST FIRST BE SCRUTINIZED FOR ITS EFFECT ON THE ELECTORATE."

AS A "NOTABLE EXAMPLE," HE CITED "THE PARAGRAPH REFERRING TO PALESTINE IN THE PARTY PLATFORMS" AND COMMENTED: "WHAT AN OUTCRY THERE WOULD HAVE BEEN HAD A BRITISH POLITICIAN SUGGESTED THAT THE AMERICANS SHOULD DO THIS OR THAT IN THE PHILIPPINES. HOW SUCH AN UNPARDONABLE INTRUSION INTO AMERICAN AFFAIRS WOULD HAVE BEEN RESENTED."

"BUT," SAID THE ARTICLE, "THE JEWISH VOTE IN THE UNITED STATES IS FAR FROM NEGLIGIBLE, AND ZIONIST PROPAGANDA HAS BEEN EXTREMELY ACTIVE. THEREFORE EVEN THOUGH THEY KNOW THEIR SUGGESTIONS ARE UTTERLY IMPRACTICAL, BOTH PARTIES HAVE INSERTED IN THEIR PLATFORMS PARAGRAPHS TO APPEASE THE JEWISH VOTERS."

ON THE CHOICE OF THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINEE FOR VICE-PRESIDENT, HE SAID "THE PRESIDENT PROBABLY FELT THAT IN ANY CASE HE WAS SURE OF THE LEFT, THE NEW DEAL VOTERS WHO WERE ENTHUSIASTIC FOR WALLACE, AND THAT TRUMAN MIGHT SWING TO THE DEMOCRATIC SIDE SOME INDIVIDUALS REPELLED BY WALLACE'S ENTHUSIASMS."

THIRD NIGHT LEAD PACIFIC WAR

BY CHARLES H.MCMURTRY

U.S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS,PEARL HARBOR,OCT.13-(AP)-AMERICAN CARRIER PLANES, IN FOUR DAYS OF WIDESPREAD ATTACKS, SANK OR DAMAGED 140 JAPANESE SHIPS AND WRECKED 525 TO 530 PLANES, INCLUDING 63 SHIPS AND 396 PLANES SMASHED IN TWO DAYS OF ACTION AT FORMOSA, THE NAVY DISCLOSED IN COMMUNIQUES TODAY AND TONIGHT.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY THEY SO COMPLETELY OVERPOWERED HEAVILY FORTIFIED FORMOSA, AFTER STEALING UP ON IT BEHIND A TYPHOON, THAT ITS DEFENDERS WERE UNABLE TO DEAL A MORTAL BLOW AT A SINGLE ATTACKING WARSHIP, ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ SAID. HE REFUTED ENEMY CLAIMS OF ONE CARRIER SUNK, A SECOND DAMAGED.

NIMITZ ALSO MADE THE AMAZING REPORT THAT NOT ONE JAPANESE PLANE ROSE FROM MANILA'S MANY AIRFIELDS TUESDAY TO CONTEST CARRIER RAIDERS WHICH WIPED OUT 10 TO 15 GROUNDED PLANES ON LUZON.

HE LIKEWISE ENLARGED THE VICTORY SCORED MONDAY IN THE RYUKYUS, WHICH REACH WITHIN 200 MILES OF JAPAN, REVISING THE FIGURE OF SHIPS SUNK OR DAMAGED UPWARD FROM 38 TO 77, THE SMALL SURFACE CRAFT FROM 20 TO MORE THAN 50 AND PLANES FROM 89 TO 119.

THE RYUKYUS ATTACK COST THE AMERICANS EIGHT PLANES AND EIGHT

AIRMEN.
IN THE SOUTHERN PALAUS, WHERE AMERICAN INVADERS ARE WITHIN 515 MILES OF THE PHILIPPINES, NIMITZ ANNOUNCED TONIGHT ALL ORGANIZED ENEMY RESISTANCE HAS CEASED. THE YANKS HOLD 12 ISLANDS.

TONIGHT'S COMMUNIQUE ALSO DISCLOSED 10 TO 15 JAPANESE PLANES WERE DESTROYED IN THE CARRIER RAID ON LUZON IN THE PHILIPPINES TUESDAY.
NIMITZ ANNOUNCED THE LUZON STRIKE LAST NIGHT BUT GAVE NO DETAILS.
EA749PPW
IN THE LUZON ATTACK THE JAPANESE SURPRISINGLY OFFERED NO AIR-BORNE OPPOSITION, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID. THE HANDFUL OF ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED WERE ON THE GROUND.
THE AMERICAN ATTACK APPARENTLY WAS CENTERED AROUND APARRI ON THE NORTHERN COAST WHERE MANY BUILDINGS WERE SET AFIRE.
IN THE RYUKYU ASSAULT THE BOMBERS "DEVASTATED OHO YAMA ISLAND, IN NAHA HARBOR AT OKINAWA ISLAND. NAHA IS THE LARGEST CITY IN RYUKYU, WITH A POPULATION OF 66,000.

A122FX(CQ)
TWO LIGHTHOUSES, THREE HANGARS AND ONE FACTORY, MANY BARRACKS, BUILDINGS, WAREHOUSES, THREE FUEL DUMPS AND ONE AMMUNITION DUMP WERE DESTROYED.

THE JEVISED RYUKYO BOX SCORE SHOWS 46 SHIPS AND 41 SMALL CRAFT WERE SUNK; 11 SHIPS AND NINE SMALL CRAFT WERE PROBABLY SUNK; 20 SHIPS AND NUMEROUS SAMPANS, LUGGERS AND BARGES WERE DAMAGED; 82 AIRCRAFT WERE DESTROYED AND 37 DAMAGED.
THE REVISED FIGURES SHOWED:
SUNK--ONE DESTROYER ESCORT; FOUR SMALL SUBMARINES; 14 CARGO SHIPS; ONE SUBMARINE TENDER; ONE OILE
SMALL S

CARGO SHIPS; ONE SUBMARINE TENDER; ONE OILER; 25 OCT 14 1944

PROBABLY SUNK: 10 SMALL SHIPS; ONE MINESWEEPER.
DAMAGED: EIGHT CARGO SHIPS; ONE MEDIUM LANDING SHIP; ONE LIGHT MINELAYER; TEN SMALL SHIPS.
AIRCRAFT DOWNED--23; DESTROYED ON THE GROUND--59; DAMAGED ON GROUND--37.
ANNOUNCING THAT AMERICAN LOSSES "WERE COMPARATIVELY LIGHT--EIGHT PLANES IN COMBAT" THE COMMUNIQUE LEFT ROOM FOR THE POSSIBILITY OF SOME OPERATIONAL LOSSES DUE TO TYPHOON CONDITIONS WHICH MAKE CARRIER PLANE DUTY HAZARDOUS.
THE PREVIOUS RYUKYU COMMUNIQUE SAID ONLY "THERE WAS NO DAMAGE TO OUR SURFACE SHIPS AND OUR PLANE LOSSES WERE LIGHT."
WITH THE RYUKYU AND LUZON REVISIONS, THE FOUR DAYS OF CARRIER STRIKES THERE AND ON FORMOSA RESULTED IN THE SINKING OR DAMAGING OF 140 JAPANESE SHIPS AND MORE THAN 87 SMALL CRAFT AND THE DESTRUCTION OF FROM 525 TO 530 AIRPLANES.
AMERICAN PLANE LOSSES IN THOSE THREE ACTIONS TOTALED 53.
NO AMERICAN SHIP LOSSES WERE LISTED.

OCT 14 1944

THE COMMUNIQUE ADDED THAT ORGANIZED RESISTANCE CEASED IN THE SOUTHERN PALAUS ON THURSDAY, WITH PELELIU THE LAST OF THE LITTLE CLUSTER OF ISLANDS EAST OF THE PHILIPPINES TO BE CONQUERED.
SMALL RESISTANCE POCKETS REMAIN ON BOTH PELELIU AND ANGAUR, HOWEVER.
MEANWHILE MARINE CORSAIRS RANGED OVER BABELTHUAP IN THE NORTHERN PALAUS WHERE AN ESTIMATED 25,000 JAPANESE ARE CUT OFF, THROUGH AMERICAN CONTROL OF THE WESTERN PACIFIC, FROM ALL HOMELAND AID.
PELELIU-BESED PLANES SANK OR DAMAGED 28 BARGES, TWO SMALL BOATS AND EIGHT MOTOR LAUNCHES.

THE FORMOSA ATTACK DEMONSTRATED THE EXPANDING POWER OF THE AMERICAN NAVY. WITHIN FOUR DAYS THE AMERICANS HAVE HIT THE PHILIPPINES, FORMOSA, THE RYUKYU ISLANDS AND MARCUS ISLAND. THE FIRST THREE WERE AERIAL ATTACKS AND THE MARCUS ASSAULT WAS RESTRICTED TO AN ALL-DAY SHIP BOMBARDMENT LAST SUNDAY.

THE RYUKYUS WERE SWEPT FROM END TO END MONDAY. FIFTY-EIGHT SURFACE CRAFT WERE SUNK OR DAMAGED AND 89 PLANES DESTROYED. TUESDAY, NIMITZ REPORTED, PLANES ATTACKED LUZON IN THE PHILIPPINES, BUT "DETAILS ARE NOT YET AVAILABLE."

OCT 14 1944

NIMITZ SAID THE FORMOSA RAIDERS APPARENTLY WORKED DOWN THE WESTERN SIDE OF THE ISLAND APPROXIMATELY 100 MILES FROM THE CHINA COAST.

PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, OCT. 13-(AP)-THE U.S.S. MARS, LARGEST FLYING BOAT IN THE WORLD, LANDED HERE THIS WEEK TO COMPLETE 1,000 HOURS FLYING TIME BETWEEN PEARL HARBOR AND SAN FRANCISCO. IN THAT TIME SHE HAS FLOWN MORE THAN 200,000 MILES AND HAS CARRIED A MILLION POUNDS OF CARGO.

ITALIAN CURRENCY (360)

OCT 14 1944

BY FLORA LEWIS

WASHINGTON, OCT. 13-(AP)-THE TREASURY HAS STOPPED PRINTING AND ISSUING ALLIED MILITARY CURRENCY IN ITALY.

THIS, AMERICAN OFFICIALS SAY, MAY BE TAKEN AS A SIGN THAT THE ITALIAN PEOPLE HAVE REGAINED CONFIDENCE IN THEIR BANKS AND THEREFORE PRECEPTS FOR ITALIAN ECONOMIC RECOVERY ARE ENHANCED.

THE CEASE-PRINTING ORDER WAS LAID DOWN, IT WAS ASCERTAINED TODAY, BECAUSE OF A BELIEF THE CURRENCY ALREADY BROUGHT INTO ITALY IS CIRCULATING SUFFICIENTLY RAPIDLY SO THAT IT COMES BACK TO THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT VIA BANK DEPOSITS AND CAN BE RE-USED BY ALLIED TROOPS.

FINANCING THE ALLIED OPERATIONS IN ITALY REMAINS AN EXTREMELY COMPLICATED PROBLEM, HOWEVER, BECAUSE THIS IS DONE PRIMARILY BY A SYSTEM OF BOOKKEEPING RATHER THAN NORMAL ECONOMIC EXCHANGE.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ANNOUNCED THIS WEEK THAT THE LIRE PAID TO ALLIED TROOPS IN ITALY WOULD BE MADE AVAILABLE TO THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT IN DOLLARS FOR THE PURCHASE OF SUPPLIES IN THIS COUNTRY.

THIS MOVE WAS BASED, AN OFFICIAL SAID, ON AN ALLIED DECISION THAT THE PERSONAL EXPENDITURES OF ALLIED SOLDIERS WOULD NOT BE CONSIDERED PART OF OCCUPATION COSTS, IN ITALY OR ELSEWHERE.

BUT, WHEN THE ARMY PAYS LABORERS TO BUILD BARRACKS, BUYS ITALIAN SUPPLIES, OR OTHERWISE SPENDS MONEY IN ITALY, AN ACCOUNT IS KEPT AND THESE ARE CONSIDERED OCCUPATION COSTS TO BE SETTLED LATER.

WHEN A SOLDIER DECIDES TO DRAW HIS PAY IN LIRE, HOWEVER, AND BUY WINE FOR HIMSELF OR PICTURES OR JEWELRY TO SEND HOME, THAT IS NOT CONSIDERED AN OCCUPATION COST AND THE MONEY IS CREDITED TO THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT, WHICH BUYS SUPPLIES IN THIS COUNTRY WITH THE EQUIVALENT IN DOLLARS.

OCT 14 19

AMERICAN SOLDIERS HAVE ALREADY SPENT CONSIDERABLY MORE THAN 100,000,000 LIRE ON SUCH PERSONAL ITEMS, IT IS UNDERSTOOD.

THE DECISION REMAINS TO BE MADE AS TO HOW ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT CURRENCY IN ITALY WILL BE REDEEMED.

THE SOLDIER PAY ITEM IS ONLY A SMALL PORTION OF THE TOTAL AMOUNT OF AMG LIRE, BECAUSE THE ARMY HAS USED IT FOR ITS OWN NEEDS AND DISTRIBUTED IT FOR ITALIAN GOVERNMENT USE WHEN THE NAZIS WERE IN CONTROL OF ITALIAN CURRENCY PRINTING PRESSES AND THERE WAS A SHORTAGE OF MONEY.

NOW, ITALIANS ARE SAID TO BE DEPOSITING INCREASING AMOUNTS OF MONEY IN BANKS, WHICH PASS IT ON TO THE ITALIAN GOVERNMENT, WHICH HANDS SOME BACK TO ALLIED AUTHORITIES FOR THEIR PURCHASES, WHICH SPEND THE MONEY IN ITALY. COMPLETION OF THIS CIRCLE HAU OBVIATED THE NEED FOR CONTINUED ISSUANCE OF ALLIED CURRENCY.

Converge on Heart of City

LONDON, Oct. 14 (AP).—American troops converged tonight on the heart of Aachen, which, at least for the moment, was left to its fate by German relief columns so badly mauled outside the stricken city that for twenty-four hours they have been unable to muster a counter-attack.

The U. S. First army could afford to take its time, for the half-mile wide corridor leading from the city was as good as closed after a few small units were believed to have slipped in last night to swell the garrison to perhaps 2,000 men.

Furthermore, the crack German infantry and tank divisions which threw the British out of the Arnhem bridgehead, then were rushed south to Aachen, lay bleeding in the fields northeast of the city, numbed by aerial and artillery bombardment that knocked out more than 80 tanks.

The British Second army to the north, moving up its lines toward the Maas river facing Germany midway between Arnhem and Aachen, hammered out a half-mile gain south of Overloon. They fought through mire across the bodies of Germans who refused to yield an inch.

Canadians on the seaward flank were under large-scale assault from strong enemy forces who were trying to drive them from positions astride the South Beveland causeway, where Dominion troops have cut off escape by land for Germans on the islands in the Schelde estuary.

Canadian Drive to Close Gap

Driving a mile south from their Scheldt bridgehead west of Antwerp, the Canadians were little more than two miles from linking up with comrades clinging to the eastern end of a bridgehead over the Leopold canal.

On the southern end of the 460-mile front, the German communique said the U. S. Seventh army had gone over to the attack in strong force on a broad front east of Remiremont, 30 miles north of Belfort.

There was no Allied confirmation of this, but it was reported officially that the French First army in this area in an advance of about three miles from previously reported positions was nearing Cornimont, only 11 miles from the vital Schlucht pass through the Vosges mountains to the Rhine.

The U. S. Third army cleared the Germans from three-fourths of the forest of Parroy, a sore point east of Nancy from which the Germans have been mounting counterattacks, but no other changes were reported.

A spokesman for the German high command took advantage of the lack of important Allied advances to boast tonight that "we shall use the sixth winter of war to turn the offensive next spring and to carry war back again to French soil."

The Paris National radio joined this war of words by claiming that a Free German committee had enlisted more than half of the Nazis.

Allied warplanes, which had wrecked much of Aachen, turned their guns, rockets and bombs on targets behind the lines as the doughboys fought deeper into the city.

Medium bombers pounded the reinforcements to the northeast and fighterbombers flew companion sorties, and betwen them they destroyed 246 railway cars, wrecked 54 locomotives, 19 factories and shot up eight gun positions and 42 motor trucks.

Thunderbolt and Lightning fighters accepted a challenge from up to 100 enemy interceptors, destroying 18 and damaging 13 for a loss of 13.

Take 1,000 Prisoners

The veteran division assaulting Aachen took 1,000 prisorers in five days, including 300 yesterday and 60 in the early hours of today.

Aachen police, forced by the Nazis to fight as commandos, said upon their capture that the city had been without water or electricity for three weeks.

A mile-long column of civilians, grabbing up what belongings they could, straggled from the city. Their pinched faces testified to the shortage of food. It was estimated 3,000 of them now had left Aachen.

Three miles north of Aachen the Americans were fighting slowly south, narrowing the escape route even further, but held up by stubborn resistance from Mobile guns and tanks.

Eleven miles southeast of Aachen the doughboys were bounding back from a reversal at Germeter, slowly regaining the territory they had yielded in the forest of Hurtgen.

The British Second army found the going tough in the main south of Overloon. The Germans had strewn the fields thickly with mines and had to be rooted from dug-in positions by bayonet-wielding Tommies. The enemy was bent on defending to the death this last six miles to the Maas river.

Sever Rail Line

Light bombers, attempting to cut off reinforcements on this front, severed the railway line leading to a bridge at Venlo, 16 miles southeast at Roermond, 25 miles south of Overloon.

On the west side of the Dutch corridor, the British beat off a counterattack southeast of Hertogenbosch and scored limited gains.

The Canadians north of Antwerp were under day-long attack yesterday from positions south of the big German base of Bergen Op Zoom, 19 miles north of Antwerp, but the enemy was stopped in his tracks.

Then the assault was resumed this morning. Columns of tanks and other enemy vehicles were seen moving toward the battle area, and it appeared the Germans were ready to spend manpower and material to break the Canadian stranglehold on the Schelde island causeway.

The Germans were using the cover of woods north and northeast of Woensdrecht, five miles south of Bergen Op Zoom.

The fighting farther west along the south bank of the Schelde Estuary was raging hotter and the Canadians were forced back 500 yards from positions west of Hoofdplaat, site of their original beachhead.

ESCAPE GAP CLOSED

U. S. Seventh Army Opens Attack on Wide Front Near Belfort.

OCT 15 1944

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON, Oct. 14. — Americans forged deeper into Aachen today in slow, hard house-to-house battle, and took such heavy toll of Germans with a curtain of shells and bombs that all enemy reinforcement attacks from the east were balked.

For 24 hours the Germans have been unable to make any counter-attack to relieve the nearly surrounded garrison in the medieval city, a first army staff officer said and all their efforts to bring up tanks have been stopped.

Meet Strong Resistance

In Aachen itself Doughboys were digging the enemy from pillboxes and cellars, but were meeting increasing resistance.

The Aachen escape gap now was "as good as closed," an officer at the front said. But some German reinforcements possibly had slipped into the burning city, and a front dispatch estimated 2,000 Germans were left there, fighting back more desperately now. In five days an American division has taken 1,000 prisoners.

Germans fought as bitterly in Holland. Canadians blockading the escape route for the enemy on Zuid Beveland and Walcheren islands in the northern Schelde Estuary were forced on the defensive.

To the east in Holland, British forces hacked out a gain of more than a mile southeast of Overloon in the sector above Aachen, but progress was slow.

[Americans at Aachen have "devastated the ancient emperors' town," and the ruin extends "even outside the German positions," the Nazi High Command said in a broadcast communique today. It acknowledged "slight progress' by the American's despite strong Nazi tank attacks.

[The communique also declared American troops had opened "a strong attack on a broad front" southeast of Remiremont, in the sector northwest of Belfort and the gap to southwestern Germany. Fierce fighting is still going on at several breakthrough points, the bulletin added. There was no word from Allied quarters of a new assault on this Seventh Army sector.]

Infantrymen using flame-throwers, grenades and machine guns advanced slowly but steadily in Aachen. An attack on the northeast had narrowed the lane from the city. Field artillery and planes hit repeatedly at German reinforcements trying to move in from the east, and prevented any major counter-attack to relieve Aachen. Eighty-four German tanks had been knocked out in forty-eight hours through yesterday.

Counter-attacks Dispersed.

Germans in Aachen had to be squeezed from pillboxes and dug from wells and cellars of ruined houses.

Four miles north of Aachen tank-reinforced Germans threw in stronger pressure, but several counter-attacks were dispersed by Allied planes and artillery. Infantry in this sector between Aachen and Bardenberg moved forward slowly against stubborn defenses, including mobile guns and tanks.

Southeast of Aachen the Allied communique reported progress near Germeter, twelve miles from Aachen and one mile southwest of Hurtgen town, to regain ground lost earlier to a strong enemy counter-assault.

In Holland the Germans brought up assault guns and tanks below Bergen Op Zoom in an apparent all-out attempt to rescue forces trapped on the Schelde estuary islands. Fighting rose in intensity and Canadians holding the spit of land running to the islands lost the initiative at least temporarily.

2000-yard Advance.

Troops that landed on the south bank of the Schelde River, meanwhile, hit south another 2,000 yards, more than a mile, and now were only 4,000 yards from joining other Canadians holding a bridgehead over the Leopold Canal.

Americans in France gained ground in the Moselotte River bend southeast of Epinal despite heavy resistance, and struck over rugged terrain to near Cornimont, twenty-two miles from Epinal, the headquarters bulletin said.

Pressure was maintained from three sides on the town of Le Thillot, fifteen miles above Belfort. Elsewhere in the Vosges foothills patrols were active and artillery fire, the communique added.

[A British broadcast heard by OWI said Germans in the French ports of La Rochelle, La Palisse, St. Nazaire and Royan were being supplied by air. It estimated the number of troops in these ports at 60,000.]

Allied fighters and fighter-bombers ranged the whole northern end of the front in effective support of ground troops.

Both sides were increasing pressure all along the eastern front, and especially in the Aachen area.

3000 GERMANS LEAVE AACHEN

Strange Civilian Parade Moves From City.

Outside Aachen, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—About 3,000 German civilians evacuated from Aachen moved today up a cobblestoned road of Nazi defeat.

This strange parade now plodding past is heading for a twenty-acre area where civil affairs officers have arranged temporary shelter. Food for 5,000 German civilians has been ordered there.

All the people in this column are walking, carrying every sort of container from handbags to cloth baskets. Only the aged, babies, and the ill are brought out in trucks.

Here a woman rides in a dump cart pulled by another woman. There are two women carrying an immense basket between them. There are children of 5 years old and men of 70 and more.

Seem to Look for Sympathy.

Extraordinary as it is, these people look at you as though they had a right to demand your sympathy.

A man of about 60 stopped before one of our military policemen and told him in perfect English: "We are so glad you have come. We have waited so long."

When some of our planes came over a woman put down her bundle, looked up, and asked: "American?" Told that the planes were American, she smiled broadly.

You get the impression that these people are working laboriously to ingratiate themselves.

ATHENS OCCUPIED BY ALLIED FORCES

British And Greeks End Three Years Of Nazi Rule

Rome, Oct. 14 (AP)—British and Greek troops, converging by sea and air today, occupied Athens and its near-by port of Piraeus and ended more than three years of tyrannical Nazi rule in the Greek capital.

A special communique announcing the liberation of Athens, taken by the Nazis in April, 1941, at the height of their Balkan conquests, said the operation was conducted by seaborne and airborne forces, but made no mention of any enemy opposition. This indicated the truth of earlier unofficial reports that the Germans had withdrawn to the north and left the city in the hands of Greek Partisans.

The landing force was carried into port by the British navy, including some Greek ships.

Play Leading Part

"British airborne troops, carried in aircraft of the United States Army Air Forces, played a leading part in the operation," the comunique said, but the precise role of the airborne forces was not stated.

Maj. Gen. R. M. Scobie has been appointed land task force commander in Greece, and leaders of various Greek patriot factions already have agreed to place their units under his orders, it was announced.

The seaborne units which landed and seized both the capital and the port appeared to be an advance force for a large relief expedition assembled to rush food and medical supplies and other essentials as soon as the country is liberated.

Corfu Surrenders

Earlier, the surrender to other British landing forces of the Greek island of Corfu and the entrance to the Adriatic, which had been believed to be strongly defended, was announced. Not a shot was fired in the Corfu operation.

Such German forces as have been in Greece in recent weeks were believed to be in full flight northward through Yugoslavia, hoping to reach their homeland before their last few routes of escape are finally snapped shut by the Russians and the Yugoslav Partisan forces.

There was no news of a small column of land forces which already has chased Nazi garrisons from the Peloponnesus and captured Corinth. It was last reported moving northward.

To Speed Plebiscites

It was considered likely here that the Greek Government is returning to Athens with a new landing force to set up a provisional administration and begin preparations for plebiscites in which the Greek people have been promised they will have the opportunity to choose their own form of government.

The Government already has issued a plea to Greeks to forget their factional differences for the present in order to prevent possible interference with the immediate task of chasing the last Nazis from Greek soil and bringing much-needed relief to the people whose sufferings under the Germans has been the most acute in all Europe.

The Cairo radio reported the morale of the retreating Germans in Greece had been broken.

The fall of Corfu came with surprising suddenness. Balkan Air Force pilots, flying low over the big island scattering leaflets calling on the enemy garrison to surrender, saw the Germans put up white flags. Crowds of civilians waved cheerfully.

Then the landing parties came in. They found only sixty Germans in the northeast corner of the island waiting to surrender. Not a German was found in the town of Corfu. The British had expected to find at least a regiment, well supplied with coastal guns.

Blast Wrecks Port

Meanwhile, a tremendous explosion from German delayed-action charges wrecked the center of the Albanian port of Sarande, eight miles northeast of Corfu across a narrow strait.

An official account said there were no casualties, because the area had been roped off after the discovery of numerous mines and booby traps.

But the commander of the German garrison broke the Geneva rules of war by failing to report the presence of the explosives, which let go 50 hours after the capitulation.

Eight miles northeast of Sarande, the inland town of Delvine was captured by Patriot forces Wednesday, it was announced.

The fall of Corfu, Sarande and Delvine eliminated both the Albanian coastal road and coastal waters as routes of retreat for the Germans in Greece, but the light opposition encountered everywhere indicated the enemy no longer attached much value to them.

Allied Troops Take Island Of Corfu

New York, Oct. 14 (AP)—British troops have entered Athens, a British radio broadcast heard by CBS said today. An earlier broadcast said order prevails in the Greek capital, and that the Germans had "carried out only a little demolition."

Rome, Oct. 14 (AP)—Allied troops have captured the fertile Greek island of Corfu in the Ionian Sea after the German garrison of only 60 men surrendered without firing a shot, it was announced today.

At the same time Albanian Partisans on the mainland occupied Delvino, an inland road center above the port of Sarande (Porto Edda) which previously was captured.

The fall of Corfu, Sarande and Delvino eliminated both the Albanian coastal road and coastal waters as avenues of Nazi escape northward from Greece. The comparatively light opposition encountered in the area indicated that the Nazis no longer attached high value to these routes.

Blast In Sarande

Earlier it had been reported that the Germans had garrisoned Corfu with a regiment of troops. The island is approximately 38 miles long with a width varying from 3 to 20 miles. It has an area of 275 square miles and a population of 106,000.

Allied headquarters announced that at Sarande delayed-action explosives left by the Germans blew up the center of the town, but there were no casualties.

The area affected had been roped off because many booby traps had been discovered. The explosion was 50 hours after the German surrender. And the 60 who surrendered were in the northeast corner of the island. Numbers of deserters were believed scattered elsewhere.

RAF Drops Leaflets

Prior to the Allied landing RAF planes dropped leaflets urging surrender and shortly afterward white crosses and flags began to blossom from the island.

Low-flying pilots saw crowds waving when the tokens of surrender appeared.

The capture of Sarande, which the Nazis had been using as a supply base, cut off the German garrison on Corfu.

Report Unconfirmed

Allied headquarters once again was silent on the continuing operations of British land forces and Partisans on the Greek mainland. The light column which marched across the Peloponnesus from Patrai last was reported at Corinth.

There still was no official confirmation of yesterday's reports that the Germans had evacuated Athens and that the Greek flag was flying from the Acropolis.

The bombardment of the island of Aigina just off Athens in the Gulf of Saronikos on October 12 by the British light cruiser Colombo was announced. The cruiser shelled an enemy battery on the island but there was nothing to indicate whether the Nazis still were manning defenses there.

New Landing Seen

Proclamations by the Greek Government, General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied commander in the Mediterranean, and Lieut. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie, the commander of the British troops which this week swept into Corinth, made it plain that an Allied force was about to be landed to supplement the small units already ashore.

Since the new landing has been withheld until the Germans have withdrawn most if not all of their forces from the area, it obviously will be primarily an expedition bringing food and other relief necessities to the population.

FALL OF YUGOSLAV CAPITAL IS NEAR; NAZI STAFF FLEES

Street Fighting Raging in City After Allies Capture Suburbs.

Tanks Locked in Battle on Magyar Plains in Hungary.

LONDON, Sunday, Oct. 15—(AP)

Russian and Yugoslav partisan forces fought their way into the 2,000-year-old fortress city of Belgrade yesterday and began a street abttle against a doomed German garrison whose commander and staff fled, Marshal Tito's headquarters announced last night.

With Berlin acknowledging that "strong motorized" Soviet forces had reached the Yugoslav capital and Moscow telling of the capture of its suburbs, the fall of the city was expected shortly.

Tanks Battle in Hungary

In Hungary the fate of that last big Axis satellite nation was being decided in great, four-day-old tank battles raging on the Magyar plains between Szolnok, 50 miles southeast of Budapest and Debrecen, 115 miles east of the Hungarian capital.

A late DNB German news agency report said the Hungarian battle was in a "complete state of flux," and said the bitterest fighting was at Debrecen, last big escape route for German and Hungarian forces fleeing from Transylvania. DNB added: "This grand-scale battle is no longer being fought by tanks alone but by masses of infantry and other troops."

Key Junction Captured

A Bulgarian communique announced the fall of Nis, key junction on the Belgrade-Athens and Belgrade-Sofia railways 128 miles southeast of the Yugoslav capital. Yugoslav partisans combined with Bulgarian units under General Stantchev in the liberation of the town, Sofia announced. Many prisoners and much booty was seized, it said.

Sixteen miles north of Nis Russian and Yugoslav partisans descending the railway captured Aleksinac, the Soviet bulletin said, and also Paracin, 26 miles northwest of Aleksinac.

With the British seizure of the Greek capital of Athens the Allies were fast rolling up German troops in the lower Balkans, in many cases surrounding considerable forces and setting traps for their annihilation. The Yugoslavs have estimated that between 100,000 and 150,000 Germans never will be able to escape to the Reich.

The capture of Paracin put the Russians only 34 miles east of Kralevo, last possible rail escape route for the Germans fleeing from southern Yugoslavia and Greece.

Besides taking Kumodraz, three miles from Belgrade's city limits the Russians also announced the capture of several other localities which Tito's headquarters already had disclosed Friday as being captured, including Belipotok, six miles outside the capital.

Third of Way to Adriatic

In the drive westward across Yugoslavia the combined Russian-Yugoslav forces captured Arandelovac, 32 miles south of Belgrade and the same distance east of the communications center of Valjevo. Soviet forces now are almost a third of the way to the Adriatic sea in the west.

South of fallen Riga in Latvia the Russians captured 10 localities, the bulletin said, including the rail station of Balozi, four miles below the Latvian capital and Plakanicsi, nine miles outside the city. German troops were fighting a savage delaying action as the Russians pressed them westward into the encircling arms of other Soviet troops that have sealed off northwestern Latvia.

Although the Russians were reported battering at the approaches to Memel and Tilsit in German east Prussia, Moscow was silent about land operations on that front. Berlin said the situation had eased somewhat but fully expected a resumption of the drive shortly.

Soviet bombers attacked Memel and Tilsit Friday night. The bulletin said nine German transports were in the Baltic port at the time and large concentrations of enemy troops observed in the northwestern part of the town. Forty fires broke out accompanied by explosions in the port district and could be observed for 125 miles, the communique said.

At Tilsit, direct bomb hits blew up a train in the station and set fires at crossings over the Niemen river and also in the northern and western parts of the town, it said.

SUPERFORTS BLAST FORMOSA ARSENAL

Carrier Planes Join B-29s in Mighty Raid on Japanese Bases.

A B-29 BASE IN WEST CHINA, Oct. 14.—(AP) Flames rising an estimated 22,000 feet over the town of Okayama on Formosa island today marked the most successful Superfortress mission to date as the giant B-29's followed a mighty navy blow to add new wreckage to that major Japanese base.

Returning pilots jubilantly reported that clouds opened to frame their target perfectly for visual bombing in close-packed groups. A record bomb tonnage patterned the target area.

"This is only the beginning," said Maj. Gen. Curtis LeMay after the raid. "It was the best show yet."

Fortress crews said that damage inflicted by carrier-based navy planes earlier was clearly evident, and were loud in their praise of the navy bomber crews.

Enemy opposition was negligible, the returning flyers said. No Japanese interceptor planes were sighted and anti-aircraft fire was negligible.

"It was a picnic, just a sleigh-ride," said First Lt. Robert Hagenduch of Glendale, Calif.

"Smoke piled up huge columns approximately 20,000 feet. With visual bombing and smacking them right on the target area you feel you've accomplished something. It was swell."

The massed formation of Superfortresses which made the raid on Formosa was considerably larger than any previous raiding group of the giant planes. Their principal targets were the important Japanese airforce arsenal and other installations at Okayama.

It was another step in the tactical pattern of the American advance into the perimeter of Japanese home defenses. Earlier B-29 raids were on isolated enemy war industries far from the scenes of other Allied operations.

Formosa is the base from which the Japanese launched their lightning offensives in the Philippines and the southwest Pacific after Pearl Harbor. Since that time the military establishment on the island has been enlarged until it has become a gigantic arsenal supplying all the enemy operations.

This tenth expedition of the air giants was the shortest raid they have made to date and permitted transport of greater bombloads. The official announcement said the aggregate tonnage of incendiaries and high explosives was the greatest ever dropped in a single operation in the China-Burma-India theater.

Washington, Oct. 14 (AP)—The 20th Air Force reported late this afternoon that four of the Superfortresses which carried out a large-scale attack on Okayama, Formosa, today "are unreported at this time." The communique added that some of the planes were expected to turn up later at friendly bases.

Washington, Oct. 14 (AP) — The largest force of Superfortresses ever sent into the air today attacked Japan's major airplane repair and supply depot at Okayama on the island of Formosa.

The attack was coordinated with the continuing bombardment of Formosa by fleets of smaller planes from the navy's carriers. Initial reports from the Superfortress crewmen indicated a "successful attack," the army said.

Weight Of Bombs Topped

The communique indicated that a weight of bombs far greater than any carried in the previous operations of B-29's fell on Okayama. It said, "on this mission a larger number of Superfortresses was engaged than on any previous attack" and that the mission was conducted from bases in China.

The distance from bases in Free China to Formosa is considerably less than to Kyushu, in the Japanese home islands, which has been attacked by the Superfortresses on several occasions. This would mean that the planes could carry a much greater weight of bombs.

Four Fail To Return

The War Department said that four of the giant planes had not reported back to their bases, but that it was believed they might turn up later.

Okayama, in the southwestern portion of Formosa, is a small town about which the Japanese have built up a vast depot for restoring battle-damaged planes and supplying air operations. It has huge storage facilities and a naval arsenal with facilities for work on big shipboard guns.

Hits Most Important Target South of Japan— Blow Follows New Carrier Strike— Philippine Foe Held Isolated.

Washington, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—The greatest number of B-29 Superfortresses that ever has attacked Japan's war machine today plastered Okayama, important Jap repair base on Formosa. A communique of the 20th Bomber Command, announcing the raid, said none of the craft was reported lost.

Reports of crews returning to their bases in China indicated that the attack, launched in clear weather over the target, was successful. The communique called Okayama the "most important air target south of Japan proper."

Okayama itself is a small community ten miles north of the city of Takao inland in the southern half of Formosa, but it is the location for a huge aircraft repair and supply depot.

The location of the depot, coupled with the communique's description of its importance, suggests that the depot probably has been used for repairing and supplying a majority of the planes operating in a large area, including the Philippines and China.

Follow Up Carrier Attacks.

This largest attack yet by the Superfortresses followed on the heels of the carrier-borne aircraft attack on Formosa.

Because Formosa is much closer than the target of some of the earlier Superfortress attacks on Kyushu, it was presumed the giant bombers each carried a much heavier load of explosive than on the longer missions.

The communique's reference to the mission being launched from bases in China seemed to indicate that the round-trip flight might have covered about 2,000 miles. The longest known flight of the B-29s was last August when they attacked Jap oil production centers at Palembang in Sumatra. That flight was launched from a base outside of China, near the equator, indicating that the round trip covered about 3,600 miles.

The weather over the target was good, and visual bombing was accomplished. Eyewitness reports of returning crews indicate a successful attack. On this mission a larger number of Superfortresses was engaged than on any previous attack.

B-29s Beaten Off, Tokyo Declares

San Francisco, Oct. 14 (AP)—Two morning raids by 450 American carrier planes today preceded the Superfortress attack on Formosa, Japanese imperial headquarters reported in a broadcast of the headquarters communique.

(The B-29 assault was announced earlier in Washington, but there was no confirmation of the carrier plane attack.)

The Japanese communique, which was Tokyo's first mention of the Superfortress attack said 100 of the giant planes hit the island. It claimed, however, they were repulsed "almost without dropping any bombs," and "fled in defeat."

Sinkings Claimed

The Tokyo radio also claimed that Japan has "sunk or destroyed 10 enemy warships of which six are carriers," during recent American raids in the Pacific.

The Japanese broadcast was in English and for American consumption.

"War results available up to Friday night," said the broadcast, were:

"One: Instantaneously sunk, six enemy aircraft carriers and a warship of unidentified type, most probably a carrier.

"Two: Damaged, two carriers and a warship of unidentified type, also assumed to be a carrier."

U.S. Laid Out $3,392,396 On First Super-Fortress

Giant Bombers Now Costing About $600,000 Each

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 14 (AP).—It cost $3,392,396.60 to build the first B-29 Superfortress. Headquarters of the Air Technical Service Command announced that figure today on pointing out that it took 180,928 of the $25 war bonds to build that first Superfortress. The Superforts now are costing approximately $600,000 each.

Brigadier General Kenneth B. Wolfe, A. T. S. F. chief of engineering and procurement, used the B-29 as an example of the enormous cost of building a new warplane, and said:

"Into the cost of the first model of any warplane goes all the years of engineering, experiments, tests and changes. The very time it takes costs money and the minimum time from the first design of a new plane to the completion of the first production model is about three years."

General Wolfe said $84,150 was spent even before the original contract for the Superfort was let. That went for preliminary engineering information. The original contract was for $1,804,840 but that later was reduced to $1,674,880 after the government assumed certain flight risks. That did not include government-furnished equipment which cost about $493,300.

General Wolfe said the B-29 had a minimum of changes before actual production was started but it cost $95,241 for tests to alter the tail; $7,500 for enlarging the bomb bay and $15,600 for new propeller tests.

Tokyo Reports 2 New Blows At Formosa

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 14 (AP)—Japan's army of 150,000 in the Philippines, harassed by guerrillas in advance of the anticiptaed American invasion, is believed cut off from its main source of reinforcement at bomb-ravaged Formosa which B-29s blasted today after two days of carrier-plane attacks.

(A Japanese imperial headquarters communique reported that carrier planes hit the island today for the third day, in two morning attacks by 450 aircraft which preceded the B-29 assault.)

Vern Haugland, Associated Press war correspondent, said that view was taken here of official reports showing more than 1,000 United States carrier aircraft sank or damaged 63 ships, wiped out 396 planes and ripped Formosa's railway system in giant raids Wednesday and Thursday.

Still May Be In Action

Tokyo radio, while telling Japan of the raids, claimed six carriers and four warships were sunk but Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said last night the Japanese air force failed to even damage the fleet units in their Wednesday night attack.

Correspondents were permitted to speculate that the carrier forces, which in four days accounted for 140 ships, 87 smaller craft and from 525 to 530 planes at Formosa, the Ryukyus and the Philippines, still may be in action against Japan's inner defense arc.

The raid by Superfortresses on Formosa substantiated Tokyo radio's expressed fears that the base was in for attack by land and sea.

No Enemy Planes

The Philippines, by many signs appeared wide open for invasion.

Not a Japanese plane took to the skies from Manila's many air dromes Tuesday to oppose carrier planes which erased 10 to 15 grounded enemy aircraft on Luzon the navy disclosed last night.

Haugland said Japanese freedom of movement in the Philippines can be halted whenever Admiral Chester Nimitz and Gen. Douglas MacArthur choose.

Tokyo radio, quoting naval and diplomatic officials, told the Japanese that "American guerrillas" are disrupting communications in the Philippines and that fuel and commodity shortages have arisen due to shipping difficulties.

45 Planes Lost

Out of the hundreds of American planes which swept for two days over Formosa, wreaking havoc on shore installations as well as sea and air craft, 45 were shot down, Nimitz said, indicating surprisingly thin air protection for such a formidable base. The raiders, in erasing 174 planes on the ground, came close to equalling the 221 they bagged in sky fights.

Wednesday night, Japanese torpedo planes and bombers made the strike which failed. The ferocity of the American attack on Thursday plainly implied no impairment of striking power.

Total Is Increased

Complete reports on the lengthy attack dealt the Ryukyus, reaching to within 200 miles of Japan, Monday raised the total enemy ships sunk or damaged from 38 to 77, the total small surface craft from 20 to more than 50 and the planes destroyed from 89 to 119. Nimitz listed the loss of eight American planes and airmen.

The revised bag of ships in the Ryukyus included four submarines, virtually the only enemy warships found in the operations.

In the southern Palaus, where 12 invaded islands form one base for invasion of the Philippines 515 miles to the west, Nimitz announced the end of all organized Japanese resistance less than a month after the invasion opened on September 15. Nipponese remnants still remain on Peleliu and Anguar.

In Range Of Jap Bombers

The manner in which carrier planes spread devastation over the Ryukyus, which are within protective range of Japan's home-based bombers, was emphasized in last night's communique. Nimitz said the raiders destroyed two lighthouses, three hangars, a factory, many buildings, warehouses, three fuel dumps and one ammunition dump.

Among the targets was Naha, largest city of the Ryukyus on Okinawa Island.

The carrier attacks on Formosa were extended on the second day to include the adjacent Pescadores. Heavy damage was inflicted on port facilities and shore installations.

HUNGARY SAID TO ASK PEACE

Ankara Reports Delegation Has Been Sent To Moscow

London, Oct. 14 (AP)—Hungary, her capital helpless in the path of the Red army, has sent a delegation to Moscow to ask for peace, the Ankara radio said tonight.

There was no confirmation of the report, which said that the delegation "is already on its way," but there have been persistent reports all week that the Hungarians were seeking an armistice.

Like Italian Armistice

Daniel De Luce, Associated Press correspondent, said in a dispatch from Moscow that the political circumstances surrounding the Red army's conquest of Hungary "may be compared" with those under which the Italian armistice was kept secret for five days. The point was not further amplified and several paragraphs were missing from the dispatch, perhaps a result of censorship deletions.

While all indications thus were that Hungary was about to drop out of the war, or may even already have done so, the Ankara radio also quoted a Sofia communique saying that a Bulgarian delegation had left for Moscow to negotiate armistice terms. The Russians announced earlier in the week that the Bulgars had accepted preliminary conditions which included evacuation of seized Greek and Yugoslav territories. Ankara said this evacuation had started and would be completed next week.

Paris Adds Report

The Paris national radio, quoting a report which it said came from Bulgaria but was not otherwise attributed, said that "the Hungarian Government has accepted the preliminary conditions of an Allied armistice."

The Nazis admitted in broadcasts tonight that Hungary was in a panic and that "all Europe is watching with a sense of tension," but Berlin insisted that the German army would fight for every foot of this strategic area "as if it were German soil."

The German propaganda agency Transocean, quoting the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, blamed ineffective Hungarian resistance upon a lack of "moral preparation for war."

OCT 15 1944

Last-Ditch Appeals

Frantic last-ditch appeals in the controlled Hungarian press hinted that it was the property-owning middle classes who were lying down. One paper referred to them as Petit Bourgeois who "claim that our life and death struggle no longer has any meaning because the Russians already are on Hungarian soil."

DISORDERS IN BUDAPEST

Capital Appears Open to Final Attack by Red Army Troops Near City.

London, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—The Ankara radio, without confirmation from other sources, said tonight that a Hungarian delegation had left for Moscow to ask for peace.

The Moscow radio said the German legation staff already had fled Budapest, Hungarian capital which appeared open to invasion by the Red Army, and that disorders were becoming widespread.

Moscow dispatches hinted that the political situation in Hungary was approaching a showdown and compared the situation to that in Italy in September, 1943, when the Allies concealed an armistice with the Italian Government nearly a week in the hope of springing a trap on the Germans.

Moscow announced Wednesday night that Bulgaria had accepted preliminary armistice conditions, including the evacuation of seized Greek and Yugoslav territories.

The Ankara radio said a Bulgarian delegation was going to Moscow at the invitation of the Russia, British and American governments.

To Head Romanian Army

New York, Oct. 14 (AP)—Nicolae Radescu has been appointed chief of staff of the Romanian army by King Mihai, replacing Gen. George Mihail, who resigned yesterday, the Bucharest radio said in a broadcast reported by the Federal Communications Commission today.

RAF RENEWS AIR BLASTS ON REICH

LONDON, Oct. 15 — (Sunday)—(AP) The RAF bombed Germany early today with one of the largest night armadas ever seen by coast watchers, hard on the heels of the 3,300-plane daylight raids on Duisberg, Cologne and other German cities.

OCT 15 1944

Watchers in Southern England, seasoned to the drone of night bombers, said the force which swept toward the continent shortly after midnight may have been the largest ever massed for an attack on Germany.

A considerable force of craft believed to have been Mosquitos spearheaded the constant stream of heavy bombers traveling southeast.

At 1 A. M. the German radio warning service reported there were no enemy planes over the Reich, but shortly afterward German radio stations exploded into a series of warnings.

These placed the attackers over the Hanover-Brunswick and Schleswig-Holstein areas and in the Brandenburg-Berlin region.

Squawking of warnings indicated that Mosquitos, frequent visitors to Berlin, had given the German capital a double drubbing.

A fleet of 2,200 British-based heavy bombers under escort of 1,100 fighters heaped more than 8,500 tons of high explosives on German rail and canal communications in and immediately behind the Siegfried Line yesterday.

The RAF heavies, in one of their rare daylight assaults, burst all records for the weight of bombs aimed at a single target by night or day by dumping 5,600 tons on the big communications center of Duisburg, 35 miles north of Cologne.

A mighty procession of 1,000 Liberators and Flying Fortresses pounded Cologne, 36 miles east of Aachen, in the heaviest Eighth Air Force raid since the siege of Aachen began, upsetting supply lines to the battle zone.

14 Bombers, 8 Fighters Missing

Other heavy bombers swung south and struck Saarbrucken and Kaiserslautern behind the German troops facing the United States Third Army on the Metz-Nancy front. From all these attacks 14 bombers and eight fighters are missing.

A few hours later the German radio reported Allied bombers were over East Prussia.

Five railroad yards at Cologne were hit by the United States heavies, which had to find their target by instrument because of heavy cloud formations.

The Duisburg raiders were accompanied by 300 Spitfires and Mustangs, which met little air opposition. Anti-aircraft fire accounted for most of the 14 RAF reported missing.

Raids From Italian Bases

Meanwhile, a large force of 15th Air Force heavy bombers flew far to the northeast from their Italian bases and hit targets in Silesia, including oil fields, a synthetic oil factory at Blechhammer and a refinery at Odertal, and then flew on to pound communications in Hungary, Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia.

Terrific anti-aircraft barrages met the raiders of Blechhammer, 75 miles southwest of Breslau, Germany, and at communications and factory targets in the area of Vienna, but there was little flak to oppose the planes that flew over Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

Thirty-six heavy bombers and 12 fighters were reported missing from these raids, but some were believed to have come down on friendly fields.

New Blows At Cologne, Duisburg

The Cologne raid not only snarled enemy supply lines, but resumed the destruction of that much-bombed Rhine river stronghold, which is the next stop on the road to Berlin. The daylight raid on the city followed a night attack by British Mosquito bombers.

The escort of 800 Thunderbolts and Mustangs met [illegible] fighter opposition, according to preliminary reports, but the raiders flew through flak and rockets.

Duisburg, north of Cologne on the Rhine, had been bombed more than 50 times before today's raid. It is the largest inland European port, located at the junction of the Rhine and Ruhr rivers. It has huge facilities for the transfer of goods from the rivers to railroads and a large railway network surrounds the port.

Cologne Raided By 1,000 U. S. Bombers

London, Oct. 14 (AP)—More than 1,000 American heavy bombers attacked railways, marshaling yards and other targets at Cologne today, while other formations of Fortresses and Liberators blasted military objectives in the Saarbruken and Kaiserslautern areas.

It was the second raid in less than 18 hours on Cologne, German industrial city less than 40 miles east of Aachen on the road to Berlin. British Mosquitos gave it a softening-up blow last night.

Get 246 Railroad Cars

Besides hitting Aachen yesterday, medium and fighter bombers ranged on into western Germany, destroying 246 railroad cars and damaging 126, destroying 42 motor trucks and damaging 30, wrecking 54 locomotives and damaging 2. They knocked out 8 gun positions, smashed 19 factories, damaged 11 more, destroying a bridge, and cut railway lines at 86 places.

Thunderbolts and Lightnings encountered some of the strongest German air opposition in weeks, running into formations of Messerschmitts and Focke-Wulfs sometimes 100 strong. In air battles they destroyed 18 and damaged 13 more. Thirteen American planes were lost.

Very strong forces of Eighth Air Force Thunderbolts and Mustangs, probably numbering between 750 and 1,000, escorted the bombers to and from the targets.

Saarbrucken and Kaiserslautern, in the heart of the Saar Valley, also are important western front rail centers.

Before noon the German radio reported Allied bombers over northwestern Germany and Austria.

At the same time the Nazi radio said that planes of a new type, known as Blitz fighters, soon will be used against Allied air attacks and "will change the face of aerial warfare."

While the main force of Mosquitoes was hitting Cologne, a key railroad center, others were attacking unspecified targets elsewhere in western Germany. All aircraft returned.

Headquarters Smashed.

Rocket-firing R. A. F. Typhoons yesterday smashed their second Nazi field headquarters in three days. Both were located in Holland.

The second attack, on three large buildings in the center of a country estate, was timed for 11 A. M., at which hour the German commander was said to hold a daily conference with his top officers.

"Yesterday that conference ended abruptly and violently," the Air Ministry said, "for the Typhoons put in an appearance at 11:05 precisely, taking 500-pound bombs and rockets to the party. Within a few minutes all three houses were razed to the ground."

R. A. F. fighter bombers based in France and Belgium sank eight barges and damaged twenty-one others with which the Germans were trying to evacuate the Scheldt estuary.

A formation of Mitchells and Bostons, flying through a heavy rainstorm late yesterday, bombed loaded freight cars at Amersfoort and Utrecht, where the Air Ministry said the Germans were suspected of trying to make a getaway by rail.

Hit Dusseldorf and Duisburg.

The German Transocean news agency later reported from Berlin that Dusseldorf and Duisburg were attacked early this morning.

Strong forces of heavy bombers passed over the London area before noon. Coastal observers reported large fleets of bombers flying east for more than an hour. Many squadrons of fighters also were in the sky.

Weather in the Dover Strait was the best in several days.

BRITISH NOW HURL 'EARTHQUAKE' BOMB

12,000-Pound Explosive Said to Make German Robot Look Like Mere Toy

LONDON, Oct. 14 (AP)—The Air Ministry announced tonight that the Royal Air Force had been breaking dams, seawalls, and submarine pens recently with a new type 12,000-pound "earthquake" bomb that it described as "undoubtedly the most destructive air weapon ever used."

The big weapon combines great penetrative power with a terrific blast effect, the Air Ministry said, adding that "no other bomb used in this war, either by bursitives or by the enemy, has had these two advantages."

Dwarfs Flying Bomb

"Even the old type 12,000-pound factory buster detonated on the surface and destroyed its target by the blast alone," the Air Ministry observed.

The blast of either one makes that of the German flying bomb look like a toy.

The new bomb is three times the size of the original block-busters, one of which is known to have destroyed at least thirty buildings during an attack on Emden. That would mean that under the same conditions the "earthquaker" might flatten up to 100 buildings.

Scientists estimate that its blast damage covers an area of approximately 80,000 square yards.

Tripitz Smashed by One

It is streamlined so that it will penetrate into the earth even from moderate altitudes. It carries a delayed action fuse so that the bomb does not explode until it is inside or under its target. The head contains the heaviest possible charge of "a very powerful explosive."

Its extraordinary penetrative power was shown in recent attacks on the submarine pens at Brest. They were among the strongest shelters ever built by man, with concrete roofs 12 feet thick.

"Four 12,000-pounders hit the roof and drilled their way right through the concrete to explode inside," the Air Ministry declared.

The new bombs also have been used with great success in knocking out formidable German long-range weapon sites.

It took only one to put the big German battleship Tirpitz out of action, probably for the duration. They also were used to drain the vital Dortmund-Ems Canal, to crumble the sea walls around Walcheren Island off the Netherland coast, where the Germans had long-range guns and to smash the Kembs Dam in southern France.

London, Oct. 14 (AP)—Flying bombs throbbed over southern England, including the London area, during the night, but the attack was not as heavy as others this week.

WEST FRONT LIKE TUNISIA

Bulid-Up Stage Compared To December, 1942

By WES GALLAGHER

General Bradley's Headquarters, Oct. 14 (AP)—The giant Western Allied front stands today exactly where the fighting did in Tunisia in December, 1942, with only local fighting reported and with both sides building up supplies for a big battle to come.

The action is on a much vaster scale, but the fundamental position is essentially the same.

It took until spring for the Allies to build up a winning punch in Africa. Higher headquarters officers are optimistic as to the time it will take on this front, but it would be misleading to say that this optimism is shared by the infantry and by officers bogged in mud in the actual combat zones.

Most Sensitive Part

The most sensitive part of the front at present is the Aachen area, where the Germans are throwing in reinforcements, and apparently it is destined to be the scene of the first great showdown battle in Germany proper.

The Germans, working on internal lines of communication, are able to build up faster along the Western front as far as their limited potentialities are concerned. The chief bottlenecks for the American and British forces are the long lines of communication, stretching thousands of miles, and the lack of continental ports.

Since the first of September, when the Siegfried Line was virtually deserted, the Germans have been able not only to stabilize a defense over an 800-mile front but to gather an armored mobile reserve in the Ruhr area to be thrown against threatened points.

Husbanding Air Force

By husbanding their air force and meeting air attacks only in vital areas, the Germans have been able to offer a sizable aerial opposition in a crisis, such as in the Aachen area yesterday when more than 100 German fighters were encountered.

German strategy apparently remains unchanged, with the Hitler-dominated high command determined to hold the Siegfried Line to the last and not to fight a retreating campaign such as the Russians used against the Nazis.

It is believed that by spring the Germans would be able to mobilize another million men in Germany. However, even a war of attrition during the winter would be likely to gobble up this number on the Eastern and Western fronts, although the Allies on both fronts probably would have to pay an equally high price.

There is no doubt that the Allies could smash the Western front defenses with an all-out offensive by every army at once, such as characterized the Normandy breakthrough, but the supply problem to supply such an offensive would be tremendous.

Whether a limited attack by one or two armies can break through with superiority remains a question.

Choice Of Two Kinds Of War

The Allies have the choice of fighting two kinds of war:

1. Launching a series of smashes in the hope that one will break through the Germans' crust defense, with a secondary series of limited ground offensives with the aim of grinding the Germans' strength down until the supply situation permits a finishing blow.

2. Going into static warfare, giving top prority to the air forces to try to tear Germany to pieces internally by the use of thousands of fighter-bombers stationed in a circle around Germany, combined with efforts of the bomber commands and the RAF strategic air forces, and then launching a spring offensive with the armies fully supplied.

The German policy is self-evident. It is one of fighting to the last and endeavoring to make the war so costly for the Allies that they will be able to break Allied unity on unconditional surrender terms and save something from the German collapse.

All reports indicate that Hitler and his Nazis have succeeded in selling the German people the idea that they must fight to the last to avoid complete extermination.

"The task now is not to hold some Soviet province or French or Belgian city; now Germany must be defended," Goering told workers of a new factory which had been built in record time, the broadcast said.

"Let us prove that the three greatest powers on earth—the Soviet Union, the United States and the British world empire—cannot destroy Germany, and Germany will then have won the victory.

"There are only two ways of averting the fate the enemy has in store for us; to work and work again in the homeland in order to forge the weapons which are needed in the homeland, and to fight at the fronts, to fight harder, more stubbornly and grimly than hitherto."

German Miners Asked To Fight Nazi Tyranny

New York, Oct. 14 (AP)—The British radio broadcast a message today from the International Union of Mine Workers urging German miners "to demonstrate your solidarity with foreign workers and join their fight against Nazi tyranny."

The broadcast, recorded by the OWI, asked the German mine workers to prevent the flooding of mines and destruction of equipment.

Interned Nazis Converted

London, Oct. 14 (AP)—A Free German Committee has enlisted more than half of the German prisoners of war now interned in France in a movement to fight against the Nazis, the Paris National Radio said today.

Nazi Collaborator Shot

LONDON, Oct. 14 (AP).—Hubert Gilbert, chief editor of the German - controlled Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau, was lured to his office door by a woman carrying a bouquet and shot and badly wounded by three men at Copenhagen today, the Berlin radio reported.

London Hostess, 18, Yank Held In Murder

London, Oct. 14 (AP)—An 18-year-old dance hostess and an American soldier have been charged with the murder of George Heath, a truck driver.

The girl, Elizabeth Marina Jones, was arrested yesterday and formally charged with murder.

The soldier had been detained since Tuesday. He was read the murder charge in the presence of American military policemen and then turned over to the United States Army for action.

Heath's body was found a week ago near Staines, a London suburb, with a bullet in his back. Several days later the car in which he was shot was found in London. The inquiry has been proceeding on a robbery theory.

Dublin Without Gas

Dublin, Ireland, Oct. 14 (AP)—Nearly 500,000 Dubliners were without gas for cooking today as a result of a strike by gas-company employes to enforce their demands for improved working conditions. The walkout ended at 2 P. M., but it was believed likely that service would not be restored until the usual 6 P. M. to 8 P. M. ration period Sunday.

Goering Appeals to Germans

Says Fate Has Given People Hardest Test—Tokyo Makes Fuehrer's Claim

London, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering was quoted by the Berlin radio today as saying that Germany now faced the hardest test which fate ever has given to our people.

DE GAULLE DEPICTS FRANCE ON HER OWN

Declares That Allies Pursue Own National Interests While Fighting Germans

PARIS, Oct. 14 (AP)—With bitterly worded reference to the lack of political single-mindedness among the Allies, Gen. Charles de Gaulle told the French people tonight they would have to depend "not on the benevolence of others" but on their own efforts to raise France to her former greatness.

In his first radio "fireside chat" to the French nation, General de Gaulle said:

"Some may have thought that Allied help would be powerful and rapid. This is an illusion. The belligerents' primary obligation is to feed the devouring battle, which implies heavy burdens and vast problems in France itself. Moreover, the Allies are States, each of which, while fighting the same enemies as ourselves, follows its own interests and its own policy.

"Admittedly, many French people may be surprised to see other great powers at present relegating France, so to speak, to the background in all matters concerning the conduct of the war and the preparations for peace.

"The future will show if such an attitude will have been expedient in the field of liberty, profitable for the great cause for which millions of men and women in the world are suffering and favorable to the future unity of the present coalition.

"But, for the moment, we have to take things as they are, realizing that in our present difficulties we must count before all on ourselves and understand that our greatness will grow tomorrow as it grew yesterday, not on the benevolence of others, but, indeed, on our own efforts."

He said France would take the greatest possible part during the remainder of the war.

The French leader said France had already paid this heavy price in the war: 300,000 casualties, on the battlefields and before firing squads; all ports destroyed; railways paralyzed; 4,000 bridges destroyed.

Many Frenchmen had made mistakes, he conceded, but asked, "In the thirty years from 1914 to 1944, who are the men who never made mistakes?"

DeGaulle Charges Allied Neglect Of France in Planning for Peace

Says Nation Has Not Received Rightful Role in War, Lists Tasks as 'Beat Enemy: Re-establish Position Abroad and Rebuild; But, Before All, Work'

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 14.—General Charles de Gaulle charged in a broadcast to the French nation tonight that "the other great powers are treating France with neglect" in planning the peace.

"Many Frenchmen," he said, "may well be surprised at the kind of neglect with which the other great powers are treating France in such matters as peace preparations. Only the future will show if such an attitude has been helpful to the side of freedom."

The French leader, in a broadcast from Paris, also complained that France was not given its rightful voice in the conduct of the war.

De Gaulle declared that "those who thought Allied help would be rapid for the restoration of our industrial production have deluded themselves.

"We must see things as they are. Whatever help we may get for reconstruction in the future, we must rely upon ourselves—not on help from others."

He said France would take the greatest possible part during the remainder of the war.

"In spite of the terrible reverses suffered by the enemy," the general said, "he has been able to re-establish a front from Breda to Belfort. He is fighting hard in Italy. New efforts will be required."

The French leader said France had already paid this heavy price in the war—300,000 casualties, on the battlefields and before firing squads; all ports destroyed; railways paralyzed; 4,000 bridges destroyed.

"These are our tasks," he said. "Beat the enemy; re-establish our position abroad and rebuild, but, before all, work."

Many Frenchmen had made mistakes, he conceded, but he asked: "In the thirty years from 1914 to 1944 who are the men who never made mistakes?"

Film Draws Excited Paris Crowd

Paris, Oct. 14 (AP)—A milling, excited crowd of Parisians waited hours last night to see their first new American films since 1940.

The program, which featured Deanna Durbin in "It Started with Eve," attracted few American soldiers, for the film was advertised under a French title. But the French crowd lined up in long queues on the dark boulevard.

"It was wonderful," said a young Frenchwoman after the show. "The German films had too little laughter and we were forbidden to make any demonstration."

U. S. Embassy In Paris Is Reopened By Caffrey

Paris, Oct. 14 (AP)—Jefferson Caffrey, head of the American diplomatic mission to France, took up his duties today and assured the French people that the United States believed France would achieve a "20th-century Renaissance."

Caffrey has the personal rank of Ambassador, but Washington has not yet officially recognized Gen. Charles de Gaulle's provisional government.

The big iron gates of the American Embassy at 2 Place de la Concorde swung open this morning for the first time since the Germans occupied Paris.

National Anthems Played

A detachment of 140 military police under the command of Lieut. Col. Robert Hayes, of Sarasota, Fla., snapped to attention and a 28-piece band played the "Star-Spangled Banner" and the "Marseillaise" as Caffrey and his party drove up.

Later at a press conference, Caffrey said:

"I think the position of my people, beginning with President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull, is one of complete sympathy with the aspirations of France to resume her place as a great power in the world generally and in the Council of Nations particularly."

Interested In Her Welfare

He assured the French nation that the United States had great interest in social welfare all over the world and takes "particular interest in the interests of the French laboring classes."

In Caffrey's party were George Abbott, secretary of the mission; Parker McCollester, assistant to Caffrey; Elim O'Shaughnessy, mission secretary and vice-consul, and Miss Florence Palmer, an attache.

r ranco Guards Captured By Raiding Guerrillas

RepublicansStrikeFromFrench Border, Liberate Prisoners

PARIS, OCT. 14 (AP).—Spanish Republicans here announced today that Republican guerrillas crossed the Spanish frontier from France Tuesday night and attacked Franco government guards at Figueras, twenty-five miles inside the country.

The announcement said the guerrillas liberated all political prisoners at Figueras and removed several guards to France as captives.

A memorial service held at Paris today for the late Luis M. Companys, president of Catalonia, who was executed at Madrid four years ago, was attended by hundreds of Spanish Republicans and assumed the nature of a demonstration against Spain's ruler, Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Belgium Cancels Old Franc Notes

WITH AN AMERICAN INFANTRY DIVISION IN BELGIUM, Oct. 10 (Delayed) (AP)—Col. Ellis O. Keller of Pittsburgh, senior civil affairs officer of an American infantry division, informed troops today that the Belgian Government is canceling the old 100, 500 and 1,000 franc notes and replacing them with new currency in order to trap war profiteers.

NAZIS FORCED BACK IN ITALY

Allies Advance Along Virtually The Entire Front

Rome, Oct. 14 (AP)—British and American armies shoved the Germans back along virtually the entire front in Italy today, and Canadian infantry and tanks struck across the southern edge of the Po plain to within four miles of strategic Cesena.

Cesena is 17 miles northwest of the Adriatic seacoast jump-off point of Rimini, and 13 miles farther up the Via Emilia on the route to Bologna lies Forli, an even more important highway town and objective.

Only in the coastal sector north of Rimini, where they are dug in along the Fiumicino river, were the Germans holding firm. The Canadians drove on without regard to this force on their right flank.

Fifth Army Advances

The American Fifth Army to the west was fighting steadily over the mountains. It was within nine miles of the Bologna-Rimini highway at two points and was engaged in a bitter battle ten miles south of Bologna itself.

Clear skies, welcome release from the almost ceaseless rains of Italy's autumn, were allowing the sodden battlefields to dry and releasing the pent-up armor of the Eighth Army.

The Canadian advance along the Bologna-Rimini highway was so skillful that one bridge was seized intact and tanks were rumbling across it to the fighting front before Cesena.

Nazi Positions Reached

The Dominion troops herded strong enemy rear guards before them and reached main German positions at the Scolo-Rigossa canal, which with the Rubicon-Cesenate canal farther north forms natural tank obstacles to a breakout upon the plains of the Po.

German troops inland were moving out of the mountains south of the Bologna-Rimini highway.

A few miles south of the Canadians, Eighth Army troops beating through the foothills captured the village of Casale. Mines and considerable artillery shelling were slowing the advance.

American troops to the west cleared the Germans from the mountain village of Gesso, nine miles southwest of Castel San Pietro on the Bologna-Rimini road, in heavy fighting. Five miles to the west they seized Poggioli.

Heavy Fighting Rages

There was heavy fighting ten miles south of Bologna, where the Germans were fighting fanatically to hold on to a vital hill just north of Livergnano. The doughboys succeeded in taking high ground east of Livergnano, however.

A few miles farther west the Americans in a swift advance capped Mount Di Bambiana, racking up gains of more than two miles.

Ahead of them, medium bombers blasted away again at supply dumps, troop concentrations and communications around Bologna, while fighter-bombers patrolled the highways and attacked gun positions and bivouac areas.

More Brazilians Arrive

Another large contingent of the Brazilian Expeditionary Force arrived in the Italian battle zone to join comrades who have been entrusted with the western coastal flank of the Fifth Army.

Its arrival coincided with announcement that the Brazilians, fighting over snow-capped peaks in some of the most difficult country on the entire front, had captured Coreglia, 26 miles northeast of Pisa.

The new force of Brazilians from the first South American country to send a force across the seas to fight on European soil landed at a western Italian port and was moved at once to a staging area within a few miles of the battle lines.

While its size was a secret, it was learned it more than doubled the size of the expeditionary force.

The new force included artillery, infantry and the first Brazilian air force contingent, complete with pilots and ground crews.

Allies Blast Small Gain In Italy

Rome, Oct. 14 (AP)—British and American troops supported by low flying fighters and fighterbombers hammered out small gains in furious fighting yesterday against a fanatical German defense of the Po Valley.

Allied headquarters announced that Fifth Army troops seized some new hills in the central sector south of Bologna, while Eighth Army forces to the east pushed the Germans back along the entire battle line, except in the Adriatic coastal sector.

Brazilians Bolstered

At the same time it was disclosed that another contingent of Brazilian troops had arrived in the battle zone. The original Brazilian expeditionary force, which has been operating in difficult country on the west flank of the United States Fifth Army push to Bologna, yesterday captured Coreglia, five miles northwest of Bagni di Lucca.

The fresh Brazilian force more than doubled the total Brazilian troops in Italy and included the first Brazilian air force to arrive in Italy.

Capture Hill 462

American troops fought their way up Hill 462, about nine miles southwest of Castel san Pietro, on the Bologna-Rimini highway. Farther west, Poggioli, about a half mile north of Monterenzio, was taken.

Along Highway 65, the main road north to Bologna from Florence, there was intense fighting as American units seized some high ground east of the road. The German fanatically defended a hill north of Livergnano.

Advance Two Miles

West of the highway American units pushed forward about two miles and captured Mount di Bambiana.

Canadian troops reached the Scolo Rigossa canal in the area adjacent to the highway, headquarters said. They pushed back strong enemy rear guards and reached a point within 4 miles of Forli.

Eighth Army troops also captured Casale, about two miles southwest of Montiano, the Allied communique said.

Among the Brazilian physicians in the medical units was Dr. Luthero Vargas, son of President Getulio Vargas.

The Brazilian pilots, trained in Panama and the United States, are to fly with United States Army air forces.

31st Fighter Group Again Cited

ROME, Oct. 14 (AP).—The veteran American 31st Fighter Group, which has shot down at least 495 enemy planes in more than two years of combat flying, received a second distinguished unit citation today from Major General Nathan F. Twining, commander of the 15th Air Force.

Pope Sees Canadian Cardinal

ROME, Oct. 14 (AP)—Rodrigu Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop Quebec, was received by Pope Piu XII today in anticipation of hi departure from Rome shortly. Th Canadian Cardinal came to Ital last month.

Rome, Oct. 14 (AP)—Vincenza Azzolini, former governor of the Bank of Italy, accused of turning over 120 tons of the gold of Italy to the Germans, was sentenced to 30 years' imprisonment by the Italian High Court of Justice today.

The white-haired 62-year-old former official might have been condemned to be shot, but the nine-man tribunal found extenuating circumstances.

Third Convicted

In his last appeal Azzolini declared the Nazis would have seized the gold by force if he had not consigned it to them.

Azzolini was the third Italian convicted of collaboration. The others were Pietro Caruso, Rome police chief, and his secretary, Robert Occhietto. Caruso was executed.

Overtornio Taken By Finns

Stockholm, Oct. 14 (AP)—A Helsinki communique announced today the capture of Overtornio, 40 miles north of the Bothnia Gulf coast, in the Finns' drive up the Tornio river along the Swedish-Finnish border.

The communique said other Finnish troops endeavoring to drive the Germans out of Lapland had reached the Kemi river in a push from Posio to Kemijarvi.

More Brazilian Troops Reach Italian Front As False Reports on War Stand Are Explained

ROME, Oct. 14 (AP)—Another contingent of the Brazilian Expeditionary Force arrived in the Italian battle zone Wednesday and Thursday to join comrades who have been entrusted with the western coastal flank of the United States Fifth Army.

Its arrival coincided with announcement that the Brazilians, fighting over snow-capped peaks in some of the most difficult country on the entire front, had captured Coreglia, twenty-six miles northeast of Pisa.

The new force of Brazilians from the first South American country to send a force across the seas to fight on European soil landed at a western Italian port and was moved at once to a staging area within a few miles of the battle lines.

While its size was a secret, it was learned it more than doubled the size of the expeditionary force.

The new force included artillery, infantry and the first Brazilian Air Force contingent, complete with pilots and ground crews.

Ex-Italy Bank Head Gets 30 Years

Capture Of Riga Frees Units To Hit E. Prussia

Moscow, Oct. 14 (AP)—Two powerful Red armies were released today for a thrust southward against East Prussia by the fall of Riga, Latvian capital.

Capture of the Baltic port was announced last night by Marshal Stalin. The city of 385,000 fell to the troops of Gen. Andrei Yeremenko's Second Baltic Army and those of Gen. Ivan Maslennikov's Third Baltic Army.

Only Part Lost, Nazis Say

(The German radio denied today the Russian announcement of Riga's capture.

(The Transocean propaganda agency's version was that German troops evacuated the eastern part of the Latvian capital but still held the western part.

(Reporting a new Red army landing on Saare, off the Estonian coast, the German radio said 14,000 troops, 5,000 refugees and 18,000 war prisoners had been evacuated in the Nazis' retreat from the Baltic islands.)

Churchill Hears Salute

Several distinguished visitors to Moscow heard the victory salute of 24 salvos from 324 of the capital's guns, among them Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain, Field Marshal Sir Alan Francis Brooke, chief of the British Imperial Staff, and Polish Prime Minister Stanislaw Mikolajczyk.

(Although the Russian communique said nothing of a direct attack on German soil in East Prussia Berlin reported massed Soviet tank assaults on the East Prussian garrison at the port of Memel and a large-scale Red army attack across the Narew river, in northern Poland, on the lower side of East Prussia.)

Nazis Try Amphibious Blow

While the Riga battle was in progress, the Germans attempted an amphibious strike from the sea at Palanga, on the Baltic coast in western Lithuania, 14 miles above Memel, but the Russian communique said Red army planes and artillerymen sank four of 24 barges in which the enemy approached. The communique said hundreds of Germans were killed or drowned.

This strike from the sea appeared to be a German attempt to relieve between 10 and 15 Nazi divisions cut off in western Latvia last Tuesday when Gen. Ivan Bagramian's First Baltic Army drove a wedge to the sea just north of Memel.

Transylvania Gains

Fifty localities were captured in Transylvania by Russian forces which crossed the Carpathian Mountains from Romanian Moldavia. Among them was Bistrita, 36 miles from the Transylvanian border.

By last report the Russians in Hungary were less than 50 miles from Budapest, the capital.

Stalin Takes Churchill To Ballet, Steals Show

Entrance Brings House Down at Command Performance

MOSCOW, Oct. 14 (AP).—In his first public appearance since the early days of the war, Premier-Marshal Josef V. Stalin—ably assisted by Prime Minister Churchill—put on the greatest show-stealing act tonight in the history of the Russian Ballet.

Appearing in the red plush, gilded box reserved for them at Moscow's Bolshoi Theater, Marshal Stalin and the British Prime Minister brought forth a seven-minute storm of applause from the packed, hand-picked audience.

The British leader had expressed a desire to see the Bolshoi Theater's famous ballet company, and Soviet authorities, pleased with his interest, quickly made arrangements for a "command performance." The Red Army choir joined the dancers in performing for the British guest.

Polish Factions To Resume Parley On Unity Government

Moscow, Oct. 14 (AP)—Rival Polish regimes from London and Lublin agreed to reopen formal negotiations tonight for a combined government, faced with grave differences but aware that the Allied powers plainly are agreed on the urgent necessity for some sort of solution to their problems.

Although still at loggerheads over the question of the uprising in Warsaw, the Poles have decided to "let bygones be bygones," and exclude the Warsaw tragedy from their impending conversations.

Harriman An Observer

Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill spent from 7:30 P. M. last night to 1 A. M. today conferring with the Poles. Their meeting with Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, premier of the London regime, and members of his delegation, lasted for two hours during this period. W. Averell Harriman, United States Ambassador, was an observer.

This afternoon Mikolajczyk conferred for two hours and a half at the British Embassy with Churchill, Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, and Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, British Ambassador.

Diplomatic sources remained non-committal on the progress toward a solution of the Polish question.

Yesterday's British-Soviet discussions with the Poles took place not in the Kremlin but at Spiridonovka palace, two miles away, and in phraseology, at least, British and Soviet aims are most probably similar—creation of a free and independent Poland and assurance of Soviet-Polish friendship.

May Be Nominal Head

It seemed definite that any agreement would require Mikolajczyk to oust Polish elements associated with Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, former commander in chief of the exiled regime's armed forces. But it might allow the Premier to be nominal head of a new fusion Government which would include a limited number of his London colleagues.

Mikolajczyk, Peasant party chieftain, is valued in the opinion of both Moscow and Lublin as the man who could win over that portion of the Polish population which is not cooperative with the Lublin regime.

The Lublin Poles, although now receivinb supplies through Russian hands and expecting direct aid from the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, are said to realize that any United States assistance in general reconstruction of Poland may depend heavily upon whether they reach an understanding with Mikolajczyk.

Conferees are Mikolajczyk, Gen. Tadeusz Romer, Foreign Minister, and Gen. Stanislaw Tabor, representing the London Government and, on the other side, Sasimir Morawski, chairman of the Lublin committee; M. Bierut and Col. Gen. Rola Zymierski, Lublin commander in chief.

POLES DISCUSS UNITED REGIME

Rival Groups Are Reported in New Negotiations.

Moscow, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—Leaders of the rival Polish regimes of London and Lublin were reported to be reopening negotiations for a combined Government today. They have heard from Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Marshal Stalin of importance attached by the to a united Poland.

Stanislaw Mikolajczyk London Government in today for two hours with Mr. Foreign Secre- and British Harold Clark Kerr. He had met last night with Stalin and Churchill.

There was no announcement concerning the joint meeting, but it was expected that Mikolajczyk's next move would be a second session, possibly today, with leaders of the Soviet-sponsored Lublin Polish Committee of Liberation.

Even before the Premier went to the Kremlin last night one spokesman expressed confidence that a good blueprint would be drawn there for final settlement of the differences that have kept the London exile government and the Lublin committee at odds for months.

The session with the senior statesmen was attended also by Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov, United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, and Tadeusz Romer, Foreign Minister of the London Polish group.

In separate talks earlier yesterday Mikolajczyk had conferred with representatives of the Lublin group, Harriman and Molotov. The Polish Premier appeared in good humor and hopeful when he was seen between his visits.

"Naturally I am most hopeful" of an accord with the Lublin group, Mikolajczyk said.

Although the belief grew that at least a tentative compromise might be reached no quick public announcement was expected because Mikolajczyk probably would have to return to London again to confer with his Cabinet.

KWEIPING IS SEIZED IN JAPANESE DRIVE

Enemy Improves Position in the Offensive Aimed at Kweilin, Former American Base

OCT 15 1944

THE SITUATION IS CRITICAL

Armies in Eastern China Seem to Be About to Be Cut Off est of the Country

China, Oct. 14 (AP

—Japanese troops, reinforced until they outnumbered the defenders four to one, have captured Kweiping in southern Kwangsi Province, after killing the Chinese garrison there to the last man, the Chinese High Command announced tonight.

Violent street battles preceded the fall of the town, and enemy dead litter the area, a communqué said. The Japanese launched the final attack Thursday. No estimate of the number of Chinese slain was given.

The fall of Kweiping opened a new phase of the Japanese drive against Kweilin key defense center for southeast China and provincial capital of Kwangsi, 135 miles to the north. Kweiping, twenty-five miles northwest of Japanese-held Tanchuk, lies at the juncture of the Liu and West Rivers seventy miles southeast of Liuchow, important rail city, which is ninety-five miles southwest of Kweilin.

The way appeared open for a drive against Liuchow, the capture of which would outflank Kweilin on the south. At the same time, the Japanese were driving on the city from the north, along the Hunan-Kwangsi railway. The Chinese communiqué reported no change in the situation there. At last reports the Japanese were within twenty-five miles of their objective.

The outcome of the battle for Kweilin will be the turning point of the war with Japan, Gen. Pai Chung-hsi, China's deputy chief of staff, predicted in an interview on the Kwangsi front. He said the defenders would make the city China's Stalingrad.

General Pai predicted great changes in the World War situation within the next three months, and said a large-scale offensive would be launched against Japan before the end of the year.

Observers in Chungking expressed the belief that shipping losses suffered by the Japanese in raids on Formosa and the Ryukyu Islands might affect the positions of Japanese garrisons holding key points on the China coast. These garrisons must be supplied by sea. The losses also might affect Japanese push on Liuchow, the observers said, because there, also the enemy depends upon seaborne supplies.

United States Fourteenth Air Force planes struck at the of Kweiping soon after its f the Japanese, and also hit tions north and south of th

They attacked concentrations on the West River and elsewhere in the area, destroying a number of loaded barges, river steamers and sampans, a communiqué said.

Kweiping Falls, All Defenders Are Killed

Chungking, Oct. 14 (AP)—Kweiping, important town in southern Kwangsi province, has fallen to Japanese who killed its defenders to the last man, the Chinese high command announced tonight.

Street fighting preceded its fall. The Japanese poured reinforcements into the position until they outnumbered the defenders about four to one. The Chinese battered back the Japanese in violent counterattacks and left the field littered with enemy dead before the end came. There was no specific figure on Chinese dead.

Driving Against Liuchow

Kweiping, 25 miles northwest of Tanchuk, lies at the juncture of the Liu and West rivers, 70 miles southsoutheast of Liuchow, important rail city below Kweilin. The Japanese are driving against Liuchow in an attempt to outflank Kweilin, key southeast China defense center, on the south.

Outcome of the battle for Kweilin will be the turning point of the war with Japan, Gen. Pai Chung-si, deputy chief of staff, said today in an interview on the Kwangsi province front, and he predicted that the defenders would make the city China's Stalingrad.

Preicts Violent Changes

General Pai, foreseeing violent changes in the world war situation within the next three months, said that large-scale offensives will be started in the Pacific against Japan before the end of the year."

United States 14th Air Force fighters on Thursday and Friday attacked enemy concentrations on the West river and destroyed three steamers and damaged four others.

Nineteen barges were destroyed and 40 damaged or destroyed, and 130 loaded troops and supply sampans were hit.

JAPANESE DIGGING IN FOR STAND AT TIDDIM

KANDY, Ceylon, Oct. 14 (AP)—Allied announcements made it clear today that the Japanese intend to make a bitter stand at Tiddim, strategically important base in northwestern Burma, despite the fact that their logical escape avenue southeastward is fast being closed.

Although virtually trapped in the area of Tiddim, lying in the western periphery of main lines of communication funneling southeastward to Mandalay, the Japanese have withdrawn to new positions nearer the Tiddim-Kalemyo road and are digging in, today's communiqué announced.

A press announcement said RAF Hurricanes had been successful in producing landslides at a vital corner on the Tiddim-Kalemyo road.

JAPS IN BURMA TRAP

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—Japanese forces virtually trapped at the northwestern Burma city of Tiddim below the India border appeared today to be intent upon a last-ditch stand.

North of Fort White, the Japanese withdrew to new positions nearer the Tiddim-Kalemyo road and explosives dropped by R. A. F. Hurricanes produced landslides at a narrow point of that road, preventing supplies from reaching the enemy and blocking the escape route, it was announced.

Today's communique said tanks of a British cavalry regiment with artillery and air support, attacked Japanese positions north of Tiddim and that Indian troops repulsed a counter-attack and ambushed and dispersed another enemy group in the area.

140 Ships Hit In 4 Days

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 14 (AP)—Here are Japan's losses in four days of United States attacks:

The Ryukyus Islands, Monday—Sunk: 46 ships. (One destroyer escort, 4 small submarines, 14 cargo ships, 1 submarine tender, 1 oiler, 25 small ships.) Also sunk were 41 small craft.

Probably sunk: 11 ships. (Ten small ships, 1 minesweeper.) Nine small craft probably sunk also.

Damaged: 20 ships. (Eight cargo ships, 1 medium landing ship, 1 light minelayer, 10 small ships.)

Total sunk, probably sunk or damaged: 77.

Aircraft shot down: 23. Destroyed on ground, 59. Damaged on ground, 37.

Luzon, Tuesday—Ten to 15 enemy aircraft destroyed on the ground; heavy damage to installations.

Formosa, Wednesday and Thursday—Sunk, 27 ships. (Two large, four medium, nine small and twelve coastal cargo ships.)

Probably sunk, 14 ships. (One large, three medium and three small cargo ships; one oil tanker, five coastal cargo ships and one minesweeper.)

Damaged, 22 ships. (Six medium, fifteen small cargo ships; one large troop transport.

Total sunk, probably sunk or damaged at Formosa, 63.

Aircraft destroyed at Formosa, 6.

Amboina and Ceram Hit

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Oct. 15 (Sunday) (AP).—Allied bombers have raided Japanese installations at Amboina and Ceram, dropping 130 tons of bombs, today's communique announced.

The raid on Ceram airdromes occurred Thursday. At Boela oil-storage tanks were fired in an attack Friday. One fighter was lost by anti-aircraft fire.

Concentrations of trapped Japanese near Wewak were pounded by heavy and medium bombers, fifty tons of explosives being dropped upon them.

Another fifty-nine tons were dropped by bombers that made harassing raids over the Bismarck, Bougainville and Shortland Islands.

Waller Heads Pacific Garrisons

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 11 (Delayed) (AP)—Appointment of Brig. Gen. Littleton W. T. Waller Jr. of Meadowbrook, Pa., as commanding general of marine garrison forces in the Fourteenth Naval District was announced at headquarters today. He succeeded Brig. Gen. Le Roy P Hunt, of Guadalcanal fame, who has returned to combat duty. General Waller, in his new post, will maintain marine defenses on Midway and Johnston Islands and at naval bases in Hawaii. The 58-year-old son of the late Maj. Gen. L. W. T. Waller, USMC, is the only officer in the Marine Corps Reserve to rise above the rank of colonel. He was born in Norfolk, Va., and is a veteran of World War I.

NAVY TORPEDO EXPERT KILLED

Aboard a United States Carrier in the Pacific, Sept. 21 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Lieut.-Commander McDonald Thompson, 29 years old, of San Pedro, Cal., one of the nation's leading authorities on use of aerial torpedoes, was killed today in an airplane crash.

With him went two of his most experienced torpedo bomber crewmen, Gilbert Walker Lightfoot, 36, Tulsa, Okla., brother of I. D. Lightfoot, Enid, Okla., and Joseph Terry Rushing, 24, native of Verbena, Ala., whose wife lives in Schenectady, N. Y., both enlisted men in the regular Navy. Lightfoot twice previously was the sole survivor of torpedo bomber crashes.

Commander Thompson spent two years on the batteship Idaho after graduating from the Naval Academy in 1937. Trained in flying at Pensacola, Fla., he was a pilot on the carrier Saratoga and later executive officer of the torpedo planes squadron on the carrier Enterprise. This squadron took part in the battle for Guadalcanal and was credited with the possible destruction of a Kongo class battleship and the sinking of two troop ships.

Truk Is 75 Per Cent Neutralized

SEVENTH ARMY AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Central Pacific, Oct. 14 (AP)—Truk, once the most feared Japanese bastion of the Pacific, has been 75 per cent neutralized by American air attacks, Seventh AAF headquarters reported today after an inspection of new aerial photographs.

These photographs showed that the entire atoll, with a lagoon large enough and deep enough to shelter the entire Japanese fleet, is virtually useless. The atoll has been attacked since Feb. 17-18, when it was struck by Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier forces. Thirty-five Japanese ships, one of the greatest bags of the war, were sunk or damaged in the first raid.

Admiral Mitscher, who later became head of Task Force 58, sent his carriers back to Truk on May 1 but they found it had been so well bombed very little Japanese traffic dared penetrate there.

The job of keeping Japan's No. 1 base in the Carolines neutralized then was turned over to the Seventh Army Air Force. Its Liberators, striking from the Marshall Islands, first hit Truk about six months ago.

Since then the Seventh has paid almost daily visits to Truk and its fliers have become familiar with all of its strategic secrets.

Seek To Settle Strike On Sydney Newspapers

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 14 (AP)—Newspaper owners and labor representatives met for an hour's conference today, attempting to settle the 8-day strike which virtually has deprived this city of newspapers, then adjourned until tomorrow.

The State Industrial Commission adjourned until October 18, postponing action on an employes' application for an order restoring normal work at the Herald, Telegraph and Mirror. The proposal would submit to arbitration the dispute involving the Sun. Printers of that paper quit in an hour's vacation controversy, and publishers of other journals suspended publication in favor of a combined newspaper.

Dismissals and suspensions resulted when many writers and printers refused to work on the combine.

Howe Named To New Canadian Cabinet Post

Ottawa, Oct. 14 (AP)—Munitions Minister C. D. Howe has been named Canadian Reconstruction Minister in a Cabinet expansion and reorganization designed to meet post-war needs, Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King announced last night.

Howe, a native of Massachusetts, will retain his munitions portfolio. His principal task in the new post will be to aid rapid conversion of the country's wartime economy to fullest possible peacetime employment.

Other appointments include those of Pensions Minister Ian Mackenzie as head of the newly created Pensions Department, and Brooke Claxton, parliamentary assistant to the Prime Minister, as Canada's first Minister of Health

35 Merchant Seamen Landed After Sinking

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 14 (AP)—Thirty-five merchant seamen who survived a U-boat attack which sank their freighter and cost the lives of three of their shipmates have been landed here by a British rescue ship. They are the first victims of such an action to land at Halifax in more than a year.

The freighter was sunk in a four-day fight between a German submarine pack and the largest convoy ever to sail from the United Kingdom.

San Salvador Prepares For Election In 1945

San Salvador, Oct. 14 (AP)—Five men exiled or jailed by former President Maximiliano Hernandez Martinez are candidates for the Presidential chair left vacant last May when the former "strong man" of this coffee-producing Central American country was overthrown.

Although the elections will not be held until January 7, 1945, the campaigns of the five are already under way. Some clashes already have occurred and the candidates recently formed an Election Vigilance Committee in an attempt to reduce the amount of fighting. Each candidate appointed two representatives and the Government appointed two to the committee, which investigates street fights and recommends legal action to the district attorneys.

U. S. BRIGADIER IN NAZI HANDS

Vanaman First American General Taken By Germans

Washington, Oct. 14 (AP)—The War Department disclosed today that Brig. Gen. Arthur W. Vanaman, of Millville, N. J., has been captured, the first American general officer to become a prisoner of Germany.

General Vanaman's internment in Germany was disclosed in an announcement of an award to him of the Legion of Merit for prior service in this country as commander of the Oklahoma City Air Service Command.

Reported Missing In June

First reported missing in action over Germany last June 27 while acting as an observer on an aerial bombing mission, Vanaman was ascertained on September 16 to be a prisoner of war in Germany, the department said.

Although 18 general officers are listed as prisoners of the Japanese, most of them having been captured in the fall of the Philippines, the War Department said General Vanaman is the first general reported captured by the Germans.

Legion Of Merit Citation

The Legion of Merit award carried the following citation:

"As commanding general of the Oklahoma City Service Command, General Vanaman, with unusual initiative executive ability and leadership, performed with marked efficiency the functions of supply, maintenance and training of service and air depot groups within the area embracing the States of Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma."

General Vanaman, returning from overseas service in July, 1941, was appointed secretary of the air staff, Headquarters Army Air Forces, Washington. In February, 1942, he became commanding general of the material center at Wright Field, Ohio, and in March, 1943, assumed command of the Oklahoma City (Okla.) Air Service Command.

General Vanaman's wife, Mrs. Blanche G. Vanaman, lives at Kelly Field, Texas.

Threat Of Famine Rises In Holland

Washington, Oct. 14 (AP)—Famine is threatened in the Netherlands, Dutch officials reported today, and spite destruction by the Germans is so widespread that the Dutch Government will ask financial aid from UNRRA despite earlier agreements to pay for all relief as it is received.

Dr. A. Loudon, the Netherlands Ambassador, called at the White House to discuss Holland's plight with President Roosevelt while Baron Wilhelm Van Boetzlaer, minister of legation, told a news conference of the decision to ask United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration aid.

The minister, who returned from London Wednesday, predicted famine in Amsterdam, The Hague, Leyden and Rotterdam by next week end if some means is not worked out, meantime, to get food to those cities. They have been isolated from food supplies, he said, as a result of the railroad strikes asked by the Allies.

Yanks Want Cooks Who Whistle

Washington, Oct. 14 (AP)—An American flyer detained in a German prison camp suggests that prisoner-cooks stirring up holiday fruit cakes be required to whistle while they work.

That way, he explained, they can prove they aren't eating the raisins.

The suggestion, as well as a recipe for compounding fruit cake from various prison odds and ends such as oatmeal and gingersnaps, is incorporated in a copy of Gefangenen Gazette (Prisoner's Gazette) printed in German Stalag Luft III and reprodced by the American Red Cross in this country as a service to relatives of war prisoners.

Coffee As A Flavoring

Food ranks high in the prisoners' interest, to judge from the numerous references to eating.

The same contributor who sent in the fruit cake recipe informed the readers that "a powerful brew of coffee can be used as a flavoring for cakes" and declared that while the orange powder they received wasn't much good for making orange drinks, it worked wonders when sprinkled dry on mashed turnips.

The Gazette warned that the prisoners' potato ration soon was to be cut by 100 grams, and that the Germans were going to quit issuing macaroni and sauerkraut as staples.

More Kohlrabi

"To cheer everybody up, however," added the food editor, "there will be an increase of 120 grams of kohlrabi."

The men have been receiving Red Cross food parcels to supplement their prison fare. Born swappers, they have developed an organization called "foodacco" which arranges intracamp exchanges of tea and English cigarettes for coffee, chocolate and cocoa.

WILL AID CZECHS

Washington, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—Director Herbert H. Lehman of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration, said today that a mission will be sent to Czecho-Slovakia to frame detailed plans for UNRRA services there.

The Government of Czecho-Slovakia, through Vladimir S. Hurban, Ambassador to the United States, requested that the mission be sent as soon as possible. It will meet with Czecho-Slovak authorities in Russia, where the latter are preparing to resume the administration of the nation's affairs immediately upon liberation.

The Czecho-Slovak Government also asked that UNRRA extend all possible aid to the people of Czecho-Slovakia.

U. S. Assigns 2 Officers To German Affairs Staff

State Department Broadens Plans for Occupation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP).—Expanding preparations for the military government of Germany, the State Department today added two foreign service officers to General Dwight D. Eisenhower's staff on German affairs.

The officers are Ware Adams of Savannah and Parker W. Buhrman of Botetourt County, Va. They will serve under Ambassador Robert Murphy, Gen. Eisenhower's principal adviser on German affairs.

Publication of foreign service assignments for the week also showed diplomatic and consular staffs in France are being rapidly expanded. Four officers were assigned to the office of the United States representatives at Paris and half a dozen others were given positions in other French cities, principally Marseilles and Bordeaux.

Despite the fact this country maintains no formal diplomatic relations with the present government of Argentina, Richard H. Post of Quogue, N. Y., at present American Vice-Consul at Mendoza, Argentina has been designated Third Secretary of Embassy and American Vice-Consul at Buenos Aires.

ESCAPED NAZI CAUGHT IN NEW YORK STORE

NEW YORK, Oct. 14.—(AP) The Federal Bureau of Investigation announced today that Franz Bacher, 28-year-old German prisoner of war who escaped Aug. 3 from Camp Stark, Percy, N. H., was arrested as he purchased artist's supplies in a Union Square store.

E. E. Conroy, FBI special agent in charge, said the man admitted he was Bacher and said he had been painting landscapes in Central Park for more than a month, selling them to passersby who admired h's work.

Bacher was wearing a khaki prisoner of war shirt when arrested, Conroy said, although he bought a leather jacket and blue corduroy trousers to replace the clothing he hid in the woods after leaving the camp.

He walked to Springfield, N. H., then came to New York by bus with a stopover in Springfield, Mass., Conroy added, sleeping in Central Park for a month before taking a room in Stark's place.

The FBI sent pictures of Bacher to hundreds of art supply stores, Conroy said, and a clerk recognized him from one of the pictures today Bacher had directed, and judged an art contest at Camp Stark.

Venezuelan Consul Comes H

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 14 (AP Alfonso Godoy, Vice-Consul f Venezuela here, announced today the departure of Captain Alezandro Fernandez Ortiz, consul here for the last year, for New York City where he will act as Venezuelan Consul-General. Agency Offers 2 Loan Plans For Veterans

Aid Up to $10,000 Offered Under G. I. Bill; U. S. to Pay $400 Toward Interest

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP).—The Veterans Administration, saddled with the most complex lending problem in the nation's history, tonight made public for the first time an explanation of the basic interest and guarantee arrangements for loans to veterans

Belfort Gap—Historic Swinging Door

By Herman R. Allen

New York, Oct. 14 (AP)—Belfort Gap, stage for an Allied drive into Germany, is an historic swinging door. Since earliest times it has served as a route for conquerors—and as the road home when they have had to give up their conquests.

It is a passage between the Vosges Mountains on the north and the Juras on the south. On its eastern edge runs the Rhine river, a highway into Germany. The Rhine swings eastward at Basle and forms the Swiss-German frontier for some distance. However, it is connected with France's Rhone river by the Rhone-Rhine canal.

City Held Out

The Germans advanced southward into France through the Belfort Gap in the Franco-Prussian War, 1870-71, but were not able to capture the fortress city of Belfort itself. The city held out through its commander's masterful use of the limited artillery and troops at his disposal until France surrendered.

In the first World War the Germans struck again through the gap but never quite reached Belfort. The original French plan for invading Germany in that war was said to have called for a major advance through the gap in the other direction, but it was never used.

"Ballon D'Alsace"

The narrowest part of the gap between Belfort and Montebeliard is cut between the mountains by the Doubs and Bourbeuse rivers and carries the Rhone-Rhine Canal.

Directly north of Belfort the Vosges Mountains rise abruptly to a height of over 4,000 feet at "Ballon d'Alsace." American and French forces are within a few miles of "Ballon d'Alsace" at this time and are finding the going difficult.

East of Belfort the gap widens. The rough and wooded gap country dips into rolling hills cut into crazy-quilt patterns of brilliant red and gold by small carefully cultivated fields.

These fields are dotted with quaint villages and accented by deep green miniature forests, bright flowers and colorful orchards like a living picture from the imaginary "Land of Oz." Beyond the Rhine, the Black Forest cloaks the hills.

under the G. I. bill of rights.

At the same time, Harold W. Breining, assistant administrator in charge of finance and insurance, denied assertions of some banking groups that the bill and the final draft of regulations will lay the homecoming service man open to jerry-builders and land sharks.

Emphasizing that not only the bill but the tentative regulations to govern the administration of it are necessarily complicated, the Veterans Administration explained how the bill would work under the two separate lending plans.

One of these, Section 501, provides for loans to be made by any one, with the Veterans Administration guaranteeing up to 50 per cent, or not to exceed $2,000. The Veterans Administration will pay the first year's interest on the part it guarantees. The alternate, Section 505, provides for 100 per cent Federal guarantee or insurance of the money loaned, with a selected Federal agency making, guaranteeing or insuring the principal loan and the Veterans Administration limited to an additional $2,000 or 20 per cent of the total.

Taking loans of $10,000 as examples, the V. A. offered this explanation:

Under Section 501:
Loan: $10,000
Lender: Any one

Interest: 4 per cent, or $400 a year with the provisions that the V. A. will pay $80 representing the first year's interest at 4 per cent on $2,000, the amount guaranteed by the V. A.

Under Section 505:
Loan: $10,000
Lender: A Federal agency

Interest: (paid by veteran) 4½ per cent plus ½ per cent insurance charge, on $8,000 of the total amount loaned; 4 per cent interest on the remaining $2,000. Thus the veteran will pay annual interest of $400 on $8,000 and $80 on $2,000 for a total of $480. He still will get the same prepayment by the V. A. of the first year's interest on its part in the loan.

Either of these borrowing opportunities is open to the veteran. Some bankers have raised the contention that the first plan, with no provision for Federal Housing Authority inspection or appraisal on any building bought or built, does not provide the veteran with proper guards against crooked builders or crooked real estate dealers. The V. A. emphasizes, however, that, before it completes the regulations for loans to the service personnel, adequate guards will be set up.

SENATORS IDENTIFY TEAMSTERS IN FIGHT

Green of Campaign Committee Says Tobin Was Not in Statler Hotel Affray

OCT 15 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (AP)—Senate investigators have identified and obtained affidavits from members of the International Teamsters Union of the American Federation of Labor who came to blows with two Navy officers in the "battle of the Statler," Senator Green, Democrat, of Rhode Island, chairman of the Campaign Expenditures Committee, disclosed today. He refused, however, to make the affidavits public.

Likewise, Senator Green would not divulge the names or number of members of the union involved, but said it had been established that Daniel Tobin, president of the teamsters, was not one of them, and that none of the participants was "a personal friend of President Roosevelt."

The affidavits were obtained yesterday by Robert T. Murphy, counsel for the Senate committee, at the New York headquarters of the union. Mr. Tobin did not personally make an affidavit, Senator Green said, because he was not an eyewitness of the fracas.

Asked if the affidavits would be made public, Senator Green replied:

"I don't know when, or if they ever, will be made public." That will be left up to the full committee which will consider the situation next Wednesday, he added.

Lieut. (jg) Randolph Dickins Jr., one of the Navy officers, said he and a companion became involved in an argument with a group of men at the Statler Hotel the night of Sept. 23 when the officers refused to say for whom they would vote for President in the election. The melee occurred shortly after Mr. Roosevelt had opened his fourth-term campaign in a speech to the teamsters at the hotel.

Lieutenant Dickins said he was told after the affray:

"You have struck a personal friend of the President."

"Were any of those involved, officers of the union? Senator Green was asked.

"I'm not going to go into that," he replied.

Later Mr. Murphy also talked with reporters. He said he did not want to go beyond what Senator Green had stated, but remarked that Mr. Tobin was "extremely cooperative" in helping him to obtain the affidavits.

Cramp Shipyard Ousts 191 for Wildcat Strike

Workers Walk Out When the W. L. B. Denies Wage Rise

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 14 (AP).—Cramp Shipbuilding Corporation announced today the discharge of 191 fire watchers for what the company and the Marine and Shipbuilding Workers Union, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, termed an unauthorized work stoppage.

C. R. Holton, the company's director of industrial relations, said the stoppage began yesterday after the National War Labor Board's shipbuilding commission refused to approve an increase in the watchers' pay from 82 to 87 cents an hour. Alfred Meyers, president of the union local, said the discharge was "provocative and impractical" but that union officers "will continue their so-far-successful effort to keep the other men at work and will continue their effort to bring about the return of the fire watchers."

Fire watchers are assigned to extinguish slight fires starting from welders' torches.

7,500 Quit Work On Disciplining Of C. I. O. Man

Walkout at Timken-Detroit Axle Company Ties Up Parts for Army Trucks

DETROIT, Oct. 14 (AP).—Production of axles for military trucks was halted in the Detroit plant of the Timken-Detroit Axle Company today by a strike of 7,500 employees attributed by a union spokesman to the disciplining of a union committeeman.

A spokesman for Local 174, United Automobile Workers, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, said the workers left their jobs at the Melvindale Forge plant of the company after the committeeman had been suspended and employees in the Detroit plant joined the strike.

A company representative said the committeeman was disciplined following a dispute with a plant superintendent.

Meanwhile, foremen employed in the Detroit plant continued a strike begun Thursday after two inspector-foremen accused by the company of passing defective axles had been laid off. The foremen, members of the independent Foreman's Association of America, voted to continue their strike until the two suspended men were returned to their jobs.

The company said about 250 foremen were involved, but the F. A. A. placed the number at more than 400.

PAC Gets Contribution From Mrs. Roosevelt

Washington, Oct. 14 (AP)—Dorothy Rockwell, president of the Washington Newspaper Guild (CIO), said tonight that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt had contributed $25 to the CIO's Political Action Committee through the Newspaper Guild.

Miss Rockwell said Mrs. Roosevelt's check for that amount, made out to the PAC, had been received at the guild's office. Mrs. Roosevelt, author of a daily newspaper column, is a member of the Washington Guild.

WALLACE JOINS P. A. C.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 14—(AP) Vice-President Wallace joined the C.I.O. Political Action committee today and later waved his receipt for a $1 contribution to the P.A.C. fund at a luncheon meeting with the remark:

"I don't know why I had been passed by so long. Now I am a member of the common man's club."

The Vice President wore on his lapel as he left here a P.A.C. button in addition to an "FDR" pin which was the lapel's sole decoration when he arrived this morning.

ROONEY GOES OVERSEAS

GADSDEN, Ala., Oct. 14—(AP) Pvt. Mickey Rooney, former movie star who two weeks ago married Miss Betty Jane Rase, 17-year-old Miss Birmingham of 1944, has left Camp Sibert for a scheduled overseas assignment, the Gadsden Times said tonight.

Rooney and Miss Rase were married in Birmingham after a six-day courtship.

CHARGES JAP LINK

Los Angeles, Oct. 14 (A. P.).—Evidence that Harold N. Landon, an American engineer, in 1938 offered President Roosevelt a radar-like device which he said he had been hired to build for a foreign Power, later identified as Japan, was introduced in court here late yesterday.

Mrs. Elma Phillips, Mr. Landon's former wife, introduced a copy of the letter she testified Mr. Landon wrote to the President. She is opposing Mr. Landon's suit to set aside the divorce she obtained while he was a prisoner of Japan in Shanghai.

The letter stated that a foreign government was hiring him to build a device that "detects any and all obstacles in the path of an airplane in flight."

Mr. Landan denied that he had ever worked for the Japanese Government but his former wife testified that he was under the direct supervision of the Japanese Army.

FDR MAY SPEAK IN FOUR STATES

OCT 15 1944

President Reported Planning Talks in Cleveland, Philadelphia, Chicago.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 — (AP) President Roosevelt may carry his fourth term campaign personally into Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois, in addition to his home state of New York, where an aggregate of 135 electoral votes are at stake.

It was said authoritatively today that these states are high on the Presidential itinerary now under consideration, although the White House said no dates or places are ready for announcement.

Coincident with an announcement by his secretary Stephen Early that Mr. Roosevelt had declined an invitation to speak next Wednesday night on the New York Herald Tribune Forum, Democratic spokesmen said the chances are good that he will speak in Philadelphia, Cleveland and Chicago, probably after his address on international affairs before the Foreign Policy association in New York city next Saturday night.

Early's statement that the President is "talking about" other speeches came between two White House shots at Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, both based on the circumstances and context of quotations used by the Republican nominee in campaign speeches.

Hershey Writes President

Late in the day the White House made public a letter in which Major General Lewis B. Hershey, Selective Service director, said he gave a "personal opinion in a field over which I have no responsibility" when he said last August it would be as cheap to keep men in the Army as to set up an agency to care for them when they are out.

Governor Dewey referred to this remark, which Hershey said he made in response to a hypothetical question at a press conference in Denver, in his opening campaign speech at Philadelphia Sept 7. He used it as the basis for a charge that the administration is "afraid of peace" and "afraid of a continuance of their own failures to get this country going again."

Hershey in his letter to the President said it was understood by those to whom he talked that he was not expressing an administration viewpoint. He clearly indicated, he added, that his "personal opinion was not popular and would probably not be given consideration."

After stating he has been and still is a Republican and expects to continue to vote, he concluded:

"The publicity that has been given to my reply at Denver has tended to attach significance which is completely out of accord with the facts of the matter."

Mr. Roosevelt, in commenting at a news conference on the Dewey Philadelphia speech, had remarked that it was Hershey's job to put men in the Army, not to take them out. He also assailed it in his Oct. 5 radio address to party workers, but without mentioning Dewey. He said then: "It seems a pity that reckless words, based on unauthorized sources, should be used to mislead and to weaken the morale of our men on the fighting fronts and the members of their families here at home."

Berle Replies to Dewey

In another letter, made public earlier in the day, Adolf A. Berle, Jr., assistant Secretary of State, accused Dewey of making a "surprisingly dishonest effort in his Charleston, W. Va., speech to make it appear that the present administration secretly hopes to "set up a Communist system."

Berle said Dewey "ripped a single sentence" from a memorandum Berle prepared in 1939 and put it forward "as the doctrine advocated, though the entire memorandum showed the exact contrary."

The White House also made available to reporters, although not as a White House document, a compilation of some of Dewey's quotations from administration speeches, testimony or documents. Each quotation was followed by a fuller quotation from the same record, speech or document in obvious design to develop the contention that Dewey had distorted the meaning.

Mr. Roosevelt's campaign consultants, it was learned, have talked of speeches at Detroit, St. Louis, Buffalo and the twin cities of Minnesota, but the likelihood of their being included in a swing is regarded by them as slim compared with others higher on the tentative list. The President probably will not go west of Chicago in any stumping tour, one spokesman said.

Four States are Battleground

The four states tentatively marked for possible visits are all populous battle grounds. All have big industrial centers where party workers have been active in getting voters registered. New York has 47 electoral votes, Pennsylvania 35, Illinois 28, and Ohio 25. All were carried by Mr. Roosevelt in 1940 but are now classed by many politicians as doubtful.

One Dewey talk will be on foreign policy on the New York Herald Tribune Forum at 9:30 p. m. (EWT) next Wednesday. This is the same night the President was asked to speak, but declined. In announcing a telegram of refusal had been sent last night to Mrs. Ogden Reid, vice president of the newspaper, Early said that as far as he knew no reason was given. In New York, Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, said he had written an explanation of the President's action to Mrs. Reid. Mrs. Reid's secretary said no such communication had been received yet.

Dewey has speeches scheduled for Buffalo, Oct. 31; New York city, Nov. 4 and a radio studio election eve talk, as well as addresses in St. Louis Monday, Minneapolis Oct. 24, Chicago Oct. 25 and Boston Nov. 1.

White House Reply

Ten items headed "Dewey's statement," and followed in each instance by what was labeled "the facts," were included in the compilation made available at the White House.

"In 1940, the year after the war began in Europe, the United States was in such a tragic condition that it couldn't put into the field as a mobile force 75,000

Dewey 'Dishonest' In Talks: Berle

Washington, Oct. 14 (AP)—Adolf A. Berle, Jr., Assistant Secretary of State, claimed today that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was making "a surprisingly dishonest effort" to make it appear the Roosevelt Administration secretly aspires to "set up a Communist system."

In a letter to the President made public at the White House, Berle said the Republican Presidential nominee "ripped a single sentence" from a document Berle wrote in 1939 and used it to claim the Administration advocates government ownership of industry "though the entire memorandum shows the exact contrary."

Quoted At Charleston

The sentence, quoted by Dewey at Charleston, W. Va., last Saturday, said: "Over a period of years, the Government will gradually come to own most of the productive plants of the United States." Berle said the sentence actually pictured "just what we wanted to avoid."

"He (Dewey) then built a speech on the theory that this was 'your program,' " he wrote the President. "The record shows not only that this was not your program, but also that it was not anyone's program.

'In the circumstances this was a clear attempt to play fast and loose with the American public."

Says Dewey Knows Him

Governor Dewey knows me quite well," Berle continued, declaring he helped the New Yorker with the Independent nomination for District Attorney years ago. "He knows I have never been a Communist."

At the same time the Berle letter was released a lengthy anlysis of Dewey campaign statements was made available to reporters at the White House showing excerpts he quoted from Administration documents, testimony and speeches in his Oklahoma City address.

In each case the analysis adds a fuller text in support of the Democratic claim to show that the Republican nomiee failed to give each quotation its full meaning.

F. D. R. 1937 Speech Quoted

It takes this excerpt from Dewey's Oklahoma City speech: "In 1937 he (the President) said, and I quote: 'How happy we are that the circumstances of the moment permit us to put our money into bridges and boulevards . . . rather than into huge standing armies and vast implements of war.' "

Then the analysis adds several paragraphs from a Roosevelt speech of 1937 underscoring this sentence which followed that quoted by Dewey: "I am compelled and you are compelled, nevertheless, to look ahead."

It also quotes the President in the same speech: "Let no one imagine that America will escape, that . . . this Western Hemisphere will not be attacked."

quoted General Marshall as telling a congressional committee on May 1, 1940, "we could put in the field at the present time, as a mobile force, about 75,000 men of the regular establishment to be promptly reinforced by 25,000 men from the enlisted reserve."

Marshall was also quoted as testifying on April 22, 1941, that in a February, 1940, talk to a historical group "one statement I made was that compared to the Navy, which is 75 per cent mobilized at all times, we at best were not over 25 per cent prepared in the Army. Well, that was just for the purpose of illustrating the difference of the national policy. It was in no way a criticism."

A Dewey quotation from Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the Army Air Forces, that "Dec. 7, 1941, found the Army Air Forces equipped with plans but not planes" was expanded to add this, among other statements, "that we were rapidly building up our strength at that time has been erased from the minds of many people by succeeding events. But due in large part to the initiative of our Commander-in-Chief, we did not start this war from scratch."

Another citation was Dewey's statement that Senator Harry S. Truman, now the Democratic nominee for Vice President, said in the Senate in May, 1943, "after Pearl Harbor we found ourselves woefully unprepared for war."

"The Senate was talking only about disputes between agencies with particular reference to rubber," the study commented.

Dewey cited in President Roosevelt's message to Congress in 1935 the statement, "there is no ground for apprehension that our relations with any nation will be otherwise than peaceful."

The compilation gave a fuller excerpt from the same message with this statement underlined, "I cannot with candor tell you that general international relationships outside the borders of the United States are improved."

Dewey To Discuss Need Of Competence

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 14 (AP)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey has selected "The Urgent Need for Honesty and Competence in Our National Government" as the topic of a major campaign speech in St. Louis on Monday night.

The Republican Presidential nominee in other speeches has challenged directly the competency of the present Democratic leadership.

Has Charged Bungling

In his recent Charleston (W. Va.) speech he declared the Roosevelt Administration "bungled its way into the conversion for war production."

A spokesman said it appeared likely Dewey also would discuss support President Roosevelt reportedly was receiving from big city political groups.

The speech, to be broadcast over two networks, will find Dewey in the home town of Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, and in a State which twice has elected to the United States Senate, Harry S. Truman, Democratic Vice-Presidential nominee.

Mum On Ball's Question

Dewey declined to comment yesterday on reports of a demand by Senator Ball (R., Minn.) that the two major Presidential candidates answer this question:

"Should the vote of the United States representative on the United Nations Security Council commit an agreed-upon quota of our military forces to action ordered by the council to maintain peace, without requiring further Congressional approval?"

SOCIALIZATION AIM IS FEARED

Bricker Says New Deal Is Trying To Remake Nation

San Francisco, Oct. 14 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker declared tonight that the Federal courts had been transformed into "conclaves of New Deal ideologies" in an effort to remake the nation along lines similar to state socialism.

The Republican nominee for Vice-President, asserting that President Roosevelt had appointed 61 per cent. "of the entire life tenure Federal judiciary," added:

"Clearly, Mr. Roosevelt has successfully 'packed' our Federal judiciary from top to bottom. The fresh young blood that he promised to pour into the aging blood stream of the Supreme Court in his crusading days of 1937 has proved to be the plasma of the New Deal.

Launches Six-Day Drive

Tonight's speech of the Ohio Governor, launching a strenuous six-day drive for California's 25 electoral votes, was in the San Francisco Civic Auditorium.

By such court appointments, Mr. Bricker continued, "Mr. Roosevelt has walled out from our Federal courts the ideals and opinions of millions of Americans who sincerely oppose the New Deal on principle. This means that the 22,000,000 men and women who voted Republican in 1940 have been disfranchised judicially."

"They have transformed our Federal courts of law into conclaves of New Deal ideologies," he added. "It was inevitable that the New Deal appointees should color their judicial decisions with their personal philosophies. A man cannot escape the impact of his economic and social environment by putting on a black robe."

State Socialism Seen

He said the "packing" was motivated by "the New Deal purpose to remake this nation along lines so similar to state socialism that the Constitutional barrier had to be broken down. There is no other reason. . . ."

"Being impatient, and too uncertain of popular support to ask for Constitutional amendments to meet his objectives," Bricker continued, "the President sought to amend the Constitution by personal force. That is why he has packed the courts with New Deal philosophies."

And that, the Ohioan declared, "alone is reason for a change and the election of Thomas E. Dewey President."

Looks To The West

Earlier Governor Bricker to a Sacramento audience that "this country too long has looked toward the East almost exclusively."

Praising the "great natural resources and the spirit of the people of the West," the Republican candidate for Vice President added:

"The Administration and Government must look more and more to the strong and virile western section of the nation. This section should be represented in every Federal department.

In a press conference Bricker

Would Cover Federal Workers

advocated that employes of plants operated by the Federal Government be covered by unemployment insurance through "State systems."

The Ohio Governor declined to go into the matter of West Coast shipping rates, taking the position that "it is an economic problem and should not be a political problem."

Wages—"They should be unfrozen as soon as it is determined such action would not produce a complete economic upset."

Treatment of Japanese in the United States — "This involves questions of the military aspect and any treaty after Japan is defeated.

James Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians —"I think they (some labor leaders) have been coddled too much, have usurped power and in many instances have damaged labor."

Politics Charged In Ration Setup By Bricker

Sacramento, Cal., Oct. 14 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker, "condemning" what he called political implications in rationing, asserted today that the recent release of farm machinery from rationing "undoubtedly was facilitated by the fact the election day is approaching."

The Republican candidate for Vice-President, in a prepared text, said the September 6 announcement that 17 processed foods would be removed from rationing was made from the White House, and added:

"Ordinarily an announcement of this sort would be made by the OPA. But this is an election year. November 7 is circled in red on the White House calendar."

Major Talk Tonight

Bricker moved into California after two days of campaigning in Oregon. He will deliver what his staff described as another major address in San Francisco tonight, broadcast at 8.30 (Pacific war time), over a Pacific Coast (Mutual) network. Appearances at Martinez, Richmond, Berkeley and Oakland also were scheduled.

Opening a six-day campaign for California's 25 Electoral votes, Bricker declared the Republican party had no quarrel with rationing in wartime. But, he continued, "the Republican party does object to the ineptness, the confusion, the lack of elementary planning and vision with which the New Dealers have administered the rationing program. It particularly condemns the political implications of rationing."

Situation Described

Bricker said that the night before the announcement that farm machinery and equipment other than cornpickers would be released from rationing a member of the Administration had described reports of the impending development as "astounding" on the ground that farm machinery was one of the "most critical programs."

"That," Bricker added, "indicates the lack of teamwork and the confusion of the New Deal."

He asserted that implement dealers feel there are not enough machines to meet the farmers' demands next year and that the "OPA announcement merely would shift the job of rationing from the Government to the manufacturer."

Recall Predictions

The release of the 17 processed foods, Bricker continued, "squared with the predictions freely made by multitudes of Americans that there would be a relaxing of rationing controls as election day approached."

He pictured this as being "in line with the New Deal policy of flooding the ranks of Federal officers in election years."

F. D. R. LABELED NO CHURCHILL

Clare Luce Calls President "Isolationist, Appeaser"

Indianapolis, Oct. 14 (AP)—Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.) described President Roosevelt tonight as "the world's leading isolationist and appeaser" from 1933 to 1939.

In a speech released by Republican national headquarters and prepared for delivery to a Republican rally at Cadle Tabernacle, for broadcast over an Indiana radio network, the Connecticut Congresswoman said:

"No, no, no, Mr. Roosevelt was no Mr. Churchill, who dared risk public disfavor to warn his country . . . that war with Hitler's Germany was probably inevitable after Munich, and certainly necessary after Dunkerque.

"Why," She Demands

"But why did Mr. Roosevelt never tell the American people the truth about the meaning of an Axis military victory—the truth that would have meant a patriot's call to arms after Dunkerque? Why? Because to do so would have meant an abrupt reversal of both character and policy on his part. For all through the years when Mussolini and Hitler were rising—from 1933 to 1939—Mr. Roosevelt had been the world's leading isolationist and appeaser. . . .

"In 1938 he did not condemn the doings at Munich to the American people. Thus, in the face of certain war in Europe, for nine long years, he turned his back and kept the terrible facts from the people. . . .

"As for his appeasement policies toward Japan—why, do you remember the terrible and significant incident of the Panay, the American gunboat wantonly sunk by the Japs in the Yangtze? That's where Japan first tried out Mr. Roosevelt as an appeaser and found him quite satisfactory.

"And everyone knows that until five months before Pearl Harbor this Administration sent Japan the scrap and oil Japan needed to run her war machine against our natural historic ally in Asia—China.

"Yes, indeed, from 1933 to 1939, Mr. Roosevelt had a completely unbroken record of word and action as an isolationist and an appeaser. And in 1939—at the last quarter hour—what happened? Well, then he suddenly awoke from his long dream of experiment, patronage, appeasement and isolationist. . . .

"That Is Why"—— She Says

"But he did not dare tell the truth. A man who wanted to get elected for a third term in a country he himself had conditioned to be isolationist did not dare tell the truth to the people. . . . That is why economic sanctions, lend-lease, a measure of war against the Axis, which the Axis fully understood, the destroyer deal itself, were all presented by the Administration as measures to keep us out of war.

"That is why we were told that Detroit could be bombed and Governor's Island destroyed. That is why the people were told we were preparing to raise an army only in case war should come to us—when all the while he knew, as every thoughtful American knew, Americans had to go to war if Europe and Asia were not to fall into the hands of the Axis.

"Mr. Roosevelt knew that in order to get reelected in 1940 he would have to talk in his own language 'out of both sides of his mouth at once.' And he did."

F. D. R. Grooms Truman, Pew Declares

Philadelphia, Oct. 14 (AP)—Joseph N. Pew, Jr., multimillionaire Pennsylvania oil executive, making what was termed the first political speech of his career last night at a Republican rally, said President Roosevelt "is not campaigning for himself but for Senator Harry Truman, whom he hopes to make the next President of the United States."

Pew added, however, "We will never stand for this."

Predicts GOP Landslide

Predicting Pennsylvania would go for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Pew said: "We are going to see the greatest Republican sweep in history from one end of America to the other."

City Chairman David W. Harris remarked at the conclusion of Pew's speech, which preceded that of Gov. Dwight H. Green, of Illinois: "This is the first time Mr. Pew has ever spoken directly to the Philadelphia Republican organization."

Truman, Garner Meet In Texas

With Truman En Route to Los Angeles, Oct. 14 (AP)—Senator Truman's Vice-Presidential campaign party rolled westward today after a busy Friday in which he made speeches, shook hands with Texas politicians and talked with former Vice-President John Nance Garner.

The meting with the 75-year-old "Cactus Jack" occurred when the train to which Truman's car is attached pulled into the station at Uvalde where the two old cronies of Senate office building days embraced each other.

Garner In Khaki

Garner, garbed in khaki work shirt and pants, his hands stained from pecan hulling, came into town after a day spent shucking corn.

"I wash never happier in my life," Garner related. "I'll be 76 next month and expect to live to be 93." He wouldn't talk politics, however.

As Garner met Truman beside the train he told the Missouri nominee: "You're as lively as ever. I believe you're getting younger."

Talk Privately

Garner introduced Truman to a group of about 25 men and women at the depot. Then he entered the Pullman with Truman, and the two remained alone for five minutes.

Garner was accompanied by Mrs. Garner and his son Tully, a Uvalde banker.

Other Texans talked politics yesterday. Former Gov. James V. Allred predicted a minimum of 750,000 Texas votes for President Roosevelt.

Truman made brief talks at Beaumont, Houston and San Antonio. His first stop today is El Paso.

LONDON, OCT 14-(AP)-THE CHURCHILL-STALIN TALKS IN MOSCOW THIS WEEK HAVE BEEN WATCHED ANXIOUSLY IN THIS INTERNATIONAL CAPITAL WHERE MANY BELIEVE THE OUTCOME CAN MAKE OR BREAK THE DUMBARTON OAKS PLAN FOR WORLD PEACE.

IT SO HAPPENED THAT THE BRITISH PRIME MINISTER'S ARRIVAL IN MOSCOW WITH FOREIGN SECRETARY ANTHONY EDEN COINCIDED WITH THE PUBLICATION HERE OF THE TEXT OF THE DUMBARTON OAKS PROPOSALS.

COMMENT ON THE PROJECT IN THE PRESS AND IN DIPLOMATIC QUARTERS, CONSEQUENTLY, HAS BEEN DOMINATED BY A KEEN AWARENESS THAT SOME OF THE ISSUES UNDER DISCUSSION IN MOSCOW WERE THE KIND THAT IN PAST GENERATIONS HAVE WRECKED THE CONCERT OF POWERS AND LED TO GREAT WARS.

THERE HAS BEEN NO TENDENCY, THEREFORE, TO HAIL THE NEW ERA OF BROTHERLY LOVE AS JUST AROUND THE CORNER, AND NO INCLINATION TO RESORT TO FLAMBOYANT PHRASES SUCH AS WELCOMED THE BIRTH OF THE 1919 LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

ON THE CONTRARY, THERE HAS BEEN A GENERAL EMPHASIS ON THE THOUGHT THAT SUCCESS OF THE NEW PEACE ORGANIZATION WOULD DEPEND PRIMARILY ON CONTINUED HARMONY AMONG THE GREAT POWERS, WHICH IN THE LAST ANALYSIS WOULD ENFORCE THE PEACE.

IN THIS ATMOSPHERE OF RELUCTANCE TO INDULGE IN POSTWAR OPTIMISM, THE TASK CONFRONTING THE STATESMEN IN MOSCOW HAS BEEN VIEWED AS TRULY MOMENTOUS.

SIGNS OF ENCOURAGEMENT HAVE BEEN SEEN IN EFFORTS ALREADY MADE BY PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AND MARSHAL STALIN TO ACCELERATE THE SOLUTION OF THE DELICATE POLISH QUESTION AND IN THE SPEED WITH WHICH AGREEMENT WAS REACHED ON WITHDRAWAL OF BULGARIAN FORCES FROM GREECE AND YUGOSLAVIA.

AACHEN, OCT. 14-(AP)-SOLDIERS OF LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' FIRST ARMY WORKED THEIR WAY DEEPER INTO AACHEN IN HOUSE-TO-HOUSE BATTLE TODAY AGAINST INCREASINGLY STUBBORN RESISTANCE.

AMERICAN GUNS AND PLANES CONTINUED TO POUND NAZI REINFORCEMENTS EAST OF THE CITY AND BALK ANY MAJOR ENEMY COUNTERATTACK.

THERE IS A POSSIBILITY THAT THE GERMANS HAVE SUCCEEDED IN STRENGTHENING THE AACHEN GARRISON BY SLIPPING SMALL GROUPS AT NIGHT THROUGH THE NARROW CORRIDOR WHICH THEY MANAGED TO HOLD OPEN ON THE NORTHEASTERN SIDE OF THE CITY.

DURING THE LAST FIVE DAYS THIS AMERICAN DIVISION WHICH IS ASSAULTING AACHEN HAS TAKEN ABOUT 1,000 PRISONERS, BUT IT IS ESTIMATED THAT THERE STILL ARE ABOUT 2,000 LEFT IN THE BURNING AND BATTERED CITY.

"THE ENEMY'S ESCAPE GAP IS AS GOOD AS CLOSED NOW," SAID LT.COL. ROBERT EVANS OF DAVENPORT, IA. "THEY CAN GET ALMOST NOTHING IN OR OUT OF THE CITY. OUR BOYS ARE TAKING IT SLOW IN CLEANING UP AACHEN FOR WE DON'T WANT ANY MORE CASUALTIES THAN ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY."

THIS MORNING MORE THAN 60 PRISONERS WERE TAKEN TO ADD TO THE MORE THAN 300 ROUTED OUT OF CELLARS AND STRONGPOINTS YESTERDAY.

THE FIGHTING INSIDE THE CITY IS HARD BUT THE DOUGHBOYS ARE ADVANCING STEADILY THEY ARE METHODICALLY KNOCKING OUT PILLBOXES AND DRIVING THE NAZIS OUT OF THE HOUSES AND CELLARS WITH MACHINEGUNS, RIFLES AND GRENADES. SMALL ARMS FIRE CRACKLES THROUGH THE STREETS AND THERE IS THE CRUMP OF HEAVY ARTILLERY FIRE MASSING ON ENEMY STRONGPOINTS.

MEMBERS OF THE AACHEN POLICE FORCE, WHO HAVE BEEN USED AS INFANTRY, REPORTED WHEN TAKEN PRISONER THAT THERE WERE ABOUT 10,000 CIVILIANS REMAINING IN THE CITY.

COMBINED ARTILLERY AND AERIAL BOMBARDMENTS SO FAR HAVE SMASHED EVERY NAZI EFFORT TO MOUNT A HEAVYCOUNTERATTACK TO SAVE AACHEN. MORE THAN 200 GUNS, INCLUDING EIGHT-INCH WEAPONS, WERE TURNED ON ENEMY CONCENTRATIONS YESTERDAY IN THE VICINITY OF BROICHWEIDEN AND WURSELEN AND THOSE POINTS STILL WERE BEING POUNDED TODAY. THE THREAT OF A HEAVY COUNTERATTACK HAS NOT PASSED, BUT THE ENEMY HAS TAKEN HEAVY PUNISHMENT IN TRYING TO RUSH COLUMNS OF ARMOR FORWARD UNDER THE DIRECT OBSERVATION OF OUR ARTILLERY AND AIR FORCE.

THE POLICE CAME TO AACHEN TO EVACUATE CIVILIANS, BUT THOUSANDS HAVE REFUSED TO LEAVE. WHEN THE ASSAULT ON THE CITY BEGAN, THE POLICE WERE FORMED INTO COMMANDO GROUPS AND PLACED AT STRATEGIC POINTS AND STREET CROSSINGS TO RESIST THE DOUGHBOY ADVANCE.

AACHEN HAS HAD NO WATER OR ELECTRICITY FOR ABOUT THREE WEEKS.

REPORTERS WILL NOT BE GIVEN PERMISSION TO ENTER THE CITY UNTIL FURTHER ADVANCES ARE MADE. THESE RESTRICTIONS MAY BE LIFTED IN A FEW HOURS WHEN A LARGER SECTION OF THE CITY IS FIRMLY CONTROLLED.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, FRANCE, OCT 14 -(AP)-THE GERMAN ARMY IS PATCHING THE AACHEN BREACH JUST AS IT PATCHED ITS NORMANDY LINE, BY JUGGLING TROOPS RATHER THAN BY POURING IN STRATEGIC RESERVES.

THESE TACTICS DID NOT CONTAIN THE BEACHHEAD AND CANNOT INDEFINITELY SAVE THE SIEGFRIED LINE AND THE RHINE AREA.

THE ANSWER, IT SEEMS CLEAR FROM THE BEST INFORMATION AVAILABLE HERE, IS THE SAME IN BOTH CASES: THE HIGH COMMAND DOES NOT HAVE THESE STRATEGIC RESERVES.

THE STIFFENED GERMAN DEFENSE IS NOT REGARDED BY HEADQUARTERS OFFICERS AS HAVING BEEN ACCOMPLISHED BY INCREASING THE TOTAL MANPOWER OF THE NAZI FORCES.

SIX WEEKS AGO, WHILE THE ALLIES STILL WERE MAINTAINING CONSIDERABLE MOMENTUM, IT WAS ESTIMATED AUTHORITATIVELY THAT THE GERMANS HAD THE EQUIVALENT OF ABOUT 25 DIVISIONS IN THE WESTERN LINE. THESE WERE PATCHED TOGETHER FROM REMNANTS OF PERHAPS AS MANY AS 50 MAULED DIVISIONS, AND PADDED OUT WITH REST TROOPS, GARRISON TROOPS AND TRAINING TROOPS--SCRAPED FROM CLOSE TO THE BOTTOM OF THE BARREL.

THERE IS NO REASON TO SUPPOSE AT THIS MINUTE THAT THE FIGHTING MANPOWER OF THE GERMAN WESTERN LINE HAS BEEN INCREASED ABOVE THAT--OR CAN BE MUCH INCREASED WITHOUT BLEEDING OTHER FRONTS EQUALLY HARD PRESSED.

THE LATERAL SHIFTING OF UNITS BEHIND THE LINE--PARTICULARLY WHEN EXPOSED TO AIR ATTACK AS AT ARNHEM AND AACHEN--IS TOO COSTLY EVEN IF RESERVE TROOPS WERE AVAILABLE.

IT IS A PART OF ALLIED STRATEGY TO PUNCH FIRST ONE SORE SPOT AND THEN ANOTHER OF THE PRESENT FRONT TO FORCE THE SAME LATERAL MOVEMENTS FOR THE SAME SAPPING PURPOSE.

ADVANCE HEADQUARTERS, U.S. 12TH TACTICAL AIRFORCE, FRANCE, OCT 14-(AP)-THE ARMY THAT ESTABLISHES THE FIRST SOLID BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS THE RHINE AND SECURES COMMUNICATIONS WILL BE THE ARMY THAT WILL WIN THE WAR, BRIG. GEN. GORDON P.SAVILLE, SAID DURING A LONG PRESS CONFERENCE TODAY.

"IT COULD BE THE FIRST ARMY OR THE THIRD ARMY OR THE SEVENTH ARMY AND IT COULD HAPPEN ANYWHERE ALONG THE LINE FROM HOLLAND TO THE SWISS FRONTIER," HE SAID.

GENERAL SAVILLE, WHOSE FIGHTER-BOMBERS HAVE DAMAGED OR DESTROYED 542 LOCOMOTIVES AND 3,698 RAILROAD CARS SINCE D-DAY, JUNE 6, SAID THAT IN HIS OPINION, THE MERE FACT OF A SUCCESSFUL BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS THE RHINE WOULD BE SUCH A PSYCHOLOGICAL CRUSHER THAT THE HIGHER-UPS OF THE NAZIS WOULD HAVE TO ADMIT DEFEAT.

"I DON'T MEAN JUST A BRIDGEHEAD ON GERMAN SOIL," HE SAID. "WE'VE GOT THAT ALREADY. I MEAN A SOLID BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS THAT RIVER WHICH ANY GERMAN WILL ADMIT IS THE LAST AND STRONGEST BREAKWATER AGAINST THE ALLIED TIDE."

SAVILLE INDICATED HE DID NOT HOLD WITH THE VIEW THAT THE GERMANS HAVE NO AIRFORCE LEFT, SAYING HE EXPECTS THE ALLIED ARMIES TO FACE A PERFECT HELL OF FIGHTER PLANES DEFENDING THE REICH WHEN THE BATTLE FOR THE BREAKTHROUGH COMES.

SINCE LT. GEN. ALEXANDER M. PATCH'S DIVISIONS LANDED ON THE RIVIERA BEACHES, SAVILLE'S COMMAND HAS BEEN RANGING FAR AND WIDE AHEAD OF THE ADVANCING TROOPS. IT HAS DESTROYED 95 ENEMY AIRCRAFT ON THE GROUND AND IN THE AIR, PROBABLY DESTROYED 16 OTHERS, DAMAGED AN ADDITIONAL 143 AIRCRAFT. IT HAS SUNK 31 ENEMY NAVAL VESSELS AND PROBABLY SUNK SIX OTHERS AND DAMAGED 166 OTHERS. IT DEFINITELY HAS DESTROYED 19 RAILROAD BRIDGES AND DAMAGED 47.

"TO ONE BEST OF MY KNOWLEDGE, AND WE HAVE LEANED OVER BACKWARD ARRIVING AT THESE TOTALS, WE HAVE DESTROYED 128 GUN POSITIONS AND DAMAGED 88 OTHERS," SAVILLE SAID.

FIRST LEAD RUSSIAN (200)
BY DANIEL DE LUCE

MOSCOW, OCT 14-(AP)-FALL OF RIGA, LATVIAN CAPITAL AND LAST BALTIC CITY THAT REMAINED TO THE GERMANS, RELEASED TWO POWERFUL RUSSIAN ARMIES TODAY FOR A THRUST SOUTHWARD TOWARD EAST PRUSSIA.

ON THE RED ARDMY'S SOUTHERN FLANK, SILENCE CLOAKED DECISIVE OPERATIONS IN HUNGARY.

THE SOVIET DRIVE IN HUNGARY NOW MAY BE COMPARED TO OPERATIONS LAST YEAR IN ITALY DURING WHICH GEN.SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY'S BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY MARCHED UP THE ITALIAN PENINSULA FOR SIX DAYS AFTER CROSSING THE MESSINA STRAIT.

IT IS RECALLED THAT THE BRITISH LANDED ON THE MAINLAND AT DAWN SEPT. 3, 1943--THE SAME DAY THAT MARSHAL PIETRO BADOGLIO'S EMISSARIES SIGNED AN ARMISTICE. UNTIL EVENING OF SEPT. 8 BRITISH TROOPS OFFICIALLY REGARDED THE ITALIANS AS ENEMY BELLIGERENTS, BUT DAY AFTER DAY WERE AMAZED BY LARGE-SCALE DESERTIONS AND EVEN ACTIVE HELP.

BADOGLIO'S STAFF OFFICERS CLAIMED LATER THAT IF THE ALLIES HAD TAKEN THEM INTO THEIR CONFIDENCE AND HAD DISCLOSED THE TIME OF THE ARMISTICE ANNOUNCEMENT WELL IN ADVANCE INSTEAD OF THE NIGHT OF SEPT. 7, A COORDINATED TRAP COULD HAVE BEEN SPRUNG AGAINST THE GERMANS.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE RED ARMY'S ENTRY INTO EAST PRUSSIA IN FORCE FROM THE FRONTIER BELT 12 MILES NORTHEAST OF TILSIT MAY BE MADE TONIGHT.

RIGA, A CITY OF 385,000, WHOSE CAPTURE BY TROOPS OF GEN.ANDREI YEREMENKO'S SECOND BALTIC ARMY AND GEN.IVAN MASLENNIKOV'S THIRD BALTIC ARMY WAS ANNOUNCED LAST NIGHT BY MARSHAL STALIN, WAS TAKEN BY STORMING THE PORT AREA ON THE MOUTH OF THE DVINA, AFTER THE RUSSIANS CROSSED SUPPOSEDLY IMPASSABLE SWAMPS ON THE NORTHEAST. THUS THE SOVIET FORCES BLOCKED A GERMAN PLAN FOR A SEABORNE EVACUATION.

A CORRESPONDENT OF RED STAR, SOVIET ARMY NEWSPAPER, SAID THE ENEMY TRIED TO BURN RIGA AND HAD DEMOLISHED CENTURIES-OLD ST. PETER'S CHURCH. HOWEVER, A SWIFT RUSSIAN BREAKTHROUGH PREVENTED COMPLETE DESTRUCTION OF THE CITY.

OCT 15 1944

THE GERMAN COMMANDER, COL.GEN.SCHERNER, WAS REPORTED TO HAVE ORDERED WHOLESALE EXECUTIONS AMONG THE WAVERING TROOPS. ELEVEN NAZI SOLDIERS WERE REMOVED FROM A MOVIE HOUSE IN RIGA AND SHOT IN THE STREET FOR BEING ABSENT WITHOUT LEAVE, A SOVIET DISPATCH SAID.

THE RUSSIAN ASSAULT TOWARD THE LATVIAN CAPITAL BREACHED A DEFENSE ZONE OF MORE THAN 25 MILES IN DEPTH. THE SUSTAINED ATTACK CRACKED, ONE AFTER ANOTHER, LINES CALLED BY THE ENEMY THE PANTHER, THE BLUE THE GREEN AND THE WINTER.

THE SOVIET NEWSPAPER IZVESTIA ESTIMATED THAT "SEVERAL DOZEN" ENEMY DIVISIONS HAD BEEN BEATEN IN THE AREA, AND A CONSIDERABLE SHARE OF THESE WERE DESTROYED IN THE OFFENSIVE AGAINST RIGA ITSELF. THE NEWSPAPER ALSO SAID THAT 500 OF 800 GERMAN TANKS WERE KNOCKED OUT WHEN THE RUSSIANS REPELLED A GERMAN COUNTERATTACK WHICH THE NAZIS HOPED WOULD SAVE THE RIGA POSITION THROUGHOUT THE WINTER.

A U.S. B-29 SUPERFORTRESS BASE IN WEST CHINA, OCT 14-(AP)-B-29 SUPERFORTRESSES IN THEIR FIRST NINE RAIDS SET THE AMAZING RECORD OF NOT LOSING A SINGLE PLANE SHOT DOWN BY ENEMY FIGHTERS, MAJ.-GEN. CURTIS LEMAY OF THE 20TH BOMBER COMMAND SAID TODAY.

"OUR MISSION IS TO DROP BOMBS AND MORE BOMBS," LEMAY SAID. "I WOULD BE JUST AS WELL SATISFIED NEVER TO KNOCK DOWN A JAP FIGHTER, BUT THE BIG BOYS CAN TAKE CARE OF THEMSELVES ANYWHERE. THE RECORD SHOWS IT."

THE BOX SCORE OF NINE MISSIONS SHOWS SEVEN SUPERFORTRESSES LOST TO ENEMY ACTION, BUT LEMAY STRESSED THERE WAS NOT A SINGLE AUTHENTICATED CASE OF A SHIP REPORTED DOWNED BY JAPANESE INTERCEPTORS. IN THE SAME NINE RAIDS, B-29 GUNNERS SHOT DOWN 37 JAPANESE PLANES, PROBABLY DESTROYED 36, AND DAMAGED 59.

JAPANESE FIGHTER PILOTS FIND THAT THE ONLY EFFECTIVE TACTIC AGAINST THE BIG SHOPS IS THE OLD MANEUVER KNOWN AS "GETTING OUT OF THERE FAST." POST-RAID INTERROGATIONS OF PILOTS REGULARLY CONTAIN REPORTS OF ENEMY PLANES SIGHTED, BUT STAYING AT A HEALTHY DISTANCE.

ON FIVE IF THE NINE RAIDS NO B-29S WERE LOST TO ENEMY ACKACK FIRE, LEMAY SAID.

LEMAY SAID THE RECORD OF LOSING NO PLANES TO ENEMY FIGHTERS WAS ALL THE MORE REMARKABLE IN VIEW OF THE FACT THAT THE B-29S WERE UNESCORTED ON ALL MISSIONS.

GUN PLACEMENTS AND CENTRAL FIRE CONTROL ON THE B-29S PERMIT A CONCENTRATION OF FIREPOWER ON ATTACKERS FROM ALMOST ANY ANGLE, HE SAID. THE FIGHTERS' NORMAL EFFECTIVE RANGE IS ABOUT 600 YARDS, HE ADDED, WHEREAS THE SUPERFORTS' KILLS WERE MADE AT A LONGER RANGE. HE CLAIMED THAT SOME JAP FIGHTERS WERE BLOWN APART AT 1,200 YARDS.

HE SAID HE BELIEVED THE LOW LOSS RECORD OF B-29S IN COMBAT WAS UNAPPROACHED BY ANY OTHER AIRPLANE. DEFENSIVELY, HE ADDED, THE SUPERFORTS ARE PERFORMING FAR IN EXCESS OF EXPECTATIONS AND HAVE VIRTUALLY WRITTEN OFF JAP FIGHTERS AS A BARRIER TO COMPLETING MISSIONS.

THE JAPANESE GAVE CLEAR EVIDENCE THAT GUERILLA WARFARE IS INCREASING AGAINST THEM IN THE PHILIPPINES WHILE COMMEMORATING A HOLLOW FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF THE PUPPET "REPUBLIC."

SHOZO MURATA, JAPANESE "AMBASSADOR" TO MANILA, REPORTED IN HIS OFFICIAL SPEECH ON THE OCCASION FRIDAY THAT "AMERICAN GUERILLAS" WERE HARASSING NIPPONESE COMMUNICATION LINES. COUNTER EFFORTS OF THE PUPPET PHILIPPINE GOVERNMENT, HE SAID, HAVE "NOT BEEN VERY SATISFACTORY."

OCT 15 1944

MENTION OF THESE PERSISTENT OPPONENTS--MANY OF THEM AMERICAN ARMY OFFICERS AND MEN WHO ESCAPED TO THE HILLS FROM THE CONQUERING JAPANESE--ALWAYS HAS BEEN A SORE POINT WITH THE OVERLORDS. IN THE PAST THE NIPPONESE HAVE ACKNOWLEDGED THEIR EXISTENCE ONLY PERIODICALLY AND WHEN THEY EXPECTED TO GAIN FROM PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT. MANY TIMES THEY HAVE REPORTED THE "FINAL ELIMINATION" OF THESE ROVING BANDS.

MURATA'S CURIOUS STATEMENT APPARENTLY WAS PROMPTED BY TWO MAIN REASONS. EVIDENTLY GUERILLA ACTIVITY HAS INCREASED TO THE POINT WHERE THE JAPANESE WOULD LOSE PRESTIGE IF THEY ATTEMPTED TO IGNORE IT. AT THE SAME TIME THE "AMBASSADOR" SPOKE IN OBVIOUS ILL TEMPER WHICH INDICATED THAT JAPANESE DISSATISFACTION WOULD BRING HARSHER EXTERMINATION ATTEMPTS.

THE GUERILLAS HAVE BEEN PRESENT CONSTANTLY DURING THE JAPANESE REIGN. AT TIMES THEIR MILITARY IMPORTANCE WAS SLIGHT, BUT THEY WERE A CONSTANT SYMBOL TO KEEP ALIVE THE FLAME OF RESISTANCE AMONG THE PEOPLE. THEIR COURAGE AND DETERMINATION, WITH THE KNOWLEDGE THAT CAPTURE MEANT TORTURE AND DEATH, WOVE A DRAMATIC STORY INTO PHILIPPINE HISTORY.

AMERICAN COMMANDERS UNDOUBTEDLY WILL UTILIZE THIS INTERNAL FORCE TO ASSIST THE ANTICIPATED INVASION OF THE ISLANDS. SUPPLIED AND COORDINATED FROM THE OUTSIDE, THE GUERILLAS COULD BECOME AN IMPORTANT FACTOR IN THE BATTLE.

MURATA'S FRANKNESS MAY INDICATE THE BEGINNING OF THE GUERILLA PHASE OF THE CAMPAIGN. CERTAINLY IT SHOWS INCREASED ACTIVITY BY THESE MEN WHO HAVE WAITED SO LONG IN THE MOUNTAINS AND FORESTS FOR THE APPROPRIATE TIME TO STRIKE.

THE PHILIPPINE "REPUBLIC" WAS PROCLAIMED OCT.13, 1943. JAPANESE PROPAGANDISTS TRIED TO MAKE THE ANNIVERSARY A CONVINCING DISPLAY OF FILIPINO-JAPANESE FRIENDSHIP. BUT THE THUNDER OF NEARBY AMERICAN NAVAL GUNS AND AERIAL BOMBS OUTSHOUTED THEM.

(ADVANCE)..WASHINGTON,OCT.14-(AP)-A NEW "SUPER-FUEL" WILL GIVE PLANES OF THE UNITED NATIONS "EVEN GREATER SUPERIORITY OVER THE JAPANESE AIR FLEETS," RALPH K. DAVIES, DEPUTY PETROLEUM ADMINISTRATOR, SAID TODAY.

THE NEW FUEL, DEVELOPED BY TECHNOLOGISTS OF THE AMERICAN PETROLEUM INDUSTRY, PROBABLY WILL BE USED CHIEFLY IN CARRIER-BASED PLANES AND IN GIANT BOMBERS SUCH AS THE B-29 SUPERFORTRESS, DAVIES REPORTED.

HE SAID IT WILL GO INTO PRODUCTION AS SOON AS MILITARY AUTHORITIES GIVE THE WORD, AND ONLY MINOR CHANGES IN A REFINER'S PROCESSING TECHNIQUE WILL BE REQUIRED.

THE UNITED NATIONS NOW ARE MANUFACTURING ABOUT 500,000 BARRELS A DAY OF 100-OCTANE AVIATION GASOLINE, AND THIS MONTH, FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE THE BEGINNING OF THE WAR, THE OUTPUT OF THIS FUEL WILL EXCEED REQUIREMENTS FOR COMBAT AND TRAINING PURPOSES.

DAVIES PREDICTED THE TOTAL OUTPUT OF AVIATION GASOLINE WILL "DROP MATERIALLY" WHEN THE "SUPER-FUEL" GOES INTO PRODUCTION BECAUSE A BARREL OF CRUDE WILL PRODUCE ONLY ABOUT HALF AS MUCH OF IT AS OF 100-OCTANE GASOLINE. FOR THIS REASO AMERICAN REFINERIES ARE NOT EXPECTED TO GO ALL OUT IN THEI ION OF THE NEW FUEL, BUT TO LIMIT THEIR OUTPUT TO QUANTIT ENT FOR THE REQUIREMENTS OF CARRIER-BASED PLANES AND NEW S.
ACCORDING TO DAVIES, AIRC E "SUPER-FUEL" WILL HAVE GREATER CRUISING RANGE ULL-THROTTLE" PERFORMANCE.

HORTHY MAKES PEACE BID IN ORDER OF DAY

RegentReportedArrested Later By Gestapo And Taken To Germany

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Ankara radio quoted reports from Bern today that 60 persons were said to have been killed and hundreds injured in peace uprisings last week in Vienna.

Stockholm, Oct. 15 (AP) — The Swedish Foreign Office announced officially tonight that all export of Swedish ball bearings to Germany had ceased. The Foreign Office said in its brief statement, "no such export is now being carried on."

London, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Hungarian Government of Admiral Nicholas Horthy sued for peace tonight, but as Russian armies drove across the country's central plains toward Budapest the Germans and pro-German elements apparently seized the capital.

The petition for an armistice with the Allies was broadcast by the Budapest radio early this evening in an order of the day signed by Regent Horthy.

Regent Reported Arrested

Then the Hungarian Nazis—presumably aided by German SS divisions rushed to Budapest from Vienna—took over the radio. They called for the "elimination of the cowards and betrayers" and urged the Hungarian army and home front to fight on beside Germany.

Horthy, according to a report broadcast by the radio at Lille, France, was seized by the Gestapo and taken to Germany.

Late tonight a broadcast from Budapest announced that the Hungarian Nazi party headed by Ferec Szalasi had taken control of the country and "taken matters in hand to eliminate traitors at all cost. The most ruthless measures will be taken against those disobeying orders — including the death penalty."

"Treachery" Frustrated

The broadcast declared that "Horthy's attempted treachery was frustrated at the last minute" and that the Hungarian Nazi regime had asked the German army to protect "the faithful Hungarian population." Also broadcast was an "order of the day" by Szalasi charging Horthy with selling out the country to "Bolshevism."

The Moscow radio, broadcasting a straight news report of developments in Hungary, said "it appears that an internal struggle is going on" in that country with Nazis in control of the Budapest radio.

Ankara broadcasts said the Gestapo was making mass arrests in Budapest.

Radio Station Held By Nazis

Budapest radio's 10 P. M. broadcast indicated the Nazis were in control at least of the radio station. It broadcast only the German military communique, making no reference to Horthy's armistice petition or to the Hungarian internal situation.

Later Budapest broadcast an order from Francis Szalasi, chief of the pro-Nazi Arrow Cross party, criticizing Horthy and promising to continue fighting alongside Germany.

Horthy's petition, as recorded in London, did not order Hungarian soldiers immediately to lay down their arms. It was followed by broadcast of a statement by the Chief of the General Staff, Col. Gen. Vitez Voeroes, urging the troops to continue fighting "until the outcome of armistice negotiations is known."

Soldiers Reported Quitting

However, the Lille radio quoted Swiss reports that many Hungarian soldiers were quitting.

Hungary's exit from the war, besides depriving the Germans of the aid of 30 to 40 divisions, would open to Russian armies the road to Vienna and another highway to the invasion of Germany.

The Ankara radio reported peace demonstrations already were occurring in Vienna and the Austrian province of Styria.

Karolyi Rejoices At Defeat

In London Count Michael Karolyi, exiled former president of the first Hungarian republic, declared, "We have lost—therefore we are victorious. Hungary should be out of the way in a few hours."

Confirmation of the armistice request was expected hourly from Moscow, where Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin are in conference. Neutral sources said yesterday Hungarian armistice delegations were en route to Moscow.

The Ankara radio, quoting ...y's order of the day, said ...ngary had accepted the Allied ...stice terms.

General Voros' Broadcast

...radio report of Colonel Gen. ...oros' broadcast said: "No one ...t interpret the contents of the ...gent's broadcast as meaning that the Hungarian army is laying down its arms. So far it is only a question of armistice negotiations.

"The outcome of these is as yet uncertain and every Hungarian soldier and unit is therefore to continue to fight without change and with all its might in the face of every attack."

But the military fate of Germany's last active European satellite appeared sealed by Russian armies driving across the Hungarian plains 50 miles from Budapest.

...rms for Hungary were believed to parallel those of Romania, which meant that the former could take no easy way out of the war, but would have to turn her armies against Germany.

The terms were believed to include the disarming and interning of all German forces in Hungarian territory, restoring Transylvania to Romania, dissolving organizations hostile to the United Nations, installing a liberal all-party government and erasing anti-Semitic laws and other trappings of Fascism.

Russia, which has promised Transylvania to Romania, is expected to present a reparations bill for damage done to the Soviet Union by Hungarians fighting with the Germans.

Nazis Seize Budapest

The Ankara radio said more German SS (Elite Guard) troops were pouring into panicky Budapest, making arrests by the score.

There was no immediate reaction from the German radio to the Budapest announcement. Last night the Nazi radio admitted Hungary was in a panic and that "all Europe is watching with a sense of tension." Berlin insisted the German army would fight for every foot of occupied Hungary "as if it were German soil."

Hungary's exit would deprive Germany of the help of an estimated 30 to 40 divisions.

German morale was expected to be less shaken by this new defection, however, than it would have been months ago, for how the Nazis are busy bracing the army and home front for the defense of the Reich itself.

Among the factors that kept Hungary close to Berlin through five years of Axis war were fear of losing her trade with Germany and the prospect of regaining territory lost after World War I.

German influence in the country mounted as the Germans used Hungary freely for troop movements and assumed control of the vital Danube waterway. Late in 1940 Hungary formally entered the German-Italian-Japanese alliance as a minor partner.

She declared war against Russia on June 21, 1941, and the following December Britain declared war on Hungary. Six days after Pearl Harbor Hungary followed the Axis line and declared war on the United States.

As German military might began to wane, the Hungarians showed evidence of becoming dissatisfied. Losses of troops in the Russian fighting met with poor reception at home.

Last March the Germans virtually took over Hungary, establishing a puppet Government and placing the country under military control. The country was forcibly held in line with the Axis.

Allies Attack Below Schelde Estuary in Drive to Open Port.

YANKS GAIN IN SOUTH

Patton's Forces Prepare for Big Offensive in Metz Sector.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 16—(AP) The Western Front flared with action Sunday from its northern end in the low countries to the southern sector in the Vosges mountains.

While a savage and crucial battle raged south of the Schelde River estuary, where Canadian forces were striving to free the entry to the port of Antwerp, U. S. First army units fgihting inside Aachen smashed the heaviest Nazi counterattack yet made in the direction of that German city and other Americans at the southern end of the line advanced swiftly on Bruyeres, 12 1-2 miles east of Epinal, France.

Nazi Attack Repulsed

The Nazi attempt to relieve the Aachen garrison was repulsed by massed artillery and anti- tank guns. Doughboys meanwhile worked their way slowly through the city, house by house and pillbox by pillbox.

The sudden American move in the south was made against only spotty Nazi resistance despite reports that the Bruyeres vicinity, from which the Germans earlier had launched violent counterattacks, was strongly defended. A dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent George Tucker said the Americans were within a mile of the city Sunday afternoon.

Also on the move was Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army which drove a mile east beyond the Parroy forest in the Metz-Nancy sector of the line, and the Lille (France) radio said the Americans in that region seemed to be preparing for "an important offensive."

Canadians fighting in Belgium chopped off half the German pocket south of the Schelde estuary today in their campaign to open the port of Antwerp to receive supplies for the Allied armies on the western front.

Upwards of 6,000 Allied bombers, hammering Nazi communications cities behind the Siegfried line in weekend assaults, dealt Germany a second setback in this crucial struggle for supply channels—a test which Berlin said might determine the need for a Winter war.

Nazi Pocket Caved in

Twin Canadian drives caved in half the stubborn German pocket below the Schelde estuary blocking Allied use of Antwerp, one of the world's greatest ports, 30 miles to the east.

Infantrymen bursting south from their Schelde beachhead linked with units at the head of Savojaargs inlet. Three miles to the west, Canadians struck over the Leopold canal, seized Watervliet, and hit within two miles of the main beachhead forces to the north.

The double successes forced the Germans to pull back to a small canal running through the middle of the Schelde pocket about six miles from the coast, a front dispatch said.

But north of Antwerp the Germans in a powerful counterattack drove Canadian army men back from the roads and railway causeway leading to the estuary "watchdog" islands of Zuid Beveland and Walcheren. Allied artillery still dominated the causeway to Beveland and to flooded Walcheren, where German garrisons also are barring the water approach to Antwerp.

To the east in Holland, British forces battered another 1,000 yards southeast of Overloon against fierce resistance, striking within 2,500 yards of the Nazi stronghold at Venray toward the German frontier. A front dispatch reported signs of a German pullback all along the narrow front before Venray.

Aachen remained the focal point of the heaviest Western front battles. But even as the Germans threw in new strength there. Allied planes tumbled 4,000,000 war news leaflets on six cities along an 80-mile long sector near the Rhine, telling the civilians of the progress of the war closing in upon them.

Leaflets Scattered over Duren

The leaflets were scattered over Duren, 16 miles east of Aachen, and on Euskirchen, Schleiden, Prum, Bitburg, and Trier, the latter 80 miles below Aachen.

Berlin radio also hinted of great impending battles, declaring U. S. reinforcements for the Western front now are arriving "in a matter of days direct from America."

Farther south, in France, the French First army fighting north of Belfort deepened its bridgehead across the Moselette river, captured two villages, cleaned up the forest of Gehan north of Le Thillot, and won heights for artillery emplacements commanding Nazi positions. Cornimont, 11 miles southeast or Remiremont, was captured.

The Germans apparently were pouring troops into Holland in attempts to hold the estuary islands before Antwerp.

A German radio commentator, underscoring the importance of Antwerp, declared the Allies had met the same problems of extended supply lines that confronted the Germans in France.

"Now the boot is on the other foot," he said, terming the current Western front battles delaying actions by the Germans. "We need the sixth Winter of war in order to carry it next year into French territory."

At last report the fighting still was under way, and there were strong indications that the battle along the approaches to the Orient was building up to a tremendous peak.

Fleet Engagement Sought

The Japanese have announced that their fleet is in action. Although there was no indication here that this was so, an engagement with the Japanese fleet long has been sought by Admiral William F. Halsey.

The Japanese communique, recorded by the Federal Communications commission, said:

"The enemy task force in the waters east of Taiwan (Formosa) is fleeing eastward, with our units in full pursuit and subjecting it to heavy fire since October 14, increasing the battle results."

Lists Sinkings Claimed

"Confirmed results up until the present are as follows:

"Instantly sunk: Seven aircraft carriers and one destroyer, including the previously announced three unidentified craft which have been confirmed as three aircraft carriers.

"Damaged: Two aircraft carriers, one battleship, one cruiser and 11 unidentified craft.

"Carrier planes first hit Formosa Wednesday. The task forces fought off small groups of enemy aircraft that night, and again bombed and strafed island installations and shipping Thursday."

Whatever the extent, the going apparently was not unfavorable for the American forces, despite the fact that the Japanese were making their strongest defense since their defeat in the battle of the Philippine Sea June 18 and 19.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of Pacific Ocean areas, announced the continuing raid in a 10 A. M. communique today.

Plane Losses Light

He said "our plane losses so far have been light."

There was no comment on Japanese claims to have sunk or damaged more than 50 American ships.

Planes of the Japanese Imperial air force counterattacked the task forces off Formosa strongly throughout Thursday night, Nimitz said.

His use of the phrase "Imperial air force" indicated that army as well as navy planes might have participated in the counterattack, but gave no indication whether the Japanese actually sent carrier-based planes into the battle.

Shoot Down 20 In Night

During the Thursday night attacks, American carrier planes shot down 13 Japanese planes and anti-aircraft on the task force vessels destroyed seven more.

At dawn Friday carrier aircraft of the Third Fleet, feeling sure enough of themselves to divide their forces, struck both at Formosa and Luzon.

They encountered little air opposition over the target. Preliminary reports were that they shot down 11 Japanese planes and destroyed 30 on the ground.

No Report On Damage

There were no reports on the damage to enemy installations. In the two previous Formosa raids, 396 enemy planes were destroyed and 63 ships sunk or damaged, at a cost of 45 American planes. In a raid upon Luzon Tuesday, 10 to 15 Japanese planes were destroyed on the ground.

Friday afternoon "numerous" single and twin-engine Japanese planes attacked the task forces. One American combat air patrol shot down 28 planes, and ships' guns destroyed two more.

Other task force units also were attacked and many additional planes were known to have been shot down.

Nimitz said further details would be released as they became available.

Lists Fleet Commanders

Admiral Nimitz disclosed the names of officers commanding Third Fleet units off Formosa in a press release issued simultaneously today with a communique reporting air strikes from the Kuriles to the Marshalls.

Vice-Admiral W. A. Lee, Jr., is second in command to Admiral William F. Halsey, the announcement said. Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher is in command of the entire fast carrier task force.

Carrier units are commanded by Vice-Admiral J. S. McCain, Rear Admiral Frederick C. Sherman, Rear Admiral R. E. Davison, Rear Admiral G. F. Bogan and Rear Admiral H. B. Sallada.

Small Vessels Damaged

Today's second communique gave no further details of the fleet's operations against Formosa and Luzon. It reported widespread attacks against enemy shipping in which 20 small vessels and five barges were damaged.

Navy search planes bombed and strafed three small coastal vessels and five barges near Iwo Jima.

Liberators attacked nine small cargo vessels near Matsuwa Island in the Kuriles, and Mitchells bombed Paramushiro and Shimushu. They also strafed a 2,000-ton cargo ship and seven small cargo ships in Suribachi Bay, Paramushiro.

Fleet Commanders Listed

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 15 (AP)—Admiral Nimitz disclosed the names of officers commanding Third Fleet units off Formosa:

Vice Admiral W. A. Lee Jr. is second in command to Admiral William F. Halsey, the announcement said. Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher is in command of the entire fast carrier task force.

Carrier units are commanded by Vice-Admiral J. S. McCain, Rear Admiral Frederick C. Sherman, Rear Admiral R. E. Davison, Rear Admiral G. F. Bogan and Rear Admiral H. B. Sallada.

Foe's Bitter Defense In Aachen Described

By WILLIAM C. SMITH-WHITE

With An American Infantry Company in Aachen, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Germans are fighting here in Aachen with hopeless savagery, and this infantry company is moving forward literally only ten feet at a time in an attack which in more than two hours has carried us only two blocks through one ravaged street.

The resistance, in two cases out of three, is that of a single Nazi soldier hiding in a cellar or attic of some house that still stands. The fierce pattern is always the same. The German lets go with a few rounds from a burp gun. Then our heavy machine guns, emplaced behind walls of debris on either side of the street, tear into the enemy hideout, and an American squad creeps up to it.

How The Action Goes

One infantryman fires in with his rifle, another throws two or three grenades. Then there is no more German there.

The commander of this outfit, Capt. Wilbert H. Fuller, of Ludlow, Vt., grins and shouts to his men, "Good! that't it. When we can't see 'em we'll scare 'em to death."

The troops wave and smile and plod on into another similar action.

This is one of those operations which, in the headquarters sense is "light." That is, few Germans are involved. But it is a hard and terribly nasty action, and it makes one wonder if this is to be the way the enemy is going to act in every other German city.

Captain Fuller and I are in front of a ruined bar about half a block behind the forward details which are stalking slowly down the street. In the bar behind us the company telephone operator sits with his earphones attached and plays some mournful improvisation on his harmonica.

Just behind us two Germans have been dug out from a basement. They emerged with their hands clasped behind their heads. Up ahead a Jerry sniper lets go and a bullet clips a broken cable which had been hanging above the door of this bar.

Fuller grins and says, "That's all right; we'll get him."

It is raining, slowly and miserably, but there is more humor here than you could find in many considerably quieter places.

Fuller chuckles and says, "Hear that mortar fire over there? Those are Jerry mortar shells being fired from our mortars. Damn good shells, too."

Yanks Smash Big German Attack Trying to Relieve Doomed Aachen

By DON WHITEHEAD

AACHEN, Oct. 15—(AP) American troops and guns smashed the greatest German attack of the battle of Aachen today, turning back strong forces of infantry and armor that for a time overran U. S. positions in touch-and-go conflict.

The Nazi attempt to relieve the Aachen garrison sprang from south of Weiden, five miles northeast of the besieged city, but broke under the barrage of massed artillery and anti-tank guns.

Planes Drop Supplies

In Aachen city—where German defenders were supplied overnight by parachutes from transport planes—Doughboys worked ahead slowly digging Nazis from pillboxes and houses.

(A radio correspondent at the front said Americans had won control of about "50 square blocks" in the industrial city).

For days the enemy has been massing reserves east of Aachen, with American artillery and planes taking heavy toll of men and materiel. Today the big blow fell shortly after noon.

The German tanks broke into American defenses but anti-tank guns and a thundering artillery barrage raked the Nazis and forced the armor to pull back.

American artillery hurled huge volleys from more than 100 big guns to smash the assault which was the largest made by the Nazis since the battle for Aachen began.

The Germans moved up large reserves under the protective fire of the largest concentration of anti-aircraft guns fliers said they had encountered in the area.

Inside Aachen itself, Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' Doughboys made slow but steady progress from street to street against the German defenders who received supplies at 3:30 a. m. by parachute from six transports which circled the city.

"We'll close in on them gradually and then let 'em rot in their own juice," one officer said.

Attack Was Anticipated

This attack had been anticipated for two days as observers saw men, guns and tanks being concentrated east of Aachen. Dive-bombers and artillery have pounded the area continuously and not until today was the enemy able to mount a counterattack in any force.

"This sector of the front has been extremely sensitive for days," an officer said. "Our men have not been able to move 50 feet during one day without drawing heavy fire and if they moved more than 50 yards at night things began to pop."

The sun shone through broken clouds during the morning but in the afternoon rain clouds closed in and a cold drizzle set in.

But before the weather closed in divebombers had raced in and attacked enemy forces trying desperately to relieve the besieged city.

The Americans continued to take prisoners from the Aachen garrison which has been ordered to fight to the death to hold the first major city to be attacked by the Allies on German soil. The fact that supplies were dropped by air to the garrison this morning indicates the defenders already are having supply troubles since the city is virtually encircled.

Young Prisoners Taken

Two of the prisoners were 14 and 16 years old respectively, both Hitler youth members. They said they came to Aachen 10 days ago to collect some of the possessions left in the city by a family which had been evacuated.

When they reached the city, they related, German soldiers took them to the commander who accused them of coming to the town to pillage.

"Since you are not able to leave Aachen all that is left for you to do is to get into a uniform," they quoted the commander as saying.

The youths said they agreed and were outfitted with uniforms and given rifles which they learned to use as members of the Hitler youth movement.

Another prisoner reported all patients had been removed from the city hospital. The prisoner said he had worked for two days and nights carrying small-arms ammunition into bunkers inside the city. These bunkers, he said, have slots for machine-gun emplacements and form the principal defense system, together with air-raid shelters and buildings located at strategic intersections.

Since the attack began 13 days ago in the Aachen area the army has taken 9,000 prisoners, or the equivalent of a full-sized German division. Since D-day the First Army prisoner total now stands at 194,374.

6,500 PLANES BATTER REICH

RAF Breaks Sorpe Dam As Yanks Hammer Cologne

London, Monday, Oct. 16 (AP)—More than 6,500 Allied planes, including 4,000 heavy bombers, gave Germany a violent hammering Sunday that left her main supply bases back of the Siegfried Line battered and smoking.

Six-ton earthquake bombs dropped by RAF Lancasters scored direct hits on the already dry Sorpe dam, 20 miles southeast of Dortmund.

Coastal observers reported early today that two large forces of RAF bombers over eastern England appeared to be headed for another attack on Germany.

Reports Dam Breached

As Duisburg and Cologne were left in flames by attacks over more than 36 hours, hand-picked British and Canadian flyers successfully breached the Sorpe dam Sunday morning, according to Flight Lieutenant G. Cantell, of Winnipeg, Canada, who was in the first wave of planes blasting the dam.

The Sorpe structure was hit before—in the great raid in May, 1943, when RAF pilots ripped open the Mohne and Eder dams, flooding Ruhr Valley towns.

The Air Ministry said none of the Lancasters or escorting Mustangs was lost in the new attack. Canadian flyers reported the Germans sent up only light flak against the high-level attack on the dam.

The Dortmund waterway was breached in several places two weeks ago and vessels were left high and dry.

2,500 Pound Duisberg

More than 2,500 RAF planes smashed at Duisburg, 35 miles east of Nijmegen, with more than 10,000 tons of bombs over the week end. Twenty RAF planes failed to return.

Cologne, another supply center for West Wall armies, was ripped Sunday by more than 2,000 American heavy bombers escorted by 1,600 fighters. The United States heavies dropped an estimated 6,500 tons in Cologne's railway yards.

Thirty-seven bombers and 12 fighters are missing from the American operations over Cologne and the Duisburg area.

Leave Fires In Berlin

Meanwhile Mosquitos and other medium bombers raced on to Berlin, Hamburg and Brunswick leaving fires and wreckage in their wake.

United States Eighth Air Force Liberators and Fortresses delivered knockout punches to oil near Dusseldorf and communications centers at Saarbrucken Kaiserslautern.

RAF Mitchells and Bostons attacked an important railway bridge at Deventer in Holland this morning. Several crews saw their bombs straddle on the bridge.

The fighter-bombers attacked Aachen and vicinity in support of ground troops. Other Allied planes dropped millions of leaflets on cities along the Rhine, telling the Germans of the war closing in on them.

175th Raid On Berlin

The attack on Berlin during the night was the 175th time in this war that the German capital has been bombed by Allied planes.

Mosquitos of the RAF scored direct hits on a river bridge at Zutphen northeast of Arnhem in Holland and strafed 50 barges near Dordrecht, below Rotterdam.

The Air Ministry announced reconnaissance had revealed that the Kiel Canal in northwest Germany again had been closed in an attack ten days ago. The canal was first closed a month before D-day but had been reopened since.

Rommel Death From Wounds Officially Reported In Reich

London, Oct. 15 (AP)—The death of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, who as commander of the German Afrika Korps drove the British to the gates of Alexandria before the tide of battle turned at El Alamein in October, 1942, was announced tonight by DNB, the official German news agency.

The Berlin broadcast said Rommel had "died of his wounds," but did not say how he was wounded or when he was wounded or when he died. DNB said Hitler had ordered a state funeral for the German field commander.

Automobile Strafed

Allied field dispatches first reported rumors that he was dead on July 29 and the next day dispatches quoted Nazi prisoners and French civilians as saying he died of wounds suffered when his car was strafed.

German news and propaganda agencies denied reports of his death at the time, but admitted he had suffered a brain concussion and other injuries in an automobile accident caused by Allied strafing planes on the Normandy battle front July 17.

Rommel became known as the "Desert Fox" during the African campaigns and his Afrika Korps in the summer of 1942 threatened to cut its way to the Suez Canal.

The British under then General Sir Bernard L. Montgomery stalled the German offensive on the approaches to Alexandria, and later mounted a counteroffensive which ended in the destruction of Rommel's forces in Tunisia.

Rommel was ground commander in Normandy at the time of the Allied invasion, and it was he who plotted the futile German plans to block the Allies at the Atlantic Wall.

The DNB broadcast described Rommel as one of Germany's "most successful army leaders whose name will be linked forever with the heroic battle of our Afrika Korps" and said he was a "man deeply convinced of National Socialism."

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Allied supreme commander, considered Rommel a "great general" but "not a superman."

Quarreled With Von Rundstedt

Rommel and Field Marshal General Karl von Rundstedt, over-all German commander in the west, were reported to have quarreled over tactics in combatting the Allied invasion, and on July 6 the Berlin radio announced that von Rundstedt had been removed as commander in chief in the zone, and replaced by Field Marshal General Guenther von Kluge, who had led the German drive to the gates of Moscow.

This was considered a victory for Rommel.

The "Desert Fox," born at Heidenheim in Wurttemberg in November, 1891, became, at 50, the youngest holder of the rank of field marshal in the German army. His promotion from colonel general—he also was the youngest man to attain that rank—was announced in the summer of 1942 during his successful campaign in Africa.

Considered Hitler Favorite

During the first World War Rommel was assigned to an Alpine battalion and won distinction during campaigns in the Vosges Mountains.

He joined the Hitler movement early and became well-acquainted with Hitler and was considered a great favorite of the Fuehrer.

During the invasion of Poland in 1939, Rommel took part in the kill. He commanded a tank corps that swept through Belgium and France in 1940. In 1941 when the Italians got into trouble in Africa Rommel was sent to save them.

Germans Shift French Captives

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Algiers radio, quoting advices from Berne, Switzerland, said today that Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler had ordered all French war prisoners and workers transferred from border areas to the interior of Germany.

2 Ready-Made Ports Towed to France by Allies

Artificial Harbors Set Up on Normandy Beaches Supplied the Invasion

LONDON, Oct. 16 (Monday) (AP).—Two artificial harbors, built in secret and towed across the Channel behind the assault forces for installation on the Normandy beaches, supplied the invasion armies and "made possible the liberation of western Europe," Allied supreme headquarters disclosed today.

The worst Channel storm in forty years wrecked one before it was completed, but not before the harbor had contributed heavily to the stream of men and equipment pouring into France. The other was finished as planned—a port as big as Dover, complete with docks, piers and breakwaters, capable of unloading at least 12,000 tons of stores and 2,500 vehicles daily.

The ports were built in three sections—blockships, caissons (seawalls) and breakwaters.

To provide immediate protection for the smaller ships, sixty old ships were sunk, forming five small breakwaters along the French coast. Several British and Dutch warships were sent to the bottom with the old flotilla. That provided 24,000 feet of breakwater.

Planning the gigantic construction task began June 1943 when American and British operations officers decided that French ports falling into Allied hands during the invasion could not possibly have the capacity for the quantity of stores necessary.

"In order to accommodate the necessary shipping and port equipment the size of each harbor had to be roughly the same size as Dover," the announcement said. One harbor was earmarked for the Americans and the other for the British.

A decision to go ahead was made at the Quebec conference of the combined chiefs of staff and involved:

1. Building 150 concrete caissons (harbor walls) of six different sizes to suit various depths of water up to five and a half fathoms (thirty-three feet). The largest caisson displaced 6,044 tons and the smallest 1,672.

2. Prefabrication of seven miles of pier equipment and its assembly into towing pieces 480 feet long.

3. Constructing outer breakwaters made from steel floats weighing 15,000 tons.

4. Preparation of the blockships so that they could be sunk easily and rapidly on an even keel.

Thousands Employed

Building of the caissons alone employed 20,000 British laborers, and thousands more were engaged on other structures.

Although many undoubtedly guessed what their work was leading to, "so far as is known there was no case of leakage of vital information," the announcement said.

In addition to the construction, plans had to be made for:

1. Towing the caissons, floating the breakwater and pier equipment from as far distant as Leith and Glasgow with 85 tugs necessitating 500 tons in the face of enemy action.

2. Servicing and general preparations of the tug fleet.

3. Forming and training staffs and personnel of the U. S. Navy, the Royal navy and engineers.

Embargoed upon after the assault troops hit the beach the old block ships arrived, and in spite of their age, all made the crossing.

They were sunk by explosive charges and within five days troops and equipment ashore were provided very valuable shelter during this critical period.

Meanwhile the breakwaters, caissons and piers were being towed across at an average speed of four knots through choppy water. Luckily few tugs were lost to enemy action.

Heavy Moorings Laid

By D Day plus 8 heavy moorings had been laid in deep water, and the floating breakwaters were attached to them as they arrived.

Port parties of American Seabees, British engineers and British marines cleared mines, cut ramps and prepared roadways down to the beaches to receive the shore end of the piers.

Everything went according to plan for twelve days and then a gale, tearing in from an exposed direction, almost ruined the American harbor. Steel and concrete breakwaters weighing thousands of tons were tossed onto the beach. The British port did not suffer so badly, however, and was soon completed.

"The shelters provided by both harbors and three additional blockship shelters which stood up well in the gale undoubtedly saved great loss of life and equipment," the announcement said. "Unloading on the beaches elsewhere was quite impossible. . . . Even on the worst day 800 tons of gasoline and ammunition, as well as many troops, were landed over the piers."

Construction of the American harbor was the responsibility of the Seabees, while the British Navy and Army took charge of the other. It was a British responsibility to deliver the equipment.

It was no easy matter to produce a pier hundreds of feet long on a flat beach with a rise and fall of tide more than twenty feet.

On this perplexing problem Prime Minister Churchill sent to operations chiefs a note which is typical of the whole stupendous task: "Piers must float up and down with the tide. . . . Let me have the best solution. Don't argue the matter. The difficulties will argue for themselves."

Seven Killed By Robots In South England Town

London, Oct. 15 (AP)—A flying bomb killed seven people and injured others last night in a community in southern England.

Many were trapped in their homes when the explosion wrecked a number of houses but were freed after several hours by rescue squads.

Night fighters and anti-aircraft batteries teamed up to knock several of the missiles out of the air as the bombs were launched against southern and eastern England from plane carriers. There were warnings in the London area for the fourth night in a row.

King Peter's Premier Off to Confer With Tito

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP).—Dr. Ivan Subashitch, Premier in King Peter's Yugoslav government, anticipating the imminent liberation of Belgrade by Yugoslav Partisans and the Russian Army, has left London to confer with Marshal Josip Broz (Tito), it was announced today.

Subashitch, accompanied by General Vladimir Velebit, head of Tito's military mission at Moscow, is expected to arrange for the return of the exiled government to the Yugoslav capital.

EUROPEAN AIR CHIEF SHIFTED

Marshal Leigh-Mallory Is Sent To Asian Command

London, Oct. 15 (AP)—Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory, commander in chief of the Allied Expeditionary Air Force under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, has been named Allied air commander in chief in southeast Asia, the Air Ministry and supreme headquarters announced tonight.

The announcement said Marshal Leigh-Mallory had been relieved of his present command, effective today, and would take his place in the southeast Asia command in the near future.

Air operations in western Europe will now come under General Eisenhower's deputy over-all commander, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder.

DUTCH BACK BRITISH RADIO

Deny BBC Misled Patriots About Allies' Entry Into Homeland

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Netherlands Government today described as incorrect implications of criticism of the British Broadcasting Corporation by Prince Bernhard.

A formal statement by the Government Information Bureau said that assertions by Prince Bernhard Sept. 10 in an interview with war correspondents in the Netherlands that the BBC had been responsible for the death of Dutch patriots by broadcasting premature reports that Allied troops had entered the Netherlands could be attributed only to a misunderstanding.

A Netherlands Government broadcast over Radio Orange on the evening of Sept. 4 reported the crossing of the Netherlands frontier by Allied troops.

BBC subsequently quoted from this Radio Orange broadcast.

Two Generals Named As Collaborationists

Paris, Oct. 15 (AP)—The pre-war generals were named today as alleged collaborationists as French authorities continued their unflagging search for pro-Nazi leaders of the occupation.

Orders were issued for the arrest of Air General Henri Jauneaud, former member of the staff of Pierre Cot, Minister for Air in a pre-war cabinet. Jauneaud was named as founder of the collaborationist publication, Revue du Monde.

Air General Armand Pinsard, meanwhile, was questioned by police regarding his connections with a pro-Nazi militia group.

Finns Battle At Kemi River

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 15 (AP).—Finnish troops, advancing on Kemijarvi from Rautua in the central sector of the northern Lapland front, reached the Kemi River after fighting and are engaging G roops defending the Kemi line at Pernujoki, the Finns announced today. The Kemi River is about twenty-five miles south of Kemijarvi.

70,000 Nazis In North Norway

Stockholm, Oct. 15 (AP)—Seventy thousand German troops and more than that number of prisoners of war still are stationed in the northern Norwegian provinces of Tromso and Finmark, travelers from that region who arrived here recently reported.

SWEDEN HALTS EXPORT OF BEARINGS TO REICH

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 15.—(AP) The Swedish foreign office announced officially tonight that all export of Swedish ballbearings to Germany had ceased.

Taking cognizance of American press reports to the effect that ballbearing traffic had been stopped, the foreign office said in its brief statement, "no such export is now being carried on."

SOVIET FORCES TAKE PETSAMO

Red Troops Also In Belgrade, Tanks Clash In Hungary

London, Oct. 15 (AP)—A Bulgarian armistice delegation has arrived in Moscow to negotiate final terms with Russia, Britain and the United States, the Moscow radio said tonight. Moscow announced last week that Bulgaria had accepted the Allies' preliminary conditions, which included Bulgarian retirement from territories seized from Yugoslavia and Greece.

London, Monday, Oct. 16 (AP)—Russian troops captured the Arctic port of Petsamo yesterday, fought their way deeper inside the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade, and on the plains of capitulating Hungary battled against hundreds of German tanks on the invasion route to Austria, 150 miles beyond.

Moscow was silent on Budapest's announcement that Hungary had asked the Allies for an armistice. Soviet communiques for days have not mentioned the Hungarian sector—the usual procedure during negotiations.

Reported In Center Of City

Nor did the Russian bulletin mention the battle for Belgrade.

Berlin said Soviet troops and Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans had fought their way into the center of the city.

A late Moscow broadcast also said that the puppet Government under Field Marshal Milan Nedic had fled along with the German regime.

Berlin implied that other Soviet troops had crossed into German East Prussia on a 27-mile front in Memel territory, but Moscow did not announce any operations in that sector aside from heavy air raids Saturday night on Memel, Tilsit and the Latvian port of Liepaja. Ships, docks, troop concentrations, and communication arteries were battered, the bulletin said.

Cuts Off Sea Route

The Russian seizure of Petsamo cut the German sea escape route from northern Finland and put the Red army within 30 miles east of Kirkenes, another Nazi Arctic base in Norway.

Fourteen other localities were captured north and south of Petsamo. A supplementary Moscow communique said the Russians mauled the 20th German Lapland Division severely near the mouth of the Petsamo inlet and annihilated a battalion of 800 men. On the road to Petsamo they routed the Second German Mountain Infantry Division.

An order of the day by Premier Stalin announced the amphibious capture of Petsamo, rich nickel mine center ceded by Finland to Russia in the recent armistice. Stalin described Petsamo as an "important naval base and a powerful German stronghold in the extreme north."

Say 170,000 Took Part

Gen. K. I. Meretskov, comm of the Soviet Karelian Army, Admiral A. A. Golovko of the Fa Northern Red Fleet directed the assault on the port, an operation which Berlin declared was launched with 170,000 troops, and with the ultimate aim of slicing down into Nazi-held Norway from the north.

Petsamo was ceded to Russia by Finland under the recent armistice terms, but the Germans had refused to give it up and also are fighting the Finns in north-central Finland opposite the Swedish border along the Kemi river, 250 miles to the south.

West of Riga the Russians advanced three miles beyond the city, capturing eight localities, including Preidaine.

Yugoslav Junction Taken

In Yugoslavia the Russians announced the fall of Poza Revac, an eight-way communications point 36 miles southeast of Belgrade, and also Krusevac, 95 miles southeast of the capital.

The tank battle on the Hungarian plains was one of the heaviest of the war, Moscow dispatches said. The Germans said the Russians were sending in fresh reserves, and the Soviet communique announced that 143 German tanks had been knocked out Saturday and 61 enemy planes shot down. This made a nine-day total of 1,294 German tanks and 393 planes destroyed on the basis of Moscow bulletins, probably most of them in Hungary.

The tank battles with German and Hungarian forces raged between Szolnok, 50 miles southeast of Budapest, and Debrecen, 115 miles east of the capital. The Russian lines around Szolnok, on the Tisza river, were only 150 miles from Austria, "back door" to Germany along the Danube Valley.

Trap Threatens Germans

German troops retreating in Transylvania, east of the present fight, and also those battling Russian and Czechoslovak forces along the Polish frontier in the north, were threatened with entrapment in a 12,000-square-mile salient.

A Cairo radio report said that Czechoslovak troops fighting alongside the Red army had advanced ten miles into their homeland, capturing several communities, but there was no Moscow confirmation.

In Transylvania, the Russians and Romanians rolled through 50 more localities, including Dej, rail junction 26 miles north of Cluj.

The Red army clearly was on the ever of another string of momentous victories, battling along history's longest land front stretching 2,000 miles from the Arctic almost to the Mediterranean. British troops rolling northward through Greece from liberated Athens completed the sea-to-sea front.

Violent tank battles with German and Hungarian forces still raged on the Hungarian plains between Szolnok, 50 miles southeast of capitulating Budapest, and Debrecen, 115 miles east of the Hungarian capital.

STALIN, CHURCHILL DISCUSS MILITARY MATTERS AT TALKS

MOSCOW, Oct. 15 — (AP) The Moscow conference turned in the direction of solid military matters today as the Polish question neared its final phase in an atmosphere of hopefulness.

Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin met with Maj. Gen. J. Russell Deane, chief of the United States military mission to the Soviet Union, Lt. Gen. Brocas Burrows, chief of the British military mission, Field Marshal Gen. Sir Alan Ismay, the Prime minister's chief of staff, in an hours-long conference.

Marshal Stalin represented the Red army at the military talks, which it is understood were broad overall discussions on how to bring the war in Europe to a speedy close.

A responsible source indicated that the Allied military representatives informed Stalin on the up-to-the-minute plans of the Americans and British on the Western front.

It also is not improbable that the Allied military delegates asked the wily Marshal — recognized as a great military strategist—for some advice.

While Stalin and Churchill were engaged in military talks, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr met with Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the Polish London government at the British embassy here.

After the conference Mikolajczyk and his group prepared to meet members of the Soviet sponsored Polish National Committee of Liberation.

Polish Outlook Better

It was learned from a good source that the British and the London Poles have more or less rounded out their talks and that Mikolajczyk has definite proposals in mind which he may make at any time now.

The Polish Premier at a press conference today gave the impression that the situation was better.

Members of the National Committee, on the other hand, were optimistic in their viewpoint of the eventual outcome of the controversy between the two groups and a well informed foreign source said the outlook for solving the Polish problems was definitely hopeful.

The feeling prevailed in all quarters that the discussions were nearing an end, with developments expected [illegible]

Churchill Works Hard On Mission to Moscow

Fine Red Chef, Bullet-Proof Car at His Disposal

MOSCOW, Oct. 15 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill, his health probably more robust than at any other time this year, is putting in some hard licks of work on his mission to Moscow.

When he is not in conference with Premier Josef V. Stalin his time is occupied with reading diplomatic dispatches from London and with reports from all parts of the world which pour into his quarters here. The flow of international and empire matters requiring his attention never ceases.

An American limousine with bullet-proof glass has been put at Churchill's disposal by the government. One of the city's best chefs is demonstrating his virtuosity with Russian and English dishes at the Soviet guest house where Churchill is staying.

Head Of Peasant Party Resigns Polish Post

Moscow, Oct. 15 (AP)—Andrei V. Witos, head of the peasant party in liberated Poland and in charge of its land reform program, has resigned as vice-chairman of Polish National Committee because of failing health, it was announced today.

President Edward B. Osubka-Morawski of the Polish National Committee has assumed responsibility for the land reform measures, it was disclosed after a council meeting.

Pollpress, news agency for the council, asserted that the delay in preparations for land reform measures, which had been scheduled to take place in liberated Poland October 10, was due to sabotage by "Pilsudkists" who the agency says "bored their way" into local land councils.

PRAVDA HITS AT DEWEY

MOSCOW, Oct. 15—(AP) The international review column in Pravda, official Communist party organ, asserted today that Thomas E. Dewey, Republican nominee for President of the United States, has made statements which have encouraged American "Polish reactionary groups." The column declared these groups have become "more insolent" as the U. S. elections approach.

Clark Praises Departing Wacs

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Oct. 15 (AP)—The work of WACS departing for home was praised by Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark today as he bade them goodbye. Pfc. Lucy Ambers of 285 Schnectady Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Pfc. Katherine E. Voland of 4916 Northeast 23rd Street, Portland, Ore., are returning on rotation after 15 months overseas.

GERMANS STILL HOLD IN ITALY

8th And 5th Armies Make Only Small Gains In Drive On Po

Rome, Oct. 15 (AP)—Canadian troops of the Eighth Army chopped out additional gains today against strong German resistance in the fighting along the principal highway between Bologna and Rimini fronting Italy's valley of the Po.

Allied headquarters reports placed the Canadians at a point south of the small village of Bulgaria between three and four miles from Cesena, an important town along the ancient highway—the Via Emilia, 17 miles northwest of the Adriatic port of Rimini.

British Find Army Tough

British troops south of the highway found rough going in the mountainous area, but reached the road junction of Carpineta on a ridge west of Montiano after an advance of 1,000 yards, then pushed ahead. About 70 prisoners were taken.

On the Fifth Army front American troops advanced across the highway between Castel Del Rio and Castel San Pietro east of Monterenzio, while to the west other American forces remained heavily engaged in the Livergnano area on Highway 65, about ten miles south of Bologna. Castel San Pietro is 14 miles from Bologna on the Rimini-Bologna highway.

Mount Stanco Retaken

Farther west Mount Stanco was recaptured by South African troops after several days of fighting and they pushed on toward Grizzana, a town on a lateral road 21 miles southwest of Bologna.

More Germans were nabbed in this area, hiking the prisoner total for the Fifth Army since September 13 to 7,800.

Reconnaissance disclosed additional German reinforcements in the vicinity of Vergato, about four miles northwest of Grizzana on Highway 64, another main route to Bologna.

The Germans clung firmly to their line between the Adriatic Sea and the Bologna-Rimini railway, but to the southwest the Eighth Army appeared to be moving its forces gradually out of the hills and mountains. The Canadians, in their advance up the Rimini-Bologna highway, were in close contact with Nazi forces resisting all the way.

More Peaks And Crags In Way

Several more dominating features in the wilderness of peaks and crags six miles directly south of Cesena fell to the Eighth Army, but it appeared that much heavy fighting will take place before Allied troops begin to smash their way across the Po Valley.

Aerial support was given the Allied ground forces, with fighters and fighter bombers hitting at gun positions and road and rail traffic in the Bologna area. Coastal aircraft attacked enemy shipping in the Adriatic.

Pope Blesses Brazilians

CIVITAVECCHIA, Italy, Oct. 15 (AP).—Pope Pius XII, greeting a group of doctors and nurses of the Brazilian Air Force on Oct. 12 at his daily general reception, gave his blessing to all the people of Brazil, it was made known today.

Pope Regrets World Ignored Peace Plea

Vatican City, Oct. 15 (AP)—Pope Pius XII, in a broadcast today to the Eucharistic Congress being held in Buenos Aires, expressed regret that the world had not heeded his message of peace delivered at the similar congres held in Buenos Aires ten years ago.

In 1934, the Pope, who then was Cardinal Eugenio Pacelli, presided at the congress as the legate of Pope Pius XI and then urged humanity to turn to Chirst "that He may have the direction of nations."

Exile Returns To Italy

Rome, Oct. 15 (AP)—Ignazio Silone, Italian politician and author of the anti-Fascist novels "Bread and Wine" and "Fontamara," has arrived in Rome from Switzerland, where he lived in exile after the fall of France. Emanuele Modigliani, one of the leaders of the Italian Socialist party, has returned also from exile in Switzerland.

FLEEING NAZIS HIT AT LARISSA

Germans Still In Greece Are 135 Miles North Of Athens

Rome, Oct. 15 (AP)—German troops were reported fleeing northward from Greece today as Allied mine sweepers began freeing the Aegean for naval operations and RAF warplanes and United States transports began using at least one airport in Athens, liberated capital of the Hellenic nation.

The comparatively few Nazis remaining in Greece were heading for Yugoslavia as fast as limited transport facilities and Allied aerial attack permitted.

Close on their heels came British seaborne units, Greek patriots who buried their factional differences and joined in the immediate job of ousting the Germans, and finally the first shipments of food and medical supplies promised by the Allies to alleviate the suffering of three years under the Nazis.

Fleeing Enemy Attacked

The only indication of the whereabouts of the fleeing Nazis was an air force announcement that British Mustangs had shot up enemy transport, troops and locomotives in the vicinity of Larissa, 135 airline miles northwest of Athens and an important junction of rail and highway routes.

The main concern of the Nazis was to run the gantlet of Marshal Tito's Partisans and the Red army in Yugoslavia to the north. It is 500 airline miles from Greece's northern border to the German frontier and nearly every feasible land route already is cut.

Athens and its port of Piraeus were occupied yesterday by seaborne units after the Germans fled. Once the breakup of the last German hold on Greece began, developments came too fast even for the planning and execution of Allied follow-up operations.

Paratroops Were Late

A British paratrooper formation jumped at noon yesterday in a 30-mile gale for the purpose of securing the Megara airfield, 28 miles west of Athens. Instead of being greeted by bullets from Nazis, the paratroopers were met by jubilant Greek civilians, British soldiers and war correspondents.

A column of British troops operating as "land forces of the Adriatic" had taken both the town and airport of Megara the preceding Sunday night. RAF planes already were using the airport.

The parachutists landed among American-made bulldozers brought in by gliders and busy restoring runways damaged by the Nazis.

Beyond the bare announcement last night that Athens and its port were freed, Allied headquarters gave no report on the situation in the capital.

Tons Of Food Arrive

Alongside the scores of American C-47's which already have hauled many tons of food and supplies for Athenians were the shattered hulks of German Ju-52's, intended for use of Nazi personnel but caught by the Allies on Athens airfields.

Planes of the United States 51st Troop Carrier Wing shuttled back and forth landing the supplies. They were under the command of Col. Timothy J. Manning, Omaha, Neb., and the crews reported no opposition as they carried out the operations.

Paratroops Land At Megara In 30-Mile Gale; Two Killed

BY SIDNEY A. FEDER

Megara, Greece, Oct. 14 (AP.—Delayed)—Completing a three-day operation, an American troop carrying outfit landed the last of a powerful force of British paratroopers here today for the final drive to Athens.

Despite rain and high wind the troop-carrying group which participated in the landings in North Africa, Sicily, Italy and southern France succesfully landed troops and huge stocks of supplies.

The first day of the operations, last Thursday, turned out to be one of the wildest parachute jumps on records. The troopers leaped into the teeth of a 30-mile gale with the result a number of them were injured and two killed.

Natives Rush To Their Aid

As the troopers with their varicolored chutes hit the ground the wind dragged them along. Thousands of cheering natives, however, sandied to their aid and helped collapse the chutes.

Directing the operations were Lieut. Col. Lelande Coulter, Ann Arbor, Mich; Lieut. Col. Charles A. Gibson, North Sacramento, Cal., and Lieut. Col. Louis Salomon, New York city.

The three officers were flown in by Capt. Robert Lane, San Diego, Cal., and were the first Americans to land close to the Greek capital, only 22 miles east of here.

Negro Flyer There First

The only American to beat them in was Lieut. Andrew D. Marshall, Negro flyer from Bristol, Va., who had to crash-land his P-41 seven days ago while on a strafing mission. Natives hid him in the hills and yesterday he was brought here by a parade of several hundred peasants. Marshall was astride a horse with the natives crowding around him as they marched down the road.

The last German garrison pulled out of this water-front town last Sunday and several hours later a small force of British troops arrived. Members of the Greek Popular Liberation army had everything under control.

For three days the sound of heavy explosions could be heard in the direction of Athens, showing the Nazis were carrying out demolitions in the capital.

German Reprisals In Athens

One report said a German officer was killed in Athens 15 days ago and in retaliation the Germans burned 125 houses in one section of the city, machine-gunning the occupants when they tried to escape. Later the Germans bombed another district, killing over 100 persons.

From a hillside outside Megara last night I saw tremendous fires in the Athens area, and the ground shook from demolition charges.

Megara Proud Of Its Record

Megara still was horrified by the machine-gunning of 10 men on the main square here several days ago, and said that on Good Friday this spring the Germans hanged a dozen men.

The citizens of Megara are proud of their record in helping retreating British soldiers when they pulled out of Greece in 1941. Some 50 to 60 were hidden by families here, including five in the home of Kristo Roisos, where this is being written.

Roisos lived in the United States for 15 years until he returned here in 1928. He worked in Buffalo and in Columbus, and Massillon, Ohio, where he operated a saloon. He also worked in Salt Lake City, Utah. A brother, Mike, now operates a grocery store and butcher shop in Massillon.

Ten days ago five Germans attempting to take some of Roisos' sheep shot his 14-year-old son in the arm and it was necessary to amputate the arm.

Gin-Rummy During Raid

A B-29 Base in West China, Oct. 14 (AP—Delayed)—Enemy interference with a massed formation of Superfortresses which dropped bombs on Formosa today was so negligible that bomber crews played gin rummy en route home over Japanese-held territory.

Foe Driven From Burma Hills

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 15 (AP).—West African troops on the Arakan front in Burma have forced the Japanese from positions in hills between the Sangu and Kaladan Valleys, an Allied communique said today.

Delayed reports showed that American Mitchell bombers had knocked out twenty bridges in Burma in the first thirteen days of October in blows against enemy communications.

JAPS' ISLAND BASES RAIDED

MacArthur's Planes Mass Against Ceram And Boeroe

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Monday, Oct 15 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur unleashed at least 150 planes at Japanese air and naval bastions south of the Philippines while navy air power was striking Formosa Friday, headquarters announced today.

The communique disclosed that a mass attack by 150 planes swept over the islands of Ceram and Boeroe, which the Japanese are using as aerial outposts for the protection of the Philippines and the homeland, and left three important airfields cratered. Eighty tons of bombs struck the targets.

Balikpapan Raided Again

Balikpapan, the enemy's aviation gasoline and oil center on Borneo, again was struck and large fires were started. The near-by airfield of Manggar was damaged.

Another raid was aimed at Pomelaa, in Celebes, which produces nickel, and 20 tons of bombs were dropped on the nickel refinery and airdrome, leaving a heavy smoke pall.

In the mass attack on Ceram and Boeroe the important airdrome of Amahai was the chief objective, headquarters indicated, and was left cratered. Fires were started among the buildings.

Harass Coast Shipping

This raid was carried out by medium, attack and fighter bombers that harassed coastal shipping and bombed other targets of opportunity. Warehouses and oil installations were damaged.

The oil center of Boela on Ceram was bombed and its facilities smashed.

Flying over the Philippines, reconnaissance planes bombed Matina airdrome at Davao and destroyed or damaged a small steamer, a lugger and a barge south of Basilan Island.

U. S. ARMY DESERTERS FOUND IN AUSTRALIA

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 15—(AP) Deserters from United States armed forces, some of them absent without leave for as long as two years, are being found in civilian jobs posing as Australians, an American provost marshal said today.

Some of the men rounded up recently were married to Australians, said Captain Chambers, the provost marshal.

Two of those just caught actually were trading with their own countrymen without being detected. One was operating a hamburger stand, selling "genuine American hamburgers" and another conducting a house rental business and charging fellow Americans excessive rentals.

The rental agent might never have been caught had he not been reported to authorities for making excessive charges for extras, Chambers said.

Japs Report Increase Of U. S. Planes In China

San Francisco, Oct. 15 (AP)—Japanese newspapermen in China report a "great increase in the United States Air Force in that country," the Japanese Domei News Agency said today in a Tokyo broadcast heard by the Federal Communications Commission.

400 HONDURAN REBELS ARE DEFEATED IN ATTACK

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Oct. 15—(AP) A group of approximately 400 Honduran revolutionaries exiled in San Salvador was defeated in an attack on the Honduran city of San Marcos yesterday, it was announced officially here today.

The Honduras air force bombed and machine-gunned the attackers as they fled into nearby mountains, the announcement said.

(A dispatch from San Salvador, however, quoted travelers from the combat zone as reporting that the revolutionaries' attack on San Marcos was successful.)

The official account said 11 of the rebels were killed at San Marcos, while 10 were wounded seriously. The Honduran national forces garrisoned in the city lost eight men and many were wounded in the two-hour battle, it said.

'Intrepid Action' At Munda Brings Congressional Medal

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP)—A giant infantry officer who held a key hill position alone, shattering Japanese charges with carbine fire and hand grenades, although twice wounded, has been awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

The War Department said today that the "interpid action" of Capt. Robert Sheldon Scott, of Santa Fe, N. M., inspired his men to efforts which resulted in the capture of Munda airstrip, major objective in the battle for New Georgia Island.

The 31-year-old officer stands 6 feet 4 inches tall—and he found it not too easy to take cover behind a single blasted tree stump on the dome of the hill while turning back the enemy counterattacks in the engagement of July 29, 1943. Scott had deployed his riflemen and advanced alone to the top of the hill, from which most of the cover had been swept by artillery and mortar fire.

Grenades Tossed Up To Him

"Disregarding small arms fire and exploding grenades aimed at him, suffering a bullet wound in the left hand and a painful shrapnel wound in the head after his carbine had been shot from his hands, he threw grenade after grenade with devastating accuracy until the beaten enemy withdrew," the citation said.

At one point, Scott ran out of grenades and called for more. His men passed them forward to a private who tossed them up the hill to Scott.

The medal wll be presented to Scott overseas, the department announced.

Cruiser Ahead Of Time

Camden, N. J., Oct. 15 (AP)—The 13,000-ton heavy cruiser Macon slid down the ways of the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, today—21 minutes ahead of schedule when winds upset tide calculations.

Double-Purpose Mortar Disclosed By Army Man

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP)—Use of a new 60-millimeter infantry mortar which can be fired either in the conventional lobbed manner or in a rifle-like flat trajectory was disclosed by the army today.

The "one-man" mortar, weighing only 20 pounds, consists of a tube, base plate and firing mechanism. It is equipped with a trigger, making possible its use as a flat trajectory weapon. (Conventional mortars usually are fired by dropping the projectile into the muzzle, the propellant explosive detonating when the projectile seats at the bottom of the up-ended tube).

Announcement of the new weapon was made by Major Edward Crossman, of Santa Monica, Cal., speaking from Fort Benning, Georgia, on the Army Hour broadcast.

Bis[illegible] Manning Urges [illegible]e Help For China

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—Bishop William T. Manning, of New York, appealing for "adequate help" for China, today declared the country's needs "are so great they are almost beyond the imagination."

"Whatever the reason, it is the bitter truth that only a pitifully small amount of aid has been furnished to China by the United States and British Commonweath of Nations," the bishop said in an address at a Thanksgiving service on the 33d anniversary of the founding of the Chinese Republic.

Paying tribute to the "heroic, indomitable spirit" of the Chinese people, now in their eighth year of war, Bishop Manning said:

"What China now needs from us is not criticism or meddling in her internal affairs, but understanding sympathy and sorely needed material and military suplies. If we will provide these, China will do her tremendous part in the common struggle as she has already so nobly shown."

WAN[illegible] S U. S. TO BACK WORK

Bowles Says Government Has Investment Responsibility

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP)—The final responsibility for seeing to it that total investment (private, municipal, State and Federal) is sufficient to support full employment rests with the Federal Government, Chester Bowles, OPA Administrator, said today.

Bowles was one of several Government officials who outlined their views on a proposal by James G. Patton, president of the National Farmers Union, that the Government underwrite the business structure of the nation whenever anticipated investment falls below a $40,000,000,000 annual level. This objective Patton proposes to accomplish through direct Federal loans and a public-works program.

"While Federal underwriting of total investment is not the only measure required to convert our economy to full peacetime activity," Bowles said in a letter made public by Patton, "it is an essential element in a post-war program for full employment.

For Private Business

"We should, of course, do everything possible to encourage increased investment of risk capital by private business."

Bowles also held that one of the most important aspects of the program advanced by Patton, which the Senate has been asked to consider in legislative form, "is that if private business were assured that the Government stood ready, through public investment, to underwrite the huge markets that go with full production and full employment, there might be very little need for the Government actually to undertake investment above the normal amount involved in immediately essential public works."

Senator Wagner (D., N. Y.) told Patton that his proposal "seems to offer a practical, realistic basis for a program to assure full employment and production in the transition and post-war periods," and that he was giving it "careful consideration."

Calls It Meritorious

Michael W. Straus, Acting Secretary of the Interior, advised Patton that his approach to the problem . . . "has considerable merit."

Frances Perkins, Secretary of Labor, said Patton's suggestion that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation make supplementary loans up to the amount that private and governmental investment falls below $40,000,000,000 "is not likely to be effective."

The RFC, she said, has not succeeded heretofore in making loans even up to the extent of its present permitted maximum.

But Scretary Perkins commended Patton "for having taken the first steps in initiating positive legislative activity" toward high and stable employment.

Favors Annual Revision

Leo T. Crowley, director of the Foreign Economic Administration, while in favor of the basic objectives of Patton's proposal, said provision should be made for revising annually the $40,000,000,000 estimated investment need, to conform to business conditions.

Patton, in disclosing the responses to his suggestion, also took occasion to criticize a recent Brookings Institution report on probable post-war income, asserting it "smacks of defeatism, contains numerous errors in analysis and lends comfort to reactionaries."

The Brookings study concluded that the probable annual figure for 1947 is about $123,000,000,000, in contrast to other public estimates ranging up from $140,000,000,000.

URGES CARTEL SUPERVISION

Foreign Policy Report Also Backs Publicity On Trade

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP)—Full publicity on any post-war international supervision of cartels "would go far to correct some of the abuses with which the private industrial agreement now is charged," the Foreign Policy Association said today.

Need for such supervision "if the various national economies are to work out their destiny at a high level of employment and with the guarantee of an expanding world trade" was reported in a study of the cartel problem prepared by Grant S. McCullough of the association's research staff.

"It is essential," McCullough's report said, "that in so far as cartels exhibit the anti-social practices of monopoly, they must be adequately regulated.

Called Paramount Need

"The paramount necessity of insuring that consumer interests are represented in any agreement undertaking the organization of production and distribution of the world's commodities or processed goods also argues for international government action. At the very least, registration of all such agreements, intergovernmental or private, with an international economic tribunal is essential. . . .

"Were such an international economic tribunal with the requisite powers of supervision created, full publicity would be afforded to the various commodity controls and industrial agreements.

"This alone would go far to correct some of the abuses with which the private industrial agreement is now charged."

Cites Growing Momentum

Commenting on what he called "the growing momentum of the attack on cartels" in the United States, the author said "no such opposition has arisen to other restrictive trade practices, although the recent statement of Secretary Hull indicates that the cartel problem will be approached within the broader terms of foreign trade policy.

"American proposals couched in such broader terms may go far to allay the belief in some foreign countries that the United States is ready to press for the eradication of this particular restrictive trade practice, but unwilling to tackle further its own existing tariff ar[illegible]"

Airlines' Experts Consulted

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Government is seeking the advice of both the transport and manufacturing branches of the aircraft industry in connection with the international civil aviation conference at Chicago next month.

While the industry will not have direct representation among the United States delegation, it became known today that at least three airline officials will be asked to serve in an advisory capacity and probably some manufacturers will be on hand.

Transport Group Consulted

Officials in charge of conference arrangements have discussed their plans with the air transport association and the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce.

Three classes of air lines will be represented in the advisory group, an international carrier, probably Pan American Airways, since it has the longest experience in that field, a large domestic operator and a small or regional domestic carrier.

Both industry associations have been getting technical data together for the American delegation. The decision to give them a more direct part in the conference followed some discussion within aviation ranks of delay in requesting the views of companies which will fly the routes and manufacture the equipment to be used.

Exhibit Prepared

The manufacturers were asked last week to prepare an exhibit representative of American products, and also to make arrangements so that visitors from other countries may see aircraft or aviation equipmant plants in operation if they wish.

The State Department probably will announce the names of the United States delegation shortly. It is understood that a preliminary meeting of this group will be held in Washington before going to Chicago. Delegates from members of the British commonwealth of nations have announced such a conference to be held in Montreal next week.

The Montreal meeting probably was called for a final poll of views on a program for support of demands for an international commission vested with economic control of air transport among the nations.

Col. Hobby Recovering

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP).—Colonel Oveta Culp Hobby, director of the Women's Army Corps, is recuperating from a recent minor operation performed at Walter Reed Hospital, it was disclosed today. Colonel Hobby is expected to resume her military duties at her office in the Pentagon Building within a week.

REPORT IS SOUGHT ON STATLER BRAWL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 — (AP) Senator Ball (R.-Minn.) said today he will ask the Senate Campaign Expenditures committee, of which he is a member, to make public a full report on its inquiry into the first fight between two Navy officers and a group of A.F.L. teamsters following President Roosevelt's opening campaign speech Sept. 23 at the Statler hotel.

Such a report, he said, should be made "as soon as all of the facts are in." Committee investigators have been at work about 10 days.

Ball's suggestion came after Senator Green (D.-R. I.) chairman of the committee, had declined to release affidavits obtained by the investigators from Teamsters' union members.

Ball made it clear, however, that he believed Green was justified in refusing to disclose contents of the affidavits until they have been examined by other committee members. The committee is scheduled to meet Oct. 18 and 19, and Green said that what is to be done about the so-called "battle of the Statler" will be decided then.

"My feeling is that the incident has been blown up for political purposes, but nonetheless the facts, on both sides, should be made public," Ball told a reporter.

Green told a news conference Friday that at least some of the Teamsters involved in the punch-trading had been identified, and that none of them was "a personal friend of President Roosevelt."

Lt. (j.g.) Randolph Dickins, Jr., said the fight started when he and a fellow Navy officer refused to tell a group of men outside the teamsters' banquet hall who they would vote for President. Dickins said someone told him he had "just struck a personal friend of the President."

WRITER GROUP FOR DEWEY

Ten Authors, Artists Form Unit To Back GOP Candidate

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—Formation of "The Independent Artist and Writers Group for Dewey" by ten prominent writers and novelists was announced tonight by the Republican National Committee.

Headed by Louis Bromfield, the group includes Booth Tarkington, Kenneth Roberts, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Margaret Culkin Banning, Sophie Kerr, Rachel Crothers, Grace Thompson Seton, Inez Haynes Irwin and Faith Baldwin.

Statements Issued

The committee said the writers issued these statements in support of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, Republican Presidential nominee, and Gov. John W. Bricker, of Ohio, his running mate:

Bromfield—"I am voting Republican for the first time in my life because I believe we need a fresh and vigorous administration to solve the great problems which confront us at home and abroad."

Tarkington—"Republics cease to exist when they are ruled by a one-party system."

Was Washington Correspondent

Roberts—"I was a Washington correspondent for years and I've seen a lot of candidates for a lot of offices, but I never before saw a candidate so well equipped for the office he was seeking as is Dewey . . . ."

Rinehart—"Dewey's election means to me a return to the American form of government and mode of life."

Banning—"Dewey's statements on both foreign and domestic policy are sound and well directed toward the future."

Kerr—"I shall vote for Dewey because of his record as Governor of New York State; because he is not backed by tainted political bossism; because he is honest; because he is competent."

Crothers—"I shall vote for Mr. Dewey because I think it is un-American and destructive to keep a President in office three terms—let alone four."

Seton—"I think the best interests of the republic and of democracy are served by rotations in office and that there is no 'indispensable man.'"

Irwin—"I do not wish to see in the United States of America the perpetuation of Presidential dynasties."

30-24-19591

30.24-19591

Baldwin—"I believe the success of the Dewey-Bricker ticket is essential to the country."

N. Y. TIMES OUT FOR ROOSEVELT

Democratic Foreign Policy Wins Paper's Support

New York, Monday, Oct. 16 (AP)—The New York Times, which supported Wendell L. Willkie for the Presidency in 1940, came out for President Roosevelt's reelection in an editorial this morning.

The Times says that on the issue of foreign policy "we believe that the scales tip heavily in favor of the Democratic party," which, the editorial adds, has written "a more forthright statement of policy" than the Republican party. . . ."

International Issue Put First

Prefacing its reasons for supporting President Roosevelt with the statement that "we have not changed our minds about the domestic record of the Roosevelt Administration," the Times says that "in some respects we believe that an administration led by Mr. Dewey could do a better job in the domestic field."

It says that "since we believe that the international issue far overshadows the domestic issue in importance, since we believe that unless the United States does actually win the peace for which its young men are fighting, we shall have at best only a fugitive few years before another war engulfs us, we arrived at the conclusion that the Democrats and Mr. Roosevelt are a wiser choice than the Republicans and Mr. Dewey."

"With all Mr. Roosevelt's inconsistencies in the field of foreign policy . . .," the Times says, "the fact remains that in the single greatest crisis of our times, when Britain stood alone as the outpost of civilization against the dark forces that threatened to engulf us, Mr. Roosevelt saw the issue clearly and met the issue boldly."

The editorial, headed "We Choose Mr. Dewey," concluded:

"In the very nature of the democratic process there must be—as Mr. Roosevelt once said—an occasional new deal. We need one today."

The News supported Mr. Roosevelt for his first and second terms and was non-committal on the third term.

Once before, in 1896, The News supported a Republican nominee, William McKinley, against William Jennings Bryan.

President Made Betting Choice At 1-To-3 Odds

St. Louis, Oct. 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt is a 1-3 choice to win the November election, meaning a bettor must wager $3 to win $1, and the odds on Gov. Thomas E. Dewey are 2½-1, meaning a bettor who puts up $1 will win $2.50 if Dewey is elected, James J. Carroll, betting commissioner, said today.

Carroll listed 29 States with 296 electoral votes in the Roosevelt column. The other 19 States with 235 electoral votes are in the Dewey column but the odds on Illinois, New York and New Jersey voting the Republican ticket are so close as to be uncertain. Carroll said. The same odds of 5-6 are quoted on both Democratic and Republican candidates in those three States.

Close Democratic States

Of the States considered likely to vote Democratic, the betting chart shows Missouri, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Massachusetts and New Hampshire as those in which the election will be closest. The Roosevelt bettor must wager $5 to win $3, while the Dewey bettor must wager $5 to win $6.

In Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, North and South Carolina, Florida and Virginia, the Roosevelt odds are 1-8 and the Dewey odds 6-1. The Roosevelt odds in Tennessee are 1-4 and against Dewey 3-1.

Ohio, Oregon and Minnesota are considered better Republican States, the bettor having to wager $5 to win $3 on Dewey and $5 to win $6 on Roosevelt.

Dallas News Supports Dewey for 'a New Deal'

By The Associated Press.

DALLAS, Oct. 15—The Dallas Morning News, independent Democratic, came out yesterday in an editorial in support of Thomas E. Dewey, Republican nominee for President.

on the Herald-Tribune Forum Wednesday, which he customarily closes with an address.

Asked if she thought that the President's declination was in any way related to the fact that she was scheduled to precede him, Mrs. Luce said of course that can't be the reason. Sidney Hillman has also declined to speak for the Democratic party at the Forum. The President probably decided to clear out with Sidney."

DEWEY HITS ANEW AT ROOSEVELT ON WAY TO ST. LOUIS

OCT 15 1940

He Terms White House Analysis of His Speeches 'Slippery Tactics.'

STANDS ON CHARGES

G. O. P. Nominee to Broadcast Tonight; New York Registration High.

ENROUTE WITH DEWEY TO ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15.—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, replying to an "analysis" of his campaign speeches released through the White House, declared tonight that "the conclusion seems to be that Mr. Roosevelt is continuing the slippery tactics the New Deal has always employed."

"It seems regrettable," the Republican presidential nominee said in a statement, "that the man who wants to be President for 16 years should find it necessary to hide behind evasions by his associates and should sink to using the White House to make a headline for a 10-day old release by the publicity director of his party."

Simultaneously with his statement, Dewey aides aboard his special train enroute from Albany to St. Louis, where he speaks Monday night, issued what they said were copies of a memorandum "to all speakers" over the name of Paul A. Porter, director of publicity of the Democratic National committee. The memorandum, dated Oct. 4, was described by Dewey as "exactly the same" as the statement issued yesterday at the White House.

"Mr. Roosevelt has found it necessary," Dewey declared, "to dust it off and issue it with the sponsorship of the White House."

"In this statement," he went on, "Mr. Roosevelt confesses that every single statement I made in my Oklahoma City speech was exactly correct down to the last period and comma.

Says Claims Upheld

"Mr. Roosevelt's failure to prepare this country and the resulting price we have had to pay is established out of the mouths of his own followers. As I have said, I did not intend debating the tragic results of Mr. Roosevelt's total failure of leadership. But the facts are even more clearly etched as a result of his statement of yesterday."

Porter's memorandum, as released by Dewey's campaign staff, cited speeches which it was contended showed "in detail how Thomas E. Dewey distorted every quotation he used in his Oklahoma City speech on Sept. 25th, by tearing them out of their original contexts."

"This is a complete documentation of Dewey's quotations," the memorandum added. "It replaces each quotation in its original context, the complete quotation reveals how recklessly Dewey has distorted the truth and perverted the meaning and intent of each statement."

Attached was a series of quotations labeled "Dewey's Statement" and "The Facts."

The Republican nominee, declared "The Facts" bore out the contentions he made at Oklahoma City.

"Hiding Behind the White House"

"The record is dreadfully bad," he said. "It cannot be concealed by epithets or by hiding behind the symbol of the White House.

"It is equally amazing that Mr. Roosevelt should find it necessary to get his subordinate and close associate, Mr. (Adolf) Berle, the Assistant Secretary of State, to write him a letter accusing me of 'misquoting,' 'dishonesty' and of having 'dipped' a sentence from its context.

"Once again the facts are very simple. Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Berle again admit my statement that Mr. Berle said in a memorandum:

"Over a period of years, the government will gradually come to own most of the productive plants of the United States.'"

While Dewey said Berle claimed he "meant the opposite," the Republican nominee declared "he skillfully omits to quote the relevant language in the very same passage from which I have quoted above. It read:

"If the country desires to make wealth creation a function of government (I personally believe it must do so in larger measure than it has heretofore) the choice should be considered the choice of the country and not the result of a policy of drift.

"The government's ability to create wealth efficiently is denied by a good many people. It seems to me a good many of these attacks are unjustified, though I am frankly biased in favor of public ownership of certain forms of wealth."

Dewey said "there is more of the same doctrine in Mr. Berle's memorandum."

To Visit Milwaukee

A three hour stopover in Milwaukee Oct. 25, en route to Chicago from Minneapolis, was added to the Governor's schedule during the day. No formal speech was arranged for Milwaukee.

The Republican nominee, armed with portfolios of data compiled in the past week of semi-seclusion, traveled toward St. Louis for his first major broadcast since his speech a week ago last Saturday at Charleston, W. Va., where he asserted President Roosevelt was receiving Communist support.

He will be met in East St. Louis, at 11 a. m., (C.W.T.) tomorrow, by Missouri Gov. Forrest C. Donnell, Mayor A. P. Kaufman, and a group of other dignitaries. After a news conference in a St. Louis hotel, he will meet Republican leaders of Kansas City and western Missouri before going to Kiel auditorium for his broadcast.

The "urgent need for honesty and competence in our national government" was the announced theme of his St. Louis talk, and the title indicated that he planned to renew the attack he launched against Mr. Roosevelt at Oklahoma City and followed up at Charleston.

New York Registration High

Dewey left New York amid a whirlwind of speculation over the voter registration figures for that state. New York city, normally overwhelmingly Democratic, reported a total of 3,216,613 registrants, compared with 3,390,000 in the last presidential race four years ago. Democrats and Republicans both claimed the comparatively high registration, despite the absence of thousands of servicemen and the migration of war workers, augured favorably for their cause.

Both presidential candidates have arranged speaking engagements in New York city, where the vote normally wipes out a big upstate Republican plurality. Mr. Roosevelt will address the Foreign Policy association there Saturday and Dewey will close his campaign with a Madison Square Garden rally the night of Nov. 4 and a studio broadcast on Election-eve, Nov. 6.

In addition, Dewey plans to address the New York Herald Tribune's annual forum on current events on Wednesday, using foreign policy as his subject. President Roosevelt declined an invitation to speak before the same gathering.

After his St. Louis speech, Dewey will return to Albany before going on to New York for the Herald Tribune speech.

Norman Thomas Asks Lightened Peace Terms

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 15 (AP)—Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President, today told a gathering here that "there are at least 500,000 decent Germans who might revolt against the Hitler regime if the peace terms were lightened."

He said that he believed "the thought of their country being permanently divided and the threat of work in foreign countries destroyed rather than stimulated the Germans' will to resist their present Government and surrender to the Allies."

Thomas characterized the term "unconditional surrender" as applied to the Axis as "something meant to divert us from thinking and make us drunk with emotional wine."

LaGuardia Points To "Third War"

OCT 19 1940

Chicago, Oct. 15 (AP)—Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York asserted today that President Roosevelt has "won one war" against depression, was leading a second to victory, and had fought a "few battles of a third war for justice and peace."

Speaking to a Democratic rally in the Coliseum, LaGuardia said:

"When the history of this war is written by men and women with a more distant perspective, it will be shown that the one man who did everything constitutionally possible to make the best of a bad situation was President Roosevelt."

"The third war," he added, "is for justice in the world, for economic security in our country, a war for everlasting peace.

"Several battles already have been fought under the leadership of our President. Let the people of Europe, of the Pacific, of our hemisphere know we're united.

"Give that man the support he needs by electing a Senate and House that will cooperate with him."

Navy Training To Be Cut

No Enrollments Slated in College Term Beginning March 1

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15 (AP).—No trainees will be enrolled in Navy college training programs for the term beginning March 1, 1945, the Navy announced tonight.

It was explained that decision to eliminate any new enrollments for that period was based upon newest estimates of future officer requirements. Approximately 69,000 men now are enrolled in the program. The Navy emphasized that students already in training "will continue the training as scheduled."

...Y CITES VOTE ON DEFENSE

Says Democrats Were For, GOP Against Preparedness

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP)—Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) quoted voting records through a decade today to support a contention that Democratic Senators overwhelmingly have favored national defense preparations and measures to achieve world peace.

But the voting record of Republican Senators and Senatorial candidates, he said in a statement, "has been against preparedness and against organizing for peace."

Cites Ballots On Various Bills

O'Mahoney, chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, cited ballots on a naval expansion bill in May, 1938, on legislation in March, 1939, to establish stockpiles of strategic materials, on a measure to lift the arms embargo in October, 1939, on banning exports of helium gas in Aug that all is not well in the Republican ranks because of the alleged apathy and ineptness in the work among Negro voters," the paper said. The paper charged "bungling" to Judge Francis E. Rivers, of the City Court, and Dr. Clilian B. Powell, editor of "The Amsterdam News" and assistant director of publicity of the Republican National Committee, both of New York. Judge Rivers, it charged, "makes daily trips to Republican headquarters to promulgate the strategy which is to be used among Negroes," and added that Mayor F. H. LaGuardia "may be called upon to investigate him." Dr. Powell was accused of having incurred the "wrath" of most Negro newspapers.

1937, on establishing selective service in 1940, on creating lend-lease in 1941.

The Republicans divided evenly on the naval expansion bill, O'Mahoney said, but on all other measures, a majority of them were recorded in opposition.

"By their votes ye shall know them," he asserted.

SECOND LEAD AERIAL

LONDON, MONDAY, OCT. 16-(AP)-RAF LANCASTERS AND HALIFAXES CONTINUED THE OFFENSIVE AGAINST GERMANY DURING THE NIGHT WITH A HEAVY ATTACK ON HAMBURG AND THE NAVAL BASE OF WILHELMSHAVEN, THE AIR MINISTRY ANNOUNCED.

MORE THAN X X X FIRST GRAF.

LONDON--SECOND ADD WESTERN FRONT XXX 4,500-TON RAID.

THE RAF ATTACK SWELLED THE TOTAL OF BRITISH-BASED BOMBERS AND ESCORTS TO NEARLY 5,000 PLANES IN THE PAST 36 HOURS. AND EVEN AS THE BIG CRAFT WERE RETURNING HOME, AN ASSOCIATED PRESS OBSERVER ON THE DOVER CLIFF REPORTED SEEING ONE OF THE LARGEST FORCES OF FLYING FORTRESSES IN HIS EXPERIENCE STREAMING OUT AGAIN IN THE DIRECTION OF HOLLAND AND GERMANY.

RAF PILOTS REPORTED HUGE FIRES STILL BURNING FROM SATURDAY'S ATTACK ON DUISBERG, ONLY 30 MILES BEHIND THE BATTLEFRONT. COST OF THE DOUBLE BLOW--HEAVIEST THE RAF HAS AIMED AT ANY SINGLE OBJECTIVE--AT 14 DAY BOMBERS AND NINE NIGHT BOMBERS, ONLY .9 OF THE FORCES USED.

THERE WERE FEW DEVELOPMENTS IN THE GROUND FIGHTING FROM BREDA TO BELFORT.

BUT, WHILE THE GERMAN COMMUNIQUE REPORTED "HEAVY FIGHTING" FOR THE SCHELDE ESTUARY IN HOLLAND, ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT BILL BONI DECLARED THAT TROOPS OF THE FIRST CANADIAN ARMY WERE MOVING FORWARD IN THREE DIFFERENT SECTORS AGAINST RAPIDLY-SOFTENING RESISTANCE.

SB926AEW

HUNGARY ANNOUNCED THAT ITS TROOPS STILL WERE FIGHTING, AND WOULD CONTINUE TO FIGHT THE RUSSIANS PENDING ALLIED ACCEPTANCE OF ITS ARMISTICE SUIT, BUT THIS WAS REGARDED AS A MERE FORMALITY, AND THERE WERE ALREADY REPORTS THAT THE HUNGARIANS WERE QUITTING THE STRUGGLE, LEAVING LARGE GERMAN FORCES TO FIGHT ALONE.

FROM THEIR LINES AROUND SZOLNOK ON THE TISZA RIVER, LAST WATER BARRIER BEFORE BUDAPEST, THE RUSSIANS WERE ONLY 150 MILES FROM AUSTRIA, "BACK DOOR" TO GERMANY ALONG THE DANUBE VALLEY.

THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND, FACED WITH THE IMMINENT PROSPECT OF A HUNGARIAN DESERTION, WAS IN A DILEMMA. IT HAD TO DETERMINE WHETHER THE RUSSIAN PUSH TOWARD AUSTRIA WAS THE MAJOR DRIVE OR MERELY A FEINT INTENDED TO SPREAD EVEN THINNER THE GERMAN FORCES BATTLING TO DEFEND THE HOMELAND.

THE MAJOR RUSSIAN BLOW STILL MAY BE LAUNCHED ACROSS THE POLISH PLAINS TOWARD GERMAN SILESIA, THROUGH EAST PRUSSIA, OR IN ALL THREE THEATERS.

GERMANY'S HIGH COMMAND BULLETIN ACKNOWLEDGED THAT RUSSIAN TROOPS HAD FOUGHT THEIR WAY INTO THE OUTSKIRTS OF BELGRADE, BUT REFLECTED GREATER ANXIETY TO THE MORE IMMINENT THREAT TO MEMEL, EAST PRUSSIAN BALTIC PORT.

OCT 15 1944

COL.ERNST VON HAMMER, NAZI RADIO COMMENTATOR, SUGGESTED THAT THE RUSSIANS ALREADY HAD CROSSED INTO MEMEL TERRITORY ON A WIDE FRONT WHEN HE SAID THAT "HAVING BROUGHT UP FRESH REINFORCEMENTS, THE RUSSIANS LAUNCHED A LARGE-SCALE ASSAULT AGAINST THE FORTRESS AREA, THE CENTER OF THE FIGHTING BEING FOCUSSED ON THE ROAD FROM HEYDEKRUG TO MEMEL."

THIS ROAD IS FROM TWO TO SEVEN MILES INSIDE MEMEL, A 1,099-SQUARE-MILE AREA ANNEXED BY GERMANY FROM LITHUANIA IN MARCH, 1939. HEYDEKRUG IS 27 MILES SOUTHEAST OF THE PORT OF MEMEL.

"FIGHTING FOR THE TOWN AND HARBOR OF MEMEL HAS REACHED DRAMATIC STAGE," VON HAMMER ADDED.

THE BERLIN COMMUNIQUE ALSO SAID THAT THE GUNS OF THE NAZI BALTIC FLEET HAD BEGUN FIRING ON THE RUSSIANS IN AN EFFORT TO RELIEVE THE HARD-PRESSED MEMEL DEFENDERS.

AN ORDER OF THE DAY BY PREMIER-MARSHAL JOSEPH STALIN ANNOUNCED THE AMPHIBIOUS CAPTURE OF PETSAMO, RICH NICKEL MINE CENTER CEDED BY FINLAND TO RUSSIA IN THE RECENT ARMISTICE. STALIN DESCRIBED PETSAMO AS AN "IMPORTANT NAVAL BASE AND A POWERFUL GERMAN STRONGHOLD IN THE EXTREME NORTH," AND ORDERED A VICTORY SALUTE OF 20 SALVOS FROM 224 MOSCOW GUNS.

GEN.K.I.MERETSKOV, COMMANDER OF THE SOVIET KARELIAN ARMY, AND ADMIRAL ~~GOLOSKOV~~ A.G.Golovko OF THE FAR NORTHERN RED FLEET DIRECTED THE ASSAULT ON THE PORT, AN OPERATION WHICH BERLIN DECLARED WAS LAUNCHED WITH 170,000 TROOPS, AND WITH THE ULTIMATE AIM OF SLICING DOWN INTO NAZI-HELD NORWAY FROM THE NORTH.

PETSAMO WAS CEDED TO RUSSIA BY FINLAND UNDER THE RECENT ARMISTICE TERMS, BUT THE GERMANS HAD REFUSED TO GIVE IT UP AND ALSO ARE FIGHTING THE FINNS IN NORTH-CENTRAL FINLAND OPPOSITE THE SWEDISH BORDER ALONG THE KEMI RIVER, 350 MILES TO THE SOUTH.

OCT 15 1944

FOURTEEN OTHER LOCALITIES WERE CAPTURED NORTH AND SOUTH OF PETSAMO, WHICH IS DEFENDED NATURALLY BY HILLS, MARSHES AND LAKES, AND TO WHICH THE GERMANS HAD ADDED FIELDS OF BARBED WIRE AND MINES DURING THE LAST THREE YEARS.

BERLIN HAD ANNOUNCED A SOVIET LANDING LAST WEEK AT LIINAHAMARI, NEAR THE MOUTH OF THE PETSAMO INLET, AND A SUPPLEMENTARY MOSCOW COMMUNIQUE SAID THE RUSSIANS MAULED THE 20TH GERMAN LAPLAND DIVISION SEVERELY IN THAT AREA, AND ANNIHILATED A BATTALION OF 800 MEN. ON THE ROAD TO PETSAMO THEY ROUTED THE SECOND GERMAN MOUNTAIN INFANTRY DIVISION, THE BULLETIN SAID.

A SIZABLE AIR BATTLE WAS FOUGHT, TOO, THE SUPPLEMENT SAYING 66 GERMAN PLANES WERE DOWNED IN COMBAT AND 33 RIDDLED ON THE GROUND. THE GERMANS LAST WEEK HAD CLAIMED A BAG OF 84 RUSSIAN PLANES.

FIRST LEAD BRUYERES (120)
BY GEORGE TUCKER
SIXTH ARMY GROUP HEADQUARTERS, FRANCE, OCT. 15-(AP)-SHOWING MORE POWER THAN AT ANY TIME WITHIN RECENT WEEKS, BOTH THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY AND THE FRENCH FIRST ARMY WON NEW GROUND OVER EVERY SECTION OF THE SIXTH ARMY GROUP FRONT TODAY WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE BELFORT SECTOR.
AGAINST LIGHT OPPOSITION, THE AMERICANS DROVE ALMOST TO THE OUTSKIRTS OF BRUYERES, 12 1/2 MILES EAST OF EPINAL, AND OCCUPIED THE TOWNS OF EMBERMENIL, GLONVILLE AND FONTENAY, SOUTH OF RAMBERVILLERS.
THE ENEMY COUNTERATTACKED WITH TANKS BUT WAS REPULSED.
FRENCH FORCES AGAIN STRUCK FOR LETHOLLY, BUT MET STIFF OPPOSITION. HEAVY FIGHTING RAGED IN THE NEARBY WOODED AREAS.
PRISONERS TAKEN TODAY WERE IDENTIFIED AS BELONGING TO THE GERMAN FIFTH PANZER ARMY, REGARDED AS THE SECOND LARGE CONCENTRATION OF ARMOR ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

THE ATTACK MOVED FORWARD WITHOUT BENEFIT OF PRELIMINARY ARTILLERY BOMBARDMENT AND BY 2 P.M. THE FIRST WAVE OF ATTACKERS WAS WITHIN A MILE OF THE GOAL.
THE ENTIRE ADVANCE WAS MADE AGAINST ENEMY OPPOSITION DESCRIBED AS SPOTTY. WHILE THE CENTER OF THE ASSAULT FORCE MOVED DIRECTLY ON THE CITY, FLANKING MOVEMENTS WERE MADE TO THE NORTH AND SOUTH.
THE EASE WITH WHICH THE FIRST STAGE OF THE OPERATION PROGRESSED CAME AS A SURPRISE, FOR THE BRUYERES AREA HAD BEEN THE SCENE OF AN EARLIER STRONG GERMAN COUNTERATTACK AND HAD BEEN BELIEVED STRONGLY DEFENDED.
MORE INFANTRY UNITS WERE USED IN THIS ATTACK THAN HAD BEEN THROWN AGAINST A SINGLE OBJECTIVE IN ALMOST A MONTH.
IN ONE COMMAND POST, AN OFFICER WAS IN COMMUNICATION WITH A CAPTAIN OF INFANTRY WHO WAS TALKING FROM A FOREST WHERE RESISTANCE HAD GROWN MOMENTARILY SERIOUS. THE OFFICER LISTENED A MOMENT AND THEN CRIED OUT, "SHOVE RIGHT UP IN THERE. DON'T HESITATE. SHOVE RIGHT UP AND GET RIGHT IN THERE."
APPARENTLY THE CAPTAIN AT THE OTHER END OF THE WIRE SAID HE WOULD, FOR THE OFFICER NODDED HIS HEAD IN SATISFACTION.
AT NO TIME DURING THE DAY WAS ENEMY ARTILLERY MORE THAN MODERATE. GERMAN GUNS FIRED SIX TO EIGHT ROUNDS, THEN SUBSIDED FOR A TIME, THEN FIRED A FEW MORE.
SOME OF THE TROOPS FACING THE AMERICANS WERE YOUNGSTERS FROM GERMAN AIR FORCE TRAINING SCHOOLS WHO HAD BEEN SHOVED INTO THE LINE AND BOLSTERED BY SOME ELITE GUARDS. ABOUT 60 TAKEN PRISONER DURING THE AFTERNOON SEEMED UNCONCERNED AT THEIR CAPTURE.
TWICE DURING THE MORNING FLIGHTS OF MESSERSCHMITTS WERE OVER THE BATTLE AREA BUT DROPPED NO BOMBS.

TROOPS WHO MADE AN AMPHIBIOUS LANDING ACROSS THE SAVOJAARDS INLET BEFORE DAYLIGHT ON OCT. 9 DROVE SOUTH AND LINKED UP WITH OTHER UNITS WHICH PUSHED THROUGH THE GAP BETWEEN THE EASTERN END OF THE LEOPOLD CANAL AND THE BASE OF THE INLET.
AT THE SAME TIME ANOTHER CANADIAN FORCE STRUCK OUT ACROSS THE CANAL ABOUT THREE MILES TO THE WEST AND RAPIDLY PUSHED A BROADENING FINGER INTO GERMAN HOLDINGS TO A DEPTH OF TWO MILES AND ABOUT THE SAME DISTANCE SHORT OF A LINKUP WITH THE BEACHHEAD FORCE.
IN THE ORIGINAL CANAL BRIDGEHEAD SOUTH OF AARDENBURG SHERMAN TANKS SWEPT AROUND THE PERIMETER, SHOOTING UP NAZI POSITIONS IN ALL DIRECTIONS.
SIMULTANEOUSLY HOWEVER THE BATTLE ON ZUID BEVELAND SPIT ABOVE ANTWERP TOOK A LESS FAVORABLE TURN WITH A POWERFUL GERMAN COUNTER-ATTACK DRIVING OUR TROOPS BACK TO THE ROADS AND THE RAILWAY CAUSEWAY SOUTH OF THE TOWN OF WOENSDRECHT, WHICH THE CANADIANS HAD NOT BEEN ABLE TO QUITE CLEAR OF GERMANS.

THROUGHOUT THE NIGHT THE RUMBLE OF ARTILLERY COULD BE HEARD, AND GUN FLASHES WERE VISIBLE OVER THE HORIZON AS THE CANADIAN AND BRITISH BATTERIES POUNDED THE REINFORCED ENEMY. THOUGH THE GERMANS SUCCEEDED IN DISLODGING THE CANADIANS FROM POSITIONS STRADDLING THE CAUSEWAY, IT WAS STILL COVERED BY OUR MACHINE GUN POSTS. THE CAUSEWAY AND THE ENTIRE SPIT WERE WITHIN EASY RANGE OF ALLIED ARTILLERY.

THE HEAVIEST RESISTANCE AGAINST THE BEACHHEAD WAS STILL ALONG THE WESTERN FLANK, WHERE THE CANADIANS HAVE NOT BEEN ABLE TO REGAIN GROUND LOST YESTERDAY IN AN ATTEMPT TO DRIVE TOWARD BRESKENS, ONE OF THE ENEMY NERVE CENTERS IN THIS AREA.

A CLAIM THAT THE ALLIED TASK FORCE WHICH HAS BEEN ATTACKING FORMOSA WAS "FLEEING EASTWARD, WITH OUR UNITS IN FULL PURSUIT AND SUBJECTING IT TO HEAVY FIRE," WAS MADE BY JAPANESE IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS IN A COMMUNIQUE TRANSMITTED BY DOMEI TODAY.
THE COMMUNIQUE, RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, CLAIMED THAT SEVEN AIRCRAFT CARRIERS AND ONE DESTROYER HAD BEEN "INSTANTLY SUNK" AND TWO AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, ONE BATTLESHIP, ONE CRUISER AND 11 UNIDENTIFIED CRAFT DAMAGED BY JAPANESE ATTACKS WHICH BEGAN OCT. 14 (JAPANESE TIME).

THE TOKYO RADIO DECLARED TODAY (SUN) THAT ANYWHERE FROM 23 TO 52 "ENEMY WARSHIPS" INCLUDING AS MANY AS 17 AIRCRAFT CARRIERS HAD BEEN SUNK OR SERIOUSLY DAMAGED AND AN IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE SAID THE ENEMY TASK FORCE EAST OF FORMOSA WAS "FLEEING EASTWARD WITH OUR UNITS IN FULL PURSUIT."
THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT THE JAPANESE FLEET HAD GONE INTO ACTION WAS MADE DURING A PROPAGANDA BROADCAST TO THE UNITED STATES AND WAS WITHOUT ALLIED CONFIRMATION.
THE TOKYO RADIO ANNOUNCER INTERRUPTED A PROGRAM TO SAY:
"WORD HAS JUST BEEN RECEIVED THAT THAT THE JAPANESE FLEET IS NOW IN PURSUIT OF THE FLEEING ENEMY TASK FORCE. AFTER RECEIVING DESTRUCTIVE BLOWS FROM OUR AIR FORCE, THE STRENGTH OF THE ENMY FORCE HAS CONSIDERABLY WEAKENED."
ONE TOKKYO BROADCAST DECLARED 17 AIRCRAFT CARRIERS HAD BEEN SUNK. LATER THE RADIO SAID 14 HAD BEEN DESTROYED. THE JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY DOMEI IN AN ENGLISH-LANGUAGE BROADCAST SAID A TOTAL OF "23 WARSHIPS, INCLUDING NINE AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, ARE SO FAR KNOWN TO HAVE BEEN SUNK OR HEAVILY DAMAGED."

PICTURING THE JAPANESE AIR FORCE AS HAVING DEPRIVED THE AMERICAN TASK FORCE OF "ITS WILL TO FIGHT," DOMEI SAID:
"AT THIS PSYCHOLOGICAL MOMENT IT WAS LEARNED THAT OUR (JAPANESE) NAVAL HIGH COMMAND, JUDGING THE LONG AWAITED OPPORTUNITY FOR LAUNCHING AN ALL OUT ATTACK AGAINST THE ENEMY HAD ARRIVED, AT LONG LAST GAVE THE FINAL SIGNAL AT AN UNDISCLOSED DATE TO THE JAPANESE NAVAL FLEET TO RUSH TO THE SCENE OF BATTLE IN FULL FORCE."
THE BROADCAST QUOTED IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS AS ANNOUNCING THAT SEVEN AMERICAN AIRCRAFT CARRIERS AND ONE DESTROYER WERE SUNK AND TWO AIRCRAFT CARRIERS, ONE BATTLESHIP, ONE CRUISER AND 11 WARSHIPS OF UNSPECIFIED CATEGORY WERE HEAVILY DAMAGED.
OCT 15 1944
THE U.S.NAVY HAS ANNOUNCED THAT ITS STRIKES AT THE RYUKYU ISLANDS LAST MONDAY, AT LUZON IN THE PHILIPPINES TUESDAY AND THE FORMOSA ATTACKS WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY RESULTED IN THE SINKING OR DAMAGING OF 140 JAPANESE SHIPS AND THE DESTRUCTION OR DAMAGING OF 525 JAPANESE PLANES. THE NAVY HAS REPORTED THAT NOT AN AMERICAN WARSHIP WAS DAMAGED.
IF THE JAPANESE FLEET ACTUALLY WAS VENTURING FROM HIDING FOR A)WDOWN BATTLE IT WOULD BE PRECISELY WHAT ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ, MMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE U.S.PACIFIC FLEET, HAS BEEN TRYING VAINLY TO :COMPLISH WITH HIS FAR-RANGING OPERATIONS FOR MONTHS.
THE JAPANESE VERSION OF THE FORMOSA ASSAULT WAS THAT ADM.WILLIAM F.HALSEY'S THIRD U.S.FLEET WAS IN A "DISORDERLY RETREAT" EASTWARD "EXPOSED TO REPEATED JAPANESE ATTACKS."
A LATER DOMEI BROADCAST SAID THAT THE AMERICANS LOST 14 AIRCRAFT CARRIERS AND PROBABLY LOST TWO MORE IN THREE CONSECUTIVE DAYS BEGINNING LAST THURSDAY.
IT SAID THAT ON SATURDAY JAPANESE PLANES SANK ONE AMERICAN AIRCRAFT CARRIER AND HEAVILY DAMAGED TWO OTHERS AND ALSO SANK ONE BATTLESHIP AND HEAVILY DAMAGED ANOTHER WARCRAFT OF UNSPECIFIED CATEGORY.
THE JAPANESE APPARENTLY DID NOT DISCOUNT THE POSSIBILITY OF AN INVASION OF FORMOSA.
"IT CANNOT YET BE SAID," THE TOKYO RADIO SAID, "WHETHER THE AMERICANS ONLY INTENDED TO RAID FORMOSA OR WHETHER THEY HAD OTHER AIMS IN MIND."

AMONG THE "OTHER AIMS," THE JAPANESE MIGHT BE EXPECTING EITHER LANDINGS ON FORMOSA OR THE IMPENDING INVASION OF THE PHILIPPINES.
THEY DOUBTLESS WERE GIVING COGNIZANCE TO THE POSSIBILITY OF FORMOSA AS AN AMERICAN STEPPING STONE FOR NIMITZ' AVOWED DRIVE WITH ALL SPEED STRAIGHT TO THE CHINA COAST.
OR, IN EVENT OF A PHILIPPINES INVASION, NEUTRALIZATION OF JAPANESE AIRPOWER ON FORMOSA WOULD BE A LOGICAL PRELIMINARY TO A LAND[illegible]G.

NIMITZ REPORTS ATTACK ON LUZON STILL UNDERWAY

146 Enemy Ships Sunk or Damaged During Week's Action.

OCT 17 1944

FIGHTERS RAID APARRI

Nippon Radio Announcement on Big Naval Battle Not Confirmed.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 16 (AP) Carrier planes of the Pacific fleet are still striking at the rich Japanese targets on Luzon island in the Philippines, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced tonight.

Far from being driven away, as the Japanese have claimed, the Third fleet is opening the second week of the most sustained carrier attacks yet launched upon the inner island approaches to Japan.

U. S. raiders destroyed 100 more Jap planes in the two new assaults on the Philippines, Nimitz reported.

146 Jap Ships Sunk

The week has cost the Japanese 146 ships sunk or damaged and from 705 to 720 planes put out of commission. Nimitz in previous communiques said American losses have been light.

In a 7:30 p. m. communique (1 a. m., EWT) the Pacific ocean areas commander also disclosed that the three days of air attacks upon Formosa, starting last Wednesday, were centered upon Tainan, the island's second largest city, Takao, third largest, and Okayama and Heito, all on the west coast.

Thirty warehouses were destroyed in the Takao docks area and 14 buildings were wrecked at Heito, 15 miles inland.

At Tainan, seven hangars were destroyed, five heavily damaged and several barracks demolished. Tainan is three miles inland and in 1938 had a population of 131,079.

American raiders destroyed another 100 or more planes in two new attacks on the Philippines while Super-Fortresses blasted Formosa a second time within 48 hours at the end of the first week of the great Third fleet aerial assault, American commanders announced today.

U. S. Planes Hit Aparri

In a noon communique the Admiral said that fighter aircraft raided Aparri, on the north coast of Luzon, Friday, and on Sunday attacked airfields in the Manila area, 200 miles southward.

The Japanese air force, stung into desperate action, attacks with the greatest vigor it has shown in many months, but at terrible cost.

In one battle alone the American carrier planes shot down all but 10 or 20 of one intercepting force of 50 Japanese fighters.

There was no announcement of American air losses. Nimitz said "only superficial damage was done to our surface ships" in the Manila bay area raids Sunday.

There still was no word here that any unit of the Japanese fleet had put in an appearance as had been indicated in Nippon radio reports.

Third fleet units, working under radio silence, probably still are lurking in enemy waters trying to draw Japanese warships into battle.

Meanwhile the carriers and their escorting ships have been busily occupied fighting off the unusually strong and determined Japanese air attacks.

Meet Little Opposition

Carrier fighters raiding Aparri Friday found no enemy planes in the air, and only a few twin engine and three single engine aircraft on the ground. Five parked planes were destroyed by strafing.

Nimitz previously announced that other carrier units, in fighting off Japanese air attacks Thursday night during raids upon Formosa and on Luzon Friday, destroyed at least 91 Japanese planes.

On Sunday a large force of carrier planes attacked Nichols, Nielson and Marivales airfields in the Manila area and destroyed 15 to 20 planes on the ground. It was this force that was intercepted by an estimated 50 enemy fighters. Thirty or 40 of the Japanese planes were shot down.

While the Manila raids were under way Japanese airplanes persistently attacked one carrier task group. They managed to inflict superficial damage on some of the surface ships. Thirty of them were shot into the water, however, by the carriers and their escorting ships and by carrier planes.

Near another fleet unit nine more Japanese planes were shot down. Other units, which may have seen even sharper air action have yet to report.

There is nothing, however, to indicate that the anticipated big sea battle with the enemy fleet has materialized.

Iwo Jima Blasted

Nimitz also reported that Liberators dropped 45 tons of bombs on Japanese installations at Iwo Jima in the Kazan islands south of Japan. Mitchel medium bombers attacked Paramushiro in the Northern Kuriles Saturday.

Eight Japanese planes, attacking with phosphorous bombs, vigorously contested the slash at Iwo. One of them probably was shot down by the raiding Yanks and three others damaged, without loss to the American planes.

Truk, the once formidable enemy base in the Carolines, was bombed again Friday by the Liberator bombers. Three Nipponese planes in the air at the time avoided interception.

Anti-aircraft fire was reported meager or moderate in all of these attacks on the enemy's island bases.

American Superfortresses, adding to the fury of the battle of Formosa, blasted that strategic island for the second time within 48 hours amid Japanese claims that their elusive navy finally had entered the conflict.

Japanese broadcast claims of heavy American warship losses in the Formosa area have received no confirmation from Admiral Nimitz. Nor has the Pacific fleet commander mentioned the presence of enemy surface units in those waters.

In a communique Sunday, Nimitz reported attacks by enemy planes on the Yank task force operating off Formosa.

"Many of the Japanese fliers were shot down, Nimitz said, while American plane losses so far were "light."

A Japanese propaganda broadcast via radio Tokyo, heard by the Federal Communications commission, said "the distinctive war results achieved by our Army (land-based planes) and Navy in annihilating the enemy 58th Task force in the waters east of Taiwan(Formosa) have marked a shift in our position from a defensive to an offensive." The Japanese claimed the American fleet was "fleeing."

Japs Report Big Battle

Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso was quoted as saying "the long-awaited decisive battle has begun" and it augurs a bright future." He said neither the Japanese people nor the government would become "overconfident in victory."

Radio Tokyo claimed scores of American ships have been knocked out by Nippon naval and air forces and added this had delayed the "impending invasion of the Philippines by at least two months."

The second B-29 attack on Formosa was reported today by the 20th Airforce. The communique said the sky giants blasted Okayama and Heito, two major bases in Formosa's southwestern coastal area. Okayama is an air repair and supply base while Heito has an airdrome and is also used as an air supply depot.

No Superfortresses were lost during the second Formosa mission from airdromes in China.

The Yank fliers observed "very good bombing results."

The communique said the initial B-29 strike Saturday accomplished "excellent" results as the big planes unloaded record bomb cargoes to totally wreck 37 buildings and heavily damage 16 others. One Superfortress was lost in the first attack. Two others, previously reported missing, were found to be safe while another crash-landed at a forward base. Ten of 11 members of its crews were safe.

Admiral Nimitz's Sunday communique said American carrier planes hit Formosa Friday for the third consecutive day. Simultaneously Yank carrier planes hit Luzon island, northern Philippines, for the sixth time.

of hiding and was pursuing the United States task force fleeing from Formosa, were unconfirmed by Allied sources.

"Fleeing In Defeat"

A communique reported Japanese planes intercepted and "carried out repeated fierce attacks in waters east of the Philippines" on American carrier forces sent to attack Manila in a diversionary attempt to "rescue the enemy task force now fleeing in defeat" from Formosa.

Tokyo radio quoted "naval observers" as saying "the avowed enemy offensive against the Philippines has been dealt a sledge-hammer blow" by Japanese counteraction off Formosa.

"Opportunity Has Come"

In a message to the nation on "the brilliant war results scored by Japanese army and navy forces," Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso said "the long-awaited opportunity for Japan's battle in the Pacific has come."

"Our army torpedo planes," he added, "have been showing their mettle side by side with our navy air force in the present action."

Radio Tokyo, in a broadcast recorded in London, asserted that a "great defeat" of United States naval forces east of Formosa has postponed the "impending invasion of the Philippines by at least two months."

An earlier communique asserted 16 United States warships were sunk and 19 damaged off Formosa.

Propaganda broadcasts made the ship, four cruisers and 11 other unidentified warships were damaged.

No U. S. Confirmation

Sunday's Imperial communique listed purported United States losses at eight sunk and 15 damaged.

The Monday communique said the additional damage was inflicted by our units while continuing the chase of the fleeing enemy task force.

"In explaining the term 'our units,' authoritative quarters disclosed that they include not only Japanese land-based air units but also the Japanese fleet of surface craft," the Domei news agency reported in a broadcast.

There was no American confirmation that the Nipponese fleet had at last put in an appearance, long sought by the United States naval command.

Cabinet Given News

Another Domei broadcast said the Cabinet heard a "detailed explanation" by Marshal General Sugiyama, War Minister, and Mitsumasa Yonai, Navy Minister, on the "annihilative operation against the enemy task force in waters east of Formosa."

A Berlin broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press in London, said a Tokyo dispatch quoted a Japanese naval spokesman as saying:

"At the end of the still-raging battle Admiral Halsey's fleet will have vanished from the seas. This is a victory which will make the victories of Hawaii and Malaya appear like a sideshow."

Compared To Russ Defeat

One Domei propaganda dispatch compared the action to "the decisive victory over the Czarist Russian Baltic fleet 39 years ago. Another reported scenes of wild joy in Japan in celebration of the reported defeat of "the arrogant enemy task force."

The action in Philippine waters, Domei reported, followed a raid on Manila Sunday (Tokyo time) by 60 carrier-based bombers and fighters. Domei asserted 18 raiders were shot down. It admitted "extremely light losses" and conceded that some Nipponese planes failed to return from the attack.

second daylight Japanese attack on this carrier task force is over.

The sky seems strangely empty without the black puffs of anti-aircraft fire reaching out for Japanese bombers.

Between 50 and 75 enemy aircraft attempted to break through our protective screen during the day. The heaviest attack is the one just ended, with the coming of nightfall.

At Least 60 Japs Down

All told, at least 60 Japanese planes were shot down by fighters or anti-aircraft guns.

The bells calling the crew to battle stations reached the men at the dinner table. There was a scramble fo rthe ladders, but it all was very orderly and calm. Some men scooped up whatever food could be carried, not knowing when they would be back.

But who is hungry at a time like this?

I made my way to the hangar deck in time to see two Japanese bombers shot down only 1,000 feet off the starboard, in the wake of another carrier. The planes were blasted by ship's gunfire. Both flamed up before falling into the water. Everybody cheered.

Close Call For Cruiser

One cruiser had a close call. A plane, described as a Japanese suicide bomber, dove for the ship, landing barely on her fantail.

Damage was superficial, and the skipper messaged: "We now have half of a Jap plane."

The cruiser's gunners shot down six planes.

This daylight attack—the Japanese were spotted at 5 P. M.—is something we aboard warships have not seen for a long time.

Usually At Dawn Or Dusk.

Usually the Nipponese raids are staged at dawn or dusk, when it is harder to see the planes.

It took carrier strikes on such a stronghold as Formosa to bring out air retaliation in strength.

About an hour earlier Japanese planes began circling the task force area, after American planes returned from hammering Formosa for the third successive day. Most of the island's many airfields were torn up by mobing, but the Nipdown by Hellcat fighters patrolling the skies.

(Nimitz has reported Japanese aerial counter blows also were aimed at the task forces Wednesday and Thursday nights, United States time, preceding the Friday assault, which apparently was the largest.)

One American squadron knocked down nine enemy planes during the second attack today.

Gets 3 In First Combat

This ship's Hellcats downed ten Japanese, three of which were credited to a young ensign in his first brush with the enemy. Pilot William Garlic, 22, of Summitville, Ind., destroyed the trio, all torpedo planes.

"I spotted the Japs about 30 miles out," he said. "The first two went into the water about 200 yards apart.

"My guns jammed on the first burst at the third plane, but I had one gun left. After we nearly collided, he got behind a squall. I caught up with him and nailed him. "All three planes broke into flames and blew up."

Fear Own Ships' Fire

The anti-aircraft barrage thrown up by the carriers' escort warships was awesome from the bridge. Our fighters showed no hesitancy about chasing the Japanese, but they are always fearful of being caught by their own ships' fire.

Lieut. (j.g.) Luther D. Prater, 22, of Alger, Ohio, kept on the tail o fone Japanese plane, while seeing four other Nip aircraft crash into the sea.

The Japanese plane was traveling at top speed, Prater said, but he closed in and caught his right wing with a blast of gunfire.

"He began smoking, and I let my guns cool, then gave him another burst. I pulled up and watched him nose over and go straight in the water."

Prater became a five-plane ace when that happened.

cific war time) but made no mention of the Formosa engagement in recounting routine aerial strikes from the Kuriles to the Marshalls. This indicated that radio silence prevented the Third Fleet from making further reports.

Nimitz has not confirmed the presence of Japanese surface units in the battle. The Domei (Japanese) news agency, however, quoted a Tokyo Imperial headquarters announcement last night as saying "the Imperial fleet has finally made its appearance off Formosa." The Federal Communications Commission intercepted the wireless dispatch, transmitted to Japanese-occupied areas.

41 More Planes Bagged

American carrier aircraft, sufficiently confident to divide their forces, attacked Formosa for the third consecutive day and Luzon for the sixth time at dawn Friday. Nimitz reported little air opposition was encountered. Preliminary reports indicated 11 Japanese planes were shot down and 30 destroyed aground.

"The Associated Press and the United Press and the British Reuters agency have assumed the attitude as if nothing had happened," said the propaganda broadcast beamed to Japanese occupied territory in China and the southwest Pacific. The broadcast was recorded by the Federal Communications commission.

Asserting that Japanese naval air forces have achieved "brilliant war results" in the Formosa area, the broadcast claimed that the "only thing" released so far by the American and British organizations has been a communique from Adm. Chester W. Nimitz on Oct. 15 saying air forces were engaged in battle.

"They have not mentioned a word about the Japanese Imperial headquarters announcement," it continued, "although it is their rule to make thorough press comments on the Imperial headquarters communique, whether favorable for them or not."

Attacks On 'Fleeing' Forces Pressed, Tokyo Says

San Francisco, Oct. 16 (AP)—Tokyo radio reported today that Japanese naval and air forces, driving home attacks on American carrier forces off Formosa and the Philippines, have knocked out scores of United States ships and set back the "impending invasion of the Philippines by at least two months."

Claims of victory reported in various jubilant Japanese broadcasts varied from 40 to 52 United States warships sunk or damaged. Imperial communiques listed 40, including 11 aircraft carriers sunk and 6 damaged.

The broadcasts, including a report that the long elusive Nipponese fleet had at last come out claim that 52 ships had been sunk or damaged.

This communique said that "war results known to date" at 3 P. M. (Tokyo time) Monday included ten carriers, two battleships, three cruisers and one destroyer, "instantly sunk."

It said three carriers, a battle-

onese have other bases less than 50 miles away, on Luzon.

One enemy bomber, dipping through low-hanging clouds, made a run on this ship at approximately 1,000 feet from the stern. A bomb plopped into the water some 50 feet away. The plane made a fast-climbing getaway that evaded heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Only a few enemy aircraft, however, got through to the vicinity of the ships. As was the case last night, most of them were hunted

U. S. Radio Silence Veils Pacific Battles

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 16 (AP)—A furious air-naval duel off Formosa, which began Friday, went into its third day today, Tokyo reported after officially announcing the imperial fleet had joined the battle.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced yesterday morning that strong Japanese aerial attacks precipitated the engagement in mid-afternoon Friday and said "this fight is continuing." The Nipponese counterattack, their third of the Formosan campaign, followed new American raids on that island and Luzon.

JAPS SAY 17 CARRIERS SUNK IN FORMOSA FIGHT

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS

Glib claims in Japanese propaganda broadcasts that from 40 to 52 American warships, including 17 carriers, have been sunk or damaged in the Formosa area resemble the unconfirmed reports that emanated from the Tokyo radio at the time of the Philippine sea battle last June.

The Nipponese propaganda line in June was that 300 U. S. planes were destroyed and a battleship, a destroyer and a submarine sunk in the air battle that turned back Japan's attempt to interfere with the invasion of Saipan island in the Marianas.

Those claims apparently were put out in an attempt to soften for the Japanese homeland the real results announced by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz as follows:

Japanese losses—402 planes destroyed; four ships, including a carrier, sunk; 13 warships, including a battleship and four carriers damaged.

American losses—122 planes and "superficial damage" to two carriers and a battleship.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16 — (AP) Radio Tokyo complained tonight that American and British news gathering organizations were ignoring the Japanese claims of a great victory over American task forces operating in the Formosa area.

Guadalcanal Hero In Formosa Fight

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 16 (AP)—Vice-Admiral W. A. Lee, Jr., one of the naval heroes of Guadalcanal, is second in command under Admiral William F. Halsey of United States Third Fleet units operating off Formosa.

The current spot of the Owenton (Ky.) admiral was disclosed last night in a Pacific Fleet announcement listing naval commanders in the Formosa action.

Others Are Listed

Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher commands the carrier task force with carrier units commanded by Vice-Admiral J. S. McCain, former deputy chief of naval operations for air; Rear Admiral Frederick C. Sherman, one-time submarine officer who commanded the carrier Lexington when it was torpedoed in the Coral Sea; Rear Admiral R. E. Davison, of St. Louis, Mo.; Rear Admiral G. F. Bogan, who formerly commanded the carrier Saratoga; and Rear Admiral H. B. Sallada, who helped plan expansion of navy aviation as chief of the Plans Division, Bureau of Aeronautics during the first two years of the war.

At Guadalcanal Admiral Lee commanded battleships that broke up Japanese attempts to bring in reinforcements.

B-29S HIT FORMOSA IN RENEWED ATTACK

Two Japanese Bases on Island Are Blasted —Tokyo Says Fleet Is Out Against Halsey's Force at Last.

OCT 17 1944

Washington, Oct. 16 (A. P.).—Superfortresses have attacked Formosa for the second time in forty-eight hours, striking installations at Okayama and Heito. The second mission was accomplished without lo[ss] of aircraft, the Twentieth Air Force said.

An almost complete lack of enemy air opposition in both the attacks of B-29 bombers against Formosa was reported today.

A statement by Gen. H. H. Arnold, commander of the Twentieth Air Force, said that reconnaisance photographs of the first mission made two days ago showed that "all air strips in the target area were inoperable due to bomb damage" and that at least fifty aircraft had been destroyed or damaged on the ground. "Since our targets were somewhat removed from these airfields," the statement added, "it is presumed that most of the damage had been inflicted earlier by Navy carrier-borne attacks, and that the same Navy operations against the island of Formosa are responsible for the lack of enemy air opposition to the B-29 assaults. The result is that the B-29's had a freedom of action for the accomplishment of their missions that might not otherwise have been possible."

Only One B-29 Lost.

Of four B-29s previously unreported on the October 14 mission, the Air Force said, two are safe and ten of the eleven members of the crew are safe from a third plane which crash-landed at a forward base. This leaves only one Superfortress lost on the two missions, both of which carried the heaviest bomb loads so far employed by the big planes.

The text of communique No. 16 follows:

"A large force of B-29 Superfortresses of the Twentieth Bomber Command returned to Formosa today for the second time in forty-eight hours to attack military targets at Okayama and Heito. No aircraft were lost on today's mission, which was accomplished from bases in China.

"The weather over the target areas was good, and very good bombing results were observed by participating crews. The same targets that were attacked on October 14 were struck again at Okayama. Heito is an important Japanese airfield and air-supply depot

Photos Show Results.

"Photo reconnaisance of the October 14 strike against Okayama reveals that the bombing results were excellent. Thirty-seven buildings were totally destroyed and sixteen others heavily damaged, accounting for approximately two-thirds of the target.

"Of the four B-29 aircraft previously unreported on the October 14 mission, two are safe, and ten of the eleven members of the crew are safe from a third plane that crash-landed at a forward base.

"This leaves only one B-29 aircraft lost on two missions within forty-eight hours, both of which were large efforts, carrying the heaviest bomb loads so far employed by the Superfortresses."

Heito is seventeen miles north of Okayama and is on the southwestern coast of Formosa. Both towns are in the area of Takao.

The two missions within forty-eight hours occurred much closer together than any previous Superfortress operations. Since the first mission of the B-29's last June, intervals of more than two weeks have elapsed between strikes. The frequency of the raids apparently has been governed by the ability of the air forces to fly gasoline, bombs and other supplies into China from India.

Little Opposition in Formosa

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP).—An almost complete lack of enemy air opposition in both of the attacks on Formosa by B-29 Superfortress bombers was announced today by the 20th Air Force.

A statement by General H. H. Arnold, commander of the 20th, said that reconnaissance photographs after the first attack made two days ago, showed that "all air strips in the target area were inoperable due to bomb damage," and that at least fifty enemy aircraft had been destroyed or damaged on the ground.

AMERICANS DOWN 49 JAP PLANES IN BORNEO RAID

SPENCER

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Oct. 17 — (AP) The greatest bag of Japanese planes ever downed in a single raid in the Southwest Pacific theater fell to an American bomber-fighter force that dealt a terrific new blow Saturday to Balikpapan, important enemy oil center on Borneo, headquarters announced today.

Forty-nine Japanese were knocked from the air into the inferno of fire and flame that engulfed the strategic oil refineries and other industrial plants of the Borneo refining center. Another 18 Japanese planes were listed as "probably destroyed." Smoke rose to 18,000 feet and fliers reported tremendous explosions.

A total of 390 tons of explosives have been dropped upon Balikpapan in a series of four heavy raids that must have reduced its output disastrously for the Japanese. The raids were on Sept. 30, and Oct. 3, 10 and 14.

In all, 179 Japanese planes have been damaged or destroyed in the four raids, besides the heavy damage done to oil installations that produced 15 per cent of Japanese aviation gasoline and oil.

The flight to Balikpapan is over one of the longest operational routes of its type flown successfully by U. S. air forces, headquarters said. The distance is more than 1,500 miles.

Accompanying a sustantial force of B-24 bombers of the Fifth and Thirteenth air forces, the fighter planes tore into Japanese interceptors that attempted desperately to disrupt the raid. The bombers dropped 140 tons of bombs on the main oil refinery and subordinate plants.

Balikpapan is the largest refinery acquired by the Japanese in 1942 when they took over oil regions of southwest Asia and the Netherlands East Indies. It now is a valuable oil refinery and distribution center aiding the Japanese in keeping their grip on this area.

Beside the Balikpapan raid, today's communique said bombers have struck at airdromes of Ceram and Boeroe, causing damage.

Japs Claim New Allied Weapon

San Francisco, Oct. 16 (AP)—A Japanese dispatch from the Southwest Pacific war front, broadcast by Domei through Radio Tokyo today, indicated Allied forces were using a new weapon in the Rabaul sector of the Bismarck archipelago northeast of New Guinea.

The broadcast, picked up by United States Government monitors, said "the enemy hurled five radio-controlled weapons against our Rabaul position; but these were all shot down by our units."

The dispatch said Allied air raids on Rabaul, where thousands of Japanese soldiers have been bypassed, increased in intensity during the last ten days with a total of 588 planes attacking the base during that period. The Japanese claimed repulse of the attacks with "heavy losses" to the Allies.

[During the past ten days Gen. Douglas MacArthur has reported nine air smashes in the Rabaul sector, with bomb tonnage dropped ranging from 50 to 103. He made no mention of the alleged radio-controlled weapon.]

NEW DRIVE HINTED

Berlin Says Offensive Expected to Break at Geilenkirchen.

LONDON, Tuesday, Oct. 17—(AP) The taut battleline stretching 50 miles between Aachen and the Maas (Meuse) river in Holland bent toward Germany in two places early today and the Berlin radio asserted preparations were being made for a new Allied offensive in that sector.

The Germans were hurled back from Aachen itself and the American pincers were snapped clean through the half-mile gap in the steel ring which had been forged around the city. Doughboys of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodge's First U. S. army came from the north to capture Wurselen and linked up with troops from Crucifix Hill to the south.

Allies Pull Up At Venray

British troops pulled up at the outksirts of Venray, five miles south of the Maas. The German radio reported a Nazi withdrawal in this sector to the railway embankment west of the river, several hundred yards behind the previous enemy positions.

These two Allied advances, though perhaps not significant in themselves, coincided with German reports of a budding offensive in the only two sectors where General Eisenhower's forces have any freedom of movement in the forward battle areas—those held by the British Second and the American First armies.

The German reports said "strong troop reinforcements" had been seen behind Hodges' lines and the Berlin commentator predicted they would be employed in the coming "battle of Geilenkirchen."

Allied sources have not mentioned Geilenkirchen, 10 miles north of Aachen, since a chunk was torn out of the Siegfried Line there a week ago.

Battle to Free Antwerp

The Canadian First army, meanwhile, continued its determined fight to clean out Nazis from the 50-mile Schelde river estuary so the Allies can use the spacious and undamaged port factilities of Antwerp, only 75 miles west of Geilenkirchen.

Another convulsive German counter-attack was shattered by Yank artillery near Weiden, just east of Wufselen, before the infantry and armor of two converging First army columns finally formed a juncture and cut off Aachen's last, thin contact with the outside. Tonight Nazi planes sped across the city, lighted by many fires, and parachuted supplies to the trapped garrison.

Fifty to 60 German tanks were estimated to have been destroyed in the past three days as the enemy launched five heavy counter-attacks in an effort to free Aachen.

At least 10 were smashed today, and there was every indication the Nazis would be back.

Apart from today's main German counter-assault against Crucifix Hill, which dominates Aachen from the northeast, a lesser but bitter one was sent against American troops within the rubbled streets of the city. Members of the garrison threw themselves against the American lines shouting "Heil Hitler," and were repulsed only after savage, bloody fighting. Three-hundred Nazis were taken prisoner.

"There was no question that the Germans were making a major effort to keep Aachen from falling into Lt. Gen. Courtney Hodges' hands," wrote AP Correspondent Don Whitehead from just outside the city. "The First army intends to make an example of this industrial center as a warning to other German cities that the same destruction will be carried to them if the Nazis use them as fortresses."

Canadians Gain in Holland

Canadian troops made steady progress in their crucial battle in Holland to clear the approaches to Antwerp so that great port might be opened to Allied traffic, and Supreme headquarters reported that the Allied sixth army group had "gained momentum" in its advance north of the Belfort gap, advancing within two miles of La Bresse, 24 miles north of Belfort and 32 miles from the Rhine.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army troops were disclosed to have abandoned their 10-day battle for Fort Driant, medieval bastion guarding the French city of Metz. The Doughboys withdrew before dawn Friday from tunnels inside the fortress after wrecking all installations they had held through days of hard, close-quarter fighting.

An Allied spokesman said no more than a battalion of Americans was involved in the attack on the Fort and declared that "much valuable information on the construction of forts in the Metz area" was gained by Yank engineers.

Among the things learned in the attack was that the forts guarding Metz are so arranged that an assault on any one of the chains brings down interlocking fire from all the others. It was found, as well, that the Metz forts are proof against the heaviest field guns even at pointblank range.

British Cross Neder Rhine

British patrols crossed the Neder Rhine on probing expeditions west of Arnhem, where British parachutists made their epic stand that highlighted the Allied thrust into Holland. Otherwise the British Second army front was quiet except for slow progress toward the Dutch town of Venray, southeast of Overloon. Tommies were reported within 2,000 yards of Venray in their push toward the Meuse.

The Paris radio reported, without Allied confirmation, that German resistance along the Schelde estuary in Holland had suddenly collapsed and that "the entrance to Antwerp harbor is now clear." Field dispatches indicated, on the other hand, that the Nazis were holding out along the estuary as long as possible.

Walcheren island, guarding the entrance to the Schelde from the north, was reported to have been 75 per cent flooded from breaches made in dikes by Allied "earthquake" bombs. But the two principal cities, Vlissingen and Middelburg, still were above water, and they were alive with big German guns.

The Canadians joined their three bridgeheads across the Leopold canal in the Watervliet area, giving them a solid holding some four miles deep and more than six miles long south of the Schelde, a firm base for an assault on a German pocket around Breskens. Other Canadians won complete control of Woensdrecht, at the mouth of the causeway leading from the Dutch mainland onto south Beveland and Walcheren islands.

Germans Fight to Death

German troops were reported to be fighting to the death within three to four miles of their main defense line through the southernmost passes of the Vosges. Several Nazi prisoners captured in a bitter battle for a gate through the mountains to the Colmar-Mulhouse plain along the Rhine told Allied officers they had been threatened with reprisals against their families at home if they yielded ground.

It was, of course, impossible to tell whether such reprisals actually were being carried out by the Gestapo.

GAINS MADE ON LONG FRONT

But Patton's Men Pull Out of Fort Driant After Weird Ten-day Battle.

London, Oct. 16 (A. P.).—The last thin lifeline of the Nazi garrison of Aachen was cut today by American forces which made a junction from positions north and northeast of the city.

The junction was made at Wurselen, three miles north of the city, by the American First Army which crushed five counter-attacks in three days and knocked out fifty to sixty of the enemy's tanks. Wurselen was mopped up in the process.

With the city completely locked by encircling forces, the Germans were reduced to supply the garrison by parachute.

Elsewhere Allied forces sent patrols across the Neder Rhine in Holland, clamped a two-[illegible] hold on the sea approa[illegible] Antwerp in Belgium [illegible]

tured a dozen towns, villages and forts in a broad advance in the Vosges which took French troops to within thirty-two miles of the Rhine.

At Aachen, American troops fought off the third German counter-smash in twenty-four hours and edged forward by blocks inside the city. Operations were proceeding slowly—with a deliberation intended to save American lives.

But along the Moselle the bitter battle inside Fort Driant ended unsuccessfully after ten days of close-quarter combat. American forces withdrew there before dawn Friday, it was announced today. The fort, with its maze of underground passages, mushroom pillboxes and steel doors had taken everything big American guns and planes could give it. Installations the Americans had occupied were wrecked before the withdrawal from this bastion guarding the French city of Metz.

Nazis Attack Crazily.

The Americans around Aachen threw a German charge off Crucifix Ridge, northeast of the city, and in cold and bloody fighting turned back a counter-attack inside the city by Nazis crazily screaming "Heil Hitler" as they rushed the American lines.

Thirty enemy tanks had been knocked out yesterday and today by artillery and planes at Aachen, a staff officer estimated.

British patrols crossing the Neder Rhine to feel out the Nazis where British "Red Devil" parachutists failed three weeks ago to hold the bridgehead menacing Adolf Hitler's comparatively defenseless northern frontier, were a tentative threat to Nazis fighting fanatically in the western Netherlands.

Canadians were waging a crucial battle for the opening of Antwerp as a supply port before winter's gales, and the drive in the Vosges, on the south of the long Allied front, aimed at clearing the snowy range before winter. Supreme Headquarters said the Sixth Army group, comprising the First French Army and the Seventh American Army, had "gained momentum" in the advance north of the Belfort Gap.

Four Towns Freed

"Gains were made against strong resistance along a wide front and several towns were freed," including Baccarat, Glonville, Fontenoy, and Fremifontaine, the communique said.

For three hours today the Germans gave furious battle with infantry and tanks in a desperate counterattack at Aachen, but a storm of American steel smashed the effort to knife through to the besieged Nazi garrison, field dispatches reported. Four enemy tanks were knocked out.

Nazis Claim Some Gains

With rain clouds hanging low over the battlefield, infantry and artillery, with tank support, had to stop the German attack without the support of aircraft.

German accounts and the headquarters communique itself indicated, however, that the Germans had made some small gains in their determined counterattacks. The headquarters communique said Allied planes had bombed Wurselen, three miles north of Aachen, a part of which at least had previously been held by American troops.

Berlin said Verlautenheide, two miles northeast of Aachen, which had been taken by the southern jaw of the American pincers about Aachen, had been recaptured, along with the village of Knopp.

Artillery Fire Heaviest Yet

Over the German radio came a report that the Aachen home guard is engaged in "a desperate struggle to keep open a very narrow corridor leading into Aachen." It gave this picture of punishment within the city:

"Artillery fire suprasses all previous barrages. Every village, large or small, is exposed to the incessant fire of the heavy guns. Every orchard that may hide a strongpoint is showered with grenades."

"They have been given the order that, come what may, Aachen's lifeline must not be severed," the broadcast said.

Aachen Pounded Pitilessly

But the German countereffort apparently had not slowed down the power of the American assault on the city itself. It was proceeding with a deliberateness calculated to save the lives of American soldiers.

Aachen was gripped in a vise of steel and pounded as pitilessly as were Warsaw and Stalingrad, with the German high command ruthlessly sacrificing its industrial future for a generation in a dogged attempt to bulwark the break in the Siegfried Line.

The Allied communique told tersely of pressure "against stubborn resistance from mortar fire and dug-in tanks."

Warning To Nazi Cities

There was no question that the Germans were making a major effort to hold Aachen, and the First Army intends to make an example of this industrial center as a warning to other German cities that the same destruction will be carried to them if the Nazis use them as fortresses.

North of Aachen, American infantry, supported by tanks and heavy artillery, attacked the thin corridor that the Germans have fought frantically to maintain.

Prisoners taken by the First Army since D-day total 194,718. In addition, the army has buried 14,789 Germans.

The Schelde Fighting

The Paris radio said German resistance east and southeast of the Schelde pocket west of Antwerp had suddenly collapsed and "the entrance to Antwerp harbor is now clear."

But this was not confirmed either by headquarters or by field dispatches, which indicated rather that the Germans were clinging to their watchdog gunposts on each side of the Schelde estuary as long as possible.

Swiftly capitalizing upon a link-up along the western shore of Savojaargs Plaat, Canadian troops plunged westward and joined their Leopold Canal bridgehead forces in the Watervliet area.

Bridgeheads Joined

Three Canadian bridgeheads across the canal and west of the Savojaargs inlet thus were joined, and an area four miles deep and more than six miles long consolidated south of the Schelde.

With a firm base organized for an assault on the final German positions in the pocket around Breskens, other Canadian outfits drove north of Antwerp and finally clinched control of Woensdrecht—at the mouth of the causeway leading to Zuid Beveland and Walcheren, the islands guarding the north side of the Estuary.

Woensdrecht had been a disputed place, with the Germans holding part of the village for days and driving the Canadians completely out for a brief period yesterday.

Nazi Guns On Dikes Still Fire

Walchern Island was reported three-fourths flooded from breaches in dikes caused by Allied earthquake bombs, but the Germans' elevated guns on the dikes could still fire and the two principal cities, Vlissingen (Flushing) and Middelburg, were still above water.

Freeing of Antwerp to Allied supplies was high in the priority of Allied operations.

To the east, the British Second Army's patrols struck northward across the Neder Rhine near Renkum, five miles west of Arnhem, where British "Red Devil" parachutists made one of the war's most heroic stands before giving up the bridgehead that might have permitted Allied troops to sweep into northern Germany.

It was in the Renkum area that a German toehold south of the Dutch Rhine was liquidated only a few days ago.

British Regain Ground

On the eastern reaches of their Dutch salient the British regained ground in an advance toward Vierlingsbeek, 17 miles southeast of Ijmegen and three miles from the German border.

The Germans appeared to be withdrawing farther south and the capture of Venray appeared imminent. The village of Smakt, two miles due east of Overloon and seven from the German border, was captured [illegible]

Diary Found at Aachen Shows Fading Morale

OCT 17 1944

Aachen, Oct. 15 (Delayed) (A. P.).—In the clothing of a dead German sergeant, American soldiers found a diary today which indicated what the pulverizing attack on Aachen is doing to the morale of some enemy troops. Here was its final entry, dated October 2, and showing, incidentally, that "Franz" had been too busy to keep it up:

"It is almost midnight; it is only sixty meters to the American lines. For five days the iron language of the front has been drumming in my ears.

"How different it is here from Russia! There the eternal brrrp of the machine gun and the roaring of the steppes of Asia. Here, the uninterrupted and nerve-wracking artillery and mortar fire.

"We are in this position in the Aachen area with continuous uneasiness in our hearts that we might be encircled. Nobody told us anything about the danger, but everybody can see for himself that the circle around us is being closed.

"An enemy loudspeaker announces clearly 'German soldiers, surrender! You are encircled. Our planes bomb Aachen. Our artillery shells Aachen. You have no other way out.'

"Is that actually true? Then we hear some recent hit songs until the finale comes with a tremendous barrage from all the guns around Aachen.

"There is nothing else which could be more demoralizing. What would my wife say, or my parents, if they knew about me right now? I wonder whether I'll see them again. Must I end like Loisl, in the front at Stalingrad? I'm afraid nobody knows the answer to all these questions, but the Lord might protect me

Big Mediterranean Port Proves Headache To Allies

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP)—The great Mediterranean port of Marseille is providing a headache to French and Allied authorities attempting to maintain order along military supply lines, conversations with responsible army and navy officials disclose.

American soldiers and truck drivers have been shot at under various circumstances. Their trucks or ducks have been robbed of gasoline or rations—both extremely valuable in a region where the food supply is most stringent and transport is difficult to obtain.

French authorities and the legitimate French Forces of the Interior have been engaged in nocturnal street battles with outlaws masquerading as FFI members or Vichy military organization. On one occasion the battles continued more than a week.

Ducks In Night Convoys

American authorities countered by running ducks in convoy at night and placing armed guards on each, while French officials ordered all persons except members of the regular army or regularly organized FFI units to turn in their arms. The French also made a show with a military parade containing elements of three divisions.

The American commander placed all United States personnel under an 8 P. M. curfew after a civil affairs driver was fatally shot near Toulon. Two psychological warfare officers were injured near Marseille. Later the curfew order was rescinded.

Thirty Cases Cited

In an official statement French authorities and civil affairs officers minimized the extent of the disturbances, but a tally of shootings as recounted by army and navy officers showed a score of nearly 30 cases, including near misses. The civil affairs driver was the only verifiable death.

Vichy militiamen or Gestapo agents were blamed for many incidents, but a spokesman for Ray-

2 PORTS BUILT FOR INVASION

Prefabricated Harbors Floated to France.

OCT 17 1944

London, Oct. 16 (A. P.).—Two artificial harbors, built in secret and floated across the English Channel, explain the riddle of how the Allies were able to supply their ground troops which swept through northern France while the Germans held every port but Cherbourg.

In disclosing the use of these harbors, Supreme Headquarters said last night that they "made possible the liberation of western Europe."

Floating steel barges, 150 concrete caissons or floating boxes and seven miles of prefabricated pier equipment divided into segments 480 feet long were used to make the harbors along with a flotilla of old ships sent to the channel bottom to provide part of the breakwater system.

Storm Wrecks One Harbor.

The worst channel storm in forty years wrecked one of the harbors before it was completed, but not before it had contributed heavily to the stream of men and equipment pouring into France. The other was finished as planned—a port as big as Dover, capable of unloading at least 12, 000 tons of stores and 2,500 vehicles daily.

Construction of the harbors was started in June, 1943, when American and British operations officers decided that French ports falling into Allied hands during the invasion could not possibly have the capacity for the quantity of stores necessary.

When sunk the flotilla of old vessels, including several British and Dutch warships, provided five small breakwaters of which two were in the areas where the artificial harbors later were established.

Capt. Moran Collected Tugs.

Each concrete floating box had valves making it possible to sink or float them as desired. These boxes plus the floating line of steel barges anchored farther out in the water were designed to reduce an eight-foot wave to one or two feet.

Capt. Edmond J. Moran of New York, on leave from Washington as deputy assistant administrator for the War Shipping Administration, collected 130 tugs from the British Navy and Merchant Marine and from the Dutch Navy for the towing job.

Capt. A. D. Clark of the American Navy, whose home is in East Orange, N. J., had charge of fitting the pieces of the artificial harbor into place in France.

Somervell Cites Supplies Landed In 109 Days

New York, Oct. 16 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, commander of the Army Service Forces, disclosed tonight that during the first 109 days of the invasion the Allies landed nearly 2,500,000 troops, 500,000 vehicles, and 17,000,000 ship tons of munitions, vehicles and supplies.

"Blitz may be a German word, but we've given it an American accent," Somervell said in a speech at the first session of the New York Herald Tribune annual forum.

12,000,000 Veterans, Topic

Nine other speakers joined with Somervell in discussing the topic, "Twelve Million Veterans—a New Force," the first subject of the three-day forum's general theme, "Builders of the World Ahead."

Somervell, recently returned from a service and supply inspection tour in Italy and southern France, gave the invasion figures on "these things that the German generals boasted we could not accomplish and which today are proven facts."

The 17,000,000 ship tons of supplies, he said, are "more than twice the total General Pershing received through friendly ports in the 19 months of the first World War," while the 500,000 vehicles landed represent "four vehicles a minute, day and night . . . and we're still landing them."

Highest Stakes In History

Terming the Red Ball motor route across France from the beaches to the battle lines a "race course with the highest stakes in history," Somervell said:

"Convoys on this road move endlessly at high speed. They are hauling . . . ammunition, food, fuel, clothing. Repair trucks prowl the route, ready to give quick aid. Spare vehicles stand by; if repairs will take long, cargo is transferred and speeded on its way.

"Every minute, day and night, a fresh truckload of supplies starts up the Red Ball toward the front. Upon the skill and stamina of these young drivers, many of them Negroes, may rest the outcome of the battle and the fate of the civilized world. . . .

1,000,000 Gallons A Day

"Our troops on the Continent are getting at least 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline a day. We already have laid down 800 miles of six-inch pipeline, reaching from the channel and the Mediterranean toward the front.

"On one airfield we saw more planes unloading supplies and loading casualties than there are on all the commercial airlines in this country combined. Already more than 50,000 wounded men have been flown to hospitals in England and 12,000 across the Atlantic to hospitals at home. . . .

"The Germans," Somervell said, "destroyed roads and bridges, and our army engineers rebuilt them fast enough so that we constantly were tramping on their heels. . . . And when our divisions break through the present line, the engineers will be with them, and they'll have bridges to cross the Rhine, too. . . .

Spread Own Wire Network

"Because the Germans wrecked most French telephone and telegraph systems, our signal corps men are spreading their own communications network from the Atlantic toward the Rhine. . . . The railroad bridges and yards . . . were destroyed. Our people rebuilt them, landed thousands of American locomotives and cars, now are shipping nearly 100,000 tons of supplies a week by rail. . . .

"The ceaseless flow of the products of our farms and mines and factories here at home advances steadily, on a timetable that is methodical and accurate. Each man has his job to do, knows what it is and how to do it, and does it with all his might. . . .

"There are no idle hands, anywhere from the shore line to the front. Nor is there an idle railroad engine or an idle truck."

Nazis Admit Death of Rommel

OCT 17 1944

Famed German Marshal Succumbs to Injuries Received in Allied Air Attack.

London, Oct. 16 (A. P.).—Doubt over the fate of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, famed commander of the Afrika Korps and one of the ablest leaders in the German Army, was dispelled yesterday when the Berlin radio announced that he had died of wounds.

Rumors of Rommel's death had been current since late July when Allied field dispatches quoted German prisoners as saying he had succumbed to injuries suffered when the car was strafed by Allied planes in Normandy. The Germans subsequently denied his death, but acknowledged he had suffered a brain concussion and other injuries in an automobile accident during a strafing attack on July 17.

The Berlin broadcast yesterday did not say how Marshal Rommel was wounded or when he had died, but said Adolf Hitler had ordered a state funeral. The announcement described him as one of Germany's "most successful army leaders."

Drove to Gates of Alexandria.

Marshal Rommel, who became known as the "Desert Fox" during the African campaign, when his troops drove the British to the gates of Alexandria before they were stopped in 1942 by the British Eighth Army, was ground commander of German forces in Normandy at the time of the Allied invasion.

He was reported to have quarreled with Field Marshal Gen. Karl Von Rundstedt—then overall German commander in western Europe—concerning tactics used in combatting the invasion. On July 6 the Berlin radio announced that Marshal Von Rundstedt had been replaced by Field Marshal Gen. Guenther Von Kluge in a move that apparently was a victory for Marshal Rommel.

A veteran of the first world war, in which he fought with distinction, Marshal Rommel joined the Hitler movement in its early stages and later was considered a great favorite of the Fuehrer. He won promotion to field marshal at the age of 50 during the summer of 1942 for his up-to-then successful campaign in North Africa, becoming the youngest German officer ever to hold that rank.

During the early phases of the present war he took part in the invasion of Poland and commanded a tank corps during the conquest of Belgium and France.

New York, Oct. 16—Adolf Hitler will speak at the State funeral for Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, the London radio said tonight in a broadcast recorded by CBS.

King George Back After Front Tour

London, Oct. 16 (AP) — King George VI returned to London tonight after a five-day tour of the battle areas in Holland and Belgium.

He flew to the front Wednesday in a C-37 transport escorted by Spitfire fighters. The King was greeted at an airfield in Holland by Field Marshal Sir Bernard Montgomery, 21st Army Group commander.

Making his fifth visit to the battle lines during the war, the King first visited headquarters of the British Second Army, commanded by Lieutenant General Sir Miles Dempsey, and tthen inspected the Canadian First Army headquarters.

Allies Take 570,185

London, Oct. 16 (AP) — Allied armies have captured at least 570,185 prisoners since D-day, with 400,185 of them caged by the four American armies in the field.

Latest official totals on the campaign since June 6:

U. S. First Army	194,718
U. S. Third Army	96,155
U. S. Seventh Army	90,000
U. S. Ninth Army	19,312
British Second Army	78,681
Canadian First Army	72,392
French Forces of the Interior with the British and Canadian armies	18,927
Total	570,185

Two other armies are in the field but their prisoners have not been announced. These are the First Allied Airborne Army in Holland and the French First Army before the Belfort Gap. All totals except that of the United States First Army are several days behind the actual count.

The prisoner totals are for the Western front only.

U. S. Doctors Halt Cholera Spread

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP)—Prompt action by United States army medical authorities averted the spread of cholera or the bubonic plague in Algiers early this month when the disease broke out among the native population.

A special plane from Oran took anti-cholera serum into Algiers after an unverified number of deaths. Some reports placed the deaths as high as a score.

The entire city was declared off limits to American personnel stationed outside Algiers—most of them in service and supply units at airfields. Currently, a small number of American officers and troops within the city are restricted to their billets, mess halls and offices.

Persons entering and leaving the area were checked for cholera inoculation. Within a week the situation was reported under control.

Admiral Placed Under Arrest

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP)—The French Navy Ministry today announced the arrest of Admiral Jean de la Borde, commander of the fleet at Toulon who gave the order in November, 1942, to scuttle the ships at that Mediterranean base.

The admiral is accused of not taking steps to insure the fleet's escape to North Africa when the Germans seized the port.

Vichyite Reported Executed

New York, Oct. 16 (AP)—The Paris newspaper Ce Soir said tonight that Rear Admiral Rene Platon, former Vichy Secretary of State for Colonies and food counsellor for the Marshal Petain regime, has been shot at Le Mans after a military trial, the Brazzaville radio reported in a broadcast recorded by CBS.

De Gaulle Confers With Giraud

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP)—Gen. Henri Giraud and Gen Charles de Gaulle conferred Saturday for the first time since the former French commander-in-chief returned to France, and there was speculation today that Giraud might resume an active military or governmental role.

A War Ministry spokesman said the generals' meeting was "cordial," but did not announce their topic.

Giraud, who was established by the Allies as the French civil and military chieftain in North Africa when Americans and Britons invaded that continent, was reported to have been offered a Cabinet post or command of a French army on the Rhineland front.

Not In Paris Papers

Official circles expressed belief that any decision would be held in abeyance until the Cabinet meets on Wednesday. Paris newspapers carried no reports on the conversations.

Giraud has been living in retirement near Oran in Africa since last Easter. Recently he was wounded in the cheek by a Moroccan soldier.

The possibility of his reemergence as a military figure was attributed to certain French generals, to moderates among the resistance groups, and to right-wing elements of the French Forces of the Interior. These are mostly former army officers who helped organize the "Secret Army" while Giraud still was commander in chief at Algiers. Some said the organization was undertaken by direction of Giraud.

Secret Army Merged

The Secret Army later was merged with Communistic elements into the FFI.

Giraud sentiment is reported particularly strong throughout the Savoie and Jura region, where the French command maintained secret aerial liaison with Algiers for more than a year before Giraud's disappearance from the North African political scene.

Giraud appeared last week in Lyon and dedicated a bridge repaired by the local FFI. He made a short speech praising the work of the underground. Many army officers esteem Giraud as a military leader with no political ambitions. His supreme aim, as often expressed in Algiers, is to lead an army capturing his home town of Metz.

French Issue Appeal For Blankets, Clothing

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP)—War has left 500,000 persons homeless in Normandy alone, the French Government said today in issuing an appeal to the French people to donate blankets and clothing to aid these victims who are facing a winter of suffering.

In its sweep across France the war has left the city of Caen four fifths destroyed and Coutances and Avranches three quarters destroyed.

A report issued in London tonight by Secours Social, a society for the alleviation of distress among French war victims, listed other hard-hit cities as Le Havre, which "has disappeared"; St. Malo, "completely destroyed," and Cannes.

Lineup Of New French Assembly Announced

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP)—The French Government has announced that the division of the parliamentary section of the enlarged and revised Consultative Assembly has given the Radical Socialists and affiliated groups 21 of the 60 seats.

The Socialists have been given 15 seats, the Rightist groups 17 and the Communists seven.

Parisiennes Brave Rain To See Fashions Shown

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP) — Women braved a drenching rain in multicolored bicycle-trailer taxis today for a showing by the fashion house of Balenciaga.

Mannequins exhibited black toreador hots, boleros, fringed shawls and tassel-bordered square yokes on black velvet coats. A cream-colored lace gown with a pale green velvet bodice and a Spanish mantilla in lace-bordered velvet convertible into a shoulder shawl featured the show. Large neck bows in light colors brightened costumes.

REDS EXTEND RAILWAY HOLD

Spread 175 Miles Along Balkan Line—Battle In Belgrade

London, Tuesday, Oct. 17 (AP)—The battle for Belgrade developed into hand-to-hand fighting in the streets at the center of the city last night while combined forces of Russian, Bulgarian and Yugoslav troops spread out along the Trans-Balkan Railway to a distance of 175 miles south of the Yugoslav capital.

This stranglehold on the main rail route leading north from Athens threatened to choke off the retreat of large German forces from Greece even before the combined drive westward had made more than a dent into Yugoslavia.

Confirms Capture Of Nis

The Russian communique announced that the important highway and railway junction of Nis, 125 miles southeast of Belgrade had been captured by united action.

Seizure of the city already had been announced Saturday by the Bulgarians, who apparently, from the language of the Russian communique, played the biggest role in this action.

Moscow said: "The Bulgarian army, operating against the Germans together with troops of the Yugoslav National Liberation Army and with our troops have captured in fighting on the territory of Yugoslavia the town and railway junction of Nis."

Railroad Straddled

Moscow's announcement tonight, however, said that this combined drive had rolled up additional successes, straddling the railroad as far down as Vranje, 52 miles south of Nis. In the process the combined forces captured Leskovac, 21 miles south of Nis, and punched 13 miles westward, taking Lebane.

The liberation of Belgrade seemed imminent. The Algiers radio said two thirds of the city already had been freed and that the Russians with Marshal Tito's Partisans had fought their way to Belgrade's principal square. This description said two German divisions were caught inside the city and that their position was "hopeless."

The Germans themselves said Russian tanks had broken into the inner defenses of the capital. The Russian communique said only that Red army troops with Partisan units, "are fighting for the capital of Yugoslavia," but added that 1,500 prisoners had been taken in the suburbs.

Nazis Quit North Finland

Another German broadcast declared the Soviet autumn offensive "is in full swing along the 3,600-mile front from Petsamo to Yugoslavia," and added that the bulk of German forces in northern Finland had withdrawn to the Norwegian frontier "after frustrating encirclement attempts by reinforced Russian armies."

For the fifth straight night the Moscow communique omitted any reference to fighting in Hungary. From other sources there came reports of a giant tank battle on the plains south of Debrecen. Mobile Soviet columns, fighting for Kecskemet and Szolnok, were about 50 miles from Budapest, the capital.

At the same time this wedge was being driven into Hungary from the southeast by Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army. Combined Russian and Romanian forces were sweeping close to the northern borders of Transylvania.

They enveloped more than 100 populated places Monday, Moscow's communique announced, and captured the railroad station of Borsa, only 11 miles from the old Polish frontier.

The third side of this triangular trap was being closed from the north by another Russian army smashing through the Carpathian passes into Slovakia.

Take Towns In Latvia

Far to the north, Soviet troops which Friday captured Riga, capital and principal port of Latvia, pushed southwestward along the coast and took at least 16 populated places.

Insterburg, a transportation hub in the northern sector of East Prussia, was heavily raided by Russian bombers Sunday night, Moscow said, reporting three military trains were blown up and fires started.

Along the whole front during the previous day's fighting, 93 German tanks were disabled or destroyed and 57 aircraft shot down, bringing to a total of 1,387 tanks and 450 planes the number the Russians claim to have knocked out in ten days' fighting.

Petsamo's Loss Slices German Escape Route

London, Oct. 16 (AP)—The German sea escape route from northern Finland has been cut with the capture of the Arctic port of Petsamo and Red army tanks were reported today to have won an important road junction close to the Norwegian border.

Pravda of Moscow described the newly-won highway center as the "key to Norway," without naming it further and said it had been captured after Russian forces beat off a counterattack by a German armored column retreating toward Norway.

Two Divisions Reported Routed

Also, Pravda said, the land and sea asault on Petsamo, capture of which was announced officially by Moscow last night, routed two choice enemy Alpine divisions in a three-hour battle.

(Finnish troops have reached the heights overlooking Rovaniemi, German stronghold in northwestern Finland, and now hold positions along a broad stretch of the Kemi river, a Helsinki communique announced today.)

Moscow did not report on progress of the Red army in Hungary, where Hungarian Nazis were reported to have imposed a rule of terror following an armistice petition by Regent Nicholas Horthy.

Reported In Belgrade

The battle for Belgrade was not mentioned in the official Soviet communique, but Berlin acknowledged that Russian troops and tanks and Marshal Tito's Yugoslav Partisans had fought their way into the city after reaching the outskirts Saturday.

Berlin implied also that other Soviet troops had crossed into German East Prussia on a 27-mile front in the Memel territory.

Three-Mile Gain In Latvia

Moscow announced Red army troops had advanced three miles west of the fallen Latvian capital, Riga, as they steadily herded Nazis into the narrow trap sprung when the Soviet First Baltic army reached the Lithuanian coast north of Memel.

In Yugoslavia, the Russians announced the fall of Pozarevac, an important communications point 36 miles southeast of Belgrade, and also Krusevac, 95 miles southeast of the capital.

Big Tank Battle.

Other Moscow dispatches described the tank battle on the Hungarian Plains as one of the heaviest of the war and the Soviet communique announced that 143 German tanks had been knocked out Saturday. This made a nine-day total of 1,294 German tanks destroyed on the basis of Moscow bulletins, and presumably most of the toll was taken in the battle that has forced Hungary to her knees.

In Transylvania the Russians and Romanians took fifty more localities, Moscow announced, including Dej, rail junction twenty-six miles north of the fallen capital of Cluj.

FINNISH TROOPS GAIN

Stockholm, Oct. 16 (A. P.).—Finnish troops have reached the heights overlooking Rovaniemi, German stronghold in northwestern Finland, and now hold positions along a broad stretch of the Kemi River, a Helsinki communique announced today.

BULGARS DISCUSS ARMISTICE TERMS

MOSCOW, Oct. 16 — (AP) The Bulgarian Armistice delegation headed by Foreign Minister Petko Stainov discussed peace terms today with American, British and Russ[illegible] representatives and quick agreement was expected.

Armistice terms were reported almost completely drafted by the United Nations before Stainov and his party left Sofia. Because of the detailed preliminary consultations among the Allied Powers the negotiations with the Bulgarian representatives probably will set a "speed record" for armistices in Moscow.

One of the most difficult issues was disposed of last week when the Sofia government agreed to withdraw troops from Greek and Yugoslav territory.

It was believed the Allied governments would concur in demanding that Bulgaria make reparations for whatever damage was suffered by Greece and Yugoslavia from acts of Bulgarian occupation forces.

If the Romanian precedent is followed, the United States and Britain will keep representatives in the country but the chief responsibility for supervising the fulfillment of the armistice terms would rest on the Red army command.

The Bulgarian delegation attended the ballet last night at the Bolshoi theater where the night before Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin had appeared together.

ACCORD SOUGHT ON POLISH DISPUTE

MOSCOW, Oct. 16 — (AP) Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden conferred today with Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk and Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer of the Polish government-in-exile amid strong indications of an early Soviet-Polish agreement.

As yet, however, there has been no face to face discussion of intra-Polish problems between the London Polish government-in-exile and the Soviet-sponsored Polish National Committee of Liberation although a meeting is in prospect. Reports the rival groups had met last Friday were erroneous.

U. S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and Romer met this morning and later Mikolajczyk, Romer and Stanislas Grabski, president of the Polish state council in London, conferred with Eden. Grabski is regarded as an authority on frontier issues.

Churchill and Mikolajczyk conferred for more than two hours yesterday with Eden and Romer sitting in, but the two prime ministers did most of the talking and London Poles felt today's meeting would be the last preliminary to an agreement with the Russians.

The presence of Grabski strengthened the belief that until now the principal matter for Anglo-Soviet-Polish debate has been an attempt to obtain an agreement between the Russians and the Poles on where the Soviet western boundary would be drawn.

There have been indirect hints also that Poland's western frontier with Germany had been discussed.

If Poland's national territory could be defined to the satisfaction of all interested Allied powers, then it was believed a formula for a coalition government for liberated Poland would be much less difficult to find.

Some Pole Angles Near Decision

Moscow, Oct. 16 (AP)—The news agency Tass reported a political crisis today in Romania with "the National Democratic Front," which it said was organized by the Communist and Social Democratic parties, seeking authorization from King Mihai to form a new Government without the support of the Peasant and Liberal parties.

Moscow, Oct. 16 (AP)—One or more aspects of the Polish question appeared near a decision today.

With all official quarters rigidly silent, observers furnished these bare facts:

United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and Polish Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer met this morning. British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden at noon received Polish Prime Minister Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, Romer and Stanislaw Grabski, president of the Polish National Council.

Confer For Two Hours

As yet no face to face discussions have taken place between London and Lublin Poles but these were in prospect.

Mikolajczyk and British Prime Minister Churchill had conversations lasting more than two hours yesterday. Eden and Romer sat in but the two Prime Ministers did most of the talking. Later in the day Mikolajczyk and Romer were closeted with Eden.

Gen. Deane At Parley

Yesterday Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin conferred for an hour with British and American military representatives in what was understood to be a broad over-all discussion on how to bring the war in Europe to a speedy close.

The senior statesmen met with Maj. Gen. J. Russell Deane, chief of the United States military mission to the Soviet Union; Lieut. Gen. Brocas Burrows, chief of the British military mission; Field Marshal General Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the British imperial staff, and General Sir Hastings Ismay, Churchill's chief of staff.

NAZIS SET UP NEW REGIME IN HUNGARY

Fighting Between Groups Reported; Horthy Said To Have "Retired"

London, Tuesday, Oct. 17 (AP). The Germans announced early today there had been "an attempted coup" in the puppet state of Slovakia and that a former Slovak Defense Minister and five other officers had deserted to the anti-German Partisans. A German news agency broadcast said the former Defense Minister, Gen. Ferdinand Catlos, and the other officers had been charged with treason and desertion.

London, Oct. 16 (AP)—Pro-Nazi Hungarians, with the backing of the German army and Gestapo, sought tonight to hold their country in the war on Germany's side.

While neutral sources pictured the collapsing nation in a turmoil of free-for-all fighting, the Nazi sympathizers, led by Ferenc Szalasi, announced on the Budapest radio that they had installed a new government after "retirement" of Regent Admiral Nicholas Horthy and the resignation of Horthy's government.

Claims Peace Bid Revoked

The broadcast included a statement that Horthy had agreed to resign to make way for Szalasi and had issued a proclamation "revoking" the plea for an armistice which he had addressed to the Allies yesterday.

No indication of Horthy's whereabouts was given.

The new government immediately proclaimed imposition of a stringent curfew on Budapest and a series of repressive decrees aimed at Jews and dissidents.

Air-raid warnings sounded practically clear across Hungary tonight and the Red army, fighting on the central plains, was reported less than 50 miles from Budapest.

Names Regency Council

Szalasi has named himself acting Regent and Prime Minister of Hungary, has appointed a new pro-German Cabinet and, according to the Budapest radio, named a new regency council composed of Col. Gen. Karoly Bereczky, who also was named chief of staff and Minister of Defense; Dr. Ferenc Rajniss, known as the "Hungarian Goebbels," and Dr. Sandor Csia.

Breaking its silence on the recent Hungarian developments, the Berlin radio tonight hailed the pro-Nazi coup in Budapest as a "full victory which marks the end of all negotiations with the Allies or the Russians and assures close collaboration with Germany.

Says Clique Is Eliminated

The Germans claimed Sunday's armistice broadcast "had an alien author and was delivered against Horthy's will." It added that Horthy was the victim of "a traitorous clique who have now been eliminated, so a similar attempt cannot happen again."

"A tragedy has been averted and now divisions which have been held back in Budapest are being brought to the Debrecen plain, where Hungary's fate is being decided in the battle with the Russians," the broadcast concluded.

From German, Hungarian and neutral reports it appeared that German troops still were fighting the Russians on Hungarian soil that some Hungarian troops—loyal to Admiral Horthy—had turned against the Germans; that some Hungarians were battling Partisan bands operating on a large scale behind the lines, while others were joining the Partisans.

Moscow continued to maintain official silence of several days on the Hungarian operations of the Red army, whose armored columns were last reported less than 50 miles from Budapest.

The Ankara radio reported that the chaos in Budapest was increasing, with tanks patrolling the streets, some members of the Horthy regime in hiding and others in flight across the frontier.

One Radio Repeats Peace Bid

[Repetition of Admiral Horthy's proclamation by one Budapest station today indicated his adherents may have regained control of part of the transmission facilities.]

A Nazi military commentator quoted by Transocean insisted that "events in Budapest have had no influence whatsoever on military operations in Hungary or the Hungarian army."

He said the Vitalti river front was "still firmly in German and Hungarian hands" and that the great tank battle of the Hungarian plains was "still raging."

Rail Strike Reported

Military quarters in London conceded the Germans might have some chance of fighting a better delaying action in Hungary than they did in Romania after that country quit Hitler, because they already were in complete control of Hungary's railroads before Horthy acted.

Hungarian sources in Switzerland, however, reported that the country's railwaymen had gone on strike. These sources said some Hungarian soldiers had turned their backs on the front and were marching to oust the Nazis from Budapest, where the Germans were reported in control of all strategic buildings.

That Partisan bands fighting behind the lines were playing a vital role in the Hungarian crackup was indicated in orders issued by Lajos Csatay, then Defense Minister, during the week end, just before Horthy's dramatic move.

These orders, reported officially from Budapest, called for the immediate organization of national guard units "in every village in Hungary not yet occupied" by the Russians. They emphasized the "havoc" being caused by the Partisan groups.

Admiral Horthy's whereabouts were not known here. Unless he made a quick dash for the Russian lines—similar to Marshal Pietro Badoglio's flight from Rome last year after Italy's capitulation—he may be in imminent danger of liquidation by Szalasi and his Nazi-mined followers.

Hungarians Said To Be Fighting Amona Selves

London, Oct. 16 (AP)—Hungary has toppled into political chaos after Regent Nicholas Horthy's bid for peace.

Horthy's quick eclipse—at least on the Budapest radio—by Count Ferencz Szalasy's last-ditch crowd of Nazis only emphasized that Hungarians were fighting among themselves instead of against the invading Red army. Reports via Stockholm today said that in some places they were fighting the Germans, too.

This all added up to a melting of the barrier between the Red army and a great drive past Budapest to Vienna and a possible final decision in the East.

Buildings Seized

The Germans took quick measures to stave off the debacle but admitted through the official German news agency DNB that Horthy's petition for an armistice had "greatly damaged the waging of the war."

Berlin dispatches to Stockholm newspapers said Nazi troops swiftly took over all strategic buildings in Budapest and that a new government shortly would "try to get Hungarian troops to continue battle on the German side."

One report said Horthy had escaped arrest and was holding out in a strongly fortified castle.

Declaration Promised

A Transocean broadcast from Germany said a "detailed declaration" on the Hungarian developments would be forthcoming later. Meanwhile, Berlin's morning papers refrained from mentioning Hungary.

That Hitler and his advisors should pause for some fast thinking before explaining the Hungarian collapse to the German people was only natural.

It was far more than the defection of Hitler's last satellite—it must seem to any German like the crashing of the gate guarding the Reich's most vulnerable area.

Pro-German elements, presumably aided by German SS divisions rushed to Budapest from Vienna, apparently seized control of the country immediately after the petition for an armistice was broadcast last evening.

"To Eliminate Traitors"

Within a few hours another broadcast from Budapest announced that the Hungarian Nazi party had "taken matters in hand to eliminate traitors at all costs." The Ankara radio said the Gestapo was making mass arrests and a report broadcast by the radio at Lille, France, said Horthy had been seized by the Gestapo and taken to Germany.

The effect of the peace move on the Hungarian army, an estimated 30 to 40 divisions, was not known immediately. Horthy's petition, as recorded in London, did not order Hungarian soldiers to lay down their arms.

Many Reported Quitting

A later broadcast of a statement attributed to the chief of the general staff, Col. Gen. Vitez Voeroes, urged the troops to continue fighting "until the outcome of armistice negotiations is known," but the Lille radio quoted Swiss reports that many Hungarian soldiers were quitting.

An official declaration by DNB said that since the spring of 1942 the Horthy government had made "a complete turn" and "tried by all means to weaken the alliance with Germany and made every possible move to sabotage the war effort."

The broadcast, declaring that Horthy "has at last dropped the mask and become an open traitor," said the regent had made arrangements for his family and friends to seek saftey in neutral territory, suggesting the possibility he may have escaped arrest by the Gestapo.

Confirmation Expected

Confirmation of Horthy's armistice request was expected hourly from Moscow, where Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin are in conference. Neutral sources said yesterday that Hungarian armistice delegations were en route to Moscow.

The Ankara radio, quoting Horthy's order of the day, said Hungary had accepted Allied armistice terms. These were believed in Ankara to parallel those offered Romania, which would mean that Hungary would have to turn her armies against Germany. The terms also were said to include the disarming and interning of all German forces on Hungarian soil, restoring Transylvania to Romania, installing a liberal all-party government and eliminating anti-Semitic laws and other Fascist dictates.

Allies Consider Terms.

Washington, Oct. 16 (A. P.).—Under-Secretary of State Stettinius said today the American, Soviet and British Governments and their representatives in the European Advisory Commission are carefully studying terms for the Hungarian armistice proposal but that he had no new information on the general prospect of getting Hungary out of the war.

Budapest Buildings Reported Seized

Stockholm, Oct. 16 (AP)—Swedish newspaper dispatches from Berlin said today that Nazi troops armed with machine guns and artillery quickly took over all official buildings in Budapest last night immediately after the armistice move by the Hungarian Government.

The Stockholm-Tidningen correspondent said that Admiral Nicholas Horthy, head of the Hungarian Government, had taken refuge in an ancient Budapest castle which rises high over the Danube river and a guard of 1,000 men was protecting him.

The newspaper also said in an unattributed undated story that large Hungarian forces had been transported secretly from battle zones to drive out the Germans, adding that clashes had already broken out between Germans and Hungarians.

ALMOST 40,000 TONS HIT REICH

40-Hour Total Is Reached In Fifteen Air Attacks

London, Tuesday, Oct. 17 (AP). A large force of RAF heavy bombers rumbled out over the North Sea during the night, coastal observers reported early today.

London, Oct. 16 (AP)—Decline in the power of Reichsmarshal Herman Goering's Luftwaffe and the growing might of the Allied air arm was pointedly emphasized today by Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory, 52-year-old Battle of Britain hero about to leave to become chief of the Southeast Asia Air Command.

If the Germans had any reserve air power, he told a press conference, "they would have thrown it at us long ago."

"I can't believe," he said, "the Luftwaffe has not made every possible effort within its power at the moment to resist us."

Leigh-Mallory, who has been General Eisenhower's air commander since the American expeditionary air force was constituted last year, declared:

"I think it must be evident to all that without the air forces our armies would never be where they are now."

Praises Yank Air Arms

He paid high tribute to the American Eighth and Ninth Air Forces, saying the Yanks have built up a wonderful tradition as a gallant air-fighting force.

Reviewing the records of the American and British tactical forces, based on the Continent, Leigh-Mallory disclosed that during August alone they had destroyed 873 German tanks, 12,441 motor transport vehicles, 1,413 locomotives, 5,926 freight cars and 406 river barges.

An estimated 7,000 German dead were found, he said, among wrecked transports in the neighborhood of the Seine crossing, where 3,000 vehicles were hit in three days by the RAF.

The air chief asserted the defeat of the German counterattack at Mortain, which paved the way for the rapid sweep across France, was very largely the work of the air forces," which he credited with preventing Nazi armor from breaking through.

Duisburg Warehouses Gutted

Photographs taken after a record two-day attack on Duisburg and Cologne show warehouses gutted, Rhine river docks a shambles and railways leading to the Siegfried Line only 40 miles away blocked by gaping craters.

Most RAF Eighth Air Force fighter bomber crews were given a day of rest today because of the weather.

The German radio interrupted programs to announce that American heavies had struck Salzburg, 25 miles from Berchtesgaden.

Last night, Halifaxes and Lancasters pounded Wilhelmshaven and Mosquitos plastered Hamburg, carrying out the 14th and 15th Allied attacks and bringing the total bomb weight hitting the Reich during 40 hours to almost 40,000 tons.

Four large freight yards and the Cologne-Mulheim railway station caught direct hits from Eighth Air Force Liberators and Fortresses. The Imbert plant, manufacturing producer gas units on which the Germans have been forced to relay for power for their military vehicles, was "heavily damaged."

Smoke covers most of Duisburg's 45 square miles.

U. S. PLANES CLOSE TO BERCHTESGADEN

London, Oct. 16 (A. P.).—American planes have bombed Salzburg, in southeastern Germany, not far from Hitler's Berchtesgaden mountain retreat, the German radio announced today. Before dawn, British heavy bombers in great strength attacked the German ports of Wilhelmshaven and Hamburg during electrical storms.

The enemy said that the cathedral of Salzburg was damaged heavily and the Mozart house, home of the great composer, was destroyed. Royal Air Force bombers thundered across the North Sea to carry out the fourteenth and fifteenth major Anglo-American raids on the Reich in forty hours.

Halifaxes and Lancasters dumped the main load on Wilhelmshaven, while smaller, faster Mosquitoes struck at Hamburg. Despite the weather, crews said that they found openings in the clouds and bombed visually at Wilhelmshaven, key water and rail link with the northern sectors of the western front, and saw groups of fires "which seemed to be taking a firm hold."

Over the week end more than 40,000 tons of bombs cascaded on western Germany. More than 7,000 planes participated in the 15 principal attacks.

At Cologne, Duisberg

Bombing reached its greatest intensity at Cologne and Duisburg, where four day and night assaults were carried out in rapid-fire succession.

Other attacks were directed against industrial and rail targets at Saarbrucken, Kaiserslautern, Berlin, Brunswick, Dusseldorf, Hamburg, Mannheim, Reisholz and the big Sorpe Dam, 20 miles southeast of Dortmund.

The American and British fleets coordinated their work smoothly—the Eighth Air Force hitting Cologne and the RAF taking Duisburg. More than 2,200 Fortresses and Liberators hammered Cologne twice in daylight. The British broke two records on Duisburg Saturday morning, then returned with another 1,000 bombers that night.

Largest Daytime RAF Group

In their first visit the largest force of RAF heavies ever dispatched in daylight dropped 4,500 tons of bombs in 25 minutes.

More fire bombs were rained on Germany in 24 hours than the Luftwaffe used on London throughout the Blitz.

The total cost for all the raids was 71 bombers—37 American and 34 British—and 12 fighters.

NEW TOP ACE IN EUROPE

Col. Hubert Zemke Leads Americans Now Active With 30 Planes

LONDON, Oct. 16 (AP)—A 30-year-old full colonel—Hubert Zemke of Missoula, Mont.—is the leading fighting ace now active in this theatre since Capt. Henry W. Brown of Arlington, W. Va., was reported missing in action Oct. 3.

Captain Brown ran his total of enemy planes to thirty in a wild strafing mission over German air fields two weeks ago, after escorting bombers to southern Germany. A victim aground then gave him sixteen shot down and fourteen by strafing.

Colonel Zemke, a veteran who has destroyed German planes in every type of American fighter over here, has twenty-eight, with nineteen and one-half in the air and eight and one-half on the ground.

Colonel Zemke now commands a fighter group and whenever he is flying leads the pack. Once they got forty-three parked aircraft while following him across an airfield and damaged another twenty-three.

Another time he led them into combat with fifty Germans and got two himself while his pilots were bagging twenty-seven more.

British Gunners Fell Three Robots

London, Oct. 16 (A. P.).—An exceptionally intense ackack barrage met flying bombs fired during the night against southern England and at least three were blasted from the sky.

...with German labor after the war in rebuilding free and democratic German unions.

Opening the annual congress, Ebenezer Edwards, who also is secretary of the mine workers' federation and a former Labor member of Parliament, said the failure of a trade union movement in any part of the world "cannot fail to have its repercussions on the condition of workers in countries where they are organized."

Must Punish Criminals

Punishment of German war criminals is "an issue beyond dispute," he said, and the German people must be required "to make atonement for the wrongs done and the destruction wrought upon their neighbors."

He added, however, that "policies of vengeance and nationalism as distinct from economic well-being are based on capitalistic theories and not on Socialist fundamentals," and said labor's desire for full international cooperation would not permit exclusion of German workers from world labor organizations.

Calls For Sympathy

Discussing difficulties in the way of reestablishing effective labor organizations in countries overrun by the Nazis, as well as in Germany herself, Edwards said that "we must have more than abstract sympathy."

"If there is, and well there may be, a mentality and desire for a democratic and socialist transformation of society," he said, "international labor should assist in that object. . . . I regret the American trade-union movement is not a single unit body to work jointly with us, the Soviet Union and others in the building of a real international trade-union movement."

YANKS 10 MILES FROM BOLOGNA

5th Army Takes Livergnano After Days Of Battle

Rome, Oct. 16 (AP)—Armor-supported American Fifth Army infantry struck to less than ten miles from Bologna today, moving north along Highway 65 toward a steep, rocky ridge from which intrenched Nazi troops guard the approaches to that famed university city and northern Italy communications center.

Tanks and tank destroyers accompanied the Americans as they moved forward from the hill town of Livergnano, captured after days of fierce resistance by the Nazis.

Elsewhere on the Fifth Army front the Germans continued to offer bitter opposition, launching counterattacks and shelling vigorously. On the western sector American, British and Brazilian troops increased patrol activity.

Four Towns Fall To Eighth Army

To the east on the Eighth Army front Allied troops captured four towns.

Canadian units seized the small village of Bulgaria, just north of the Rimini-Bologna highway, in a westward advance toward the important road town of Cesena. They also took Gambettola, across the Scola Rigossa Canal north of the Rimini-Bologna railway, then pushed ahead 1,000 yards against light opposition.

San Angelo in Salute, northeast of Gambettola, also fell.

Indian Troops Advance

Farther west, Indian troops carved out a mile gain, captured Dio Laguardia and took positions on commanding Mount Della Vacche.

(Dispatches from the Italian frontier received at Bern declared German troops, aided by Italian Black Shirts, have regained control of the important Simplon rail line in northern Italy by complete occupation of the Ossola Valley. Previous reports said Italian patriots had cut the line.)

Prisoners taken by the Eighth Army since the start of the battle for the Gothic Line now total 10,300, headquarters announced.

Yanks Capture Hill Town Near Bologna

Rome, Oct. 16 (AP) — American troops have captured the hill town of Livergnano, ten miles south of Bologna, which the Germans had defended fanatically for days, Allied headquarters announced today.

United States infantry, tanks and tank destroyers moved into Livergnano, which guards the approach to the high escarpment on which the Germans defend Bologna. Livergnano is on Highway 65.

German troops still are resisting fiercely all along the front and are launching counterattacks whenever their forward positions are prodded too sharply.

Village Captured

On the other end of the Italian front Canadian units captured the small village of Bulgaria, just north of Highway 9—the Rimini-Bologna highway. Forty prisoners were taken.

The Canadians also took Gambettola, across the Scolo Rigossa Canal north of the Rimini-Bologna railway, and advanced 1,000 yards beyond the town against light resistance.

More Prisoners Taken

In the hills south of Cesena a general advance of about 1,000 yards was made and a number of important terrain features and 140 Germans were captured northwest of Carpinuta.

Indian troops still farther west advanced about a mile, capturing Dio La Guardia on the road leading to Cesena and took up positions on Mount Della Vacche, a commanding feature in that area. The Indians counted 300 German dead.

The Eighth Army has captured 10,300 prisoners since the battle for the Gothic Line started.

Nazis Occupy Valley

Bern, Oct. 16 (AP)—Dispatches from the Italian frontier today said German troops, aided by Italian Blackshirts, had completed the occupation of Ossola Valley, in northern Italy, regaining control of the important Simplon railway line, previously reported cut by Italian Partisans.

BRITISH FLEET IN PIRAEUS

Nazi Garrison On Naxos Surrenders, Others Seem Doomed

Rome, Oct. 16 (AP)—A German withdrawal from Greece was indicated by Berlin today as a strong British naval force reached Piraeus, port of Athens, carrying troops to reinforce Allied and Greek patriot units liberating that country.

A Berlin broadcast quoted a German military spokesman as saying that "because of the German evacuation of Greece the Balkan front will assume a different aspect. Events there are still very fluid. The decision in this sector will fall later."

There has been no direct word on Athens from Allied headquarters since Saturday's announcement of its liberation, but field dispatches indicated the Germans engaged in considerable demolition before withdrawing.

Nazis On Naxos Surrender

German troops withdrawing from Greece were believed heading for Yugoslavia in an effort to escape the trap which advancing Russian forces were closing on the north.

Reports from Cairo indicated all of the Cyclades Islands in the Aegean Sea southeast of Greece would be liberated in a matter of hours. The RAF reported that the Nazi garrison on Naxos surrendered yesterday.

A considerable force of enemy troops was believed trapped in garrisons on Crete, Rhodes and a few smaller islands used as staging points along the route of German evacuation. Enemy sea movement has become practically impossible, and air evacuation is increasingly more difficult.

One Section Of Athens Burned

Associated Press correspondent Sid Feder, in a delayed dispatch datelined Athens, said the Germans were reported to have burned one western section of the ancient city. In addition they blew up a huge supply dump and an airfield, and did extensive demolition work on roads west of the city, Feder said.

British troops who reached Athens late Saturday were met by wildly cheering crowds, and a British pilot flying over the center of the city at a low height said he could hardly see the soldiers for the civilians.

Feder said the Germans continued their attacks on civilians even while withdrawing, with several hundred citizens in the little village of Koropi west of Athens slaughtered in reprisal for the killing of five Nazi soldiers by Greek patriots.

Mine Fields Removed

Arrival of the British naval forces was accomplished after enemy mine fields were removed—an indication that sea lanes would be safe for transportation of food and other supplies for Greek civilians.

Stephen Barber, Associated Press correspondent, in a field dispatch, said Greece is not starving but that disastrous inflation has set in.

He quoted these prices for food in Piraeus: One pound of olive oil, one billion drachmas; one pound of fish, six billion drachmas; one loaf of black bread, one billion 500 million drachmas.

As a result of the worthlessness of the drachma, normally valued at a little less than 20 cents, extensive barter sprang up. But with the whole transportation system unhinged, even this device breaks down.

Rome, Oct. 16 (AP)—A strong British naval force has arrived at Piraeus, the port of Athens, and will begin disembarking troops today, Allied headquarters announced.

The fleet, headed by the 7,000-ton cruiser Orion, flying the flag of Rear Admiral J. M. Mansfield, anchored in the roadstead last evening after being delayed by enemy minefields, the bulletin said.

Cruisers Go Along

Accompanying the Orion were the cruisers Ajax, Aurora and Black Prince, several destroyers and various other units of both the British and Greek navies.

Liberation of Athens and nearby Piraeus was announced Saturday night, but there still were no details on this operation.

Field dispatches, meanwhile, reported that the comparatively few Nazis remaining in Greece were heading for Yugoslavia in an effort to escape the trap which advancing Russian forces are closing in the north.

Decision To Evacuate

The Berlin radio indicated today that the Germans had decided to evacuate Greece. The broadcast by the Transocean Agency said:

"Because of the German evacuation of Greece the Balkan front will assume a different aspect, said a German military spokesman this afternoon. Events there are still very fluid. The decision in this sector will fall later."

Transocean added that Bulgarian and Russian forces were attacking the Germans in "interference operations" designed to "slow down the German retreat and hinder building up a new German front."

"These 'interferences' may be possible but the German concentrations cannot be hindered."

Cyclades Islands

Reliable reports in Cairo indicated all of the Cyclades Islands in the Aegean Sea southeast of Greece would be liberated in a matter of hours.

The RAF said the garrison on Naxos surrendered yesterday.

Main enemy garrisons still are located on Crete, Rhodes and a few smaller islands used as staging points along the route the Germans are attempting to evacuate. A considerable force is believed trapped on them, for sea movement has become practically impossible and air evacuation is becoming increasingly more difficult.

BRITISH PLANES BLAST JAPS IN TIDDIM AREA

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 16—(AP) British hurricane bombers have attacked Japanese positions in the Tiddim area where the Allied drive for the strategic Burma base has been slowed by strong enemy resistance, Allied headquarters announced today.

In an accelerated aerial offensive, RAF Beaufighters scored hits on rolling stock in the Pyinmana-Myingyan area southwest of Mandalay, and American Thunderbolts damaged a bridge at Waling on the Burma road and destroyed buildings in north Burma villages.

West African troops were reported to have captured two more enemy positions east of Mowdok, in the southeast corner of India near the Burmese border. Mowdok previously had been recaptured by the Allies.

South of this sector the Japanese suffered casualties from ambushes and attacks on rivercraft.

2 More Jap Positions Taken East Of Mowdok

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 16 (AP)—West African troops have captured two more Japanese positions east of previously taken Mowdok, a village in the southeast corner of India near the Burmese border, Allied headquarters announced today.

Farther south the enemy suffered casualties from ambushes and attacks on river craft, the communique said.

British Hurricans bombers were active over western Burma over the week end attacking Japanese positions in the Tiddim area. American Thunderbolts damaged a bridge at Waling, on the Burma road, and destroyed buildings in North Burma.

Leigh-Mallory New Allied Air Chief In Asia

London, Oct. 16 (AP)—Air Chief Marshal Sir Trafford Leigh-Mallory, commander in chief of the Allied Expeditionary Air Force under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, relinquished that post today to become Allied air commander in the Southeast Asia theater.

Air operations in western Europe will now come under General Eisenhower's deputy commander, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder.

BIG BATTLE RAGES BEFORE KWEILIN

CHUNGKING, Oct. 16—(AP) Chinese and Japanese troops were locked in heavy fighting today 25 miles north of Kweilin, immediate objective of the current Japanese offensive in southeast China, the high command announced.

The main fighting in the area is continuing 12 miles west of the Hunan-Kwangsi railway town of Hingan, the communique said.

South of Kweilin, formerly the site of a U. S. air base, the High command said there was no change in the situation along the West river where the Japanese are driving toward another U. S. air base at Liuchow.

Chinese troops were reported to have scored small gains in attacks on two Japanese hill positions about four miles east of Manshim and to have repulsed enemy attacks southwest of Lungling.

Widespread activity by American planes in daily sweeps along the Burma road was reported by the high command which said fires had been started in almost every major town in a 90-mile stretch between Mangshih and Hsenwi, Burma.

Battle Continues Near Kweilin

Chungking, Oct. 16 (AP)—The Chinese high command announced today that heavy fighting was continuing 12 miles west of the Hunan-Kwangsi railway town of Hingan and 25 miles north of Kweilin, one of the main objectives of the current Japanese offensive in southeast China.

On the west river front south of Kweilin, where the Japanese are thrusting in the direction of the United States air base at Liuchow, the situation was declared unchanged.

American aircraft in daily sweeps along the Burma road have caused fires in almost every major town in the 90-mile stretch between Mangshih and Hsenwi, Burma, a Chinese communique said.

Chinese ground troops scored small gains in attacks on two Japanese hill positions about four miles east of Mangshih and repulsed minor Japanese attacks on an important hill just southwest of Lungling.

Gen. Stilwell Surveys New Threat In China

Liuchow, China, Oct. 15 (AP—Delayed)—Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell paid a flying visit to this American air base yesterday for a quick survey of the military situation in southeastern China, where the most pressing question is whether the proximity of Japanese forces will cause a further readjustment of United States air dispositions.

Stilwell held conferences with the Chinese field commanders, Gen. Pai Chung-Hsi and Gen. Chang Fah-Kwei, and Brig. Gen. Clinton D. Vincent of the United States 14th Air Force, but showed no inclination to talk with correspondents—even in his customary off-the-record fashion.

Hindered By Weather

A week of unfavorable weather, which started breaking only two days ago, meanwhile has deprived the Chinese ground forces in this area of their main fire power—the P-40s, P-51s and B-25s of the 14th Air Force.

As a result the Japanese have had an opportunity to bring up troops and supplies for the next phase of the Kweilin-Liuchow offensive almost unhampered.

The Japanese showed no evidence of an intention of rushing headlong at their objective, however, and apparently are bent on massing greater strength before exposing their flanks in new major thrusts.

Japs Lack Air Cover

During the past two days a slight improvement in the weather has permitted American airmen to go aloft again for new attacks upon the Japanese, who are virtually without air cover. The latter, lacking severe ground opposition which might force them to bunch into ready targets, now are practicing wide dispersion.

On the Kweilin front the Japanese have left the Siang river and are moving supplies by truck, but only at night or when the weather is too bad for American airmen to spot them. When it is necessary to find daytime concealment the trucks are hidden in villages, where it is a simple matter to knock out a mud wall and get the vehicles under cover.

Camouflage Effective

On the Liuchow front, where the West river still is the main artery of supply, sampans and barges still offer good targets in flying weather, but where the troops have left the river they made gone in for highly effective straw camouflage.

Men and pack animals so camouflaged are almost impossible to spot from any altitude, especially when they freeze into immobility at the [illegible] of a plane.

Aussie Labor Party Foes To Consolidate

Canberra, Australia, Oct. 16 (AP)—A conference of political leaders opposed to Australia's Labor party Government agreed today to form a new political party to consolidate all opposition elements.

The new party, to be called the Liberal party of Australia, will absorb the United Australia party, which is the official opposition party in the Federal Government. The conference decision is subject to ratification by 18 non-Labor organizations in the various states which were represented at the meeting.

The session was called by Robert Menzies, leader of the opposition and former Premier.

Army Returns 30,000 a Month

From Overseas

Report to House Says No Increase in Rate Can Be Attempted at Present

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP).—The War Department, reporting that it now is returning to this country approximately 30,000 men monthly, says it cannot increase the number substantially and continue to press the war "vigorously to an early conclusion."

The report, to the House Military Committee, was prepared as a result of increasing requests for furloughs for men serving abroad.

To permit the return of even 30,000 men monthly, the department said, "we must immobilize four to seven times this number, or the equivalent of eight to fourteen divisions. For every man that we add to this number being returned, the Army would lose the effective use of from four to seven additional soldiers."

No Assurance to Soldiers

Selection of individuals to be returned under quotas assigned to overseas commanders, the report explained, is "the sole responsibility of the authorities in the theater." Determination is based on local conditions, with consideration given to the length of service of each individual, his value to his unit and "the morale of the individuals in the unit, including the extent of rebuilding of mind and body required."

"In no instance," the department said, "can a soldier be assured that he will be returned as soon as he has served for a stated time," and "the War Department cannot justifiably initiate action looking to the return of any specific individual through the operation of these procedures."

Generally speaking, men are returned for rehabilitation, recuperation and recovery under three different situations, the report explained.

"Reduction in the size of our forces in areas where further threats from the enemy are not anticipated has permitted the return of some men. Others are being sen back to this country on temporary duty for a rest period, after which they are returned overseas. Still others are returned on rotation and are reassigned to other duties upon their arrival in the United States.

Soldiers capable of further useful service broad, the department said, are returned "only if trained replacements are available . . . or if the total strength of the command can be reduced either temporarily or permanently."

Shipping Space a Problem

The availability of shipping space, the report pointed out, "Imposes a very definite ceiling" on transfers, shipping limitations primarily affecting the movement of personnel from this country to overseas theaters rather than the return of men from abroad.

While a man sent home from abroad for subsequent return to his unit may obtain only thirty days furlough, it added, he actually is absent from his unit for approximately four months, the balance of the time being used for travel and for retraining. On the other hand, a man returned for subsequent assignment to a new overseas post may be absent from an active theater for six or seven months because of the longer period of training required.

Mrs. Kent said her son told her that United States authorities "fear the facts" in the case challenging in her court petition the right of the embassy to waive immunity for her son, she contended that the "constitution follows the flag" and that he was entitled to his protection as an embassy clerk.

The store is operated by J. L. Brandeis and Sons.

Supreme Court Refuses To Consider Kent Case

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—(AP) Mrs. Ann H. P. Kent of Washington failed today to enlist the aid of the Supreme Court in her fight to obtain the release of her son, Tyler Kent, imprisoned in Great Britain on charges of violating the British official war secrets act.

Mrs. Kent was refused permission to file a petition for a writ of mandamus in behalf of her son, former code clerk in the United States embassy in London. She contends that he was illegally imprisoned.

He was convicted by British courts in 1940 and sentenced to a seven year term. In a statement last month, the State department said that diplomatic immunity had been waived for him after Scotland Yard advised the embassy that he was suspected of turning over copies of abstracts of secret documents to a German agent.

Mrs. Kent's petition for a writ of mandamus called on President Roosevelt to establish the cause of Kent's detention and, if he were wrongfully held, to use "all acts short of acts of war" to obtain his release.

Marshall Reports On Trip To France

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt received a first-hand report today from Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, on the latter's recent military trip to the liberated areas of France.

The chief of staff spent about 40 minutes in the Executive offices. As he left he said he could not discuss the conversation other than to say that he had reported on his trip.

General Marshall, accompanied by James F. Byrnes, war mobilization director, and other military officials, arrived in Paris on October 6 after an airplane trip from this country.

"They are considered of inestimable value in teaching new navy personnel . . . the characteristics of ships of various types and nations, WRA said.

She previously had asserted that her son had been required to handle "secret agreements" between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill and quoted young Kent as telling her that he "was almost nauseated at the part I had to play."

In other actions today, the court:

Refused to grant a request for a decision on the applicability of the National Labor Relations Act to an Omaha department store which contended that its activities were essentially confined to Omaha. The National Labor Relations board, in ruling that the store engaged in unfair labor practices affecting interstate commerce, held that the store made purchases outside of Nebraska and sold to out-of-state customers. The store is operated by J. L. Brandeis and Sons.

Agreed to determine whether the wage-hour administrator has the right to prohibit home work in prescribing a minimum 40 cents an hour wage rate for the embroidery industry. Gemsco, Inc., and others who appealed from a decision by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York upholding the administrator, said that between 8,500 and 12,000 home workers were affected.

Refused to review the case of James Orville Couchois, merchant seaman of Detroit, who was convicted in Mobile, Ala., and sentenced to five years imprisonment on charges of attempting to incite insubordination and create disloyalty in the Naval forces. He was accused of criticizing U. S. participation in the war and of contrasting the better pay and working conditions of merchant seamen with those of Naval personnel serving on the same vessel.

Marshall Reports On Trip To France

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt received a first-hand report today from Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, on the latter's recent military trip to the liberated areas of France.

The chief of staff spent about 40 minutes in the Executive offices. As he left he said he could not discuss the conversation other than to say that he had reported on his trip.

General Marshall, accompanied by James F. Byrnes, war mobilization director, and other military officials, arrived in Paris on October 6 after an airplane trip from this country.

Jap Americans' Ship Models Aid U. S. Flyers

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP)—Ship models made by Japanese Americans at the Gila River Relocation Center in Arizona now aid American flyers in spotting Axis warships.

The relocation authority, reporting this today, said the Japanese Americans built nearly 800 models of Japanese, German and American ships for the navy.

"They are considered of inestimable value in teaching new navy personnel . . . the characteristics of ships of various types and nations, WRA said.

A scale model of the German cruiser Prinz Eugen was presented to Mrs. Roosevelt, when she visited the center, as a gift to the President.

SEDITION TRIAL MOTIONS TURNED DOWN BY EICHER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 — (AP) Numerous defense motions for a mistrial or postponement of the mass sedition trial until after the election, based on President Roosevelt's recent joint reference to the Silver Shirts in America, the Black Shirts in Italy and the Brown Shirts in Germany, were turned down in U. S. district court today.

Chief Justice Edward S. Eicher at the same [illegible] announced that contempt ac[illegible] will be taken before another judge, at the conclusion of the present case, against Albert W. Dilling, a defense attorney, for what the court called the "scu[illegible]

30.24-19609

...rrilous and contemptuous" content of Dilling's written request that the mistrial and postponement motions be heard by another judge.

William Dudley Pelley, one of the 26 defendants, founded and formerly led the Silver Shirts. Dilling is counsel for his former wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Dilling, another defendant.

President Roosevelt, asserting in a campaign speech that his opponents had resorted to "fear propaganda," said similar methods had been used by the henchmen of Mussolini and Hitler, and in this country by "the Silver Shirts and others on the lunatic fringe."

Dilling wrote that Justice Eicher was too prejudiced in favor of the President to consider impartially any question in which the Chief Executive was involved.

He said it had been reported that the judge, a former member of the House of Representatives from Iowa, once said in a campaign speech that he was "proud to be a rubber stamp for President Roosevelt and the New Deal." He said it "has been alleged" that Eicher was appointed to the bench for the specific purpose of presiding at the Sedition trial.

Maximilian J. St. George, attorney for defendant Joseph E. McWilliams, objected to what he called "intimidation" of counsel by means of the announced plans for contempt action but Justice Eicher said no intimidation was involved since the matter would come before another judge and await the end of the current case.

Plan To Aid Disabled Presented Roosevelt

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP)—Milton D. Kohn, of Buffalo, N. Y., national commander of the Disabled American Veterans, placed a four-point veterans' program before President Roosevelt today.

Kohn, in a letter which he presented Mr. Roosevelt, recommended: Adequate dependency allowances for disabled veterans; hospitalization and medical treatment for veterans as long as they may need it; vocational rehabilitation to insure permanent employment, and employment preference in Government agencies.

NAVY CASUALTIES

Washington, Oct. 16 (A. P.).—The Navy Department announced today the names of 200 casualties in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, which makes a total of 67,731 casualties reported by the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Of this total 26,549 are reported dead, 26,963 wounded, 9,739 missing and 4,480 prisoners of war. Included in the list today are the following with their next of kin:

War Expenditures Smallest Last Month

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP)—War expenditures in September were the smallest for any month in 1944.

The September spending amounted to $7,104,000,000, a decrease of $694,000,000, or nine per cent from the August total, the War Production Board reported today.

From July 1, 1940, through September 30, 1944, war expenditures amounted to $222,000,000,000.

New York Asks New Air Routes Across Atlantic

Port Economist Tells C.A.B. Direct Service Is Needed to More European Cities

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16 (AP).—James C. Buckley, principal economist for the Port of New York, told a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing on trans-Atlantic air service today that direct service to more cities in Europe is needed.

"The United States flag service pattern over the North Atlantic," Mr. Buckley said, "is woefully inadequate to meet the need of trade and travel."

He said that only three of the leading cities in point of travel origin in Europe were served directly from this country and said that Berlin, Rome, Geneva, Amsterdam and Brussells should be included in the direct or one-carrier service.

Three cities, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, appeared at the hearing to present their claims to rank as ports of entry for international air travel. The hearing was called by the C. A. B. to gather evidence concerning the applications of eleven companies for certificates to fly the ocean.

Robert O. Bonnell, chairman of the Baltimore Aviation Commission, pointed out that that city was not a terminal on any of the international routes outlined by the board in June when it presented a suggested pattern for world air transport service by United States carriers. Mr. Bonnell said, however, that some air lines recently had shown interest in Baltimore as an international air terminal.

He described to the examiners Baltimore's proposal to acquire 2,500 acres south of the city for an airport qualified to handle the largest land planes. A proposed bond issue for the project will be voted on next week.

Philadelphia was represented by Howard H. Shafer, airport manager; Samuel H. Williams, transportation and foreign commerce manager of the Board of Trade; C. Robert Haines, assistant vice-president of the Corn Exchange National Bank and Trust Company, and George E. Miller, traffic manager of the S. S. White Dental Company. They sought to show the importance of Philadelphia as an international trade center and the need for one carrier service between that city and major European cities.

A. N. Kemp, president of American Airlines, testified that if the C. A. B. approved its plan to acquire control of American Export Airlines and to make that company's present trans-Atlantic certificates permanent, his own company would drop its North Atlantic applications and concentrate on Export's requests for more routes to Europe and beyond. Export has temporary certificates to Foynes, Ireland, and Lisbon, Portugal.

American proposes to fly direct from Chicago, Detroit, New York and Boston to European trade centers.

American announced fares it proposes to charge for trans-Atlantic flights including: New York-London, $235; Chicago-Paris, $286.55; Fort Worth and Dallas-London, $315.60; Los Angeles-Paris, $388.85, with a 10 per cent discount for round-trip and $25 extra for sleeping accommodations.

P. W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear Aircraft Corporation, of Akron, Ohio, urged a place for huge lighter-than-air craft in the transocean program.

CAPITAL OPENS CHEST DRIVE

MacLeish And Halifax Compare Fund To War Effort

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP)—Archibald MacLeish, Librarian of Congress, and the Earl of Halifax, British Ambassador, opened the Capital's community war fund drive tonight wit haddresses drawing a parallel between the unification of relief camapigns in the war fund, and the joint war effort of the Allies.

The Ambassador, in a prepared speech, said the campaign is essentially a measure of aid for sons, for friends, for homes.

"I have been long enough in this warm-hearted land," he said, "to learn that no three causes could meet with a more swift and more generous response."

Three Purposes—One Title

Sons in the armed services, he explained, are served by the war fund-supported United Service Organization, friends overseas by the War Relief Agencies financed through the drive, and homes by the domestic relief activities joined in it.

"It was a wise decision that grouped these three purposes under the single title of 'community,'" the Ambassador said. "For it's as a community that we are fighting this war, and it's only as a community, and in this spirit, that we can hope to complete our task in peace. It's not too much to say that upon our success in keeping alive this inspiration the world's future will depend."

Asserting that he spoke from personal knowledge of the value of war relief in Britain in the last five years, Halifax said that help had been given "as your forebears gave it to the stranger who came by 'their door in the wilderness . . . not as a charitable duty but as a mark of comradeship."

Faith In Themselves

MacLeish, presiding at the war fund session which was joined with a United Nations mass meeting, said the present war has demonstrated and "the whole history of mankind has proved one thing—that the great human cause, the cause of humanity, can always triumph when men believe in it enough. . . .

"The people themselves, by their faith in themselves, by their loyalty to themselves, by their stubbornness, their singleness, their courage, have accomplished what their enemies, in their blind contempt and hatred of the people, never dreamed that they could accomplish. And by their victories they have restored the thing their enemies berayed and thought they could demolish—the honor and dignity of man.

"The human cause, the cause of humanity, the cause of the dignity and decency of man, is held in higher honor now than over centuries before this.

Right To Trust Themselves

"The people of the world have won the right to trust themselves, to believe in themselves, to respect themselves; and they do trust, they do believe.

"It is to this triumphant cause we dedicate ourselves tonight. To heal our sick, comfort our friends, to uphold those who have borne the brunt of the fighting is to affirm our loyalty to the common cause of man and to give a real and practical expression to our dearest and most deeply held belief."

The program was broadcast over CBS.

$446,464,000 In U. S. Property Now Surplus

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP)—Government property costing $446,464,000 has been declared surplus by Federal agencies at the end of September, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation reported today.

Of this amount, surplus property costing $92,419,000 had been disposed of for $74,680,000.

The total was divided as follows: Property costing $146,198,000 was owned by RFC; property costing $300,266,000 was owned by other Federal agencies, and of that amount, $226,326,811 represents airplanes and aircraft equipment.

Mrs. Roosevelt Thinks History'll Forget Her

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt today asserted that she "can't see why history should be one bit interested in me."

The President's wife made the remark at her news conference when asked the reason for her refusal to permit a statue of herself to be placed in a new hall dedicated to famous living persons.

The first lady added that "I don't like reproductions of myself."

Mrs. Roosevelt said that she would go to Buffalo and Rochester Thursday to speak on the necessity of registering to vote in the national election. She declared she would not speak in favor of any candidate, although her audiences will be members of the independent voters organization for the re-election of Roosevelt. She said she also will attend Democratic party functions in New York city on Friday.

Navy Ending Contracts With Two Airlines

New York, Oct. 16 (AP)—Termination of military air transport agreements between the Naval Air Transport Service and its two contract operators, Pan American Airways Atlantic division, and American Export Airlines, effective December 31 next, was announced today by the Third Naval District.

Both companies will continue commercial services which they now operate across the Atlantic, the navy announcement said.

Approximately 1,500 employes will be affected by termination of the agreements, entered into nearly three years ago, and the navy said the action was "due to anticipated reductions in the navy's air transportation requirements to the European theater."

Davies Asserts Attack Made On Roosevelt Cost GOP Votes

New York, Oct. 16 (AP)—Joseph E. Davies, former Ambassador to Russia, said today the "violence and character of the Republican attack" on President Roosevelt had "destroyed its campaign for the independent vote."

Davies, who attended a press conference held by the Democratic national chairman, Robert E. Hannegan, named Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential nominee, and Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.), when reporters asked whom he had in mind.

"Honesty And Integrity"

Republicans have attacked the "honesty and integrity" of the President, Davies said, adding:

"You can't do that to the President of the United States."

Davies said the independent vote in "five or six" important States "won't be swung off balance by a charge utterly monstrous."

"The biggest menace to the world is the menace to future peace," Davies said. "The biggest expert in this situation is the man in the White House."

In a formal statement Hannegan said: "Reports reaching the national headquarters from the West Coast demonstrate considerable confusion in the high command of the Republican party.

Cites Bricker's Remarks

"Governor Bricker chose Portland, Ore., as the place to denounce the Political Action Committee of the CIO as 'subversive' and again repeated his innuendo that 'foreign born' were attempting to dictate the policies of the Democratic party."

"What Governor Bricker did not know," Hannegan continued, "was that the Political Action Committee had given its formal endorsement and is actively campaigning for Wayne Morse, Republican nominee for the United States Senate. Governor Bricker's tactics have left a confused situation in his own party in Oregon. . . . The Democratic ticket in Oregon has benefitted from Governor Bricker's visit to Portland."

Price Controls Seen as Weapons Against Inflation After War

NEW YORK, Oct. 16 — (AP) Chester Bowles, OPA administrator, said today that maintenance of price controls would constitute one of the most important weapons against inflation following the end of the European war, but declared that "the only lasting answer to inflation is full production."

Bowles told the commerce and industry association that both inflationary and deflationary pressures would be exerted simultaneously in the period after Germany's fall.

He said one of the forces tending for inflation would be that by the end of 1944 $100,000,000,000 of wartime savings will be waiting in the hands of people who have been unable to buy many of the things they wanted most."

Working in the opposite direction, Bowles said, was the fact that "millions of others will face temporary unemployment while the plants in which they work set up their new production lines for civilian goods."

He said many firms already have indicated they plan to sell civilian goods at their 1942 prices or lower. He added that ceilings would be set after industry-wide conferences in Washington. In those cases where higher production costs made a price adjustment necessary.

"The high levels of production and employment, which we are all working to establish when peace comes, can only be maintained by placing the output of our factories and farms speedily in the hands of the consumer.

"It is, therefore, essential that every industry study the problems of distribution now, in order that there may be no interruption in the free flow of goods."

Malcolm MacDonald, High Commissioner of the United Kingdom in Canada, said there was nothing of more vital importance to the creation of a more hopeful international situation than genuine understanding and co-operation between the United States and Great Britain.

Would Avoid Dislocation.

Ernest L. Olrich, assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury, said that the avoidance of serious dislocations in domestic economy was uppermost in the minds of governmental agencies planning the disposal of Government surpluses of consumer goods.

In a speech prepared for the conference, Mr. Olrich asserted that the surplus goods to be disposed of "were produced for one purpose—to aid in winning the war."

"If every last item of these goods were to be destroyed in the process of winning the war," Mr. Olrich said, "no one would think twice about it. No one would complain about the cost to the Government of all this property if it were entirely used for its original military purpose.

Says We Should Keep Thought.

"It is important that we carry over this thought in connection with the disposal of these goods. We should not worry about their cost to the Government to the point where, in trying to recover large sums in the disposal of the goods, we incur what are actually greater costs through introducing instability and unemployment into our industrial system.

"Any revenue which must be sacrificed because the disposal of the property involved would cause undesirable economic dislocation should be accepted as a cost of war. We do not believe in adopting a disposal policy, procedure or practice which results in an increase in unemployment and a decrease in purchasing power."

SEES NECESSITY OF PEACE GOODS

President Says Distribution Will Aid Recovery.

Boston, Oct. 16 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt said today that the distribution of civilian goods will be of the utmost importance to post-war recovery.

In a message to the Boston Conference on Distribution, the President asserted:

Dewey Supported By Hartford Times

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 16 (AP)—The Hartford Times, an Independent Democratic newspaper which, since its establishment in 1817, supported every Democratic Presidential nominee except William Jennings Bryan and President Roosevelt in 1940, announced today its support of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

The paper said editorially it favored Dewey's position on the establishment of a post-war organization for peace, which it felt to be "the uppermost task facing the United States." It said the support of Republican Senators for such organization "possibly can be more certainly commanded under leadership of a Republican President than it can by a Democratic President."

Ickes Finds No GOP Truth-Telling So Far

Newark, N. J., Oct. 16 (AP)—Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, said tonight: "The only proposals that Mr. Dewey has even advocated during this campaign are policies which President Roosevelt himself established."

Addressing a meeting of the New Jersey Independent League for Roosevelt, Ickes said: "There has been no truth-telling so far in this campaign on the Republican side."

"Mr. Dewey himself has been the chief offender," he said.

Citing alleged "falsehoods" and "distortions" of the truth, which he said were made by Dewey in campaign speeches, Ickes said: "The Republican candidate for President is a man whose one principle is to do whatever is necessary to be elected to office."

"Just as the Republican word weavers and advertising experts are trying to persuade you to accept an Ersatz synthetic Mr. Dewey of luminous convictions, so are they trying to have you believe in a fictitious, non-existent record of accomplishments and principles," he said.

"Until the last few months," Ickes continued, Dewey "bitterly opposed any kind of collaboration with other nations of the world."

FOUR SOLDIERS A.W.O.L. FROM INDIA

Baltimore, Oct. 16 (A. P.).—The story of four soldiers who went A. W. O. L. in India and used forged furlough papers to hitch-hike by plane back to the United States was related today by the Third Service Command.

The four landed at Miami, the command reported, and three already have been picked up or returned.

One soldier from Erie, Pa., who had been hospitalized in India, returned to his home after landing at Miami, but the youth's father declined to permit him to stay after learning he was A. W. O. L. and the soldier went back to the Miami air base. He is being held there for return to India and a probable court martial, the command related.

Two others were picked up by Second Service Command Military Police in New York and the whereabouts of the fourth is not known, the command added.

CLARE LUCE SEES 'PLOT'

Roosevelt, Hillman, Communists Figure In Recital

Pittsburgh, Oct. 16 (AP)—Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.) charged in an address tonight "a plot" between "the Communist wing of the Political Action Committee and some power-hungry New Dealers" to control the American labor union movement.

In a speech at Syria Mosque, the Connecticut Congresswoman said:

"The issue is clear: Will the American labor union movement be captured lock, stock and barrel by a small group of Communists? For to capture it is the very purpose of the masterminds in a group called the Political Action Committee which has suddenly penetrated the heart of one of our great labor unions, the CIO. No foreign coup d'état was ever so slickly devised as this political Putsch on the American working man and woman.

"I Call It A Plot"

"In the time at my disposal I can give no more than an outline of this plot hatched between the Communist wing of the Political Action Committee and some power-hungry New Dealers.

"I call it a plot. But it is equally accurate to describe it an accident, a major political accident which has befallen the historic Democratic party, and with it the whole labor movement in America.

"It befell as a result of Mr. Roosevelt's vacillating, unstable, confused labor policies all during his last term, and his increasing inability to chart any coherent domestic course either for his own party, or for the working people of this nation."

Representative Luce said the Communists were against Mr. Roosevelt in the 1940 election "because at that time only America was in danger from Hitler."

Two Reasons

She continued, "today they are for the President for two reasons. "First, because Russia came into the war, and second, because they see a way of exchanging their support at the polls for the right to take over the whole CIO union today, and tomorrw, the whole union movement and the Democratic party.

"The Communist party already calls itself the American Labor party in New York State. After November 7 it hopes to call itself the Democratic party in every State."

"Three Doors"

Mrs. Luce claimed Sidney Hillman, PAC director, has done a good deal of "political business" with Communists both in Russia and in the United States "off and on for more than 20 years." She said he opened three doors into the American political life for the Communists, explaining:

"First, he let them into the CIO branch of the American labor movement in New York city; second, he let them into the American Labor party of New York State; third, he let them into the national Democratic party of the United States.

"Moscow stooges," said Mrs. Luce, "are now admittedly in control of the first two, and are making headway in the Democratic party."

Chattanooga Times Backs Roosevelt

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 16 (AP)—The Chattanooga Times, which supported Wendell Willkie for President in 1940, called today for the reelection of President Roosevelt.

Reelection of the President, the newspaper said in an editorial, is "the only way they (the American people) can signify that their demand is for American cooperation with all peace-loving nations to banish war."

"If Governor Dewey is elected, his strong isolationist support, which has not been disturbed by the candidate's expressed views on world collaboration for peace, will certainly interpret his victory as a triumph for their own beliefs," the editorial said.

The Times "does not deny" there are domestic policies of the Roosevelt Administration "which we would wish changed or abandoned," said the editorial.

The Times is an Independent Democratic newspaper. In 1932 and 1936 it supported President Roosevelt.

DEWEY DENOUNCES FDR FOR 'CHAOS' AT HOME AND ABROAD

He Pledges Administration with 'Ablest Men and Women in America.'

TALKS IN ST. LOUIS

President Authorized Report on Keeping Men in Army After War, He Says.

KIEL AUDITORIUM, St. Louis, Oct. 16—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey declared tonight that President Roosevelt himself had authorized publication of a report suggesting it would be as cheap to keep men in the Army as to cope with postwar unemployment and tossed out this challenge.

"Now let my oppenent try to pass the buck to one of his assistants."

Addressing a tumultous, cow-bell banging crowd in this big granite hall of 11,500 seats, the Republican presidential nominee openly challenged Mr. Roosevelt's accuracy in terming "unauthoritative" Dewey's delayed demobilization charge, first voiced at Philadelphia on Sept. 7.

Dewey also declared that American representation in vital foreign areas is "on the brink of chaos," assailed the "little men rattling around in big jobs," in Washington, and said:

"We can never achieve our objectives under an administration too tired and worn out to bring order out of its own chaos either at home or abroad."

As the New York Governor spoke to a nationwide radio audience, he faced a huge "D-E-W-E-Y" sign etched out against the dark background of other balcony auditors by young women in white smocks. His appearance was greeted by an ovation which lasted nearly five minutes.

Hits "Bosses" and Reds

Declaring the present administration "has been taken over by the combination of corrupt big city bosses, Communists and fellow travelers," he promised, if elected to install a government "made up of the ablest men and women in America who will receive full authority to do their jobs and will be let alone to do them."

"That's right," he exclaimed when some one in the audience cried "we've got to get rid of Santa Claus."

The crowd, frequently punctuating his talk with shouts of "pour it on, Tom," yelled "no—no" when he asked:

"Is the tired and quarrelsome New Deal all America has to offer?

In a verbal whiplashing of the New Deal administration, which he described as the "most spectacular collection of incompetent people who ever held public office," the Republican nominee made these main points in a nationwide broadcast:

1. That President Roosevelt himself had subscribed to the delayed military demobilization plan which Dewey previously had attributed to Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey as a move to cushion postwar unemployment.

2. That "the New Deal depression in the United States was actually holding back economic recovery all over the world."

3. That "the New Deal's record at home is one long chapter of failure" and "let me ask you: Can an administration which is so disunited and unsuccessful at home be any better abroad?"

Gets Rousing Greeting

The New York Governor, greeted on his arrival here by one of the largest and most enthusiastic street crowds of his campaigns—although there were several cries of "hurray for Roosevelt" along the route—contended the "freedom and future of our country are at stake" in this election.

"Jobs and opportunity for every American and our chance for a lasting peace," he declared, "all depend on this election."

Reviewing inter-agency quarrels in support of his contention that the Roosevelt administration "has lived on conflict," the Governor said:

"We can't afford this kind of planed, noisy chaos and bungling in the days ahead.

30.24-1961

"This nation of ours can be an inspiration to the world. We can be a steadying influence for freedom and peace. But first we must have peace in our own government. We must set our own house in order.

"That can never be done by a weary and worn-out administration. It can and must be done by a fresh and vigorous administration which will restore honesty and competence to our government."

Dewey, who arranged to return to Albany immediately after his single-speech foray to the scene of last summer's conference of Republican governors, challenged Mr. Roosevelt at one point. At another he quoted Prime Minister Churchill in support of his indictment of the New Deal.

Renews Demobilization Charge

Reverting to his Philadelphia statement that Selective Service Director Hershey had said it would be as cheap to keep men in the Army as to "create an agency for them when they are out," Dewey said:

"Mr. Roosevelt was quite upset. In fact he spoke about 'reckless words, based on unauthoritative sources. . . .' and last Saturday he handed out from the White House a letter from General Hershey in which the general said the idea was all his own.

"Now, is Mr. Roosevelt quite accurate when he calls General Hershey, his own appointee, unauthoritative? The fact is that the director of Selective Service is charged by law with the duty of helping to get jobs for returning veterans.

"Now, where did General Hershey get this idea Mr. Roosevelt calls 'unauthoritative'? I'll tell you. He got it from another one of those 'White House' releases put out by Mr. Roosevelt himself.

"Moreover, it was submitted by Mr. Roosevelt own uncle, Frederick A. Delano, chairman of the National Resources Planning Board. It was the report of the conference on postwar readjustment of civilian and military personnel, appointed by the President."

Dewey then quoted the report as saying:

"'Rapid demobilization might throw into the labor market large numbers of men just at the time when the industries might be least able to absorb them. It might create unemployment and depression.'"

"So," the Governor went on, "this idea of keeping men in the Army for fear that they won't get jobs after the was was in a report made public last year by Mr. Roosevelt himself. The New Deal has had it in mind right along.

"Now, let my opponent try to pass the buck to one of his assistants. They can slip and squirm in this New Deal but when my opponent uses the word 'falsification,' as he did on the radio in the Teamsters' speech, it comes home to haunt him."

Dewey spoke before a Republican rally in Kiel auditorium. His ninth major broadcast of the campaign, it was delivered in the home state of Senator Harry S. Truman, the Democratic vice presidential nominee.

Quotes Churchill

Renewing his assertion that the Roosevelt regime failed to solve the depression, despite great grants of power and money, until the war brought an industrial boom, Dewey said:

"It was Winston Churchill who, late in 1937, said: 'The Washington administration has waged so ruthless a war on private enterprise that the United States. . . . is actually at the present moment leading the world back into the trough of depression'."

Declaring Mr. Roosevelt "gives two men the same powers and then turns them loose to fight it out," the Governor said:

'He has been doing that for 12 straight years and it is one of the major reasons the New Deal failed in peacetime and would fail again if it got a chance."

At a luncheon attended by business and professional men, Dewey asserted "Never before has there been an administration which had no faith in itself or in the people."

"The entire philosophy seems to be to quarrel with one another. There aren't five civilians in the national government who have the confidence or respect of the people. If the leaders don't have the confidence of the people it is overwhelmingly clear that it is time for a change."

The presidential nominee later held off the record conferences with western Missouri Republican organization leaders and with editors of rural newspapers.

Here are the objectives he said he and Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio, the vice presidential nominess, are determined to establish if they win office:

"An administration devoted to public service instead of public bickering.

"An administration working in harmony with Congress.

"An administration in which the cabinet is restored as a responsible instrument of government.

"An administration in which you will not have to support three men to do one man's job.

"An administration which will root out waste and bring order out of chaos.

"An administration which will give the people of this country value received for the taxes they pay.

"An administration made up of the ablest men and women in America who will receive full authority to do their jobs and will be let alone to do them.

"An administration free from the influence of Communists and the domination of corrupt big city machines.

"An administration in which the Constitution is respected so that the liberties of our people shall again be secure.

"An administration which will devote itself to the single-minded purpose of jobs and opportunity for all."

travellers. The people of Mis have shown their independence before by throwing off the rule of the corrupt Pendergast machine. In the light of that record, I am sure they will never permit men who are products of that machine to succeed in their current attempt to take over our national government.

War Drawing to Close

The war in Europe is drawing to a close. But hard tasks remain. We must speed the drive for final victory. We must put behind our fighting men the backing of competent, effective government at home. We must make sure that when total victory is won, those fighting men are brought home promptly. We must take the leadership in bringing about effective international cooperation to prevent a future war.

We in America face a mighty decision. Ten million heroes will be coming home, entitled to the fruits of victory — a prospering country with security and opportunity to get ahead. Millions of workers in war plants will demand their right to a good job in peace industry at good wages with security and stable employment. The farmers of America have a right to know that their tremendous efforts in the fact of inadequate help and machinery will be rewarded by a new future of freedom from regimentation with stable and good prices for the fruits of their labor.

Is the tired and quarrelsome New Deal all America has to offer? Must we go back to leaf raking and doles? Must our returning heroes go on the same old W.P.A.? Must our farmers go back to detailed control by a host of New Deal agents, with falling prices to boot?

Will Be Decided at Election

These questions will all be decided in this election. The freedom and future of our country are at stake. Never in the history was it so important that we have a government which will be respected at home and respected abroad. Never was it so important that we choose a government which can restore our job-making machinery. Jobs and opportunity for every American and our chance for a lasting peace—all depend on this election.

Now, what kind of administration do we need for the mighty problems we shall face after the war? As never before we shall need a government that meets these simple tests:

1—Is it honest?

2—Are the people who run it trained and competent for their jobs?

3—Is it a government with faith in the future of America and a wholehearted determination to make our system work?

Let us apply these simple tests to what we now have so that we can find out whether it's time for a change.

12 Years of Bickering

For 12 years the New Deal has treated us to constant bickering, quarreling and back-biting by the most spectacular collection of incompetent people who ever held public office. We must not trust our future to such people as Harry Hopkins, Madam Perkins and Harold Ickes. Certainly America can do better. I propose that we will do better.

But we can never do better under the New Deal. The scars of its own failures and its own quarrels are too deep. Going right back to its beginning, if it wasn't a free-for-all fight in the N.R.A., it was Messrs. Ickes and Hopkins fighting over who got four billion borrowed dollars to spend on P.W.A. or W.P.A. It was Henderson and Ickes squabbling over the right to be gasoline czar or a fight between the Rubber Director and the Under Secretary of War.

If it wasn't the O.P.A. fighting with itself, it was Mr. Ickes denouncing the War Labor board for its part in what he called a "black—and stupid—chapter in the history of the home front. . ."

Cites Wallace, Jones Fight

The most disgraceful performance came when Vice President Wallace accused Secretary of Commerce Jones of having "done much to harass the. . . effort to help shorten this war. . ." and Mr. Jones charged the vice president with "malice, innuendo, half truths and no truths at all. . ."

What kind of government is this that even a war cannot make it sober down and go to work? Little men rattling around in big jobs. Our country cannot afford the wasteful luxury of incompetent people in high places who spend their time fighting each other.

Even Mr. Roosevelt publicly confessed on August 21, 1942 that these conflicts within his Administration have been a "direct and serious handicap to the prosecution of the war." How costly they have been we will never know. But we do know one thing. Twelve years of this kind of government are too long. Sixteen years of it would be intolerable.

New Deal Lives on Conflict

This Administration has lived on conflict. They plan it that way. Listen to the President's executive order No. 9331. It says in part: "the Secretary of Agriculture and the War Food administrator. . . Shall each have authority to exercise any and all of the powers vested in the other. . ."

In other words, Mr. Roosevelt gives two men the same powers and then turns them loose to fight about it. He has been doing that for 12 straight years and it is one of the major reasons the New Deal failed in peacetime and would fail again if it got a chance. We can't afford this kind of planned, noisy chaos and bungling in the days ahead. That's why it's time for a change.

Evading Responsibility

Now there is another important reason why this New Deal administration has been one long chapter of quarreling and confusion. That reason is the conesistent practice of evading responsibility. High officials issue statements. Nobody rebukes or removes them. But when the statements later prove embarrassing they are lightly disavowed or turned aside as unauthoritative.

Last month I challenged a statement by the National Director of Selective Service in which he said, "We can keep people in the Army about as cheaply as we could create an agency for them when they are out."

Mr. Roosevelt was quite upset. In fact, he spoke about "reckless words, based on unauthoritative sources . . ." and last Saturday he handed out from the White House a letter from General Hershey in which the General said the idea was all his own.

Challenges F.D.R. Charge

Now, is Mr. Roosevelt quite accurate when he calls General Hershey, his own appointee, unauthoritative? The fact is that the Director of Selective Service is charged by law with the duty of helping to get jobs for returning veterans. If anybody in the country is an authority on that subject, he is the man.

Now, where did General Hershey get this idea Mr. Roosevelt calls "unauthoritative"? I'll tell you. He got it from another one of those "White House" releases put out by Mr. Roosevelt himself. Moreover, it was submitted by Mr. Roosevelt's uncle, Frederick A. Delano, chairman of the National Resources Planning board. It was the report of the Conference on Post-war Readjustment of Civilian and Military Personnel, appointed by the President. This discussed the pros and cons of speedy demobilization. After saying that good reasons exist for desiring a rapid rate of military demobilization, the report goes on to say that: "despite .... compelling reasons for rapid military demobilization, the prospects of economic and industrial dislocation at the close of the war are so grave and the social consequences are so far-reaching that a policy of orderly, gradual, and, if necessary, delayed military demobilization has been strongly advocated. The following reasons," it goes on to say, "have been advanced."

Reads Roosevelt Quotation

"Rapid demobilization might throw into the labor market large numbers of men just at the time when the industries might be least able to absorb them. It might create unemployment and depression. Those in the services," the report continues, "will constitute the only large group of persons over whom the nation could, in the event of economic crisis, exercise any degree of direct control ....". Then it says: "the economic and social costs of retaining men in the services would be less than those involved in dealing with an unemployment depression through civilian relief ...."

So this idea of keeping men in the Army for fear that they won't get jobs after the war was in a report made public last year by Mr. Roosevelt himself. The New Deal has had it in mind right along.

Raps President's Assertion

Now, let my opponent try to pass the buck to one of his assistants. They can slip and squirm in this New Deal but when my opponent uses the word "falsification," as he did on the radio in the Teamsters' speech, it comes home to haunt him.

And let me add that as long ago as last April, Mr. Roosevelt remained silent while his director of selective service in a public speech in New York said he saw no purpose in letting men out of the Army "into some kind of a W.P.A." I do not see any such purpose either. Our fighting men ought to be brought home from the armed services at the earliest possible moment after victory and to jobs and opportunity. And that will be done when we get a new, an honest and a responsible administration in Washington.

The truth is that the New Deal has been afraid all along that when the time came to let men out of

Text of Dewey's St. Louis Address

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 16 — (AP) Following is the prepared text of a campaign address here tonight by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the Republican presidential candidate.

Fellow Americans:

I am happy to come to Missouri tonight to carry on the battle for honest and competent government. I am happy also to salute your distinguished Republican governor, who, next January, will become United States Senator, Forrest C. Donnell, and your next Governor Jean Paul Bradshaw.

It is clear by now that the New Deal has been taken over by the combination of corrupt big city bosses, Communists and fellow the Army there would be no jobs for them -- that it would be a case of back to normalcy under the New Deal with ten million unemployed.

U. S. Made Poor Recovery

When the New Deal took office on March 4, 1933, the world-wide depression was already nearly four years old. In its first seven years it had more power than any government in our history. It spent nearly 58 billion dollars. Yet the official figures of the League of Nations prior to the outbreak of the World War show that among the major nations of the world the United States had almost the poorest record of all. Out of 22 leading industrial nations of the world, 19 had made greater recovery than the United States from the crash of 1929. All but five had exceeded the 1929 level of production and gone well beyond it. The fact is that the New Deal depression in the United States was actually holding back economic recovery all over the world.

It was Winston Churchill who, late in 1937, said: "the Washington administration has waged so ruthless a war on private enterprise that the United States. . . is actually at the present moment leading the world back into the trough of depression."

Then he added: "those who are keeping the flag of peace and free government flying in the Old World have almost the right to ask that their comrades in the New World should . . . . set an example of strength and stability."

Roosevelt Ignored Warning

But Mr. Roosevelt ignored the warning. He went on with his war on business and employment, his experimentation—his quarrels and his chaos.

The New Deal's record at home is one long chapter of failure. But some people still tell us: "We agree that the New Deal is a failure at home but its foreign policies are very good." Let me ask you: Can an Administration which is so disunited and unsuccessful at home be any better abroad? Can an Administration which is filled with quarreling and back-bitting where we can see it be any better abroad where we cannot see it? Well, the answer to that seeps through the brick wall of censorship.

For example, on February 11, 1943, while we were seeking vital war materials in Brazil, an article in the New York Times told how the conflict between Mr. Wallace and Mrs. Jones was being echoed among our representatives in Brazil. It went on to say that dissension among the scores of agency representatives had actually "led the Americans to participate in departmental rows among agencies of the Brazilian government itself."

Reads Senator's Statement

Last year a special committee of United States Senators was sent to our war theaters overseas. Read what a Democratic Senator, Richard B. Russell, said in a report to the Senate on October 28, 1943. These are his words: "Our civil agencies abroad are numerous, but too often they are either working at cross purposes, or, worse to relate, in some cases have no apparent purpose."

Here is a report from the July 30, 1943 issue of the United States news. It says: ". . . . in North Africa. . . field agents of half a dozen agencies—the Treasury, B.E.W., Lend-Lease, State department and others — are reported to have brought confusion to the brink of chaos."

Why is it that our representation in the vital areas abroad is on the brink of chaos? The answer is exactly the same as at home.

In addition to the duly constituted officers of the State department and the Army and Navy, there are now operating wholly or partly all over the world the following agencies of this Administration:

The F.E.A., R.F.C., W.F.A., O.C.I.-A.A., O.S.S., O.W.I., W.S.A., W.R.B., O.A.P.C., O.C., O.W.M., P.W.R.C.B., O.F.A.R., F.R.C. and the A.C.P.S.A.-H.M.W.A.

There are more, but that's enough.

U. S. Has Big Role in World

Our country has a very important role to play in the world in the years to come. We can never achieve our objectives under an administration too tired and worn out to bring order out of its own chaos either at home or abroad.

This nation of ours can be an inspiration to the world. We can be a steadying influence for freedom and peace. But first we must have peace in our own government. We must set our own house in order. That can never be done by a weary and worn-out administration. It can and must be done by a fresh and vigorous administration which will restore honesty and competence to our government.

These things we pledge to you:

An administration devoted to public service instead of public bickering.

An administration working in harmony with congress.

An administration in which the cabinet is restored as a responsible instrument of government.

An administration in which you will not have to support three men to do one man's job.

An administration which will root out waste and bring order out of chaos.

An administration which will give the people of this country value received for the taxes they pay.

Free of Communists

An administration free from the influence of Communists and the domination of corrupt big city machines.

An administration in which the constitution is respected so that the liberties of our people shall again be secure.

An administration which will devote itself to the single-minded purpose of jobs and opportunity for all.

My distinguished associate John W. Bricker and I are united in our determination to these ends. We know that they can be achieved.

We are united by these objectives and a firm determination under God to achieve them. America must never go back to the insecurity, unemployment and chaos of the New Deal. Because she must, America can and will go forward once again.

Federal War Ballots Embarrass Missouri

Jefferson City, Mo., Oct. 16 (AP)—The newest election problem for Missouri is the receipt of about 70 abbreviated Federal war ballots apparently voted by Missouri soldiers, Gregory Stockard, Secretary of State, said today.

The Federal ballots are not recognized by Missouri law and cannot be counted.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 16 (AP).—Carol, former King of Romania, and red-haired Mme. Elena Lupescu remained aboard ship here tonight, although State Department officials at Washington said New Orleans immigration officials had authority to permit them ashore.

The former ruler and his party arrived here this morning aboad the Argentine steamship Tunuyan en route from Vera Cruz, Mexico, to Brazil. The ship is expected to tie up here several days.

In its final edition this afternoon "The New Orleans Item" carried a story quoting Carol's chancellor, E. Uradarinu, as saying, "King Carol has instructed me to say that he does not wish ever to see America again."

The paper said that Mr. Uradarinu, speaking through an interpreter, said Carol withdrew to his cabin after receiving "official Federal orders" that he and his party would not be permitted ashore. Mr. Uradarinu said he did not know who issued "these orders."

After the story was published, Carol told newsmen the statement was not true. "The whole thing is false, a complete misinterpretation," he said.

In Washington, the State Department said New Orleans immigration officials had authority to permit Carol to leave the ship without consulting Washington, and that if Carol had known before leaving Vera Cruz that his ship was putting in at New Orleans he could have requested permission to go ashore from the United States consul in the Mexican port.

Prior to his departure from Mexico the State Department had refused his request to come to New Orlans to board a ship.

United Airlines Ordered 15 Douglas Airliners

Chicago, Oct. 16 (AP)—United Airlines announced today it had signed a contract for 15 four-engined Douglas DC-6 airliners, raising to 50 the number of large high-speed planes the company has ordered for post-war service.

W. A. Patterson, UAL president, said the 50 planes would cost about $25,000,000. One type has a top speed of 300 miles an hour and the other 240.

WOULD DELAY MILITARY PLAN

Lutherans Want Action After Future Is Clearer

Minneapolis, Oct. 16 (AP)—The United Lutheran Church in America late today refused to go on record against universal military service when it turned down a resolution calling for the ban in favor of one asking postponement of action by the Government for one year, or until after the war.

The successful resolution, proposed by the Rev. Paul Scherer, New York city, said:

"Inasmuch as future military needs of our country will be better known after the war and when peace plans are adopted, the ULCA petitions the Government to postpone action on universal military training for males between 17 and 21 years of age for one year, or until after the war."

Headed By Baltimorean

The original, suggested by the Board of Social Missions, headed by Carl M. Distler, Baltimore, called for protest against any form of conscription. When it was proposed the Rev. J. J. Scherer, Roanoke, Va., moved its elimination entirely.

Giving voice to a chorus of 'noes" from the convention, the Rev. Frederick E. Reissing, Washington, secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, took the floor to declare "Caesarism is on the march and the church must do something."

Agreeing, Dr. Paul Scherer said "failure to take action of some kind in this matter will serve to render the church in America as impotent as that of Germanay became." His spbstitute resolution was approved unanimously.

Other Resolutions Approved

Also approved were resolutions calling for the "reesttablishment of moral law in governing world order, protection of the rights of minorities, international economic cooperation, and international institutions to maintain the peace of the world."

The delegates also urged the Government to "formulate specific proposals in a spirit, not of vengeance, but of love and mercy, peace plans carrying out the declared purpose of the United Nations in the war; the achievement of political, cultural and spiritual freedom throughout the world and economic justice and a higher standard of living for all purposes." The resolution asked that these proposals be made known to the Government and people of all lands.

Resolutions of appreciation for the work of Dr. C. P. Harry, Norristown, Pa., male student secretary, and Dr. Mary Markley, Washington, women's student secretary, were adopted. Both are retiring after 25 years of service.

Publication Profits

The board of publication reported sales turnover of more than $2,000,000 for the biennium with a profit of more than $130,000, coming from the publishing of 1,137,944 books and an equal number of pamphlets and catalogues.

A "coaching conference," conducted by Dr. F. Eppling Reinartz, Philadelphia, occupied a half-hour session during which delegates—pastors and laymen—from the 32 United States synods were instructed to present outlines of convention action to as many of the 4,000 Lutheran churches as they can possibly visit.

The report on welfare work showed annual expenditures of $4,500,000 in caring for 2,166 children in 20 orphanages, 737 guests in 20 homes for the aged, 7,884 children in fresh-air camps, 1,380 residents in eight hospices, 13 general and special hospitals, ten foreign field hospitals, two mother houses for 168 consecrated deaconesses and 27 other welfare agencies.

VFW Head Assails Troop-Rotation Setup

Kansas City, Oct. 16 (AP)—Jean A. Brunner, Forest Hills, N. Y., commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said today "the only serious weakness in our military machinery is the virtual collapse of the War Department plan to rotate troops overseas in the Pacific."

"The War Department has admitted that men with long periods of overseas service who have already survived several campaigns should be returned home," he said.

"The total number of men actually brought home to date is relatively small," Brunner continued. "Is it because our military experts are too cautious in their willingness to substitute replacements for seasoned combat troops? We think an able-bodied replacement can do more harm to the enemy than a war-weary veteran with combat experience."

"Smear Tactics" Used On Officers, Maas Says

St. Paul, Oct. 16 (AP)—Melvin J. Maas (R., Minn.) today issued a statement here in which he said that "smear tactics" were being used against the two navy officers who fought AFL teamster union officials in the now famous "battle of the Statler."

"I was informed ten days ago by Washington newspapermen that an attempt would be made to whitewash the affair by smearing these navy men," Representative Maas, ranking minority member of the House Naval Affairs Committee, declared. "I have talked to these officers personally and am convinced that they were perfectly sober.

"Not only did they not start the fight, but they were themselves victims of attacks when they sought to avoid any argument."

GOV. BRICKER SEES THREAT TO STATES

Protests 'Usurpation' Of Local Governments By U. S.

San Bernardino, Cal., Oct. 16 (AP). Gov. John W. Bricker, protesting what he called "usurpation" of State and local authority by the Federal Government, declared tonight it was a trend which could lead to "political domination" of local governments.

The Republican candidate for Vice-President said the "usurpation" was being accomplished through Federal financial grants.

Urges Proper Safeguards

The use of Federal grants in cases involving a borderline of authority between the Federal and local governments "is perfectly justified," he remarked, but advised that this aid be surrounded "by the proper safeguards."

A plan presented by the Conference of Republican Governors at St. Louis in August was described by the Ohio Governor as a "middle-of-the-road solution." He quoted:

"'When, and in case of national necessity, there are public works which may properly be the province of both Federal and State or local governments, then grants in aid should be made by the Federal Government to States or, through them, to their local governments, without conditions which invade the authority of State or local government.'"

Lists Work Relief, Others

As examples of new areas of local activity into which he said the Federal Government had extended its authority, Bricker listed work relief, agricultural production, education and apprenticeship training, medical service, food distribution and home construction.

Some of the newly assumed Federal activities, he added, are constitutional, some unconstitutional and the constitutionality of others is yet to be decided.

"But this one fact is clear," he asserted. "There has been a steady trend toward relaxing the principle that the Federal Government shall confine its activities to national interests, leaving to the States the conduct of local activities.

Warns Of School Trend

"There is a present tendency for Federal authority to override State responsibility in many fields. To cite just one case, there is a growing movement toward invasion of the public school system.

"This expansion of Federal activity into local affairs threatens the financial independence of local government and opens the door to political domination of them. This danger is the result of the usurpation of State and local authority through various fiscal devices, especially the 'matching' grant."

Charter For Business

Giving "one more example of the danger which confronts us," Bricker referred to a decision of the United States Supreme Court which he said held the Federal Government could control the insurance business.

The Republican Governors' Conference, he declared, offered what "might well be called the charter for American business activity in the future" when it said:

"'There should be preserved in the States, where it belongs, the exclusive power to regulate and control the insurance business.'"

Earlier at Santa Barbara, Bricker reviewed the first two weeks of his western campaign and declared he was convinced that California, Washington and Oregon would vote Republican in the November 7 election.

State Signs Encouraging

So too, he added, "Will Minnesota, the Dakotas, Montana, all of the Middle West, New York, New England and Pennsylvania." He remarked that "There are increasingly encouraging signs in the border States, too, as I have learned on my recent visits to Maryland, Kentucky, Missouri and Tennessee."

Bricker was introduced at Santa Barbara by Leo Carrillo, the movie actor, before a crowd estimated at 4,000 persons.

Count Von Zedlitz Never Nazi, Miss Kellems Says

Beverly Hills, Cal., Oct. 16 (AP)—Vivien Kellems, Connecticut manufacturer, asserted today that Count Karl von Zedlitz, with whom her name had been linked by Representative John M. Coffee, "is not and never has been a Nazi."

Representative Coffee (D., Wash.) told the House last March that Miss Kellems was the "sweetheart of a Nazi agent named Count Karl von Zedlitz in Buenos Aires, Argentina."

In an address before the Beverly Hills Rotary Club Miss Kellems declared she would present to a Senate committee proof that Count Zedlitz has no Nazi affiliations.

She asserted that during two years of correspondence with Count Zedlitz there were no letters which in any way violated the censorship law or contained anything seditious, and charged existence of a campaign to destroy her good name.

Former Supporters of Willkie Bolt to Roosevelt in California

OCT 17 1944

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16 (AP).—Bartley C. Crum, San Francisco attorney and once head of Wendell Willkie's California committee, today announced the formation of a Republicans-for-Roosevelt committee to support re-election of the President.

"Those of us taking this step," Mr. Crum said in a statement released by the committee, "do so with full knowledge that, while we are deliberately maintaining our identity as Republicans, we are exposing ourselves to every type of opposition and retaliation from the leaders of the party machine. None of us found it easy to make this decision, but all of us can make no other choice."

Say Republicans Failed

"Our hope that the Republican party would provide leadership in the field of foreign affairs," said a statement on principles issued on behalf of the committee's western headquarters here, "was shattered by the platform in which the isolationist and nationalist influence succeeded in introducing extremely broad escape clauses which allow the party to evade a forthright commitment to aid effectively in the maintenance of world peace."

Some of our objections to the platform might have been overcome if the candidate insisted upon a liberal interpretation of the foreign policy plank. In actual political fact, the candidate is surrounded by many isolationists against whom he has not publicly expressed himself. The chairman of the finance committee and the vice-chairman of the national committee, both presumably in office with his approval, have a history of nationalistic isolation.

The Republican candidate during the last several years has spoken on both sides of almost any major foreign policy issue and we therefore cannot believe that he is either willing or able to pursue a vigorous and forward looking international foreign policy."

Praise for Roosevelt

"President Roosevelt," the statement added, "is experienced in the complex international problems that we now face. He has shown himself by temperament and on the record to be devoted to the cause of democracy. The demonstrated foresight of his administration, which has brought us successfully through the terrible dangers of the last four years, is essential in building a lasting peace, not an uneasy armistice to set the stage for a catastrophic world war III."

Mr. Crum said that the Republicans for Roosevelt Committee was in formation prior to Mr. Willkie's death.

"We who were and are devoted to Wendell Willkie and the principles for which he stood," Mr. Crum said, "refuse to capitalize either on his name or deviously to imply what position he would have taken in this election. It should be a well remembered fact that Wendell Willkie spoke for himself."

Dutch Official Predicts Rubber Rehabilitation

San Francisco, Oct. 16 (AP)—The great rubber industry of the Netherlands East Indies will be one of the first to be rehabilitated, once that territory is freed from Japanese rule, Dr. Hubertus J. Van Mook, acting lieutenant governor general of the islands, declared here today.

He told a press conference he believed the Japanese had been unable to destroy the industry, inasmuch as the natives own most of the rubber trees and thus could not be counted on to cooperate in their destruction. The Japanese had little need of the rubber, he stated, as adequate supplies were available in Indo-China.

Underground activities and guerrilla fighting by the Dutch in the Indies probably is much more extensive than is generally believed, Van Mook said.

Nazi Bomb Duds Laid Sabotage And Ersatz

San Francisco, Oct. 16 (AP)—Sabotage and use of Ersatz have so undermined efficiency of German war plants that in two of the latest Nazi raids on England 37 per cent. of the bombs dropped were duds, Maj. Gen. Levin H. Campbell, Jr., the army's chief of ordnance, declared today.

"American ordnance," he said, "cannot be touched by any other army of the world. Less than one half of one per cent. of our bombs are inefficient."

Although German equipment is still of a high standard, compared to the Japanese, Nazi war tools are not of the caliber they were one year ago and in the last four months Germany has stepped up the use of Ersatz, General Campbell said.

He addressed the San Francisco post of the Army Ordnance Association.

A sergeant who thought up the idea of supplying tanks to make the "rhino", a secret hedgerow buster, in the battle of normandy told his story to correspondents today at the invitation of supreme headquarters.

he is curtis g. culin, 215 holly st., a cranford, N.J.

c whisky salesman in peacetime, and a member of the 102nd reconnaissance

3024—19615

d squadron drawn from the famous"Essex troop" of New jersey .

The sergeant and three ~~xxxx~~ officers who helped in the planning have received the Legion of Merit. Five others have received Bronze stars for their part in fashioning the secret weapon which helped in the st. lo breakthrough in Normandy last July.

OCT 17 1944

The officers, all from the essex troop of cavalry , are Maj. Arthur C. Person, ~~Gxxxxxxx~~ of Madison, N.J., squadron commander, who brought the device to the attention of Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Capt. James G. Depew, 787 West Linden Ave., Wahway ,N.J.. Culin's company commander who ~~xx~~ had asked his men for suggestions for a tool to beat the hedgerow, and capt. Stephen M. Litton, of Madison, Tenn., squadron motor officer who built the first pilot model from materials at hand.

their answer to the problem posed by Normandy's hedgerows, centuries-old obstacles---almost impenetrable earthern walls four to six feet high and two to four feet thick, hardened by rain and sun and reinforced by a thick mat of trees and shrubbery---was a light or medium tank fitted with a plow-like attachment ~~xxxxx~~ whose blades would hold the nose of the tank down in the embankment while the weight of the vehicle enabled it to plow through.

"these barriers denied us maneuver and mobility", said Gen. bradley in discussing the development of the "rhino". "they forced us to fight from one field to the next, slugging with the enemy each foot of the way."

Before, engineers had to blow holes in the hedgerows, a slow, diff cult and dangerous task.

To add insult to injury, the creators of the battlefield invention got the blades for their rhino from steel anti-tank traps planted by the germans on the beaches.

Gen. Bradley labeled it a "top secret" until the new weapon was thrown into combat for the first time on the great day of the St. Lo attack.

Culin first suggested weldk ng steel teeth to a tank chassis, and when Lepew and Hitton went to work and built the first one, and when the pilot model proved successful person brought it to Bradley's attention.

the field ordnance dept then did a rush job in welding tusks to the whole allied tank force to be used in the attack in a week's time.

when the tanks came smashing through they so took the Germans by surprise, overran them and opened up the way for the infantry. previously, tanks had had to butt up against the hedgerows four or five times, giving the germans an opportunity to get in shots with bazookas and anti-tank guns.

asked how the idea came to him, the sergeant said, "i d n't know exactly, but it's really very simple."

OCT 17 1944

innumerable such problems had been taken into account and solved ng in advance of the invasion, but the defense possibilities of the hedgerow had not been fully appreciated until the Germans began full advantage of them.

when Bradley saw the first rhino in action one week however, before the scheduled attack,/and watched it plow sturdily and steadily through the hedgerows at normal speed he immediately ordered all tanks assigned to the breakthrough operation to be equipped with the device and to be withheld from combat until "H" hour.

First army ordnance men in 49 hours put blades on 500 tanks of the second and third armored divisions and the tank battalions attached to infantry divisions.

OCT 17 1944

At the attack hour hundreds of the rhinos churned forward, abandoning canalized roads guarded by the enemy, and swept across the country in waves. they broke the backbone of enemy resistance, slashed the germans to pieces and pushed through to Brittany.

Later, it was learned the Nazis themselves had experimented with a similar dash but--ironically--found it impracticable because the cutting plates they used were made of low-grade French iron which buckled and broke under the pressure.

The five men who first tested the rhino and who were given bronze star medals are Sgt. Wesley A. Hewitt, Fredricton, N.J., Corp. John J. Jessen, 871 Broadway, Bayonne, N.J., and Corp. Ernest Hardcastle, 392 Glenwood Ave., East Orange, who welded the attachments, and Sgt. Harmon M. McNorton of Saline, Tex., and Pvt. John A. Hughey of Cher— St., Sprott, Ala., who tested and demonstrated it.

LONDON-FIRST ADD SECOND LEAD WESTERN FRONT XXX WAS CAPTURED.

(SINGLETON)

ON THE SOUTHERN FRONT THE SEVENTH ARMY DROVE ITS DEEPEST SPEARHEAD WITHIN TWO MILES OF LA BRESSE, 24 MILES NORTH OF BELFORT AND 32 MILES FROM THE RHINE. LA BRESSE, EIGHT MILES NORTH OF LE THILLOT, IS ONLY SEVEN MILES FROM SCHLUCHT PASS THROUGH THE VOSGES.

THE CAPTURE OF FREMIFONTAINE, FARTHER NORTH IN AN AREA 12 MILES EAST OF EPINAL, PLACED A SPEARHEAD WITHIN SEVEN MILES OF BONHOMME PASS.

THE CAPTURE OF THE IMPORTANT MEURTHE VALLEY ROAD JUNCTION OF BACCARAT AND THE TWO VILLAGES OF GLONVILLE AND FONTENOY TO THE NORTHWEST AND WEST ADVANCED THE THIRD ARMY TO WITHIN 18 MILES OF THE SAALES PASS IN THE AREA SOUTHEAST OF NANCY.

STILL FARTHER NORTH THE AMERICANS, PUSHING COMPLETELY THROUGH THE FOREST OF PARROY AND CAPTURING EMBERMENIL BEYOND, NOW HAD THRUST 23 MILES DIRECTLY EAST OF NANCY ON A DIRECT LINE ONLY 45 MILES FROM THE STRASBOURG CROSSING OF THE RHINE INTO GERMANY.

30.24—19617

THE FRENCH WHO APPROACHED LA BRESSE VEERED NORTH FROM THE GUN-BLOCKED BUSSANG VALLEY JUST NORTH OF BELFORT AND ON A FIVE-MILE FRONT DROVE TO WITHIN 4,000 TO 5,000 YARDS OF THE ROAD RUNNING FROM GERARDMER TO THE RHINE FLATS AND COLMAR THROUGH THE SCHLUCHT PASS.

THEY BY-PASSED THE VILLAGE OF ROCHESSON, 4,000 YARDS SOUTH OF THE ROAD AND JUST WEST OF GERARDMER THEY WON THE WESTERN SLOPE OF FORTIFIED HAUT DU TOT PEAK.

THE AMERICANS CLEANING UP AROUND PARROY FOREST, OUTFLANKED THE OLD FRENCH FORT DE MANONVILLER ON A HEIGHT THREE MILES SOUTHWEST OF EMBERMENIL AND FORCED THE NAZIS TO WITHDRAW FROM IT.

OCT 17 1944

THE GERMANS MADE THEIR STRONGEST ATTEMPT TO BREAK THE U.S. FIRST ARMY'S LINES ENCIRCLING AACHEN AND TO RELIEVE THE NAZI GARRISON INSIDE THE CITY.

STRIKING OUT YESTERDAY WITH A STRONG ARMORED ANDINFANTRY FORCE SOUTH FROM WEIDEN, THE GERMANS OVERRAN ADVANCED AMERICAN POSITIONS BEFORE THEIR ATTACK WILTED IN THE FACE OF A MASSED BARRAGE OF U.S. ARTILLERY AND ANTITANK GUNS. WEIDEN IS FIVE MILES NORTHEAST OF AACHEN.

THE GERMAN ATTACK DID NOT SURPRISE THE AMERICANS, WHO KNEW ENEMY RESERVES FOR DAYS HAD BEEN MASSING EAST OF AACHEN. AMERICAN ARTILLERY AND PLANES HAD TAKEN A HEAVY TOLL OF THESE RESERVES EVEN BEFORE THE ATTACK WAS LAUNCHED.

TRANSPORT PLANES HAVE PARACHUTED SOME SUPPLIES TO THE NAZIS INSIDE AACHEN--AN INDICATION THAT THE DEFENDERS OF THE FIRST MAJOR GERMAN CITY TO BE ATTACKED BY THE ALLIES ARE HAVING SUPPLY TROUBLES.

INSIDE AACHEN THE GERMANS ARE FIGHTING WITH HOPELESS SAVAGERY. A FRONT DISPATCH SAID ONE AMERICAN INFANTRY COMPANY IN MORE THAN TWO HOURS OF FIGHTING HAD ADVANCED ONLY TWO BLOCKS THROUGH ONE RAVAGED STREET.

OCT 17 1944

IN TWO CASES OUT OF THREE, THIS DISPATCH SAID, THE TYPE OF RESISTANCE BEING ENCOUNTERED CONSISTS OF A SINGLE NAZI SOLDIER FIRING FROM THE CELLAR OR ATTIC OF SOME HOUSE UNTIL AN AMERICAN SQUAD CREEPS UP AND DISPOSES OF HIM.

THE AMERICAN PROGRESS WAS SLOW BUT IT ALSO WAS STEADY AND THE GERMANS WERE BEING PUSHED BACK INTO THE WESTERN PART OF THE CITY.

BRITISH FORCES IN HOLLAND BATTERING THEIR WAY TOWARD THE GERMAN FRONTIER HAVE ADVANCED ANOTHER 1,000 YARDS SOUTHEAST OF OVERLOON. OVERCOMING FIERCE ENEMY RESISTANCE THE BRITISH STRUCK TO WITHIN 2,500 YARDS OF THE NAZI STRONGHOLD AT VENRAY. THERE WERE SIGNS OF A GERMAN PULLBACK ALL ALONG THE NARROW FRONT BEFORE VENRAY.

IN NORTHERN FRANCE AMERICAN THIRD ARMY UNITS DROVE A MILE EAST BEYOND THE PARROY FOREST IN THE METZ-NANCY SECTOR.

FARTHER SOUTH ON THE SIXTH ARMY GROUP FRONT AMERICAN AND FRENCH TROOPS WON NEW GROUND IN EVERY SECTOR EXCEPT THE BELFORT AREA YESTERDAY.

AGAINST LIGHT OPPOSITION, THE AMERICANS DROVE ALMOST TO THE OUTSKIRTS OF BRUYERES, 12 1/2 MILES EAST OF EPINAL.

IN SPITE OF THE RECKLESS PERSISTENCE OF THE ENEMY'S COUNTER ASSAULTS, A HIGH AMERICAN STAFF OFFICER DECLARED TONIGHT THAT OUR HOLD ON THE CITY APPEARED WHOLLY SECURE."

OCT 17 1944

WHITE SAID THE NAZIS HAD MARSHALED TWO COMPLETE DIVISIONS AND EDEMENTS OF OTHERS IN THEIR DESPERATE ATTEMPT TO RELIEVE AACHEN. THE AMERICAN ASSAULT ON THE CITY ITSELF WAS PROCEEDING SLOWLY AND DELIBERATELY TO SAVE THE LIVES OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS. THE RUSSIANS PUSHED TANKS INTO BELGRADE FROM THE SOUTHEAST IN THE WIDESPREAD BATTLE TO DRIVE THE GERMANS OUT OF SOUTHEASTERN YUGOSLAVIA. THE GERMAN AGENCY TRANSOCEAN REPORTED BITTER STREET FIGHTING IN THE CAPITAL, WITH NAZI TROOPS CONTENDING FOR EVERY HOUSE.

MARSHAL TITO'S COMMUNIQUE SAID THE NAZI GARRISON AT NIS REFUSED TO SURRENDER, AND WAS ANNIHILATED.

THE NEXT BIG OBJECTIVE IN SERBIA WILL PROBABLY BE THE RAILROAD JUNCTION OF SKOPLJE, 95 MILES SOUTHWEST OF NIS. PARTISAN UNITS WERE REPORTED ALREADY RANGING CLOSE TO IT.

THE RED ARMY'S WHOLE BALKAN CAMPAIGN IS PLANNED TO ENCIRCLE AND DESTROY THE GERMAN ARMY IN THE SOUTH. THE NAZIS ARE BEING CUT OFF FROM ROUTES HOME AT BELGRADE AND NIS, AND ARE BEING DRIVEN INTO THE HANDS OF PARTISANS AND BRITISH AMERICAN FORCES IN WESTERN YUGOSLAVIA AND TO THE SOUTH IN GREECE.

WHILE RUSSIAN FORCES DRIVE DEEP INTO HUNGARY FROM THE SOUTHEAST AND RUSSIAN AND ROMANIAN FORCES SQUEEZE THE GERMANS WESTWARD FROM ROMANIA, COL. GEN. IVAN PETROV'S FOURTH UKRAINIAN ARMY FIGHTING SOUTHWEST THROUGH THE CARPATHIANS FROM POLAND MAY SPRING THE TRAP SHUT.

THE GERMANS ADMITTED THAT PETROV'S ARMIES WERE SMASHING POWERFULLY INTO SLOVAKIA THROUGH THE CARPATHIAN PASSES AND PRESSING HARD ON THE RETREATING NAZI TROOPS.

COL. ALFRED VON OLBERG, GERMAN MILITARY COMMENTATOR, SAID THE NAZIS WERE "DISENGAGED DURING THE NIGHT IN THE AREA OF THE SZIROCA VALLEY AND THE DUKLA PASS" LEADING INTO SLOVAKIA.

HE ADMITTED BELATEDLY THE LOSS OF THE LATVIAN CAPITAL OF RIGA, WHOSE CAPTURE THE RUSSIANS ANNOUNCED FRIDAY.

WHEN THE AMERICANS FIRST ARRIVED IN THIS SECTOR, THEY GOT A SCARE FROM DUTCH CIVILIANS WHO SAID THE GERMANS WERE ARRIVING IN AMERICA. WE DIDN'T BELIEVE IT, BUT THE DUTCH KEPT WAVING THEIR HANDS AND POINTING TOWARD THE U.S.A.

FINALLY, SOMEONE GOT THE BRIGHT IDEA OF LOOKING ON A SMALL SCALE MAP AND, SURE ENOUGH, THERE IT WAS--AMERICA, HOLLAND.

ASIDE FROM THE CONFUSION OVER AMERICA, THE DUTCH HAVE BEEN A BIG HELP TO U.S.FORCES OPERATING ON THE BRITISH FLANK, AN AMERICAN OFFICER SAID, EXPLAINING:

3024-19619

"THE GERMANS HAD PLENTY OF TIME TO LAY MINES AND THEY HAVEN'T WASTED IT. THEY FORGOT THE DUTCH NATIONAL CHARACTERISTIC OF NEATNESS. THE DUTCH JUST CAN'T ABIDE UNTIDYNESS. SO WHEN THE GERMANS PULL BACK LEAVING MINEFIELDS, THE DUTCH TAKE A VERY DIM VIEW OF WHAT A MESS MIGHT OCCUR AND WHEN WE ARRIVE WE FIND THE MINES NEATLY MARKED OFF WITH BITS OF WHITE PAPER."

WITH THE BRITISH 2ND ARMY IN HOLLAND, OCT 16-(AP)-GERMAN TROOPS WERE REPORTED WITHDRAWING EASTWARD TODAY FROM THEIR POCKET WEST OF THE MAAS (MEUSE) RIVER AND IT APPEARED LIKELY THAT THE TOWN OF VENRAY MIGHT FALL SOON TO BRITISH FORCES.

FURTHER NORTH BRITISH PATROLS CROSSED THE NEDER RHINE AGAINST LITTLE OPPOSITION NEAR RENKUM, FIVE MILES WEST OF ARNHEM, WHERE THE ESCAPE CORRIDOR REMAINING FOR NAZI TROOPS ALONG THE DUTCH COAST IS ONLY 20 MILES WIDE.

TROOPS FORCED THEIR WAY WITHIN A HALF MILE OF VENRAIJ, FORMER COMMUNICATIONS STRONGPOINT. DESPITE THE GRADUAL WITHDRAWAL OF GERMAN FORCES, THE BRITISH DROVE THROUGH HEAVY FIRE OF 88-MM SHELLS AND PICKED THEIR WAY AROUND MORE MINES THAN HAVE BEEN ENCOUNTERED OCT 17 1944 MANY MONTHS.

THE VILLAGE OF SMAKT, TWO MILES DUE EAST OF OVERLOON AND SEVEN FROM THE GERMAN FRONTIER, WAS CAPTURED BEFORE DAWN BY TROOPS CONVERGING ON VENRAIJ. TO THE SOUTH, OTHER INFANTRYMEN HAD CROSSED THE END OF THE DE DOORN CANAL INTO THE FORESTED AREA, WHERE THEY FOUND THE GERMANS PULLING BACK TOWARD THE MOLERBEEK RIVER.

THE ABSENCE OF MUCH ENEMY MOVEMENT INDICATES THE FOE IS PULLING OUT OF THE CORRIDOR WEST OF THE MAAS RIVER BEFORE BEING CAUGHT WITHOUT A MEANS OF ESCAPE.

DEMOLITIONS HAVE BEEN HEARD AND CIVILIANS REPORTED THE GERMANS WERE PULLING BACK TO THE ONLY BRIDGE STILL IN USE ACROSS THE MAAS.

THE TACTICS THE GERMANS HAVE USED IN THE MAAS POCKET RESEMBLE THOSE USED IN ALL THEIR DELAYING CAMPAIGNS--HANG ON AS LONG AS POSSIBLE AND FALL BACK IN AN ORDERLY AND EARTH-SCORCHING RETREAT.

A BRITISH STAFF OFFICER SAID THE MORE RAPID MOVEMENT OF THE GERMANS IN THE LAST 12 HOURS WAS A STRONG INDICATION THAT ENEMY TROOPS HAVE REACHED THE BREAKING POINT IN POSITIONS STILL WEST OF THE MAAS. HOWEVER, THE GERMANS ARE STRONGLY ENTRENCHED EAST OF THE RIVER WITH THEIR BACKS TO THE GERMAN FRONTIER AND THEY WILL MAKE A STAND ON THAT SIDE AT ALL COSTS, THE STAFF OFFICER SAID.

THE FIGHTING OF THE PAST THREE DAYS HAS BEEN UNDER THE MOST ADVERSE WEATHER CONDITIONS AND THIS FACT COMBINED WITH THE STEADY PUSH OF BRITISH TROOPS PROVED TOO MUCH FOR THE INFERIOR TROOPS THE NAZIS HAVE BEEN USING IN THE MAAS SECTOR.

BRITISH PATROLS PROBED THE GERMAN-HELD NORTH BANK OF THE NEDER RHINE DURING THE NIGHT AND WORKED THEIR WAY INTO RENKUM. THE ENEMY IS EXPECTED TO HOLD AT ANY COSE THE 20 MILE GAP FROM RENKUM NORTH TO THE IJSSEL MEER (ZUIDER ZEEL) FOR THIS REPRESENTS THE ESCAPE CORRIDOR FOR THOUSANDS OF NAZI TROOPS IN WESTERN HOLLAND.

WITH THE U.S.FIRST ARMY IN GERMANY, OCT. 16-(AP)-AMERICAN TROOPS SMASHING DOWN FROM ABOVE AACHEN JOINED FORCES TODAY WITH OTHERS WORKING UP FROM THE SOUTH AND COMPLETELY SEALED IN THE CITY BY THE JUNCTURE.

THE UNION WAS MADE EAST OF AACHEN DESPITE THREE FRANTIC GERMAN COUNTERATTACKS IN 24 HOURS, ONE OF THEM FROM INSIDE THE CITY, IN WHICH NAZIS SCREAMING "HEIL HITLER" RUSHED AMERICAN LINES WITH SAVAGE FURY.

FIVE OF THESE DETERMINED COUNTERATTACKS, MADE IN THE LAST THREE DAYS IN AN EFFORT TO REGAIN CONTROL OF AACHEN, WERE ESTIMATED TO HAVE COST THE GERMANS 50 TO 60 TANKS.

TEN WERE KNOCKED OUT BY GROUND WEAPONS TODAY.

AN AMERICAN STAFF OFFICER DECLARED TONIGHT THAT THE HOLD ON AACHEN NOW WAS WHOLLY SECURE, DESPITE THE FACT THAT THE NAZIS APPEARED MERELY TO HAVE SUSPENDED THEIR EFFORTS SO AS TO CATCH THEIR BREATH AND INTENDED TO RENEW THEM AT THE FIRST OPPORTUNITY.

THE AMERICAN JUNCTION WAS MADE AT 4 P.M. TOAY AT THE TOWN OF WURSELEN, WHICH WAS CLEANED OUT IN THE PROCESS.

THE NAZIS, WHO ATTACKED TODAY ON A HALF-MILE FRONT, ARE DROPPING SUPPLIES TO THE AACHEN GARRISON BY PARACUTE.

THIS MORNING'S COUNTERATTACK WAS LAUNCHED AT 6 A.M. BY TWO GERMAN REGIMENTS SUPPORTED BY TANKS. LIKE THOSE THAT HAD GONE BEFORE, IT WAS DIRECTED AT A RIDGE JUST NORTHEAST OF AACHEN CALLED CRUCIFIX HILL. THE HILL ALSO IS KNOWN AS "DAWSON RIDGE" IN HONOR OF ONE OF THE MOST CELEBRATED FIGHTING MEN ON THIS FRONT--CAPT.JOSEPH DAWSON OF WACO, TEXAS, WHO HOLDS A LONG STRING OF DECORATIONS RUNNING FROM THE PURPLE HEART TO THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS.

THE RIDGE DOMINATES AND CONTROLS AACHEN. HE WHO HOLDS THE RIDGE HOLDS AACHEN. THE GERMANS, MASSING THE HEAVIEST FORCES IN THIS AREA FOR FOUR OR FIVE DAYS, ARE GOING AFTER THAT RIDGE WITH FEVERISH AND EVEN DESPERATE ASSAULTS.

OCT 17 1944

ALONG THE WHOLE OF THE AACHEN FRONT THE GERMANS HAVE MARSHALLED TWO DIVISIONS AND ELEMENTS OF OTHER DIVISIONS.

ASIDE FROM THIS MORNING'S MAIN ENEMY ASSAULT A LESSER BUT A BITTER ONE WAS SENT AGAINST AMERICANS IN AACHEN ITSELF. THIS ONE WAS MOUNTED IN THE NORTHERN SECTION OF THE CITY. THE AMERICAN BEAT IT DOWN AND TOOK 300 PRISONERS.

THE ENEMY'S BIG EFFORT AGAINST CRUCIFIX HILL IS AGAINST THE SIEGFRIED LINE IN THAT AREA NOW HELD BY THE DOUGHBOYS.

IN COLD AND GLOOMY FALL RAIN THE FIGHTING IS SAVAGE AND BLOODY.

ONE CAPTURED GERMAN REPORTED THAT HALF OF HIS COMPANY HAD BEEN KILLED.

FIGHTERBOMBERS WENT DOWN SO LOW IN THEIR ATTACKS YESTERDAY THAT THE PILOTS COULD SEE THE UNIFORMS OF THE GERMANS BELOW. IT WAS ONE OF THE MOST BRILLIANT ACTS OF AIR SUPPORT EVER GIVEN AMERICAN INFANTRY.

THE NAZIS HERE ARE STRUGGLING WITH CONVULSIVE FEROCITY. IN SOME OF THEIR CHARGES THEY HAVE RUN UP AGAINST U.S. LINES SCREAMING AND SHOUTING "HEIL HITLER."

THEIR LOSSES ARE RUNNING VERY HIGH BUT THERE IS NOTHING TO INDICATE THEIR EFFORT IS RUNNING DOWN.

OUTSIDE AACHEN, OCT.16-(AP)-BALKED BY STEEL YESTERDAY IN A DESPERATE ATTEMPT TO SMASH THE AMERICAN RING ABOUT AACHEN, THE GERMANS COUNTERATTACKED AGAIN THIS MORNING BUT AFTER THREE HOURS OF FURIOUS BATTLE WERE DRIVEN BACK FOR THE SECOND TIME WITH HEAVY LOSSES.

IN THE MISTS AND RAIN OF DAWN, NAZI INFANTRY AND TANKS THRUST SOUTH FROM WEIDEN TO TRY TO KNIFE THROUGH THE LINES OF LT.GEN. COURTNEY HODGES' FIRST ARMY.

INSIDE AACHEN, THE AMERICANS CONTINUED THEIR SLOW, METHODICAL CLEANUP OF THE DEFENDERS.

ONCE AGAIN, THE AMERICANS TURNED A THUNDEROUS ARTILLERY BARRAGE ON ADVANCING TROOPS AND TANKS AND AFTER THREE HOURS, THE ENEMY HAD HAD ENOUGH. HIS ATTACK WAVED AND BROKE.

FOUR ENEMY TANKS WERE DISABLED.

WITH RAIN CLOUDS HANGING LOW OVER THE BATTLEFIELD, INFANTRY AND ARTILLERY, WITH TANK SUPPORT, HAD TO STOP THE GERMAN ATTACK WITHOUT THE SUPPORT OF AIRCRAFT. AS THE BAD WEATHER CLOSED IN AGAIN, THE ENEMY WAS EXPECTED TO MAKE USE OF THE LACK OF ALLIED AIR SUPPORT TO MOUNT ADDITIONAL ATTACKS.

THERE WAS NO QUESTION THAT THE GERMANS WERE MAKING A MAJOR EFFORT TO KEEP AACHEN FROM FALLING INTO HODGES' HANDS, AND THE FIRST ARMY INTENDS TO MAKE AN EXAMPLE OF THIS INDUSTRIAL CENTER AS A WARNING TO OTHER GERMAN CITIES THAT THE SAME DESTRUCTION WILL BE CARRIED TO THEM IF THE NAZIS USE THEM AS FORTRESSES.

NORTH OF AACHEN, AMERICAN INFANTRY, SUPPORTED BY TANKS AND HEAVY ARTILLERY, ATTACKED AT 6 A.M. IN A DRIVE AGAINST THE THIN CORRIDOR WHICH THE GERMANS HAVE FOUGHT FRANTICALLY TO MAINTAIN.

TOTAL PRISONERS TAKEN BY THE FIRST ARMY SINCE D-DAY TOTAL 194,718.

IN ADDITION, THE ARMY HAS BURIED 14,789 GERMANS.

WITH THE SEVENTH ARMY, OCT. 16-(AP)-SODDEN GERMAN PRISONERS TRUDGING THROUGH THE RAIN TO CAGES THIS AFTERNOON EXPRESSED ASTONISHMENT THAT THE YANKS HAD BEEN ABLE "TO COUNTERATTACK SO QUICKLY" AFTER THEIR "OFFENSIVE" OPENED IN THE WESTWARD DRIVE YESTERDAY.

THE AMERICANS WHO HEARD THIS WERE EQUALLY ASTONISHED. THEY KNEW NOTHING ABOUT THE GERMAN OFFENSIVE. ALL THEY KNEW WAS THAT THEY HAD MOUNTED AN ATTACK OF THEIR OWN AT BRUYERES AND THE HIGH GROUND JUST BEHIND THE CITY, AND THAT AFTER TWO DAYS' FIGHTING THEY HAD ALMOST REACHED THE FRINGS OF THE CITY BUT THE OBJECTIVE ITSELF STILL WAS HELD RESOLUTELY BY THE NAZI DEFENDERS.

ALTHOUGH DENIED POSSESSION OF BRUYERES, FOR THE MOMENT AT LEAST, THE AMERICANS OVERRAN THE LITTLE TOWN OF LAVAL, LESS THAN A MILE TO THE SOUTH.

WEST OF LAVAL THE GERMANS THREW IN ONE OF THEIR MOST VIGOROUS COUNTERATTACKS, DRIVING THROUGH A HEAVILY WOODED AREA NORTHWEST OF BRUYERES. THE AMERICANS HELD IN A TWO-HOUR FIGHT AND THE GERMANS FINALLY PULLED BACK INTO BRUYERES.

OUTSIDE FORT DRIANT, FRANCE, OCT 16-(AP)-AMERICAN TROOPS HAVE WITHDRAWN FROM THEIR SMALL FOOTHOLDS INSIDE FORT DRIANT FIVE MILES SOUTHWEST OF METZ, AFTER BLOWING UP ENEMY INSTALLATIONS.

THE WITHDRAWAL CLIMAXED TEN DAYS OF CLOSE QUARTER FIGHTING IN WHICH LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S THIRD ARMY DOUGHBOYS PENETRATED ONLY 100 YARDS INTO ONE OF THE UNDERGROUND PASSAGES OF THE BRISTLING FORTRESS, HONEYCOMBED BY A MYRIAD OF TUNNELS.

THEY CUT DOWN STEEL DOORS WITH ACETYLENE TORCHES AND FOUGHT FROM ENTRANCE TO ENTRANCE. BUT THEY WERE HANDICAPPED IN EFFORTS TO ADVANCE IN UPPER PORTIONS OF THE FORT BY MUSHROOM PILLBOXES WHICH WERE RAISED HYDRAULICALLY TO FIRE UPON THE SOLDIERS WHO HAD PASSED THEM.

THE FORT, ONE OF THE MAIN BASTIONS GUARDING METZ, WAS POUNDED HEAVILY FROM THE AIR AND BY THIRD ARMY ARTILLERY WITH ONLY SLIGHT EFFECT.

EVEN THOUGH THE INFANTRY WAS WITHDRAWN AFTER HOLDING THE NORTHWESTERN AND SOUTHWESTERN CORNERS FOR SEVERAL DAYS THE FORT AND ADJACENT STRONGHOLDS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE MOSELLE WERE STILL UNDER HEAVY FIRE FROM AMERICAN GUNS.

THE WITHDRAWAL WAS UNDER COVER OF NIGHT AFTER EXPLOSIVES LEFT OVER FROM THE ATTACK HAD BEEN USED TO BLOW UP THE STRONGHOLDS WON BY THE AMERICANS.

THE WITHDRAWAL WAS COMPLETED AT 2 A.M. FRIDAY. AT NO TIME WAS THERE MORE THAN A BATTALION OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS INVOLVED IN THIS ACTION, DESIGNED AS A TEST TO DETERMINE WHETHER THE METZ RING OF FORTIFICATIONS SHOULD BE SUBJECT TO FRONTAL ASSAULT OR BYPASSED.

A SPOKESMAN SAID THE FORT "MIGHT HAVE BEEN TAKEN BY FRONTAL ASSAULT" THROUGH USE OF MUCH HEAVIER FORCES BUT THAT THE RESULTANT LOSSES WOULD NOT HAVE BEEN JUSTIFIED.

"CASUALTIES WERE NUMERICALLY LIGHT" AMONG THE ATTACKING FORCE, HE SAID.

A B-29 BASE IN WESTERN CHINA, OCT.16-(AP)-A STRONG FORCE OF SUPERFORTRESSES RETURNED TO FORMOSA TODAY, ADDING THEIR MULTI-TON LOADS TO THE RISING CRESCENDO OF FURIOUS ARMY AND NAVY ATTACKS ON THE MAIN JAPANESE BASE IN THE SOUTH CHINA SEA AREA.

THE PRIMARY TARGETS WERE THE ALREADY HARD-HIT ENEMY AIRFORCE INSTALLATIONS AT OKAYAMA AND THE AIR BASE AND SHOPS AT HEITO, A FEW MILES TO THE SOUTHEAST.

THE SECOND RAID ON OKAYAMA IN 48 HOURS WAS DESIGNED TO EXPUNGE ANY POSSIBLY USABLE INSTALLATIONS REMAINING AFTER SATURDAY'S STRIKE. THE TARGETS AT HEITO WERE ONLY SLIGHTLY LESS IMPORTANT THAN AT OKAYAMA. CREW MEMBERS ESTIMATED UNOFFICIALLY THAT 75 PERCENT OF OKAYAMA'S MILITARY OBJECTIVES WERE KNOCKED OUT IN THE RAID SATURDAY.

THE RAID FOLLOWING THE RECORD OCT.14 SMASH CARRIED OUT MAJ.GEN. CURTIS E.LEMAY'S ANNOUNCED POLICY OF STEPPING UP THE WEIGHT AND FREQUENCY OF SUPERFORTRESS ATTACKS ON JAPANESE TARGETS. AS A VETERAN EUROPEAN THEATER BOMB GROUP COMMANDER HE PARTICIPATED IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE ROUND-THE-CLOCK TECHNIQUE AND AS COMMANDER OF THE 20TH U.S. BOMBER COMMAND HE REMAINS AN ARDENT ADVOCATE OF TARGET OBLITERATION BY REPEATED, CLOSELY SPACED ATTACKS.

OCT 17 1944

THE TWO CLOSELY-SPACED RAIDS ON FORMOSA CONSTITUTED THE OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT OF THE 20TH BOMBER COMMAND TO DATE. A TREMENDOUS EFFORT WAS REQUIRED BEFOREHAND TO TRANSPORT FUEL AND BOMBS ACROSS THE BURMA "HUMP" FOR THE ATTACK.

THE PHYSICAL FEAT OF THE BOMBER CREWS IN MAKING THE DOUBLE ROUNDTRIP OF APPROXIMATELY 2,400 MILES WAS REGARDED AS AN OUTSTANDING "IRON MEN" STUNT.

WHILE THE TOTAL FORCE TODAY WAS SMALLER THAN SATURDAY IT STILL APPROACHED THE NUMBERS OF OTHER PREVIOUS RAIDS.

NO AMERICAN SHIP LOSSES HAVE BEEN ANNOUNCED. JAPANESE PROPAGANDA BROADCAST CLAIMED THAT BETWEEN 0 AND 52 U.S. WARSHIPS HAVE BEEN SUNK OR DAMAGED, INCLUDING 1 AIRCRAFT CARRIERS WENT DOWN AND SIX DAMAGED.

GEN.H.H.ARNOLD, COMMANDER OF THE 20TH AIRFORCE, REPORTED AN ALMOST COMPLETE LACK OF JAPANESE AIR OPPOSITION DURING THE TWO B-29 ATTACKS ON FORMOSA.

HE SAID IT WAS PRESUMED THE NIPPONESE ATTEMPTED NO INTERCEPTION BECAUSE THEIR AIRFIELDS WERE RENDERED INOPERABLE BY EARLIER CARRIER PLANE ATTACKS. HE SAID ALL AIRSTRIPS WERE BADLY DAMAGED BY THE NAVY FLIERS AND THAT AT LEAST 50 GROUNDED JAPANESE PLANES WERE DESTROYED OR DAMAGED.

HEAVY DAMAGE WAS INFLICTED ON THE TAKAO INDUSTRIAL AREA, WHICH IS THE CENTER OF FORMOSA'S PRINCIPAL FACTORIES. SHIPS ALSO WERE SUNK IN THE HARBOR.

IN ADDITION TO THE 30 WAREHOUSES DESTROYED, BUILDINGS AT THE AIRFIELD WERE DAMAGED.

TAKAO IS 25 MILES SOUTHEAST OF TAINAN. ITS POPULATION IS 107,857.

CARRIER PLANES ALSO DESTROYED OR DAMAGED BUILDINGS, HANGARS, ASSEMBLY PLANTS AT THE OKAYAMA AIRFIELD, 12 MILES NORTHWEST OF TAKAO, THE MOST IMPORTANT ONE IN THAT AREA.

(OKAYAMA ALSO WAS A PRINCIPAL TARGET DURING TWO B-29 SUPERFORTRESS RAIDS.)

AT HEITO, 15 MILES INLAND FROM TAKAO, 14 BUILDINGS NEAR THE AIRFIELD WERE DESTROYED AND EIGHT DAMAGED. FIVE BARRACKS AT ANOTHER NEARBY AIRFIELD WERE DESTROYED.

THE REPORT THAT JAPANESE WARSHIPS WERE IN THE FIGHT CAME FROM TWO NIPPON SOURCES. AN IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE, QUOTED BY THE NEWS AGENCY DOMEI, SAID "THE IMPERIAL FLEET HAS FINALLY MADE ITS APPEARANCE OFF FORMOSA." PREMIER KOISO SAID "NAVAL TORPEDO UNITS PARTICIPATED.

OCT 17 1944

ANOTHER TOKYO BROADCAST, MONITORED BY FCC, SAID JAPANESE AIRMEN INTERCEPTED AND ATTACKED A DIVERSIONARY U.S. TASK FORCE EAST OF THE PHILIPPINES.

ADD U-S-P-F-H-P-H- XX AGROUND

"NUMEROUS SINGLE AND TWIN-ENGINE ENEMY AIRCRAFT" ATTACKED AMERICAN TASK FORCES THAT AFTERNOON. TWENTY-EIGHT WERE SHOT DOWN BY A COMBAT AIR PATROL AND TWO BY ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE. MANY OTHERS WERE KNOWN TO HAVE BEEN DESTROYED IN ATTACKS ON OTHER UNITS OF THE AMERICAN FORCE.

THE THIRD FLEET HAD BEATEN OFF "STRONG COUNTER ATTACKS" BY JAPANESE AIRCRAFT THE PREVIOUS NIGHT. FIGHTERS SHOT DOWN 13 NIPPONESE PLANES AND ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNNERS GOT SEVEN.

THIS TOTAL OF 91 PLANES BROUGHT THE AMERICAN BAG IN THE FORMOSA AREA TO 487 PLANES AND 63 SHIPS SUNK OR DAMAGED.

OCT 17 1944

SMALL GROUPS OF JAPANESE PLANES ATTACKED THE AMERICAN FORCES WEDNESDAY, AFTER THE FIRST CARRIER PLANE ASSAULT ON FORMOSA.

WHILE THE BATTLE IN THE NORTH FLARED, GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR FRIDAY SENT MORE THAN 150 SOUTHWEST PACIFIC BOMBERS AGAINST CERAM AND BOEROE ISLANDS, SOUTHWESTERN GUARDIANS OF APPROACHES TO THE INVASION-MENACED PHILIPPINES. AIRFIELDS, INSTALLATIONS AND SHIPPING WERE HIT.

A JAPANESE IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS COMMUNIQUE LAST NIGHT CLAIMED SINKING OR DAMAGING 35 AMERICAN WARSHIPS OFF FORMOSA. IT SAID 10 CARRIERS AND TWO BATTLESHIPS WERE AMONG THOSE SUNK AND THREE CARRIERS AND ONE BATTLESHIP WERE DAMAGED. THIS RAISED PREVIOUS OFFICIAL FIGURES, BUT TOKYO PROPAGANDISTS HAD CLAIMED 52 WARCRAFT WERE SUNK OR DAMAGED.

NIMITZ ALSO ANNOUNCED THAT MARINES ON PELELIU ISLAND, IN THE SOUTHERN PALAUS, HAD SEALED UP SEVERAL MORE ENEMY CAVES.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC BOMBERS IN OTHER AERIAL STRIKES HIT THE OIL CENTER AT BALIKPAPAN, BORNEO, THE NICKEL PRODUCING AREA AT POMELAA, CELEBES, AND AIRFIELDS NEAR DAVAO, MINDANAO.

JAP FLEET INTERPRETIVE (230)
BY CHARLES H.MCMURTRY
U.S.PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS,PEARL HARBOR,OCT.17-(AP)-
THERE IS GROWING SUSPICION AMONG MANY NAVAL OFFICERS HERE THAT THE JAPANESE IMPERIAL FLEET HAS NO INTENTION OF MEETING ADM.WILLIAM F.HALSEY'S POWERFUL ARMADA UNLESS TRAPPED.

DESPITE TOKYO RADIO REPORTS THAT THE IMPERIAL FLEET SANK UP TO 52 OF HALSEY'S SHIPS, THERE IS NO INDICATION THE JAPANESE HAVE DARED EMERGE FROM HIDING.

MANY NAVAL OFFICERS HERE WERE ALMOST JUBILANT SUNDAY WHEN TOKYO BROADCAST REPORTS OF A GREAT NAVAL BATTLE, BECAUSE THEY WERE CONFIDENT OF A HALSEY VICTORY.

WITH STRICT RADIO SILENCE IMPOSED UPON HALSEY'S THIRD FLEET, BECAUSE OF THE PROXIMITY OF ITS OPERATIONS TO JAPAN AND FORMOSA BASES, THESE NAVAL MEN AT FIRST WERE INCLINED TO CREDIT TOKYO WITH TELLING THE TRUTH, TO THE EXTENT THAT ACTION WAS ENGAGED OR IMMINENT.

NOW, HOWEVER, IT APPEARS THE JAPANESE FLEET IS COWERING YET IN ITS BASES, POSSIBLY STILL LICKING THE WOUNDS OF THE PHILIPPINE SEA BATTLE LAST JUNE.

THAT LEADS TO THIS SIMPLE DEDUCTION: THE IMPERIAL HIGH COMM- AND IS ADMITTEDLY JITTERY OVER HALSEY'S AUDACIOUS THRUSTS AT FORMOSA, THE RYUKYU ISLANDS AND THE PHILIPPINES, INSIDE THE TIGHT JAPANESE DEFENSE PERIMETER. THE COMMAND HAS BEGUN, THEN, A PLANNED PROPAGANDA CAMPAIGN IN AN ATTEMPT TO STILL THE FEARS OF THE JAPANESE THAT THE HOMELAND ITSELF IS NEXT ON THE NIMITZ-HALSEY-MITSCHER AGENDA.

(THE U.S. THIRD FLEET BEGAN ITS THUNDEROUS WEEK OF CARRIER PLANE ATTACKS WITH AN ASSAULT ~~SEPT.~~ 29, U.S. TIME, AGAINST JAPAN'S RYUKYU ISLANDS, SOUTHWEST OF THE HOMELAND. HERE IN A DELAYED DISPATCH IS THE STORY OF THAT RAID.)

BY MORRIE LANDSBERG

ABOARD U.S. CARRIER TASK FORCE FLAGSHIP, LEAVING THE RYUKYU ISLANDS, ~~SEPT~~ 5-(DELAYED)-(VIA NAVY RADIO)-(AP)-THE SKY VANGUARD OF THE AMERICAN THRUST TO THE WEST REACHED THE GATEWAY TO JAPAN TODAY AND STUNNED THE ENEMY WITH THE GREATEST AIR ATTACK OF THE ENTIRE PACIFIC WAR.

THE WIDESPREAD DAMAGE INFLICTED ON LAND AND SEA IN THE 400-MILE-LONG ASSAULT AGAINST THE ISLANDS APPEARED LESS SURPRISING THAN JAPANESE IMPOTENCE IN THE DEFENCE OF THESE GUARDIAN BASES BEFORE THEIR HOME ISLANDS.

NAVY FLIERS AGAIN DARED LAND-BASED AIRCRAFT IN RAIDS EXTENDING FROM ISHIGAKI, ONLY 160 STATUTE MILES FROM FORMOSA, TO AMAMI OSHIMA, 270 MILES SOUTHWEST OF KYUSHU, ONE OF THE FOUR MAIN JAPANESE ISLANDS, AND 817 MILES FROM TOKYO.

MOST OF THE ENEMY PLANES REMAINED AGROUND, TO BE PICKED OFF BY BOMBING AND STRAFING.

SURPRISE PAID OFF FOR THE BOLD, BRILLIANTLY-EXECUTED OPERATION BY THE LARGEST CARRIER TASK FORCE EVER ASSEMBLED. VICE ADM. MARC A. MITSCHER'S MAURAUDERS NOW INCLUDE SOME OF AMERICA'S NEWEST FLATTOPS.

SCARCELY A HALF DOZEN INTERCEPTORS ROSE TO CHALLENGE THE AMERICANS MAKING THE FIRST ATTACK ON OKINAWA SHIMA, THE LARGEST ISLAND IN THE CHAIN, AND EIGHT OTHER ISLANDS. JAPANESE FIRE WAS HEAVY, BUT THE ONLY REAL BATTLE FOUGHT WAS AGAINST THE WEATHER.

SHIPS OF THE THIRD FLEET SAILED A STORMY COURSE ON THE FRINGE OF A TYPHOON TO REACH POSITION FOR THE STRIKE. LASHING WINDS MOCKED THE MIGHT ON THE NAVAL ARMADA CHURNING WAVES THAT SOMETIMES SWEPT AS HIGH AS THE CARRIERS' FLIGHT DECKS.

ONCE IT APPEARED QUESTIONABLE WHETHER FUELING COULD BE ACCOMPLISHED. A WAVE DASHED A MAN TO DEATH AGAINST THE CATWALK ON ONE CARRIER.

THEN THE WINDS SUBSIDED AND THE SEAS CALMED. AT DAWN IT WAS CLEAR.

NEARLY 1,500 SORTIES WERE FLOWN BEFORE DUSK SENT THE CARRIERS ON THEIR WAY AGAIN. THE ATTACK CENTERED ON OKINAWA, 67 MILES LONG, WHICH IS VALUABLE TO THE ENEMY AS A SUBSTANTIAL AND STRATEGIC ANCHORAGE. IT IS UNLIKELY THAT THE BAYS AND HARBORS OF OKINAWA WILL SHELTER MUCH SHIPPING FOR AWHILE.

(ADM. CHESTER W. NIMITZ ANNOUNCED THAT 77 SHIPS AND MORE THAN 50 SMALL CRAFT WERE SUNK OR DAMAGED AND 119 PLANES DESTROYED OR DAMAGED DURING THE RYUKYU ASSAULT.)

THE MAIN PORT OF NAHA -- WHICH HAD A 1940 POPULATION OF 657,765 -- WAS LEFT A "MASS OF FLAMES," PILOTS REPORTED. THIRTY FIRES WERE COUNTED IN THE VICINITY OF THE CITY.

ALTHOUGH THE THIRD FLEET UNITS WERE EASILY WITHIN RANGE OF LAND-BASED PLANES ON FORMOSA AND KYUSHU, THE JAPANESE DID NOT RISK THEM AGAINST THE ATTACKERS. AIRCRAFT ON NUMEROUS FIELDS IN THE RYUKYUS WERE PINNED DOWN IMMEDIATELY BY ATTACKING FIGHTERS, WITH HEAVY DESTRUCTION.

NO ENEMY BOMBERS APPROACHED OUR SHIPS CLOSE ENOUGH TO MAKE A BOMBING RUN.

THE NIPPONESE ACTUALLY HAD AN EARLY CHANCE AT INTERCEPTION BUT MISSED IT. AIR GROUP COMMANDER T. HUGH WINTERS, 31, OF SOCIETY HILL, N.C., WENT ALONG WITH THE FIRST WAVE OF ATTACKERS TO TAKE PHOTOGRAPHS. WHEN HIS PLANE PASSED A JAPANESE SCOUT CRAFT, HE TURNED ABOUT AND SHOT DOWN THE TWIN ENGINE RECONNAISSANCE PLANE WHICH APPARENTLY HAD NOT SIGHTED THE AMERICAN WAVE.

ANOTHER SCOUT PLANE WENT DOWN LATER, WITH THE KILL ACCREDITED TO TWO TORPEDO PLANE GUNNERS, AOM 2/C VIRGIL R.ENGLISH, 23, OF SAN DIEGO AND AOM 2/C ELMO M.HOCKMAN 22, OF CLEVELAND (1417 EAST 120TH ST.).

A SUBTENDER AS WELL AS A LARGE OILER AND MEDIUM TANKER WENT DOWN AFTER PERSISTENT ATTACKS IN THE NARROW STRAIT BETWEEN OKINAWA AND A NEARBY SMALL ISLAND, CALLED SESOKO SHIMA. BOTH LT. JOHN L.BUTTS, 23, OF MIAMI, FLA. (6100 NW SECOND COURT) AND LT. (JG) JERRY B.WILTON, 23, OF GRAND LEDGE, MICH. (113 WESTERN JEFFERSON AVENUE) SCORED HITS ON THE TENDER.

LT. (JG) GORDON B.WHELPLEY, 24, OF BEDFORD HILLS, N.Y., CAUGHT A SMALL CARGO VESSEL OFF SOSOKE.

LT. (JG) WILLIAM E.MCBRIDE, 25, OF SPRINGFIELD, ILL., SAID HE SAW A FELLOW HELLDIVER PILOT LAND A BOMB WHICH BROKE A SMALL CARGO VESSEL IN TWO. THE SUCCESSFUL PILOT WAS LT. (JG) ALVIN EMIG, 24, OF COLUMBUS, OHIO (2114 PRICE ROAD).

OCT 17 1944

THE ENEMY AIRFIELD AT YONTAN, ON NORTHERN OKINAWA, WAS DESCRIBED AS THE BEST JAPANESE AIRSTRIP HE HAD SEEN BY AOM 2/C CALVIN B.BONDS, 20, OF DECATUR, ILL. (2175 EAST HENDRIX).

"I SAW SIX PLANES IN A ROW," HE SAID, "AND THERE WERE COLUMNS OF SMOKE FROM EACH OF THEM." THE FIELD WAS BOMBED BY HIS TORPEDO PLANE GROUP.

WHEN JAPANESE GROUND GUNNERS OPENED UP ON LT. (JG) JOHN H.CROCKER JR., 23, OF TULSA, OKLA., THE HELLDIVER PILOT RETURNED THE FIRE WITH SOME SUCCESS. AOM 2/C CHARLES W.BRUNSON, 19, OF ST.CLAIRVILLE, N.Y., AN AVENGER GUNNER, OVERHEARD CROCKER ON THE RADIO TELLING HOW HE HAD CHASED A SMALL GROUP OF JAPANESE FROM THE GUN EMPLACEMENT.

"I NEVER SAW GUYS JUMP SO HIGH AS WHEN THE BULLETS STARTED HITTING AROUND THEM," SAID CROCKER.

(BY TECHNICAL SERGEANT JEREMIA' A. O'LEARY, MARINE CORPS COMBAT CORRESPONDENT, FORMERLY OF THE WA INGTON EVENING STAR, DISTRIBUTED BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS).

PELELIU, PALAU ISLANDS--ONE OF THE LARGEST OF THE CORAL CAVES HERE HAS BEEN DUBBED THE CHAMBER OF HORRORS.

IN THE PITCH-DARK INTERIOR, MARINES BUMPED INTO THE BODY OF A JAP WHO HAD HANGED HIMSELF FROM A RAFTER WITH HIS OWN BELT. THE SUICIDE APPARENTLY HAD KICKED A CHAIR OUT FROM UNDER HIMSELF. FURTHER IN, THE PARTY FOUND ANOTHER JAP WHO HAD MADE A TOURNIQUET WITH A STRIP OF CLOTH AND A BAYONET SCABBARD, AND TWISTED THE SCABBARD UNTIL HE HAD CHOKED HIMSELF TO DEATH.

USING FLASHLIGHTS, THE MARINES DISCERNED THAT THE CAVE WAS EQUIPPED WITH AN ELECTRIC LIGHTING SYSTEM. THE JAPS HAD ENLARGED THE NATURAL SPACE AND PUT IN WOODEN FLOORING AND STAIRWAYS. TROUGHS WERE ARRANGED TO CATCH DRINKING WATER FROM THE SEEPAGE EXUDING FROM THE CORAL WALLS. ENOUGH RICE, FISH AND OTHER FOODSTUFFS WERE FOUND TO ENABLE THE OCCUPANTS TO SUSTAIN A YEAR OF SIEGE.

THE CAVE EXTENDED ALL THE WAY THROUGH A 150-FOOT RIDGE, WHERE MANY MARINES DIED IN THE ADVANCE THROUGH PELELIU'S BARREN CENTER, AND HAD BOTH FRONT AND REAR ENTRANCES. WHILE THE PATROL WAS PROBING THE DANK DEPTHS, OTHER MARINES ON THE FAR SIDE OF THE RIDGE HEARD THE NOISES WITHIN AND PROMPTLY BEGAN GRENADING THE REAR ENTRANCE.

LATER, THE PARTY REENTERED THE CAVE WITH MORE FLASHLIGHTS AND REMOVED THE FOLLOWING MATERIALS: JAPANESE RADIOS OF THE MOST MODERN MAKE; NAVAL AND ARMY UNIFORMS; CHAIRS AND OTHER PIECES OF FURNITURE TO INCREASE LIVING COMFORT ON COMFORTLESS PELELIU; ONE FLASH-LIGHT PHOTO OF THE HANGING JAP MADE BY JOE ROSENTHAL, ASSOCIATED PRESS PHOTOGRAPHER WHO ACCOMPANIED THE INVESTIGATORS; ONE BOTTLE OF JAPANESE WHISKEY, WHICH WAS NOT THE LEAST OF THE CAVE'S HORRORS.

TEGUCIGALPA, HONDURAS, OCT. 16--(AP)--REBEL CHIEFTAIN GEN. PEDRO CORTES WAS KILLED DURING AN UNSUCCESSFUL ATTACK BY HONDURAN REVOLUTIONARIES EXILED IN SAN SALVADOR ON THE HONDURAN CITY OF SAN MARCOS SATURDAY, IT WAS ANNOUNCED OFFICIALLY TODAY.

(A DISPATCH FROM SAN SALVADOR CONFIRMED GEN. CORTES' DEATH, BUT ADDED THAT THE REVOLUTIONARIES RETURNED TO LAS MERCEDES, WHERE THEY PLANNED TO CONTINUE THE ATTACKS.

(THE DISPATCH ADDED THAT ANOTHER OFFICER AND FIVE REVOLUTIONARY SOLDIERS WERE KILLED, BUT IT CLAIMED THAT HONDURAS GOVERNMENT CASULATIES INCLUDED THE DEATH OF THE COMMANDER OF THE SAN MARCOS GARRISON AND 34 SOLDIERS.)

HONDURAN GOVERNMENT FORCES CAPTURED SOME ARMS, A FLAG AND MAIL THROUGH WHICH IT WAS LEARNED THAT THE REBELS HAD PLANNED TO ATTACK THE OCOTEPEQUE DEPARTMENT CAPITAL, BUT THIS PLAN HAD FAILED, IT WAS REPORTED.

THE LOCAL PRESS ANNOUNCED TODAY THE REVOLT WAS A TOTAL FAILURE.

MEXICO CITY,OCT.16-(AP)-TWO HUNDRED DOCTORS IN THEIR CARS WHO BLOCKADED A FILLING STATION FOR SIX HOURS TODAY FINALLY DISPERSED WHEN A HURRY CALL BROUGHT A TANK TRUNK WITH 500 GALLONS AND TRAFFIC POLICE SEIZED TWELVE LICENSES.

THE DOCTORS CAN NOT DRIVE WITHOUT THE PLATES AND MUST PAY A TRAFFIC FINE TO RECOVER THEM.

THE BLOCKADE WAS A PROTEST AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT-OWNED OIL MONOPOLY'S FAILURE TO SUPPLY GAS AT STATIONS WHERE DOCTORS WERE SUPPOSED TO GET SUPPLIES DURING TEMPORARY RATIONING REQUIRED BY THE BREAKING OF PIPELINES AND INTERRUPTION OF FREIGHT SERVICE DURING RECENT FLOODS.

THE DOCTORS, INCLUDING DR.IGNACIO GONZALEZ, DIRECTOR OF THE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MEDICINE, ALSO PROTESTED AGAINST THEIR LIMITATION OF ABOUT TEN GALLONS TWICE WEEKLY (CORRECT) AS COMPARED WITH TEN GALLONS DAILY RATION FOR TAXIS.

BY EARLY AFTERNOON MANY DOCTORS LEFT TO MAKE THEIR ROUNDS OR GO TO HOSPITALS BUT MEANTIME SOME OF THEM SENT WORD TO THE MEDICAL STUDENTS TO JOIN THE DEMONSTRATION. HOWEVER, BEFORE THE STUDENTS ARRIVED, FEAR OF POLICE ACTION SCATTERED SOME AND THE REMAINDER GOT THEIR GASOLINE.

THE DOCTOR PROTESTED FORMALLY TO THE GOVERNMENT OIL MONOPOLY AND TO THE MAYOR AND THEY THREATENED TO REPEAT THE BLOCKADE IF SUPPLIES WERE NOT FURNISHED.

NEW YORK, OCT.16-(AP)-ANNOUNCEMENT TODAY THAT THE CRUISER ORION HAS LED A BRITISH NAVAL SQUADRON BACK TO GREECE, ANCHORING WITHOUT INTERFERENCE IN PIRAEUS ROADSTEAD, CONTRIBUTES A FITTING SENTIMENTAL GESTURE TO THE ALLIED RECONQUEST OF THAT KINGDOM.

FOR THE ORION, A 12-YEAR-OLD VETERAN OF THE MEDITERRANEAN, WAS ONE OF THE PRINCIPAL VICTIMS OF THE DISASTROUS BRITISH EVACUATION OF GREECE AND CRETE IN 1941.

LOADED FAR BEYOND CAPACITY WITH TROOPS, SHE WAS CAUGHT BY THE GERMAN STUKAS THREE YEARS AGO LAST MAY ON THE RUN FROM CRETE TO EGYPT. ENEMY BOMBS INFLICTED A HORRIBLE TOLL OF DEAD AND WOUNDED ON HER JAMMED DECKS AND IN THE CRAMPED PASSAGEWAYS BELOW. IN A NEAR SINKING CONDITION, THE 7,215-TON CRUISER FINALLY LIMPED INTO ALEXANDRIA.

SO DREADFUL WAS HER CONDITION SHE HAD TO BE EVACUATED AND CLEANED BEFORE EVEN TEMPORARY REPAIRS COULD BE MADE.

THEN THE ORION CREPT EASTWARD MORE THAN HALFWAY AROUND THE WORLD TO THE AMERICAN NAVAL YARD AT MARE ISLAND, CALIF., WHERE SHE SPENT MONTHS UNDERGOING A COMPLETE REFIT. HER LIGHTING FIXTURES AND MUCH EQUIPMENT TO THIS DAY ARE AMERICAN.

SHE THEN RETURNED TO THE MEDITERRANEAN, PARTICIPATED IN THE TUNISIAN CLEANUP, THE CAPTURE OF PANTELLERIA AND THE CONQUEST OF SICILY AND THE INVASIONS OF ITALY; SHE GOT IN ON THE NORMANDY INVASION LAST JUNE, THEN ON THE SOUTHERN FRENCH INVASION.

THE PROCLAMATION ASSERTED THAT HUNGARY WAS FORCED INTO THE WAR HROUGH GERMAN PRESSURE BECAUSE OF ITS LOCATION AND "HAD NO NTENTION TO SNATCH AS MUCH AS A SQUARE KILOMETER OF ETTITORY ROM ANYBODY."

"THE GERMAN REICH ON ITS PART BROKE THE LOYALTY OF AN ALLY TOWARD OUR COUNTRY A LONG TIME AGO," THE HORTHY PROCLAMATION, TRANSMITTED CURIOUSLY IN GERMAN-LANGUAGE MORSE CODE AND RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS SYSTEM, SAID.

HE ACCUSED GERMANY OF OCCUPYING THE COUNTRY WHILE HE WAS IN CONFERENCE WITH HITLER LAST MARCH, OF PERSECUTING HUNGARIAN JEWS IN VIOLATION OF PROMISES, OF FAILURE TO RENDER PROMISED ASSISTANCE, AND OF "LOOTING AND DESTRUCTION" DURING THE CURRENT AXIS RETREAT. THE ACTION WAS TAKEN UNDER A JOINT UNITED STATES-BRITISH PROGRAM, IN LINE WITH A SEPT. 26 JOINT STATEMENT BY PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL IN WHICH THEY SAID THE TRADING WITH THE ENEMY ACT SHOULD BE MODIFIED SO AS TO RESUME BUSINESS CONTACTS.

THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT MAKING TODAY'S ANNOUNCEMENT, SAID BANKS MAY NOW REPLY TO REQUESTS FOR INFORMATION FROM THEIR DEPOSITORS IN LIBERATED ITALY WITHOUT TREASURY LICENSE; DOCUMENTS SUCH AS BIRTHS, DEATH AND MARRIAGE CERTIFICATES, WILLS AND LEGAL NOTICES MAY BE TRANSMITTED. ITALIAN AND U.S.CONCERNS MAY EXCHANGE BUSINESS INFORMATION.

SINCE TRADE WITH ITALY IS BEING CARRIED ON ONLY THROUGH GOVERNMENTAL AGENCIES, LICENSES WILL NOT BE GRANTED FOR PRIVATE TRADE DEALS UNTIL ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE RESUMPTION OF PRIVATE TRADE HAVE BEEN MADE. TREASURY OFFICIALS SAID IT WAS UNLIKELY SUCH RESUMPTION WILL COME IN THE VERY NEAR FUTURE.

AS FOR FINANCIAL OR PROPERTY TRANSACTIONS ON BEHALF OF, OR INVOLVING PERSONS IN ITALY, TREASURY LICENSES WILL CONTINUE TO BE REQUIRED. EXCEPT FOR THE EXISTING FACILITIES FOR SENDING LIVING EXPENSE REMITTANCES TO LIBERATED ITALY, THE SENDING TO ITALY OF CURRENCY, SECURITIES, MONEY ORDERS, CHECKS AND DRAFTS IS STILL PROHIBITED.

BOSTON, OCT 16-(AP)-MALCOLM MACDONALD, HIGH COMMISSIONER FOR THE UNITED KINGDOM IN CANADA, SAID TODAY THAT THERE WAS NOTHING "OF MORE VITAL IMPORTANCE TO THE CREATION OF A MORE HOPEFUL INTERNATIONAL SITUATION THAN XXX GENUINE UNDERSTANDING AND COOPERATION BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND GREAT BRITAIN."

"TO STATE IT SIMPLY," MACDONALD SAID IN A SPEECH PREPARED FOR THE BOSTON CONFERENCE ON DISTRIBUTION, "IF THEY WORK WELL TOGETHER MANY BETTER THINGS FOR HUMANITY BECOME POSSIBLE.

"THEY ARE GETTING ON QUITE WELL AT PRESENT. BUT ANYONE WITH A CLEAR AND HONEST VISITION CAN SEE THAT THERE ARE DIFFERENCES OF CHARACTER AND TEMPERAMENT X X X AND CERTAIN PREJUDICES ON BOTH SIDES WHICH MAY STAND IN THE WAY OF WHOLEHEARTED COOPERATION BETWEEN THEM WHEN THE DESPERATE PERIL OF BATTLE HAS PASSED AND UNITY BETWEEN THEM MAY APPEAR LESS ESSENTIAL."

ASSERTING THAT THE PEOPLE OF INDIA WERE MUCH NEARER TO COMPLETE SELF GOVERNMENT THAN THE PEOPLE OF BRITISH COLONIES, MACDONALD SAID THAT THE OBSTACLES TO FULL RESPONSIBLE SELF GOVERNMENT "DO NOT LIE IN BRITAIN, THEY LIE IN INDIA."

MACDONALD SAID THAT THE PRINCIPAL OBSTACLE IN THE WAY OF COMPLETE FREEDOM FOR INDIA WAS THE INABILITY OF THE TWO GREAT RELIGIOUS COMMUNITIES, THE HINDUS AND MOSLEMS TO AGREE ON A CONSTITUTION FOR A SELF GOVERNING INDIA WHICH SHALL DIVIDE POWER EQUITABLY AMONG THEM AND PROTECT THE RIGHTS OF MINORITIES.

UNDATED FORMOSA INTERPRETIVE (320)

OCT 17 1944

BY RUSSELL BRINES
ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR EDITOR

FEAR OF IMMEDIATE INVASION OF FORMOSA--OR A CLEVER AMERICAN RUSE--MAY LAY BEHIND THE DECISION TO SEND JAPAN'S HOARDED FLEET INTO BATTLE.

FOR MORE THAN A YEAR, AMERICAN COMMANDERS HAVE GOADED JAPAN'S ADMIRALS RELENTLESSLY, ATTEMPTING TO DRAW NAVAL UNITS WITHIN THE SUPERIOR GUNFIRE OF ROVING U.S. FORCES. IF THE FORMOSA ENGAGEMENT REACHES THE PROPORTIONS ALREADY CLAIMED BY EXCITED TOKYO PROPAGANDISTS, THIS STRATEGIC GOAL MAY BE REACHED.

BUT THE STAKES HAD TO BE BIG. IT IS LIKELY THAT THE JAPANESE WOULD HAVE HELD BACK THEIR SURFACE GUNS, IF THEY BELIEVED THE TASK FORCE STRIKES AT FORMOSA WERE ONLY HIT AND RUN RAIDS.

THE ISLAND'S IMPORTANCE AND ITS STRENGTH ARE EMPHASIZED BY THE FACT THAT CARRIER PLANES AND B-29 SUPERFORTRESSES HAVE GIVEN IT THE MOST COMPREHENSIVE TWO-WAY AERIAL ASSAULT OF THE PACIFIC WAR.

THE EXTENT OF THIS BOMBARDMENT, PLUS THE EVIDENT SIZE OF THE THIRD FLEET, ALSO GIVE TOKYO'S STRATEGISTS GOOD REASON TO FEAR INVASION. SEMI-OFFICIAL JAPANESE SPOKESMEN HAVE SAID AS MUCH.

NIPPONESE NAVAL FORCES ALSO WOULD COME OUT IF THE ADMIRALS FELT THEY COULD TRAP ISOLATED AMERICAN TASK FORCES OF LESS POWER THAN THE JAPANESE. THE FREE-WHEELING U.S. FLEET HAS PEELED OFF SOME OF ITS POWER TO STRIKE TARGETS DISTANT FROM THE MAIN FORCE. FRIDAY'S BIG BATTLE STARTED WHEN ONE CARRIER GROUP WAS NEAR LUZON AND OTHERS NEAR FORMOSA.

IT IS POSSIBLE THAT THIS SPLIT WAS DONE DELIBERATELY TO LURE ON AN ENEMY WHICH HAS BEEN RELUCTANT TO COME OUT FOR OTHER REASONS.

AT ANY RATE, IT SEEMS EVIDENT THE IMPERIAL NAVAL UNITS INVOLVED WERE LESS THAN FOUR DAYS' SAIL FROM FORMOSA, THE VITAL ISLAND. IN THAT CASE IT IS CLEAR THEY DELAYED THEIR DEPARTURE FOR THE BATTLE ZONE UNTIL CONVINCED THAT THE ODDS WARRANTED THE RISK.

TOKYO DOES NOT SPECIFY THE NAVAL FORCES IT SAYS HAVE REACHED FORMOSA. THE "IMPERIAL FLEET" COULD MEAN THE SOUTH CHINA FLEET, NORMALLY KEPT OFF THE CHINA COAST, AND POSSIBLY AUGMENTED. IT SEEMS UNLIKELY THAT UNITS ORDERED TO DEFEND THE HOMELAND HAVE LEFT THE MAIN ISLANDS.

The following information comes from the OWI, ~~xxx~~ Oct. 17, 1944:
(not carried on AP wires):

A HUNGARIAN GOVERNMENT COMPOSED OF PRO-NAZI EXTREMISTS UNDER FERENC SZALASI AS PREMIER AND ACTING REGENT WAS FORMED TODAY UNDER GERMAN SPONSORSHIP, THE GERMAN-OPERATED BUDAPEST RADIO ANNOUNCED.

THE NEW PUPPET PREMIER, WHO IS LEADER OF THE ARROW CROSS PARTY, SAID IN AN OFFICIAL STATEMENT QUOTED IN THE DOMESTIC BROADCAST THAT REGENT ADMIRAL NICHOLAS HORTHY, WHO ANNOUNCED LAST NIGHT THAT HE HAD ASKED THE ALLIES FOR ARMISTICE TERMS, HAD "RETIRED FROM THE DIRECTION OF AFFAIRS OF STATE AND HAS ACKNOWLEDGED THE RESIGNATION OF PREMIER (GEZA) LAKATOS AND HIS GOVERNMENT."

THE LAKATOS GOVERNMENT WAS INSTALLED BY GERMAN DIRECTION LAST MARC TO THE ACCOMPANIEMENT OF FULL-SCALE GERMAN OCCUPATION OF HUNGARY.

TODAY'S BROADCAST, REPORTED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, SAID SZALASI HADNAMED A REGENCY COUNCIL COMPOSED OF COL. GEN. KAROLY BERECZKY, DR. FERENC RAJNISS AND DR. SANDOR CSIA. BERECZKY WAS ALSO NAMED CHIEF OF STAFF AND DEFENSE MINISTER IN SZALASI'S CABINET.

WHILE RAJNISS, FORMER EDITOR OF THE OFFICIAL BUDAPEST NEWSPAPER ESTI UJSAG AND KNOWN AS "THE HUNGARIAN GOEBBELS," WAS APPOINTED MINISTER OF PUBLIC WORSHIP AND EDUCATION.

NO INDICATION WAS GIVEN OF HORTHY'S WHEREABOUTS, BUT THE BUDAPEST BROADCAST SOUGHT TO GIVE A VENEER OF LEGALITY TO THE NEW REGIME BY ASSERTING THAT HORTHY HAD "AGREED" THAT SZALASI SHOULD FORM THE REGENC COUNCIL AND THAT SZALASI HIMSELF SHOULD "TEMPORARILY ALSO EXERCISE THE POWERS OF REGENT LEST DELAY BRING SERIOUS HARM AND PERIL UPON OUR NATION AND COUNTRY."

SZALASI'S CABINET, A COALITION OF MEMBERS OF THE ARROW CROSS PARTY, THE MOST EXTREME OF THE HUNGARIAN PRO-NAZI PARTIES, AND SEVERAL EXTREMIST MEMBERS OF THE LAKATOS GOVERNMENT, INCLUDED THE FOLLOWING:

NIPPON WARSHIPS RETIRE AT SIGHT OF U.S. TASK FORCE

Nimitz Reports Only Two Ships Damaged in Formosa Battle.

YANK RAIDS CONTINUE

Enemy Radio Still Claims Sea Victory Over American Fleet.

OCT 18 1944

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 17 —(AP) Sustained action by carrier-based planes against the Philippines and a new landing in the Western Carolines were reported tonight in a communique of Adm. Chester W. Nimitz.

The Carrier plane attacks extended operations which have been in progress against Japan's inner defense ring since Oct. 8 and are meshed with land-based strikes by Gen. Douglas MacArthur who reported a fighter sweep over Mindanao.

Jap Navy Flees

New American carrier-based plane attacks on the northern Philippines were reported by radio Tokyo today on the heels of Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' statement that Nippon warships retired without a fight after they sighted the U. S. task force armada off Formosa.

Tokyo said the latest hits in the Philippines centered on Clark field, pre-war American air base 40 miles from Manila, and on the port of Legaspi, southern Luzon. The Japanese said the raiders were repulsed.

The Japanese continued to claim a great sea victory over the American task force that has been sending heavy waves of planes against Formosa. But Nimitz declared "on discovering our fighting strength unimpaired, they (Japanese warships) avoided action and have withdrawn toward their bases."

Nimitz reported only two American surface ships damaged against Japanese claims of up to 52 sunk or damaged.

(Tokyo radio specified airfields around Manila as among the latest targets.)

The main island in Ulithi atoll is 19 miles long, 10 miles wide. In the surrounding reef are 30 other islets. Mogmog has the main port. Smaller ports are at Asor, Fassaran and Lossau islets.

Ulithi is in the typhoon belt. Its climate is hot.

Tonight's communique reported a bombing raid on Okdoura town at Naha Jima in the Bonin islands, 650 miles south of Tokyo, and attacks on several small ships in the harbor Monday.

By-passed Truk in the central Carolines, Pagan in the northern Marianas and Wake island were other targets raided.

The new landings made last September but kept secret until today, was achieved without opposition on Ulithi atoll in the Western Caroline group. Eighty-first Division Army troops, of the same group which aided in the invasion of the Southern Palaus, went ashore on Ulithi Sept. 20 and 21.

Has Excellent Harbor

Ulithi is 100 miles east of Yap and is northeast of Palau.It has one of the best harbors in the western Pacific.

The landings were kept secret because the Japanese possibly were unaware of them until recently.

Advance patrols landed on Fassaran and Mangejang islands in the Ulithi group on both sides of the main entrance to Ulithi lagoon Sept. 20.

The next day troops occupied the four islets of Mogmog, Potangeras, Asor and Sorlan.

Ulithi also is known as the Mackenzie islands. They roughly are half way between American-occupied southern Palau and Guam.

Ulithi was used by the Japanese as a minor naval base and for seaplane operations earlier in the war. Lack of opposition was somewhat surprising in view of the Japanese fanatical defense elsewhere.

The communique reference of action against the Philippines was limited to a single sentence. The paucity of reports was believed due to the necessity for long periods of radio silence while the fleet is in action.

One look at the power packed by the mighty force of warships that is Adm. William F. Halsey's Third fleet convinced the enemy no change was prudent in its policy of avoiding a showdwn fight at sea.

OCT 18 1944

Tokyo Reports Dispelled

For days the Tokyo radio had blared to the world that "brilliant war results" had been achieved by Nipponese naval and air forces, that in the end Halsey's fleet "will have vanished from the seas."

Japanese newspapers, swallowing this propaganda smoothly, heralded the event to the homeland under such headlines as "desperately fleeing enemy warships completely destroyed."

Spiking enemy broadcasts that 40 to 52 American warships had been sunk or damaged, Nimitz said:

"There has been no damage of consequence to our battleships or carriers. However, two medium sized ships were hit by aircraft torpedoes and are retiring from the area. Fortunately, the personnel casualties in these two ships were small."

This report covered the fighting, now in its second week, between American carrier planes and shore-based enemy aircraft over the Ryukyus islands, Formosa and Luzon in the Philippines.

Navy Planes Blast Philippines, Troops Take Isle in Carolines; Red Forces Drive into Prussia

War correspondents at Headquarters interpreted "medium sized ships" as referring to cruisers or destroyers.

The carrier task forces commanded by Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher, Nimitz announced, destroyed 160 enemy planes October 13, 14 and 15 in repelling air attacks against the task groups off Formosa. Five United States planes were lost.

This raised Japanese aircraft losses in the Ryukyu-Formosa-Luzon actions to an estimated 828 to 843, with 37 more enemy planes probably destroyed.

The carrier plane attacks on Luzon were continuing, Nimitz reported in an earlier communique, and the War department announced Superfortresses of the 20th air force had struck again at Formosa. It was the third smash in four days by the aerial monsters against Formosa, Japan's "unsinkable" aircraft carrier.

Formosa Blasted by Yanks

An Associated Press dispatch from a B-29 base in West China quoted Maj. Gen. Curtis Lemay, chief of the 20th, as saying the three raids "had knocked hell out" of the enemy on Formosa. "The B-29s really paid dividends."

The latest raid was made by a medium sized force. Bombing was visual and simultaneous by the formations.

Reporting on the carrier plane attacks on Formosa Oct. 11, 12 and 13, Nimitz disclosed that they centered on Tianan, Takao, Okayama and Heito. Airfields were hard hit, many warehouses, hangars, barracks and other buildings destroyed and the Tako harbor severely damaged.

An unspecified number of enemy ships were sunk at Takao and 30 large warehouses in the dock area destroyed.

The 14th air force, based in China, is cooperating with the carrier attacks on Formosa and yesterday sank a Japanese cruiser and probably a destroyer in the South China sea. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters at Chungking announced this action today.

He also reported that bombers of the 14th A.A.F. had possibly sunk 48,000 tons of enemy shipping that sought refuge in Hongkong harbor when threatened by Mitscher's forces.

MCMURTRY

Foe Takes One Look at Our Fleet and Runs —Only Two American Ships Damaged So Far—Superforts Again Blast Formosa.

OCT 18 1944

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 17 (A. P.).—Part of the Japanese fleet came out to look at the Third United States Fleet off Formosa, but turned and fled when it discovered that the American fighting strength was unimpaired, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

DAY

His terse communique giving the lie to Japanese boasts of a great air-naval victory in the western Pacific said of the enemy sortie: "On discovering our fighting strength unimpaired, they avoided action and have withdrawn toward their bases."

There has been no damage of any consequence to our battleships or carriers during the week-long offensive along the inner island approaches to Japan, from the Ryukyu Islands to the Philippines, Admiral Nimitz said. Two ships, apparently destroyers or cruisers, were damaged, but were able to retire under their own power.

Admiral Nimitz's blunt denial of Japanese assertions was made almost simultaneously with a War Department announcement that superfortresses of the China-based Twentieth United States Air Force bombed Formosa today in their third attack within four days on that fortress island.

This flat refusal to engage the mighty Halsey-Mitscher force belies radio Tokyo's broadcast boast that imperial warships not only engaged the American fleet, but claimed sinking up to 52 ships, including 11 carriers.

Nimitz also disclosed that Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier pilots destroyed 164 enemy aircraft in the October 13, 14 and 15 bombings of Formosa and in defending the carrier force against topedo attacks.

Still Attacking

Previously Nimitz announced that seaborne fighters and bombers were still attacking the Philippines, opening the second week of raids on the Ryukyu Islands, Formosa and the Philippines.

New Japanese aerial losses announced today brought to more than 800 the number of enemy aircraft knocked out in the first week of these raids.

That about-face of the Japanese fleet apparently ended another attempt to lure the reluctant Imperial Navy into battle.

Jap Boasts Belied

Casualties Light

"During the fighting between our carrier task forces and the enemy air forces based on shore in the Ryukyus, Formosa and Luzon Island, in the Philippines, from October 10 until the time of this communique," Nimitz elaborated, "there has been no damage of consequence to our battleships or carriers. However, two medium-sized ships were hit by aircraft torpedoes and are retiring from the area.

"Fortunately, the personnel casualties in these two ships were small."

Adding to his previous communiques, Nimitz reported that 191 enemy planes attacked one of our task groups off Formosa by day and by night in the October 13-15 period.

One Of Biggest Attacks

This constituted one of the enemy strongest assaults on fleet units in many months. It was exceeded recently only by the enemy's concerted attack on Admiral Raymond A. Spruance's Fifth Fleet off Guam in June.

At that time Mitscher's carrier pilots destroyed 402 Nipponese naval aircraft and left enemy carriers so helpless that a major force of the imperial fleet was routed the next day. Seventeen Japanese ships were sunk or damaged in that action.

Damaged Ships Attacked

Of the 191 Japanese planes, 95 were shot down by American fighters and anti-aircraft fire, while "we lost five planes," Nimitz reported.

Fighters from only two United States carriers shot down an additional 50 Japanese aircraft of approximately 60 which attempted to attack the two damaged, retiring ships. On the same day 15 more enemy planes were destroyed by search and patrol flights from American carriers.

This brought total Japanese planes destroyed by Halsey-Mitscher forces in the Ryukyu-Formosa-Luzon strikes to an estimated 828 to 843. In addition, 37 enemy planes were estimated probably destroyed.

100 Bagged On Ground

Nimitz made it clear last night that Halsey's carrier forces were still riding waters from which Tokyo said the Americans had fled.

The Aparri field on the northern coast of Luzon was hit Friday (United States time) and airfields near Manila were blasted on Sunday. In these two raids 100 enemy aircraft were caught and destroyed on the ground.

OCT 18 1944

The Pacific fleet commander said the carrier Formosan raids were centered on Okayama and Heito, Tainan and Takao.

Carrier planes destroyed 30 warehouses at Takao, 14 buildings at Heito, and seven hangars at Tainan. Heavy damage was inflicted on the Takao industrial area, center of Formosa's factories.

Meanwhile Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced that his land-based planes netted the greatest bag of enemy aircraft ever brought down in any single Southwest Pacific raid. They bagged between 49 and 67 in the fourth mass raid in two weeks on Balikpapan, Borneo, Japan's richest oil possession.

Fighter-escorted bombers turned the Balikpapan oil refineries into a mass of smoke and flames. In the four big-scale raids since September 30 the oil center, producing 15 per cent. of Japan's aviation gasoline, has been blasted by 390 tons of explosives. A total of 179 Japanese interceptors have been shot down at a cost of 19 United States bombers and six fighters.

SUPERFORTS REPEAT BLOW

Third Formosa Raid In Four Days Made Without Loss

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Superfortresses today carried out their third raid in four days against military targets on the island of Formosa without the loss of a single plane, the 20th Air Force reported late today.

The latest strike against the important Einansho airfield and supply depot, ten miles southeast of Tainan, was the second in a row from which all the big bombers returned safely. In the series of operations begun against Formosa Saturday only one plane was listed as lost and this was "not due to enemy action," it was announced officially.

Encounter Some Fighters

Today's communique said that in the "series of missions, some fighter resistance was encountered, but none of our planes was lost."

It was explained later that the phrase "none of our planes was lost" meant that none was destroyed through enemy action, and not that the entire series of raids was carried out without loss. There was no explanation as to the fate of the plane missing from the first raid.

The communique did not disclose the number of planes sent against Einansho, but the Saturday assault on the big aircraft repair and supply depot of Okayama was carried out by what was described as the heaviest force of Superfortresses yet employed in one mission. Tokyo reported the number as over 100.

Two Returned To Bases

Following that raid it was announced that four planes were unreported, but two of these later returned to bases in China and a third crash-landed in friendly territory.

Describing the result of yesterday's raid on Okayama as "excellent," the communique said that all but two of the 34 major buildings there "have now been destroyed, and most of the subsidiary buildings also have been hit."

Okayama was termed the most important Japanese air installation south of Japan proper.

Aboard a United States Carrier Off Formosa, Oct. 14 (AP—Delayed)—In skies sometimes too crowded, American fighter pilots from this carrier shot a sizable hunk out of the Japanese air force, one squadron alone downing 52 Nipponese planes during the first three days of Formosa raids.

Lieut. Com. Scott McCuskey, of Stuttgart, Ark., told today how 14 Hellcats piled into a large force of Japanese planes and destroyed 32 of them without American loss.

Runs String To 13

McCuskey, holder of the Navy Distinguished Flying Cross, accounted for three of the Japanese planes himself to raise his total of kills to 13. Commander William Collins, of Arlington, Va., shot down five.

"Japs came in groups of 20," said McCuskey. "There may have been 70 altogether, but that was hard to tell. We went down to get planes circling one field on the northwest coast (Formosa) and they tried to jump us.

Gives Credit To Teamwork

"We got four or five circling the field before tangling with a whole flock of Japs that came in from high cover. We had a helluva fight. There were planes blasting away at each other all over the sky. I did my fighting all the way from 50 to 5,000 feet."

Good teamwork, the veteran flyer said, was largely responsible for each other to brush off Japanese who sometimes sought to concentrate on one Yank plane.

"Sometimes the sky was a little crowded," McCuskey said.

Two More Ships Damaged, Foe Declares

San Francisco, Oct. 17 (AP)—The Japanese high command said today an American aircraft carrier and battleship were damaged by Nipponese planes attacking a task force "that came to the rescue" of United States fleet carrier units east of Formosa.

This communique raised Tokyo's official claims to 37 American warships sunk or damaged off Formosa and the Philippines. The unverified Nipponese reports listed 16 sunk and 21 damaged.

Damage Is Slight

(American communiques reported only superficial damage was caused to surface ships of carrier forces attacking the Philippines. No damage has been reported to the Formosa fleet units.)

Tokyo broadcasts made no further mention of the Imperial fleet which it had previously reported had come out of hiding.

One broadcast recorded by the FCC said "our land-based air forces are at this moment continuing their advance upon the enemy, aiming at a total annihilation of the enemy task force."

OCT 18 1944

Victory Still Claimed

Japanese newspapers continued to headline reports of an "overwhelming victory." Typical of the stories being presented the Japanese public was this headline:

"Desperately fleeing enemy warships completely destroyed."

"Decisive battle has finally started," said another. "Now is the time to tighten even further determination and march toward still greater production."

Foe Can't Afford Losses, Says Nimitz

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—American task forces "striking close to the heart of Japan" during the past six days have inflicted on the Japanese "a rate of attrition which he can ill afford," Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, said yesterday.

In an address broadcast from Pearl Harbor to the Herald Tribune forum, Nimitz declared that Japanese "front-yard" losses in the "past six days have averaged more than 100 aircraft and 10 ships per day."

72 Ships Sunk Since Oct. 9

"Since the ninth of October, when Admiral Halsey's flyers first attacked the Ryukyu Islands in Japan's front yard, we have sunk 73 Japanese ships and destroyed approximately 670 Jap aircraft," the admiral said.

Nimitz warned, however, "it would be a grievous error to think that success would give rise to the hope that there will be an early end to the war with Japan."

Making no direct reference to Japanese claims of heavy American losses, Nimitz said that more intense air opposition had been met in the vicinity of Manila and Formosa than in the northern Philippines strike October 13.

Crippling Blows

"But even there the enemy has not been able to muster the necessary strength to prevent our inflicting crippling blows," he added.

The Pacific operations, Nimitz said, illustrated the seagoing qualities of American warships and the superiority of United States carrier-based aviation to Japanese aircraft whether based on land or on floating airports.

Lieut. Gen. Brehon B. Somervell, Army Service Forces commander told the forum audience that in the first 109 days of the invasion the Allies landed nearly 2,500,000 troops, 500,000 vehicles and a total of 17,000,000 ship tons of munitions, transport and supplies.

Blitz Americanized

"Blitz may be a German word, but we've given it an American accent," Somervell said, adding:

"These things that the German generals boasted we could not accomplish . . . today are proven facts."

of the silvery Liberator and nearly plunged the crew of 11 into the China Sea from their run only a few hundred feet above the convoy.

It took all the strength of the command pilot, Major H. S. Carswell, Jr., and the pilot, Capt. Donald N. Armstrong, to pull the bomber out of the dive.

Four times the plane ran through defensive fire from the force, which originally consisted of four destroyers and two cruisers. It got back to its base low on gasoline but undamaged.

(The cruiser was identified in a communique from Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters as of the six-ship Natori class, 5,170-tonners which were constructed from 1921 to 1923. Their main batteries are of 5.5-inch guns.)

Formosa Air Bases Destroyed.

A B-29 Base In West China, Oct 17 (A. P.).—B-29 Superfortresses today hurled their massed might against Formosa for the third time in seventy-two hours, blasting the Einansho air base installations at Tainan.

Major-Gen. Curtis Lemay, Chief of the Twentieth Bomber Command, said: "We knocked hell out of them this trip. We spent a mighty profitable week end. The B-29s really paid dividends."

In the first of the three attacks the Heito air base was thoroughly knocked out, Gen. Lemay said. Witnesses of the

B-24 Sinks Jap Cruiser, Destroyer Off Formosa

A United States 14th Air Force Advanced Base, China, Oct. 16 (AP—Delayed)—A single B-24 Liberator blew up a Japanese cruiser and sank a destroyer in a 45-minute low-level attack today on a six-ship force moving toward Formosa.

The bomber probably put a crimp in Japanese naval reinforcement of that island stronghold. Its feat was all the more notable in that it came at a time when the United States 14th Air Force is fighting to retain a narrowed foothold in southeast China.

The Liberator attack jackknifed the cruiser, filling the air with shattered armor plate and other debris. Evidently the bombs touched off her magazine.

The explosion thrust up the tail second raid said that the Okayama air force arsenal and the repair shops and depots massed around the field were smashed flat or blown to bits.

The Einansho air establishment was only slightly smaller than Okayama, and ranked with Heito. Situated on the west coast of Formosa, these three fields had formed the heart of Japanese air power over the South China Sea before the Superfortress visit. They had been officially called the most important targets outside Japan proper.

RUSSIAN ASSAULT IS SUPPORTED BY

PLANES, ARTILLERY

Soviet Air Force Strikes at Insterburg, 37 Miles Inside Reich.

REDS SILENT ON PUSH

Further Gains Announced in Transylvania, Battle Rages in Belgrade.

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct. 18—(AP) A tremendous new Russian offensive aimed straight west toward the heart of East Prussia was announced by alarmed German broadcasters yesterday, and the Soviet midnight communique described heavy Red Air force bombings all along the path of advance as far as Insterburg, 37 miles inside the German Junkers' homeland.

The Russians did not directly confirm the offensive by Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovskyi's Third White Russian army group, but left little doubt that it was in progress, announcing that Red bombers Monday night to Tuesday morning hit Insterburg and the intermediate railway junctions of Gumbinnen and Stalluponen, along the very route the Germans said Cherniakhovsky's drive was directed.

Nazis Report Big Drive

The German radio said the new attack was along a 25-mile front on both sides of the Lithuanian town of Vilkaviskis and declared it was backed by forests of artillery and spearheaded by low flying Stormovik planes. The Russians already were at the border at points west of Insterburg.

The Moscow communique announced a further cleanup south and southwest of Riga, the captured Latvian capital, with the remaining German forces in that Baltic state driven into the corner between the gulf of Riga and the Baltic sea. One of their last useful ports, Ventspils, was bombed heavily.

While silent concerning land action against East Prussia, the Russians announced a further slashing drive in Northern Transylvania had carried within two miles of the southern border of the Carpatho-Ukraine territory which Hungary took from dismembered Czechoslovakia, and told of further small gains southwest and west of Nis in Yugoslavia.

Street fighting continued in Belgrade, with the Russians and Yugoslav partisans teamed in battling the Germans for the Yugoslav capital.

A supplement to the Soviet communique this morning said more than 4,000 Germans had been killed in two days of fighting in Belgrade, which it said the enemy had "turned into a powerful center of defense."

"On the approaches to the city and in its streets the Hitlerites have set up many pillboxes and blockhouses with anti-tank and infantry obstacles," the Soviet announcement said.

Reach City's Outskirts

"Our troops dealt the enemy a heavy defeat in the suburbs and broke through to the outskirts of the city. Soviet and Yugoslav units are advancing staunchly. Fighting has reached the center of the city."

Marshal Tito in a communique on behalf of his partisans said all of Belgrade but two districts now had been freed of Germans and declared:

"Three German divisions in the city are putting up a desperate defense. Outside Belgrade two German divisions have been surrounded."

Algiers radio, without giving its sources, said another body of Tito's partisans had reached within two miles of Zagreb, capital of the puppet state of Croatia which the Germans carved out of northwest Yugoslavia.

Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's drive up through Transylvania, aided by Romanian troops fighting to win that territory back from Hungary, was within 30 mountainous miles of junctions with Soviet forces that have been pressing down from the north in Southern Poland.

Altogether in Transylvania during the day Malinovsky's men took more than 80 populated places, including Ronasec, two miles from the Carpatho-Ukraine, Petrova, six miles away, and numerous communities along the Viseul river, Moscow said.

At Insterburg, also bombed Sunday night, the Soviets said fires were started among German military trains; at Gumbinnen more than thirty fires were caused, with two trains definitely blown up; and at Stalluponen an ammunition train was destroyed and explosions and fires of great size were observed throughout the vicinity of the railway junction.

The German radio in its accounts of ground fighting said the Russians, who had stood for two months at Vilkaviskis, in Lithuania, a dozen miles from the border, began the assault Monday and had reached the border at an unspecified point. Late last night German broadcasts said there was fighting near Naumiestis, Lithuanian border town just across the Ost Fluss from the East Prussian town of Schirwindt.

The German radio said the new Red army attack was along a 25-mile front on both sides of the Lithuanian town of Vilkaviskis and declared it was backed by forests of artillery and spearheaded by low-flying Stormovik planes.

Moscow Silent on Drive

Moscow was silent concerning the German reports, but the assault on East Prussia was the logical next step in the Autumn campaign.

The Germans acknowledged that the Russians had reached the border at one unspecified point in the offensive which they said began Monday. Apparently the first important goal was Insterburg, less than twoscore miles ahead of the driving Russians.

German radio commentators said the Russians had penetrated the Nazi lines at several places and said stubborn fighting was in progress for paths through the fortifications and earthworks so hastily thrown up by the old men, women and children of East Prussia during the past few months.

Streams A Problem

Gumbinnen, about two thirds of the way along the main highway from Vilkaviskis to Insterburg, was heavily bombed by the Russians Monday night, the Germans said.

This drive, under one of the Soviet Union's youngest generals, might develop into the major campaign against East Prussia. The principal difficulty apparently was the crossing of the many little streams that flow through that low region.

Two other strong offensives also were beating against the outer defenses of the German stronghold, however. The only one Moscow has announced was on the northern border along the Niemen river line. It already had approached within artillery range of the East Prussian border stronghold of Tilsit.

No Word On Memel

For several days past the Germans have reported spirited Soviet attacks also from the south, in the region north of Warsaw. They said the Russians had won bridgeheads across the Narew river at Serok, 14 miles north of Warsaw, and in the vicinity of Rozan, 44 miles north of the Polish capital. Berlin said most of the present pressure was around Rozan.

On the Baltic shores the Germans said the Russians were driving hard on the Latvian port of Liepaja, 60 miles north of Memel, but were silent concerning the tight siege of Memel itself, which Germany annexed in March, 1939.

The Germans acknowledged some local Russian penetrations southeast of Liepaja.

New Russ Drive Reaches Border Of E. Prussia

London, Oct. 17—(AP)—A great new Russian offensive has opened and has reached the East Prussian border northeast of the Lithuanian town of Vilkaviskis, the German communique acknowledged today.

The drive was on a 25-mile front on both sides of the town by masses of Russian infantry, tanks and fighter-bombers striking after a drumfire barrage lasting several hours. The Germans asserted 145 tanks were destroyed in opening phases of the battle.

"Large-scale troop concentrations had been observed for days past," the enemy broadcast said. "They now have started their storm against the German defense lines.

"Strong artillery fire and severe bombing preceded the attack of tanks and infantry.

City 12 Miles From Border

Vilkaviskis lies 12 miles from the central section of the East Prussian border, along which Russian troops have been deployed since August 17.

Other Russian troops besieging Memel are threatening the rail city of Tilsit in East Prussia and already have invaded the 1,099 square miles of Memel territory which Hitler annexed to East Prussia six months before the outbreak of the war.

Still others are menacing East Prussia from the south from two bridgeheads which Berlin said were established across the Narew river.

Fight In Belgrade Streets

Far to the south, Russian and Yugoslav Partisans were fighting the last phase of the battle of Belgrade in the streets of that 2,000-year-old capital. The whole German position in Yugoslavia was placed in the greatest jeopardy by the capture of the rail center of Nis and 175 miles of the Trans-Balkan Railway south of the Yugoslav capital.

Berlin said, moreover, that 1,000 Russian tanks had been massed for an imminent assault on the Polish capital of Warsaw, in whose eastern industrial suburb of Praga the Russian armies are bivouacked.

Hungarian Battle Intensified

The Germans said the great tank battle on the flat Hungarian plain within 50 miles east of Budapest had "increased in fury" and that the outcome was uncertain.

Berlin said the attack on East Prussia from Lithuania was on a 25-mile front and came after a drumfire barrage and violent air attack lasting several hours. It was termed a "mass assault by infantry and tanks."

Russians on this sector are commanded by 36-year-old Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakovsky.

While the Germans acknowledged "local breaches," they insisted that the breaks were sealed before the Russians "could get near East Prussia." Seventy Russian tanks were destroyed, the Nazis asserted.

Before dawn, Russian planes attacked the Prussian town of Gumbinnen, 36 miles due west of Vilkaviskis, the Germans said.

Drive For Rail Junction

In the south, the united armies were thrusting toward Skoplje, at the head of the Vardar Valley and last big rail junction point from which any Germans remaining in Greece could swing northwestward over secondary railways.

It appeared questionable, however, that any large numbers of Germans remained either in Greece or lower Yugoslavia. Berlin has indicated that the Nazis have fled or are fleeing. The speed of the Russian-Bulgarian-Yugoslav westward sweep suggested only minor opposition.

Sveta Klara Reported Taken

Yugoslav Partisans have captured Sveta Klara, two miles from the Croatian capital of Zagreb, Marshal Tito announced. His communique reported that Yugoslav and Bulgarian troops were forcing German forces in Macedonia toward the Vardar Valley and increasing the threat to the Nazi escape route from that area of southern Yugoslavia.

Moscow gave no new details of the fighting for Belgrade beyond announcing that 1,500 prisoners were taken in the suburbs.

Moscow remained silent for the fifth consecutive day about the operations of Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's Second Ukrainian Army, sweeping into Hungary from the southeast, but by German account an armored battle was raging some 50 miles from Budapest.

Gains In Transylvania

Russian and Romanian troops swept sharply forward in northern Transylvania, overruning more than 100 communities, including Borsa, 11 miles from the old Polish frontier.

The two Russian armies which captured Riga, Latvian capital, pushed southwest against large German forces reported caught in a Russian vise in that area. The newest Soviet advance overran 16 or more communities.

MAGYAR ARMY REVOLT IS ON

High Military Chiefs Go Over To Russian Side

London, Oct. 17 (AP)—The Germans said tonight their puppet government of Yugoslavia had fled from Belgrade.

A Transocean broadcast said: "The Serbian government of General Nedic left Belgrade after Soviet troops penetrated the southern section of the city. The government now is en route to its future seat."

London, Oct. 17 (AP)—High Hungarian army chiefs have gone over to the Russian side and two army commanders have had to be dismissed, the German official DNB agency announced tonight as the Nazis strove amid deepening confusion to hold Hungary in the war at all costs.

The Berlin and Budapest radios poured out clouds of official explanations, appeals, boosts and accusations tending to obscure the situation, but it appeared a Hungarian army revolt was under way.

DNB announced that the commanders of the First and Second Hungarian armies had been outsted and that Maj. Gen. Bela Miklos von Dalnok, commander of the First Army, had deserted to the Red army along with his staff.

Marching On Budapest

Specific mention of his name was believed in London to be at least implied confirmation of neutral reports that the First Hungarian Army was marching on Budapest with the intention of ousting pro-Nazi Premier Ferenc Szalasi and the German military who hold the capital.

In the welter of proclamations, a broadcast order of the day from Budapest called on all deserters to return to their posts by noon October 20—further supporting reports of anti-Nazi decisions within the Hungarian army since Regent Nicholas Horthy asked for an armistice on Sunday and was subsequently "retired" and disavowed by the Szalasi "Arrow Cross" Hungarian Nazi party.

Germans "All Set"

The Hungarian paper Uj Magyarsag said Horthy's armistice appeal was broadcast Sunday only after Andreas Hladki, Horthy's propaganda chief, had seized the Sandouca radio station.

Dr. Paul Schmidt, German Foreign Office spokesman, seeking to put the best face on the Hungarian situation, declared the Germans had known all about Hungarian efforts to get out of the war, and had been all set to act quickly, so that they had the situation well in hand at present. Other reports disagreed.

The Brussels radio said large numbers of Hungarian soldiers were deserting and that armed clashes between the Germans and Hungarians had occurred in various places.

That some of the highest officers were refusing to take orders from the Szalasi government was clear.

Decrees By Radio

Moscow maintained the silence it imposed last Thursday on Hungarian operations, but the Cairo radio reported great Soviet tank forces were massing on the Hungarian plain ready to strike at Budapest momentarily. Some word from Moscow was awaited to clarify the picture of affairs inside Hungary.

The Soviet-sponsored Free Germany National Committee said in a Moscow broadcast recorded by Government monitors that "the so-called Szalasi government" was relying on Heinrich Himmler's German Elite Guard forces to maintain a show of authority "and is even compelled to issue administrative decrees by radio since it has no other state channels at its disposal."

And Horthy?

Meanwhile, the Paris radio said the First Hungarian Army of ten divisions "is marching toward Budapest in a bid to liberate the city." It also said 20,000 Germans had reinforced the German garrison at Budapest.

A communique issued by Szalasi's new war minister said:

"We have lived in comradeship with the Germans for thousands of years. We have to thank the Germans for everything. They are standing at our side again. Victory will be ours if we believe in it and fight for it. . . . If we do not resist, the whole Hungarian people will be mercilessly exterminated."

As the whereabouts of Horthy remained unknown, the Hungarian news agency Transocean denied reports he was dead. It said he was "alive and well in Budapest." The report added "it is not yet known where he will later retire."

Hungarian Army Men Join Reds, Berlin Says

London, Oct. 17 (AP)—Open revolt in the Hungarian army against German efforts to force continuance of the war against the Allies was indicated today in Berlin reports that high Hungarian officers had "gone over to the Soviets."

The official German news agency DNB said the commander of the Second Hungarian Army had been dismissed and that Maj. Gen. Bela Miklos von Dalnok, commander of the First Army, had deserted to the Red army along with his chief of staff, Colonel Keri.

Conditions remained chaotic in Hungary, where invading Russian troops fought within 50 miles of Budapest, and it was questionable whether the Germans could expect any further effective military assistance from this last remaining ally.

Relieved Of Post

Previously, Dalnok was reported relieved of his post, as was Maj. Gen. Ludwig Veress, commander of the Second Hungarian Army.

Berlin asserted that Dalnok "as well as several ladies belonging to the female staff of his headquarters joined the Soviets taking with them all the money of the Hungarian First Army." The Germans accused the general of stealing the army's money for months.

Successor Named

A communique issued in Budapest said Prime Minister Ferenc Szalasi had appointed Lieut. Gen. Dezsoe Laszlo, formerly deputy chief of staff of the army, to command the First Army. Lieut. Gen. Eugen Major was named new commander of the Second Army.

It was not clear whether the deposed commander in chief of the Second Army also had "gone over to the Russians."

Formal announcement of Dalnok's removal, however, was seen here as at least partial confirmation of Paris radio reports that the First Hungarian Army of ten divisions was marching on Budapest to oust Szalasi and the Germans.

New Puppet Regime

Installation of a new puppet government, dismissal of top-ranking generals and imposition of a drastic curfew in Budapest were announced last night by the Nazi-controlled Hungarian radio.

The broadcast declared Admiral Nicholas Horthy had issued a proclamation "revoking" the plea for an armistice he addressed Sunday to the Allies as Hungarian Regent. It added that Count Szalasi had formed a new government after Horthy's "retirement."

Berlin Calls It A Victory

The Berlin radio promptly hailed the pro-Nazi coup as a "full victory which marks the end of all negotiations with the Allies or the Russians and assures close collaboration with Germany."

(Moscow meanwhile employed events in Budapest in an attempt to get the people of Austria also to "make a contribution to their own liberation."

(A Moscow broadcast urged Austrians to "let events in Hungary be a warning and a signal that the hour of decision has come for Austria.")

"Against Horthy's Will"

The Germans contended that the armistice broadcast was delivered "against Horthy's will" and that the admiral was the victim of "a traitorous clique who have now been eliminated so that a similar attempt cannot happen again."

A suggestion as to how seriously the Germans regarded the attempted Hungarian desertion was given in a Berlin broadcast saying that "now divisions which have been held back in Budapest are being brought to the Debrecen Plain, where Hungary's fate is being decided in the battle with the Russians" some 50 miles away.

Horthy's whereabouts, meanwhile, remained uncertain. He has variously been reported assassinated, held by the Gestapo in Germany and holding out in a Hungarian castle with 1,000 faithful troops.

Pro-Fascists Reported Among Baltic Refugees

Stockholm, Oct. 17 (AP)—Ny Dag, organ of the Swedish Communist party, said today between 30,000 and 40,000 Baltic refugees contained certain "pro-Fascist and anti-Soviet elements" and that their emigration had been carried on in the past year with participation by the Swedish Government and the American legation.

"Some refugees are innocent workers or middle class people who sought to escape the war and are entitled to whatever Sweden can offer," the unsigned article said. "After the war they can be sent back to their countries. But there is a Fascist core to this emigration. It consists of elements which intend to stay here and from the center of the anti-Soviet policy in Sweden."

The newspaper asked if American Minister Hallett Johnson was aware that "900,000 Swedish kronor ($235,000) had been paid by an official of the American Legation for the organization of Baltic immigration to Sweden.

Johnson was not available for comment but a legation official said "it was well known that the war refugee board operates in many countries for the purpose of helping refugees escape to safety."

Finns Take Rovaniemi, Report

Stockholm, Oct. 17 (AP)—The newspaper Dagens Nyheter said tonight German troops had left their main Finnish base at Rovaniemi Monday night and a dispatch from Helsinki reported the town now was held by the Finns.

Rovaniemi was set afire, however, before the Germans withdrew to the Norwegian border, advices said.

The Russians and Germans were reported fighting at Kolosjoki and Nikcelmines, south of Petsamo, Dagens Nyheter stated.

Finns Fight Nazis In Far North

Stockholm, Oct. 17 (AP)—Finnish troops have crossed the Arctic Circle at several points in their drive to clear the Germans from Lapland, a Helsinki communique announced today.

In the environs of Rovaniemi, Nazis defending fortified positions offered strong resistance. (A Finnish broadcast recorded by the FCC said Rovaniemi had been captured.)

Heavy battles were reported in the Torneajv valley where the enemy used tanks and heavy artillery. Severe losses were inflicted on the Germans who were driven from positions at Turtola, and the pursuing Finns captured Kuoksenki, the communique said.

Leader Reported Changed

An unconfirmed report that Col. Gen. Lothar Rendulic had been removed from the command of the German divisions in northern Finland was published in Aftonbladet.

The newspaper's correspondent on the Swedish-Finnish border said Rendulic was accused of "sabotaging German conduct of the war." His successor was reported to be a Colonel General Keitel.

Revolt Is Stirring in Norway

Nazis Increase Terrorism—Seize More Than 1000 Hostages—Sabotage Spreading.

Stockholm, Oct. 17 (A. P.).—Conditions in Norway are fast approaching an explosion. The Germans, fearing revolt, are attempting to smash the home front organization with increased terror tactics.

Norwegian legation sources said today more than 1,000 Norwegian hostages have been seized in the last few weeks. Arrests as often as possible are made of likely underground leaders. Prisons and concentration camps are filled. Grini, the most notorious, near Oslo, is packed with 3,000 captives.

Norwegian sources say German patrols search homes and gathering places day and night and that very often, Norwegians are shot "by mistake."

Nazis Massing in Buildings.

Violent sabotage is increasing in addition to the passive resistance and causing nervousness among the Nazi occupants, who are tightening restrictive measures. The Norwegians said they had accurate information showing the Germans were moving together into selected apartment houses after ordering out the Norwegians. Nazi suicide squads could convert such buildings into defense strongholds.

As early as September 19, the first shipload of German women and children was sent home, suggesting the Nazis anticipated a showdown.

There are no signs, however, of any extensive withdrawal of German troops from Norway, legation sources said. Troops withdrawn usually are small units and replaced with green soldiers.

The stiffening Norwegian resistance was first noted last spring when a Nazi labor mobilization of three classes, which could easily be diverted to military training, was thwarted. Thousands of young Norwegians vanished from homes and factories into the forests and mountains. Nazi conscription offices were blown up, records were burned.

Nazi Plants Destroyed.

Since then, planned sabotage against war industries has grown. The program recently was highlighted by a series of bold attacks.

An aluminum factory at Holmestrand was blown up. A carborundum plant at Nydalen, a transformer plant at Konsberg and a shell factory at Raufoss were burned and blasted by patriots. The last job was so effective that the Raufoss plant is said to be operating at only one-tenth capacity.

"With few exceptions, sabotage now is carried out by order of our military leaders and therefore in collaboration with Allied plans," one responsible Norwegian said. "A countrywide sabotage program of German oil and gasoline supplies resulted during August and September."

NAZI RESISTANCE WANES AT AACHEN; PLANES RIP LINES

British Battle Through Venray in Fierce Hand-to-Hand Fighting.

DRIVE TOWARD RUHR

30.24— 19633

Yanks Tighten Hold on Encircled Bastion, Enemy Reorganzies.

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct 18—(AP) The first day without a German counterattack since the Nazi line was breached at Aachen has passed and the German defenders of the city still are virtually sealed off from their supporting forces and supplies.

Although officers at supreme Allied headquarters would not confirm the view, it was considered possible that the High command had given up hope of saving Aachen or that the furious Allied air attacks on Cologne and Duisberg had made German rescue attempts impossible.

Allies Spar With Nazis

Powerful American and British forces sparred warily with the enemy yesterday all along the 85-mile battle line paralleling the Dutch-German border from Aachen in Germany to Arnheim in Holland

Lt. Gen Courtney H. Hodges' American First army probed cautiously north and northeast of Aachen, where the Nazis, repelled in five furious attempts to break into the encircled city of Aachen in recent days, had rolled up a heavy concentration of tanks and mobile guns.

British Second army troops fought through the streets to the center of the Dutch highway town of Venray, eight miles from the German frontier, and pushed an armored column three miles south and cut the Venray-Deurne road. American armor was disclosed to be in position on the British flank, but was not yet reported to have been hurled into action.

At nightfall British Tommies with bayonets and hand grenades were reported fighting halfway through Venray, with the Germans selling their lives fanatically to defend every house and shop building. Other British forces who threw a bridgehead across a canal five miles southwest of Venray beat off violent German attempts to crush the lodgment, a field dispatch said.

Retreat Across Meuse

In the Overloon area, north of Venray, the Nazis were reported pulling out of pocket approximately 5,000 yards long and from 700 to 2,000 yards wide along the Meuse river, leaving the area a no-man's land.

More than 1,300 American Flying Fortresses and Liberators with an escort of 800 Fighters smashed at the major German city of Cologne, 40 miles east of Aachen, in an effort to cut off supplies and reinforcements for German divisions standing between the First army and the Rhine.

On both sides of the battlefront, now sharply defined after a month of attacks and counterattacks, there continued a day and night struggle for supplies as each side gathered itself for the next phase of the battle of Germany. An Allied official likened the situation to that which preceded the Allied breakout from Normandy in July.

"It has become apparent to correspondents that the state of German supply is better than had earlier been supposed—much better in fact," reported Associated Press Correspondent William S. White from inside Aachen.

White estimated the Nazis had lost 1,500 men captured and 1,000 killed in their desperate attempts to recapture Aachen, or approximately 25 per cent of their attacking forces.

West and north of Antwerp rugged Canadian troops steadily overcame difficult weather conditions and waterlogged terrain in their job of clearing the enemy from the banks of the Schelde estuary and opening up Antwerp, Europe's second port, to Allied war shipping.

A front dispatch said the Canadians entered Ijzendijke, six miles south of Breskens on the south bank of the estuary, and that the Nazis had taken new positions on a line running from Schoondijke westward to Sluis, about four miles inland.

Expect Big Offensive

The German radio said everything pointed to a mighty pre-winter offensive by the Allies somewhere in Germany or Holland. The Berlin Transocean news agency declared 1,500 British tanks were poised in the Nijmegen - Arnhem bridgehead, waiting only for Antwerp to be opened up before striking for the Rhine.

British shock troops were aided by waves of fighter-bombers which blasted German artillery positions and machinegun nests at Venray and attacked a ferry across the Meuse upon which the enemy garrison at Venray is dependant for supplies.

Hal Boyle of the Associated Press wrote from First army headquarters that the Germans were particularly nervous in the Geilenkirchen area 10 miles north of Aachen and that they spent ammunition prodigally in laying down the heaviest barrage of the Siegfried line battle on American positions in that sector Monday night.

The situation remained unchanged on the American Third army front, where a steady rain had filled foxholes to the brim and practically stalled traffic. West of Metz the Nazis rigged up loudspeakers and called upon Yank troops to surrender within three hours or be "annihilated," but at the end of the period nothing happened.

The French First army struggling through almost impossible terrain on the slopes of the Vosges mountains near the southern end of the 460-mile front made slight gains while repulsing repeated German counterattacks. Within a month snow will halt major fighting in the Vosges. American troops of Japanese descent, who fought with distinction in Italy, were disclosed to have joined the American Seventh Army in the vicinity of the Belfort Gap.

Battle House-To-House

American troops inside Aachen continued their grim task of beating the Nazi garrison back house by house and street by street until there should be no point to which the encircled enemy could retreat. About 3,500 German civilians had been evacuated from the dead city and as many more were estimated to be still hiding amid the rubble.

American officers said the German refugees were bitter against both the German army and the Nazi party because they felt Aachen should have been surrendered and because German troops abused and cursed them and looted their homes and stores.

Correspondent White, while pointing out that some German troops in the Aachen area were known to be extremely low in morale, added that "the great bulk of Nazis still fight on with a kind of savage despair."

Allied headquarters announced that 606,666 German prisoners were captured from D-Day, June 6, to Oct. 11.

YANKS SMASH BIGGEST NAZI COUNTER-BLOW

Foe Loses 25 P. C. of Forces in Futile Attacks to Relieve Aachen.

ALLIED PRESSURE BUILDS UP

Germans Say Great U. S. Drive Is Near—British Increase Action in Holland.

London, Oct. 17 (A. P.).—American troops in a night-long battle threw back the heaviest German counter-assault yet mounted east of Aachen, and at dawn today still held their line ringing the dying city.

Fifty miles to the north, British forces fought into the Dutch town of Venray, eight miles from the German frontier at one gateway to the Rhine-Ruhr region. Fall of that stronghold appeared imminent.

The Nazi counterblow near Aachen sprang forward late yesterday and reached a peak near midnight, with fierce fighting north of Crucifix Hill and Verlautenheide.

A front dispatch declared the Germans rested quietly before Aachen today, spent by counter-assaults which an American staff officer estimated had cost the Nazis 25 per cent of their attacking troops.

Nazi Supply Still Good.

The German attacks at Aachen so far have cost them about 2,500 men—1,500 captured and 1,000 killed—the staff officer estimated.

An Associated Press correspondent at Aachen said it had become apparent that "the state of German supply is better than had earlier been supposed—much better in fact." About 3,500 civilians now have been escorted from Aachen he added.

Berlin radio declared the Americans were preparing a new offensive, and the enemy command stepped up the tempo of counter-blows along the front. German artillery was rushed up in the attempt to hold American forces in the sector near and above Aachen.

American-British pressure increased along a fifty-mile front from Venray to Aachen. An Allied tactical authority likened the situation to that which preceded August's Normandy breakthrough.

Tommies fought house to house for Venray, a few miles from the Maas (Meuse) River, and other columns approached from the north and east.

American teams continued slowly digging Germans out of surrounded Aachen, and repulsed all German counter-blows east and northeast of the Siegfried Line city.

German broadcasts told of strong reinforcements moving up behind American lines, and spoke of a coming "battle of Geilenkirchen." This town is ten miles above Aachen in Germany.

A front dispatch said the Germans turned the heaviest artillery barrage of the Siegfried Line battles against Americans southeast of Geilenkirchen yesterday. Supreme Headquarters reported heavy artillery and mortar fire near Ofden, midway between Aachen and Geilenkirchen. "Stiff opposition of all types is being met" near Wurselen, where the Allied pincers on Aachen was closed, it added.

Canadian Army troops advanced more than a half mile above the Leopold Canal in the push to clear the German pocket south of the Schelde Estuary, and open the approaches to Antwerp. The Germans began withdrawing today to a new defense line, running three miles below Breskens.

Nazis Admit Two Gaps.

Berlin radio acknowledged "two small breaches" were opened by tanks and flamethrowers south of Breskens.

The German radio said the British Second Army, backed by 1,500 tanks, was "at the ready" in the Nijmegen-Arnhem area of eastern Holland,, waiting until it can be sure of asupply port.

At the lower end of the 460-mile western front, the French First Army made slight gains in a campaign to outflank Belfort Gap. Repeated enemy counter-assaults were repulsed in the Vosges foothills, two of them falling in the Luneville area. Allied troops advanced farther east of the Moselotte River northwest of Le Thillot.

On the American Third Army sector to the north the Germans west of Metz with loud speakers called on the Americans to surrender or "be annihilated" within three hours. The ultimatum expired, nothing happened, and the silence remained unbroken amid a steady rain which filled foxholes.

The Allied tactical authority at Supreme Headquarters in Paris said the present phase of the western front battle in the Aachen-Venray area and elsewhere is not a period of lull, even though Allied gains have been small.

606,666 Germans Captured

OCT 18 1944

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, Oct. 17 (AP)—Supreme headquarters announced today that 606,666 German prisoners were captured from D-day, on June 6, to October 11.

Of the total, the British and Canadians captured 172,645 and the Americans and the French captured the remainder.

Germans Holding Ports For Escape, Paper Says

Paris, Oct. 17 (AP)—German garrisons holding out in various French coastal areas are being deliberately maintained as relay posts for possible escape of high ranking Nazis to neutral nations, and for contact with traitorous fifth columnists within France, the Communist party newspaper Humanite declared today.

The paper, which has campaigned for more arms and authority for French Forces of the Interior, proposed that the FFI be given sufficient weapons and material to wipe out these enemy pockets.

The desperate German resistance at Dunkerque, Lorient, St. Nazaire, La Rochelle, the Gironde river mouth and Italian frontier are part of "a diabolic" Nazi plan to continue the struggle behind Allied lines, it said.

Jap-Americans Fighting In France

With the Sixth Army Group in France, Oct. 16 (AP—Delayed)—American troops of Japanese descent have made their appearance in Southern France under the command of the United States Seventh Army.

Presence of these forces was disclosed as Seventh Army units hacked out small gains in the Vosges foothills despite many enemy counterattacks.

Crew Controls Rudder By Hand, Flies Home

A United States Eighth Air Force Bomber Station in England, Oct. 17 (AP)—The crew of a Flying Fortress guided their fraft over Cologne today and brought it safely home by jerking cables in the flak-torn maze of the plane's waist as if they were handling a mule team.

An anti-aircraft burst severed the rudder and trim cables just before the bomber made its run and Lieut. Paul R. McDowell, of Red Cloud, Neb., walked back to the waist and picked out the right cables to keep the plane in action.

Then he turned the "reins" over to Sergt. Kenneth C. Bush, of Bemidji, Minn., and Sergt. James B. Hobbs, top turret gunner, of Blakely, Ga., who guided "Little Miss Mischief" home on instructions shouted by McDowell from the pilot's compartment and relayed by Sergt. Cowell D. Thomas, waist gunner, of Scranton, Pa., and Lieut. Herman U. Balban, of Woodside, Long Island, N. Y.

The unidentified ball turret gunner, who was hit when the Fortress was shot up, was trapped in the turret and crew members were unable to free him. On landing, they discovered that if they had been successful in moving the turret a fraction of an inch it would have come loose and hurtled through the air from a height of 10,000 feet.

The gunner was resting quietly tonight in a base hospital.

Other members of the crew were Lieut. William D. Boyle, of Coraopolis, Pa., navigator; Lieut. Ralph D. Barret of Brunswick, Maine., bobbardier, and Sergt. Glenn L. Slaughter of Delo, Nev., tail gunner.

Bomber Santa Claus Planned

▲ UNITED STATES BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND, Oct. 17 (AP).—The men of this 8th Air Force station are saving their candy and chewing gum rations and are writing home for more Christmas packages with which to load a B-17 bomber for a New Year's Day Santa Claus run to a city in France. Jan 1 is France's traditional gift day.

French Financial Mystery—Who Owns Suez Canal?

Paris, Oct. 17 (AP)—One of the big-time financial world's most intricate and fascinating games, the game of Suez Canal shares, is resuming full blast in France's security marts. The "score" at the moment is—nobody knows who owns the Suez Canal. . . .

The 100-mile lockless ditch connecting the Red Sea with the Mediterranean is so important militarily and economically that it is operated as an international project. But financially it is a semi-private corporation.

Speculation A Game

Its securities for half a century have been one of the world's most lucrative investments—so lucrative that speculation in Suez shares has become a game quite apart from the canal itself.

This was demonstrated during this war when juggling of shares went right on in France despite the lack of formal contact with the canal management in Egypt, which went ahead piling up profits for the advent of peace to straighten out.

There was a report during the occupation that the Germans, by manipulating the securities of France, had cornered a working majority of Suez shares. This would be a financial coup of no mean proportions and one which many British minds have dreamed of ever since French engineers completed the canal in the latter half of the 19th century.

Loose Registration System

The Germans, in 1940, ordered the French people to turn in their Suez shares to be impounded, but many did not do so and continued trading in the black market was possible because of France's loose system of registering securities.

In this way the Germans, through French quisling straw men, could acquire Suez shares. Naturally no German is in a position now to exercise his "rights" and the straw men, if they hold certificates, may fall heir to them.

There is a confusing array of types of Suez shares—some being shares in the corporation which, under a complicated transaction before the turn of the century, acquired rights to 15 per cent. of the canal profits that originally went to the Egyptian Government under an equally complex scheme of divided income.

British Hold Shares

However, of the effective 800,000 shares, 353,024 by latest report are in the hands of the British Government. The other 446,796 shares are scattered over the globe, potentially holding the secret of who really "owns" the canal.

The canal management does not know, because there has been no stockholders' meeting since June 3, 1940, just before the fall of France, when the 1939 profits were divided. The profits since then have been impounded in Egypt and England awaiting the next meeting.

The company's Paris offices say they will not be in a position even to guess at the situation for probably at least another six months. Meanwhile the game of shares goes merrily on in France.

Voice Asked For France In Reich Occupation

Paris, Oct. 17 (AP)—French Foreign Minister George Bidault declared today that France should be given a voice in deciding the methods and policies to be followed in occupying Germany and not merely representation in the forces of occupation.

Bidault expressed his view at a press conference at which he also voiced the hope of concluding agreements in the near future to reinforce French cooperation with the United Nations.

French Arrest Former British Newspaperman

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP—Delayed)—Sisley Huddleston, former British newspaperman and one-time president of the Anglo-American Correspondents' Association in Paris, has been arrested by French authorities on treason charges, it was learned today, in connection with his writings and radio speeches during the German occupation.

Huddleston remained in France following the 1940 armistice and became a naturalized French citizen by decree of Marshal Petain, according to a civil affairs officer who investigated the case at Nice.

FFI leaders who seized Huddleston on the Riviera maintained he had defended authoritarian principles and attacked democratic ideals in his writings and speeches.

A resident of France for many years, Huddleston before the war contributed articles to a number of American and British newspapers.

Financial Advertising Banned In Paris Press

Paris, Oct. 17 (AP)—Financial advertising has been banned from newspapers and other periodicals under a new ordinance of the Ministry of Information published today.

The undue influence of financial advertisers has been cited under the liberation regime as one of the French press' shortcomings before the war.

The ordinance lists permissible types of advertising ranging from birth announcements to sewing machines, conspicuously omitting financial advertising and stating all unmentioned categories are forbidden. This is presumably a temporary measure pending the arrangement of a precise code.

COLOGNE HIT BY 4,000 TONS

Vienna Bombed By Liberators From Italian Bases

London, Oct. 17 (AP) — Thirteen hundred heavy bombers of the United States Eighth Air Force poured 4,000 tons of explosives on Cologne today in that ruined German city's 146th raid of the war and the tenth in October alone, while United States 15th Air Force Liberators from Italian bases assaulted Vienna again.

More than 3,500 British-based American heavy bombers have hit Cologne in the past four days, and RAF Mosquitos have struck it three times in the past week, leaving little doubt that the United States First Army, once it finishes off Aachen, is headed for the Rhine river metropolis.

RAF Mosquitos slashed at Cologne Monday night, "just to keep their home fires burning," as one returning airman said. Then the American heavyweights went over a few hours later.

Instrument Bombing

Even though they made their runs about 10 A. M., in an effort to beat the cloud formations that were closing in, much of the bombing had to be done by instruments.

The Americans from Italy meanwhile ranged far into northeastern Austria in undisclosed strength in a campaign to disrupt the last Nazi communications with southeast Europe.

They, too, had to bomb by instruments both at Vienna and in the Blechhammer region of Upper Silesia. Flak was described as heavy.

Other American heavies bombed the Maribor area of Yugoslavia and the Nagykanizsa rail yards in southern Hungary. Some fighter opposition was reported.

The United States Ninth and British Second Air Forces based on the Conitnent flew a few sorties as bad visibility hampered their operations.

Heavy RAF Lancasters, however, again hit the dike on Walcheren Island near Westkapelle. They already had knocked eight holes in that seawall and inundated two thirds of the Dutch island.

The German radio said large formations of planes that bombed East Prussia during the day had headed back, indicating that the Red Air Force was increasing its blows against that embattled German province.

20,000 Tons In Month

The Cologne raid was the day's big Allied show, however, and brought to 20,000 tons the bomb load dropped on the German city this month alone.

Of the 1,300 bombers and 800 escorting fighters, 13 bombers and 3 fighters failed to return. Except for desultory attacks on some stragglers already crippled by anti-aircraft fire, the German air force failed to appear. The flak was intense at times.

Despite the magnitude of the attacks on Cologne, an air force spokesman said its famous Cathedral still stood amid the ruins of near-by buildings.

1,300 Bombers Hit Cologne Sixth Day

London, Oct. 17 (AP)—More than 1,300 American Flying Fortresses and Liberators bombed the Western front communications and industrial center of Cologne today for the sixth time in six days.

The attack followed one in which swift Mosquito bombers flew through the smoke of previous explosive-set fires and bombed the great Prussian city of 768,426 on the Rhine before dawn.

Cologne has vast railway yards which funnel supplies to the Western front and it is the home of the Henschel tank works and the Bettenhausen ordnance works. Arms, chemicals and machines are other important manufactures in the city.

Clouds Obscure City

Some 800 fighters escorted the American bombers today, making the invading planes total more than 2,100.

The huge armada before 10 A. M. flew over the historic Ruhr city, a great part of which now lies in ruins. It was one of the earliest major daylight attacks on the Reich. Clouds obscured most of the city and bombing was by instruments. Early reports made no mention of enemy opposition.

Kiel Canal Blocked

Danish shippers in Stockholm said their German agents informed them that the critically needed Kiel Canal between the Baltic and North seas had been blocked since October 15, when a railroad bridge collapsed into the waterway. The canal will be useless for three or four months, the shippers were told.

"The greater part of the bridge is lying at the bottom of the canal, but there is no accurate information of what happened," the shippers said. "It is believed that time bombs dropped by Allies in the water during a daylight raid on Kiel blew up the bridge supports."

The Mosquito mission over Cologne was without loss.

40 Miles From Aachen

Cologne, less than 40 miles inside the West Wall from Aachen, was ripped by more than 2,000 American Fortresses and Liberators over the week end in the most concentrated raid ever staged by the Eighth Air Force. Reconnaissance photographs showed some of the fires still burning Monday.

A squadron of RAF Tempests, the lightning-fast fighters which gained fame chasing flying bombs, roamed into Germany for the first time yesterday.

Flying through a rainstorm to answer an army call for help, rocket Typhoons silenced a battery of German field guns near Vernay, in Holland, with 56 rockets.

Rail Yards Hit

More than 500 American heavy bombers from Italy attacked seven rail yards, two aircraft engine factories and other targets yesterday in Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia, while escorting fighters destroyed 19 interceptors, it was announced in Rome.

Fortresses bombed the west rail yards and ammunition dumps in Saltzburg, 25 miles northeast of Hitler's mountain fastness at Berchtesgaden. They also hammered Villach and Linz rail yards, a synthetic oil plant in the Czechoslovak city of Brux and the sprawling Skoda armament works at Pilsen, in Czechoslovakia.

Liberators attacked the Steyer Walziagerwerk airplane engine works and railyards at Spittal, Trieben, Graz and Klagenfurt and the Steyer Daimler Duch assembly plant at St. Valentine. They bombed also the Hermann Goering benzol plant at Linz, the Neudorf air engine factory, the St. Veit railyards and the Klagenfurt aircraft factory.

BRITISH PROPOSE AIR AUTHORITY

LONDON, Oct. 17—(AP) The British government today proposed a new international air authority to govern postwar global air routes and to allocate to participating nations shares of the payloads.

Britain would recognize national sovereignty of the air, but would give the cooperating states freedom to fly over, refuel and embark and disembark passengers from planes of the country of origin.

An offical statement of policy, outlined in a White Paper, said air authority should be linked to the postwar security organization and strive to meet the world public's needs for efficient, plentiful and cheap air services. In addition, the White Paper said, cutthroat competitive practices should be eliminated, insuring the equitable sharing of business by the participating nations.

The licensing of international operators was proposed with a denial of facilities to unlicensed lines.

To insure greate rsafety the White Paper proposed the greatest possible standardization of radio, meteorological and ground facilities, but said domestic adoption of such standards should be optional with each country.

The White Paper declared the formation of such an international authority would contribute to world security.

"The potentialities of air transport," the White Paper said, "are indeed great; so also will be its influence, for good or ill, on international relations."

British Seek New

Global Air Pact

London, Oct. 17 (AP)—A Government White Paper issued today proposed a new global air agreement to replace the Paris convention of 1919 and the Havana convention of 1928 on international air transport.

The paper stated, "The British Government desires to see a radical change in this situation after the war," and said the main objectives of international collaboration should be:

1. To meet needs for plentiful, efficient and cheap air services.

2. To maintain broad equilibrium between the world's air transport capacities and the traffic offering.

3. To insure equitable participation by the various countries engaged in international air transport.

4. To eliminate wasteful competitive practices and, in particular, to control subsidies.

5. To standardize practice on technical matters important to safety of flying.

6. To contribute to world security.

"The potentialities of air transport," the paper said, "are indeed great; so also will be its influence, for good or ill, on international relations."

Record Ack-Ack Fire Sent Against Robots

London, Oct. 17 (AP)—British coastal observers said today the heaviest ack-ack barrage of the war flooded the sky during the night as the Germans loosed flying bombs against southern England and the London area for the sixth consecutive night.

A number of the bombs were shot down by ground gunners and patrol planes, but some pierced the defenses and caused damage and casualties, the Air Ministry announced.

King George Finishes Battle-Area Tour

London, Oct. 17 (AP)—Flying in a C-47 transport escorted by Spitfire fighters, King George VI returned to London last night after a five-day tour of battle areas in Holland and Belgium—his fifth visit to an active front since the war began.

Field Marshal Sir Bernard L.

Montgomery greeted him at an airport in Holland. He then inspected British and Canadian troops and presented a number of decorations.

Record Credit Vote Sought

London, Oct. 17 (AP)—The British Government will ask Parliament Friday to sanction the biggest vote of credit of this war—$5,000,000,000, to cover war expenditures for the three-month period ending March 31, 1945.

The amount will increase the total in credit voted for the financial year beginning last April 1 to $17,000,000,000.

A vote of credit is an authorization by Parliament to the Government to spend a specified amount in certain ways.

'Belligerents' To Decide Peace

London, Oct. 17 (AP)—Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee told the House of Commons today that only those nations which participate in the war as belligerents would be represented "as a right" at the peace conference.

FOE TO FIGHT FOR BOLOGNA

Kesselring Brings Up More Troops For A Stand

Rome, Oct. 17 (AP)—Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring apparently has decided to fight for Bologna, and German troops have been shipped into position to make a bitter, all-out fight for the ancient city in the foothills of the Aplennines, Allied headquarters announced today.

The American Fifth and British Eighth Armies gathered a few more slippery hills into their lines, but Marshal Kesselring still was frustrating the months-long Allied endeavor to destroy his army and chase its remnants out of Italy.

The Fifth Army, in small but important gains before Bologna, advanced past Lamina and Casa di Bortignano along the highway from Florence, reaching a point nine miles from Bologna's outskirts.

New Zealanders Advance

Farther east American troops reached points north of the bulge in the Castel del Rio-Castel San Pietro road and penetrated to the southern slopes of the hill town of Santa Anna and the village of Baccanello.

On the Adriatic front, New Zealand troops advanced more than a mile on a broad front from their bridgehead across the Rigossa canal toward the Pisciatello river, next water obstacle. This advance, along the Rimini-Bologna highway, put the New Zealanders less than two miles from the fairly large town of Cesena.

In the hills to the southwest, British infantry and armor consolidated recent gains and captured Mount Romano, a high feature three miles south of Cesena, and held it against a number of German counterattacks.

German resistance south of Bologna has changed in character from mere delaying tactics to an all-out defensive effort, with heavy concentrations of artillery used during frequent counterattacks in dogged defense of every obstacle, headquarters said. In one 12-hour period about 1,000 rounds of German artillery fell in the forward lines of the Fifth Army along the Florence-Bologna highway.

Marshal Kesselring's move might indicate that he is planning to shorten his line from Bologna to the Adriatic by slowly swinging back his 12 divisions facing the Eighth Army to an approximate east-west line from Bologna, but so far there is no indication of such a maneuver in the Adriatic coastal sector.

One Factor Favorable

Whatever his intentions, he is winning something precious to both sides—time. Already the Eighth Army is finding the rivers, which were dry in September, running strongly. There has been some enemy flooding just south of Cesenatico, and more country suitable for man-made floods lies to the north, particularly the low stretches between the Po and the Adige rivers, approximately ten miles to the north.

The slow advance on Bologna favors the Fifth Army in one respect: engineers are able to keep their road building up to the tempo of the advance so that the army will reach the city with a good sound line of communications ready for pouring men and materiel out onto the Po plain.

Once there, observers here at headquarters feel, the Germans never will be able to hold a stabilized line.

Nazis Go All-Out In Defense Of Bologna

Rome, Oct. 17 (AP)—New Zealand troops of the Eighth Army have advanced on a broad front north of the Rimini-Bologna highway, driving from their bridgehead across the Scola Rigossa canal toward the Pisciatello river, the next water obstacle, Allied headquarters announced today.

To the west the Fifth Army made gains of up to 1,000 yards in the mountains before the northern Italy communications center of Bologna. Fierce fighting continued.

Field Marshal General Albert Kesselring apparently has decided to fight for Bologna and German troops have been shipped into position for a bitter battle for the city, it was announced.

All-Out Defense

The German resistance south of Bologna has changed in character from delaying tactics to an all-out defensive effort with heavy concentrations of artillery fire and frequent counterattacks.

In one 12-hour period approximately 1,000 German artillery shells fell on the forward lines of the Fifth Army in the vicinity of Highway 65, the main road leading from Florence to Bologna.

Nevertheless, the American units which captured Livergnano on the highway have cleared that town and advanced past La Mina and Casa di Bortignano. This advance puts the leading United States troops within nine miles of Bologna's outskirts.

Near Hill Town

Still farther east American troops have reached points north of the bulge in the Castel del Rio-Castel San Pietro road. Other units were on the southern slopes of the hill town of Santa Anna and in the village of Baccanello.

New Zealanders in their push northwest out of Gambettola made an advance of slightly more than a mile along the Rimini-Bologna railway which parallels the highway. Advanced elements with tank support have reached the east side of the canalized Pisciatello river on the Rimini-Bologna highway. This put them about two miles or a little less from Cesena.

Peak Is Captured

In the hills to the southwest British infantry and armor consolidated recent gains and captured Mount Romano, a high feature three miles south of Cesena. The peak was held against a number of German counterattacks.

Allied aircraft from the Mediterranean ranged over Germany, Austria and Czechoslovakia yesterday attacking oil refineries, airplane factories and rail yards. They also attacked shipping in the Adriatic and conducted offensive sweeps over Yugoslavia.

Heavy and medium bombers during the night attacked railway yards at Zagreb in northern Yugoslavia. Sixteen Allied aircraft, of which ten were heavy bombers, were missing from these operations. Nineteen enemy planes were destroyed.

GREEK WOMEN NAZI HOSTAGES

Fleeing Germans Use Them To Prevent Patriot Attacks

Rome, Oct. 17 (AP)—Greek women and children are being used as hostages by German troops fleeing northward in an effort to prevent guerrillas from attacking their columns, authenticated reports said today.

The Nazis warned the Greeks that ten hostages would be killed in retaliation for each attack, and reports said the first group of civilians taken along already had been slain.

German troops fleeing from Volos toward Larissa took 50 women and children, but their fate is not known.

Enemy Quitting Salonika

Reports from Ankara said the Germans had started evacuation of their important base and communication center at Salonika where about 50,000 Nazis are concentrated.

Well-informed Greeks in Ankara, however, expressed the belief that at most only some few thousand would succeed in escaping the Greek trap. The others must fight, in a suicidal stand, or surrender.

Some 6,000 Germans were reported still on Rhodes and 12,000 on Crete. They face annihilation or capture as no shipping is available to move them and Allied navies have clamped a blockade on the Aegean Sea islands. Some few may get away by air but Allied warplanes have taken a heavy toll of Nazi air transports in recent weeks.

British End Greek Clash

British troops patrolled the streets of Athens after breaking up clashes between rival Greek factions and order was restored in the newly liberated capital.

The troops were landed from a huge fleet of 150 Allied warships which steamed into the port of Piraeus yesterday morning. Not a shot was fired as the Tommies steamed ashore amid the cheers of the population which suffered greatly during the more than three years of German occupation, Allied headquarters disclosed.

During the last week of German occupation more than 500 civilians were reported machine-gunned by the Germans and scores of buildings burned.

Rhodes Commander A Suicide?

General Kleemann, commander of the German garrison at Rhodes, was reported to have committed suicide after he was ordered to hold the island and not evacuate the garrison to the mainland. There was no confirmation of the report.

Members of the Greek Cabinet are expected to arrive in Athens aboard the Greek cruiser Averof tomorrow, an official said, and military and naval commanders will accompany the Ministers.

Huge stores of supplies were being unloaded from the fleet while minesweepers cleared the channels and approaching waters of Piraeus.

British Troops Break Up Clashes Among Greeks

Rome, Oct. 17 (AP) — British troops, landed from more than 150 warships, patrolled the streets of Athens today after breaking up clashes between rival Greek factions.

The fleet of warships included units of the Royal Navy, and Canadian, South African, Greek, French and Polish naval craft.

The first units of British troops disembarked at the port of Piraeus yesterday and paraded through Athens between lanes of cheering Greeks. Their arrival broke up clashes in the civil square. Order was restored within a few hours.

The huge fleet was under the command of Commodore Geoffrey Oliver and the landing forces under the naval command of Rear Admiral J. M. Mansfield.

The landing was completely bloodless. But dispatches from Greece said the Germans, during their last week of occupation had machine-gunned more than 500 Athenians and burned scores of homes.

Town Of Koropi Wiped Out

New York, Oct. 17—The London radio said tonight it had been officially confirmed that the Germans "have completely destroyed the Greek town of Koropi, 32 kilometers (20 miles) southeast of Athens."

London said Koropi had a prewar population of 6,000. "It is certain," the broadcast said, "that the Germans have killed all those whom they have found in the town as a reprisal against guerrilla actions."

ALLIED GROUND TROOPS ADVANCE ON TIDDIM

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 17—(AP) Allied ground troops aided by warplanes of the Eastern air command have made "some progress" against Japanese positions around Tiddim, Allied headquarters said today.

Patrols were active on other Burma fronts, the daily communique said.

Delayed reports revealed that Mitchells of the U. S. 10th air force in operations Sunday bombed three important advanced Japanese airfields — Onbauk, between Shwebo and Irrawaddy, Meiktila and nearby fields at Thedaw.

2 JAPANESE COLUMNS DRIVE TOWARD PINYANG

CHUNGKING, Oct. 17—(AP) Reinforced Japanese troops operating in two columns are advancing on the West River town of Pinyang, 80 miles south of Liuchow, site of an important U. S. air base, the Chinese high command announced today.

Chinese positions about 12 miles west and northwest of the town were attacked yesterday after the arrival of the enemy reinforcements, the Chinese report.

The Chinese communique today also reported that fighting continued 25 miles north of Kweilin, where the Japanese west of the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad town of Hingan are trying to smash Chinese defenses in order to outflank Kweilin on the west or attack it directly.

Chinese press reports, meanwhile, said Allied planes attacked Amoy and Quemoy for consecutive three days and had sunk 10 enemy ships and destroyed Japanese barracks and warehouses.

Japs Near U. S. Air Base In China

Chungking, Oct. 17 (AP)—Strongly reinforced Japanese troops were reported striking in two columns today at Chinese positions west and northwest of Pignan, West river town 80 miles southeast of the important United States air base at Liuchow in Kwangsi province.

Mopping up of Chinese defenses in the big bend of the West river is essential before the Japanese drive toward Liuchow can get into full swing.

The Chinese high command announced that heavy fighting was continuing 25 miles north of Kweilin, formerly the site of another United States air base, where Japanese west of the Hunan-Kwangsi railway town of Pignan are trying to smash Chinese defenses in order to outflank Kweilin.

Kweilin, in Hunan province, is about 100 miles northeast of Liuchow.

AMERICAN PLANES ATTACK MINDANAO

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Wednesday, Oct. 18—(AP) The First big all-fighter raiding party to sweep the Philippines penetrated far north into Mindanao Monday and surprised a Japanese convoy on a highway, destroying 62 trucks and six staff cars, today's communique announced.

The Americans apparently caught the Japanese entirely by surprise in a bold daylight raid for the fighters flew low and struck not only the convoy but also the important Cagayan and Matina airdromes.

They attacked a cavalry troop and inflicted heavy casualties before the horsemen could scatter.

Despite the distance from their bases, the fighters evidently spent many minutes in the target area as they flew along the highway that connects Macajalar bay and Davao gulf, seeking targets of opportunity.

More than 200 medium and light bombers, in action against by-passed enemy bases, dropped explosives on Japanese bivouacs on Rabaul, New Britain, and Kavieng, New Ireland. The planes dropped 102 tons of bombs. The raid occurred Sunday.

Yank Casualties Tell Of Battle For Peleliu

Aboard United States Navy Samaritan Off Peleliu, Oct. 2 (AP—Delayed) — American casualties streaming aboard this navy hospital ship at the rate of one a minute brought back vivid accounts of the hand-to-hand fighting that ensued for Peleliu Island.

One casualty, Pfc. Fred Douglas, of Boston, Mass., told of two of his buddies killing two Japanese soldiers with trench shovels.

"Those guys crawled right into their foxholes," he said as doctors patched up light wounds Douglas received from a hand grenade tossed into his foxhole.

Cave Of Many Levels

Corporal Wilfred Schall, 23, of Buffalo, N. Y., who stopped some mortar fragments at Bloody Nose Ridge, said the enemy troops had built Maginot Line-like fortifications.

"There was one concrete-lined cave up there (Bloody Nose ridge) that I know went down four room levels. There were more levels below but there were still some Japanese down there and that's as far as we went," he said.

The wounded were rushed to the ship speedily. Corporal Schall got here within three hours after he was hit. Sergt. Paul Stevens, 24, of Prestor, Minn., came aboard two hours after he was hit in the arm by a mortar fragment.

Hit In The Hips

Pfc. Norman Klaus, of Breda, Iowa, was hit in the hips by a sniper. He had gone to aid a buddy who had been wounded in the hips, too.

"Funny thing," said Klaus, "a corpsman came over to help us and that sniper got him in the same place."

Doctors said the men, many of whom were suffering from dehydration, recovered quickly when nurses gave them cold fruit juices and cooked food.

Maps Show Foe Planned To Enter Britain Via Eire

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—Nazi war maps, found in Brussels by Allied intelligence officers, disclosed that the Germans planned to invade England by way of neutral Eire, the London radio said tonight.

The broadcast, recorded by the CBS short-wave listening station, said the maps were prepared for the purpose of invasion in 1940, but the attempt was frustrated by the Royal Air Force and the Royal Navy. The maps, London said, "were kept in a safe until 1942, when the Germans gave up hope of a successful invasion of Britain. They were supplemented by documents and also by photographs and other material, which together formed an invasion Baedeker."

Jap Army Age Now Is 16

San Francisco, Oct. 17 (AP)—Japan today lowered the age for army conscription from 19 to 17, Domei News Agency reported in a broadcast intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission.

The Office of War Information pointed out that since, according to Japanese reckoning, a child is one year old at birth this means the Japanese have lowered the conscription age to 16.

The Japanese news agency said boys under 17 would be "eligible as volunteers" for the army reserve.

Navy Sends First Women Overseas

Hirschmann Says 48,000 Have Been Freed From Camps in Romania.

Washington, Oct. 17 (A. P.).—Ira Hirschmann, War Refugee Board representative at Ankara, said today on his return to Washington that Bulgaria has restored full rights to about 45,000 Jews and an unknown number of other minorities in that country.

He added at a news conference that something like 48,000 Jews had been released from concentration camps in Transnistria in Romania to emigrate to Palestine but that he did not know the total number left in Romania.

Mr. Hirschmann reported that the Turkish Government had been helpful in arranging to take care of refugees from Bulgaria and Romania as they passed through that country on their way to permanent resettlement in Palestine and to temporary relief centers elsewhere in the Mediterranean area.

John W. Pehle, executive director of the War Refugee Board, said that the most pressing problem the board faced today is in Hungary where he described the situation as touch and go so far as the lives of thousands of Jews are concerned. He explained that as battle lines surrounded Hungary on the south and east this problem no longer could be tackled from Turkey but would have to be approached through the Swiss Government.

Mr. Pehle said that he knew of no plans to bring further contingents of refugees to this country, as at Oswego, N. Y., adding that temporary refuge in the Mediterranean countries is now easier to find and that some refugees from Yugoslavia and Greece soon may be expected to start returning to their countries.

Aside from Hungary, Mr. Pehle said that the most pressing refugee problems now are in Poland and Germany.

De Gaulle Regime Soon To Get French Control

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Gen Dwight D. Eisenhower is expected to turn over to the de Gaulle administration in a few days formal authority over all the territory of metropolitan France except some port areas and combat zones.

Eisenhower will take the action by designating the sections of France not in the present fighting zones as an "interior zone."

The effect will be the transfer to General de Gaulle and his associates of virtually complete control over almost all of France. This may speed up the political organization of the country, although the principal delaying factor so far has been the lack of communication and transportation facilities.

Didn't Desire Quick Control

For some weeks after the Allied drive across northern France de Gaulle made it clear that he did not desire the country to be turned back to him quickly.

Bands of Germans were then still roaming around loose, some French resistance forces would heed only military orders and there was the unusual condition, which reportedly remains, of the Spanish Maquis in the southeastern corner of France near the Spanish border who on occasion have defied the authority of the French Government.

Now, however, de Gaulle has indicated that he is ready to take full responsibility for order in the country. The reasons apparently are the same as those which have prompted President Roosevelt's closest advisers to recommend that he recognize the de Gaulle regime formally as a provisional government.

Leadership Approved

These reasons are chiefly:

1. There has been no opposition of any consequence to de Gaulle's leadership. Some Maquis have been slow or reluctant to obey orders, but this probably was due to poor communications.

2. De Gaulle has constantly broadened the political scope of his Government ever since the liberation of Paris and has shown no indications of desiring to make it a personal government.

3. The strongest elements in the Government are the former underground groups which have made it entirely clear that they intend to have an increasingly important voice in French affairs. This is in contrast to the influence previously exercised predominantly by persons who were outside of France during the period of German occupation.

Bulgar Jews Get Rights Back

FLOATING PORTS EXPLAINED BY FDR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 — (AP) President Roosevelt took his news conference behind the scenes of the Normandy invasion today to show reporters how the British and Americans set up huge floating ports on the flat beaches of the English channel.

Pointer in hand, the President seated himself before a huge map of "Mulberry B," a code name for one of the floating docks, and carefully took the reporters through the development of the huge landing site. Stacked about the room as he talked were models of the craft, piers, docks and other installations used on the beaches.

Mr. Roosevelt transferred his news conference from his office to another room in the White House to tell the story of the invasion. The models he used were sent to him by Prime Minister Churchill and will not be placed on public display because of secret details.

Mr. Roosevelt started the conference by telling the newsmen he was going to show them the secret of how we got ashore on D-Day, June 6. He reminded newsmen that there were no harbors on the invasion coast and the Germans had been in command of the beaches for years

Then, playing his pointer across a huge relief map, he told the story of the floating docks, one British and one American.

Merchant ships, largely Liberties which had served their usefulness were piloted near the beachheads on D-Day with the first wave of landing infantry and sunk offshore to form a breakwater against the rough channel seas. In addition another new type of breakwater was set up, anchored to the sand but free on the surface to rise and fall with the tide. The breakwaters made the inside sea so quiet that we were able to land heavy supplies almost immediately, he said.

Oaks Conference Attack Discounted By Envoy

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Mexican Ambassador Francisco Castillo Najera today described as a "personal viewpoint" an assertion by Alfonso Flores, member of the Mexican Senate Foreign Relations Committee, that the Ambassador's attitude on international conferences do not represent "in the slightest" the sentiments of the nation.

Top Priority Given New Transport Ships

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—A top priority has been assigned for the construction of combat transport ships and combat-loaded carriers, described as vitally needed for future operations in the Pacific.

The new priority is the highest for "anything that floats," the Maritime Commission disclosed.

The program for combat transports and combat-loaded cargo vessels calls for the delivery of 243 of these vessels between June, 1944, and June, 1945. So far 50 have been delivered, and the program was described today as "somewhat behind schedule."

Americans In Parley On European Transport

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—An American delegation headed by Ambassador John G. Winant and Maj. Gen. Frank Ross is taking part in a conference in London on inland transport problems in Europe, the State Department announced today.

The conference is discussing transport problems arising with the liberation of occupied territories, the department said. It is seeking to make possible several objectives, among them being rapid movement of military and civilian supplies, providing transport for displaced persons and populations and restoring normal traffic as soon as possible.

Countries participating are Belgium, Czechoslovakia, France, Greece, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, the United Kingdom, the United States, Russia and Yugoslavia. The Danish Minister in London has been invited to send an observer.

Wickersham In Britain On Planning Trip

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Representative Wickersham (D., Okla.) is on a trip to England in the interest of post-war planning, his office disclosed.

Wickersham is a member of the House Agriculture Committee. Representative Rizley (R., Okla.), another member of the committee, flew to Great Britain this summer to investigate the farming program.

Generoso Pope Visits President

Washington, Oct. 17 (A. P.).—Generoso Pope, publisher of Il Progresso, New York Italian newspaper, discussed the Italian relief situation with President Roosevelt today and said he told him the Italian people in this country are grateful for aid to their native land.

Mr. Pope predicted that the time is approaching when people in this country will be able to send packages direct to individuals in Italy. Wartime controls now prevent such mailings.

LaGuardia Is F. D. R.'s Luncheon Guest

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, of New York, frequently mentioned as a likely White House choice for an important administrative assignment in Italy, was President Roosevelt's luncheon guest today.

Mr. Roosevelt said in two recent news conferences that there might be some news about LaGuardia soon.

Inland Cities' Air Link With Europe Is Urged

Damon Calls Loss of Trade to Foreign Lines Alternative

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 (AP).—Ralph S. Damon, vice-president and general manager of American Airlines, asserted today that unless the United States is "in a position to offer single carrier service linking the great cities" of this country to those in the British Isles and Europe it will be in danger of losing potential business to foreign air-transport companies.

Mr. Damon testified at the Civil Aeronautics Board hearing on applications of eleven companies for routes over the North Atlantic. He urged that America be authorized to provide service direct from inland cities such as Chicago and Detroit to capitals across the ocean. New York now is the only regularly certified port for aircraft bound for Europe, although under war-time operations some service originated in Washington and elsewhere.

Much of the day's testimony related to the technical aspects of flying the Atlantic, particularly operating costs and problems as estimated by air-line officials from their experience in military contract flying.

In the course of questioning about forecasts of future business, Mr. Damon brought out that American Airlines expects to see domestic commercial flying increase to five times that of pre-war volume during the first five years of peace.

FDR PLANS SPEECH IN PHILADELPHIA

OCT 18 1944

President Will Make Major Address at Shibe Park Night of Oct. 27.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 — (AP) A Philadelphia ball park speech by President Roosevelt Oct. 27 was announced today, and the Chief Executive said he would make some other speeches before the election but didn't know yet just where or when.

Mr. Roosevelt told a news conference, however, that he definitely was not going to make any transcontinental tour as he said some newspapers had suggested he might do. Some of his political advisers are known to be urging that he speak in Illinois, Ohio and New York as a minimum.

During the conference, the President took an obvious dig at the practice of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in quoting excerpts from speeches or records of the administration.

A reporter asked Mr. Roosevelt to comment on a sentence of a speech by Senator Mead (D.-N. Y.) in Buffalo last Saturday in which the senator said we can expect Russian help in the Pacific war.

The President said he's not commenting on a part of what somebody said. He's learned better, he smiled.

In announcing the Philadelphia speech, Mr. Roosevelt confirmed word given to reporters earlier by David L. Lawrence, Pennsylvania Democratic national committeeman, after a White House call.

Lawrence's announcement coincided with these other White House political developments:

Sees Jersey for Dewey

Former Democratic Gov. Charles Edison of New Jersey conferred with the President and told reporters afterward that he had called at Mr. Roosevelt's request and given him a political report. Edison said he gave it as his judgment that New Jersey will go for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey by a substantial majority. Edison, who has long been at outs with Frank Hague, Jersey City Democratic leader, also said he thought the Hague organization was hurting the Democratic chances because "the independent vote is against Hague."

The White House fired a second reply to a Dewey campaign speech. Like the one issued Saturday, today's took the form of a compilation of Dewey's quotes from administration documents or speeches followed in each instance by larger excerpts from the same source with obvious design to develop the contention that Dewey's use of the quotions was misleading.

Has Second Largest Vote

Pennsylvania is the second largest prize in the Electoral College with 35 votes. President Roosevelt's Oct. 27 speech is to be in Shibe Park, home of the Philadelphia National league baseball club. Lawrence said the park would hold 35,000 to 40,000. In New York Democratic headquarters said the address would be broadcast from 9 to 9:30 p.m.

The broadcast over CBS and Mutual Networks will be sponsored jointly by the Philadelphia Democratic committee and the Businessmen for Roosevelt, Inc. A group of members of the latter organization, including Andrew J. Higgins, New Orleans war constructor, accompanied Lawrence to the White House.

Lawrence said it appeared the Philadelphia speech would be Mr. Roosevelt's only campaign speech in Pennsylvania this year. He predicted the President would carry the state by a larger vote than he did in 1940, when his margin of victory was 280,000.

Dewey is to speak in Pittsburgh on Friday.

Besides the Philadelphia address, Mr. Roosevelt's only other definitely announced speech is one to the Foreign Policy association in New York on Saturday.

Health Pretty Good, Roosevelt Declares

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—President Roosevelt said today he was in pretty good health.

That was his closing remark in a news conference exchange begun when a reporter asked whether the President had read reports "by some of our more rugged correspondents" concerning his physical condition.

Mr. Roosevelt laughed and urged the reporter not to get him to comment on the word rugged or he might say something for which he would be sorry.

He added that he knew a little something more about the health of some reporters than they did of his.

Statement from White House Challenges Charge by Dewey

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 — (AP) The White House, making available to reporters today what it termed "a factual analysis" of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's St. Louis speech last night, said the report of the National Resources Board quoted by the Republican presidential nominee actually included this recommendation:

"A general policy of speedy, but orderly controlled military demobilization should be adopted, coupled with the use of all reasonable plans and measures to increase the employment available to those being demobilized."

Dewey, referring to the report he said had been submitted to Mr. Roosevelt by the President's uncle, Frederick A. DeLano, asserted:

"This discussed the pros and cons of speedy demobilization. After saying that good reasons exist for desiring a rapid rate of military demobilization, the report goes on to say that 'despite compelling reasons for rapid military demobilization, the prospects of economic and industrial dislocation at the close of the war are so grave and the social consequences are so far reaching that a policy of orderly, gradual, and, if necessary delayed military demobilization has been strongly advocated.

"'Rapid demobilization might throw into the labor market large numbers of men just at the time when the industries might be least able to absorb them. It might create unemployment and depression. Those in the services,' this report continues, 'will constitute the only large group of persons over whom the nation could, in the event of economic crisis, exercise any degree of direct control.' Then it says: 'The economic and social costs of retaining men in the services would be less than those involved in dealing with an unemployment depression through civilian relief.'"

In the analysis of what it termed "the facts", the White House said the quotation was only part of a long report which included such other language as, "smooth and rapid military demobilization is therefore to be regarded as one of the desirable objectives for any plan for post-war readjustment."

The analysis next quoted Dewey as drawing from an executive order giving the Secretary of Agriculture and War Food Administrator equal authority the conclusion that "Mr. Roosevelt gives to men the same powers and then turns them loose to fight about it."

Under "the facts", the analysis said the reason for the dual authority is so that "no third party might escape liability for illegal act by reason of some technical claim that what was done by the Secretary of Agriculture should have been done by the War Food Administrator or vice versa."

Of a Dewey quotation taken from "the United States News" relating to government agencies working overseas the analysis said: "the United States News is not an official publication. It is a private publishing venture edited by Mr. David Lawrence."

Meanwhile, Attorney General Biddle said in a statement today: "Governor Dewey, in his address at St. Louis last night, appears to have suffered another attack of the Republican occupational disease: Convenient loss of memory. Or perhaps the Governor is too young to remember that in 1937 the fearless Democratic prosecutor for a Democratic national administration, United States Attorney Maurice M. Milligan, prosecuted Thomas J. Pendergast for election fraud and income tax evasion and sent him to prison."

In his address last night Dewey said "the people of Missouri have shown their independence before by throwing off the rule of the corrupt Pendergast machine."

Luce Sought PAC Aid, Thomas Says

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, said today that Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.) had sought the support of the Political Action Committee and now was "giving a demonstration of another playwright's lines 'Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned.'"

Thomas, who also is treasurer of the National Citizens' Political Action Committee, issued a formal statement replying to Mrs. Luce's criticisms of PAC. He said:

"Two months ago Mrs. Luce came up to me at a luncheon of Congressmen from both parties in the speaker's dining room at the Capitol and complained that the PAC in her district was not supporting her for reelection.

"Friend Of Labor"

"She offered me the advice—'as a friend of labor'—that it would be wiser for the PAC to support Republicans as well as Democrats. She said we were making a mistake in tying ourselves to the Democratic party.

"I told her that the local PAC in her district would decide for itself which candidate they would indorse. I told her also that PAC is supporting progressive Republicans and that we were not wedded to any political party.

"Not Worthy Of Support"

"Mrs. Luce tried very hard to get PAC support for her campaign. The PAC in Bridgeport, Conn., has evidently decided Mrs. Luce is not worthy of labor's support.

"As far as PAC is concerned, Mrs. Luce seems to be giving a demonstration of another playwright's lines: 'Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned.'"

O'Mahoney Hits Dewey Views On Expansion

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) said today that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey had not yet obtained information on post-war expansion for New York State, so it was extraordinary that the Republican Presidential nominee "should be talking so blithely to the people of the nation about jobs and opportunities in the post-war world."

O'Mahoney, chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, said in a statement that "Dewey talks easily about jobs and opportunity, but he has yet to outline a program by which they are to be secured."

He said it was not until October 6 that Dewey began to search for information on new products, processes and materials for the businessmen of his State, by appointing an advisory committee on technical industrial development to assist businessmen in post-war expansion.

ROOSEVELT MAKES WAR FUND APPEAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—(AP) President Roosevelt tonight appealed for greater than ever contributions to Community War Funds as a token of "democracy at its best" to show there is no letdown in our national unity.

He said that on the day of the fighting men's return home—which he declared "We are trying to make as speedy as possible"—they

Congress To Press War Training Bills

OCT 18 1944

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Congress expects to tackle the controversial issue of compulsory peacetime military training soon after the election, with both Senate and House Military Committees to be called into session to consider pending bills.

Chairman Reynolds (D., N. C.) said he would summon the Senate Military Committee to meet the week of November 14 and would propose that the committee start consideration of the subject at once, without waiting for the new Congress to be installed in January.

Several Bills Pending

At the same time leaders of the House Military Affairs Committee disclosed that tentative arrangements have been made for that group to start separate hearings on the proposal shortly after Congress reassembles.

Reynolds said he considered it inevitable that Congress will enact a peacetime training law. Several such bills are awaiting action.

Wants Us Prepared

"I want to see us fortified in the future against the encroachments of any nation in the world," Reynolds said. "I don't believe it is going to be possible for any United Nations organization to keep the peace of the world, although I hope I am wrong about it."

Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, recently went on rec...

will shake War Fund donors by the hand and say "Thanks for helping, Friend."

In a nationwide radio appeal on behalf of War Fund drives, Mr. Roosevelt said "Our gift to our Community War Fund is one way to show that there is no letdown in the spirit and unity of this country. This gift—this expression of our own free will—speaks from the heart of the nation."

"In these days," he said, "as we begin to see the approach of victory, it may seem more of a burden to us to measure up to our war jobs and responsibilities." But, he continued, a War Fund gift is "typical of democracy at its best."

Through War Fund contributions, he said, "We send a token of our own personal friendship to the tragic victims of brute slavery and to those who have so long borne the burden of fighting this war—the hungry, the sick and the homeless peoples of China, Russia, Britain, Belgium, France, Greece, Norway, Poland, the Netherlands, the Philippines, and other friends and neighbors in the community of nations."

WAGE BOOST PLEA MAY REACH FDR

BEFORE ELECTION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 — (AP) A War Labor board report dealing with the Little Steel wage formula stands a good chance of reaching President Roosevelt's desk before the election under a modified procedure adopted by the Board today, with labor members assenting.

Some informed persons, however, said this did not necessarily signify that the President would act before the election on Labor unions' demands for increasing the wage ceiling. They considered it probable that the White House would seek information on prices which the report will not contain.

The Board plans a three-part report on wages, the first part dealing with the Little Steel formula, which is the heart of the wage policy and was based originally on the cost of living. Under a resolution adopted today, that part will be transmitted to the President via Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson as soon as it is passed upon by the Board. The other two parts, to be prepared later, will deal with such phases as sub-standard wages and reconversion wage problems.

Chairman William H. Davis said in a news conference he thought there was a real chance of getting the first section of the report to the President before Nov. 1.

The decision to transmit the report on a piecemeal basis occasioned considerable speculation, but the public members of the Board would not give any interpretation.

The public members are drafting the proposed report and, under the schedule adopted today, will submit it to the full board on Wednesday of next week. It was learned that the public members would have been prepared to report on Monday, but delayed it two days to suit the convenience of a labor member, indicating perhaps that there was not necessarily a move by the labor group to rush the report to the White House.

The public members, in explaining their decision last week to give the President a factual report on the Little Steel formula without recommendations, said the WLB is not informed sufficiently as to the effect on prices which a change in the Formula might have. Hence, informed sources suggested, the President may find it necessary to call for comment from price control authorities before acting on the wage report. This would almost certainly delay a decision until after election.

Government Begins Check of Girls Under 20 Working in Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 — (AP) The Government began a check-up today on how many 'teen-age girls it is employing in Washington and what sort of work they are doing as debate continued over a proposal that those under 20 be sent back home.

In response to a request from the Washington Star, the Civil Service commission agreed to make a sample survey to gather statistics on:

1. The number of 'teen-age girls in government agencies here.
2. What jobs they do.
3. What salaries they make.
4. Their efficiency ratings and attendance records.

The Civil Service commission now has no tabulations on age groups of Federal employes. Its records show there are 152,265 women employes in the Washington area compared with 49,312 in 1939 pre-emergency days.

Thousands of the wartime employes are young girls, however, and civic leaders and others have been engaged in a warm debate over how to protect them from a big city's pitfalls since Dorothy Berrum, 18, War Department clerk from Chippewa Falls, Wis., was found raped and slain in a park Oct. 6. Earl McFarland, 21, Marine Corps private, has been indicted on a charge of killing her.

The suggestion that the 'teen-age girls be sent home came from Ray H. Everett, executive secretary of the Social Hygiene Society, a private organization, who declared "most girls under 20 are too immature to be running loose in Washington."

James A. Nolan, director of the Washington Criminal Justice association, another private organization, agreed with Everett's general stand but said the age limit ought to be 21.

However, a spokesman for the Civil Service commission commented that the girls are doing essential jobs; that "we have to face the fact that this country is at war and therefore we have to call on young people for jobs we would not ask them to do in peacetime." He observed, too, that no one was demanding that "teen-age boys overseas at fighting fronts be sent back home."

Throughout the debate, no one has been able to say what would be the effect of sending 'teen-age girls home because no one has had even an estimate of how many there are and what they are doing.

The Civil Service commission said it had not undertaken to gather such figures heretofore because most government agencies were too busy with war work to take time out to examine their working population by age and job groups.

A Commission spokesman said the survey ordered today will require at least a week and promised:

"If any conditions are shown which need action, we will take action."

Jobs for All Key to Peace, Baruch Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 — (AP) Declaring that "peace can't be just about what America makes of it," Bernard M. Baruch said tonight that world security could be attained "if we provide jobs for all."

Baruch, special adviser to the director of war mobilization, told the New York Herald Tribune forum on current problems in a prepared talk:

"The objective of a world community is not so academic as it seems. In fact, supplying everyone who needs it and who is willing to work, even including the Hottentots, with a quart of milk a day might prove an economic as well as social advantage. It might even be profitable."

Among others who spoke at the night session were War Production Board Chairman J. A. Krug, Ferdinand Eberstadt, former vice chairman of the WPB, and James B. Carey, secretary of the Congress of industrial organizations.

After reviewing the events following World War I, Baruch asserted: "This time we must be prepared to enforce the peace with arms and men, with an international authority based upon real cooperation. I am more confident than the last time because both parties have committed themselves to the principle of world security."

Krug said in a prepared speech that "the problems of finding peace and employment can only be solved by business, by labor and by the government working together."

Krug added that no "sound reconversion plan can be keyed to any definite date or set of circumstances "but must be "sufficiently fluid to meet new conditions as they develop.'"

Eberstadt said in a prepared talk: "If our industry is to play its great potential role in the post-war world, we need a clear national foreign economic policy, bi-partisan if possible—and a dynamic governmental organization to implement and foster it."

"We should as soon as possible hold a United Nations' economic conference to agree on new and sounder world trade policies and to create a strong permanent international organization at the highest level to guide and implement them."

Elsa Graves, a steel worker and chairman of the National Industrial council of the YWCA, said in a prepared talk that "unions must recognize us (women) on equal terms and must consider us a permanent part of the labor force."

She said she believed a great many women want to stay in industry but not at the "price of keeping the returning war veteran out of work."

George McCullagh, president and publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, discussed the harmony between Canada and the United States in a prepared speech and said:

"In the period we shall shortly face let us beware of emphasizing superficial differences and selfish short-term economic policies. Let us not fritter away the lessons learned and the understanding gained through our comradeship in arms."

Kirk Says Veterans Want To Be Left Alone

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Norman T. Kirk, surgeon general of the army, said the returning war veteran is able to make his own way in civilian life and that "too many plans and too many agencies are trying to tell these fellows what to do."

"These men aren't asking for charity or sympathy," he told a New York Times forum on "The Veteran and the Community." "They don't want anybody messing in their business. They are men and they know how to act for themselves."

Another speaker, Jean A. Brunner, national commander in chief of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, also expressed the opinion that too many agencies are concerned with aid to veterans.

KUNG SEES VAST CHINESE TRADE

Says Rail Needs of Nation Will Be 100 Millions.

Boston, Oct. 17 (A. P.).—As soon as the war is over China will need to import a tremendous quantity and variety of American products, Dr. H. H. Kung, China's minister of finance, declared today.

"Our reason for this is the obvious fact that China has to rebuild what has been destroyed or taken away by the enemy," Dr. Kung asserted in a speech prepared for the Boston Conference on Distribution.

"It is not yet possible to estimate the extent of the damage or the amount of reparations that we can get from the enemy," he added, "but common sense tells us that the damage is by no means small, that a great deal of labor and material will be needed for the work of reconstruction and that much of the equipment and material will have to be imported from abroad."

In railroad equipment alone, Dr. Kung said, China will have to purchase about $100,000,000 worth. He said that this example can be re-multiplied in many other fields of industrial activity.

Tells of Industrialization.

Another reason for the need of increased import by China, the speaker declared, is her program of industrialization. "Industrialization is now one of the cardinal policies of the Chinese Government," he said. "It means that when transportation facilities become available, China will have to import an increasingly large amount of capital goods and other commodities essential to her industrialization.

"China's import trade will also be augmented as the result of the restoration to China of the four northeastern provinces, commonly known as Manchuria, and also Formosa.

In a message to the conference, Marvin Jones, head of the War Food Administration, said that victory by the Allies will enable the release of large stocks of food now held in reserve to meet war needs.

Joseph Rovensky, vice-president of the Chase National Bank of New York, in an address on the trend of trade relations with Latin America, declared:

"One of the first tests of our breadth of vision will come when our peacetime industrial machinery again starts turning out consumer goods. We have been waiting for automobiles, they have been waiting for automobiles, and all the way down the line they have been depleted more.

"I am definitely in favor of supervision to insure a proper percentage of distribution for export. The pent-up demand of the South Americans for many of our products is our secondary pool after home requirements are met. It will help us get back into a peacetime economy."

In a speech prepared for the conference, Thomas F. Joyce of the Radio Corporation of America said today that television has the power to create consumer buying of goods and services beyond anything that we have heretofore known, and he said that means jobs.

DEWEY TO OUTLINE HIS WORLD VIEWS

G.O.P. Nominee to Make Broadcast Tonight on New York Forum.

EN ROUTE WITH DEWEY TO ALBANY, Oct. 17 — (AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey dictated today the final draft of a foreign policy speech he will deliver Wednesday night in New York city.

Returning to Albany aboard his special train from St. Louis, where he said last night that President Roosevelt's New Deal administration was incompetent to handle domestic or foreign affairs, the Governor worked most of the day in his private car.

A sheaf of messages was placed aboard his train at Terre Haute, Ind., a few hours after his St. Louis broadcast, but aides said they would not be able to measure the public response until they reached the New York state capital.

The Republican presidential nominee, who declared the nation's foreign representation was "on the brink of chaos" because of Washington "bungling," planned to go to New York city tomorrow to address the Herald Tribune's annual forum on current events. His speech will be broadcast at 9:30 p. m., (E.W.T.), over the Blue Network.

Mr. Roosevelt has declined an invitation to address the forum's closing session.

The announced topic for Dewey's speech is "this must be the last war," and his advisers said it would be a "constructive" outline of his views on insuring the peace after victory is won.

He is expected to repeat his contention that the small victims of Axis aggression should have "a full share" in any world organization.

"The structure we plan," Dewey said in a recent statement, "derives from the present war coalition of more than 30 United Nations.

"We know that there is in this country bi-partisan agreement upon the end to be achieved; that there is already a large measure of accord with our British, Russian and Chinese friends, and that our approach to other nations is animated by a genuine desire to deal with them as equal partners."

The candidate's next major address, after tomorrow night's speech, is scheduled for Friday night in Pittsburgh.

Brazilian Award Given Navy Officer

Philadelphia, Oct. 17 (AP)—Rear-Admiral Sylvio de Noronha, naval attache of the Brazilian Embassy at Washington, presented the Brazilian Order of the Southern Cross today to Capt. Louis Dreller, USN, planning officer of the Philadelphia Navy Yard, in recognition for his work in designing destroyers for the Brazilian Navy.

The presentation was made at a navy yard ceremony attended by Rear Admiral N. F. Draemel, commandant of the yard and the Fourth Naval District, and other ranking officers of the United States and Brazilian navies.

Captain Dreller is a native of Portsmouth, N. J.

Recalls War Correspondent

"Philadelphia Inquirer" Says Soviet Rejects Adequate Facilities

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17 (AP).—"The Philadelphia Inquirer" announced today the recall of its Moscow correspondent, Alexander Kendrick, because of what it termed "the refusal of the Soviet government to afford adequate, reasonable facilities for war coverage."

"Time Magazine," in its Oct. 16 issue, quote Kendrick as saying at a meeting of Russian and American correspondents in Moscow: "The way we (the Americans) cover the great patriotic war of Russia is to sit in our rooms at the Hotel Metropole, read what our Russian colleagues write in the Russian papers, and cable this to our papers. Every effort we have made to get really near the front has been blocked."

Votes 900 Free Lots To Veterans Of War

St. Petersburg, Fla., Oct. 17 (AP). City Council today voted to give free lots to returning war veterans who guarantee to build homes on them as soon as materials are available.

The city has 900 lots which it seized in foreclosure actions and which will go to the veterans, it was decided.

Carol And Mme. Lupescu Remain In Seclusion

New Orleans, Oct., 17 (AP) — Ex-King Carol of Romania and his companion, Mme. Elena Lupescu, sat on the deck of the Rio Tunuyan today and watched the royal dogs romp in the sun. But they apparently were in seclusion from visitors and the press.

Later, ship's officers said Carol had asked that he not be disturbed. Madame Lupescu opened her stateroom door a bare three inches, said she was resting, and wished to see no one. The former King could not be reached.

King Carol Stays Aboard Ship

New Orleans, Oct. 17 (AP)—Former King Carol of Romania remained aboard ship in New Orleans harbor today, but as to whether he planned to come ashore during his expected stay of several days here he had "no comment."

Carol and his red-haired companion, Mme. Elena Lupescu, arrived yesterday aboard the Argentine steamer Tunuyan en route from Vera Cruz, Mexico, to Brazil.

Permission Needed

They stayed on the ship overnight, although State Department representatives in Washington said New Orleans immigration officials had authority to permit them ashore.

The former King blamed a "misinterpretation" for a story in the New Orleans Item yesterday quoting Carol's chancellor, E. Uradarinu, as saying "King Carol has instructed me to say that he does not wish to see America again."

Says He Got Orders

The paper said Uradarinu related that Carol withdrew to his cabin after receiving "official Federal orders" that he would not be permitted ashore.

The former monarch told reporters later: "The whole thing is false, a complete misinterpretation."

Labor Disputes Leave 13,000 Idle in Detroit

Truck Axle Output Stopped by Strike of 6,800

DETROIT, Oct. 17 (AP).—Nearly 13,000 workers were idle today in several labor disputes in the Detroit area while another 1,000 returned to their jobs.

At the Timken-Detroit Axle Company plants, where company officials said 6,800 workers have been on strike since Saturday and 700 others idle as a result of the walkout, production of axles for heavy-duty trucks remained at a standstill.

The strikers, members of the United Automobile Workers, Congress for Industrial Organizations affiliate, who were protesting the disciplining of a union committeeman at the company's Melvindale forge division, disregarded the urging of their union officials that they return to work. Many of them appeared at plant gates this morning but did not enter.

Walkouts affecting 1,800 workers at the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Company McGraw Avenue plant and 1,700 on two shifts at the Military Avenue plant were attributed by company spokesmen to protests of material handlers against the National War Labor Board's refusal to approve wage increases. Union officials withheld comment pending an inquiry. The plants produce tank and aircraft engine parts and brake drums for military vehicles.

Briggs Manufacturing Company spokesmen reported that 850 workers at the Milwaukee Avenue plant left their jobs today without filing any grievances, and that 600 were idle at the company's Hamtramck plant in a dispute over discharge of an employee.

At the American Blower Company's Tireman Avenue plant 1,000 workers returned to their jobs today, ending a walkout in protest against discipling of four welders.

Says Independent Congress Is Need

Oct 18 1944

Chicago, Oct. 17 (AP)—Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) said tonight "the pressing need in this nation today is a strong and independent Congress that will speak for all of the people and which cannot be herded by any force—in or out of the White House."

The Senator, in an address before the Illinois Manufacturers' Costs Association, discussed the CIO Political Action Committee and the Citizens' Political Action Committee, referred to them as "the Hillman gang," and talked of demands for a guaranteed annual wage.

Complaint Filed On GOP Speeches

Milwaukee, Oct. 17 (AP)—A complaint demanding that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican Presidential candidate; his running mate, Gov. John W. Bricker, and Represetnative Clare Boothe Luce retract alleged "defamatory and untrue utterances" against President Roosevelt was filed with the Federal Communications Commission today by William B. Rubin, Milwaukee attorney and former Democratic candidate for Governor of Wisconsin.

Named as defendants were the National Broadcasting Company, the Columbia Broadcasting Company, the Mutual Broadcasting Company and the Blue Network.

Rubin, bringing the action as a citizen "who uses the radio to inform himself on political mattters," demanded that the broadcasting companies call upon Governor Dewey, Governor Bricker and Representative Luce "to make corrections and retractions over each and every one of the radios heretofore used by them," and that the Republican speakers hereafter be required to file manuscripts at least 48 hours before speaking and that the networks delete all false statements.

Rubin's complaint alleged that the three speakers named have "wilfully, maliciously and repeatedly made unjustified charges" against the President.

VFW PROPOSES RELEASE PLAN

Would Have Combat-Disabled Veterans Discharged First

Oct 18 1944

Kansas City, Oct. 17 (AP)—Demobilization procedure which will give combat-disabled veterans first discharge preference is a policy which will be supported by the National Council of Administration, Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States.

Jean A. Brunner, Forest Hills, N. Y., VFW commander in chief, attending a two-day session of executive members of the organization here, said the council today approved a program of 14 basic policies.

Order Called For

One of the policies calls for demobilization procedure which will give discharge preference in the following order: combat disabled veterans; those with longest periods of combat service; those with longest periods of foreign service; those with longest periods of home service, along with hardship and dependency cases.

The council also approved policies "which will permit the United States to participate, as a sovereign power, in a world association to maintain peace, using force if necessary, and to inform our people through full publicity as to preliminary negotiations between the United States and Allied nations."

Other policies included:

"Adjusted service pay for World War II veterans through a credit of $3 per day for home service and $4 per day for overseas service, with extra credit of $500 to those wounded in active service in line of duty; with a maximum of $3,500 for home service only and $4,500 for overseas service exclusive of credit for wounds.

Widows', Orphans' Pension

"Pension entitlement to widows and orphans of honorably discharged war veterans who had at least 90 days' service, regardless of origin of disabilities.

"Immediate adoption of a compulsory peacetime military training program and inclusion of combat veterans in the United States delegation to the peace conference."

Brunner said earlier that the Veterans of Foreign Wars will press with the Government a proposal that one third of the jobs on Federal-sponsored projects be reserved for returning servicemen.

'Most Prosperous Era' Seen For Americas

Salt Lake City, Oct. 17 (AP)—Emilio Caleron Puig, newly appointed Secretary of the Mexican Legation at Lisbon, Portugal, said today the "Americas faces the most prosperous era in their 400-year history."

Caleron-Puig, visiting here before leaving this week end for his new post, lauded the cooperation evidenced by training of Mexican aviators at United States bases.

"We expect to have at least part of our men on the actual fighting front in the near future," he said.

He declared the most important post-war issue would be construction of a strong world court capable of preventing "barbaric aggression."

RICKENBACKER WARNS AGAINST OVER OPTIMISM

OMAHA, Oct. 17—(AP) Capt Eddie Rickenbacker said tonight "one of the greatest underlying menaces of the moment, with respect to maintaining the high pressure of our war effort, is too much optimism."

Rickenbacker declared in a speech prepared for delivery at the national convention of the American War dads that "it is better to be prepared and keep prepared to fight for a long war and have it end sooner than expected, than anticipate a shorter war and have it last longer than planned."

Asserting that "our only hope of defeating the Axis powers to their fullest is to keep up the pressure against them," Rickenbacker said "swivelchair strategists" and type-writer tacticians" are "threatening the backbone of our will to sustain the war effort to the bitter end with their twaddle about the early conclusion of the war."

'CHICANERY' LAID TO DEWEY

Oct 18 1944

Truman Attacks Use Of Senate Group Report

San Francisco, Oct. 17 (AP)—Senator Harry S. Truman told San Francisco's Commonwealth Club today that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Presidential candidate, has practiced "political chicanery" in his use of "certain sentences" from the Senate Truman Committee's report in campaign speeches.

The Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate, former chairman of the War Investigating Committee, said both its Republican and Democratic members had agreed unanimously on reports which contributed to the successful prosecution of the war.

Misconstrued, Truman Says

"The gentleman heading the Republican ticket has taken certain sentences from these reports and construed honest criticisms of mistakes as statements that the President was inefficiently conducting the war," Truman continued.

"It is not within the limits of ethics when political chicanery is practiced by a man running for the highest office in the land."

"Most Magnificent Job"

He said the committee's last annual report asserted that "the most magnificent job in the history of the world has been done on the home front," but "that section has never been quoted by the opposition."

Senator Truman said that if the nation has "forward-looking leadership with confidence in the American people," it would meet post-war problems "just as it met war problems and overcame them."

"That is why I am for Roosevelt," he asserted.

To Go To Portland

Truman planned to leave tonight for Portland, Ore., where he speaks tomorrow night at a banquet arranged by Democrats of the State. A reception will follow the banquet there. From Portland he goes to Seattle for a major speech Thursday night.

In a press conference he declared he did not want to be President, but asserted that newspaper correspondents had offered evidence of his qualifications for that office.

"You force me to make this statement," he said when a local reporter inquired whether he had the experience "to carry on the war and reconversion program if anything should happen."

Tells Of Gallery Poll

Referring to what he said was a recent poll of Washington correspondents, Truman asserted:

"I was nominated by the Senate press gallery as the civilian who knew more about the war effort than any one except the President."

Another reporter asked if he favored making foreign policy an issue of the campaign "in view of what Governor Dewey has said about removing it." Truman replied:

"Foreign policy is the most important thing right now. I don't think Dewey is sound on foreign policy. Neither do Senator Ball (R., Minn.) and other liberals in his party."

HIGH OFFICIALS HIT BY BRICKER

New Deal Leaders Called "Arch-Reactionaries"

Oct 18 1944

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 17 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker declared tonight that the leaders who represent "the so-called liberalism of the New Deal" were in reality "the arch reactionaries of this century."

The Republican candidate for Vice-President defined liberalism as faith in the future of America and a belief that "men can govern themselves."

The New Deal, he added in a prepared text released by his campaign staff before a nation-wide radio broadcast, "is not a people's Government. The power it now exercises has already proved shackles for the liberties of people. That is why the New Deal is reactionary—not liberal."

"Old World Devices"

The Ohio Governor said that while the national Administration promised in 1933 to "hold high the banner of liberalism," instead "it has set this nation on the road toward reaction.

"It has reached back for centuries and taken into its hand Old World devices for subjecting people to governmental regulation. For 12 long years we have had not government by the consent of the governed, but government by orders of the bureaucrats!"

Describing how, he said, "this process of reaction has been ruthlessly promoted by the New Deal prophets and agents," Bricker continued:

"There is Henry Wallace, who proclaimed: 'We are in for a profound revolution'; but who also consoled us by saying: 'We are not going to use the whole Russian political and economic system here in the United States.'

"There is Francis Biddle, who defiantly shouted: 'No business in this country is immune from seizure.'

"And there is Franklin Roosevelt himself, who once told Congress to pass a certain law regardless of doubts, however reasonable, as to its constitutionality."

"Arch Reactionaries"

These men, the Vice-Presidential nominee asserted, "represent the so-called liberalism of the New Deal. But we are not deceived."

"They," he continued, "are the arch reactionaries of this century.

They would make over our American society into a regimented and manipulated economy. They are seeking to convert our American system into an Old World system which makes the Government the master of men."

Bricker pictured Government under the New Deal as a "grotesque monstrosity," in which, he said, "independent bureaucrats" were "the legislature, administrator, prosecutor, judge, jury and sheriff all rolled up into one."

"Turn This Nation About"

Bricker declared the Republican party proposed to end "the march back toward absolutism and economic slavery."

"We propose," he added, "to turn this nation about—and to march forward, a united and prosperous people."

And, he concluded, "we have faith in the future of America. . . . That faith is liberalism. It is the only true liberalism the world will ever know."

The Ohio Governor in a speech in the morning at Santa Ana said that the East should not be permitted to reconvert to peacetime production before the West.

"Responsibility Of All"

Taking cognizance of suggestions, he said, that Eastern plants could return to peacetime production after the defeat of Germany while "you (the West) continue to produce the tools of war to defeat Japan," Bricker remarked:

"I say to you that the winning of the war over Japan is the responsibility of all our country. Any other policy would delay the day of final victory, and it would also impair the economic well-being of this entire nation."

6,000 At Santa Ana

In the afternoon Bricker spoke in the Santa Ana municipal bowl before a crowd estimated at 6,000 persons by police.

In a press conference upon his arrival at Santa Ana, a reporter asked the Governor if the Republicans had opposed shipment of materials to Japan before the war.

"We didn't have much to do about it in the last 12 years," Bricker replied. "The Republicans have not had much authority in Washington."

He added, though, that "I lifted my voice time and again and many other Republicans did."

ALTHOUGH BERLIN DECLARED THAT THERE WERE "NO OUTSTANDING DEMONSTRATIONS IN BUDAPEST DURING THE NIGHT," THE SO-CALLED FREE HUNGARIAN RADIO REPORTED VIOLENT STREET FIGHTING BETWEEN NAZI SYMPATHIZERS AND PATRIOTS, AND THAT WIDESPREAD STRIKES HAD BEEN CALLED. THE GERMANS WERE SAID TO BE PATROLLING THE CITY WITH TIGER TANKS.

OCT 18 1944

A PARIS BROADCAST REPORTED WITHOUT CONFIRMATION THAT 10 HUNGARIAN DIVISIONS WERE MARCHING ON BUDAPEST TO LIBERATE IT FROM THE NAZIS.

IN TAKING OVER THE HELM OF GOVERNMENT, SZALASI PROCLAIMED HIMSELF REGENT AND PRIME MINISTER AND NAMED A PRO-GERMAN CABINET. IN A BROADCAST TO THE HUNGARIANS HIS GOVERNMENT PROMISED THAT THE HOME FRONT WOULD BE SECURED AND ORDERED MOBILIZATION OF ALL MILITARY RESERVES.

ANOTHER FIRST STEP OF THE SZALASI REGIME WAS DISMISSAL OF THE COMMANDERS OF THE HUNGARIAN FIRST AND SECOND ARMIES--COL.GEN.MILOS DE DALNIK AND LT.GEN.DEZSOE LASZLO.

THE 19 ENEMY PLANES WERE DESTROYED NEAR BRUX AND THE GERMAN CITY OF DRESDEN, WHERE APPROXIMATELY 100 NAZI FIGHTERS TRIED TO BREAK INTO BOMBER FORMATIONS. THE AMERICANS LOST TEN BOMBERS AND SIX OTHER PLANES.

THE OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT OF THE FLIGHTS FROM ITALY WAS THE SINGLE-HANDED DESTRUCTION OF FIVE ENEMY FIGHTERS BY LT.SHELDON .ANDERSON, 22, A MUSTANG PILOT AND FLIGHT LEADER FROM KENOSHA, WIS.

VIOLENT EXPLOSIONS AND FIRES RESULTED FROM A BRITISH BOMBING OF AILYARDS AT ZAGREB, YUGOSLAV CITY WHICH IS THE CAPITAL OF CROATIA. UTH AFRICAN BOMBERS FLEW 1,500 MILES ROUNDTRIP TO DROP SUPPLIES IN LAND.

ANDERSON, LEADING A FLIGHT OF FOUR MUSTANGS, SPOTTED A FORMATION OF 60 ENEMY FIGHTS BELOW. THE MUSTANGS DIVED WITH ALL THEIR GUNS SPITTING. THE WISCONSIN BOY'S FIRST THREE VICTIMS EXPLODED IN THE AIR. THE FOURTH SPUN FIVE MILES TO EARTH AND THE FIFTH STALLED AND CRASHED AFTER ANDERSON'S BULLETS RIDDLED BOTH THE PLANE AND THE PILOT. ON THE SOUTHERN FRONT THE CONFUSED SITUATION INSIDE HUNGARY STILL OBSCURED DEVELOPMENTS.

MARSHAL RODION Y. MALINOVSKY'S THRUSTS TOWARDS BUDAPEST HAD FORCED THE HORTHY REGIME TO ASK FOR AN ARMISTICE OVER THE WEEKEND, BUT THE GERMANS AND THEIR HUNGARIAN NAZI PUPPETS WERE STRUGGLING--APPARENTLY WITH SOME MEASURE OF SUCCESS--TO HOLD THAT WAVERING ALLY IN LINE THROUGH A REIGN OF TERROR.

THE ROMANIAN HIGH COMMAND, WHOSE TROOPS ARE AIDING THE SOVIET OPERATIONS, SAID TUMULTUOUS FIGHTING WAS CONTINUING SOUTHEAST OF

SZOLNOK, 50 MILES FROM BUDAPEST, AND AROUND DEBRECEN. THE GERMANS CLAIMED THEY HAD "RECAPTURED" DEBRECEN FROM THE RUSSIANS AND ROMANIANS.

THE GERMAN RADIO ASSERTED THAT IN YUGOSLAVIA SOVIET TANKS WHICH HAD BROKEN INTO BELGRADE HAD BEEN "ANNIHILATED" AND THE RUSSIANS AND MARSHAL TITO'S PARTISANS HAD BEEN FORCED BACK TO THE SOUTHERN FRINGES OF THE CAPITAL. BITTER STREET FIGHTING CONTINUED, HOWEVER, IT WAS ACKNOWLEDGED.

LONDON, OCT 17--U.S. TROOPS TIGHTENED THEIR RING ABOUT AACHEN TODAY AFTER SMASHING NAZI COUNTERASSAULTS, WHILE 1,300 HEAVY AMERICAN BOMBERS GAVE COLOGNE, 40 MILES TO THE EAST, ITS WORST HAMMERING OF THE WAR.

IT WAS THE SIXTH BLOW IN AS MANY DAYS ON COLOGNE, KNOCKING IT TO RUIN.

THE GERMANS DECLARED THE ALLIES WERE PREPARING FOR A GREAT NEW OFFENSIVE ON THIS NORTHERN SECTOR OF THE FRONT.

A FRONT DISPATCH DECLARED THE GERMANS RESTED QUIETLY BEFORE AACHEN TODAY, SPENT BY COUNTERASSAULTS WHICH AN AMERICAN STAFF OFFICER ESTIMATED HAD COST THE NAZIS 25 PER CENT OF THEIR ATTACKING TROOPS.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS SAID THE DOUGHBOYS IN A NIGHT-LONG FIGHT HAD THROWN BACK THE HEAVIEST NAZI COUNTERBLOW YET MOUNTED EAST OF AACHEN, AND AT DAWN HELD FIRMLY TO THEIR LINES. THE U.S. LINE WAS SWIFTLY BEING BUILT UP IN STRENGTH.

AN AP CORRESPONDENT AT AACHEN SAID IT HAD BECOME APPARENT THAT "THE STATE OF GERMAN SUPPLY IS BETTER THAN HAD EARLIER BEEN SUPPOSED --MUCH BETTER IN FACT." ABOUT 3,500 CIVILIANS NOW HAVE BEEN ESCORTED FROM THAT DYING CITY, HE ADDED.

THE MAINTENANCE OF INCREASING AND SHIFTING PRESSURE MEANS, THE TACTICAL AUTHORITY SAID, THAT SOMEWHERE THE GERMAN DEFENSES ARE GOING TO GIVE WAY, SINCE THE ALLIES ARE KEEPING THE OFFENSIVE.

THE GERMAN FRONTIER CITY OF AACHEN NOW IS COMPLETELY ENCIRCLED. HIS WAS ACCOMPLISHED YESTERDAY WHEN U.S. FIRST ARMY TROOPS CLOSED HE HALF-MILE GAP IN THE STEEL RING WHICH HAD BEEN FORGED AROUND HE CITY. YANKS ON THE NORTHERN ARM OF THE PINCERS CAPTURED WURSELEN, WO MILES NORTHEAST OF AACHEN, AND LINKED UP WITH THEIR COMRADES ROM CRUCIFIX HILL TO THE SOUTH.

FOR THE FIFTH TIME IN THREE DAYS THE GERMANS ATTEMPTED YESTERDAY O PUSH A COLUMN THROUGH THE GAP TO RELIEVE THE NAZI UNITS INSIDE AACHEN, BUT AGAIN THEIR ASSAULT WAS SHATTERED BY AMERICAN ARTILLERY.

IT WAS ESTIMATED THAT 50 OR 60 GERMAN TANKS HAVE BEEN DESTROYED N THE THREE-DAY PERIOD, WITH AT LEAST 10 SMASHED YESTERDAY.

MEMBERS OF THE GERMAN GARRISON INSIDE AACHEN CRAWLED FROM THE ELLARS OF BATTERED BUILDINGS AND THREW THEMSELVES AGAINST THE MERICAN LINES ONLY TO BE REPULSED AFTER SAVAGE, BLOODY FIGHTING. HE AMERICANS TOOK 300 PRISONERS.

TO THE NORTH IN THE NETHERLANDS BRITISH SECOND ARMY TROOPS USHING TOWARD THE MAAS (MEUSE) RIVER AND THE GERMAN BORDER A EW MILES BEYOND, ADVANCED TO THE OUTSKIRTS OF VENRAY. THE GERMAN ADIO REPORTED A NAZI WITHDRAWAL IN THIS SECTOR TO THE RAILWAY MBANKMENT WEST OF THE RIVER, SEVERAL HUNDRED YARDS BEHIND THE REVIOUS ENEMY POSITIONS.

VENRAY IS THREE MILES SOUTHWEST AND FIVE MILES DUE WEST OF THE AAS, WHICH FORMS A GREAT BEND IN THAT AREA. THE TOWN IS ONLY IGHT MILES WEST OF THE REICH FRONTIER.

OCT 18 1944

THE GERMANS REPORTED A BUDDING ALLIED OFFENSIVE ALONG THE NORTHERN ART OF THE WESTERN FRONT AND DECLARED THAT STRONG REINFORCEMENTS EEN BEHIND THE AMERICAN LINES WOULD BE EMPLOYED IN THE COMING "BATTLE F GEILENKIRCHEN." ALLIED SOURCES HAAVE NOT MENTIONED GEILEN-IRCHEN, 10 MILES NORTH OF AACHEN, SINCE A CHUNK WAS TORN OUT OF THE IEGFRIED LINE THERE A WEEK AGO.

CANADIAN TROOPS CONTINUED THEIR BATTLE TO CLEAR THE GERMANS FROM HE 50-MILE SCHELDE RIVER ESTUARY SO THE ALLIES CAN USE THE GREAT ELGIAN PORT OF ANTWERP, ONLY 75 MILES WEST OF GEILENKIRCHEN.

BY JOINING THEIR THREE BRIDGEHEADS ACROSS THE LEOPOLD CANAL IN THE WATERVLIET AREA, THE CANADIANS HAD A SOLID HOLDING SOME FOUR MILES DEEP AND MORE THAN SIX MILES LONG SOUTH OF THE SCHELDE. THIS GAVE THEM A FIRM BASE FOR AN ASSAULT ON THE GERMAN POCKET AROUND BRESKENS AT THE MOUTH OF THE ESTUARY.

NORTH OF ANTWERP OTHER CANADIANS WON CONTROL OF WOENSDRECHT, COMMANDING THE CAUSEWAY LEADING FROM THE DUTCH MAINLAND TO THE ESTUARY ISLANDS OF ZUID BEVELAND AND WALCHEREN.

supreme headquarters allied expeditionary force,oct.16 (ap)--the battle of the german border was likened today by an allied tactical authority to the heavy pressure exerted against the germans in normandy just before the st lo breakthrough and the foldup of the caen hinge.

that does not necessarily mean a breakthrough again is imminent in a matter of hours or days. but it does mean that despite the week or two of gains measured only in whittled down to a matter of hundreds of yards the present phase of the fight is not a lull.

it was summari ed this way: the german army has regained its balance the best can from the reeling retreat across france and has put its last fighting strength into a buffer stand in front of the rhine on a shortened front. against that front the allies are keeping the offensive and maintaining constant and increasing and shifting pressure.

somewhere something is going to give way. and when it does gen. dwight d.eisenhower is ready to loose the flood through the dike.

there have been three great threats: the arnhem, the cross rhine foothold which the germans broke; the aachen breach which the nazis are trying desperately to seal and the vosges pass punch which they have been trying to block.

antwerp fits into this picture only as a german delaying action to keep the vital, close-up supply port closed to the allies to the last possible hour.

OCT 18 1944

along the dutch rhine the wehrmacht has succeeded temporarily in extemporizing a defense. at aachen they are fighting feverishly to hold the main american first army push inside the siegfried breach while they extemporize another defense behind it to guard cologne.

OCT 18 1944

to the south they are so far able to use their main defense lines more in line with accepted german tactics by which t. fortifications serve not for passive defense but as a springboard defensive counterattacks.

but it is worthy to note that neither here nor anywhere el[illegible] the german army been able to open up even the pretense of a major counter-attack-one designed to gain the initiative.

after the almost unprecedented dash across france all al[illegible] are facing the increasing problem of supply over long lines.

EISENHOWER.

THESE FORGOTTEN NAZIS, BY-PASSED BY THE ALLIED ONRUSH THROUGH FRANCE, ARE DISTRIBUTED THUSLY: 8,000 AT DUNKERQUE, 22,000 AT LORIENT, 20,000 AT ST. NAZAIRE, 30,000 IN THE VANNES AREA, AND 26,000 IN THE BORDEAUX SECTOR. THERE PROBABLY IS ANOTHER 10,000 OF THEM ON THE CHANNEL ISLANDS.

A U.S. NINTH AIRFORCE BASE, FRANCE, OCT.17-(AP)-CAPTURED FROM THE GERMANS ONLY A FEW WEEKS AGO THIS AIRFIELD -- ONE OF THE LARGEST IN FRANCE -- HAS BECOME PROBABLY THE BUSIEST OPERATIONAL BASE ON THE CONTINENT.

IN ADEQUATE FLYING WEATHER THERE'S HARDLY A MINUTE BETWEEN DAWN AND DUSK WHEN AMERICAN PLANES AREN'T LANDING OR TAKING OFF.

WITH THE FIFTH ARMY IN NORTHERN ITALY, OCT. 17-(AP)-THE FIFTH ARMY'S BATTLE IN NORTHERN ITALY'S RAGGED JUMBLE OF MUDDY MOUNTAINS MUST BE SEEN TO BE BELEVED -- AND EVEN THEN YOU WONDER HOW BATTLE-WEARY AMERICAN SOLDIERS HAVE MANAGED TO INCH THEIR WAY ALONG THE NARROW CLIFF-BORDERED ROADS AND PRECIPITOUS HEIGHTS WHICH BAR THE WAY TO BOLOGNA.

OCT 18 1944

YOU HAVE WONDERED AT THE APPARENT SNAIL'S PACE OF THE ARMY MOVING UP THE CENTER OF THE ITALIAN PENINSULA, BUT WHEN YOU SEE THE FOG-SHROUDED MOUNTAINS AND NARROW, TWISTING ROADS WHERE THEY FIGHT, YOU MARVEL THAT THE CAMPAIGN HAS BEEN POSSIBLE AT ALL.

YOU MAKE YOUR WAY ALONG A HIGHWAY INTO WHICH HAS BEEN CHANNELLED ALL VEHICULAR SUPPORT FOR THIS FIGHTING ARMY, UNTIL YOU REACH THE HEADQUARTERS OF THE AMERICAN DIVISION WHICH IS SPEARHEADING THE ATTACK AGAINST AN ENEMY WHO DAILY IS MAKING IT CLEARER THAT HE WILL NOT GIVE UP A YARD OF ITALIAN SOIL WITHOUT A STUBBORN, CUNNING FIGHT.

AT A DIVISION COMMAND POST YOU CLIMB INTO A JEEP WITH OPERATIONS OFFICER MAJ.GEORGE KLEMM OF BELLMORE, N.Y., AND DRIVER MAX HAMMOND OF PORTIS, KY., AND SET OUT FOR A LOOK AT THE BATTLE AREA.

YOU PASS ALONG A NARROW STREET THROUGH PILES OF RUBBLE AND TUMBLED BRICK AND MORTAR WALLS WHICH ONCE WAS A VILLAGE. ITALIAN PEASANTS GRUB IN THE WRECKAGE PILES, AND BIG-EYED CHILDREN STAND IN DOORWAYS, STARING AT YOU WITHOUT NOTICE OF THE CRACK AND RUMBLE OF OUR ARTILLERY.

MUD SLOPS AND SPEWS UNDER YOUR WHEELS AS YOU RIDE UP AND DOWN THE WINDING ROAD WHICH CLINGS TO THE MOUNTAIN SIDE. MILKY FOG BLOTS OUT THE VALLEY BELOW, AND FOR MILES YOU RIDE THROUGH CLOUDS THAT CUT YOUR VISABILITY TO A FEW FEET. HERE YOU REALIZE THE MAIN DIFFICULTY OF THE PRESENT PHASE OF FIGHTING. ALTHOUGH THE PEAK OF THE APPENNINE RIDGE HAS BEEN PASSED, EVERY RAGGED RIDGE ON THE NORTHERN SLOPES OFFERS THE GERMAN DEFENDERS NEW POSITIONS.

AMBULANCE JEEPS PASS YOU, CARRYING BACK THEIR CARGOES OF SUFFERING. ONE IS CROWDED WITH WALKING WOUNDED, EACH UNIFORMLY TAGGED AT A FIRST AID STATION. EACH TAG IS UNIFORMLY TOPPED BY A PALE, GAUNT FACE OF PAIN. ANOTHER AND ANOTHER PASS, SOME WITH STRETCHERS SLUNG BEFORE AND BEHIND THE DRIVER. YOU CANNOT SEE THE FACES OF BLANKET-WRAPPED STRETCHER CASES, AND YOU ARE GLAD.

THERE IS AN OCCASIONAL CRUNCH OF ENEMY SHELLS LANDING IN FLANKING VALLEYS AS YOU ENTER THE VILLAGE OF LIVERGNANO, WHICH FOR EIGHT DAYS HAS BEEN A BATTLEFIELD, AND STILL IS UNDER CONSTANT THREAT OF NAZI

30. 24 — 19647

ARTILLERY AND MORTAR FIRE. YOU LEAVE YOUR JEEP HURRIEDLY FOR THE DOUBTFUL PROTECTION OF AN EXPLOSION-TWISTED CLUSTER OF BUILDINGS WHICH ONCE WAS A PEACEFUL PEASANT COMMUNITY. YOU WALK CAREFULLY INTO ONE BUILDING, BECAUSE THE FLOOR AT THE END OF THE ROOM IS FALLING AWAY INTO THE CELLAR, AND THE WALLS ARE WEAKENED BY GAPING SHELL HOLES.

OCT 18 1944

FOR WANT OF SOMETHING BETTER TO SAY YOU ASK PVT.ORBREY STRATTON OF LOUISVILLE,KY., WHAT HE THINKS OF WAR.

"IT'S TOUGH," HE SAYS, AND DOESN'T SMILE.

YOU TURN TO PFC THEODORE MITCHELL OF JERSEY CITY,N.J. "JEEP," HE SAYS, "IT'S SOMETHING YOU CAN'T PUT IN WORDS."

OCT 18 1944

WALKING RAPIDLY, EAR COCKED FOR THE WARNING WHINE OF ENEMY SHELLS, YOU SKIRT THE RUBBLE AND MAKE YOUR WAY TO A BATTALION COMMAND POST IN A DARK CAVE, CUT INTO THE SIDE OF A ROCKY RIDGE. THERE MAJ. RICHARD OSHLO, OF COUNCIL BLUFF, IA., SITS BETWEEN TWO PORTABLE TELEPHONES AND TELLS YOU ABOUT HIS COMPANIES WHICH A FEW HUNDRED YARDS FORWARD ARE MAINTAINING CONSTANT PRESSURE ON THE ENEMY.

CAPT.ROBERT CUZICK, NEW ALBANY, IND., TELEPHONES A BRIEF REPORT TO THE REAR. ABOUT THE CAVE SPRAWL FIRST LIEUT.SALVATORE ALOISE, ASTORIA, LONG ISLAND CITY, N.Y.; PFC ILYA LIVNEY, CHICAGO; SGT. EARL SUTHERLAND, WESTLY, CALIF.; PFC FLOYD PALESOTTI, IRON MOUNTAIN, MICH., AND PFC ARTHUR JONES, HOOSIC FALLS, N.Y.

SKIRTING THE ACTUAL BATTLE ZONE BY LESS THAN A MYLE, YOU DRIVE TO REGIMENTAL HEADQUARTERS WHERE AN AFFABLE, WHITE-HAIRED COLONEL IN A ROOM DARKENED BY STRONGLY-BOARDED WINDOWS SHOWS YOU POSITIONS WITH A FLASHLIGHT.

"WE'RE NOT GAINING MUCH GROUND RIGHT NOW, BUT WE'RE KILLING OF[illegible] A LOT OF KRAUTS," THE COLONEL SAYS. "WE'RE GOING FORWARD 500 YARDS HERE, 600 YARDS THERE, AND IT ALL COUNTS UP TO WHAT WE'RE AFTER."

IN ANOTHER UNIT COMMAND POST YOU ARE CHATTING WITH FIRST LIEUT. J.F.RAZOR OF BURBANK, CALIF., AND SECOND LIEUT.ERROL STEWART OF EAU GALLIE, FLA., WHEN A MAJOR RUSHES IN.

"HERE'S A HOT FLASH, COLONEL. THEY'RE COUNTERATTACKING AGAINST COMPANY --," HE SAYS HURRIEDLY BUT CALMLY.

A TELEPHONE CALL GOES IMMEDIATELY TO THOSE RESPONSIBLE FOR ARTILLERY SUPPORT, AND HARDLY IS THE CALL COMPLETED WHEN NEARBY BATTERIES INCREASE THEIR TEMPO.

YOUR RETURN DRIVE IS MADE UNPLEASANT BY THE WHINE AND CRUNCH OF ENEMY SHELLS AS NAZI ARTILLERY BEGINS A COUNTER BATTERY ATTACK. YOU KNOW THEY'RE SHOOTING FOR THE VALLEY BESIDE YOU -- BUT YOU WONDER HOW GOOD THEIR AIM WILL BE.

AS A DITCHED VEHICLE HOLDS UP TRAFFIC, YOU CHAT A FEW MINUTES WITH TWO SIGNAL CORPS MEN REPAIRING TELEPHONE LINES TO THE BATTLEFRONT, CPL.JOSEPH LAZA OF SACRAMENTO, CALIF., AND CPL. PETER YACHIS OF SHEBOYGAN, WIS.

OCT 18 1944

"IT'S A SIMPLE JOB," SAYS LAZA, AS HE PULLS WIRE FROM A TANGLED MASS STRUNG ALONG THE ROAD AND BEGINS TO SPLICE IT.

IN A FEW MINUTES TRAFFIC IS HALTED, A VARIETY OF VEHICLES STRETCHES ALMOST A MILE IN EACH DIRECTION. YOU REALIZE ONCE MORE WHAT A TREMENDOUS THING IS A MECHANIZED ARMY ON THE MOVE, EVEN WHEN THE ADVANCE IS MEASURED IN FEET INSTEAD OF MILES.

THE ONLY FELLOW WORSE OFF THAN WE THREE CORRESPONDENTS WAS LT.ANDREW MARSHAL (616 OAK VIEW AVE.), BRISTOL, VA., WHO CRASH-LANDED HIS PLANE IN THE HILLS EAST OF MEGARA SEVERAL DAYS AGO AND JUST MANAGED TO COME OUT OF THE WOODS THIS MORNING. HE DIDN'T EVEN KNOW THE BROWNS WON THE PENNANT AND WOULDN'T BELIEVE IT UNTIL SGT.DAN MCINTYRE OF GEARY, OKLA., WHO WAS AMONG THE FIRST AMERICANS TO LAND IN EASTERN GREECE, GAVE US A RUNDOWN OF THE SERIES.

"GUESS THE BROWNIES DIDN'T KNOW THE GUN WAS LOADED," HE CONCLUDED THE STORY OF MORT COOPER'S WIN.

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, KANDY, CEYLON, OCT 17-(AP)-A NEW FLURRY OF ACTIVITY WAS REPORTED TODAY ON THE ARAKAN FRONT IN BURMA, WITH ALLIED ARTILLERY SHELLING ENEMY EARTHWORKS AND BUILDINGS NEAR BUTHEDAUNG AND RIVERCRAFT ON THE KALAPANZIN.

AN INDIAN PATROL OPERATING NORTH OF BUTHEDAUNG KILLED AND WOUNDED A NUMBER OF JAPANESE, A COMMUNIQUE SAID.

STIFF OPPOSITION RESTRICTED TROOPS ADVANCING ON TIDDIM TO ONLY SLIGHT PROGRESS.

A DELAYED REPORT OF AIR OPERATIONS SUNDAY SAID THAT AMERICAN MITCHELL BOMBERS ATTACKED THREE ADVANCED JAPANESE AIRFIELDS IN BURMA.

ADVANCED BASE OF THE U.S. 14TH AIR FORCE, CHINA, OCT. 16-(DELAYED) -(AP)-A LONE LIBERATOR BOMBER OF THE U.S. 14TH AIR FORCE SANK A JAPANESE HEAVY CRUISER AND A DESTROYER EARLY TODAY IN A 55-MINUTE ATTACK UPON A FORMATION OF SIX ENEMY SHIPS MOVING TOWARD FORMOSA.

THE PLANE, PILOTED BY MAJ.H.S.CARSWELL, JR., MADE FOUR RUNS OVER THE FORMATION AT LOW LEVEL DESPITE HEAVY ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE. ONE OF THE THREE BOMBS AIMED AT THE CRUISER APPARENTLY HIT THE MAGAZINE, TOUCHING OFF A MIGHTY EXPLOSION THAT ROCKED THE PLANE AND SENT IT INTO A DIVE FROM WHICH THE PILOT HAD DIFFICULTY IN PULLING OUT.

THE SINKINGS--ONE OF THE MOST NOTABLE FEATS CREDITED TO A SINGLE PLANE IN THIS THEATER--PROBABLY SERIOUSLY IMPAIRED JAPANESE EFFORTS TO REINFORCE FORMOSA, WHICH HAS BEEN THE REPEATED TARGET OF U.S. AIR ATTACKS IN RECENT DAYS.

CARSWELL COMMANDS THE SEA-SWEEPING DETACHMENT OF THE 14TH'S HEAVY BOMBARDMENT GROUP AND HAD GONE ON THIS MISSION "JUST TO KEEP IN PRACTICE." TWENTY-EIGHT YEARS OLD, HE WAS GRADUATED IN 1939 FROM TEXAS CHRISTIAN UNIVERSITY, WHERE HE PLAYED FULLBACK, AND LIVES AT 1614 DENVER AVE., FORT WORTH, TEXAS. HIS WIFE AND YEAR-OLD SON ARE NOW LIVING IN SAN ANGELO, TEXAS.

REGULAR PILOT OF THE PLANE, WHO WAS SERVING AS CO-PILOT ON THE ATTACK, IS CAPT.DONALD M.ARMSTRONG, 24, WHO ATTENDED OREGON STATE AND HAS A WIFE AND TWO-YEAR-OLD SON IN CORVALLIS, ORE. THE REGULAR CO-PILOT, LT.CARLOS RICKETSON, 22, OF 1385 MASONIC AVE., SAN FRANCISCO, IDENTIFIED THE CRUISER AS A THREE-STACKER OF THE 5,170-TON NATORI CLASS.

ADVANCED BASE OF THE U.S. 14TH AIR FORCE, CHINA, OCT 16-(DELAYED)-(AP)-THREE BOMBS DROPPED BY A LONE LIBERATOR BOMBER OF THE U.S. 14TH AIR FORCE IN A SINGLE RUN OVER A JAPANESE CRUISER EARLY TODAY MORE THAN PAID THEIR WAY.

30.24 — 19649

THE CRUISER, IDENTIFIED AS A THREE-STACKER OF THE 9,170-TON NATORI CLASS, BLEW UP, FOLDED IN THE MIDDLE AND SANK IN THREE OR FOUR MINUTES, THE CREW MEMBERS SAID.

MAJ.H.S.CARSWELL, JR., OF FORT WORTH, TEX., PILOT OF THE PLANE, SAID HE TOLD THE BOMBARDIER, LT.DONALD KLEPINGER, TO LET THE CRUISER HAVE THE BOMBER'S LAST SIX BOMBS.

"WHY SPEND SIX WHEN THREE WILL DO THE TRICK?" KLEPINGER REPLIED. CARSWELL OBSERVED THAT "SEEING THE RESULTS HE GOT I'VE GOT NO KICK COMING."

KLEPINGER, WHOO USED TO BE A MACHINIST AT WRIGHT FIELD, DAYTON, OHIO, HAD BEEN CREDITED ALONG WITH OTHER REGULAR MEMBERS OF THE BOMBER'S CREW WITH ONE VESSEL PROBABLY SUNK AND ONE DAMAGED IN ATTACKS ON JAPANESE MERCHANT SHIPS EARLIER THIS MONTH.

OCT 18 1944

"I DIDN'T WANT ANY 'PROBABLY' THIS TIME," DECLARED KLEPINGER.

AFTER SEEING THE CRUISER SINK, THE LIBERATOR TURNED BACK FOR A FINAL RUN OVER A JAPANESE DESTROYER, LET IT HAVE THE LAST THREE BOMBS, AND THEN TURNED HOMEWARD WITH THE DESTROYER IN A SINKING CONDITION.

BEFORE ATTACKING THE CRUISER, THE BOMBER ALREADY HAD MADE A RUN OVER THE DESTROYER AS WELL AS A THIRD WARSHIP.

THE SHIPS WERE PART OF A FORMATION OF SIX ENEMY VESSELS MOVING TOWARD FORMOSA.

THE DESTROYER WAS SIGHTED FIRST BY TECH.SGT.KENNETH A.BARBER (EDS: ADDRESS UNAVAILABLE), THE RADIO OPERATOR. WORKING WITH A SPECIAL OBSERVER, STAFF SGT.VINCENT P.ZEYAK, 29, OF 35 LIBERTY ST., BEACON, N.Y., THE BOMBARDIER QUICKLY LINED UP FOR A RUN LENGTHWISE ON THE TARGET. THE ENEMY SHIPS ALL OPENED UP WITH THEIR ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS AS THE FIRST BOMBS GOT AWAY.

KLEPINGER SCORED TWO DIRECT HITS AND A NEAR MISS ON THE DESTROYER. THE HITS STOPPED THE DESTROYER AND IT STARTED BLINKING SIGNAL LIGHTS AT THE CRUISER, WHICH THE AMERICAN AIRMEN THEN SAW FOR THE FIRST TIME.

OCT 18 1944

BEFORE GIVING THEIR ATTENTION TO THE CRUISER, HOWEVER, THE AIRMEN MADE A RUN ON ANOTHER SMALLER WARSHIP, SCORING A HIT WITH UNDETERMINED RESULTS.

CARSWELL, COMMANDER OF THE SEA-SWEEPING DETACHMENT OF THE 14TH'S HEAVY BOMBARDMENT GROUP, HAD GONE ON THE MISSION "JUST TO KEEP IN PRACTICE."

OTHER MEMBERS OF THE CREW WERE CAPT.DONALD M.ARMSTRONG, OF CORVALLIS, ORE., THE REGULAR PILOT WHO SERVED AS CO-PILOT; LT.CARLOS RICKETSON, OF SAN FRANCISCO, THE REGULAR CO-PILOT; STAFF SGT.LEONARD, 22, OF ATLANTIC AVE., NORTHAMPTON, N.H., THE TAILGUNNER; STAFF SGT. ABOARD U.S.CARRIER TASK FORCE FLAGSHIP OFF FORMOSA,OCT.13-
(DELAYED)-(VIA NAVY RADIO)-(AP)-THE FIRST AMERICAN SEA-BORNE ASSAULT ON FORMOSA ISLAND HAS BEEN A FIERCE BATTLE FROM THE START.
REPORTS COMING BACK TODAY TO ADM.MARC A.MITSCHER, COMMANDER OF THE CARRIER FORCE, ASSURE ANOTHER COSTLY REVERSAL FOR THE JAPANESE
BUT AFTER TWO DAYS OF AERIAL BATTLING THE NIPPONESE ARE STILL TRYING TO HIT BACK. THEIR BOMBERS ARE ALL AROUND US TONIGHT PROBING IN THE DARKNESS FOR A CRACK AT THE CARRIER FORCE.
EVERY ONCE IN A WHILE JAPANESE PLANES GET TOO CLOSE.! THEY ARE HUNTED DOWN BY NIGHT FIGHTERS.
"SLASH ONE BETTY" IS HEARD REGULARLY AS ANOTHER JAPANESE BOMBER
CRASHES INTO THE SEA. BUT THEY KEEP COMING.
IT HAS BEEN A BATTLE FROM THE TIME THE FIRST HELLCATS SWEPT OVER
THE BIG LEAF-SHAPED ISLAND AT THE CROSSROADS OF THE CHINA SEA.
NAVY PILOTS RETURN TO THEIR CARRIERS ELATED TO TELL HOW SIX HELL-CATS, LATER JOINED BY EIGHT OTHERS, TOOK ON 30 JAPANESE PLANES
AND SHOT DOWN 27 OF THEM. ANOTHER CARRIER GROUP, WHICH RAN UP A TOLL OF 108 PLANES IN THE AIR YESTERDAY, ALONE DESTROYED 40 OF 70
INTERCEPTORS IN A ROUGH-AND-TUMBLEMELEE.
THE JAPANESE ALSO LOST MANY PLANES AGROUND. AMERICAN BOMBS DAMAGED A SCORE OF FORMOSA AIRFIELDS, CRIPPLED AN IMPORTANT NAVAL BASE AND BLINKED OUT THE ISLAND'S MAJOR ELECTRIC FACILITIES.
U.S. LOSS OF 45 PLANES IS ONE OF THE HEAVIEST OF PACIFIC OPERA-TIONS. IT IS NO WONDER THAT THE JAPANESE SENT AVAILABLE PLANES-- POSSIBLY CHINA-BASED REINFORCEMENTS--TO RETALIATE AGAINST THIS TASK FORCE. DEFENSE OF STRATEGIC FORMOSA--WHICH THE JAPANESE LIKE TO CALL THEIR "IMMOVABLE AIRCRAFT CARRIER"--IS IN CONTRAST WITH RECENT TENDENCIES OF THE NIPPONESE TO WITHDRAW RATHER THAN FIGHT.
A STEADY STREAM OF RISING SUN BOMBERS AND SNOOPER PLANES STARTED COMING IN TOWARD THE TASK FORCE JUST BEFORE DUSK YESTERDAY AND CONTINUED THROUGHOUT THE NIGHT WHAT PROVED TO BE NO MORE THAN HARRASSMENT, ONE AFTER ANOTHER OF THE WOULD BE RAIDERS WERE SHOT DOWN BY A GREAT BARRAGE OF ACKACK FIRE THAT STREAMED INTO THE SKY
LIKE A GIANT FLAME THROWER, OR WERE DESTROYED BY NIGHT FIGHTERS.

I SAW THREE JAPANESE BOMBERS HIT THE SEA IN FLAMES. THE RED GLARE
REFLECTED ONLY A FEW SECONDS THEN DARKNESS SETTLED AGAINST THE STEEL
HELMETED MEN ON THE BRIDGE WATCHED FOR THE NEXT ONE TO COME OVER.
NEW SHIPS WITH TERRIFIC FIREPOWER GAVE THE NIGHT FLYING JAPANESE HOT RECEPTIONS.

OCT 18 1944

"SANTA CLAUS IS COMING" WAS THE SHOUT FROM THE BRIDGE. THEN SMALL AUTOMATIC FIRE GUSHED RED TRACERS INTO THE MOONLESS SKY.

TONIGHT THE YANK FIGHTERS INTERCEPTED AN ESTIMATED 25 JAPANESE PLANES AND SHOT DOWN 11. FROM TIME TO TIME SINGLE BODIES "SPLASHED." GUNNERS STUCK TO THEIR STATIONS. OTHERS SLEPT ON DECK--WITH HELMETS ON.

TODAY'S STRIKES OVER FORMOSA DREW ONLY NEGLIGIBLE AIR OPPOSITION. THE AMERICAN FLIERS BOMBED AND STRAFED HARBOR AND AIRFIELD INSTALLATIONS FROM GARAMBI, AT THE EXTREME SOUTHERN TIP OF THE ISLAND, TO NORTHERLY TAIHOKU.

THE AIRMEN SAID THEY THOUGHT THEY COULD SEE THE COAST OF CHINA, ABOUT 100 MILES WESTWARD.

THE FIGHTER MELEE YESTERDAY MORNING BEGAN IN A SORT OF ROUTINE WAY WHEN A FOUR PLANE DIVISION LED BY LT. JOSEPH J. PASKOWSKI, 25, OF MILLVILLE, N.J., SWOOPED DOWN ON THREE ZEKES AS IT APPROACHED AN AIRFIELD TARGET NEAR THE WEST COAST OF FORMOSA. TWO JAPANESE PLANES WERE SENT CRASHING IN THE FIRST PASS.

ENS. PAUL OMARA, 21, OF ROSWELL, N.M., WINGMAN FOR AIR GROUP COMMANDER HUGH WINTERS, 31, OF SOCIETY HILL, N.C., SAW TWO MORE ZEKES APPEAR THEN STILL OTHERS UNTIL "IT BEGAN TO RAIN JAP PLANES" --THIRTY MEN AGAINST SIX HELLCATS.

"IT ENDED UP IN A GENERAL DOGFIGHT", OMARA SAID. YOU'D GO OVER AND KNOCK A JAP OFF SOMEONES TAIL AND YOU'D HAVE TWO OR THREE ON YOUR OWN TAIL."

OMARA AND WINTERS BAGGED TWO.

PASKOWSKI, WHO LED THE SQUADRON WITH FOUR KILLS, WAS FORCED TO LAND ON THE WATER ON THE RETURN FLIGHT. HE WAS RESCUED BY A DESTROYER.

LT. (JG.)) LUTHER D. PRATER, 22, OF ALGER, OHIO, AND LTS. BERNARD L. GARBOW, 26, OF HOWARD CITY, MICH., AND WILLIAM MASONER, JR., 27, OF RIVERSIDE, ILL., SHOT DOWN THREE EACH.

PASKOWSKI AND MASONER BECAME ACES, WITH FIVE PLANES EACH TO THEIR CREDIT.

MASONER, WHO GOT HIS FIRST PAIR OF ENEMY PLANES AT GUADALCANAL IN JUNE, 1943, SAID "THE FIRST THING I SAW WAS THREE ZEKES GOING DOWN IN FLAMES. MY DIVISION JOINED THE SCRAP. AFTER A WHILE IT WAS JUST A QUESTION OF FLYING AROUND. THEY WERE DAMNED GOOD TODAY."

THE ILLINOIS FLYER TAGGED THE THIRD JAPANESE OF THE MORNING IN A TENSE HEAD-ON RUN. AS THE JAP NEARED THE HELLCAT MASONER COULD SEE "ENGINES FLASHING AND [redacted] BULLETS HITTING." HE THOUGHT THE JAPANESE FLIER WOULD GIVE WAY AS ANOTHER HAD EARLIER. BUT HE DIDN'T UNTIL THE PLANES ALMOST COLLIDED. THEN THE NIPPONESE FLIPPED OVER SMOKING. THE PILOT BAILED OUT.

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC (DELAYED)--FOUR MARINE AIRMEN WERE RETURNED SAFELY TO THIS BASE FOLLOWING A RESCUE HUNDREDS OF MILES AWAY NEAR JAP-HELD ISLANDS.

THE MEN HAD GONE TO BOMB ENEMY SHIPS SAILING OUT OF TRUK, WHEN THEIR MEDIUM BOMBER WAS HIT BY ACK-ACK AND CRASHED INTO THE SEA. THEY SPENT 54 HOURS ON THE WATER BEFORE BEING PICKED UP BY THE WARSHIP WHICH DELIVERED THEM HERE.

THE SURVIVORS WERE:

FIRST LT.ROBERT K.KLECKNER, THE CO-PILOT, SON OF JOSEPH KLECKNER, OF MONTANDON,PA.

STAFF SERG.EDWIN P.HEMINGWAY, RADIO GUNNER, SON OF THORNTON HEMINGWAY, OF 476 ELM ST.,NEW HAVEN,CONN.

THE MEN FLEW OUT TO ATTACK THE JAP SHIPS IN A MITCHELL MEDIUM BOMBER. DURING THE ATTACK ONE OF THE PLANE'S ENGINES WAS HIT. THE CREW DECIDED TO BAIL OUT, BUT CHANGED THIS PLAN WHEN IT WAS DISCOVERED THAT TWO PARACHUTES HAD BEEN DAMAGED. THE BOMBER HIT THE WATER JUST BEFORE NIGHTFALL.

WALL, HEMINGWAY AND TALAMINE STRUGGLED OUT OF THE PLANE AND INFLATED A ONE-MAN LIFE RAFT. THEY FOUND LT.KLECKNER, FLOATING IN THE WATER UNCONSCIOUS AND HELPLESSLY TANLED IN HIS PARACHUTE HARNESS. THEY UNTANGLED HIM AND INFLATED HIS RAFT.

OCT 18 1944

THE RAFTS WERE SO SMALL THAT TWO OF THE MEN USUALLY HAD TO HANG ON IN THE WATER. A SHARK BEGAN FOLLOWING THEM AT ONE TIME, AND WHEN IT GOT TOO CLOSE TALAMINE SHOT IT.

WHILE THE MEN WERE IN THE WATER, CLOSER TO JAP THAN AMERICAN BASES, A CONTINUOUS 24-HOUR SEARCH FOR THEM WAS CONDUCTED FROM HERE UNDER THE DIRECTION OF MARINE COLONEL VERNON M.GUYMON, OF KINGSVILLE,TEX.

ONE OF THE SEARCHING PLANES FINALLY SPOTTED THEM ABOUT THE THIRD AFTERNOON. A WARSHIP RESCUED THEM SHORTLY BEFORE MIDNIGHT.

SAN FRANCISCO,OCT.17-(AP)-AMERICA'S TASK FORCE 58, WHICH HAS BEEN A SORE SPOT IN JAPANESE NAVAL MINDS SINCE IT DECISIVELY WHIPPED A NIPPONESE TASK FORCE LAST JUNE IN THE PHILIPPINES SEA, WAS "SUNK" AGAIN TONIGHT--BY TOKYO RADIO.

"IN TRUTH," SAID A "NEWS ANALYSIS" BROADCAST BEAMED TO AMERICA AND RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, "THE ENEMY AMERICAN TASK FORCE 58 AT THIS TIME IS ABOUT TO LEAVE THIS WORLD."

AD. CHESTER W.NIMITZ IN A COMMUNIQUE TODAY SAID IT WAS VERY MUCH AROUND IN SUCH FORCE THAT A JAPANESE NAVAL GROUP TOOK ONE LOOK AT IT AND RAN THE OTHER WAY.

TOKYO RADIO, WHICH HAS BEEN TRUMPETING CLAIMS OF A GREAT VICTORY OFF FORMOSA, AT ONE TIME ASSERTING THE RESULT HAD DELAYED AMERICAN INVASION OF THE PHILIPPINES BY AT LEAST TWO MONTHS, WAS A BIT MORE CAUTIOUS ON THAT ANGLE TONIGHT.

"IT CANNOT BE THOUGHT THAT THE ENEMY WITH THIS SETBACK WILL GIVE UP HIS PLANS FOR ATTACKING THE PHILIPPINES," THE BROADCASTER SAID.

TOKYO ALSO TALKED ABOUT THE FORMOSA ACTION IN RUSSIAN, QUOTING ETSUZO KURIHARA, IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS NAVAL SPOKESMAN, AS SAYING THE RESULTS "WERE GREATER THAN THOSE ATTAINED BY US AT PEARL HARBOR AND EAST OF THE MALAY PENINSULA."

SAN FRANCISCO,OCT.17-(AP)-CONTINUING AMERICAN AERIAL ATTACKS ON THE PHILIPPINES BY CARRIER-BASED PLANES WERE REPORTED TODAY BY THE JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY DOMEI IN A TOKYO BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION.

THE AGENCY SAID THE YANK PLANES HIT CLARK AIRFIELD, 40 MILES NORTHWEST OF MANILA, AND ALSO ATTACKED LEGASPI, STRATEGIC PORT ON ALBAY GULF, SOUTHEAST LUZON ISLAND.

THESE NEW RAIDS, DOMEI SAID, OCCURRED THIS MORNING (PHILIPPINE TIME) OR LAST NIGHT, U.S. TIME.

FOLLOWING THE USUAL JAPANESE PROPAGANDA VEIN, THE AGENCY SAID THE AIRCRAFT ATTACKING CLARK FIELD, FORMER CHIEF AMERICAN AIR BASE IN THE PHILIPPINES, "PROMPTLY TOOK TO FLIGHT AFTER LOSING FOUR PLANES OF WHICH THREE WERE PROBABLES." SEVEN SHIPS FIRED

U. S. Forces Now Hold Springboards for Invasion of Philippines.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 18.—(AP) A new raid in the smashing series of American carrier aircraft strikes at the Philippines, occupation of another atoll flanking the important Japanese base of Yap and additional destruction to enemy shipping at Formosa were reported today by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz.

Planes of Adm. William F. Halsey's mighty Third Fleet hit the northern Luzon area Tuesday (U. S. time). They destroyed 18 Japanese planes on the ground, knocked another from the skies and sank or fired seven enemy ships.

This latest of the series of aerial invasion strikes at the archipelago, now in the second week, smacked the enemy as the Tokyo radio clung to its unconfirmed propaganda line of a great victory in the western Pacific, and of a withdrawing United States fleet.

All such claims have been denied by Nimitz.

Ngulu atoll in the western Carolines, but 80 miles south of Yap and 210 miles east of Palau, was occupied by American ground forces last Sunday. There was only slight resistance, Nimitz reported.

Seizure of Ngulu, a tiny group of atolls, completes the outflanking of Yap. Nimitz announced only last night that six islands in the Ulithi atoll had been occupied, also without opposition, Sept. 20 and 21. Ulithi is about 100 miles east of Yap.

American forces now hold springboards for the invasion of the Philippines, or for an assault on Yap, in the Palau, Ulithi and Ngulu atolls of the western Carolines.

A recheck of the October 11 carrier plane strike at Formosa, north of the Philippines and within 100 miles of the China coast, gave this additional damage to Japanese shipping: Five cargo vessels and 34 small craft sunk; 13 vessels, including a minelayer, probably sunk; 18 ships and 34 small craft damaged.

Sixteen enemy vessels previously had been reported sunk in that action, the first of several carrier plane raids on Formosa, and 19 damaged.

Nimitz also reported the loss of 21 more U. S. planes, 31 pilots and 31 crewmen in the October 11 raid. That brought American plane losses to 43.

Reassessing Japanese plane losses, on the basis of still incomplete reports, for the period of Oct. 9-15. Nimitz reported the destruction of 350 aircraft on the ground and 565 in aerial combat in the Tyukyu-Formosa-Luzon area. The total did not include recent attacks on the Philippines.

Of the planes shot from the skies, 296 were in position to attack Vice Adm. Marc A. Mitscher's carriers, a part of the Third Fleet. Forty of these were accounted for by ships' guns.

A total of 269 enemy planes were shot down in dog fights over target areas.

The Tuesday strike at the Philippines centered on Camiguin island, north of Luzon; at Aparri, on the northern Luzon coast and at Laoag, northwestern Luzon.

Two medium transports were sunk at Camiguin, two vessels set afire and two medium transports left beached and burning. A coastal cargo ship and fuel storage areas along waterfront were set ablaze at Aparri. Fifteen Japanese planes were destroyed on the ground at Laoag and three at San Vicente, northeastern Luzon.

Only one airborne plane was encountered in the entire strike—over San Vicente—and it was shot down.

The aerial strikes in the Philippines were continuing, Nimitz said, even as a Tokyo broadcast reported a raid by 80 carrier planes in the Manila area today, Manila time (Tuesday night, U. S. time). The Federal Communications commission recorded the broadcast.

The raiders struck in three waves, Tokyo reported without confirmation, and 16 were shot down. Their targets were given as Manila, Clark Field, 40 miles northwest, and Legaspi, important port southeast of Manila.

(A Tokyo broadcast today recorded by the Blue Network quoted Japanese propagandists as asserting American task forces were "still fleeing away from Formosa, towing a number of crippled ships through an oil covered sea." This was nearly 24 hours after Nimitz had denied all of Tokyo's claims.)

A report on the destruction which the American Third and Fifth Fleets have dealt the Japanese in the mounting action in the western Pacific in the last four and a half months came from Navy Secretary Forrestal in Washington. He said 905 enemy ships had been sunk or damaged and 3,080 Nipponese planes destroyed in that time.

The period covered included the invasion of the Marianas last June and aerial assaults on Formosa through October 16.

The Fifth Fleet, under Vice Adm. Raymond A. Spruance, covered the Marianas invasion. Adm. William F. Halsey's Third Fleet has been engaged in recent operations around Formosa and the Philippines.

A new springboard for ground invasion of the Philippines meanwhile had been seized by American troops without opposition when they occupied six islands in the Ulithi atoll group of the western Carolines. The landings were made Sept. 20 and 21 but not announced until last night, Nimitz explained, because the Japanese may not have been aware of the actions.

Ulithi atoll is but 100 miles east of the important Japanese base of Yap, which is 1,250 miles southeast of Manila and 315 miles northeast of the American holdings in the Palau group. The Ulithi lagoon, 20 miles long by 12 miles wide, will afford an excellent anchorage for American warships and other vessels.

The Ulithi landings were made by units of the 81st U. S. Infantry division. The amphibious forces were commanded by Rear Adm. William H. P. Blandy.

A dispatch from Blandy's flagship described the operation as being carried out with the "precision of a dress parade." The natives, it said, gave the Yanks an enthusiastic welcome.

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—Carrier planes swept northern Luzon on Tuesday, sinking or setting fire to seven ships and destroying nineteen planes. A recheck of Japanese losses in the Formosa raid of October 11 showed thirty-seven additional ships and sixty-eight small craft sunk or damaged there.

3 Waves Attack City, Tokyo Declares

San Francisco, Oct. 18 (AP)—Eighty carrier-borne American planes attacked Manila this morning while others raided Clark Field and Legaspi, the Japanese-controlled Manila radio reported today. The broadcast, intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission, said the Manila raiders came in three waves starting at 10 A. M. (9 P. M. Tuesday, Eastern war time). Clark Field is 40 miles northwest of Manila. Legaspi is a strategic port on southeastern Luzon, main island of the Philippines.

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 18 (AP)—The steady drone of United States carrier planes over the Philippines and a continuing rain of bombs formed America's answer today to Tokyo radio boasts that the fleet had been dealt an "annihilating" blow and invasion of those islands had been set back two months.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz indicated the American units have no present intention of breaking off the Philippines attack by announcing last night, without the limitation of a date:

"Carrier aircraft of the Pacific fleet are continuing to attack objectives in the Philippines."

Another Atoll Taken

Simultaneously, Nimitz let out a military secret—that American troops of the 81st Division landed unopposed September 20 and 21 in the western Carolines on Ulithi atoll, whose lagoon forms a good naval base.

"Nimitz didn't say anything about it sooner because he had reason to believe the Japanese didn't know about it. Ulithi is about half way between American invasion forces on Guam and in the southern Palaus.

Nimitz did not specify the Philippines targets, but Tokyo radio accounts have focused attention on the Manila area. Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today his fighter planes have flown from Southwest Pacific bases all the way across Mindanao to wipe out a Japanese convoy of 62 trucks and six staff cars, bloodily disperse a cavalry troop and shoot up airfields.

Claim Toned Down

(The sustained air attacks on the Philippines found Tokyo radio toning down previous assurances that the danger of immediate invasion was past.

(The Federal Communications Commision in the United States recorded this broadcast observation last night:

("It cannot be thought that the enemy, with this setback, will give up his plans for attacking the Philippines."

(The "setback" was the claimed sinking or damaging of more than 50 American warships, a claim Nimitz repudiated yesterday.)

Jap Fleet Fled

Actually the Japanese lost more than 800 aircraft to American carrier forces. And, Nimitz said, the only part of the Imperial fleet that ventured out fled when it spotted Admiral William F. Halsey's Third Fleet task force still intact despite sorties by land-based Nipponese bombers and torpedo planes.

Nimitz gave no indication of the haven to which the Japanese warships fled. But the areas in which they could be are definitely restricted to waters the other side of the Ryukyu-Formosa-Philippines defense line. Some Japanese surface units are known to be in the South China Sea, and there has been no indication the Imperial home fleet has roamed far away from Japan proper.

No Jap Opposition

Last night's communique disclosed that American troops landed on either side of the main entrance to Ulithi lagoon then occupied four islands the following day.

Lack of opposition in sharp contrast with the fighting in the Palaus was somewhat surprising, inasmuch as Ulithi had been used by the Japanese as a minor naval base and for seaplane operations. The main atoll is 19 miles long, 10 miles wide. The Island of Mogmog, which has the main port, was among those seized.

140 Vessels Hit

Nimitz's announcement of sustained air action against the Philippines expanded the activities of carrier forces, which since October 8 have attacked the Ryukyus, Formosa and the Philippines, sinking or damaging more than 140 enemy ships and destroying more than 800 planes.

MacArthur's announcement marked the deepest penetration in strength of his fighter planes into the Philippines.

Nimitz's communique told of a raid within 650 miles of Tokyo by Seventh Army Air Force Liberators Monday, striking at Haha Jima, in the Bonin Islands. They pounded the town of Okdoura and small ships in the harbor.

SEES FIRST JAPS AND DOWNS FIVE

By PHILIP S. HEISLER.

Baltimore Sun Papers Correspondent. Distributed by The Associated Press.

With a Carrier Task Force Attacking Formosa, Oct. 12. (By Radio-delayed).—Ensign Arthur Mollenhauer never had seen an enemy plane in the air before today, when he took off for a fighter sweep over Formosa. When he returned to this carrier some two hours later he had five Jap planes to his credit.

The 21-year-old pilot from Santa Barbara, Cal., saw his first enemy plane in the air when he was cutting in over the Formosa coast. He shot it down. He saw his second enemy plane ten seconds later and shot that one down too. From then on it was just a case of seeing his third, fourth and fifth Jap planes and knocking them out of the plane-filled sky.

"They just kept flying in front of me and I just kept my finger on the gun button," Ensign Mollenhauer said after the battle.

His fellow pilots weren't as modest concerning Ensign Mollenhauer's achievements, however, as was the new ace. The Jap pilots in the dogfight were well-seasoned and put up a cagey fight, they said. This was only too evident from the fact that four of our pilots did not return.

Superfort Bomb Capacity Proved

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—The army disclosed today that Superfortresses on their October 14 raid against Formosa, dropped almost as many tons of bombs as were loosed by six times as large a force of smaller Italy-based Flying Fortresses and Liberator bombers on the same day.

An army air force spokesman, emphasizing the tremendous striking power of the Superfortresses, said they flew a round trip of 2,300 miles between China bases and the target of Okayama, major Japanese aircraft repair and supply station. This is about 1,000 miles farther than 15th Air Force planes flew to reach their targets in Italy and Germany.

Neither the number of Superfortresses nor the exact bomb tonnage was given, but the AAF official said "the comparison gives a very good indication of the effectiveness of the B-29."

Two of the Superfortresses were put out of action on the Okayama raid, one when it crash-landed in friendly territory. The other is listed as missing. The 15th Air Force lost 23 planes on the same day, the spokesman said, adding:

"The loss figures are not subject to fair comparison because of the difference in opposition encountered, but from the personnel standpoint and tonnage of bomb standpoint they indicate that in the long run the big, expensive bombers are more economical than the smaller bombers. They are significant as far as our long-range thinking and planning are concerned."

He said that the 23 planes lost by the 15th Air Force represented a loss in flying personnel of about six to one compared with this particular B-29 mission, since the smaller bombers require crews of ten men each as against a crew of 11 for the B-29s.

Japs Link Raids To Politics

San Francisco, Oct. 18 (AP)—Still claiming a great sea-air victory in the western Pacific, Tokyo radio asserted today in a broadcast recorded by the Blue Network that American naval forces used poor strategy in attacking Formosa.

"The attacks were made at President Roosevelt's direction over the objection of his staff officers for purely political reasons," Tokyo said. "Good strategy would dictate that the American fleet not go within range of land-based bombers."

Nearly 24 hours after Admiral Chester W. Nimitz flatly denied all of Tokyo's claims, Japanese propagandists asserted the United States task force was "still fleeing away from Formosa, towing a number of crippled ships through an oil-covered sea."

Ulithi Invaders Take Island An Hour

By Charles P. Arnot

Representing the Combined American Press

Distributed by the Associated Press

Aboard Admiral Blandy's Flagship, Ulithi Anchorage, Sept. 23 (Delayed)—A swift, bloodless amphibious coup by elements of the 81st (Wildcat) Army Division today enveloped the principal islands of Ulithi atoll and tightened America's sea and air blockade around half a dozen atrophying Japanese bases in the long chain of the Caroline islands.

Seizing an island an hour, the seaborne doughboys swept over coral beaches of the atoll's seven major palm-studded islands without firing a shot.

On several islands evidence was found that the main body of a small Japanese garrison had fled several weeks ago without leaving behind so much as a sampan.

A Slick "End Run"

For the assault forces who couldn't even find a souvenir the bloodless invasion was an anti-climax. But to the high command it represented a slick "end run" comparable to last January's surprise seizure of Kwajalein in the heart of the Marshalls.

From Ulithi, American forces can easily strike blows at the great enemy stronghold of Yap 100 miles to the southwest. To the east Woleai, once powerful Truk, Ponape and Kusaie are dying on the vine.

As invasion forces seized island after island without encountering opposition, Rear Admiral William H. P. Blandy pointed to a map of isolated Japanese bases.

Third Penetration In Nine Days

"These September operations have put the cork in the Carolines bottle," Blandy announced.

Occupation of this former Japanese anchorage and weather station by troops of Marine General Julian C. Smith's command marked the third penetration of the western Carolines in nine days, enlarging the outer ring of springboard bases for promised drives against the Philippines and the China coast.

With Palau, now under assault, the forward line stretches all the way from Morotai in the Southwest Pacific to Saipan.

Like A Dress Parade

Today's maneuvers had all the precision of a dress parade. Three hours after his troops landed on Falalop, largest of the atoll's 34 islands, the army commander reported that supplies were being unloaded "on schedule."

Falalop is about 1,400 yards long and 1,200 wide at its widest point.

Then came unopposed landings on Sorlen, Asor, Mogmog, Potangeras and Fassarai islands—all of them more difficult to pronounce than occupy. Even Asor, site of a former Japanese weather station, was abandoned.

30. 24 — 19657

Absence of Japanese defenders solved one of Blandy's major problems—how to seize the atoll without harming the native population, estimated at 400 to 500. Limited pre-invasion aerial and surface attacks, which knocked out enemy installations before an advance unit learned that there were no Japs around, wounded only four natives.

Nearly 20 miles long and a maximum of 12 miles wide Ulithi lagoon is considered one of the finest anchorages in the Western Pacific.

General Smith Born In Elkton

A son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William J. Smith, General Julian C. Smith, was born in Elkton on September 11, 1885. He was graduated from the University of Delaware in 1907 and two years later was commissioned a second lieutenant in the Marine Corps. He has been a marine ever since.

In 1914, he was among the marines who captured Vera Cruz. A year later he participated in the occupation of Petit Goave, Hait, and later went to Cuba with the Sixth Provisional Brigade.

List Of His Awards

In addition to the Navy Cross which he won for his exploits in the early 1930's against the Nicaraguan bandits, General Smith has been awarded the Expeditionary Medal with two bronze stars, the Mexican Service Medal, Haitian Campaign Medal, Dominican Campaign Medal, Victory Medal, Second Nicaraguan Campaign Medal, American Defense Service Ribbon, Asiatic-Pacific Area Campaign Medal, Medal of Distinction from Nicaragua and the Order of Merit from the Dominican Republic.

TROOPS CAPTURE SEVERAL PASSES IN CARPATHIANS

Russians Advance on 170 Mile Front in Sweeping Drive.

GERMANS TRAPPED

Moscow Silent on German Reports of East Prussia Offensive.

OCT 19 1944

LONDON, Thursday, Oct. 19—(AP) The Red army has plunged across the Carpathian mountains southward into Czechoslovakia on a 170-mile front, cutting clear across the eastern tip of the country and placing the Germans in a dangerous 100-mile deep salient from which they must flee quickly or be annihilated, Marshal Stalin disclosed last night.

Moscow remained resolutely silent concerning the reported Soviet offensive against East Prussia, which German broadcasts said was lashing against the province's eastern borders along a 30-mile stretch and had reached the frontier around the German town of Schirwindt. The Nazis portrayed it as the biggest of all the battles on the eastern front.

NIGHT

In a triumphant Order of the Day, Stalin said Gen. Ivan D. Petrov's Fourth Ukrainian army group had captured the Carpathian Mountain passes of Tatar, Jablonica, Lupkow, Ruska, Uzok, Vereczke and Wyskow, advanced 12 1-2 to 31 miles on Czechoslovak territory, and seized the north Transylvanian town of Sighet.

By this great thrust Petrov's army evidently joined forces with Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Russian and Romanian troops which had driven northward through Transylvania to the Czechoslovak border.

Report Further Advance

The regular Moscow midnight communique announced further advances for Malinovsky's men all across northward Transylvania from the Hungarian border at Valea-Lui-Mahai to the Sighet vicinity.

An early morning supplement to the communique reported heavy German casualties both in Transylvania and Czecho-Slovakia. It noted particularly that "the population of Czecho-Slovakia is acclaiming our troops with great joy and exceptional friendliness."

Having won the towering passes of the Carpathians and killed "several thousand" Germans in three days of bitter battle against long-fortified positions protected by many mines, Petrov's men reached the upper stretches of the Tisza river and now had only downhill routes before them through the Tisza valley.

With Malinovsky's men they formed three sides of a great 100-mile square enclosing a large but undisclosed number of German and Hungarian troops—the latter of doubtful value.

The western side of this square remained open, but the mountainous terrain and absence of through railways confronted the Nazis with a desperate effort if they were to get any sizable forces out to fall back down the narrow Tisza valley and thence westward into Budapest.

Aware of their peril, the Germans already were trying to disengage their Transylvanian army, Moscow dispatches declared, but were so hard-pressed that they were having to stand and fight to keep the escape route open above Debrecen.

It appeared that for the most part that the Germans would have to write off as lost the forces in northern Transylvania, eastern Hungary and Southeastern Czechoslovakia.

The Germans, silent about this Soviet victory amid the Carpathian crags and forests, continued to broadcast doleful accounts of the Russian offensive against the eastern border of East Prussia, which they said had been strongly reinforced by Red army tanks and infantry in its third fiery day.

While Moscow said nothing of land operations in that sector, the German Transocean Agency broadcast that a captured order from the Soviet Supreme command had instructed Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian army:

"In ten days you must have conquerred East Prussia."

Already, by German acknowledgment, the Red army had reached the frontier between Virbalis and Schirwindt — a stretch of a dozen miles — although the Nazis did not specify the exact locations or the distance. Virbalis is in southwest Lithuania four miles east of the border, while Schirwindt is inside East Prussia on the west bank of the boundary stream, the Ost Fluss.

The Germans announced they had withdrawn from Virbalis.

The German broadcasters said the Soviet attack began Monday after a crushing artillery barrage had been heavyily reinforced during the last 24 hours, and had extended along a front of more than 30 miles between Schirwindt and Kalvarija, in the corner where Lithuania, East Prussia and the Suwalki district meet.

Butting almost through the middle of this front runs the broad highway and railway from Kaunas to Konigsberg, East Prussian capital, via Stalluponen, Gumbinnen and Insterburg, all three of which have been subjected to heavy night bombings. The Russians themselves announced such air attacks.

REDS BREAK THROUGH CARPATHIAN PASSES

Russians Pierce Seven Mountain Passes and Advance 12 to 30 Miles—Nazis Hint Soviets Invade Reich,

OCT 19 1944

London, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—The Russian Army has crossed the Carpathians and invaded Czecho-Slovakia in force, Marshal Joseph V. Stalin announced tonight in a triumphant order of the day. Marshal Stalin said that Gen. Ivan Petrov's Fourth Ukrainian Army had broken through from southern Poland on a 170-mile front, capturing seven passes and advancing twelve to thirty miles.

"Troops of the Fourth Ukrainian front, continuing their offensive, have crossed the Carpathian range, and, having captured the passes of Lupkovo, Ruske, Uzok, Verecky, Viskovsky, Jablonicky and Tatar, have advanced into the depths of the territory of Czecho-Slovakia up to twenty to fifty kilometers on a front of 275 kilometers," the order said.

DAY

"During the course of the offensive, the troops captured the Czecho-Slovak towns of Koros-Mezo, Jasina, Rachovo and the large populated places of Chegtezne, Velkopolyana, Ruska, Ljuta, Uzok, Nizne, Veresky, Zalomeckaya, Pilipec, Guljatin, Toguna, Nadposto and, in northern Transylvania, captured the town of Sziget." The order called for a salute of twenty salvos from 224 guns in Moscow.

Break Into East Prussia.

A Berlin announcement early today indicated that the Russians had pushed into East Prussia after seizing Virbalis, in Lithuania.

Meanwhile the Germans also implied today that the Russians had invaded East Prussia after capturing Virbalis and advancing to Schirwindt, a mile inside the Reich.

"At the East Prussian border, the enemy extended his attacking front from Kalvarija and continued his attacks, supported by strong tank and fighter bomber formations," the broadcast communique said. "Forty-one enemy tanks were destroyed and the enemy was checked in embittered struggles. Virbalis fell into enemy hands after a stubborn defense."

Moscow has not yet announced the offensive. Virbalis is in Lithuania, three miles from the frontier.

"The Russians extended their offensive near the East Prussian border farther to the south and attacked strong German defenses between Kalvarija and Schirwindt," the Nazi commentator, Col. Ernst von Hammer said. "After stiff resistance, the town of Virbalis had to be given up."

Kalvarija in Lithuania lies thirty miles southeast of Schirwindt. The German frontier-town is forty-two miles northeast of the Prussian rail center of Interburg and ninety-one east of the capital of Konigsberg. Other Russians besieging the Baltic port of Memel are within sixty-five miles of Konigsberg.

Kalvarija lies just north of the Suwalki triangle, a bit of Poland which Germany annexed to East Prussia, and is on a trunk highway from Kaunas through Mariampole to East Prussia. Russian forces invaded the Suwalki triangle in mid-summer. Capture of Virbalis was a strategic Russian gain for the army group of the 36-year-old Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakovsky.

Six roads meet at the strategic town of about 6,000 which lies forty-one miles east of Insterburg and ninety-one from the capital of Konigsberg. The town just off the Wilno-Insterburg railroad was evacuated, Berlin announced before noon. Moscow announced at midnight a succession of heavy bombing attacks in East Prussia.

Attack on 25-mile Front.

Although the Russians did not directly confirm the new offensive, there appeared little doubt it was in progress. The German radio declared the attack sprang forward along a twenty-five-mile front on each side of the Lithuanian town of Vilkaviskis, a dozen miles from the East Prussian frontier. Gen. Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian Army advanced to Vilkaviskis two months ago.

The Russian bombing raids reached as far as Insterburg, thirty-seven miles inside the Junkers' homeland, toward which the land drive appeared to be aimed. The Moscow communique said supply trains and other objectives were blasted at Insterburg and the intermediate railway junctions of Gumbinnen and Stalluponen.

Mop-up Continues.

Berlin also suggested a heavy new Russian assault on East Prussia from the south and southeast, but Moscow remained silent about operations in this sector. Along the northern border on the Niemen River line the Russians have approached within artillery range of Tilsit, East Prussian frontier stronghold.

Still farther north, meanwhile, the two Russian armies that captured Riga last week proceeded with a cleanup of western Latvia and Soviet long-range bombers attacked Ventspils, one of the last useful ports remaining to the Germans trapped on that front.

On the southern end of the front, heavy fighting continues in Belgrade. The Moscow communique said more than 4,000 Germans had been killed in two days of fighting there. Marshal Tito announced the Germans had been routed from all except two districts of the city.

Russia Awaits Capture Of Belgrade

OCT 19 1944

Moscow, Oct. 18 (AP)—Moscow's victory guns were primed today to salute the expected fall of Belgrade, Yugoslavia's war-ravaged capital. Dispatches from the area said German troops were in a death trap, with the city largely mopped up.

Many of the capital's buildings were reported in flames after fierce day-and-night street fighting.

An Izvestia front-line dispatch said Yugoslav Partisans equipped with captured German tommy guns and grenades were pouring into the city to join in the final mop-up. There were few, if any, prisoners. German suicide squads are being exterminated, Izvestia said.

Fire Into Windows, Doors

Big Russian self-propelled guns lunged from corner to corner, firing point-blank at windows and doorways of German-held warehouses, apartments and office buildings. Thousands of German dead were said to be strewn along the streets and in wrecked hideouts.

A belief prevailed, meanwhile, in Moscow that Hungarian army units have deserted the Germans and now are fighting beside the Russians in an effort to drive the Nazis from Budapest, the Hungarian capital.

The Germans themselves announced in a Berlin broadcast yesterday that high Hungarian army chiefs had gone over to the Russian side. Specifically named was Maj. Gen. Bela Miklos von Dalnok, commander of the First Army, Neutral report aid Dalnok's army was marching on the capital.)

Anti-Szalasi Strikes Reported

A Tass dispatch said Admiral Nicholas Horthy's Government still was in existence, although his whereabouts were not officially known. The dispatch said strikes against Count Ferenc Szalasi's new regime were continuing in Budapest.

The official Russian silence on the main battle of Hungary continued through its sixth day.

New Threat To Nazis

A strategical development which would be fatal for the Germans in eastern Hungary appeared imminent—a linkup of Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's column in northern Transylvania with Col. Gen. Ivan Ptrov's Fourth Ukrainian Army, sweeping southward from southern Poland.

The two forces were barely 30 miles apart today. A junction would form a solid front across the Carpathians between the Polish and Hungarian plains and shorten the Red army's supply lines by hundreds of miles.

Germans At Belgrade Slaughtered

London, Thursday, Oct. 19 (AP)—The Germans' hopeless, last-ditch fight for Belgrade is becoming a slaughter and Marshal Tito reported early today that his Partisan forces alone had killed 5,000 Nazis.

Liberation of the Yugoslav capital was at hand and the Belgrade radio, closed down a week ago, came back on the air during the night—this time to broadcast the Allied communique.

"Our units are capturing one stronghold after another, even though the Germans are defending them to the last man," Tito announced. "The population of Belgrade is procuring arms to help our forces and is showing our units and the Red army men where the enemy is hiding."

Hungarian Envoy Rejects Puppet Regime

Stockholm, Oct. 18 (AP)—Dr. Josef Kristoffy, Hungarian Minister to Denmark, arrived in Sweden today with his legation staff after declining to recognize the new puppet regime set up in Budapest by the Nazis.

Kristoffy said he would take orders only from the government of Admiral Nicholas Horthy, the Hungarian regent.

London Poles See Harriman

Moscow, Oct. 18 (AP)—Polish Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk and Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer conferred for an hour with United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman today to acquaint him with the latest position of the Polish Government in exile.

A Polish spokesman said no unusual significance was attached to the visit.

There was no doubt that the Moscow conferences have at least clarified the opinions of the negotiating powers. In this respect it was said "progress had been made."

Understanding Seen

For the first night since their arrival in Moscow six days ago the London Poles had no meeting with British or Russian leaders last night. Whether Mikolajczyk finally will see the Lubin Polish Committee of National Liberation today has not yet been disclosed.

Yesterday's lull appeared to confirm that something definite in the way of an understanding is "now in the works." Maps of various aspects of the Curzon Line circulated in the hotel where Mikolajczyk's mission is staying.

German General's Death Announced

New York, Oct. 19 (AP)—The German DNB agency said today that Maj. Gen. Bogislav Count von Schwerin, who commanded a division in Estonia, had "died a hero's death."

The dispatch was reported by the Federal Communications Commission.

Nazi 'Death Scythe'

London, Oct. 18 (AP)—The Berlin radio came up with a new secret weapon story today, announcing that Nazi troops on the Russian front now are using an "electric machinegun."

The weapon, said the broadcast, is known as "the death scythe."

British Seize Venray in Holland, Allies Prepare Mighty Offensive

LONDON, Oct. 18.—(AP) British forces with American armor on the right flank and rocket-firing Typhoons overhead pushed through the Dutch rail and road junction of Venray today and captured two more towns beyond, cutting deep into the enemy's Maas river salient with a steady advance toward the German border and the Ruhr valley.

The American First Army beat off a small German counterattack at Aachen to the south and strengthened its encirclement of the great German border city, which Berlin radio commentators for the first time publicly wrote off as lost.

A great rain fell all along the western front from Holland to the Swiss border, turning the ground into mud and making Allied advances difficult, but everywhere there was evidence of a build-up for a vast Allied offensive which a British Second army spokesman said today may lead to one of the war's great decisive battles within the next ten weeks. The Germans were said to have no strategic reserves left.

For the seventh consecutive day American heavy bombers attacked the great German city of Cologne, a Rhine industrial center the size of St. Louis, punishing it with another 1,000 tons of bombs, and the Germans, whatever their purpose, began preparing their public for a great American land assault on this strategic city 40 miles beyond Aachen.

Elsewhere along the front Canadians squeezed the German pocket on the south bank of the Schelde estuary down by one-third, the American Third Army in eastern France drove to within four miles of Metz with a one-mile advance, and the French First Army in the foothills of the Vosges mountains advanced nearer to three important passes on the route to the southwestern Reich.

British Tommies after taking Venray, eight miles short of the German border, liberated Veulen three miles to the south and Overbrook two miles to the southwest, giving the Allies a 45-square-mile bite into the German Maas river salient since Oct. 12 and shortening the German front there from 15 miles to 12.

Win Control of Road

In this drive over the last miles of Dutch Bog country for a firm footing on higher nd drier ground leading to the Ruhr junction city of Duisburg, the Allied troops won control of the entire road from Venray to Deurne, to the southwest, and pushed across it.

Venray, which lies five miles west of the Maas, fell to the British during the night after a two-day battle, and was cleared of snipers this forenoon, front dispatches related. By early afternoon driblets of its population of 16,000 forlornly entered the demolished town to rescue what they could of their remaining possessions. Dead Germans, and some dead Tommies too, were still in the streets.

The area west of the Maas bound by Sambeek on the north and Overloon on the west was completely cleared of the enemy, a field officer announced. The Germans said that midway btween Eindhoven and Venray, at Helmond on the south Willems canal, the British had launched a new attack "with strong forces, supported by bombers."

With the smashing of the latest German counterattack against Aachen the Americans have now badly cut up two German divisions, Associated Press correspondent William Smith White wrote from the front. One has been substantially destroyed as a fighting unit and the other materially reduced.

Destroy Pillboxes

American infantrymen made slow but unbroken progress on the approaches to the center of the city and strengthened the junction point of the ring around it—in the Wurselen area. In the last 24 hours 25 German pillboxes were destroyed or captured north of Aachen.

Field commands disclosed that the Germans have been operating big railroad guns both at Aachen and on the Third Army's front near Metz. American artillery poured 20 rounds into one of these guns which had been pulling in and out of a tunnel at Aachen.

American artillery was credited in front dispatches as having been the weapon mainly responsible for the smashing of every German attempt to regain Aachen. American shells have been falling on the Germans as far back as Duren, 20 miles east of Aachen, at the rate of about 50,000 rounds a day.

Canadians along the Schelde estuary were reported to have driven within 3,000 to 4,000 yards of Breskens. The continued thunder of German demolitions indicated the enemy had given up his last hope of a get-away through this ferry port to Vlissingen and that he intended to dig in and fight here to the bitter end as he has in other ports of the western front. The Canadians reached Ijze Dijke, six miles south of Breskens.

Ahead of the Canadians driving toward Breskens lay two miles of criss-crossed dike country, and German opposition was tough every yard of the way. The Nazis have concentrated 20-odd guns, including 150 mm and field artillery, to the west of Breskens with good effect.

The American Third army drove nearly a mile north from Ancy Sur Moselle in an attack which put the Yanks within four miles of the great French fortress city of Metz, front dispatches disclosed. Only light opposition was encountered and it was apparent that the Germans had made no determined attempt to hold this sector.

All was quiet on the rest of the Third army front except at Pont-A-Mousson, where one of the heavy German railroad guns, described as "a great grandchild of the first World war's 'Big Bertha'" had been shelling for the past 12 hours, one front dispatch related.

The American Seventh army held firm against German counter-attacks at Embermenil, east of the Forest of Parroy, and the French beat off counter-attacks north of Bruyeres and near Rochesson in this area of the approaches to southwestern Germany.

Tommies Seize Venray and Push On 2 Miles to Form a Solid Front.

SINGLETON

ALLIED PRESSURE INCREASES

Nazis Report 1500 Tanks Massed for Push Toward Ruhr—Expect Big Assault.

OCT 19 1944

London, Oct. 18 (AP)—British troops captured Venray and formed a solid ten-mile front in eastern Holland thirty-three miles from Duisburg today, while Berlin declared half a million men were facing each other in the Netherlands ready for "battle that may flare up at any moment." Canadians to the west pressed back the German pocket blocking use of the great supply port of Antwerp.

Aachen still was being beaten into submission. Berlin asserted the American First Army was preparing a new offensive aimed at Cologne.

A small German attack east of Aachen was beaten off today, a front dispatch said, in another of the series of vain blows that have now badly cut up two enemy divisions. One of these divisions is substantially destroyed as a fighting unit, while the second has been materially reduced. The rest of the rain-swept Aachen front was generally quiet.

The front in France sprang to action also. American Third Army troops in a mile gain hit within four miles of the fortress city of Metz, and French forces farther south made progress, driving within from three to five miles of two Vosges passes leading to the Reich.

British Second Army forces captured Venray near the Maas River, and a dispatch from Supreme Headquarters said the Tommies had linked up a ten-mile front along the Venray-Deurne road.

The Germans below the Schelde Estuary barring the water lane to Antwerp fell back under Canadian pressure. A front dispatch said there were signs this German siege stand might be ending. Demolitions were reported in the Breskens area, stronghold of the enemy pocket, along with considerable transport movement.

All along the front, progress—slow, methodical progress carved out in many cases by bayonets—was reported.

From Breskens, a German strongpoint before the already liberated port of Antwerp, to Belfort, this was the picture:

1. Lieut.-Gen. H. D. Crerar's Canadians have reached Ijzendijke, six miles south of Breskens, pressing hard on the newly formed defense line of the suicide German troops within the narrowing pocket. Supreme Allied Headquarters reported bombers had attacked the sea dyke at West Kapelle on the nearby island of Walcheren.

2. In northern Holland, where Berlin has reported the Allies have massed 1,500 tanks for a drive into the Rhine-Ruhr valley, Lieut.-Gen. Miles G. Dempsey's British Second Army took Venray after house-to-house fighting and plunged on two miles southeast of the town, which itself is eight miles from the Reich frontier. Associated Press Correspondent Ned Nordness, with this force, reported that American armored columns on the right flank had bridged the Canal De Doorn.

3. Gen. Eisenhower's communique described the fighting on the First Army front as a mopping up procedure. There was mopping up inside Aachen, which has set a pattern of punishment for German cities which resist the Allied advance, and moping up to the northeast of "segments of the Siegfried Line" to clear the way for the next drive. The German radio, finally acknowledging Aachen has been encircled, described the fighting there as surpassing everything that has gone before in this war, and said flatly that Gen. Eisenhower "is planning an all-out offensive on Cologne after capturing Aachen."

Patton's Men Advance.

4. American Third Army infantry advanced nearly a mile north of Ancy-sur-Moselle to within four miles of Metz, another big fortress-industrial city. Associated Press Correspondent Wes Gallagher said only light opposition was encountered.

5. In the Vosges foothills, the Allied communique reported progress just south of the road junction at Bruyeres and northeast of Le Thillot despite stubborn enemy resistance and strong counter-attacks.

In the Overloon area, north of Venray, the Nazis were reported pulling out of a pocket approximately 5,000 yards long and from 700 to 2,000 yards wide along the Maas, leaving the area a no-man's land.

U. S. Armor Poised.

30. 24 — 1959

American armor was poised on the British southern flank but was not yet reported in action.

A front dispatch said some 100,000 Germans, by-passed in the Allied onrush through France, still are scattered in pockets behind the Allied line. These enemy troops are distributed like this: 8,000 at Dunkirk, 22,000 at Lorient, 20,000 at St. Nazaire, 30,000 in the Vannes area and 26,000 in the Bordeaux sector. Probably another 10,000 Germans are on the Channel islands. Hamstrung by a lack of transport, munitions and supplies, these enemy troops are not causing the Allies any real trouble.

New Nazi Attack Repelled

A small German attack east of Aachen was beaten off today, a front-line dispatch said, in another of the series of vain blows that have now badly cut up two enemy divisions. One of these divisions is substantially destroyed as a fighting unit, while the second has been materially reduced. The rest of the rain-swept Aachen front was generally quiet.

Associated Press Correspondent William S. White estimated that the Nazis had lost 1,500 men captured and 1,000 killed in attempts to recapture Aachen, or about one fourth of their attacking forces.

Foe's Artillery Fire Heavy

About 3,500 German civilians have been evacuated from Aachen and as many more were estimated to be still hiding amid the rubble of the dead city.

Heavy enemy artillery fire has been directed against American troops probing the Nazis defenses in the Geilenkirchen area, ten miles north of Aachen.

The battle to break the Nazi hold on the Schelde estuary approaches to the Belgian port of Antwerp was being fought over waterlogged terrain. The Canadians entered Ijzendijke, six miles southeast of Breskens, on the south bank of the estuary, and the Nazis have taken new positions on a line running from Schoondijke southwest to Sluis, about four miles inland.

Rain Hampers Third Army

Steady rain had stalled traffic on the United States Third Army front in northern France. The situation there remained unchanged.

Near the southern end of the 460-mile Allied line French First Army troops made slight gains on the slopes of the Vosges Mountains.

Schelde Battle In Final Phase

Supreme Allied Headquarters, Paris, Oct. 18 (AP)—The battle for the port of Antwerp is moving into its final phase—the start of one of the grimmest German death stands yet encountered and the beginning of a full-power Allied onslaught to pry open that port.

The great Dutch Schelde river mouth port was the first on the whole invasion coast to topple into Allied hands undamaged, and its importance is obvious from its position only a hundred miles from the Rhine-Ruhr confluence.

OCT 19 1944

50 Miles of Docks

But capture of the port September 4 in the swift British-Canadian sweep north through Belgium was hardly even the beginning of the fight. Its docks are 50 miles up the Schelde estuary from the sea and both sides of that 50 miles are guarded by German garrisons and German guns.

The preliminary mopup now is virtually completed. The Canadians have squeezed the Nazis out of all but the last south bank box, roughly 12 miles wide and 10 to 15 miles deep, across from Flushing.

The British earthquake bomb breaching of the Walcheren dikes drowned defensive positions on most of the western half of that island and some parts just around Flushing itself where there still are big battery emplacements.

Suicide Stand Seen

One of the obvious purposes of the ground and airborne drive north through Holland to the banks of the Dutch Rhine was to seal off Antwerp for the mopup.

Reinforcements which the Germans might pour into the last stage of the fight now would have to squeeze through a 25-mile gap between the Dutch Rhine and the Zuiderzee.

But forces already there obviously are under orders for a suicide stand to deny the port to the Allies to the last possible hour. Even after the way to the port finally is cleared it is possible the Germans will do all they can to block it.

25 West-Front U. S. Divisions

Allied Headquarters, Paris, Oct. 18 (AP)—A recapitulation of official announcements shows the following American divisions have been identified as operating on the Western Front since D-day:

ARMORED—Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh.

AIRBORNE—101st and 82d.

INFANTRY—First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Eighth, Ninth, 28th, 29th, 30th, 35th, 36th, 45th, 79th, 80th, 83d and 90th.

CODE TO GOVERN CONQUERED REICH BEING PREPARED

OCT 19 1944

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris, Oct. 18—(AP)—Extermination of Nazism with all of its works and symbols, and stern but just treatment of the Germans generally are the terms of the military law being imposed in German territory as it is wrested from Hitler's army.

Brig. Gen. Julius C. Holmes, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's deputy assistant chief of staff for military government, said today in outlining the scope of the measure that its main object was to facilitate the work of the armies in continuing their push.

The present code already is posted in those small areas of Germany so far occupied and deals only with the war period. Plans for long-term occupation of the Reich are left for the Allied governments to decide upon later.

The war law for Germany sets aside the sovereignty of the German state and makes Gen. Eisenhower Supreme Judge and Administrator. It is effective in all areas occupied by the armies under his command.

The main provisions are the elimination of Nazism, apprehension of war criminals, protection of Allied and neutral property, abrogation of Nazi laws, surrender of all arms by Germans, suspension of civilian travel, courts, newspapers and radio stations, control of postal, telegraph and telephone services and preservation of all existing records, archives, artistic and scientific works and property generally.

Provides Death Penalty

The code provides possible death penalties for resistance behind the Allied lines.

Gen. Holmes made it plain the regime to be imposed on Germany is nothing like the civil affairs administrations setup in France, Belgium and Holland, which he said were purely to assist those countries.

It is something like the administration drawn up for Italy.

The military law will be administered by each army entering Germany—American, British, Canadian and French—in the territory it occupies.

The first law of the code abolishes the Nazi party, Nazi symbols and all Nazi laws including the Nurnberg racial measures, the law making the Nazi party the only one allowed, the Hitler Youth Law and the measure which made it illegal to say anything against the Nazis. It also provides for the release of prisoners jailed for violation of such laws.

Under the code all Nazi funds and records must be preserved and Nazi officials are ordered to remain at their posts to await the arrival of Allied authorities to arrest them. This law is backed up by a possible death penalty.

The Allied military mark is established as legal tender and transactions in foreign exchange, gold or property abroad are prohibited. Foreign currency must be turned over to banks under Allied control.

All Nazi labor organizations are abolished.

Imprisonment or fines may be imposed for disobedience, being out after curfew, leaving the territory, dissemination of rumors calculated to alarm, and the making of false statements to Allied forces.

All German homes and other establishments will be off limits except when entered on official business.

ALLIED ARMY RULE IS AIMED AT NAZISM

KENNEDY

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—The Allied Military Government of Germany is designed to exterminate Nazism, Brig.-Gen. Julius C. Holmes, Gen. Eisenhower's deputy Assistant Chief of Staff for Military Government, said today. Gen. Holmes made public a code of military laws and ordinances already applied in the small area of Germany under occupation, and ready to be applied in all territory conquered by armies under Gen. Eisenhower's command.

These laws suspend German sovereignty as the troops enter and vest authority in the supreme commander. Gen. Holmes stressed that the program deals only with military occupation in the wake of the armies while war is being waged in Germany, and not with long-range occupation plans.

The military law drawn up for conquered Germany is draconian, but Gen. Holmes said that under it the Germans would be treated justly and decently. It provides for the apprehension of war criminals, Nazi and Gestapo leaders, the seizure and control of all public property and services and possible death penalties for anyone continuing resistance.

Gen. Holmes made it plain that the regime to be imposed upon Germany does not resemble the civil affairs administration established in France, Belgium and Holland, which he said were intended purely to assist those countries. It is more like the administration drawn up for Italy.

PATTON HAS CLOSE ESCAPE IN FRANCE

OCT 19 1944

WITH THE U. S. THIRD ARMY IN FRANCE, Oct. 18.—(AP) Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., narrowly missed being a casualty from the huge railway gun being employed by Germans over a wide area of the Third Army front when one of its 700-pound shells landed within eight feet of him.

The shell was a dud, however, and Patton escaped uninjured.

Mention of the gun had been censored from frontline dispatches until today. It has been in action for some weeks, firing in one area for a few hours and then moving to another spot for a few more hours.

The Germans brought up the gun, which may be one dating from the first World War, when this front became stabilized. Fired more than 30 miles from its target, the gun is extremely inaccurate and useful only in harassing fire against big targets. Its shells were reported landing in the Pont-a-Mousson area between Nancy and Metz this morning.

DUD SHELL LANDS CLOSE TO PATTON

With the United States Third Army in France, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—A 700-pound shell from one of the new, huge railway guns wheeled up by the Germans landed today within eight feet of Lieut.-Gen. George S. Patton Jr., but it was a dud and the Third Army commander was uninjured.

The projectile was one of many which have been tossed loosely over a wide area of this front for some weeks.

Playing hide and seek in the area from Metz to Nancy, it fires a few hours in one area and a few hours in another. Until today there has been censorship on mention of the weapon. Reports this morning said shells were landing in the area of Pont-A-Mousson, midway between Nancy and Metz.

The Germans moved up the gun, which may date from the first World War, when the front was stabilized. Firing at a range of more than 30 miles, the gun is extremely inaccurate and the crew is lucky if it hits within a mile of where it is aimed. Therefore it is useful only in harrassing fire against big targets such as cities.

He Climbed Out of Tank to Aim Big Gun

BARKER

With an American Tank Battalion in Germany, Oct. 13 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Lieut. Joseph H. "Skeeter" Dew, 24-year-old tank leader from Redfield, Iowa, was recommended for decoration today for climbing out of his Sherman tank and aiming its 75-millimeter gun to breach concrete barriers of the Siegfried Line despite enemy fire from nearby pillboxes which had stopped the infantry.

His tank was only fifteen feet from a row of tooth-shaped concrete barriers guarding the western border of Germany, southwest of Prym. This was too close for his gunner, Corporal Albert A. Wallace of 2608 Avenue R, Brooklyn, N. Y., to use his sights, so Lieut. Dew, squatting on the front armor, sighted along the barrel of the 75 and gave the order to fire.

Lieut. Dew continued to sight in this manner until the shells had blown a row of four "dragon's teeth" to bits, leaving a gap through which his tank and the rest of the platoon rumbled triumphantly toward the pillboxes.

In the ensuing battle, the Germans knocked out a couple of his tanks, killing two men and wounding six of the platoon. Lieut. Dew destroyed two antitank guns and forced another to withdraw.

"There were dead Jerries all over those pillboxes," Lieut. Dew said. "We must have fired forty or fifty rounds from our .75. We ran out of armor-piercing shells and had to use high explosive shells."

"Lieut. Dew did this voluntarily after another officer said he didn't think he could break the dragon's teeth," said Pfc. Ernest A. Arena of 6105 12th avenue Brooklyn, a loader on Lieut Dew's tank.

Other crew members were Woodrow W. Hulsey of Greenwood, S. C., and Pfc. Lynn Hurte of Paint Lick, Ky.

GREAT BATTLES NEAR ON THE WEST FRONT

WITH THE BRITISH SECOND ARMY, Oct. 18 (AP)—The great decisive battles of the war in Europe may be fought this year west of the Rhine, provided the Allies get an even break in the weather, a British staff officer told correspondents tonight.

The dice are very heavily loaded in Allied favor, he declared, but it still is too early to predict whether Hitler's Reich will collapse suddenly or crumble slowly into defeat. Explaining that a great Allied build-up now was in progress and that one day there will be a hell of a bang, the officer gave this picture of the situation:

The period we now are going through is a trying one for both the soldiers and the public, but they must realize the tremendous difficulties of supply to be overcome. The build-up is gathering moment every hour of every day, and the end is just around the corner.

Allied armies are in a slogging stage—merely jabbing at the enemy—and this stage is the price that must be paid after the whirlwind drive from Normandy. These jabbing operations, such as at Aachen and Nijmegen, are necessary, however tedious they may appear, in order to prepare a springboard.

We will get all the fighting we want once we start the Allied juggernaut rolling to the Rhine, the officer continued. There isa probable chance that the major decision and final phase of the war will be fought out in the next ten weeks.

Yanks Save 81 French Babies

OCT 19 1944

Patrol Rescues Infants From Chateau in Middle of No Man's Land.

With the United States 35th Infantry Division, in France, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—"I'll go. I have three kids at home myself," the sergeant said. There was a murmur among the enlisted men and nine others stepped forward as volunteers.

Theirs was as dangerous and unusual a mission as most in this war and beyond the regular call of duty. They were going on a "baby patrol" to rescue eighty-one French children trapped in a chateau in no man's land.

Brooklyn Officer.

A civil affairs officer, Capt. George Schneider, former Brooklyn lawyer from 1241 Eastern Parkway, had received word from the French that near the town of Hans, in a chateau, there were eighty-one children, from 2 to 6 years old, who had been sent by their parents from Nancy to the chateau as a place of safety, but the path of war headed right for the children. The Germans held Hans and the Americans held a nearby town and had to capture Hans to keep their position.

Capt. Schneider notified the commanding American officer of the children's situation, and the colonel promised to do his best to avoid the chateau in the attack, but he pointed out that as soon as American patrols were established in the town the Germans were certain to counter-attack, and this might involve the children's area. Capt. Schneider went to Company A of the 134th Regiment and asked for volunteers to enter the town behind the American patrols.

They were to reach the chateau and escort the children to safety. That was when the ten men stepped forward.

Tough Thousand Yards.

To reach the chateau, the group had to travel over a thousand yards of marshy ground under German observation and fire. It was a damp, cold night when the "baby patrol" reached the battle area at about 9 P. M. Each man understood that he would have to carry two babies and guide the others. If attacked, he would be absolutely helpless.

Creeping silently forward, the patrol reached the chateau without being fired on. They found that only two children were over 4, and that most of them were without shoes, half clothed and badly frightened, as were the few nurses.

Baby Under Each Arm.

Each man placed a baby under each arm and grouped several others who could toddle around him, and started back through the night. They moved about forty yards apart and had to stop for rest frequently so that the children could keep up with them.

The Germans spotted the party and cut loose with artillery and mortars. Capt. Schneider and his strange patrol, each man with his arms full of chifdren, could do nothing but squat down for a moment, then move on slowly.

It was a long thousand yards. The men had to hand the children over a small creek one by one before reaching the truck which rushed them to Nancy.

No Child Is Hurt.

Despite the wet, cold ground and their lack of shoes, to say nothing of their fright at being with strange men and at the bursting artillery shells, not one child so much as cried. By some miracle, not one child nor one volunteer was hurt.

Today the captain and ten enlisted men were awarded the Bronze Star but only five were on hand to receive it. Capt. Paul Orban, French liaison officer who served as the guidt that night, has recommended the men for French decorations, as well.

The enlisted men who were notified of their decorations today included Sergts. Archie C. Hughes, Boring, Ore.; Robert H. Gundetson, Cannon Falls, Minn., and William F. Moore, Farwell, Mich., and Privates Anthony Sokolowski, Trenton, N. J., and Stanley L. Summers, Camden, N. J.

NAZIS FORM HOME GUARD

Old Men, Boys, "If Need Be Women And Girls" Called

London, Oct. 18 (AP)—Berlin radio said tonight that 138 German generals had been killed at the front during the war. The announcement said they were among 30,000 officers who died in battle.

London, Oct. 18 (AP)—Old men and boys—and, "if need be, women and girls"—were ordered to defend Germany with guns, swords, pitchforks, scythes and clubs as Adolf Hitler proclaimed tonight the formation of an armed home guard for a last-ditch defense of the Reich.

With Allied armies beating against the Reich from the west, east, southeast and south, Hitler established by decree the "Volkssturm" (people's army), composed of every able-bodied German man and boy from 16 to 60 and proclaimed them part of the German army under international law.

Then Heinrich Himmler, commander in chief of the home front, addressing the nation from a Volkssturm barracks in East Prussia, ordered the defense of Germany by "every village, every house, every farm, every ditch, every forest and every bush."

Hitler's Proclamation

Himmler was followed by East Prussian Gauleiter Erich Koch, who fanatically pledged Hitler: "We in East Prussia will not retreat an inch."

Hitler's proclamation was read over the Berlin radio. The Fuehrer, whose voice has not been heard on the air since shortly after the reported assassination attempt July 20, was quoted as saying:

"Just as in 1939 we are facing the enemy alone. In a first enormous effort of our German people's strength we succeeded, then . . . Germany's second all-out effort must and will succeed. Relying on our own force, we will not only break the enemy's will of destruction but we will throw him back again. I call on all able-bodied men to fight."

"Never . . . Capitulate"

Front-line dispatches indicate that this "People's Army" already has seen action on the western German frontier where American troops invaded the Reich. The dispatches have told how civilians led Americans into ambushes, directed them to mine-strewn streets and sniped at them from the windows of houses waving white flags.

"Never must a Volkssturm man capitulate," Himmler declared in exacting an oath from each to "be faithful to our God-sent Fuehrer."

Thus the Nazis prepared the beleaguered nation for what their propagandists called the "greatest storm in the world history which is about to descend on us."

The Paris radio asserted that the home army already was in operation with its first task—"the liquidation of foreign workers in the Reich"—to prevent them from forming a fifth column.

Central Germany Tomorrow

Tonight the Moscow radio told the German people that Hitler's guerrilla army could not save the Reich and that "central Germany will be a battlefield tomorrow."

"There is nothing that Himmler, Goering or Hitler can possibly do to stop the final Allied onslaught against the Reich," the Moscow radio said in a special broadcast to the Reich. "The German nation is being called to arms solely for the purpose of facliitating the escape of high Nazi officials. The Nazis' last hour has come."

With the bottom of the German manpower barrel already scraped to the extent of mobilizing ill and one-eyed and one-armed Germans and Red Cross workers and munition employes into the armed forces, there is no estimate of the number of armed men who could be raised by the new order.

The Volkssturm's Job

Himmler said the task of the members of the Volkssturm was "to fanatically grab the enemy and if possible to wipe him out wherever he steps on our home soil, be it by advance on the ground or by descending from the air. Our enemies must learn to understand that every kilometer which they want to advance into our country will cost them streams of their own blood."

This guerrilla army, which the Nazis proclaimed legal with armband identification, was placed under the control of Himmler and Reichsleader Martin Bormann with supreme power to impress anyone and everyone.

In a special broadcast tonight the Berlin radio said the announcement of the founding of the Volkssturm "struck like a stroke of lightning. Everywhere it was the topic of the day."

"Young boys with red-cheeked children's faces and white-haired men discussed the possibility offered by the Fuehrer's decree in actively participating in the country's defense with a rifle in hand," the broadcast continued.

Home Guard Formed by Hitler

Men From 16 to 60 Included—Fuehrer Calls on All Able-bodied to Fight.

OCT 19 1944

London, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler, observing that "just as in 1939 we are facing the enemy alone," proclaimed tonight the formation of an armed German home guard and declared: "Germany's second all-out effort must and will succeed."

Hitler's voice, which has not been heard on radio channels since shortly after the reported assassination attempt of July 20, was absent again from the German airways today. His decree setting up the guard was read for him.

"Relying on our own force, we will not only break the enemy will of destruction, but we will throw him back again," the Hitler utterance said. "I call on all able-bodied men to fight."

The decree then announced that all civilian men between 16 and 60 were ordered into the Volkssturm, an armed home army similar to that which Britain organized in 1940 after the fall of France.

Himmler Harangues Guard.

"Whereas, the enemy believed that he could get ready for the last knockout blow, we, on our part are resolved to carry out the second large-scale mobilization of our people," the decree said. The bottom of the Nazi man power barrel already had been reported scraped by total mobilization measures taken by Hitler, Heinrich Himmler, Hermann Goering and Joseph Goebbels during the summer.

That mobilization took ill and one-eyed Germans, Red Cross workers, and munitions plant employees into the armed forces. There was no estimate of the number of armed men—if any—who would be raised by the new order.

"This armed guard will defend our home soil with all weapons and all means, in so far as they are suitable to that purpose," the decree said. The German broadcast added that Himmler, Gestapo chief and commander of the German home army, had spoken in an unidentified East Prussian town on an occasion described as the first meeting of the armed home guard.

Himmler indicated that pitchforks, straightened soythes, pikes and swords would be considered legitimate weapons for the home guard. Under Hitler's decree, all "military by-laws" would be issued by Himmler and "political by-laws" by Reichsleader Martin Bormann.

No Uniforms for Guard.

Describing this people's army as "not a preparation for defeat, but for victory," the Berlin station said:

"The significance of the German Volkssturm becomes obvious when the possibility of breakthroughs in our fighting front or air-borne landings in our hinterland are taken into account."

The home guard men will be part of the German Army, the broadcast said, adding that "they will wear no uniform, but will be marked by an armband in accordance with international law."

NAZI PRISON CAMPS NEAR RAID TARGETS

London, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—Some of Germany's prisoners-of-war camps have been or are situated near legitimate military targets in contravention of Article No. 9 of the Geneva convention, Minister of State Richard Law declared in the House of Commons today. Consequently, he said, a number of British prisoners of war have lost their lives in the air raids.

Many Nazi Flyers Sent To Infantry

With an American Infantry Division in Germany, Oct. 12 (AP—Delayed)—German flyers who have not proved their worth by shooting down Allied planes are being transferred to the infantry, a captive German air force captain said today.

The officer, who led a group of 12 enlisted men over to United States lines, said the flyers knew nothing of infantry fighting, and were determined not to become ground troops.

Capt. William McArtor, Columbus, Ohio, a company commander, said that apparently because of a scarcity of planes the enemy was holding only top-notch flyers for air duty.

ARMY PLANNING SCHOOLS ABROAD

OCT 19 1944

Paris, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—The United States Army is going to open service high schools and universities in France and England when the war in Europe ends so that soldiers may resume their education as soon as possible, it was announced today. Seventy-five thousand teachers will be rounded up from the Army.

Arrangements are being made with schools and colleges in the United States to honor Army school credits. Courses are being arranged in conjunction with the University of Paris, and thousands on the completion of Army studies will be eligible to attend the Sorbonne.

ACTRESS AIDE TO PATRIOTS

American, Dorothy Leyton, Helped Flyers Escape

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP) — A blonde American actress described today how she hoodwinked the Germans during two years of the occupation of France by posing alternately as an invalid and an amateur farmer while helping a number of American and British flyers to escape.

This veteran of France's underground is Dorothy Leyton, once of the Broadway production "Green Grow the Lilacs," and later of Hollywood. Born Dorothy Blackman, of Santa Barbara and Santa Monica, Cal., she married a French actor and was known in France as Drue Tartiere.

Husband Killed

She was working for the French Ministry of Information when the Germans came. After a taste of the Vichy Government, she returned to Paris. Her husband, in the French army, was killed at Damascus.

She said her first work in the underground was in renting a house in suburban Barbizon near an open plain where she helped gather arms dropped from Allied planes.

Then in September, 1942, the Germans shipped her off to a concentration camp in the south of France. There, with the aid of a doctor who was a French war prisoner working in the camp hospital, she contrived a fake illness until the Germans released her to return to Paris for treatment.

Posed As Trapper

The actress remained in Paris until the liberation, justifying her existence in the Gestapo's eyes by working in a produce garden.

At night, under her carefully contrived reputation as an amateur trapper of small game, she smuggled food to Allied flyers who had been forced down in France.

In the course of her nocturnal adventures, she actually did catch 172 rabbits in six months, she related.

Arranged Operations

She arranged for operations on several wounded flyers by French doctors in a near-by clinic. The Gestapo arrested one wounded American on the operating table there and later shipped him to Germany, where he now has regained his health.

Another flyer was safely hidden one night by being sneaked into the bed of an 82-year-old grandmother, she said.

Several times, when the Gestapo became too inquisitive, the American woman saved herself by resuming her role as an invalid.

LAVAL'S PROPERTY ON AUCTION BLOCK

Paris, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—Property confiscated from the French Quisling, Pierre Laval, will be sold at auction on October 22 and is expected to bring the State 400,000,000 frances ($8,000,000 on the basis used for invasion currency).

Items:

Laval's lavishly furnished chateau and Chateldon and art objects. Mineral waters from springs on the estate were sold by Laval for medicinal purposes.

Laval's newspaper plant at Clermont-Ferrand, where Le Moniteur was published with its extensive legal notices.

Extensive lands around Lake Daydat and the lake itself.

Sections of Laval's well-stocked wine cellar.

Cigarette boxes engraved with his daughter's titled initials and various foreign decorations, mostly German.

Two or three white ties Laval was so fond of wearing.

Several business and apartment buildings.

Laval's daughter became the Countess de Chambrun by marriage in the chateau. The building now is used as a reception center for returning refugees.

$60,000,000 Nazi Loot Regained By French

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP)—A fabulous $60,000,000 assortment of French goods ranging from kitchen crockery to old masters which the Germans had seized during their occupation has been recovered, mostly through clever work by French resistance forces as the Nazis were being driven out.

Although the Germans tried to prevent recovery of their loot, even distributing some of it to the French public, a large amount of valuables was saved through the sabotaging of enemy trucks.

Dumps For Tires

Suburban quarries, which served as dumps for thousands of seized tires, and numerous warehouses also have yielded a great hoard of loot.

The newspaper Combat said the haul included tons of metal house frames, railway rails, 6,000 to 7,000 trucks, 200 tons of crockery, 1,300 electric refrigerators, thousands of pairs of shoes, 12,000 washtubs and many cases of silk stockings and paintings.

A vast assortment of housefurnishings which the Nazis had collected to transport to Germany already is being distributed to French needy.

ACCUSED OF TREASON

Paris, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—The French Air Ministry announced last night the arrest of six prominent aviation industrialists on charges of treason and dealing with the enemy.

The Air Ministry listed them as Andre Lemercier, parachute manufacturer; Marius Bernard, engine manufacturer; Charles Legal, engine parts manufacturing director, and three of the latter's assistant, Rene Deleval, Roger Douessin and a man named Helfer. The last five were connected with the great Voisin factories.

COLOGNE BOMBED DESPITE WEATHER

Ice-Laden Bombers Batter Reich—Little Aerial Opposition

LONDON, Oct. 18.—(AP) Ice-laden Allied heavy bombers flew through freezing clouds today and bombed Cologne, Bonn and Kassel in Germany, while fighters swarmed as far east as Kassel on strafing expeditions.

The Eighth Airforce sent 550 Fortresses and Liberators, and about 600 fighters on the mission. About half the bombers hit Cologne for the fourth time in five days, while the remainder cascaded destruction on Kassel, 100 miles east of the Rhine. Both cities contain industrial targets of great importance, including tank and truck factories.

Besides acting as escorts, fighters shot up trains and air fields in the Kassel, Brunswick and Hannover areas.

Bonn, 20 miles below Cologne, was hit by a force of R.A.F. Lancasters. The city, famed as a university center, also is an important railway hub on the west bank of the Rhine, and presently believed full of German troops. It also may contain headquarters staffs, since it lies on a railway linking Duren and Euskirchen, and on a main line running north and south just behind the front. A large Bonn factory makes aircraft alloys.

Although the R.A.F. encountered heavy clouds en route, the bombers found visibility good over the target, and crews reported thick smoke billowing in the wake of the bombs.

Other R.A.F. Lancasters attacked the Walcheren island dikes in Holland, while divebombers slashed at communications targets in the Siegfried line. One R.A.F. bomber and one fighter were missing.

Neither British nor American formations met enemy fighters, but ground batteries sent up moderate barrages over all targets. Mustangs patrolling the Danish coast destroyed six enemy planes.

Another Robot Raid

Meanwhile, the east coast of England shook from spectacular explosions during the night as anti-aircraft gunners raked the path of incoming robot bombs and blew up a number of them in flight.

It was the seventh consecutive night that southern England and the London area had come under attack by the robots. The Air Ministry announced casualties and damage had been caused by bombs which escaped the ack-ack barriers and the alert Mosquito patrol.

U. S. Planes Again Batter Cologne

London, Oct. 18 (AP)—The United States Eighth Air Force today hurled its might against Cologne for the fourth time in five days.

The latest blow in the aerial drive to knock out the battered Ruhr city before the army's next ground thrust lacked the weight of the previous three.

Kassell Attacked

Half of a total force of fewer than 600 Flying Fortresses veered off and attacked Kassel, more than 100 miles east of Cologne. Industrial plants and freight yards were targets in both places.

A fleet of 450 Mustangs and Thunderbolts escorted the bombers, which attacked after the Reich had its second raid-free night in a month.

103,842 BRITONS IN CASUALTY LIST

London, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—Deputy Prime Minister Clement Attlee disclosed in the House of Commons today that British imperial forces, including those of the dominions and other overseas personnel, had suffered 103,842 casualties from the opening of the western Europe campaign to the end of August. Of this total, he said, 20,795 were killed, 63,193 were wounded, and 19,854 were taken prisoner or listed missing.

Major Allen said that the total included all Royal Air Force casualties from April 1, while the remained dated from D day—June 6. Prime Minister Churchill recently told the House of Commons that American losses since D day in Europe were about 145,000.

British Tank Officer Is Court-Martialed

London, Oct. 18 (AP)—The War Office disclosed today that Capt. William Douglashome, 32, of the Royal Armored Corps, had been court-martialed in Belgium for refusing to obey a lawful command. The court's findings will be announced later.

Son of the Earl of Home, he was educated at Eton and Oxford.

NAVY IN EUROPE MAY NOT FIGHT JAPS

London, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—Capt. Tully Shelley, acting chief of staff to Admiral Harold Stark, commander in chief of the United States naval forces in Europe, said in an address today that the war in the Pacific had progressed so rapidly that the United States Navy no longer could count on use in those waters of personnel who might be released from the European waters.

Tokyo Reports Death Of 3 More Admirals

London, Oct. 18 (AP)—Berlin broadcast a Tokyo dispatch today reporting the deaths of three vice-admirals of the Japanese fleet.

It listed them as Vice-Admirals Miura, "who died of an illness at the front," and Murata and Mitsunobe, "who died in battle."

British Children To Get Yule Sweets

London, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—Britain's children will receive a special Christmas ration of half a pound of sweets apiece, Food Minister John J. Llewellin said today.

Beveridge Elected to Parliament

LONDON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Sir William Beveridge, author of a "cradle-to-grave" social security plan, was elected to Parliament today. He defeated W. D. Clark, Independent, 8,792 votes to 1,269, in a by-election caused by the death of Capt. G. C. Grey, Liberal Member for Berwick-on-Tweed.

British Students Keep Joad Silent

London, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—Prof. C. E. M. Joad, who in 1933 spoke for the Oxford Union's "will not to fight for king and country" resolution, was prevented from addressing the Cambridge University Society for International Affairs last night. Undergraduates set off tear gas bombs, smoke bombs and thunder flashes made in the chemistry laboratory.

British 8th Army 2 Miles Of Cesena

Rome, Oct. 18 (AP)—The British Eighth Army's drive from the southeast corner of the Po river valley placed vanguards within two miles of the important road junction town of Cesena from both the east and south today.

Capture of Cesena would put the Eighth Army units in position both to continue their drive northwestward along the ancient Via Aemilia toward Forli, 11 miles distant, and due north along another first-class road toward Ravenna, 19 miles away.

A furious battle still raged south of Bologna, the main German supply and communication base in northern Italy, with reinforced German units holding the Fifth Army's American spearhead to a virtual standstill nine miles south of the city.

The Allied communique said the Americans had moved forward slightly and had captured Monte Belmonte on the Bologna front.

Although hampered by bad weather, the Mediterranean Allied air force gave strong support to ground forces especially in the Adriatic sector, the communique said.

Yanks Smash Mile Nearer Bologna

Rome, Oct. 18 (AP) — American troops, driving toward the ancient Italian city of Bologna, have advanced nearly a mile north of captured Livergnano on Highway 65, Allied headquarters announced today.

In the Adriatic sector Eighth Army troops, continuing their advance into the Po Valley, took over a few more yards of the Rimini-Bologna highway and closed in on Cesena from the east and south.

Move Onto Hills

While British and Indian troops on the right moved into a few more hills and consolidated their positions in the face of counterattacks, the Americans captured the hill towns of Trepo and Santa Anna and with effective air support fought their way toward Mount Belmonte where a stiff fight is in progress. This peak dominates much of the country on the right of Highway 65.

With the Germans contesting every curve in Highway 65 American troops drove on but they still were approximately nine miles from Bologna's outskirts at the closest point.

Italian Admiral And Senator Seized

Rome, Oct. 18 (AP)—Giulio Ingianni, former director general of the Italian merchant marine, was arrested today on a charge of plotting to prevent Italian shipping in Spanish ports from falling into the hands of Marshal Pietro Badoglio and the Allies after the September, 1943, armistice.

The Government also announced that a case was being prepared against Gen. Fernando Soleti, who is under house arrest charged with aiding the Germans in the release of Premier Mussolini from Gran Sasso on September 12, 1943, and disclosed the arrest of Senator Maurizio Maraviglia, member of the Fascist Grand Council, who is charged with striving to maintain the Fascist regime.

Squadron Mourns Death Of Mickey The Mouse

A United States Bomber Base in Italy, Oct. 18 (AP)—Behind the equipment house on this base there is a mound of earth with a headstone inscribed with the single word "Mickey."

The fellows here are feeling pretty bad these days. They thought a lot of Mickey and when he was "killed in action" either from the altitude or the cold thousands of feet above Vienna, they brought him back and buried him on the base.

The flyer who feels worst about Mickey is Sergt. Adolf Marcus, Jamaica, N. Y., the nose gunner. It was out of Adolf's electrically heated flying suit that Mickey popped to his death.

Mickey, you see, was a mouse and the squadron's mascot.

BRITISH LAND ON SCARPANTO

Dodecanese Island Occupied In Name Of United Nations

Rome, Oct. 18 (AP)—British warships have seized Scarpanto Island, midway between Rhodes and Crete, in the name of the United Nations with landing forces meeting no enemy opposition, the Allied command announced today.

The communique said "Scarpanto, like other islands in the Dodecanese, is ex-enemy territory."

The wording of the communique appeared intended to make clear to the Italians, who had occupied Scarpanto and most of the Dodecanese nearly 25 years ago, and to the Greeks who already are pressing demands for those islands, that the United Nations as a whole intend to take over administration of the islands until final peace settlement.

Size Of Garrison Not Given

The communique said the Greek poulation of some 8,000 persons already had contained the German occupation garrison on Scarpanto before the British destroyers Terpischore and Cleveland arrived before dawn yesterday. Nothing was said of the size of the garrison.

The Greek Government recently expressed confidence that its claims to the Dodecanese Islands would not be seriously opposed by either Turkey or Italy after the war. Some Rome newspapers, however, intimated that the Italians had not given up all hopes of retaining some influence in the eastern Mediterranean.

More British Troops Land

The liberation of Greece continued evenly. Additional British parachute troops were landed without opposition. Allied warplanes hammered German targets both in northern Greece and along the escape routes through Yugoslavia.

Mustangs strafed enemy columns along Greek roads, knocking out vehicles and inflicting casualties. Beaufighters hit a Dornier transport over the Gulf of Salonika.

Enemy transport and communications in Yugoslavia were hit heavily and RAF night bombers last night hammered the Vinkovci rail yards, 90 miles west of Belgrade, causing violent explosions and fires.

Piraeus Harbor Damaged

An official announcement said German demolitions had caused severe damage to harbor installations at Piraeus, port of Athens, but that most utilities at the port were functioning.

Meanwhile Allied military leaders arranged to send food, medicine and clothing to the hungry and shivering Greeks who are living in economic chaos.

Brig. Gen. Percy L. Sadler, deputy commander of the Allied Military Liaison, which will bring the first relief to Greece, was in Athens making preliminary arrangements for distribution of badly needed supplies.

Clothes Most Pressing Need

The chaotic condition of the Greek economy threatens to delay distribution of the supplies, Maj. Gen. I. T. Hughes, British commander of the AML, said, but Swiss and Swedish relief commissions already in the country under the International Red Cross would continue their work until the AML can take over.

Warm clothing was found to be the most pressing need.

Vast quantities of medical supplies and hospital equipment as well as food, seeds and fishing tackle are piled up in Egypt awaiting eventual distribution to the Greeks.

British Capture

The Isle Of Scarpanto

Rome, Oct. 18 (AP)—Two British destroyers landed forces which took over the island of Scarpanto at dawn yesterday after the Greek population on the island had "contained" the enemy garrison there, Allied headquarters announced today.

Located in the Dodecanese group, the mountainous island of Scarpanto is between Crete and Rhodes. The island is 30 miles long and has an extreme width of eight miles. Approximately 8,000 persons live there.

Enthusiastic Welcome

The British destroyers Terpsichore and Cleveland were involved in the operation, carried out without opposition. The landing parties were given an enthusiastic welcome, a communique said.

It was announced officially that German demolitions on the Greek mainland caused severe damage to the harbor instalaltions at Piraeus, the port of Athens, but most of the utilities at the port are functioning.

More Allied parachute troops have been dropped in the Athens area, the communique said, but there was nothing to indicate that any enemy opposition was met.

"Ex-Enemy Territory"

The Allied command said Scarpanto was seized "in the name of the United Nations" and that the landing was not opposed. A naval communique said Scarpanto, like other islands in the Dodecanese, is ex-enemy territory.

The wording appeared intended to make clear to the Italians, who occupied Scarpanto and most of the Dodecanese nearly a quarter century ago, and to the Greeks, who already are demanding the strategic islands, that the United Nations as a whole intend to take over and administer the group until final peace settlement.

The Dodecanese lie between Greece and Turkey and guard the approaches to the Dardanelles and Black Sea.

Statement In Commons

(Richard Law, Minister of State, told the British House of Commons today that the post-war status of the Dodecanese could not be decided now, but that meanwhile there was no question of maintaining or reimposing Italian rule.)

Members of the Greek Government expressed confidence that their claims to the Dodecanese islands would not be opposed seriously by either Italy or Turkey after the war. Some newspapers in Rome intimated, however, that the Italians retained hope of holding some influence in the eastern Mediterranean waters.

Freed Athens Celebrates, Nation Ravaged by Nazis

ATHENS, Oct. 18 (AP) The Greek government headed by Premier George Papandreou returned to newly liberated Athens today amid the tumultuous cheering of citizens who had suffered grievously during the years of Axis occupation.

The Premier arrived aboard the flagship Averoff, was met by members of his cabinet at the quayside and driven through the streets packed with masses of wildly excited Greeks.

Since the liberation of the city last Sunday a committee of three headed by Philip Manouilidis had governed the country pending the arrival of the premier.

Manouilidis, in reviewing hardships suffered by the Greeks during Axis occupation, said more than 500,000 Greeks were slain or died of privation.

In Thrace, he related at a press conference, 45,000 were slaughtered by the Bulgarians and more than 100,000 persons living in Thrace fled into Greece itself.

40,000 Hostages Slain

Manouilidis said the Germans and Italians shot a total of 40,000 hostages, and he estimated 8,000 Greeks were killed in guerrilla warfare, while 450,000 died of privation during the occupation, mainly in the winter of 1941.

To this account of what the war cost Greece must be added 11,000 who died on the Albanian front before the conquest of Greece and 60,000 wounded, Manouilidis said. Crippling blows were struck agriculture with the requisitioning of livestock and the burning of forests.

The committee has ordered all citizens of Greece to surrender any arms and weapons they may have, with the exception of members of organized guerrillas bands actively engaged in fighting the retreating Germans.

Manouilidis, who lived in Athens throughout the occupation, talked freely through an interpreter. He said that one of the major problems the Pandandreu government would face on its return would be inflation, which is reaching new peaks. The committee chairman said he believed it would be possible to establish a new currency based on the existing gold reserve.

The chairman, who himself is a refugee from Bulgarian-occupied Thrace, said there would be many demands made against the enemy by the Greek people. He said one would be recovery of territories seized by the enemy and another readjustment of frontiers.

The population of Athens, swelled from its normal 393,000 to nearly 2,000,000 by refugees seeking safety, continued to celebrate the arrival of the British although the city rocked with continued explosions from the nearby port of Piraeus as demolition bombs left by the Nazis exploded. Damage to the port was estimated at $100,000,000. Athens itself largely escaped injury.

Churchbells continued to ring and singing and shouting civilians paraded up and down the streets enjoying their first tastes of freedom after more than three years of Nazi domination.

British troops patrolled the streets keeping in check members of rival Greek political and military factions who had clashed when the Germans first withdrew from the city.

Two more ministers arrived with British contingents, Minister of National Economy Tsirimokos and Press Minister Kartalis.

Allied Flags In City

Athens was free when the British arrived Friday and decked in Greek, American and British flags.

Workers at the power station which supplies Athens and its port fought a pitched battle with German saboteurs and won, so the two largest cities of Greece have electricity. Transport workers managed to hide a number of busses before the Germans wrecked the depot. The Athens water supply was saved because the Nazis did not blow up the Marathon Dam, although 76 tons of dynamite were reported laid in the reservoir.

Before retreating northward, General Felmi declared Athens an open city "unless our enemies fail to treat it as such." The Germans, however, wrecked the telephone system.

Population Growth

The population of Athens grew from 393 to nearly 2,000,000 during the occupation because the city was considered the safest from bombing. Money became so worthless that the Greek puppet government finally did not bother to put serial numbers on notes, the smallest of which usually was for 2,000,000,000 drachma. Prices accordingly rocketed to fantastic heights. A pound of tomatoes, for instance, cost 7,000,000 drachmas even before the inflation reached its height.

The food problem is most acute, with fresh vegetables, meat, fish and milk scarce.

There is no streetcar or bus transportation. Fuel is unobtainable. Gas and electricity are short. Radio stations and cables were blown up, cutting Athens' communications with the outside world.

Ex-Premiers Arrested

Two former premiers, Gen. George Tsolakoglou and Jean Rallis, and several of their cabinet members, are under arrest by order of Papandreou on a charge of aiding the Germans. The Mayor of Athens has been deposed.

Lieut. Col. George Jellicoe, 26, son of the famous British Admiral of first World War fame, was one of the first high ranking Allied officers to reach Athens. He reached the capital by truck Friday night after directing operations which freed the Peloponnesus. The first British troops were mostly Commandos and airborne soldiers and they entered the city along with the Greek "death battalion."

Athens Disorderly, But Undamaged

By Stephen Barber

Athens, Oct. 17 (Delayed)—Athens rocked violently to German demolitions in the near-by port of Piraeus which caused damage estimated at $100,000,000 as the Nazis fled north, but this ancient Greek capital largely escaped injury because of countersabotage by Patriots.

Hilarious celebrations are still in progress after three and a half years of subservience, semi-starvation and disease under the German occupation.

But already civil friction is feared unless the exiled government of Premier George Papandreou assumes authority quickly.

Billions of Drachmas Go Fast in a Day in Athens

WASHINGTON Oct. 18 (AP)—Newbold Noyes Jr., war correspondent of The Evening Star, submitted to its business office today the following expense account, covering his first twenty-four hours in Athens, which is plagued by currency inflation:

Shoe shine, 75,000,000,000 drachmas.

One martini cocktail, 40,000,000,000 drachmas.

Dinner, 210,000,000,000 drachmas.

Hotel room for night, 420,000,000,000 drachmas.

Breakfast, 35,000,000,000 drachmas.

One cigarette (local), 400,000,000 drachmas.

One satchel to carry around reasonable supply of drachma of drachma notes, 300,000,000,000 drachmas.

The corespondent appended a footnote explaining he was making his account brief as it was costing The Star 3,500,000,000 drachmas per word "unless exchange rate has changed for the worse since I checked it ten minutes ago, which is highly probable.

The drachma was quoted at approximately 8 United States cents shortly before the European war started in 1939. Its value now is an infinitesimal fraction of a cent.

Japs Are Shelled Near Buthedaung

Southeast Asia Headquarters, Ceylon, Oct. 18 (AP)—Japanese positions near Buthedaung on the Arakan front in southwestern Burma were shelled heavily for the second straight day yesterday, Allied headquarters announced today.

The communique from Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters said a large ammunition dump was one of the enemy targets hit.

In the Chin Hills sector fighter-bombers also made concentrated attacks in support of the Allied drive on Tiddim, strategic Japanese base in northwest Burma.

Leaflets Urge Surrender

At the same time Allied headquarters revealed that intensive psychological warfare was being waged against the Japanese in the Burma theater.

The Indian field broadcasting unit headquarters said, has distributed some 6,000,000 leaflets, fired from mortars, calling on the Japanese to surrender. The same outfit has employed loudspeakers.

30.24— 19663

In addition, two newspapers—Battle Newspaper and Spirit of the Air—have been dropped to Japanese troops and civilians in Burma.

Allies Again Shell Japs At Buthedaung

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 18 (AP)—Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters announced today that Allied artillery had shelled Japanese positions near Buthedaung on the Arakan front in Burma for the second consecutive day.

An ammunition dump was among targets hit, a communique said. Despite bad weather, aircraft of the Eastern Air Command successfully attacked enemy concentrations in the same region.

Fighter bombers also made concentrated attacks in support of ground forces fighting on the approaches to Tiddim, the announcement said.

JAPS IN CHINA GAIN 6 MILES

Thrust Near Hingan Aimed At Outflanking Kweilin

Chungking, Oct. 18 (AP)—A six-mile Japanese advance through Chinese positions north of Kweilin, strategic Kwangsi province city, was announced tonight by the Chinese high command.

A communique said the enemy, temporarily blocked in bitter fighting during the last 12 days had succeeded in driving to a point 18 miles west of Hingan. The Japanese attack was mounted during the night of October 16 by a large force.

Seek To Outflank City

The enemy aim is to outflank Kweilin, which lies 25 miles south of Hingan.

On the West river front far south of Kweilin, the high command said, Japanese forces which attacked Chinese positions several miles west of Pingnam were thrown back yesterday. Fighting was reported continuing northwest of the town, which is 80 miles southeast of Liuchow, grand objective of the enemy's westward push into Kwangsi from Canton.

Eight Ships Sunk At Hongkong

It was disclosed that United States 14th Air Force planes which attacked Japanese shipping at Hongkong Monday had struck a heavier blow than was first announced. Eight Japanese ships totaling more than 40,000 tons were sunk, seven ships with more than 23,000 tons displacement were damaged and five more probably were damaged, a communique from Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters said.

JAPS TRY FLANKING MOVE AT KWEILIN

Chungking, Oct. 18 (A.P.)—Jap forces attempting a wide outflanking movement north of Kweilin have driven westward six miles to a point eighteen miles west of the Hunan-Kwangsi railway town of Hingan, the Chinese High Command announced tonight.

The Chinese had reported the enemy held for the past twelve days twelve miles west of Hingan and twenty-five miles north of Kweilin, Kwangsi Province defense center which, Chinese spokesmen have said, will become China's Stalingrad.

At the same time Japs on the West River front far south of Kweilin attacked Chinese positions about twelve miles west of Pingnam. This attack was thrown back, the Chinese said. Fallen Pingnam lies about eighty miles southeast of Liuchow, important rail and highway town, which is some ninety-five miles southwest of Kweilin.

Eight Jap Ships Sunk In Attack At Hongkong

Chungking, Oct. 18 (AP)—United States 14th Air Force planes which attacked Japanese shipping at Hongkong Monday in conjunction with Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's task force operations off Formosa, struck a heavier blow than was first announced, it was disclosed today.

Eight Japanese ships totaling more than 40,000 tons were sunk; seven ships, totaling more than 23,000 tons were damaged, and five more probably were damaged, a communique from Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters said.

Ceram And Boeroe Bombed

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Thursday, Oct. 19 (AP)—One hundred and fifty Allied planes smashed installations, shipping and airdromes on Ceram and Boeroe islands, flank bases to the approaches to the Philippines, headquarters announced today.

This raid Monday was the second 150-plane assault in recent days on these bases. A total of 90 tons of bombs was unloaded in the Monday assault.

Strike At Small Shipping

Heavy bombers cratered airfields at Namlea and at Ambon, Amboina Island, while medium bombers and fighter-bombers smashed small shipping nearby and swept the coastlines of Ceram and Amboina Monday.

Fighter planes paid widespread attention to shipping. Lightnings damaged and sank small shipping along the coasts of Halmahera Island.

They also proceeded as far northward as Cagayan harbor, Mindanao, for the second consecutive day and set fire to two freighters.

Australian Warhawks swept Manokwari harbor in Dutch New Guinea, hitting supply dumps and installations Tuesday.

Night air patrols again started large fires at Balikpapan, the important and heavily blasted Borneo oil center. In Darvel Bay, to the north, a 1,000-ton freighter was left burning and another was forced aground.

In the Halmahera strike, a 1,000-ton freighter was destroyed in Laoe Bay by fighter-bombers.

Two small freighters, a coastal vessel and numerous barges were among the shipping destroyed in the Ceram-Boeroe attack. These island neighbors are less than 200 miles south of Halmahera.

EXILE SAYS REBELS GAIN IN HONDURAS

San Jose, Costa Rica, Oct. 18 (A. P.)—Former President Vincente Mejia Colindres of Honduras, now in exile here, asserted today that a revolutionary movement in Honduras was meeting with success.

He declared that reliable information available to him indicate that armed forces opposing Gen. Tiburcio Carias Andino, long-time president of the country, had thrust into Honduras from neighboring El Salvador and that "operations were developing satisfactorily."

The former president denied an official announcement Sunday from Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital, that the revolutionaries had been repulsed in an attack on the city of San Marcos. On the contrary, the rebels were said to be in possession of the town. The Tegucigalpa announcement Sunday said the Honduran air force chased the attackers back into the mountains.

JAP RULES CURB MAIL TO CAPTIVES

San Francisco, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—A broadcast from the Japanese-controlled Hongkong radio last night disclosed that rigid rules are restricting the flow of mail to and from American and other Allied prisoners in Hongkong.

The rules are:

1. Letters may be sent or received only through the Jap or International Red Cross.

2. Letters must be in English or Japanese and not to exceed fifty words each.

3. Only one letter may be written every two months and it must be on special stationery to be provided by the Japanese Red Cross.

The broadcast was beamed to Chungking but was recorded by the FCC.

1,110 JAP SHIPS HIT BY YANKS

Forrestal Counts Those Sunk Or Damaged In 4½ Months

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—The American navy has blasted 1,110 Japanese ships and destroyed 3,080 enemy planes in the last four and a half months, "crowding the Jap back into his own corner," Secretary Forrestal reported today.

At a news conference he said guns and planes of the Third and Fifth fleets which are roaming almost at will through seas near the Japanese homeland have sunk 356 enemy ships and probably sunk or damaged 549 others.

Subs Add 205 To Total

He also issued a communique reporting destruction of 32 more ships by American submarines. This new bag by the submarines brings to 205 the number of enemy craft they have sunk during the four and one half months covered in Forrestal's figures for the surface fleets.

"For many months," the Navy Secretary said, "Japanese naval strength has been at bay and eventually it must stand and fight."

The destruction inflicted since June on Japanese naval and merchant fleets, Forrestal continued, is "extremely limiting" enemy sea movements.

He added, however, that as the enemy is pushed closer to the Japanese homeland, supply lines will shorten and counteract, to some extent, the shipping losses.

1,827 Planes Caught In Air

In the aerial campaign, destruction of 3,080 planes, including 1,827 in the air and 1,253 on the ground, represents more than two months' estimated maximum production by Japanese plane plants.

"More important," Forrestal said, "is the loss of pilots who cannot easily be replaced."

Discussing the shipping damage, the Navy Secretary said that the fleets of Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., and Admiral Raymond A. Spruance had destroyed or damaged "numerous" small vessels used by the Japanese in interisland and coastal movement of men and supplies. These small vessels are in addition to the 356 ships sunk and 549 damaged.

Overall sinkings by submarines including the latest bag of 32 ships now total 956 ships of all types sunk, probably sunk or damaged. Of that number 804 definitely have been sent to the bottom.

The latest bag includes three destroyers and three escort vessels. Others were a mine layer and a naval auxiliary, seven transport vessels, a tanker and 16 cargo ships.

China Kayo Seen

Jap Strategy

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—Japan's counterstrategy to the American drive toward Asia appears to military and naval authorities here as an intensive effort to knock China out of the war.

That is the significance attached to the enemy's current land campaign in Kwangsi province. Its intermediate purpose may be to isolate China from outside supplies with the ultimate objective of forcing her to stop fighting.

The idea that Japan is countering a naval campaign with a land offensive serves to emphasize what naval authorities here regard as the most striking aspect of the war against Japan. That is, that it is nearing the time when American forces will have to engage the Japanese army proper.

Real Land Operations

Both the Philippines and Formosa are land masses of a size not heretofore encountered, except in New Guinea. This means that the Japanese will be able to defend those places with quantities of manpower.

In consequence the Allied campaigns from now on are being calculated to employ maximum land forces and are regarded to a considerable extent as land operations rather than as amphibious invasions.

Thus the navy's job in any attack on the Philippines would be to launch and support the invasion, but the actual conquest of the islands will be up to land forces of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Bulk Believed In China

In these circumstances the elusive Japanese fleet becomes not so important as the sizable and well-equipped Japanese armies.

The bulk of these armies are believed to be in China and Manchuria. Many divisions have been held throughout the war on the frontier of Russia's maritime provinces. But what has engaged them most has been the stout-hearted but poorly supplied troops of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

These troops and their Allied American air forces are dependent on a thin lifeline of air-borne supplies from India. Some reports from China reflect apprehension lest the present Japanese offensive be directed eventually toward the capture of strategic way stations on this lifeline.

May Force Chinese Back

But even if the Japanese should not actually halt the trickle of supplies they could serve their strategy by broadening the coastal areas they hold to such a depth that when the American forces are finally ready to strike from advanced island bases into China they will be forced to do so without the aid of Chinese armies.

This would vastly complicate the Allied task and, doubtless, delay its accomplishment beyond the time which has been hoped for, the hope being based on the belief that Chinese armies would be able to fight toward the coast from the interior at the same time that American invasion troops strike from the sea.

U. S. To Have 10 Air Delegates

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—The United States will be represented at the International Civil Aviation Conference in Chicago November 1 by a ten-member delegation which will include Mayor F. H. La Guardia, of New York, and Nancy Harkness Love, of Boston, noted woman flyer, the American Aviation Daily, an industry newsletter, reported today.

The Daily listed six probable appointees, who it said would be announced by the White House when the delegation is completed.

Berle In Group

They are:

Adolf A. Berle, Jr., Assistant Secretary of State; Chairman L. Welch Pogue, of the Civil Aeronautics Board; Edward P. Warner, vice-chairman of the CAB; W. A. M. Burden, Assistant Secretary of Commerce; Mayor La Guardia and Mrs. Love, chief of women pilots in the ferrying division of the Army Air Transport Command since 1942.

In addition, the Daily said, the President will name a Democrat and a Republican each from the House and the Senate.

Advisors Included

Several of the outstanding figures in military and civilian aviation were reported to have been named as advisors to the United States representatives. These are listed as:

Robert A. Lovett, Assistant Secretary of War for Air; Artemus L. Gates, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air; Ralph S. Damon, vice-president and general manager of American Airlines, the largest domestic air carrier; John C.

Cooper, vice-president of Pan American Airways, world's largest international operator; Carleton Putnam, president of Chicago and Southern Airlines, and Frank F. Russell, manager of the National Aircraft War Production Council.

Fear For Refugees In Hungary Expressed

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—About 200,000 refugees in Hungary, nearly all Jews, may not live through the next few weeks, John W. Pehle, executive secretary of the War Refugee Board, said today.

The present confused military and political situation in Hungary where Germans have taken over the government, endangers the lives of these refugees—about a fourth of those originally in the country, he said.

Pehle expressed apprehension that the Germans may continue in Hungary the extermination tactics against Jews and non-cooperative minorities that they practiced in Russia and Poland.

Archbishop Reports To FDR on War Tour

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18—(AP) Archbishop Spellman of New York, Catholic chaplain bishop of the armed forces, discussed with President Roosevelt today his recent 19,000 mile tour of the fighting fronts in Europe. Archbishop Spellman was the President's luncheon guest at the White House.

Pearl Harbor Inquiry Report Ready Soon

Washington, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—A report from the Naval Board of Inquiry studying responsibility for the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor is expected "in the near future," Secretary of the Navy Forrestal said today. He told a news conference that the report will be submitted to him and he will "determine what further action is indicated."

Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel and Major-Gen. Walter C. Short, Navy and Army commanders at the time of the attack, are under charges of dereliction of duty.

Foreign Policy Talks To Be Weighed By Ball

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—Senator Ball (R., Minn.) plans to listen to major foreign policy addresses of Thomas E. Dewey and President Roosevelt and then announce which Presidential candidate he will support.

'Ball, an ardent advocate of international cooperation, said a few weeks ago that he could not at that time campaign for Dewey, because Dewey's declarations on foreign policy had not satisfied him.

Dewey will address the New York Herald Tribune Forum tonight, on the subject "This Must be the Last War," and President Roosevelt will speak to the Foreign Policy Association in New York on Saturday evening.

Ickes Denies Project Is for Jap-Americans

Washington, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes today described as pure bunkum reports which he said come to his attention that the department may attempt the formation of a large colony of former West Coast Japanese-Americans in the Central Valley project of California.

"The fact is," Mr. Ickes said in a statement, "that all of the lands in the Central Valley project are privately owned."

ARMY CASUALTIES

Washington, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—The War Department announced today the names of 2,113 casualties in the European area. Among those in the list are the following with their next of kin:

2 Brothers in Casualty List

Sons of Major Gen. H. McC. Snyder Reported, 1 Wounded, 1 Missing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP).—Both sons of Major General Howard McC. Snyder, assistant to the Army Inspector General, have been reported as casualties in the European area within an eight-day period, the War Department announced today.

Lieutenant Colonel Howard McC. Snyder jr., graduate of West Point in 1936, was wounded in action on Sept. 10 while serving as operations officer on the staff of the 20th Army Corps.

Reported missing on Sept. 18 was First Lieutenant Richard C. Snyder, who was graduated from West Point last year and who was attached to an Air Force Thunderbolt fighter group. The Snyder family lives here.

Chaplains Will Visit Dead Airmen's Families

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—Families of American airmen killed in line of duty henceforth will be visited by chaplains from Army Air Force stations in the United States.

Col. Charles I. Carpenter, air chaplain, said the new program was designed "to soften the blow and alleviate distress" at a period when casualties are approaching a peak.

Draft Revised To Put Crews On Cargo Ships

W. S. A. Is Now Permitted to Recruit Men 18 to 26 and to Keep Youths It Has

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP).—The War Shipping Administration, faced with an acute shortage of sea-going personnel, has induced Selective Service to let it resume recruiting men between the ages of eighteen and twenty-six.

Under a Selective Service order, W. S. A. stopped recruiting such men last April, except for those classified 4-F in the draft.

The effect of the new ruling will be twofold: not only will W. S. A. be able to resume recruitment in the eighteen-to-twenty-six group but thousands of youngsters already enlisted in the maritime service will not be subject to the draft when they turn eighteen.

In an effort to meet its sea-going man-power needs, W. S. A. has been enlisting youths as young as sixteen and a half, and had been fearful they would be drafted upon reaching eighteen.

Despite personnel shortages, W. S. A. officials said they had been "pretty lucky" in avoiding delays in sailings. In many cases, however, delays have been avoided only by quick shifts of personnel from one coast to another, in some cases by airplane.

W. S. A. estimated its sea-going personnel, which now totals approximately 170,000, must be increased 5,000 monthly to man new ships alone, with additional requirements to meet attrition. Attrition includes, in addition to casualties, those who leave the service of their own volition and those who must be replaced because of convoy fatigue.

To fill these needs W. S. A. plans to intensify its campaign to induce men with Maritime, Navy or Coast Guard experience, regardless of age, to return to the sea.

Also on the list of critical ratings are men with steam or Diesel expierence, and radio operators.

When the Great Lakes navigation closes, W. S. A. hopes to sign up many inland sailors for offshort duty, with a promise to return them in time for the opening of the 1945 navigation season.

CLARIFIES LAW FOR VETERANS

Hines Explains Home-Loan Provision Of GI Bill

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—Veterans of the present war will be able to obtain Veterans Administration-guaranteed loans for the purchase of homes only after an appraisal of the property to determine its "reasonably normal value."

In announcing regulations today for home-purchase loans, under the GI Bill of Rights, Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Veterans' Administrator, commented:

"It is obvious that various market prices in many sections today do not qualify under the formula of 'reasonable normal value' required by the law."

Provision Of GI Bill

If, however, a guarantee is disapproved by the Veterans Administration, the lender may still make the loan without guarantee if he so chooses.

The home-purchasing regulations are the first to be issued under the loan-guarantee provisions of the GI bill. Here is what the regulations provide:

A veteran who desires to buy or build a home, or to improve an existing dwelling, will proceed in the usual manner by going to his bank or other lending agency.

If the potential lender considers that the property is suitable for the purpose, of a reasonable value, and that the veteran can repay the loan out of his income, the lender will communicate with the nearest Veterans Administration office regarding the eligibility of the veteran. The Veterans Administration will designate the appraiser and the agency to process the loan.

Assuming the appraisal is satisfactory, the lender will forward the necessary papers, and the administration will approve or disapprove the application.

149-PASSENGER PLANE DRAFTED

Pan American Bares Details Of Proposed Airliner

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—Details of a new mammoth transport plane, weighing 92 tons and capable of carrying 149 passengers, were disclosed today by Pan American Airways in exhibit data prepared for the Civil Aeronautics Board's joint hearing on North Atlantic route applications.

Known as PAA Type 10, the aircraft is designed for a range of 3,500 miles and a cruising speed of 288 miles an hour using only 64.3 per cent. of normal power at 25,000 feet altitude. Its four engines would be rated at 3,500 horsepower each for takeoff and 2,800 normal.

30 Berths And 89 Seats

In transatlantic operations, Pan American proposes to carry 128 passengers by day and 119 at night, the latter arrangement including berths for 30 persons and 89 seats. The crew of 11 will include four pilots, three stewards, two radiomen, a navigator and a flight engineer.

The empty weight is listed at 118,794 pounds, giving a useful load of 65,206 pounds. The cargo capacity is 2,082 cubic feet.

Cost of the plane has been estimated at $2,029,488, compared to $1,412,488 for the Douglas DC-7, which PAA refers to as Type 9. The DC-7 is listed at 162,000 pounds, a maximum of 108 passengers, with an operational capacity of 95 by day and 79 by night for transocean flights. Neither of these planes has been flown yet, but considerable progress has been reported and will be accelerated as war production demands ease.

Constellation As Type 8

Pan American refers to the Lockheed Constellation, which is in production as the army's C-69, as Type 8 and lists its weight as 96,100 pounds passenger capacity at a maximum of 56 with 40 by day and 30 by night over the ocean. The estimated cruising speed is 322 miles an hour and the cost is placed at $727,288. The Constellation has an unofficial speed record of 6 hours 58 minutes from Los Angeles to Washington.

Discussion of forthcoming transport planes has played an important role in the Atlantic hearings thus far, since operating costs and prospective traffic will get prime consideration by the CAB when it determines how many lines should operate over the Atlantic and who is best qualified for the job.

Proposals Challenged

Pan American has projected timetables and fares based on the larger equipment, with costs as low as 4 cents a mile for passengers.

American Airlines witnesses have shown schedules with fares running about 7½ cents a mile for the immediate future, and have challenged Pan American's proposals with assertions that the equipment Pan American contemplates cannot be ready before 1948. Pan American has indicated that it expected its big transports to be ready in 1946.

Anti-Roosevelt Group Facing New Probe

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—The Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee set out today to learn what a House investigating group also has been trying to find out—the amount and sources of funds with which the American Democratic National Committee is carrying on a campaign of opposition to President Roosevelt's fourth-term bid.

While four financial officers of the anti-Roosevelt group were summoned for a public hearing today, Chairman Green (D., R. I.) said he also would ask the Senate committee to decide in an executive session what it is going to do, if anything, about the recent Statler Hotel battle between two navy officers and men they identified as AFL teamsters.

Treasurer Called

William Goodwin, of New York, treasurer of the American Democratic National Committee, headed the list of witnesses called. Green said his committee wants to learn whether the organization, which has headquarters in Chicago and claims branches in 36 States, is violating any of the statutes governing campaign fund collections and expenditures reports.

A separate hearing is scheduled before the committee tomorrow on the sources of revenue of the W. Lee O'Daniel News, an anti-Roosevelt political weekly which Senator O'Daniel has said was supported by over $100,000 of subscription sales.

In advance of today's meeting Senator Green refused to comment on reports that his committee has been given a fresh batch of affidavits throwing new light on the "Battle of the Statler" following President Roosevelt's opening campaign speech the night of September 23. The navy men have said political queries preceded fist-slinging.

ROOSEVELT PLANS TOUR ON SATURDAY IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—(AP) A daytime tour by President Roosevelt through four of New York city's five boroughs was in prospect today as a prelude to his address Saturday night before the Foreign Policy association here.

Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan told a press conference that the President would be in New York city throughout the day and would in all probability tour Brooklyn, Queens, the Bronx and Manhattan.

The President's projected trip brought from Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, his Republican opponent for the presidency, this comment:

"It is a good thing for the President to see the people even if only once in four years."

Hannegan said plans for the tour were not completed, but the schedule listed inspection tours of the Brooklyn Navy Yard and a Wave unit at Hunter college, and a rally at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, in behalf of Democratic U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner, who is seeking re-election.

A tour of Manhattan, the Bronx and Kings (Brooklyn) would take the President through the heart of Democratic strength in New York city. And an excursion into Queens would take him into a district which in recent years had gone Republican and where Republicans are known to be hoping for an increased majority to offset Democratic leads in the other three counties.

The President's chances of winning New York's 47 electoral votes rest largely on his polling in New York city, a majority larger than Dewey will get in Republican districts upstate.

The President carried New York city in 1940 by a majority of 718,000 votes—224,000 more than Wendell L. Willkie's upstate majority. Mr. Rooseevlt rolled up this New York city margin in Manhattan, the Bronx and Kings, having lost Queens by 35,000 votes.

Hannegan's announcement was another indication of a stepped-up tempo in the President's campaign in the few weeks before election day. It was announced in Washington yesterday that he would speak Oct. 27 in Philadelphia's Shibe park.

The President's movements on Saturday after he reaches New York will be publicly "on the record" for the first time outside Washington since the war started.

"There is no desire on the part of the President to use wartime censorship to conceal himself on an occasion of this kind," Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said in Washington.

The Foreign Policy speech will be broadcast over the NBC and Blue networks between 9:30 and 10 p. m. (EWT), but Early said the Foreign Policy association and the Democratic National committee would decide who would pay for the radio time. He said the White House would not attempt to classify the speech as political or non-political.

Says Italians Favor Roosevelt

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—Luigi Antonini, president of the Italian-American Labor Council, said at the White House today that if this year's Presidential election were left to the people of Italy, President Roosevelt would be "elected unanimously."

Antonini, accompanied by Attorney General Biddle, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and officials of the Italian American Labor Council, called on President Roosevelt to present formally the council's Four Freedoms Award which Mr. Roosevelt accepted in a radio address last Thursday.

Antonini said they did not discuss politics with Mr. Roosevelt, but added:

"We are going to do our best to see that he gets a majority of the Italian vote in this country. If the people of Italy were voting he would be elected unanimously."

Antonini said a recent tour of Italy convinced him that "the policies of President Roosevelt are the greatest hope for the Italian people and for their return to a place of honor in the family of nations."

Editors, Publishers Laud Donald Nelson

Washington, Oct. 18 (AP)—Leaders of the newspaper, magazine and book publishing industries tonight lauded the "ability, leadership and faithfulness" of Donald M. Nelson, resigned chairman of the War Production Board.

Signed by 55 editors and publishers, the tribute was prepared for presentation at a dinner given Nelson by more than 200 members of the top staff of WPB to "wish him godspeed and good luck as he undertakes the responsibilities of his new post."

Nelson is expected shortly to take a new assignment, described by President Roosevelt only as "a high post of major importance" in the field of international economic relations.

OCT 19 1944

Senate Committee to Drop Battle of Statler Inquiry

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 — (AP) The Senate Campaign Expenditures committee decided today that it was without authority to investigate the so-called "Battle of the Statler", involving fisticuffs between two naval officers and members of the A.F.L. teamsters union following a political argument.

The Senate group, headed by Chairman Green (D.-R. I.), announced it was dropping the subject as none of its business. It has been making a preliminary inquiry during the last two weeks and had obtained affidavits from those reported to have been involved.

The fight occurred shortly after President Roosevelt completed his opening campaign speech to a dinner given by the teamsters at the Statler hotel here.

"After full consideration," a statement issued today said, "the committee voted not to institute a formal investigation or to hold public hearings or to investigate the matter further."

Green said the vote was four to one. Senator Ferguson (R.-Mich.) said he cast the dissenting vote "as a firm believer in open hearings and this being a public matter."

Green stated the committee itself would not make public the affidavits obtained during the preliminary inquiry adding that the information in the affidavits was "conflicting".

"It depends on which side you take whether to believe there is a violation of any law," Green said.

DEWEY DENOUNCES SECRET DIPLOMACY UNDER ROOSEVELT

OCT 19 1944

Lack of Program for Conquered Germany Costing Lives, He Says.

CITES POLAND, FRANCE

Claims Administration Policies Causing Hunger, Chaos in Italy.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey declared tonight that Americans are "paying in blood" on the battlefields of Germany for what he described as the Roosevelt administration's failure to have ready an "intelligent program for dealing with invaded Germany."

The Republican presidential nominee, addressing a non-political but applauding gathering at the New York Herald Tribune's annual forum on current events also attributed to President Roosevelt's "personal secret diplomacy" chaos in France and hunger and degradation in Italy.

Text of Dewey's Address Will Be Found on Page 22

He declared:

1. That Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels has seized upon the absence of any official American plan for Germany to "terrify the Germans into fanatical resistance."

2. That President Roosevelt's refusal to recognize the French DeGaulle government "is contributing to the increasing chaos behind our lines at a critical period of the war."

3. That Mr. Roosevelt has failed to win Russian recognition of "those whom we consider to be the true government of Poland," despite his personal talks with Premier Stalin.

4. That a Soviet emissary signed last month's peace treaty with Romania in behalf of the United States, before the State department had a chance to study it.

Duke of Windsor Attends

Dewey spoke before a crowd that jammed the Waldorf - Astoria's plushy ballroom, which has a seating capacity of 1,800. Among those who came to hear him were the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

Declaring the German people have been told a program of destruction awaits them if they surrender, the New York Governor said:

"They are fighting with the frenzy of despair. We are paying in blood for our failure to have ready an intelligent program for dealing with invaded Germany."

The Republican presidential nominee said Mr. Roosevelt failed to obtain Russian recognition of the Polish government in exile although he "undertook to handle this matter personally and secretly with Mr. Stalin."

Citing also the cases of Italy, which he said is receiving an "improvised, inefficient administration by New Deal alphabetical agencies, France and Romania, the New York Governor said:

"If we are to be successful in our future labors to bring about lasting peace, they cannot be the property of one party or one man. Of that I am deeply convinced.

Hits "Secret Diplomacy"

"I am equally convinced that to the extent that we leave our international relations to the personal secret diplomacy of the President, our efforts to achieve a lasting peace will fail.

"In many directions today our foreign policy gives cause for deep anxiety."

Dewey, who came here from Albany for his second foreign affairs speech of the campaign, addressed the New York Herald Tribune's annual forum on current events. His speech was broadcast over the Blue Network.

President Roosevelt is due to address the Foreign Policy association here Saturday night in his first speech outside of Washington since he opened his campaign for a fourth term.

Dewey, emphasizing his stand that the building of an international peace organization should be a bi-partisan job, served notice on members of his own party as well as the Democrats that "we must not be diverted from our goal by the irreconcilables of either camp."

"There are two great disasters which could occur to us," he said. "The first would be if a few individual rulers should in secret conferences try to shape the future peace of the world.

"The second would be for any nation involved to break up into quarreling groups over individual proposals.

"We must make certain that our participation in this world organization is not subjected to reservations that would nullify the power of that organization to maintain peace and to halt future aggression. The surest way to invite disaster is to insist that everything must be perfect from the start."

Hails Conference

Reiterating his belief that the recent Dumbarton Oaks conference between the United States, Britain, Russia and China had made a "great beginning," the G.O.P. candidate said:

"It would be a profound tragedy if, after having reached a broad general area of agreement on the major principles, we should now fall to impatient quarreling over things still to be settled.

"There are already those among us who want to attack the work that was done at Dumbarton Oaks because it did not go far enough. There are others, equally vehement, who are fearful that the plans go too far.

"Extremists on both sides have missed the point. The important point is that a beginning has been made."

Stressing the importance he attaches to post-war world planning, Dewey said at the outset that the Nazi's last desperate act in launching "Hitler's blind weapon of revenge, the robot bomb," serves to warn us that another world war will not begin by a surprise attack on an outlying base, such as Pearl Harbor.

"It will begin," he said, "when robot bombs launched thousands of miles away suddenly rain death and destruction on our major cities."

Sees Robots as Threat

Asserting the robot bomb has put us under the guns of any aggressor nation in the world, he declared:

"We have had a narrow escape. We dare not take another chance. This war must be the last war."

In his criticism of the Roosevelt-Stalin negotiations, Dewey, who has contended that this type of mission should be performed by the Secretary of State, said:

"At their only meeting (Roosevelt and Stalin), neither our Secretary of State nor the Under-Secretary was present. Instead Mr. Roosevelt took along Mr. Harry Hopkins who acquired his training in foreign affairs in running the WPA.

"But, because of the secret nature of the meeting, American public opinion has been silenced by the fear that some delicate negotiation might be embarrassed."

Cites Italy's Woes

Turning to Italy, which surrendered 15 months ago, Dewey said:

"We have sent over a batch of alphabetical agencies. They brought with them invasion currency bearing the legend 'freedom from want. Freedom from fear.'

"What a mockery that must seem to the Italian people."

He then quoted the vice president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, without naming him, as having reported finding in Italy "mass unemployment, hunger, despair, degradation, delinquency and painful disappointment." (There are 23 vice presidents of the I.L.G.W.U., headed by Luigi Antonini).

As to France, a country which he said should be admitted immediately to Allied councils, Dewey declared that Roosevelt has been compelled to deal with General de Gaulle despite "personal antipathy."

"Mr. Roosevelt's persistent refusal to grant recognition to the de Gaulle government of France," the candidate said, "is contributing to the increasing chaos behind our lines at a critical period of the war."

Finally, he told a hotel ballroom audience made up of political admixtures, in contrast to the overwhelmingly Republican gatherings he has faced in previous campaign speeches, that last month's peace treaty with Romania was "signed by a representative of Soviet Russia acting in behalf of the United States."

Secretary of State Hull, to whom Dewey paid tribute for working with a bi-partisan Senate committee in "the best American fashion," declined the day after it was signed to comment on the treaty the nominee said, "on the ground that the terms had not been received from Moscow in time for study."

The candidate arranged to return to Albany immediately after tonight's broadcast. He leaves tomorrow night for an address Friday night in Pittsburgh. There he is expected to deal with post-war reconversion as it affects both labor and industry.

Text of Dewey's Address at New York Forum

OCT 19 1944

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—(AP) Following is the text of an address prepared for delivery tonight before the Herald Tribune forum by Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee:

It is a great pleasure to participate in this annual exchange of opinion about urgent problems of our time. Certainly the most urgent problem we face in the world is the prevention of future wars.

We are agreed on one thing: We must not have a third World War. That means we must prevent a future war before it happens.

If any doubt remained after Pearl Harbor, they have been ended by the last desperate act of the Nazis in launching Hitler's blind weapon of revenge, the robot bomb. This is futile savagery. But it serves to warn us against the future.

Japanese planes launched from a few aircraft carriers on Dec. 7, 1941, struck us a devastating blow at Pearl Harbor. If we fail to make secure the peace of the world, the next war will not begin by a surprise attack on an outlying base. It will begin when robot bombs launched thousands of miles away suddenly rain death and destruction on our major cities.

Size of World Reduced

Even before this war, the airplane had reduced the size of the earth. The robot bomb has made this world of ours still smaller. It has put us under the guns of any aggressor nation that may rise in power anywhere in the world.

If there should be a third World War, America would be in the front lines in the very first hour. That is not an argument. It is a fact.

Every American must learn the inescapable conclusion. We must never forget it. We must never again run the risk of permitting war to break lose in the world. Together with all freedom-loving people, we have had a narrow escape. We dare not take another chance. This war must be the last war.

To this end, the United States must take the lead in establishing a world organization to prevent future wars. I am more than a little tired of the defeatist attitude which some people take toward our participation in world affairs. To hear them talk, you would think that the United States had never shown any competence in foreign relations. At least, not until the last few years.

Actually, from the earliest days of our nation, when Benjamin Franklin induced the King of France to enter the Revolutionary war on our side, American history is packed with diplomatic triumphs and international achievements.

Time and again, even in the earliest days of our republic, the United States wielded a moral force far in excess of its military power. In more recent years, our history is studded with a series of brilliant measures taken by able American secretaries of state, to broaden the basis of international collaboration.

On any roll call of these great American secretaries of state, there would stand out the names of Blaine and Hay and Root, of Hughes, Kellogg, and Stimson. Their names are linked to such achievements as the Good Neighbor policy, the Open Door for China, the Hague Peace conference, the Disarmament conference by which the Japanese navy was limited to an inferior status, the pact of Paris to outlaw war, the world court, the policy of non-recognition of the fruits of aggression, and many measures to broaden the basis of international cooperation.

All these were great achievements carried through by men who had the respect of their country and of other nations. And every one of these great secretaries of state who I have mentioned was a Republican.

These achievements and countless others were made under administrations where the President conducted foreign affairs through the Secretary of State and our regular foreign service. These Presidents did not presume to be both President and Secretary of State. They did not presume to substitute their own personal will for the informed judgment of the American people.

Strength From All the People

If we are to be successful in our future labors to bring about lasting peace, they cannot be the property of one party or one man. It must draw its strength from all our people, everywhere. Only a united America can exercise the influence on the world for which its strength and ideals have equipped it. Of that I am deeply convinced.

I am equally convinced that to the extent that we leave our international relations to the personal secret diplomacy of the President, our efforts to achieve a lasting peace will fail. In many directions today our foreign policy gives cause for deep anxiety.

The case of Poland is one example. Poland was the first nation to resist the oppression of Hitler. The restoration of free Poland is the outstanding symbol of what we are fighting for. Admittedly Poland has differences with Russia that go deep in history and for which there is no simple solution. Yet Mr. Roosevelt undertook to handle this matter personally and secretly with Mr. Stalin. At their only meeting, neither our Secretary of State nor the undersecretary of State was present. Instead Mr. Roosevelt took along Mr. Harry Hopkins who acquired his training in foreign affairs in running the WPA. But, because of the secret nature of the meeting, American public opinion has been silenced by the fear that some delicate negotiation might be embarrassed.

Mr. Roosevelt, nevertheless, has not yet even secured Russian recognition of those whom we consider to be the true government of Poland. Neither was it possible to save that immortal group of Polish patriots led by General Bor, who struck, as they believed, in coordination with Russia, only to be abandoned. After 63 days of gallant and unequal struggle, they were overwhelmed by the Nazis.

In all this, we Americans would have a clearer conscience if the voice of our people had not been stifled.

Cites Italian Situation

Now look to Italy. Some 15 months have passed since Italy's surrender. We have sent over a batch of alphabetical agencies. They brought with them invasion currency bearing the legend "freedom from want. Freedom from fear." What a mockery that must seem to the Italian people. Here is the comment of the vice president of the International Ladies' Garment Workers union, who has just returned from Italy. He reports "mass unemployment, hunger, despair, degradation, delinquency and painful disappointment . . ." Because the Allies have not "helped the Italian people help themselves." He quotes the solemn warning of the Pope as follows: "The great democracies must show greater interest and concern for Italy if she is not to plunge from one dictatorship into another."

The Italian people deserve something better than the improvised, inefficient administration which personal New Deal government is giving them.

Take now the case of Germany. Our experience in Italy should have brought about timely decisions on how to handle the invasion and occupation of Germany. As long ago as last January, General Eisenhower told us we would have to deal with that problem this year. Yet, when the invasion of Germany began, there was still no official plan. Careful plans had, to be sure, been worked out by the two departments primarily qualified—the War and State departments. But that kind of planning goes for nothing when the President personally handles foreign policy.

There was a conference involving this very vital subject between the President and Mr. Churchill at Quebec last month. Did Mr. Roosevelt take the Secretary of War or the Secretary of State to the conference? As usual, he took neither. Instead, he took with him, the Secretary of the Treasury, whose qualifications as an expert on military and international affairs are still unknown.

The result was a first class cabinet crisis when it appeared that the work of the State department and the War department was to be scrapped in favor of a brand new scheme produced by the Treasury. In the end, the Treasury plan was scrapped. A new plan was ordered. This time to be produced by Mr. Crowley, head of the Foreign Economic Administration. And still there is no official plan.

Meanwhile, Germany's propaganda Minister Goebbels has seized upon the episode to terrify the Germans into fanatical resistance. On the basis of our Treasury department's ill conceived proposals, the German people were told that a program of destruction was in store for them if they surrender. Almost overnight, the morale of the German people seemed changed. They are fighting with the frenzy of despair. We are paying in blood for our failure to have ready an intelligenet program for dealing with invaded Germany.

Today, just an hour ago, I was happy to learn that Allied headquarters had announced a program for the occupation of Germany.

Backed de Gaulle Opponent

Turn now to France. The unfortunate consequences of Mr. Roosevelt's personal antipathy for General de Gaulle are only too well known. We backed his antagonist, Darlan. When Darlan was assassinated, we backed Giraud. Now, with France free, Mr. Roosevelt is compelled to deal with General de Gaulle, who is in fact, heading the only existing French government. Mr. Roosevelt's persistent refusal to grant recognition to the de Gaulle government of France is contributing to the increasing chaos behind our lines at a critical period of the war. France is Germany's principal neighbor and knows most about German aggression. The glorious resistance the French people made during four tortured years entitles them to more generous treatment. We need France in our councils and we need her now.

One more illustration. Look at Rumania. On September 12, 1944, an agreement was made restoring peaceful relations. This was no mere military armistice. That agreement fixed the future frontiers of Rumania. It disposed of Bessarabia and Transylvania, two of the worst trouble spots of Europe. It dealt with economic matters.

Now, who negotiated and signed that agreement? It was signed "by the authority of the government of the U.S.S.R., the United Kingdom and the United States by Melinósky." That treaty was signed by a representative of Soviet Russia acting in behalf of the United States.

Terms Not Available

The day after it was signed, the Secretary of State of the United States declined to comment on the ground that the terms had not been received from Moscow in time for study.

These are just a few examples of what happens when a President insists upon handling foreign affairs on the basis of personal, secret diplomacy. The result is today that no one knows what our foreign policy is with respect to Poland, France, Germany, Rumania and other countries of Europe, or for that matter, South America or China. We have no hint of what commitments may have been made and American opinion is stifled and ineffective. Yet despite these obstacles we are fighting our way to victory and we shall achieve American participation in a world organized to prevent future wars. We are going to succeed because in this matter we have followed the American way of doing things. The handling of this vital matter has been left to the State Department where it belongs.

Many times in the past, and six weeks ago, in detail, I have set forth the principles which should govern us in the great work ahead. There are two distinct tasks. One is the immediate problem of victory—the question of what shall be done with Germany and Japan when they have surrendered. The other is the long-term problem of world organization for peace.

The first task is primarily the responsibility of the victors. It will require continued close collaboration among the four great powers, the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China. France, too, must have a voice as well as other countries whose territory has been conquered by the Nazis, but whose heroic people have shared in the winning of the victory.

Must Disarm Axis

Germany and Japan must not only be utterly defeated but also completely disarmed. As I have already suggested, it may be necessary to forbid Germany any aviation industry of her own and the entire Ruhr, which is the heart of Germany's heavy industry, should be internationalized. Beyond that, the war criminals, both high and low, must be brought to justice. The people of Germany and Japan must be taught once and for all, that war does not pay.

But I cannot repeat too emphatically, that the second major task, the building of a world organization for peace, should not wait upon final victory. It should go forward as rapidly as possible, to immediate solution.

The main outlines of that organization have already become clear. It must include a general assembly comprising all the peace-loving nations of the world and a council small enough for almost continuous meeting and prompt action.

This world organization must be enabled, through the use of force where necessary, to prevent or repel military aggression. It must be supplemented by a world court to deal with international disputes.

These, in essence, were also the recommendations since drawn up by the conferences at Dumbarton Oaks. At those conferences we have made a good start. But this is only a beginning. Important matters remain to be worked out. It would be a profound tragedy if, after having reached a broad general area of agreement on the major principles, we should now fall to impatient quarreling over things still to be settled.

There are already those among us who want to attack the work that was done at Dumbarton Oaks because it did not go far enough. There are others, equally vehement, who are fearful that the plans go too far. Extremists on both sides have missed the point. The important point is that a beginning has been made. Let us remember that achievement can only be reached through agreement—agreement between the executive and Congress—agreement among our people—agreement not merely among the three most powerful nations, but among some 60 nations, which must join in this endeavor for it to succeed. It is imperative that the small nations of the World be brought into full partnership in this work now and not later. World opinion in the final analysis is essential to continuing success. Force, without justice, can never preserve peace. The treatment of small nations is the test of the conscience of civilization. They should have a full share in these labors from the start.

There are two great disasters which could occur to us. The first would be if a few individual rulers should in secret conferences try to shape the future peace of the world. The second would be for any nation involved to break up into quarreling groups over individual proposals. We must make certain that our participation in this World organization is not subjected to reservations that would nullify the power of that organization to maintain peace and to halt future aggression. The surest way to invite disaster is to insist that everything must be perfect from the start. Human progress is not made in that way and this is a profoundly human problem.

Whatever the difficulties, we must not be diverted from our goal by the irreconcilables of either camp. We have before us vividly the grim reminder of the robot bomb which shows no nation anywhere can be safe against aggression. No single nation can make itself impregnable to attack. We can no longer rely solely upon our own defenses or upon our own love of peace. We can and we must have a world organization to prevent future wars.

We must have two unities on which to build. One is the unity of the United Nations. The other is unity of the American people.

Need Patience, Wisdom

We are working successfully now. With 130,000,000 of our own people to satisfy and with almost 60 other nations to come to agreement—I am sure none of us will get exactly what he wants. Individuals must have convictions but if any of us insists on exactly what he wants or nothing, we will get nothing, and that would be the greatest disaster the human race has ever suffered. Secretary Hull is working steadily with a bi-partisan committee of the United States Senate in the best American fashion. I have been happy to join with Secretary Hull in non-partisan work between both parties on the drafts which have recently been completed at Dumbarton Oaks. In the end I am convinced that we can meet all of these problems if we will use patience, wisdom and the full force of our people's determination.

We have made a great beginning. We must hasten our labors to a successful conclusion. Our objectives and our methods must be known to our people and approved by them so that they will be willing to support them and to sacrifice for them so that they will be willing to support them and to sacrifice for them in all the years to come. Ten million Americans are making sacrifices today beyond any our nation has seen before. Some will come home permanently scarred. Some will never return. These tragedies must not visit us again. Our dead must not have died in vain.

We must keep our unity at home bright and fresh for the great tasks ahead. With that unity we can give leadership in bringing lasting peace to a stricken world.

'Who Puts Bite on Whom?' Mrs. Luce Asks at Forum

World Police Force Plan Questioned by Congresswoman in New York.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18 — (AP) Rep. Clare Boothe Luce (R.-Conn.) said tonight that "the great unanswered question" about an international police force, which she described as the "teeth" in the United Nations' projected world organization, was "who puts the bite on whom?"

"No doubt in great public debate in this free democracy we will find afair and workable answer x x x," she said in an address at the closing session of the New York Herald Tribune Forum, "but it must be an answer that will be accepted not only by Soviet Russia and Great Britain and China, but acceptable to all the little participating nations of Europe and Asia."

Asserting that President Wilson told the American people in a "hastily pencilled" message when the armistice was signed that "everything for which America fought has been accomplished," Mrs. Luce said:

"Let us hope that when our second V-day comes, our president, whoever he is, will not assure us that a peace plan alone will guarantee that utopia lies just around the corner.

"Let us hope that our President will have the valiance of spirit even in the jubilant hour of victory to tell us that tears and sweat and sacrifice still lie ahead in the waging of a just and durable peace; and that not only he, but his many successors must wage it."

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential candidate, she said, "has clearly grasped this courageous concept of waging peace" and " I believe that he will wage it unremittingly."

Closing the forum, Mrs. Helen Reid, vice president of the Herald Tribune, expressed "great regret" that President Roosevelt had declined an invitation to address tonight's session.

"It was for him to choose whether he would take part as a candidate for reelection, as president of all the American people, or as commander-in-chief of the armed forces,'" she said in a prepared talk. "We would have welcomed his message in whatever capacity."

Earlier on tonight's program, Helen Gahagan Douglas, Democratic candidate for Congress in California, said the chief campaign issue is retention of an "indispensable philosophy" of government.

Security Key Seen In Economic Factors

OCT 19 1944

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Wartime industrial leaders told the New York Herald Tribune forum last night that economic factors, such as full production and employment, would figure in post-war national and world security.

Bernard M. Baruch, special adviser to the Director of War Mobilization, declared that world security could be attained "if we provide jobs for all."

Plea From Eisenhower

A message from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, supreme commander of the Allied Expeditionary Forces, said, in part:

"We thank the folks at home for their unstinting support. We join a plea to this that you maintain unceasingly, and at the highest level, your production so that we may have in the skies, on the land and over the seas the supplies we need for the quickest victory and the peace we want."

Baruch asked for "an international authority based upon real cooperation" to maintain world security, adding: "This time we must be prepared to enforce the peace with arms and men."

War Production Board Chairman J. A. Krug told the forum that the "problems of finding peace and employment" could only be solved by business, labor and government "working together."

30,000,000 Jobs Foreseen

Henry J. Kaiser, ship and plane builder, said that by present indications the aircraft, automobile, construction, transportation and service industries alone would provide 30,000,000 jobs.

Former WPB vice chairman Ferdinand Eberstadt said "a clear national foreign economic policy, bipartisan if possible," was needed for industry to play "its great potential role in the post-war world."

James B. Carey, secretary of the Congress Industrial Organizations, said: "We must retool our brains to make use of new facts like . . . full production and full employment."

DANIELS BACKS FDR IN ELECTION

NEW YORK, Oct. 18. — (AP) Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy under Woodrow Wilson, said tonight that the reelection of President Roosevelt "is the only certain way of winning the peace after we have won the war."

In a radio address from Raleigh, N. C., Daniels said:

"There is only one great issue before the American people. It is, after victory, to win the peace and undergird it. And only one candidate, by his record and forthright consistent pledges, can be trusted to win this goal."

The North Carolina publisher declared that "if the Republicans are victorious this year, the chairmanship of the three most important committees in the Senate would go, automatically, inevitably and by seniority to Republican isolationists."

RCA Executive Wins Army Legion Of Merit

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—Thompson H. Mitchell, vice-president and general manager of RCA Communications, today was awarded the Legion of Merit for his "conspicuous achievements" during the time he served in the army communications service, Washington.

Presentation was made by Brig. Gen. Frank E. Stoner, chief of the Signal Corps Communications Service.

Mitchell was a lieutenant colonel when he retired to inactive service in August after two years of active duty.

Says Jersey Will Give Larger Vote For F. D. R.

Jersey City, N. J., Oct. 18 (AP)—Mayor Frank Hague, answering a report by former Governor Charles Edison to President Roosevelt that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey would carry New Jersey, says the President will win the State for the fourth time "by even a vastly increased majority over 1940."

"When the votes are counted," Mr. Edison will have a rude awakening as a political prophet," Hague said last night.

Hague's statement was issued a few hours after Edison, his intraparty Democratic foe, conferred with President Roosevelt at the White House and later told reporters that dislike for Hague's Democratic machine was turning the independent voters to Dewey.

Demand Palestine Be Reopened

Atlantic City, Oct. 18 (A. P.).—Delegates to the forty-seventh annual convention of the Zionist Organization of America adopted at the closing session a resolution demanding that "the free and democratic Jewish commonwealth to be established shall embrace the whole of Palestine, undivided and undiminished."

The United State Congress was asked in the resolution to adopt memorials calling for the opening of Palestine to unrestricted Jewish immigration and land purchase, and for the reconstituting of Palestine as a free and democratic Jewish commonwealth.

Va. Wedding Gowns For Australians

Richmond, Oct. 18 (AP)—Junior women's clubs in Virginia will send wedding gowns to Australia for the use of Australian women in service.

Named the "Phyllis Pedigo Wedding Gown Project" in honor of the former Covington Junior Woman's Club president who served as a Red Cross club director in Australia early in the war, the clubs will send gowns to girls in clothing-rationed Australia who do not want to be married in uniforms.

BETTE TO CALL ON ROOSEVELT

Star's One Regret: Her Dog Tibby Can't Meet Fala

Atlanta, Oct. 18 (AP)—Bette Davis boarded a train here today for Washington and "the greatest thrill of my life"—her first meeting with President Roosevelt.

The Academy Award winner said she had only one regret—that she wasn't accompanied by her little dog, Tibby, so he could meet Fala, the President's Scottie.

"They're both the same age, same size, same breed and same party loyalty," she laughed.

Long A Roosevelt Admirer

Miss Davis, who spent three weeks near Columbus, Ga., said she expected to be in Washington only a few days.

"I have long been an admirer of Mr. Roosevelt and never before had the opportunity to meet him. I expressed a desire to do so when I spoke at a rally in Madison Square Garden, just before coming to Georgia, but only received word of the appointment this week."

The film star stid she did not anticipate campaigning for Mr. Roosevelt because of her limited time.

"Anything Possible To Help Him"

"However," she added, "I would do anything possible to help him win this election. I have the greatest confidence in his ability and integrity, and feel very strongly for him, particularly on his foreign policy."

Miss Davis wore a large black hat and a gray tweed costume suit trimmed in Persian lamb, a sharp contrast with the lumberjacks and dungarees she wore at the rural retreat where she hunted and fished between visits with a friend, Corporal Lewis Riley, of near-by Fort Benning, Georgia.

Hollywood Plans Indefinite

Her plans for returning to Hollywood were indefinite. She said she was awaiting completion of the script for her next picture, "Stolen Life," which also will be her first production.

"Though my production, it will still be a Warner Brothers picture," she explained. "Several of us have individual units, and under the set-up I do one picture for myself and two for Warners."

"And there's another first," she laughed, "for it'll be my first dual role and I am looking forward to playing it." She said Elizabeth Bergner, the English actress, did the story about ten years ago.

CAROL RETAINED ON BOARD SHIP

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 18—(AP) Carol, the former Romanian king confined to shipboard here by a U. S. Department of Justice order which says "Detain on board at all U. S. ports," had two visitors today at the top of the gangplank. The Justice department order, signed by Cecil Peterson, immigrant inspector, was posted today on a ship bulletin board.

Dr. Adolph Jacobs, physician, and Henry Jacobs, attorney, brothers who came to New Orleans from their native Romania when small boys, were granted an interview with Carol but, because of Coast Guard security regulations were not allowed aboard the Argentine ship on which Carol and his party arrived here from Mexico en route to Brazil.

After the "visit" Dr. Jacobs said. "We found him gracious and charming and terribly disappointed that he could not see this interesting city."

Carol continued today to avoid any contact with newsmen and newspaper and newsreel photographers, a policy he has followed since Monday noon, when he learned he would not be permitted ashore.

Railroads Viewed As Equal To Task

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP)—Diversion of the heavy flow of war materials from the East to the West Coast after Germany's surrender will be accomplished without undue strain on the railroads, Brig. Gen. Andrew F. McIntyre, chief of the rail division of the Army Transportation Corps, said today.

"There is no danger of chaos," General McIntyre told the National Association of Shippers' advisory boards, "but obviously there will be many difficulties and there will be some cross hauling which cannot be completely avoided."

He predicted a large increase in West Coast traffic when only the war against Japan remains, and said "the full capacity of the transcontinental railroads is just about equal to the port capacities on the Pacific Coast.

"As the tempo increases we feel . . . that some of the ports on the Gulf and Atlantic Coast may have to be used. Additional labor will be needed both on the Pacific Coast and by the railroads serving it."

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director of the Office of Defense Transportation, said the army and navy "have not been hampered one moment by lack of rail transportation," and predicted the roads would meet all demands.

Press Held Ideals Guardian

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP)—Robert M. Gaylord, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, today declared that "in this day of double talk," when "all those talking about free enterprise are not for it," the nation's newspaper editors "must be the guardians of our ideals."

"The only cooperation wanted from the press is adherence to the truth and to the ideals which have made it great," Gaylord told the 60th annual meeting of the Inland Daily Press Association.

The NAM president said that "people who 'talk out of one side of their mouth' to one group and out of other to a different group are having a field day."

Press-Agent "Army"

Asserting there was a "growing army" of press agents in both Goverment and industry, Gaylord said "one of the most subtle of the indirect attacks on freedom of the press lies in the releases, handouts, and 'statements' that come from every source.

"Streamlined multigraphed sheets with details of all the 'news' are available in such quantities that the mere reading of them causes such reportorial indigestion that it is only natural to yield to temptation and write up the news from these skilfully prepared releases."

This procedure, Gaylord told the editors, "can and will weaken the initiative of the press if followed.

"Government press agents have it in their power to color, obscure or even to manufacture issues if the need for such action arises. Their sole concern is to dress the facts so as to protect their department. These public servants even complain if their views are questioned. You men must be the guardians of our ideals. Behind the screen of confusion the double-talkers find an adequate hide-out. All those talking about free enterprise are not for it."

SON OF JAPANESE NATIVES, U. S. MAJOR

ST. PAUL, Oct. 18—(AP) John F. Aiso, 36-year-old Japanese-American, was commissioned a major at Fort Snelling today, becoming the highest ranking Nisei in the United States Army, it was announced by Col. Kai E. Rasmussen, his commanding officer.

A native of Burbank, Calif., Aiso is a graduate of Brown university and the Harvard Law school, and once practiced in New York city. His parents are natives of Japan.

Aiso enlisted in the Army three years ago. His first assignment was as a mechanic in a motor repair outfit. He is now attached to the Language school at Fort Snelling.

How Japs Tortured Brooklyn Soldiers

Nogales, Ariz., Oct. 18 (AP)—Those fiendish Japs devised a special torture for Brooklyn soldiers—they broadcast reports at intervals that "Dem Bums" had lost another ball game.

The story is from Pfc. Manuel V. Lopez, recently returned from the China-Burma-India theater.

After a day of hard fighting against Jap marines, he said, the Brooklyn fans would crouch in their foxholes. Then a clear voice speaking perfect English would float through the night:

"Hey, Jonesy, didya hear the Giants blasted Dem Bums today, 15 to 2?"

It took strictest orders, said Lopez, to keep the Brooklyniter from coming out swinging.

BRICKER ATTACKS TRUMAN'S CLAIMS

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18—(AP) Gov. John W. Bricker asserted tonight that to credit the Roosevelt administration for winning the war was an "insult" to industry, labor and the armed forces.

The Republican candidate for Vice President said that his Democratic opponent, Senator Harry S. Truman, had so accredited the administration "without apology" in a speech here Monday night.

Bricker, whose address was from the same platform in Shrine auditorium, remarked:

"In his address, Senator Truman without apology accredited the Roosevelt administration with the miracle of war production—indeed, for winning the war itself. That is an insult to American industry and labor, and to the countless American men and women who are fighting and dying around the world tonight."

The Ohio Governor declared the "miracle of war production" was being achieved and the war was being won "not because of the New Deal, but often in spite of the New Deal."

Bricker said Truman in a press conference in Los Angeles, "tore away the shroud and revealed the New Deal cynicism in all its ugliness."

"He admitted that he had been supported by the Pendergast machine in Missouri. He said 'nobody would turn them down in Missouri if he wanted to get elected'."

Attributing to Truman another remark, "A statesman is only a dead politician; I never want to be a statesman," Bricker added:

"Let it be also remembered that this gentleman who owes his political fortune to Pendergast—and who never wants to be a statesman—could become the President of the United States."

london,oct.18-(ap)-anxious to avoid any accusation of interference in american politics, official britain and the country's press--with isolated exceptions--are guarding carefully against expressing a preference in the presidential election.

OCT 19 1944

this self-imposed restraint, which has the unofficial blessing of prime minister churchill's government, has been adhered to despite the fact that the british press in normal times displays keen interest in the politics of other countries and is far from reticent in expressing opinions.

but, even while remaining mum on the qualifications of president roosevelt and governor dewey, the press is following the campaign with close interest, reporting the views of each in the news columns, but generally refraining from editorial comment.

for example, the london newspapers carried two or three paragraphs on dewey's st.louis speech in which the g.o.p. nominee cited a 1937 statement of churchill to bolster his contention that despite grants of power and money the new deal failed to solve the economic depression until the war brought an [illegible] there was no editorial comment.

the exceptions are found mostly in columns written from the united states, and, of these, the daily mail's don iddon has been particularly caustic in his criticism of campaign tactics in america.

OCT 19 1944

his column today declared that "political strife is certain whoever is the victor. if roosevelt wins, he will have a hostile congress and the mutinies of past sessions will be trivial compared with what are ahead."

"if dewey wins," he continued, "the senate is likely to remain democratic and under the outdated seniority system most of the important committee chairmanships will go to isolationists and diehards--not through any choice or fault of dewey, but because of the traditional system which awards chairmanships on the basis of years served.

"so the prospects, either way, are not bright; but we may as well face them."

BLACKPOOL, ENGLAND, OCT 18-(AP)-THE BRITISH TRADES UNION CONGRESS TODAY APPROVED THE RUSSIAN PROPOSAL THAT GERMAN LABOR BE FORCED TO REBUILD COUNTRIES DEVASTATED BY THE GERMAN ARMIES.

WHILE MAKING CLEAR THAT BRITAIN DID NOT WANT THIS FORM OF HUMAN REPARATION, THE T.U.C. GAVE ITS SUPPORT TO ANY OVERRUN COUNTRY THAT DID AND PROPOSED AN INTER-ALLIED COMMISSION TO ENSURE THAT THE CONSCRIPTED LABOR DID NOT BECOME SLAVE LABOR.

IN A STORMY SESSION, THE T.U.C. REVERSED ITS DECISION OF A YEAR AGO AND DECLARED THE WHOLE GERMAN PEOPLE RESPONSIBLE FOR NAZI CRIMES COMMITTED IN THEIR NAME.

SN1202AEW

ASTPD WITH BRIT- 2ND ARMY -(FREEMD) 2X WEEKS

HITLER'S ARMIES ARE FIGHTING BITTERLY, BUT THEIR POSITION IS BY NO MEANS HEALTHY. THE NAZI COMMAND MUST SHIFT THE SAME TROOPS TO MEET EACH NEW ALLIED BLOW. THE ENEMY HAS NO REAL STRATEGIC RESERVES LEFT AT ALL, AND NO LONGER HAS RESOURCES TO SWITCH FROM ONE MAIN FRONT TO ANOTHER AS DANGER ARISES.

MUCH DEPENDS ON THE WEATHER FOR SUCCESS OF ALLIED OPERATIONS IN THE IMMEDIATE FUTURE. BUZ WITH AVERAGE WEATHER FOR THE SEASON WE SHOULD SEE GREAT EVENTS BEGIN TO UNFOLD ONCE MORE.

BAD WEATHER HAS BEEN A BIG FACTOR IN HELPING THE GERMANS BY HAMPERING ALLIED AIR FORCES IN THEIR TASK OF PARALYZING GERMAN RAIL SUPPLIES.

THE ALLIES NOW HAVE EXTREMELY LONG LINES OF COMMUNICATIONS, REVERSING THE NORMANDY SETUP WHEN WE HAD THE ADVANTAGE OF SHORT LINES WHILE ENEMY TRANSPORT HAD GREAT DISTANCES TO COVER.

REVIEWING THE BOARD PICTURE OF THE WAR, THE STAFF OFFICER MADE THESE POINTS:

GERMAN DIVISIONS IN FINLAND ARE NOW ISOLATED AND WILL HAVE GREAT DIFFICULTY IN ESCAPING.

THE GERMANS HAVE U-BOAT BASES IN NORWAY, WHICH NOW IS MORE IMPORTANT TO HITLER'S WAR MACHINE THAN EVER BEFORE AND STILL IS HEAVILY GARRISONED BY NAZI TROOPS.

THE GERMANS ARE FULLY EMPLOYED IN THE BALKANS, HAVING A HARD TIME WITH PARTISAN FORCES AND IT DOES NOT SEEM THAT THEY WILL BE ABLE TO REMOVE MUCH OF THEIR FORCES IN THAT AREA.

IF THE GERMAN GENERALS CAN BE CONVINCED, AS A CONSEQUENCE OF THE CURRENT MOSCOW CONFERENCES, THAT THERE IS NO CHANCE OF MAKING A SEPARATE PEACE, THEY MIGHT ADMIT THE JIG IS UP. THE PEOPLE OF GERMANY HAVE BEEN LIVING IN HOPE OF A SEPARATE PEACE EITHER WITH RUSSIA OR THE WESTERN POWERS AND DESTRUCTION OF THAT HOPE WOULD BE A TERRIBLE BLOW.

HITLER IS FEELING THE PINCH OF GERMANY'S OIL SHORTAGE MORE KEENLY THAN EVER AND IS SCRAPING THE DREGS FROM HIS MANPOWER BARREL.

IF THE ALLIES MAINTAIN PRESSURE ON GERMANY FROM ALL SIDES, THE PICTURE LOOKS EXTREMELY OPTIMISTIC.

WITH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY, FRANCE, OCT. 18-(AP)-TOT IS CANNONEER TALK MEANING "TIME ON TARGET," BUT IT IS ALSO "THUNDER ON TAP" FOR FIGHTING MEN WHO NEED MASSIVE ARTILLERY PUNCHES LANDED WITH STUNNING SPEED DURING A BATTLE.

TWO THOUSAND FEET ABOVE AND JUST BEHIND THE FRONT LINE, I WATCHED T O T TEAR INTO THE GERMAN-HELD FOREST DE LA MARCHANDE YESTERDAY. THIS SEARING SWEEP OF FLAME AND STEEL CAME AND WENT IN A DOZEN SECONDS, BUT WHATEVER PLANS THE ENEMY HAD BEEN COKING UP IN THE LITTLE WOOD CERTAINLY WERE TUMBLED FROM THE POT. THE INFANTRY DIVISION WHICH HAD CALLED FOR THIS MULTIPLE THUNDERBOLT COULD SIT EASIER JUST ACROSS THE LINE LAST NIGHT.

SINCE AN ENEMY COUNTERATTACK MOST LIKELY WOULD COME AT NIGHT OR EARLY MORNING COL. FRANCES M.DAY, FEESBURG, OHIO, ARTILLERY VETERAN, DECIDED TO LAY THE FIRE IN LATE AFTERNOON.

I WENT TO A NEARBY COWPASTURE AND CLIMBED IN A PIPER CUB WITH LT. ELMER B.GIBSON, A FLYING ARTILLERYMAN FROM DES PLAINES, ILL.

AS SOON WAS WE WERE IN POSITION TO OBSERVE, LT. COL. RODNEY C.GOTT OF SCARSDALE, N.Y., RADIOED WE WERE READY.

FROM THE CORPS FIRE DIRECTION CENTER, LT. COL. WILLIAM A.ENEMARK OF SAN FRANCISCO SET UP HIS T O T WHILE WE LISTENED IN. HE CALLED IN THE FIRE CONTROL OFFICERS SPREAD AMONG BATTALIONS WHOSE GUNS WERE SCATTERED OVER SCORES OF SQUARE MILES. HE GAVE THEM DIRECTIONS AND TOLD THEM TO LAND THEIR SHELLS IN THE TARGET AREA EXACTLY EIGHT MINUTES AFTER HE CALLED "TIME."

AT THE CONCLUSION OF HIS BRIEF DIRECTIONS THE OFFICERS AND MEN HAD EIGHT MINUTES TO AIM AND LOAD MORE THAN 80 GUNS RANGING FROM SELF-PROPELLED TANK DESTROYER WEAPONS TO 155 MILLIMETER LONG TOMS.

OCT 191944

THEY DID SO WELL THAT THE FIRST BURUTS WERE NO MORE THAN TWO OR THREE SECONDS EARLY AND THE LAST NO MORE THAN EIGHT OR NINE SECONDS LATE. ONLY TWO OR THREE SHELLS FELL OAT OF THE CONCENTRATION AREA.

WHILE THIS BURST WAS MERELY PREVENTIVE SHELLING IN THIS CASE, IT WAS EASY TO SEE WHY THE T O T AS IT HAS BEEN DEVELOPED HERE BY BRIG. GEN. JOHN M.LENTZ MAY OFTEN BE THE MARGIN BETWEEN SUCCESS OR FAILURE EITHER IN ATTACK OR DEFENSE.

HERE IS A TYPICAL APPLICATION OF T O T TO A BATTLE EMERGENCY:

DURING A RECENT ATTACK WHICH GREATLY IMPROVED THE AMERICANS POSITION, AN ARMORED TASK FORCE LED BY LT. COL. HAROLD C.DUVAL OF WASHINGTON, D.C., WAS BEING BADLY KNOCKED AROUND BY VERY HEAVY ARTILLERY FIRE FROM A GERMAN-HELD VILLAGE.

AT 9:45 A.M., HE TELEPHONED HIS DIVISION ARTILLERY LIASON OFFICER MAJ. ROBERT W.MILLER OF AMES, IOWA, FOR HELP. KNOWING THAT IT WAS A JOB THAT CALLED FOR MORE GUNS THAN A DIVISION'S MILLER CALLED ENEMARK AT THE CORPS FIRE DIRECTION CENTER AT 9:50 A.M. ENEMARK AT ONCE CALLED MAJ. JAY W.FREDERICKSON OF MURRAY, UTAH; MAJ. DAVID FUSSELL OF MIAMI, FLA., AND MAJ. M.W. PERRY OF LINDSAY, OKLA., AND AT 10:05 A.M., 150 GUNS OF 13 FULL BATTALIONS CAUCADED ABOUT FIVE TONS OF SHELLS INTO A TARGET AREA 400 YARDS SQUARE.

THE ENEMY FIRE STOPPED AT ONCE AND DUVAL'S TASK FORCE MOVED AHEAD.

STRIKING DIRECTLY ACROSS THE VALLEY IN THE WAKE OF AN ARTILLERY BARRAGE AND UNDER THE SLIGHT PROTECTION OF A SMOKE SCREEN, SMALL UNITS COMMANDED BY CAPT. THOMAS BREJCHA OF CHICAGO, ILL., INCHED INTO THE CITY'S EDGE LATE THIS AFTERNOON.

THEY WERE MET BY A HAIL OF SMALL ARMS AND MORTAR FIRE FROM

TWO DIRECTIONS, FROM THE CITY'S OWN INNER DEFENSES AND FROM THE SURROUNDING HILLS. FOR A WHILE THEY HALTED, PINNED DOWN AND UNABLE TO REACH OR EVACUATE THEIR WOUNDED. THEN THEY SLOWLY WORKED FORWARD ALONG THE RAILROAD TRACKS UNTIL THEY WERE SEVERAL HUNDRED YARDS INSIDE THE CITY.

MEANWHILE, THEIR COMRADES WERE SEEKING TO EASE SOME OF THE PRESSURE ON THEM BY OUSTING THE GERMANS STILL CONTROLLING SOME OF THE CRESTS OF THE VOSGES MOUNTAIN FOOTHILLS OVERLOOKING BRUYERES. THEY MET EQUALLY BITTER RESISTANCE.

THE STRUGGLE IN THE HILLS, WHERE THE AMERICANS PUSHED THE GERMANS BACK 300 YARDS IN FIERCE BRUSH FIGHTING, ALSO GAVE ANOTHER VALLEY UNIT OF DOUGHBOYS A CHANCE TO SLIP INTO BRUYERES TO REINFORCE THE FIRST ARRIVALS.

THEY MANAGED TO GET SOME COVERING FIRE FROM AMERICANS IN THE VILLAGE OF CHAMP LE DUC, HALF WAY ACROSS THE VALLEY, WHICH WAS OCCUPIED LAST NIGHT AFTER A LENGTHY BATTLE INVOLVING HOUSE-TO-HOUSE FIGHTING.

TONIGHT BOTH GERMANS AND AMERICANS ARE POURING EXPLOSIVES DOWN ON THE FACTORY ROOFS OF BRUYERES.

THE EXPLODING SHELL SLIGHTLY WOUNDED RADIO OPERATOR TECH.SGT.ROYAL Y.KLAVER, 24, OF HARGRAVE APARTMENTS, NORTH FRONT ST., MARQUETTE, MICH., AND THE NAVIGATOR, LT.RALPH S.WEINBERG, 26, OF 5752 NORTH CAMAC STREET, PHILADELPHIA.

KLAVER SUFFERED FLESH WOUNDS IN SIX PLACES IN THE RIGHT HAND AND BOTH LEGS. WEINBERG WAS HIT IN THE RIGHT LEG.

THE SHELL PIERCED THE FLIGHT COMPARTMENT A FEW INCHES FROM THE LEFT EAR OF CO-PILOT CAPT.DEARTER MCGREGOR, 27, OF ROUTE 5, WICHITA FALLS, TEX.

THE PLANE'S ARMOR PLATE WAS SHATTERED NEAR THE PILOT, MAJ.ROBERT E.MOSS, 25, OF 1530 CHARLOTTE ST., NEW YORK CITY; AND THE ENGINEER, LT.EDWARD R.HAGGERTY, 27, OF CHICAGO.

THE CO-PILOT, PILOT AND ENGINEER AS WELL AS THE BOMBARDIER-NAVIGATOR LT.FRITZ J.KULICKA, 27, OF 115 NORTH BROADWAY GREENVILLE, MISS., WERE NOT TOUCHED.

WASHINGTON,OCT.18-(AP)-ARMY AIR CORPS ENGINEERS BUILT AND RESTORED MORE THAN 100 AIR FIELDS IN NORTHERN FRANCE IN FOUR MONTHS FOLLOWING D-DAY BY EMPLOYING A NEW ASPHALT TREATED PAPER AND CLOTH SURFACING MATERIAL WEIGHING ONLY ONE-TENTH AS MUCH AS THE STEEL MATTING PREVIOUSLY USED FOR EMERGENCY LANDING STRIPS.

THIS WAS DISCLOSED TODAY BY COL.GEORGE MAYO, ARMY AIR FORCE ENGINEER, WHO SAID THE SURFACING WAS CONCEIVED BY BRITISH AND CANADIAN ENGINEERS AND DEVELOPED BY AMERICAN ENGINEERS TO MEET THE NEED FOR LIGHT WEIGHT, WATER-PROOF RUNWAYS.

THE SURFACING MATERIAL LOOKS LIKE HEAVY TAR PAPER AND CONSISTS OF A LAYER OF COTTON CLOTH SANDWICHED BETWEEN TWO LAYERS OF HEAVY PAPER THOROUGHLY IMPREGNATED WITH ASPHALT TO MAKE IT WATER REPELLANT.

THE MATERIAL IS PUT DOWN ON THE GRADED FIELD IN OVER LAPPING STRIPS BY MACHINERY. IT IS STRONG ENOUGH TO SUPPORT PLANES AS HEAVY AS FIGHTER-BOMBERS, COL.MAYO SAID.

HE ADDED THAT THE PROCESS TAKES ONLY ABOUT 15 HOURS FOR A RUNWAY 150 FEET WIDE BY 3,600 FEET LONG.

UNDATED PACIFIC INTERPRETIVE (PMS OCT.18)
BY HAROLD STREETER
ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR EDITOR

OCTOBER, 1944, THE 34TH MONTH OF WAR, TAKES ITS PLACE IN HISTORY AS THE MONTH WHEN EMBATTLED AMERICA, ON THE MOVE OVER VAST TIME-CONSUMING STRETCHES OF THE PACIFIC--IT'S 6,500 MILES FROM THE UNITED STATES TO FORMOSA--GOT IN POSITION TO STRIKE COHESIVE BLOWS AGAINST JAPAN FROM EAST, WEST AND SOUTH.

THIS PAST WEEK, THE LAND-BASED AIR ARM OF GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, THE LAND-BASED AIR ARM OF MAJ.GEN.CURTIS E.LEMAY IN CHINA AND THE NAVAL AIR ARM OF ADM. WILLIAM F.HALSEY, JR., BECAME ONE TEAM FOR THE FIRST TIME.

THAT IS ONE OF THE MOMENTOUS DEVELOPMENTS OF THE CONFLICT WITH JAPAN.

MACARTHUR AND HALSEY SMACKED THE PHILIPPINES. HALSEY AND LEMAY BLASTED FORMOSA. THESE WERE RELATED OPERATIONS.

HALSEY'S CARRIER PLANES HANDLED THE JOB AROUND MANILA BECAUSE THAT'S A LONG HAUL FOR MACARTHUR. MACARTHUR'S FLIERS PERFORMED NOBLY SOUTH OF LUZON, PROVING THEIR FIGHTERS CAN COVER ALL MINDANAO, SOUTHERNMOST OF THE PHILIPPINES, AND THEIR BOMBERS CAN RANGE UP TO LEYTE.

HALSEY'S CARRIER PLANES SO EFFECTIVELY WRECKED JAPAN'S AIR DEFENSES ON FORMOSA THAT LEMAY GAVE THEM CREDIT FOR PAVING THE WAY FOR HIS SUPERFORTRESSES FROM CHINA TO WORK OVER THAT FORTIFIED ISLAND WITH A MINIMUM OF OPPOSITION.

NOT MANY MONTHS AGO, AN AMERICAN HAD TO SPREAD OUT A MAP OF THE WHOLE PACIFIC TO FOLLOW ACTIONS IN THE SEPARATED THEATERS-- THE ALEUTIANS, THE SOLOMONS, NEW GUINEA AND CHINA.

IT WASN'T UNTIL THE SPRING OF THIS YEAR THAT THE FLEET OF ADM. CHESTER W.NIMITZ TEAMED UP WITH THE GROUND FORCES OF MACARTHUR--IN THE INVASION OF DUTCH NEW GUINEA.

BUT MACARTHUR AND NIMITZ DID NOT REALLY LINK UP THEIR TWO THEATERS UNTIL THE SEPTEMBER INVASIONS OF THE HALMAHERAS AND PALAU.

ONE MONTH LATER THE CHINA-BASED B-29S GET IN ON THE PARTNERSHIP.

IT'S A GOOD SIGN OF THINGS TO COME.

YANKS HAVE SEIZED EAST COAST OF LEYTE IN PHILIPPINES, MACARTHUR ANNOUNCES; TROOPS POUR ASHORE IN SHOWDOWN BATTLE

OCT 20 1944

Ships, Planes Blast Path For Landing Forces

OCT 20 1944

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS IN THE PHILIPPINES, Friday, Oct. 20. — (AP) — (By Army Radio Pool Broadcast)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, making good his vow he would return to the Philippines, announced from those islands today his Navy and air-supported forces have invaded and secured expanding beachheads in the central Philippines.

MacArthur, aboard a warship, went along with the huge convoy from New Guinea, and within four hours after his forces landed began making plans to go ashore.

"In a major amphibious operation, we have seized the eastern coast of Leyte island in the Philippines, 600 miles north of Morotai and 2,500 miles from Milne Bay (New Guinea)," a special communique dramatically proclaimed from the invasion scene.

Can Cut Off Luzon

Striking at a point where he is in position to quickly cut off the island of Luzon, on which Manila is situated from Mindanao on the south, MacArthur poured supplies ashore in preparation for showdown battles with an estimated 225,000 Japanese under Field Marshal Juichi Terauchi.

Every able bodied man who escaped from Corregidor in Manila bay before it surrendered May 6, 1942, went along on the invasion to liberate the Filipinos and their imprisoned fellow Americans from bondage.

The greatest moment to date in the Pacific war brought immediate acclamation of MacArthur's invasion forces by President Roosevelt in Washington.

"The whole American nation today exalts at the news that the gallant men under your command have landed on Philippine soil," the President said.

On Leyte, a suitable air base island 300 miles southeast of Manila, the invaders secured Tacloban on the northeast end of the island "with small casualties," the communique reported.

Tokyo radio also reported landings at Cabalian on the southern tip and said earlier landings occurred at the entrance of Leyte gulf on Suluan island.

Token Air Resistance

Eyewitness accounts from the scene reported the American Navy and airforce were on hand in such mammoth strength that the Japanese Navy was nowhere in sight and the Nipponese airforce, knocked out at all airfields in the Philippines, offered scarcely token resistance.

One correspondent said today "up to now no ship has been lost."

The preparation for the invasion included the destruction of more than 1,300 planes, the sinking of 86 ships, damaging of 127 ships and widespread devastation of airfields and reinforcement bases since Oct. 9 in task force blasts at the Ryukyus, Formosa and the Philippines.

Dean Schedler, Associated Press war correspondent, reporting from the scene said the invasion convoy stretched as far as the eye could see.

Tokyo radio accounts said Suluan island, not mentioned by MacArthur, was invaded Tuesday (Manila Time) and the Leyte operations opened Thursday, at noon at Tacloban, at 7 p. m. Thursday night at Cabalian.

The special communique said in part:

"In a major amphibious operation we have seized the eastern coast of Leyte island in the Philippines, 600 miles north of Morotai and 2,500 miles from Milne Bay from whence our defensive started nearly 16 months ago.

"The Visayas is midway between Luzon and Mindanao and at one stroke splits into two Japanese forces in the Philippines. The enemy expected the attack on Mindanao.

"Tacloban was secured with small casualties. The landing was preceded by heavy air and naval bombardment which was devastating in effect. Our ground troops are already extending their hold."

Japs Report Landings

In a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, Japanese Domei News Agency said American forces had gone ashore at Tacloban on the northeastern part of Leyte and in the Cabalian area on the southern tip.

Domei said the landing operations began Thursday noon (Manila time).

It reported infantry forces landed at Tacloban "under cover of a smoke screen."

Domei gave the time of the second landing as at 7 o'clock Thursday night.

The text read:

"MANILA, Oct. 20—The Japanese forces on Leyte island intercepted and launched fierce counterattacks against the enemy invaders who started landing on two points of the island yesterday.

"About noon yesterday enemy infantry forces, under cover of a smoke screen, commenced landing operations at Tacloban on the northeastern part of the island.

"Later at 7 p. m., in the evening other enemy infantry forces also started landing in the Cabalian area on the southern tip of the island.

30. 24 — 19685

"The Japanese forces in both sectors are at present engaged in strong counterattacks against the enemy invaders."

Followed Air Attacks

The invasion followed thunderous aerial attacks which Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced last night continued through Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Ninety-nine more planes were bagged, six more ships sunk and 23 damaged.

This raised to 1,333 plus the number of Japanese planes wiped out, to 86 the ships sunk and to 127 the ships damaged by carrier forces since Oct. 9 in the Ryukyus, Formosa and Philippines areas.

Beachheads Being Widened

MacArthur said the beachheads were being widened and supplies were rolling ashore.

The landings pitted the invaders against Japanese Philippine defenders estimated at 225,000 under command of Field Marshal Juichi Terauchi.

Among participants in the action were the Sixth United States Army, navy forces of the Seventh United States Fleet, the Third United States Fleet and the far eastern air force.

Japs Say MacArthur, Spruance Head Invasion

San Francisco, Oct. 19 (AP)—American invasion of the Philippines—almost two and a half years after the fall of Corregidor—was reported by Radio Tokyo today.

Japanese reports said American amphibious forces from fleets under the command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and Admiral Raymond Spruance hit the east-central Philippines and apparently landed fighting men on small Suluan Island, in the mouth of Leyte Gulf, only 400 airline miles southeast of Manila.

There was no American confirmation of Japanese reports that MacArthur had carried out his declared determination of March 17, 1942, when, upon landing in Australia from the Philippines, he said: "I shall return."

The Japanese Domei News Agency said, in a broadcast monitored by the Federal Communications Commission, that United States forces had begun their "reinvasion of the Philippines" backed by naval guns of the Pacific Fleet and planes flying from bases in China. The China coast is approximately 1,000 miles west of Leyte Island.

NIGHT

Reports Suluan Landing

Domei said the invasion started Monday. It asserted "part of the enemy forces seem to have landed on Suluan Island."

A Japanese imperial headquarters communique pictured the "enemy fleet" of warships and troop transports as pushing into Leyte Gulf after shore defenses had been blasted with naval shells and aerial bombs for two days. The Japanese said their forces were opposing the invasion.

Domei claimed that United States Task Force 58, carrier armada of Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher that has blasted the Ryukyu islands, Formosa and the northern Philippines since October 9, was not in the Leyte Gulf action.

The Japanese previously reported, and brought denial from Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, that Force 58 was badly smashed up east of Formosa.

Reports Land Planes Helping

The Nippon agency said the Yank fleet approached the Philippines from the direction of New Guinea. It added land-based planes from American-held Morotai Island, 400 miles southward, and the Palau Islands, 500 miles eastward, were participating in the operations.

The Tokyo headquarters broadcast said "our navy and army units in close cooperation are at present intercepting this enemy force." Domei said "our army and navy forces in this sector are confronting the enemy forces with undaunted resolution."

Meanwhile the Japanese-controlled Manila radio reported 270 American carier planes returned to that area Thursday. It said four waves of planes hit the Manila area and Clark Field, major air depot 40 miles northwest of the city.

6 Ships Sunk In New Raids In Manila Area

Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 19 (AP)—Halsey-Mitscher carrier forces renewed their attacks on the Manila area October 16, 17 and 18 and bagged an additional 99 airplanes, sank 6 ships and damaged 23.

These figures, announced by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz in a communique tonight, increased the destruction on the Japanese since October 9 through October 18 to 1,333-plus planes, 86 ships sunk and 127 ships damaged in the Ryukyus, Formosa and the Philippines.

In addition, 75 small craft were destroyed and 80 damaged.

Airfields Neutralized

Most important currently is the neutralization of Japanese airfields in the Philippines, particularly the Manila area.

With Radio Tokyo reporting Gen. Douglas MacArthur landings on Suluan and Leyte in the central Philippines, the steady Halsey-Mitscher poundings would prevent the Japanese from counter-attacking by sea and air.

Nimitz reported the fleet "continued to attack whatever enemy aircraft and shipping could still be found in the Manila area."

Enumerates Results

Then he enumerated results which included:

Ships sunk—
Two oil tankers.
Four medium cargo ships.
One floating drydock.

Ships damaged—
Six large or medium cargo ships.
Two large cargo ships.
One large oil tanker.
Two large transports.
Six medium cargo ships.
Four small cargo ships.
Two medium oilers.

All of these were caught in the south harbor of Manila Bay, except one large tanker damaged in Mariveles Bay.

4 U. S. Planes Lost In Day

"Preliminary reports," said the admiral, "show our losses for the action of October 17 were four planes, two pilots and two air crewmen."

Forty Japanese interceptors aggressively attacked Mitscher's raiders over Clark Field Monday, but 20 were shot out of the skies and another 30 or 40 were destroyed or damaged aground.

The next day 17 enemy planes were shot down from the skies above Manila. Thirteen more were shot down and 15 destroyed aground at Clark and Nichols airfields.

American pilots heavily bombed barracks, fuel dumps, hangars and ground installations at Clark Field, north of Manila, and Nichols, near the city.

Land-based planes, meanwhile, bombed Nauru, Ponape and Jaluit.

American landings in the Philippines by forces under General Douglas MacArthur at two points, which would raise an immediate threat of cutting the archipelago in halves, were reported extensively today by Tokyo radio.

Tokyo, in a broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, said American forces had landed on the tiny island of Suluan, at the entrance of Leyte Gulf, on the eastern side of the central Philippines.

[The Blue Network also reported a Tokyo broadcast of a Japanese imperial communique shortly after 10 a. m., Pacific war time, which said Americans "started landing attempts" on the big island of Leyte, between Mindanao and Luzon.]

Confronted with the necessity of backtracking on claims of an "annihilating victory" over the American Navy off Formosa—claims repudiated in toto by Nimitz—Tokyo radio said today:

"Despite his serious losses suffered in the waters off Taiwan (Formosa), the enemy has commenced his reinvasion of the Philippines."

Tokyo attempted to explain away the alleged destruction of America's Task Force 58 by saying the American 5th Fleet, under Admiral Raymond A. Spruance, had regrouped itself with the 3d Fleet of Admiral William F. Halsey to make the invasion possible.

General MacArthur in his regular communique tonight said his Liberators blasted Davao and Zamboanga on Mindanao Tuesday, unloading 106 tons of bombs, and that his fighters went over the next day to hit Cotobato, on the west-central coast.

The landing on Suluan was covered by powerful Allied fleets from the southwest and central Pacific, Tokyo said, and by Allied warplanes based on Morotai and Peleliu Islands, to the south and southeast. Coastal areas about Leyte Gulf, Tokyo reported, were being subjected to heavy naval and air bombardment.

For days carriers of Admiral Halsey's mighty 3d Fleet have launched furious air attacks on every enemy base that could oppose a ground invasion of the Philippines.

Admiral Nimitz said yesterday that these sweeps continued, and the enemy-controlled Manila radio today reported a new attack in that area by 270 carrier planes.

The Tokyo radio, as monitored by the Federal Communications Commission, hiked its claims of aerial damage to Halsey's fleet in what it has termed a "brilliant" victory for Japanese arms in the Formosa area. The new claim was that eleven American carriers, two battleships, three cruisers and one cruiser or destroyer had been sunk and forty warships damaged.

"No damage of consequence" to American battleships or cruisers was reported by Nimitz in a communique Oct. 17 covering the enemy serial attacks on the 3d Fleet. Two "medium sized" ships, however, were withdrawing from the action, he said, having been hit by aerial torpedoes.

Meanwhile, Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carriers, a part of the 3d Fleet, gave the lie to the Tokyo claims by continuing to launch their aerial fury against the enemy's island positions.

Yanks Land On Suluan In Central Area, Enemy Hints

San Francisco, Oct. 19 (AP)—American expeditionary forces are invading the Philippines, Tokyo radio reported today, striking at the very center of the vulnerable eastern flank of the archipelago.

Domei news agency said flatly that United States forces have begun their "reinvasion of the Philippines," supported by powerful units of the Pacific fleet and China-based aircraft. Sea forces, Domei said, included "the naval fleet under the command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur."

An official Japanese communique said "the enemy fleet" accompanied transports into spacious Leyte Gulf Tuesday (Manila time) and for the last two days naval guns and carrier aircraft have been bombarding shore defenses.

Landing Reported

"Part of the enemy forces seem to have landed on Suluan Island" at the entrance to the gulf, Domei news agency said.

Domei asserted Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's Task Force 58—the carrier arm of the Pacific fleet—was not participating in the invasion because of asserted losses suffered off Formosa. These have been denied by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

Since that Formosa battle, Domei broadcast, "the enemy has organized a new large task force, grouping together the Fifth Fleet under Vice-Admiral Raymond Spruance, which did not participate in the air battle off Taiwan (Formosa), and the naval fleet under the command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, as well as other naval forces in the Pacific, excluding the 58th Task Force."

No Allied Confirmation

"Our army and navy forces in this sector," Domei added, "are confronting the enemy forces with undaunted resolution."

These broadcasts were the only [illegible] that General MacArthur [illegible] taken the most crucial step to [illegible] his pledge, made two and a half years ago, to return to the Philippines.

While there was no confirmation that the Philippine invasion was at last under way, the combined Pacific sea forces of Admiral Nimitz and land-based air strength of General MacArthur have been paving the way for reconquest of the territory in ten days of unprecedented raids on western Pacific islands for a thousand miles either side of the Philippines.

Clark Field Lashed

These attacks, which have cost the Japanese close to 1,000 planes and hundreds of ships, are still continuing, Manila radio reported. It told of 270 carrier planes striking in four waves this morning at Manila and strategic Clark field. The Japanese-controlled radio claimed 19 were shot down.

The Mikado's war lords said "our navy and army units" are "intercepting this enemy force"—an ambiguous expression which Tokyo uses to destribe any kind of defense or none at all.

Other Landings Hinted

The unconfirmed Tokyo announcements indicated that a powerful task group of Admiral William F. Halsey's Third Fleet combined with the southwest Pacific naval forces steamed into Leyte Gulf in the central Philippines to screen an amphibious landing on tiny Suluan Island and perhaps some of the other islands bordering the gulf.

The area, only 400 miles from Manila, is an ideal spot from which to establish aerial control of the islands, and completely nullify air bases.

It would be another repetition of MacArthur's practice of striking the Japanese where they aren't—long familiar to those who have watched his progress since March 17, 1942, when he stood on the shores of Australia, 2,000 miles from the Philippines, and promised:

"I came through and I shall return."

Chinese Jubilant

If the Japanese stories are correct, MacArthur's forces returned two years and six months to the day after he made that pledge.

Japanese broadcasts were accepted by jubilant Chungking as being basically accurate. The Chinese reflected the confidence recently expressed by Admiral Nimitz who said:

"Judging from MacArthur's past performances I predict he will do the same job in the Philippines that he did in New Guinea, perhaps even more thoroughly."

"Flag Lies Crumpled"

It was on the first anniversary of the fall of Bataan—April 4, 1943—that MacArthur expressed his determination to return. He said:

"Our flag lies crumpled . . . the wrecks of what were once our men and women groan and sweat in prison toil; our faithful Filipino wards, 16,000,000 souls, gasp in the slavery of a conquered soldier. . . .

"I was the leader of that lost cause. And from the bottom of a seared and stricken heart I pray that a merciful God may not delay too long their redemption; that the day of salvation be not so far removed that they perish; that it be not again too late."

One Of Longest Steps

An invasion in the Leyte area would be one of the longest strides taken by MacArthur—400 miles northward from Morotai Island.

The Japanese communique said:

Firstly, the enemy fleet and accompanying transports invaded Leyte Gulf of the Philippines on October 17 and since the afternoon of October 18 has been subjecting the coastal areas to an aerial and naval bombardment.

Secondly, our navy and army units in close cooperation are at present intercepting this enemy force.

Surprise Indicated

A two-day delay in the Japanese announcement of a strike into the central Philippines would indicate that defensive forces were taken completely by surprise.

Leyte is one of the larger central Philippine islands lying midway between Mindanao and Luzon.

Leyte Gulf is an arm of the Pacific Ocean lying in almost the center of the eastern side of the Philippine archipelago.

Good Harbors There

The gulf, about 380 miles from Manila, is surrounded by high coasts with good natural harbors. It is bounded on the north by Samar, on the west by Leyte Island, while a number of smaller islands form the southern side.

Suluan guards the entrance to the gulf.

Suluan is a small island lying southeast of Samar on the eastern fringe of the central Philippines.

No Bombings Reported

No air attacks have been reported on Suluan, and the central islands have been the most free from bombing of the entire archipelago.

Tokyo radio has been warning its listeners for months that a Philippine invasion was brewing.

In preparation for a Philippines invasion Admiral Mitscher's carrier planes in combination with China based B-29s have temporarily immobilized the center of Japan's South China Sea air forces on Formosa. This is the fountainhead from which the Mikado's war lords would send aerial aid to the Philippines to try and drive United States assault troops back into the sea.

7 More Vessels Sent Down

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 19 (AP)—Showing no sign of a letup, the American Third Fleet kept pouring down on the Philippines today the carrier plane fury which already has knocked out more than 900 Japanese planes, close to 200 ships and more than 150 small surface craft since October 9 in the far western Pacific.

After crumbling the Ryukyus-Formoso line of reinforcement last week, Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., has concentrated his fire power on the Philippines, breaking radio silence only briefly to pass through fragmentary accounts of the operations.

More Ships Bagged

On the basis of admittedly preliminary reports, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced that seven enemy ships and 19 planes—including the lone plane encountered in the sky—were bagged yesterday in attacks on Luzon. Then he added:

"Action is continuing and further details will be released as they become available."

Daily since Sunday, Nimitz has referred to "continuing" raids on the Philippines.

Only 21 U. S. Planes Lost

The 19 planes were added to a total of 915 which Nimitz, in the same communique, said were destroyed October 9-15. Even that total was "based upon still incomplete reports."

Emphasizing the fleet's ability, during prolonged absence from base, to defend itself as well as deal out punishment, Nimitz said 256 Nipponese aircraft were shot down "in the vicinity of our fleet and 40 were knocked down by anti-aircraft fire." Another 269 were blasted from the skies over the targets, the remainder smashed on the ground.

Airdromes Hammered

He listed American losses through October 15 as 21 planes, 31 pilots, 21 air crewmen. He previously had acknowledged ship damage to two "medium" warships, contrasting with extravagant Japanese claims which prompted that nation to toast a paper "victory" today with specially rationed sake (rice wine).

Hitting the Philippines on the south while Halsey worked over the center, planes of Gen. Douglas MacArthur set fire to a 3,000-ton enemy freighter in Cagayan harbor and cratered two airdromes at Davao on Mindanao, a communique announced today.

The Nimitz communiques have contained few specifications as to places hit, but yesterday's named some:

Camiguin Island, north of Luzon, where two medium transports were sunk, a large transport and a small oil tanker set afire and two blazing medium transports beached.

Aparri, northern Luzon, where a cargo ship and waterfront fuel stores were enveloped in flames.

Vicente, where the one plane was sighted and downed; Laoag, where 15 of the 18 grounded planes were wiped out. Both are on Luzon.

These sustained attacks were interpreted earlier in the week by Tokyo radio for the homeland as "diversionary" to "rescue" Task Force 58 which, enemy reports claimed, virtually had ceased to exist after allegedly losing 13 carriers and upward of twoscore other warships. Nimitz had denied these claims and last night Tokyo radio, in self-contradiction, reported new air attacks on the task force.

Yap Outflanked

Nimitz announced yesterday that the Japanese-held island of Yap, vital weather station in the western Carolines, had been completely outflanked by American seizure Sunday of Ngulu atoll, 80 miles to the south. Puny enemy resistance was easily overwhelmed. This announcement quickly followed disclosure that 81st Division Army troops had landed unopposed in late September on Ulithi atoll, 100 miles east of Yap.

Yap thus became the only gap in a line of American holdings extending from Guam to Palau.

U. S. Box Score On Japs' Ship, Plane Losses

Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 19 (AP)—The American Third Fleet has been so busy against the Japanese, operating much of the time under radio silence, that Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., hasn't had the opportunity to list the complete enemy losses in ships and planes.

This is the incomplete backward glance:

Oct. 9—Third Fleet carrier planes raked the Ryukyus. Oct. 10—They opened attacks on the Philippines. Oct. 11, 12 and 13—They blasted Formosa. Then for the next two days the task force fought off Japanese planes.

Report On Jap Losses

The incomplete report of Japanese losses runs like this:

RYUKYUS—46 ships sunk, 11 probably sunk, 20 damaged; 41 small craft sunk, many damaged.

FORMOSA—32 ships sunk, 27 probably sunk, 41 damaged; more than 105 small craft sunk or damaged.

PHILIPPINES—Seven ships sunk or set afire.

Out of the welter of reports covering air battles over the raided islands and repulsion of enemy attacks on the fleet, it is possible only to give a generalized summary: More than 900 planes destroyed.

Additional Damage

Additionally, great damage has been done to enemy barracks, airfields, supply stores and defense installations.

American losses listed: 21 planes, 31 pilots, 21 air crewmen. Two "medium" warships damaged but able to retire under their own power.

Pearl Harbor, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—The Tokyo radio said today that American forces have landed in the Philippines, following a steady pounding by Allied naval and aerial might which had knocked out more than 900 Japanese planes, close to 200 ships and more than 150 smaller craft since Monday of last week.

The Japanese announcement said that the invasion forces had landed on Tuesday, last, on tiny Suluan Island, at the mouth of Leyte Gulf, about 415 miles southeast of Manila, and that the coastal areas were being subjected to an aerial and naval bombardment which began on Wednesday afternoon.

Another Landing Reported.

San Francisco, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—In a communique broadcast by the Tokyo radio and picked up by the Blue Network here this afternoon Japanese Imperial Headquarters reported American attempts to land on Leyte Island, in the central Philippines.

"Leyte, where the enemy has started landing attempts, is between Mindanao and Luzon islands," Tokyo added.

Halsey 'Salvages' Ships Tokyo 'Sank'

PEARL HARBOR, Oct. 19 (AP).—Admiral William F. Halsey thoroughly enjoyed Radio Tokyo's little joke about the Japanese Imperial Fleet having sunk between forty and fifty-two ships in his and Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's carrier force.

He proved it by sending comforting assurance to Admiral Chester W. Nimitz that he is now retiring toward the enemy, following the salvage of all the 3d Fleet's ships recently reported sunk by the Japanese.

Nimitz disclosed the message in a special press release.

NAZIS SAY FIFTH FLEET INVADES PHILIPPINES

LONDON, Oct. 19—(AP) The German radio, broadcasting repeated accounts of the reported American invasion of the Philippines, said tonight that the American landing attempt on the islands was a large scale enterprise.

Quoting the Japanese news agency Domei, the German radio said that the task force which entered Leyte gulf between the two main islands of Luzon and Mindanao "is a new one and was not engaged in the attacks on Formosa. It consists of naval forces of the Fifth American fleet under the command of Admiral Raymond Spruance and of the fleet under the commander-in-chief of the southwest Pacific Gen. MacArthur."

Philippine Landing Report Cheers Chinese

Chungking, Oct. 19 (AP)—Japanese reports of an Allied landing in the Philippines caused elation and excitement in Chungking. There was speculation that now Japanese plans to open an overland supply route through China could not be effected in time to benefit the enemy.

At the same time, however, the Chinese high command indicated that Japanese forces trying to open his overland route had reached a point only 21 miles north of the key Kwangsi province city of Kweilin.

Jap General Offers Filipinos 'Sympathy'

San Francisco, Oct. 19 (AP)—Radio Tokyo said today that Lieut. Gen. Masaharu Homma, commander of the Japanese forces that landed in the Philippines almost three years ago, sent a message of "heartfelt sympathy" to the Filipino people because "Americans are again trying to invade your country."

The broadcast quoted Homma as saying his army invaded the islands because "we were then forced to punish the Americans who poisoned East Asia by establishing headquarters in your land, and now the same Americans are again trying to invade your country, this time not only to fight Japan but also to do harm against you, Filipinos."

Awkward Spot For Japs

San Francisco, Oct. 19 (AP)—Japanese radio commentators faced a task today of reconciling today's reported invasion of the Philippines by General MacArthur's forces and a series of claims concerning a "great naval victory" near Formosa which they were preparing to celebrate October 20.

Radio Tokyo asserted Monday that scores of American ships had been knocked out by Japanese naval and air forces which had delayed the "impending invasion of the Philippines by at least two months."

The invasion, the high command said today, started just one day later.

PLEDGE REDEEMED, PRESIDENT SAYS

Promises Freedom for Philippines and a Lesson for Japan in Statement.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(Friday)—(AP) President Roosevelt said today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur's drive into the Philippines redeemed the pledge made when American troops surrendered on Corregidor two years ago and marked another "way station on the road to Japan."

"We promised to return, we have returned," Mr. Roosevelt said in a statement issued minutes after news of MacArthur's landings on the island of Leyte was flashed from the Southwest Pacific.

Promising freedom to the Philippine islands as soon as the Japanese invader has been driven out, the President said:

"We have learned our lesson about Japan. We trusted her and treated her with the decency due a civilized neighbor. We were foully betrayed. The price of the lesson was high.

Lesson for Japan

"Now we are going to teach Japan her lesson.

"We have the will and the power to teach her the cost of treachery and deceit and the cost of stealing from her neighbors. With our steadfast Allies we shall teach this lesson so that Japan will never forget it.

"We shall free the enslaved peoples. We shall restore stolen lands and looted wealth to their rightful owners. We shall strangle the black dragon of Japanese militarism forever."

Mr. Roosevelt messaged MacArthur that "you have the nation's gratitude and the nation's prayers for success as you and your men fight your way back to Bataan."

"The whole American nation today exults at the news that the gallant men under your command have landed on Philippine soil."

In a separate statement, Mr. Roosevelt said of the landings in the Philippines:

"We promised to return, we have returned."

"We have landed in the Philippines to redeem the pledge we made over two years ago when the last American troops surrendered on Corregidor after five months and 28 days of bitter resistance against overwhelming enemy strength," Mr. Roosevelt said, adding:

"Nowhere has the desire to avenge their comrades been stronger than among the forces to the southwest Pacific. Leyte is another rung in the long ladder General MacArthur's men have been climbing for two years."

Way Station to Japan

Mr. Roosevelt said "Leyte is only a way station on the road to Japan."

"From our new base we shall quicken the assault," the President said.

"Our attacks in the last week

30 24 — 19687

30. 24 — 19687

have been destructive and decisive, but now we shall strike even more devastating blows at Japan.

"Now we are going to teach Japan her lesson."

Mr. Roosevelt also sent a message to Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and Admiral William L. Halsey saying, "your fine cooperation with Gen. MacArthur furnishes another example of teamwork and the effective and intelligent use of all weapons."

In a third message, Mr. Roosevelt asked President Osmena to tell the Philippine people that "when the Japanese invaders have been driven out, the Philippines will take their place as a free and independent member of the family of nations."

tle front or home front—we remember those men and their memory spurs us to greater effort.

Nowhere has the desire to avenge their comrades been stronger than among the forces of the Southwest Pacific. Leyte is another rung in the long ladder General MacArthur's men have been climbing for two years.

Text of Roosevelt Statement

OCT 20 1944

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (Friday) (AP).—The text of President Roosevelt's statement on the landing in the Philippine Islands:

This morning American troops landed on the island of Leyte in the Philippines. The invasion forces, under the command of General Douglas MacArthur, are supported by the greatest concentration of naval and air power ever massed in the Pacific Ocean.

We have landed in the Philippines to redeem the pledge we made over two years ago when the last American troops surrendered on Corregidor after five months and twenty-eight days of bitter resistance against overwhelming enemy strength.

We promised to return, we have returned.

In my last message to General Wainwright, sent on the fifth of May, 1942, just before he was captured, I told him that the gallant struggle of his comrades had inspired every soldier, sailor and marine and all the workers in our shipyards and munitions plants. I said that he and his devoted followers had become the living symbol of our war aims and the guaranty of our victory.

That was true in 1942. It is still true in 1944.

We have never forgotten the courage of our men at Bataan and Corregidor. Their example inspired every American in the stern days of Guadalcanal, Tarawa, Salerno and Normandy. And in every campaign—on bat-out of Buna and Gona, digging them out of Wewak, starving them at Hollandia—the advance has been a slow, tough struggle by our jungle fighters.

Now they have reached Leyte.

In the six years before the war broke out, the Philippine government acting in harmonious accord with the United States, made great strides towards complete establishment of her sovereignty. The United States promised to help build a new nation in the Pacific, a nation whose ideals, like our own, were liberty and equality and the democratic way of life—a nation which in a very short time would join the friendly family of nations on equal terms.

We were keeping that promise. When the war came and our work was wrecked, we pledged to the people of the Philippines that their freedom would be redeemed and that their independence would be established and protected. We are fulfilling that pledge now. When we have finished the job of driving the Japs from the islands, the Philippines will be a free and independent republic.

There never was a doubt that the people of the Philippines were worthy of their independence. There will never be a doubt.

The Filipinos have defended their homeland with fortitude and gallantry. We confidently expect to see them liberated with courage and audacity.

On Road to Japan

Under the leadership of President Manuel Quezon whose death came on thet eve of his country's liberation, and now under the leadership of their President Sergio Osmena, the Filipinos have carried on, and are carrying on with gallentry—even in the midst of the enemy.

We are glad to be back in the Philippines but we do not intend to stop there.

Leyte is only a way station on the road to Japan. It is 700 miles from Formosa. It is 850 miles from China. We are astride the lifeline of the warlords' empire, we are severing that lifeline. Our bombers, our ships and our submarines are cutting off the ill-gotten conquests from the homeland. From our new base we shall quicken the assault. Our attacks of the last week have been destructive and decisive, but now we shall strike even more devastating blows at Japan. We have learned our lesson about Japan. We trusted her, and treated her with the decency due a civilized neighbor. We were foully betrayed. The price of the lesson was high.

Now we are going to teach Japan her lesson.

We have the will and the power to teach her ehe cost of treachery and deceit, and the cost of stealing from her neighbors. With our steadfast allies, we shall teach this lesson so that Japan will never forget it.

We shall free the enslaved peoples. We shall restore stolen lands and looted wealth to their rightful owners. We shall strangle the black dragon of Japanese militarism forever.

How They're Pronounced

OCT 20 1944

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP)—The two points in the Philippines, newly in the news on the basis of enemy broadcasts are prononuced, say National Geographic Society experts:

Leyte—lay-tay (accent on first syllable).

Suluan—soo-loo-ahn (accent on second syllable).

Germans Report All-Out Assault on German Border Is Imminent.

OCT 20 1944

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 20 (AP) Canadian troops accelerated their drive against Germans pocketed in the Schelde estuary of Holland yesterday, one column bursting forward three miles, and last night the Berlin radio blurted out fresh speculation on the imminence of an all-out Allied assault across the Dutch-German frontier.

Late reports said the Canadians were fighting inside Breskens, just across the estuary from flooded Walcheren island, while another Canadian column splashed through the marshes three miles to within one mile of Oostburg, squarely in the center of the pocket.

Seek to Open Antwerp Port

This action was part of the determined effort to clear away German forces blocking the Schelde river leading to Antwerp and German military spokesmen have repeatedly maintained that a British-American "knockout blow" would be attempted somewhere between Aachen and Arnhem as soon as the Antwerp supply channel was opened to Gen. Eisenhower.

But German broadcasts last night said Eisenhower might not even wait for the Belgian port to become available before launching a new assault. One propagandist even predicted a new seaborne invasion in the vicinity of Rotterdam.

The Canadians were making steady progress, but in some cases meeting desperate opposition. German troops counterattacked fiercely against Lt. Gen. H. D. Crear's units on the three-mile wide split of land stretching out to Walcheren and front dispatches said some of the enemy had won a foothold in the north edge of Woensdrecht.

British troops advancing southward from captured Venray ploughed 3 1-2 miles deeper into the German Maas River bridgehead in Holland today and with a strong American force converged upon the key town of Amerika, astride one of the main railroads leading eastward into Germany's industrial northern Rhineland.

Nazis Retreat Near Venray

The Germans, given no respite after their costly defeat at Venray, and faced with possible entrapment on the Maas west bank, began hastily retreating from strong positions northeast of Venray, and to the south and southwest fell back before powerful American and British drives. It was the eighth day of an Allied offensive to eliminate the German Maas salient and prepare the ground for a big smash into the northern Siegfried line.

The British drove to points approximately three miles north of Amerika, while American forces pushing steadily eastward from the Deurne area continued to roll across the Deurne canal and stood about the same distance west of the town.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' American First Army in hand-to-hand and house-to-house fighting through Aachen won control of more than half of the city, finding German resistance as stubborn and strong as it was on the first day of the siege of the big German center 11 days ago.

At the channel end of the Western front Canadian troops advanced northward to within a mile of the key German port of Breskens on the south bank of the Schelde estuary and also closed in on the town from the east, reaching an unnamed bay two miles away.

The rest of the front was relatively static on a day of continued bad weather, worst toward the south; Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's American Third army in eastern France was bogged in mud, the doughboys lying in many of the same trenches their fathers used in the first World War, while American and French troops in the Vosges foothills further to the south consolidated and improved their positions despite German counterattacks.

Drive Toward Amerika

The focal point of the entire front was the British-American drive against the enemy's Maas salient and particularly against the railroad town of Amerika. Lying six miles south of Venray, Amerika is on the railroad from Helmond leading southeastward through the border city of Venlo and on into Germany through Crefeld to the Rhineland. Amerika is just eight miles northwest of Venlo, an important prize in itself.

Northeast of Venray where the Germans had dug in as if for the winter, the determined onslaught of the British Tommies and the Allied success in Venray apparently forced the enemy to change his strategy, for the Nazi troops were pulling out of this sector today.

The British advance southwest of Venray toward Amerika put the Allied troops across a supply road leading to enemy units holding up British and American armor in waterlogged marshes near the Deurne canal. A British staff officer said that as a result German resistance was expected to weaken considerably here.

The Americans driving eastward on Amerika reached a point along the railroad halfway from Deurne.

Attack Seen as Preliminary to Big Offensive Aimed at Early Victory.

CANADIANS GAIN ON SCHELDE

OCT 20 1944

Battle to Clear River Estuary for Shipping to Antwerp—Aachen Fall in Sight.

SINGLETON

London, ~~Oct. 19~~ (A. P.).—British Tommies and American armor rocked the Germans back toward Venlo on the Maas (Meuse) from the Holland salient today in what appeared to be the preliminaries to an offensive aimed at breaking organized German resistance before Christmas.

West of Antwerp in Holland Canadian forces were less than two miles from the German guns at Breskens commanding the sea entrance to the port from the pocket south of the Schelde.

In Aachen United States First Army troops, again smashing German tank and infantry counterthrusts northeast of the Siegfried Line city, held about half the wrecked city and smashed on into the northwestern quarter where fighters and fighter bombers pinpointed strongpoints ahead of the bazooka and grenade squads.

Coincident with Berlin's report of a savage Russian onslaught against East Prussia's defenses, the German radio declared that the British offensive in East Holland, "in support of the American attack on Aachen, has increased in violence." The timing raised the possibility of a grand strategy plan to beat the Nazis by smashing simultaneously at East Prussia, heart of German militarism, while wrecking the Rhine-Ruhr Valley, the center of German industry.

Dempsey's Troops Advance.

An Associated Press war correspondent with the British Second Army said that Lieut. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's troops, striking swiftly after taking Venray, had advanced about three and one-half miles south toward the railroad town of Amerika. An American armored column was converging at a distance of five miles upon the same objective from the east.

The Germans had been eliminated from all but about seven square miles of territory west of the Maas, and the Allies were within thirty-three miles of Duisburg in the Ruhr.

Berlin said that Gen. Dempsey had concentrated strong forces in the area to annihilate the Germans' Maas bridgehead—an objective which would straighten the line along the Dutch border in preparation for an Allied cross river assault. In a desperate effort to avoid being trapped on the west bank, the Germans apparently were falling back to the south toward Venlo as their comrades in the Venray-Amerika area were pushed back.

Eisenhower's Communique.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's communique, officially reporting the seizure of the rail and road town of Venray, seven miles from the German border, said that Allied forces had advanced two miles south of the Venray-Deurne road and gains had been made from the west along the north side of the railway east of Deurne.

The German report on this sector said that bitter hand-to-hand fighting was taking place east and northeast of Helmond, which the enemy has acknowledged evacuating. Helmond is five miles west of Deurne.

Inside shell-ripped Aachen the end appeared in sight. The Allied communique, however, said that the Nazi garrison was resisting stubbornly, and placed the center of the fighting in the northwest section.

From the Berlin radio came a report that the Americans had reached the main Aachen station and were pushing on toward the heart of the city.

Northwest of the city, Lieut.-Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's doughboys clearing the way for resumption of the offensive, "destroyed a large number of pillboxes and have made gains against strong opposition," the communique said.

New Nazi Attack Repulsed.

It was apparent that his forces were engaged in a methodical sweeping-up process to liquidate the old Siegfried defenses before tackling the trench positions beyond. It is obvious, to, that the interval was being used to bring up supplies to support a concentrated offensive.

Once again the Germans attempted to break the ring of steel about the big industrial city, but the same troops who closed the last gap beat off two tanks-supported infantry counter-attacks.

In the Schelde pocket, cross-crossed by dikes and streams. German resistance was evaporating with the 5,000-man garrison reported reduced to about 1,000. Canadians thrust into the center of the pocket near the hamlet of Waterlandkerkje, five and a half miles south on Breskens, where German batteries are concentrated.

On Bank of Schelde.

Another Canadian infantry force fought its way along the south bank of the Schelde past Nommer Een to within a mile and a half of Breskens and brought the seacoast town under its guns so that it could no longer be used for evacuation. The Canadians took 480 prisoners yesterday and in their advances now held about a third of the pocket, with the Germans resisting along the road running from Breskens southwest through Schoondijke, Oostburg and Sluis.

North of Antwerp, where the other half of the Schelde battle is being waged, the Germans again were back in the western half of Woensdrecht, in the week of the spot leading to Walcheren and Zuid Beveland islands.

In the Vosges foothills, Eisenhower reported that Allied positions had been consolidated and improved at several points despite stubborn enemy resistance and vain counter-attacks.

In the area east of Epinal the American Seventh Army occupied the village of Champ le Duc, little over a mile south of Bruyeres—an advance of about a mile from Laval.

The French First Army beat off six German counterattacks against its deepened bridgehead over the Moselotte River farther south, where the Poilus are feeling the approaches to Schlucht Pass from the area of La Bresse, thirty-two miles from the Rhine.

A British Second Army staff officer was quoted in a front dispatch last night as expressing the view there is a probable chance the major decision and final phase of the European war may be fought out in the next ten weeks.

Preparations for a large-scale and sustained Allied jump-off toward the Rhine now are approaching an end, he said. The current jabbing operations at Aachen and elsewhere along the front are necessary, he added, to prepare a springboard.

How soon the attack will start was said to depend upon two major factors—favorable weather and establishment of a shorter route of supply.

Antwerp The Logical Port

Antwerp, only 100 miles from the Rhine-Ruhr confluence, is the logical port of supply for the Western front. A dispatch from supreme headquarters in Paris said the battle to open up its docks now is moving into the final phase.

Antwerp fell into Allied hands virtually undamaged September 4 in the swift British-Canadian thrust northward in Belgium, but German guns still commanded both sides of the 50-mile stretch of the Schelde river estuary down to the sea.

The Canadians have squeezed the enemy out of all but the last south-bank box roughly 12 miles wide and 10 to 15 miles deep across from Flushing. A hard fight lies ahead, however, and the Germans can be expected to do everything in their power to block the channel.

Until the Antwerp docks are available Allied stores must be transported hundreds of miles from the main Normandy base.

NAZIS FORECAST BIG ALLIED DRIVE

H-COWAN

LONDON, Oct. 19—(AP) The Berlin radio tonight forecast a possible combined offensive by the British Second army and the American First army, timed with a seaborne invasion of Rotterdam.

The Rotterdam invasion, commentator Ludwig Sertorius said, must come unless the great port of Antwerp is freed for Allied use "within a very short time."

"Although the enemy needs Antwerp badly," the broadcast stated, "he cannot afford to wait any longer to improve conditions for a new attack by the British, and the first blow may be expected any moment now."

One Berlin military spokesman spread the view that "American penetration at Venray in eastern Holland may be regarded as a curtain-raiser for a new major offensive."

Another said:

"Between Eindhoven and Nijmegen, the Second British army is regrouping and reinforcing formations with one infantry and one tank division, also with parts of an American tank division. Preparations for a further Allied major operation between Waal and Meuse are in progress."

WAR RULES VARY FOR PEOPLE'S ARMY

OCT 20 1944

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—The Allied treatment of the German people's army which Adolf Hitler is raising to combat invasion will vary according to the circumstances under the rules of war which the United Nations are following.

Under these rules inhabitants who take up arms at the approach of Allied forces to resist are accorded the rights of belligerents, provided they carry their arms openly and even though they are not organized.

But if the people of a region already occupied by the Allies rise against the occupying army they are violators of the rules of war and may be put to death on capture.

All offenders against the military which Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is imposing on occupied Germany will have the right to trial. But in practice armed civilians caught in hostile acts are likely to be shot as Allied soldiers naturally would open fire in such cases.

Rain, Mud in Nancy Area Reminds Veteran of Fighting in Last War

OCT 20 1944

GALLAGHER

LANDREMONT, France, Oct. 19—(AP) American Doughboys are dug in along this sector northeast of Nancy in many of the same trenches used by Americans over a quarter of a century ago.

The Doughboy of the First World war dropped back onto the Third Army front here would find it just about as he left it, including the mud.

The same shell-shattered towns with manure piles in front of the wrecked houses, the same dripping skies, and above all the mud, oceans of it and rivers of it where the roads are supposed to be.

"I don't believe it's stopped raining since I left this front 27 years ago," declared Lt. Col. Joseph E. Shaw, Philadelphia engineer who fought as an artilleryman near this sector in the last war with the Second and 84th divisions and who is back again as an artilleryman with the 80th division.

GI's arriving in this area found the ground laced with long, irregular grass-covered depressions—where trenches of the last war have been almost obliterated by nature. The soldiers dug modern foxholes in these same depressions.

Static warfare for a month has torn up the country in Verdun style. Trees lie toppled over, and thousands of yards of this bridgehead are pitted with shell holes.

Three miles north of this village infantry was moving across the fields toward the front when German shells started coming over. The GI's never stopped. They must move on and the scene looked like a movie reconstruction of the last war.

Destruction in the villages is even greater than in the last war although it was waged for years over one spot then.

"That is because we are using heavier and more potent shells and also because of the air force," Shaw said.

The mud already is kneedeep and getting deeper as the tanks tear up even the paved roads. Rains have filled the foxholes brimfull.

In this war the troops are billeting in the fields rather than the villages and as a result GI ingenuity has been stretched to combat discomfort.

The infantry at the front can do nothing but lie in the water-filled foxholes and take it, but other troops have gone in for fancy sod-covered dugouts with tin walls and wood floors.

But freezing winds and ankle-deep slush have failed to dampen the troop's spirits.

"We got running water in every dugout," wisecracked Corp. Conway Nuckols of Jones Springs, W. Va.

"My uncle was over here in the last war and he told me it rained 365 days out of the year and by golly I believe him," declared Private Edmund Fisher of Mishawaka, Ind. He is a lineman with the 80th division.

Another lineman, Private Floyd Bruce, Bloomington, Ind., said the mud was even worse than he expected but he was better off than "the poor damned infantry up there."

Private Alfred R. Taylor, Muskegon Heights, Mich., added "amen."

Medical T5 Kyle Deshaza of Leeds, Ala., came up with a very wet and puzzled mole in a box.

"I have been trying to catch one of these for two years," he said. "I am going to keep him for a pet."

Some German Civilians Fed Up

AACHEN, Oct. 19 (AP)—Instances indicating a breakdown in the solidarity between German civilians and their military in this battered city were reported tonight by a senior American staff officer to be resulting from the harshness of military rules and the desire of some civilians to get out of the war.

One captured German soldier reported that two women cursed him recently in the streets when he gave the Hitler salute and told him that he and all other German soldiers were "idiotic" not to quit fighting. But whatever this civilian feeling may be, it is the Nazi troops with guns in their hands who are the important factor, and these troops are still fighting without the slightest indication of any lowering of combat morale.

About 150 more Nazi prisoners were taken during the day, the eleventh day of street fighting in Aachen. The savagery of enemy resistance remains undiminished as the Germans continue to pour on everything they have with rifles, machine guns, mortars, some artillery and a few tanks.

Rationing Turns French Wives Into Bookkeepers

DYAR

Paris, Oct. 19 (AP)—The American housewife who has trouble keeping track of her red and blue points can thank her stars she does not live in France, where rationing seems to be a cross between a jigsaw puzzle and a lottery.

For the last four years every essential item of foodstuffs, plus clothing, fuel and wine has been rationed under a system which, to the neophyte, appears to be the world's most complicated.

A Major Bookkeeping Job

The system has pyramided to a point where it is a major bookkeeping job just to keep the various rationing cards, coupons and tickets in fairly understandable order.

But merely having a rationing card isn't enough. One must have coupons with the correct numbers and correct colors to fit a given situation at a given time in a given location. It's as simple as all that.

For example, the morning newspaper may announce the distribution in certain localities of two ounces of butter against "GD" coupons and in another section against "GP" coupons.

Location Important

No matter how many coupons you have left in your ration book for that item they're no good unless you hold "GD" or "GP" coupons—depending on what section of the city you live in.

The same day any coupon from "DC" to "DQ" may be used for two bunches of carrots—while the number 47 of the year 1944 on the potato ration ticket may be good for half a pound of spuds in all wards east of the river.

Holders of coupon "GD" to "JZ" for October, 1944, on the cheese ticket may be permitted to purchase a pound, provided they are able to show "DX" coupon on the same ration card still unused.

One Ounce Of Meat

Holding coupons "U-7" or "U-8" plus coupons "UX," "UY" and "UZ" on the meat ticket may enable you to purchase one ounce of meat in a given area within a certain length of time—but only if your card is blue with brown lettering.

Acute shortages of foodstuffs are responsible for the complicated procedure. Theoretically, one should be able to enter a store, surrender the proper coupon and walk home with the family dinner.

But the supplies have never been enough to go around and sometimes haven't existed at all.

Special Tickets

So authorities can redeem only a portion of the coupons outstanding. Hence, by a sort of lottery system, coupons are declared valid by groups and areas.

And, by the way—there are special tickets for children, infants, pregnant women and for men engaged in manual labor.

FRENCH 'WEST POINT' IS REPORTED IN RUINS

PARIS, Oct. 19 — (AP) France's famous military academy at St. Cyr, three miles west of Versailles, is in ruins—the result of Allied pre-liberation bombing and German occupation of its buildings as a military warehouse, it was reported today.

No one building is intact at the Academy, known as the "West Point" of France. The school for training officers in the French cavalry and infantry was established in 1808.

Queen Ming's Luxury

30. 24 — 19689

Hideout Gone

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP—Delayed)—Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering employed thousands of workmen to build a luxurious underground headquarters outside Paris, according to the French press, but all the Allies found intact was one swimming pool.

The remainder of the establishment, situated at Coudray sur Thelle, 40 miles from Paris, was destroyed by the fleeing Nazis.

Luxurious Apartments

Work on the headquarters, says the newspaper Front National, was begun in 1941 inside a barbed-wire inclosure. Hidden from prying eyes were underground offices, luxuriously furnished apartments, a colossal casino for entertainment and halls for athletics.

During the construction, the paper said, a cave-in killed more than 100 workers. When work was finally completed, Goering established himself for long periods, in the underground village, where fine concrete roads led cars down ramps through air well ventilated by huge steel-lined shafts.

Artists From Paris

Special performances were said to have been staged for Goering in the casino by artists especially brought from Paris.

Only disturbing factor was the British Royal Air Force, which bombed the district heavily in June, 1943, Front National said. The following month, it added, one plane dropped a one-ton bomb right in the entrance tunnel.

Wac Officer Honored in Paris

PARIS, Friday, Oct. 20 (AP)—Lieut. Col. Anna M. Wilson, Wac director in the European theatre of operations, has received the Legion of Merit Award, the first member of the Wac to be decorated with this honor. Lieut. Gen. John C. H. Lee, commanding general of this communications zone, pinned the award on Colonel Wilson at a dinner attended by Brig. Gen. Allen Kimball, commandant of Paris, and high-ranking Wac officials.

U. S. Actress In France Aided Flyers To Escape

Paris, Oct. 19 (AP)—A former American actress who worked as a member of the French underground during the German occupation of France said last night she posed alternately as an invalid and an amateur farmer while helping a number of American and British flyers escape.

Born in Santa Barbara, Cal., as Dorothy Blackman, she appeared in Hollywood and in the Broadway production, "Green Grow the Lilacs," as Dorothy Leyton. She married a French actor and was known in France as Drue Tartiere. Her husband, in the French army, was killed at Damascus.

Never Yield To Enemy, Goebbels Tells Nazis

New York, Oct. 19 (AP)—Germany "must stand up to this war with all its torments for spirit, soul and body" for the sake of its children and never think of yielding to the enemy, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels said today in his magazine Das Reich.

The article declared "no father or mother would have the right to raise children" in a defeated Germany, "for they would be born in a hell of national suffering and humiliation."

RUSSIANS SWEEP INTO PRUSSIA IN HUGE OFFENSIVE

KASISCHKE

Berlin Reports Soviet Troops Capture Eydtkau Inside Border.

REDS SILENT ON DRIVE

Moscow Announces New Gains in Slovakia, Enemy Routed in Belgrade.

LONDON, Friday, Oct. 20—(AP) A huge Red army, composed of Moscow and Stalingrad veterans and supported by waves of tanks and planes and hundreds of big Soviet guns, has begun the first Russian invasion of pre-war Germany, smashing several miles into East Prussia and still was making headway at midnight, Berlin announced early today.

The fall of Eydtkau, border town 37 miles east of the ten-way junction of Insterburg, and 87 miles from the East Prussian capital of Konigsberg on the German Baltic coast, was announced officially yesterday by the German high command.

Drive Not Confirmed

Moscow, as is usual at the unfolding of important operations, kept silent about the offensive which Berlin said was backed by 600 tanks and supported at both ends of a flaming 200-mile front by two other massive armies attacking on the northern and southern ends of the imperilled Junker homeland.

A dramatic midnight broadcast from Berlin quoted a German front correspondent as saying that the Russians still were digging deeper into the ancient land of the Teutonic knights, and adding:

"No battle in the east has ever seen such concentrations of Russian air forces and seasoned campaigners cannot recall a similar surfeit of Russian artillery and tanks."

Another broadcast made earlier said the Russians possessed "an unheard of numerical superiority." While the Germans often emphasize their own inferiority during a severe Nazi reverse, Moscow dispatches previously said that the Russians had massed a tremendous force along the East Prussian frontier, where an army has been poised for two months.

Berlin said German reserves were being rushed to the front, presumably these include units of the new home army of all males between 16 and 60, whose formation Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler announced Wednesday in a speech somewhere in East Prussia.

War in Final Stage

Without mentioning the East Prussian sector the Moscow radio last night said "the war has entered its final stage" now that Soviet armies are swarming into Czechoslovakia on a 171-mile front, battling German-Hungarian forces around the strategic road and rail hub of Debrecen in Hungary, and annihilating Axis troops in Belgrade, invaded Yugoslav capital.

A midnight Soviet bulletin described Belgrade as a "cauldron" where several thousand isolated and pocketed Germans fell in a single day, and Marshal Tito's Yugoslav partisan headquarters said the Yugoslavs alone had killed 5,000 Germans there.

The liberation of Belgrade appeared to be imminent, with the enemy compressed into a narrow portion of the Danube city.

In Hungary the Russians struck to within seven miles of Debrecen after a violent ten-day tank battle, Moscow announced, and in five days ended Wednesday captured more than 11,000 Germans and Hungarians, in addition to great stocks of equipment.

New gains also were reported in southeastern Czechoslovakia but Moscow did not give the progress of other Soviet troops and attached Czechoslovak units battering their way into Slovakia, the middle portion of the Allied state which was shattered by the Germans and their Allies before the war began.

The smash into East Prussia presumably was under the direction of the brilliant 37-year-old Jewish tank expert, Gen. Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky. His Third White Russian army troops, using thousands of American-made jeeps and trucks, swept over Eydtkau, a half-mile across the Lithuanian border on the Kaunas-Konigsberg highway.

Crack Nazi Defenses

The Russians broke through the main German fortifications, but Berlin hastened to assure the homeland that the Nazi lines were "elastic and staggered" and that the loss of German soil was not necessarily decisive in the war.

It was the first time in 30 years that Russian troops had invaded Germany. In 1914 Czarist armies entered East Prussia along the same Kaunas-Konigsberg highway and also in the south in the Masurian Lake area. The famous battle of Tanenberg followed, and the Russians were crushed and routed by von Hindenberg.

Cherniakhovsky's troops first reached the East Prussian frontier north of Eydtkau August 17, and before that invaded the annexed Suwalki triangle to the south. Since then they have jockeyed for advantageous positions, awaiting the cleanup of the Baltic states in the north and the penetration of northern Poland in the south so that their flanks would be secure.

Only Part Of Pincers

Berlin said Cherniakhovsky's blow from the east was only part of a gigantic Soviet pincers against East Prussia, launched by three armies bolstered by tremendous reserves moved up from the conquered Finnish and Estonian fronts.

On the north, Gen. Ivan C. Bagramian's First Baltic Army struck along the frontier of German-annexed Memel territory, and on the south Gen. G. F. Zakharov's Second White Russian Army lashed out on a 65-mile front above Warsaw, beyond the Narew river in northern Poland between Serock and Nowograd.

Nowograd is only 15 miles from the Nazi frontier and Berlin said Zakharov's eventual objective was Danzig, where some of the first shots of the war were fired. Danzig lies 150 airline miles northwest of Nowograd and its seizure would lop off all East Prussia.

Superiority Cited

"German reserve divisions are on the march to seal off this breach," a late German transocean agency broadcast said of the penetration beyond Edytkau. But the commentator, Lieut. Gen. Alfred von Olberg, emphasized the tremendous superiority of the Russians and added: "There can be no doubt that the Soviets will do everything to drive home to the full this initial success."

The Germans, in admitting for the first time the loss of a German village to the Red army, said they had destroyed 250 Soviet tanks and prevented a breakthrough on a 47-mile front between Schirwindt, 11 miles north of Edytkau, and Suwalki, 38 miles south of the fallen border town.

The Russians were striving to "achieve a grand scale breakthrough at all costs," Berlin said.

RUSSIANS GAIN WITH 500 TANKS IN EAST PRUSSIA

Germans Admit Evacuating Town in Homeland on Eastern Front.

GREAT FORCES ARE IN ATTACK

Front Is Widened to 45 Miles —Enemy Says Battle Is Rising in Intensity

London, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—Russian forces backed by 500 tanks have penetrated well into East Prussia where the German border town of Eydtkuhnen has been evacuated, the Berlin radio said today.

"The deepest Russian penetration" was in the Eydtkuhnen area thirty-seven miles east of Insterburg, and the Red Army has passed this town, Berlin said. "The Russians have advanced further on German soil."

The German communique acknowledged loss of the town but insisted that a breakthrough had been averted.

Tremendous infantry and tank forces were being hurled against the homeland of the Junker generals to "achieve a grand scale breakthrough at all costs," the enemy said.

The front was widened from thirty to forty-five miles overnight with the Russians extending their attacks to the area of Suwalki, center of a triangle which Hitler annexed from Poland to East Prussia in 1939.

The enemy admission came within hours after the Russians announced an invasion of Czecho-Slovakia in the south on a 171-mile front, plunging through the main Carpathian Mountain passes to a junction with other Russian Army groups driving through Transylvania and Hungary.

The German communique said 250 Russian tanks had been disabled in the three-day battle at the edge of East Prussia, a campaign not yet announced by the Kremlin. Strong Russian attacks were reported west of Riga and southeast of the Latvian escape port of Liepaja, through which remnants of perhaps ten trapped German divisions in the Baltics must attempt an escape. Beyond Petsamo, the German Command reported heavy fighting on the arctic road leading into the frozen tundras of northern Norway.

The Germans early tonight reported another Russian offensive along a sixty-mile stretch of the Narew River above Warsaw which they declared was aimed at the Baltic port of Danzig, where some of the first shots of the war were fired.

Success of such a campaign would cut off the entire province of East Prussia. The front was reported extending from Serock, north of Warsaw, to Novograd, fifteen miles south of the East Prussian border. Serock, however, is 160 airline miles from Danzig.

Right and Left Hooks.

"The Russians quite obviously mean to tear open the German front by simultaneous right and left hooks from the Narew bridgeheads and the area between Suwalki and Schirwindt," the Berlin broadcast said.

Berlin tacitly acknowledged in yesterday's communique that the great Russian offensive had plunged across the East Prussia border and reached the other frontier town of Schirwindt, nine miles northeast of Eydtkuhnen. Moscow has not yet announced the drive.

Eydtkuhnen is thirty-seven miles east of the major Prussian rail center of Insterburg on the trunk highway and railroad from Kaunas, Lithuania. It is eighty-seven miles east of Konigsberg, capital of East Prussia and a German submarine training station. Eydtkuhnen is a town of about 5,000, and the first German settlement which the Nazis have abandoned in the east.

Battle Rising in Fury.

"The battle is rising in intensity and taking on greater proportions," the Berlin radio said. "The Russians have brought up most of their forces from Finland and Estonia and flung them into the fray."

The enemy said the drive, under command of the 36-year-old Russian Jewish general, Ivan D. Cherniakovsky, was aimed at Insterburg. The battle was reported savage all along a thirty-mile front from Schirwindt to Kalvarija in Lithuania.

"The Soviets are employing their old tactics of blasting a way for their infantry through German positions with massed use of artillery and bombers," said Col. Ernst von Hammer, Nazi commentator. He asserted that the defenses of East Prussia were "very elastic and deeply staggered." He said 257 Russian tanks had been destroyed in three days.

The reported breakthrough was north of the wild, Masurian Lake country where armies of the Czar sustained a crushing defeat from Von Hindenburg in opening months of the last war.

Menaced From Three Sides

The most eastern German province is menaced on the north, east and southeast by the Russians, and Berlin has said repeatedly that the strategy is to drive to the west of East Prussia to the former free city of Danzig, cutting off the entire province. Russian armies which might strike in that direction, however, have been pinned down on the Narew river north of Warsaw since summer.

The evacuation of Eydtkuhnen, von Hammer said, "shows that the German command is quite prepared to give further ground, if it gives greater effect to their defenses."

POLES SUSPEND MOSCOW PARLEY

LONDON, Oct. 19 — (AP) The conferences in the Soviet capital between the rival Polish factions from Lublin and London have been suspended without final decision, the Moscow radio said tonight. The Lublin group is standing firm on its demand that acceptance by the London delegation of the 1921 Polish constitution be made the basis for any negotiations.

The radio said both groups achieved "clarification of their respective points of view," and that the conferences will be renewed "in the nearest future" after Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk confers with his exile cabinet in London.

The Polish National Liberation committee's delegation has returned to Lublin, the radio added.

On Oct. 13, the broadcast said, the Lublin group conferred with Marshal Stalin, Prime Minister Churchill, their respective foreign ministers and American and British ambassadors in Moscow.

Then on Oct. 16 Premier Mikolajczyk and the chief of the Lublin group met, after which Mikolajczyk was quoted as saying he "intends to coordinate his point of view with that of his colleagues in London in order to receive the necessary powers to continue the negotiations in the nearest future," the broadcast declared.

Meanwhile British negotiators turned their attention from the Polish question to what was described as "studying papers" dealing with the Hungarian situation, a Moscow dispatch said.

Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov was reported considering matters in connection with the Bulgarian armistice.

Tentative Polish Pact Reported

Moscow, Oct. 19 (AP)—Leaders of the Soviet-sponsored Polish Committee of National Liberation have reached a tentative understanding with Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the London Government in exile, and a spokesman for Mikolajczyk's delegation said:

"We expect it will be only a matter of weeks before both Polish camps start working together in Poland."

Leaders of the Lublin committee headed for home, while Mikolajczyk arranged to return to London and submit the tentative settlement to his Cabinet in exile for approval.

Found Conciliatory

The spokesman for the London group said Mikolajczyk had an important conference two days ago with strongman Bierut, of the Lublin regime, and found him "conciliatory."

"The Poles in London are realistic," said this source. "You can expect them to take notice of the real situation regarding Poland. Very definite progress has been made in Moscow, which will become apparent to the whole world in the near future."

In the last 48 hours the mood of Mikolajczyk's delegation has progressed from extreme pessimism to solid optimisim, and it is in the latter frame of mind that the delegation returns to London.

Accord Is Hinted

Observers here expressed belief Bierut and Mikolajczyk are in substantial agreement now on the framework of a united Polish Government.

Agreement may have been aided by frequent assertions of Mikolajczyk's delegation that it would not allow the 1935 Polish constitution to stand in the way of a settlement, nor would it take an uncompromising position regarding leadership of the Polish armed forces. The Lublin Poles had demanded abrogation of the 1935 Constitution, and appointment of a Lublin man as head of Poland's army.

POLISH TALKS END WITHOUT DECISION

OCT 20 1944

London, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—The Moscow radio announced tonight that conferences in the Soviet capital between the rival Polish factions from Lublin and London had been suspended without decision, but with "clarification of their respective points of view."

The radio said the conferences would be renewed "in the nearest future" after Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk confers with his exiled Cabinet in London.

Polish Talks Near End

Moscow, Oct. 19 (AP)—Moscow's Polish negotiations were believed in their final phase today and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov turned his attention to the Bulgarian armistice question.

Stanislaw Mikolajczyk saw Prime Minister Churchill last night and Molotov received the Bulgarian armistice delegation Tuesday, it was announced today.

SAY NAZIS EXECUTE WARSAW PATRIOTS

London, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—The Polish Government in Exile charged today that the Germans were executing in gas chambers members of the Polish Patriot Army who surrendered in Warsaw with Lieut.-Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski (Gen. Bor). Germany had promised to treat the Patriots as prisoners of war.

Basing its assertion on "advices just received from London," the Polish Government declared that thousands have already been forced into the death chambers at the Oswiecim concentration camp and that 12,400 others, taken during the Warsaw battle, were awaiting execution. Nothing was said of the fate of Gen. Komorowski himself. He was Commander in Chief of Polish armed forces.

The executions were said to have started on October 7 when prisoners protested against German killings. The statement said that 200 Poles were killed when the Nazis machine-gunned their barracks on that occasion.

London, Oct. 19 (AP)—The German radio announced tonight that Col. Gen. Johannes Friessner, a defensive-withdrawal specialist from the now-smashed Baltic front, has been named commander in chief of all operations in Hungary.

HUNGARIANS PLAN TO CONTINUE WAR ON SIDE OF NAZIS

LONDON, Oct. 19 — (AP) Premier Ferenc Szalasi, ignoring Adolf Hitler's frank admission that Germany no longer has a single European ally, appealed to Hungarians today for a last-ditch stand against national extermination.

He promised "prosecution of the war at the side of the tri-partite powers until final victory."

The leader of Hungary's new puppet government, in a proclamation after the first formal meeting of his pro-German cabinet, pledged nationalization of mines and large industries, and post-war expulsion of Hungary's Jews "to a place designated by international agreement."

He coupled this with a threat to carry out ruthless measures against "enemies from inside or outside the country."

The First Hungarian army, the Paris radio reported, has joined forces with the Russians.

(In Moscow, great disturbances were reported in Budapest. A correspondent of Tass, Russian news agency, reported wholesale execution of Jews in Hungary was about to take place, asserting that all Jews had been locked in their homes.

(It was also reported from Moscow that Hungary's Fascists had given soldiers who turned against the Germans until noon tomorrow to return to duty, under penalty of death when captured.)

From Bari, Italy, came varying reports on fate of Admiral Nicholas Horthy, former Hungarian regent.

One was that he had fled to the mountains. Another was that the Germans abducted him. Bari reports said strikes virtually had paralyzed Budapest. Street battles, as well, were declared in progress.

A still more ominous sign as to Horthy's fate was seen in the broadcast by his longtime enemy and new interior minister, Gabriel Vajna, who said Szalasi's government had finished "dispensing with the traitors."

A great armored battle was reported in the Debrecen area, where the Russians closing in on eastern Hungary are attempting to trap the retreating German Sixth and Eighth armies.

Hungarian experts at Bari said the chief factor preventing Horthy's attempt to win an armistice last Sunday was that the Nazis apparently had been tipped off and and were able to prepare a counter coup.

NAZIS NOW PLEAD WITH HUNGARIANS

Bari, Italy, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—Radio appeals to the Hungarian forces to continue fighting alongside the Germans and severe decrees by Count Fereno Szalasi's regime limiting civilian gatherings, suggested today that the Nazis were hard put to retain control over Hungary. There was a unconfirmed report here that Heinrich Himmler and several ranking officers of the Gestapo had rushed to Budapest.

Experts on Hungarian affairs here advanced a theory that all members of the deposed Government of Admiral Nicholas Horthy who directed an armistice plea to the Allies on Sunday, had been arrested or killed.

[The Stockholm Dagens Nyheter said in a dispatch from Berne today that Admiral Horthy had barricaded himself with a loyal bodyguard in a Budapest castle, and was maintaining the position against German troops. The article reported to the OWI, added that all reports from Hungary indicate revolt and chaos.]

1000 BIG BOMBERS HIT RHINE CITIES

London, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—A thousand or more American heavy bombers attacked important military objectives today in the Mainz, Ludwigshafen and Mannheim areas of southwest Germany. Some 700 fighters flew with the Flying Fortresses and Liberators.

The three cities on the Rhine have large railyards and numerous war industries including armored vehicle works, ordnance and oil depots and chemical plants. Mannheim was hit by Mosquito bombers last night, while others bombed Hannover.

The armada flew through a heavy overcast. It was the first time in six days that American Eighth Air Force attacks have been directed beyond the Rhineland city of Cologne, forty miles from the battle of Aachen.

Mainz is a city of 159,000; Ludwigshafen 144,000 and Mannheim 284,000.

Night flyers bombed several unidentified objectives in western Germany.

A United States communique said ten heavy bombers and twenty-three fighters were lost yesterday in attacks on the northwest German communications centers of Cologne and Kassel.

Twin Industrial Cities on Rhine Blasted by U. S. Heavy Bombers

OCT 20 1944

LONDON, Oct. 19.—(AP)—More than 1,000 American heavy bombers, escorted by 700 fighters, dropped about 3,000 tons of explosives today on Mannheim and Ludwigshafen. Germany's twin Rhineland cities which are vital centers for the Nazis fighting on the Western front.

Mainz, another industrial city 45 miles to the north, was attacked also in a change of pace for U. S. Eighth Air Force Liberators and Fortresses which had hit Cologne four times during the last four days.

Air raid alarms were sounded in southwestern Germany as the Berlin radio reported a strong formation of Allied bombers was over the Rhineland again, following up the heavy American daylight raid on Mannheim and Ludwigshafen.

The Germans at Mannheim were still digging out from under debris of a raid by RAF Mosquitos last night when the American heavy bombers released their 2,000-pounders through a thick overcast from altitudes at which temperatures ranged as low as 50 below zero.

The Mosquitos also hit Hannover, 175 miles west of Berlin. One RAF bomber failed to return.

Thunderbolt and Mustang pilots reported no substantial air opposition over the three daylight targets, but bomber crews said the flak was terrific.

The blow at Mannheim supported American armies punching at the center of the Siegfried Line, since Mannheim is a railway supply base as well as a home for Nazi industry producing tanks, guns and trucks. The noted I. G. Farben factory is at Ludwigshafen, where a two-mile-long plant manufactures oxygen, synthetic oil and other chemicals.

In attacks on the northwest German communication centers of Cologne and Kassel Wednesday 10 heavy bombers and 23 fighters were lost, a U. S. communique said.

Hannover is one of northwestern Germany's most important industrial and rail centers. Mannheim, on the Rhine, is a major supply point for the lower end of the Siegfried Line. One bomber was lost.

A United States communique said 10 heavy bombers and 23 fighters were lost yesterday in attacks on the northwest German communications centers of Cologne and Kassel.

NORSE COAST BLASTED

London, Oct 19 (A. P.).—British carrier-borne aircraft bombed a German supply ship and set fire to two anti-aircraft vessels off Trondheim on the Norwegian coast, in a Sunday operation, the Admiralty announced tonight. Shore installations and batteries also were shot up.

NEW NAZI ROCKETS HINTED BY SWEDES

LONDON, Oct. 19—(AP)—Reports that rockets or robot planes were sighted over southern Sweden today caused speculation in London on the possibility that Nazis were developing a new long distance vengeance weapon which could be launched against England from German soil.

The Swedish advices were received as heavy casualties were reported from a small town in Southern England which suffered one of its worst blows of the war from flying bomb attacks launched against Southern England for eight successive nights.

Specific details were lacking in the Swedish report, originating in Stockholm, but it was believed the robots may have been launched from the Nazi experimental station of Peenemunde on the Baltic coast.

It is believed generally in London that the Allied cleanup of Germans in Holland will bring an end to bombardment by remote control by present "V" weapons, except for those which can be borne to within striking distance by planes.

The small scale resurgence of robot raids has caused damage and deaths and sleepless hours, but thanks to perfected defenses and longer distances the toll has been limited to only a fraction of that at the height of the attacks last Summer.

Last night's attacks killed at least seven persons, including the father, mother and youngest child in family of nine. The same bombs buried $2,400 belonging to a tradesman who collected the money too late in the day to deposit it in a bank.

An entire row of houses in the Southern England town was destroyed by a robot which plowed into the earth after being hit by anti-aircraft fire.

Robot Casualties Heavy In Town

London, Oct. 19 (AP)—Heavy casualties were reported today in a small town in southern England which suffered one of the worst blows of the war as the Germans continued their flying-bomb attacks for the eighth successive night.

An entire row of houses in the community was destroyed by a robot which plowed into the earth after being hit by anti-aircraft fire. Rescue workers still were digging in the ruins this morning for dead and injured, but the total number of casualties remained uncertain.

Flashes Light Up Sky

Flying bombs also fell in other scattered areas.

In some districts lightning-like flashes lit up the sky—seen far beyond the range of the sound of the explosion.

Speculation developed whether the Nazis were experimenting with some new type explosives, as the criss-cross flashes were different from those to which Britons have become accustomed.

NAZI GENERAL KILLED

LONDON, Oct. 19 — (AP) Gen. Walter Schroth, a member of the German "Court of Honor" investigating the July 20 attempt on Hitler's life, was reported by the Berlin radio today to have been killed in an accident. Schroth, a professional soldier, was 56. He was a captain in World War I.

London, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—The Germans had forced a premature outbreak of the revolt in Slovakia and were making desperate attempts to crush it just before the Hungarian armistice crisis broke, Slovak leaders from the scene of action told a press conference here today. As a result of the Hungarian events, confronting the Germans with new dangers and military demands, a relaxation of the Nazi pressure in Slovakia is expected.

British Mines Hit 100 Ships Before D-Day

London, Oct. 19 (AP) — British mines before the Allied invasion of Normandy sank or severely damaged an estimated 100 German vessels, the Government disclosed.

In a joint communique, the Admiralty and the Air Ministry said special types of mines were developed by the Admiralty for the purpose. About 30 per cent. of the damage to enemy warships, auxiliaries and merchant vessels was attributed to mines laid by naval forces, and 70 per cent. to mines laid by aircraft of the RAF bombing command.

LOST PILOT'S CHILD IS COMING HOME

London, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—Little Joe, the British-born son of an American fighter pilot, is going home to the United States to take the place of his dad killed in France. On the plea of the child's grandparents, President Roosevelt intervened to see that the 7-months-old baby receives priority for a trans-ocean flight in an Air Transport Command plane.

Little Joe's mother, a British girl, agreed to his being brought up by his American grandparents. "His father would have wanted him to grow up to be an American," she said.

Clapping his hands and grinning broadly, little Joe was taken to a Scottish air field by train, in care of an American Army nurse, Lieut. Evelyn R. Anderson.

Rommel Given State Funeral

London, Oct. 19 (AP)—The German news agency DNB said today a state funeral was held yesterday at Wurttemberg for Field Marshal Erwin Rommel, whose death was announced Monday.

The broadcast said Field Marshal General Gerd von Rundstedt represented Hitler and gave the funeral oration.

In an order of the day Hitler was quoted as saying "one of our best field commanders has passed on."

Franco Foe Reported Near Spanish Border

London, Oct. 19—Diego Martinez Barrio, former president of the Spanish cortes under the Republican constitution, has arrived at Perpignan, France, near the Spanish frontier, the Paris radio said today.

Martinez Barrio was last reported in Mexico where he was a member of a junta which demanded the removal of the Franco regime.

De Gaulle Recognition Speculative, British Say

London, Oct. 19 (AP)—The British Foreign Office said today that reports Britain would soon announce full recognition of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's provisional French Government were speculative.

The News Chronicle yesterday said Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower soon would declare most of France, including Paris, in complete charge of de Gaulle and that Britain would announce full recognition soon after.

'Terrorists' Put Outside Palestine

London, Oct. 19 (AP)—The British Colonial Office announced tonight the arrest and transfer of 251 "terrorists" to detention outside Palestine.

"In the interests of public security and the safety of life and property in Palestine," said an official communique of the Palestine Government, "251 persons, who have been detained under the emergency regulations as terrorists or for complicity in terroristic activity, have been transferred to military custody and removed to a place of detention outside Palestine.

BRITISH WAGING DRIVE TO BOOST POSTWAR MARKETS

CHESTER

LONDON, Oct. 19 — (AP) The Churchill government is aiding in a widespread campaign to boost sales of British goods in post-war markets all over the world, Harcourt Johnstone, secretary of the Department of Overseas Trade, declared today.

Johnstone's statement, and a suggestion by Sir George Schuster, a director of numerous British banks and business enterprises and member of Parliament, that the United States consider curbing her post-war exports to "leave some leeway' for others, were the latest developments in a vigorous discussion over post-war markets.

Schuster told an American Chamber of Commerce luncheon that "we are frightened at what we read of your country's preparations for post-war industry and export."

Johnstone reported that the British government has expedited passports and visas to hundreds of commercial travellers who have already left England to sell British goods as soon as they are available for export.

Sir George put his question on curbing exports in question form, but he left little doubt as to his meaning. He said the United States was already producing 700,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually with a prospect of 1,000,000 tons in sight as compared with domestic pre-war consumption of 600,000 tons. A similar situation is developing in aluminum, he added.

"It has been estimated that the United States with its present equipment could produce the same quantity of goods and services as in 1940—by no means a poor business year—and still have 19,500,000 unemployed," he declared.

"There is no more fateful question than this: how will the United States use her surplus capacity after the war? Will she pour it out on the world to find an outlet for goods, or will she concentrate on raising living standards at home and leave some leeway in the export trade for others?"

Johnstone and Sir George's statements were made against a background of public discussions over whether the United States would be ahead of Britain in resuming world trade after the war ends.

Assertions that the British government has not been doing enough post-war business planning have been made recently in Parliament. There have been numerous reports and arguments on British-American positions on shipping, aviation, mining and textile manufacturing.

Only recently Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden assured the House of Commons in reply to a question that American business men were not being permitted to go to Paris wearing army uniforms.

Sir George followed his statement about perturbation over American industrial preparations with an assertion "we are still more frightened by our own board of trade and its apparent failure to give manufacturers a lead and an opening."

He conceded it would be difficult to slow down American industry—and suggested that practical Anglo-American business men should familiarize themselves with the problems of the two countries and reach a "hard-headed understanding" of each country's position.

Johnstone declared that American efforts to reconvert industry and capture world markets might be more spectacular than those of Great Britain, but he added that England will not be "left out in the cold."

The British plan to boost sales of their goods in overseas markets includes the appointment of businessmen residents abroad as marketing officers in principal countries. Small firms unable to send their own representatives will be represented by group agencies.

Johnstone said his Department has made a survey in 26 countries outside the battle area of Europe for the "buy British" drive, and 140 exporting industries have been organized for the quickest possible trade drive after the war. The surveys are being kept up to date and all that will be needed when the war ends will be cables setting out last-minute changes in the markets.

Britain Launches Trade Drive

London, Oct. 19 (AP)—Bidding for post-war world markets hundreds of commercial travelers already have left England with Government help to start a "buy British" campaign around the world, the Daily Express said today.

Harcourt Johnstone, secretary of the Department of Overseas Trade, was quoted as saying the Government was cutting red tape to expedite the missions and that British manufacturers were getting passports and visas within three weeks after applying for them.

Johnstone said while the Americans are making "more spectacular" efforts to capture world markets England "is not going to be left out in the cold."

Surveys Made

The Overseas Trade Department has made a survey of 26 countries outside the battle area of Europe for the "buy British" drive and has organized 140 exporting industries, it was announced.

Johnstone is developing what he calls the "ideal combination plan" whereby an executive goes for his own orders and tightens up productive and marketing machinery while the Government helps at home with labor, materials and advice.

Marketing officers—businessmen resident in overseas markets—will be appointed in the principal countries. Small firms will be represented by group agencies.

"The whole world is crying for new stocks of capital and consumption goods," Johnstone said. "During the immediate post-war period our manufacturers are going to have as many orders as can be dealt with."

The "Boost British Goods" effort hit a snag in one instance, however. A pool of $120,000 was created by 128 British firms to advertise products in Russian papers, but only $16,100 was allowed to go out of the country because of restrictions on the exporting of currency.

Briton Urges Business Parley

Calls for Curb on Expansion of U. S. Exports in Post-war Planning.

London, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—Safeguards against an unbridled expansion of American exports will be one of the vital prerequisites of a stable world economy after the war, Sir George Schuster told the American Chamber of Commerce today.

Sir George, who is an economist, a member of Parliament and one of Great Britain's leading business men, urged an exchange of missions between the United States and the United Kingdom to look over the post-war trade problems of both countries and to "find a way in which we can both prosper." These missions should not be Government missions, he said, but groups of manufacturers, business men and economists representing the respective business communities of the two countries.

been adhered to, although the British press in normal times displays keen interest in the politics of other countries.

Candidates' Speeches Reported

While remaining mum on the qualifications of President Roosevelt and Governor Dewey, the press nevertheless is following the campaign closely, reporting the speeches of each candidate in the news columns.

The exceptions are found mostly in columns written from the United States, and, of these, the Daily Mail's Don Iddon has been particularly caustic in his criticism of campaign tactics in America.

Predicts Certain Strife

His column yesterday declared that "political strife is certain, whoever is the victor. If Roosevelt wins, he will have a hostile Congress and the mutinies of past sessions will be trivial compared with what are ahead."

"If Dewey wins," he continued, "the Senate is likely to remain Democratic and under the outdated seniority system most of the important committee chairmanships will go to isolationists and die-hards—not through any choice or fault of Dewey, but because of the traditional system, which awards chairmanships on the basis of years served.

"So the prospects either way are not bright, but we may as well face them."

Briton Sees Strife In U. S. No Matter Who's Elected

London, Oct. 19 (AP)—Apparently anxious to avoid any accusation of interference in American politics, official Britain and the country's press—with isolated exceptions—are guarding carefully against expressing a preference in the Presidential election.

This self-imposed restraint has

Liberator Explodes

Birkenhead, England, Oct. 19

(AP)—A Liberator exploded mysteriously at 6,000 feet altitude near Birkenhead today, crashed in three parts and killed 24 American airmen.

Parts of the bomber narrowly missed persons who rushed from their homes at the sound of the explosion.

Fighter Pilot's Plane Torn Apart, He Lives

A United States Eighth Air Force Fighter Base, England, Oct. 19 (AP). Lieut. Woodrow W. Williams, Houston, Texas, figures he is living on borrowed time from now on.

His Mustang was caught in a terrific thunderhead cloud formation and torn to pieces before the bombers he was helping to escort had reached enemy territory.

Williams was stunned. He said he regained consciousness just in time to realize that, even though he was still sitting in his cockpit chair, the rest of the airplane was gone.

He pulled the ripcord instinctively and floated to earth with bits of his Mustang fluttering around him. He was treated for minor cuts and bruises.

Madrid, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—Control of the Spanish frontier, always stringent, was tightened at the end of August so effectively that today it amounts to a closing of the border.

A few exceptions have been made, however; for example, to allow a party of American newspaper men to visit the South of France and to enable a few Spanish workers to return to their homes from Germany.

Spanish Republican raiders have crossed into the Roncal Valley of Navarra in the last fortnight, but were said to have been beaten in several clashes, and the situation there is now quiet.

PISCIATELLO RIVER FORCED

Allied Troops In Italy Press Toward Po Valley

Rome, Oct. 19 (AP)—The Allies hacked out new gains in northern Italy today against continued bitter German resistance. The British Eighth Army drove against Celincordia, less than a mile south of the fortress town of Cesena on the Rimini-Bologna highway, and the Americans captured additional positions south of Bologna.

Despite rain that was handicapping the Allies campaign to sweep across the Po valley, Canadian troops established a bridgehead across the Pisciatello river east of Cesena and north of the Rimini-Bologna railway. Increasing the pressure on the Cesena objective, New Zealand troops cleared the village of Ruffio, two and a half miles to the east.

Via Emilia Advance Costly

The drive up Highway 9—the ancient Via Emilia—was a costly, tedious fight, and the new rains added new ruts and puddles to the churned up mess that has slowed the Eighth Army for several weeks.

British and Indian troops in the hills directly south of Cesena captured a number of small villages, including Acquarola and Roversano, and in the advance of Celincordia added 40 prisoners for a total bag of 120 in that salient.

Despite German reinforcements, the Americans established themselves at San Clemente, nine miles below Castel San Pietro, an important town between Imola and Bologna on the Rimini-Bologna highway.

5th Army Enters Castelvecchio

Other Fifth Army forces captured Vaglie to the west and entered Castelvecchio, about two and a half miles northwest of San Clemente. New ground was seized on Highway 65, the main entrance to Bologna from the south.

East of Highway 65 American troops occupied the village of Camp Rocco and engaged the Germans in heavy fighting directly to the north. Equally fierce struggles were in progress on the southern slopes of Monte Belmonte, a 1,250-foot peak at the entrance to the Savena valley leading to Bologna and a center of German resistance eight miles south of Bologna's outskirts.

Negro Troops Capture Height

On the west coast Negro troops of the United States 92d Infantry captured Monte Catiglione, an important height west of Seravezza, only five miles southeast of the Tuscany town of Massa (population 17,561) which lies 20 miles by rail southeast of the naval base of La Spezia.

Bad weather curtailed Mediterranean Allied air force operations. Fighter-bombers, however, attacked bridges near Bologna and railyards at Modena, road and communications center 22 miles northwest of Bologna on the Via Emilia, and in the southern Po valley.

Desert air force fighters scored a dozen direct hits on a castle south of Cesena used by the Germans.

Crossed By British

Rome, Oct. 19 (AP)—Fifth Army troops have captured several more peaks and villages on the southern approaches to Bologna and the Eighth Army has forced a bridgehead across the Pisciatello river north of the Bologna-Rimini highway, in the Adriatic sector, Allied headquarters announced today.

The bridgehead, east of the important road junction town of Cesena, was gained against strong German opposition, while in the foothills south of the town Indian troops of the Eighth Army captured Acquarola and Roversano, the war bulletin said.

On Subsidiary Roads

Fighting bitterly against reinforced German troops American infantrymen established themselves at San Clemente on a subsidiary road to the Bologna-Rimini highway, nine miles from Castel san Pietro.

Other Fifth Army units took Vaglie to the west and entered Castel Vecchio, about two and a half miles northwest of San Clemente, while doughboys carried new positions on Highway 65—the main road to Bologna north from Florence.

Battle On Slopes

The communique said "very heavy fighting" continued on the southern slopes of Monte Belmonte in the Highway 65 area. South African troops on the left flank of this sector captured Monte Pezza.

Negro troops of the United States 92nd Infantry captured Mount Castiglione, an important height overlooking the west coast main highway.

Air Force Curbed

Bad weather again hampered ground operations in most of the sectors and curtailed operations of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force.

However, fighter-bombers attacked railyards at Vinkovci, Yugoslavia, and gave some support to the land forces in Italy with attacks on bridges near Bologna and the railyards at Modena. Medium bombers attacked the railway bridge at Padua.

CIVILIANS BATTLE TROOPS IN PALERMO

16 Slain, 104 Wounded in Demonstration Against Living Conditions.

ROME, Oct. 19 — (AP) — Sixteen persons were slain and 104 were wounded today in a street battle between a mob of civilians and Italian troops at Palermo, an Italian communique said tonight.

The communique said the troops were compelled to fire on the crowd when shots were fired at them during a demonstration against living conditions. The street battle took place in front of the headquarters of the high commissioner of Sicily

The vaguely worded bulletin asserted "unknown groups" seized the initiative during a demonstration by banking employes for economic improvements to "stage a seditious demonstration".

"Before the headquarters of the high commissariat, shots were fired against units of the army which therefore were compelled to react."

"Sixteen were killed and 104 were wounded. Public order was re-established."

The provincial committee of national liberation immediately met and declared it placed itself at the disposal of the local governing authorities to see that those responsible for the "seditious demonstration" will be punished.

Sicily has been one of the principal problems of the Bonomi government which repeatedly has expressed concern with the separatist movement to make the island independent of Italy.

Mass. Congresswoman Praises Work Done by Yanks in Italy

WITH THE U. S. FIFTH ARMY IN ITALY, Oct. 19 — (AP) Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers of Lowell, Mass., toured within three miles of the fighting front today and said she wished every American could see what the troops are up against here.

"I don't see how Gen. Clark has accomplished what he has in this difficult terrain," she observed. "I wish everyone in America could see what I have seen."

Although she skirted political and military questions at a press conference, she did say she considered the press and radio in the United States controlled by the government and added, "I feel that if we had freedom of the press the war would be much further advanced — more nearly won."

Mrs. Rogers, who visited several field hospitals, said "the care of the wounded is amazing. The doctors, nurses and medics are giving everything they can."

She said she was "tremendously impressed by the work of American women overseas" and added, "I wish more women would enlist in the Nursing corps."

Mrs. Rogers wore a uniform which she said nurses in the field were "very anxious to get approved by Washington." It was designed for field wear and is made of warmer cloth than the regular uniform, she said.

She said she was traveling "on my own" but would make recommendations on her findings on supplies as well as the conduct of the war. "Not that I am setting myself up as a military expert," she added.

Mrs. Rogers said she planned to return to London within a few days and then go to the United States immediately. In her luggage is a dagger she is taking back to the wife of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton. She met Patton while making a similar tour of the French front.

In Rome she had an audience with the Pope, who gave her a message to deliver to the Catholics of America.

"He told me to tell his people how much he loved them," she said. "I was very much impressed with the goodness of the man and his sincerity. He is a great influence for good in this present situation.'

Mrs. Rogers said she found hospitals adequately equipped in the war zones. "They are managing with blood and plasma, but the people at home will have to keep giving," she said.

The Congresswoman toured the front and the hospitals in the company of Brig. Gen. Joseph I. Martin of Chicago, Fifth army surgeon, and Capt. Helen Wharton of Iowa City, Ia., chief nurse of the Fifth army.

Bouncing along muddy, shellpocked roads, her party reached a hill close enough to the battlefront to watch the smoke rising from artillery and to see enemy flak rising as American bombing planes flew missions across the lines. Enemy shells fell behind the group, but none dropped near.

GERMAN FORCES EVACUATE THEBES

ROME, Oct. 19 — (AP) Additional troops and supplies were unloaded today at Piraeus for British and Greek expeditionary forces while the Germans admitted a withdrawal from Thebes, 32 miles northwest of Athens, which is already under Greek government control.

Neither the Allied nor the Greek government communique mentioned any contact with the Germans, last reported withdrawing well north of Athens. The Greek communique said military operations were proceeding "according to plan." The Berlin communique told of the retreat from Thebes.

Allied headquarters disclosed that Naval activity against the Germans was continuing, with the Nazi garrison on Santorin island, 70 miles north of Crete, yielding to the British cruiser Ajax, long a nemesis to the Axis foe.

Carrier planes sweeping inland from the Aegean attacked enemy transport in the vicinity of Volos, 35 miles southeast of Larissa, and took a heavy toll of enemy shipping in the Sporades islands northeast of Athens, the Naval command said.

Additional blows were struck by H.M.S. Argonaut, which sank an armored craft carrying 200 Germans in the northern Sporades, and by H.M.S. Termagant, which sank a Siebel ferry loaded with enemy equipment.

Naval aircraft took a heavy toll of rail and motor transport in the Volos area, destroying three locomotives and 36 trucks. In addition one locomotive, four armored cars and three barges were damaged.

Enemy transport in the Volos area was attacked also by planes from a force of escort carriers. They destroyed four armored cars, three ammunition trucks, and 27 other motor vehicles, and damaged an additional 30. These planes also blew up an ammunition ship and set a coastal vessel on fire.

Packed members of cheering natives greeted Premier George Papandreou, and members of his party who returned to Athens yesterday after four years of exile. They assumed control from a committee of three which had ruled since the capital's liberation.

Garrison On Santorin Surrenders To British

Rome, Oct. 19 (AP)—The Nazi garrison on Santorin Island, 70 miles north of Crete in the Sea of Candia, surrendered yesterday to the British cruiser Ajax, Allied headquarters announced today.

The naval command said that carrier planes sweeping in from the Aegean heavily attacked enemy transport in the vicinity of Volos, 35 miles southeast of Larisa on the Greek mainland. The same planes also took a heavy toll of enemy shipping in the Sporades Islands, in the Aegean northeast of Athens.

(The Thursday German high command communique acknowledged a Nazi withdrawal from the Greek town of Thebes, about 32 miles northwest of Athens, a London dispatch said.)

Armored Ship Sunk

A German armored vessel containing 200 German infantrymen was sunk in the same area October 16 by HMS Argonaut, while the destroyer Termagant accounted for a Siebel ferry loaded with enemy equipment. Some survivors were picked up.

In the Volos area the naval planes were credited with destruction of three locomotives and 30 trucks. An additional locomotive, four armored cars and three barges were damaged.

Six enemy vessels were destroyed and another merchant ship set afire October 17 off Lemnos, southeast of Salonika, the naval command announced. Twenty smaller enemy craft were disposed of in the same region.

London, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—The Thursday German High Command communique acknowledged today a Nazi withdrawal from the Greek town of Thebes, about thirty-two miles northwest of Athens.

Premier Takes Reins

Athens, Oct. 19 (AP)—Back in Greece after four years of exile, Premier George Papandreou and his government assumed control today from a committee of three that had ruled since the liberation of Athens Sunday.

A tumultous reception was given Papandreou and his party when they reached the capital yesterday. Arriving aboard the Greek flagship Averoff, the Premier was met at the quayside by members of his Cabinet and driven through packed masses of cheering natives.

Philip Manouilidis, head of the temporary government committee, said that during the Axis occupation more than 500,000 Greeks were slain or died of privation. This total, he said, included 45,000 killed by the Bulgarians in Thrace, 40,000 hostages shot by the Germans and Italians and 8,000 killed in guerrilla warfare.

30. 24 — 19693

Writers Protest Greek Censorship

Athens, Oct. 17 (AP Delayed)—Foreign correspondents here protested tonight a Greek press ministry announcement that they would be expected to submit to a form of political censorship described as "inspection of copy."

On behalf of the ministry, an official replied:

"Of course, it won't be censorship—just inspection to help you get the facts straight."

A British army public relations officer backed the protest on the ground the proposal contravened a ruling by General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied commander in the Mediterranean, that there be no "political censorship" in this area.

Correspondents who assembled and protested against the plan represent the Associated Press, the United Press, International News Service, Reuters, Exchange Telegraph Agency, British Broadcasting Corporation, the Agence Francais, Britain's Kemsley Newspapers, the New York Herald-Tribune, the Overseas News Agency and Newsweek.

Application of the measure has thus far been held in abeyance.

GI Paper Replies To Actors

New Delhi, Oct. 19 (AP)—The army newspaper CBI Roundup answered today criticism by film stars Ann Sheridan, Joe E. Brown and Paulette Godard of a recent editorial asserting that they cut short their entertainment tours in "overseas theaters."

Commenting on Miss Sheridan's statement that she at C or K rations more often than not, the newspaper said "the facts of the matter were that Miss Sheridan ate the best food available everywhere."

"If and when she ate K or C rations, everyone else was eating it," CBI Roundup said.

Someone In New Delhi

Observing that Joe E. Brown had suggested that the editorial probably was written by someone enjoying the comforts of New Delhi, CBI Roundup said:

"It was. That happens to be where the army ordered us to serve. The writer of the editorial was thoroughly familiar with the energy, skill and generosity of Brown.

"Old Cavern Mouth probably was the best liked entertainer who ever hit the C-B-I (China-Burma-India Theater of Operations). Army records indicate he contracted to play 120 days in C-B-I and played only 37."

Comment On Miss Goddard

Commenting on Miss Goddard's statement that she traveled within four miles of the battlefront and flew over the hum to China, CBI Roundup said:

"Miss Goddard played 54 days out of a promised 60. She cancelled the tail-end of her tour."

Calls CBI Story A Lie

Salt Lake City, Oct. 19 (AP)—Mary Landa, pretty screen-actress companion of Ann Sheridan on an eight-week USO entertainment junket into the China-Burma-India theater, tonight labeled army newspaper criticism of Hollywood troupers "an untruth and a lie."

Referring to a second article in the Army CBI, Miss Landa declared, "C and K rations are not the ideal repast, but we realized that it was the best food possible at those camps and there was never any complaining from the troupe. After our eight-week stay in the jungles of India and China we all were hospitalized for five days. I had an unhappy combination of flu, dysentery and sandfly fever.

"Furthermore, if the boys are complaining about the 'corn' in the routine, they should tell it to the censors. We had nothing to do with the quality of the jokes."

"The editor in New Delhi," she continued, "refuses to recognize the difficulties of entertaining in the Burma and Chinese jungles." She said four-inch grasshoppers and "bugs never seen before" fought entertainers for the stage.

"Ann did all she could to make those boys happy," said Miss Landa, home for a visit with her parents. "All in all, it was plenty tough. We traveled by plane, but planes with bucket seats. After a two-hour ride, you 'wore' those seats for hours after you landed."

Jolson Denies CBI Booking

Tucson, Ariz., Oct. 19 (AP)—Al Jolson, one of the movie stars criticized by the CBI Roundup for cutting short his entertainment tour of the China-Burma-India theater, told Davis Monthan, army airfield personnel, last night that he'd never been booked in China.

Never Booked In China

"I am not here trying to defend myself," he said. "I don't have to, because I was never booked in China. For myself, I don't care because I slept and ate with the GI's—ate lousy food and slept in tents. The public doesn't count but I want to square myself with you guys and gals. If I had been a little younger I would have been in the thick of this mess, not as an entertainer but in uniform."

Army Paper Says Attitude Of Some Stars Hurt Morale

New Delhi, Oct. 19 (AP)—The army newspaper CBI published today a second blast at Hollywood USO entertainers it said had rebelled against conditions in the China-Burma-India war zone and returned home before completion of their scheduled tours.

"There are a few of us here," the newspaper said, "who might have more income at home than in India, but our patriotic goosepimples do not subside the first time we see a leech."

Specifically answering criticism by Ann Sheridan, Joe E. Brown and Paulette Goddard of a first editorial which claimed they had "dogged it" in overseas theaters, the newspaper said that some entertainers "by reason of inadequate performances, unattractive personal behavior and an attitude of let-us-get-this-damn-show-over have detracted from the morale of troops."

Best Food Available

Saying the "old Cavernmouth Brown probably is the best-liked entertainer who ever hit the CBI," the paper asserted, however, that "army records indicate he contracted to play 120 days in the CBI and played only 37."

Miss Goddard, it said, had played "54 days out of a promised 60. She canceled the tail end of her tour."

Commenting on Miss Sheridan's statement that she ate C or K rations more often than not, the newspaper said "the facts of the matter were that Miss Sheridan ate the best food available everywhere."

"If and when she ate K or C rations, everyone else was eating it," CBI Roundup said.

Someone In New Delhi

Observing that Joe E. Brown had suggested that the editorial probably was written by someone enjoying the comforts of New Delhi, CBI Roundup said:

"It was. That happens to be where the army ordered us to serve. The writer of the editorial was thoroughly familiar with the energy, skill and generosity of Brown.

"Old Cavern Mouth probably was the best liked entertainer who ever hit the C-B-I (China-Burma-India Theater of Operations). Army records indicate he contracted to play 120 days in C-B-I and played only 37."

Comment On Miss Goddard

Commenting on Miss Goddard's statement that she traveled within four miles of the battlefront and flew over the hum to China, C-B-I Roundup said:

"Miss Goddard played 54 days out of a promised 60. She cancelled the tail-end of her tour."

SOLDIER BALLOTS GO BY ELEPHANT

New Delhi, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—Elephants, ox-carts and airplanes have been pressed into service to move ballots to soldiers serving in isolated outposts in the China - Burma - India war theater.

Nearly 1,200 pounds of ballots were flown here from the United States with the highest priority, and the indications are that from 30 to 40 per cent of the American armed forces voted. Roughly 95 per cent of the ballots are already en route to the United States.

Several hundred soldiers legally voted twice—when the post office informed them that one district pouch, believed to contain the ballots from their base, was lost in a plane accident.

ALLIED TROOPS TAKE TIDDIM IN NORTHERN BURMA

C-E-NUMICH

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 19—(AP) The important northwest Burma town of Tiddim has been captured by Indian troops after an air attack which smashed Japanese defenses covering the northern approaches, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's command announced today.

Fall of the base from which the Japanese launched their unsuccessfull invasion of India early this year came after months of heavy fighting in the first determined Japanese stand in this theater since the action at Bishenpur, India, last Spring.

Communique announcing the collapse of Tiddim asserted that the Allied forces were now in contact with the enemy south of Tiddim, along the Japanese escape route. Fate of the Japanese garrison was not reported immediately.

The Japanese had held positions in the Tiddim- Fort White area since November, 1943, building it as a supply head. Tiddim stands at the southern end of the road to Imphal and Kohima, 20 miles from the India-Burmese border.

Determination and tactical superiority of Allied forces made possible the capture of Tiddim, which fell to Indan troops of the Fourteenth army. Troops of the veteran Ffth Indian division pushed in from two directions when defenses collapsed under the heavy air blows. The division holds a good record in the Sudan, African, Arakan and now the Burma campaigns.

Following their unsuccessful attempt to seize Imphal, the Japanese retreated 100 miles south to Tiddim, pursued by British troops who closed slowly in on the enemy base there.

The Japanese were aided in their defense of Tiddim by natural terrain conditions such as the Manipur river, and by monsoon weather.

The enemy's first Tiddim defense was destruction of the bridge at Beltang Lui, a tributary of the Manipur river at the foot of the "chocolate staircase," and mining of the road halfway up.

But bulldozers cleared the way for tanks, which climbed 3,000 feet to the crest of the staircase and there poised for the attack. Outer Japanese defenses were composed of road-blocks four miles north of Tiddim and positions to the southeast of Tiddim protecting the Tiddim-Kalemyo road.

The air assault was highlighted by precision bombing which caused a landslide at a vital corner of the Tiddim-Kalemyo escape road seven miles southeast of Tiddim.

Tiddim is the first of four fortified positions on the west-east route to Kalemyo. This west-east line is the most important to Japanese north of this line and west of Chindwin.

In the Arakan area, patrols were active. A strong force of aircraft of the Eastern Air command yesterday attacked airfields in the Rangoon sector, the Allied communique said.

Incomplete reports showed that eight enemy aircraft were destroyed, two probably were destroyed and six were damaged. Other Allied aircraft attacked gun positions and stores in the Tiddim and Kalemyo areas and southwest of Kwazon .Two Allied planes are missing.

British Capture Jap Base At Tiddim

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 19 (AP)—British troops advancing into western Burma have captured the Japanese base at Tiddim, from which enemy forces launcned their abortive invasion of India early this year, Allied headquarters announced today.

The British have been closing in slowly on Tiddim for several weeks after pursuing the retreating Japanese 100 miles southward from Imphal in northeastern Burma, which the enemy attempted unsuccessfully to seize.

Aided By Monsoon

The fate of the Tiddim garrison was not immediately disclosed. Small British forces, however, have been reported operating along the Japanese escape route to the south after filtering through the jungles.

The Japanese had made their first determined stand at Tiddim since starting their retreat from India at Bishenpur. They were aided in their defense of the base—which they had been building up since November, 1943—by the terrain and by monsoon conditions.

First troops to enter Tiddim were units of the Fifth Indian Division, veterans of the African campaign and the first Burma campaign.

CHINESE RETAKE KWANGSI TOWN

CHUNGKING, Oct. 19 — (AP) The semi-official Chinese agency central news said today that Chinese troops had recaptured Tajungkiang, a town 23 miles north of the Kwangsi province capital of Kweilin, and that the retreating Japanese were being pursued northward.

There was no confirmation from the Chinese high command, whose latest communique indicated a Japanese advance to a point 21 miles north of Kweilin had been achieved as the result of an enemy column push to positions about 12 miles southwest of the Hunan-Kwangsi railway town of Hingan. Fighting ensued there and was continuing yesterday morning. The communique added.

Japanese troops who have been attacking Chinese positions 18 miles west of Hingan have been halted, the High command announcement said.

Fighting continued against the northern and southern arms of the Japanese West River drive toward Liuchow, 100 miles southwest of Kweilin, with the Chinese repulsing an attack 12 miles northwest of Pingnam, 80 miles southwest of Liuchow.

The invaders made a "futile attack" on Chinese positions about ten and a half miles southwest of Kweiping, 70 miles south-southeast of Liuchow, the High command added.

There was elation in the Chinese capital over the Tokyo reports of Allied landings in the Philippines, and some expressed the belief Japanese plans to open an overland supply route through China could not be completed in time to be of benefit to the enemy.

Chinese Troops Take Yangkungyifen

Chungking, Oct. 19 (AP)—Chinese troops last Monday captured Yangkungyifen, five miles southwest of the Burma road town of Mangshih, in Yunnan province, and repulsed a subsequent Japanese counterattack, the Chinese communique said today.

Four miles east of Mangshih other Japanese attacks were repulsed, while in the Lungling area for the last three days there has been only patrol activity, the communique said.

American planes continued to hammer enemy positions along the Burma road, causing many fires and explosions in the area 50 miles southwest of Mangshih. Bridges at the approaches to Mangshih and Tingka were damaged.

Air-Repair Centers On Formosa 'Leveled'

A United States Superfortress Base in West China, Oct. 18 (AP—Delayed)—Maj. Gen. Curtis LeMay, head of the United States 20th Bomber Command, declared today that recent Superfortress raids on Formosa had leveled all major Japanese air force repair, assembly and modification centers on that island off the East China coast.

The destruction of these installations, he said, should effectively curtail the range and scope of Japanese aerial operations in the South China Sea area.

Lack of forward base facilities will pyramid enemy air losses, he predicted, because damaged planes which are unable to reach bases in the rear no longer can be quickly repaired.

SUPERFORT HAS ROUGH TIME

New Yorker Lands It Safely —Gunner Blown Out.

An Advanced American Fourteenth Air Force Base in China, Oct. 17 (Delayed) (A. P.).—An exploding shell fired during the height of an attack by three Jap fighters wounded two crew members of the Superfortress "Monsoon Minnie," but the big plane landed just inside Free China this afternoon after bombing Formosa.

On the way back, however, the right waist-gunner was blown out of the plane high over the China Sea when his plexiglass bulge was broken. His parachute opened, and the crew saw him later floating on the water in his Mae West lifebelt.

The exploding shell slightly wounded Radio Operator Technical Sergt. Royal Y. Klaver, 24 years old, of Marquette, Mich., and the navigator, Lieut. Ralph S. Weinberg, 26, of Philadelphia. Sergt. Klaver suffered flesh wounds in six places in the right hand and both legs. Lieut. Weinberg was hit in the right leg.

The shell pierced the flight compartment a few inches from the left ear of co-pilot Capt. Dearter McGregor, 27, of Wichita Falls, Tex. The plane's armor plate was shattered near the pilot, Major Robert E. Moss, 25, of 1530 Charlotte street, the Bronx, and the engineer, Lieut. Edward R. Haggerty, 27, of Chicago.

The co-pilot, pilot and engineer as well as the bombardier-navigator, Lieut. Fritz J. Kulicka, 27 of Greenville, Miss., were not touched.

Southwest Pacific Air Forces Pound Mindanao

Allied Headquarters, New Guinea, Friday, Oct. 20 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur today reported a heavy aerial bombardment of Mindanao, in the southern Philippines.

His regular communique told of an attack by more than 50 heavy bombers on targets around Davao and Zamboanga Tuesday.

Fighters returned the following day to hit Cotabato, on the west-central coast of Mindanao, the MacArthur communique reported.

Drop 106 Tons In Davao Area

The heavy bombers unloaded 106 tons of explosives in their assault on objectives north of Davao and on the west coast of Davao Gulf.

[This action, one of the heaviest reported recently on Mindanao, centered in a strategic area some 300 miles south of the Leyte Gulf region.]

Fighters, hitting Cotabato Wednesday, strafed a motor convoy and small shipping.

The Tuesday raid was paralleled by an assault on Zamboanga, second city of Mindanao in the southwestern part of the island. A seaplane was destroyed and two ships hit.

Parts Of Wide Assaults

These were part of widespread aerial assaults embracing the entire Southwest Pacific bombing arc, from Bougainville to Borneo.

Escorted heavy units braved adverse weather to strike again at Balikpapan, on Borneo, Halmahera also was raided by fighter-bombers which hit installations and airdromes.

Oil storage tanks at Boela, Ceram, were destroyed in raids embracing that island and adjacent Amboina. The raiders ranged as far southwestward as Timor.

Explode Oil-Laden Ships

A headquarters spokesman said that Mitchell bombers, flying through heavy anti-aircraft fire, exploded oil-laden ships and dock installations in Davao Gulf, and destroyed buildings and barracks north of Davao during the Tuesday assault.

In southern Mindanao Thunderbolts set fire to several barges laden with fuel, troops and supplies. Lightnings sank one freighter and set fire to another at Zamboanga, where a seaplane also was destroyed.

Aussie Paper Row Ends

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 19 (AP)—A dispute which left Sydney virtually without a newspaper for 13 days ended today.

Two evening newspapers will resume publication tomorrow and two morning papers Saturday.

Employes accepted the terms of a settlement drawn up at a compulsory conference. Settlement includes that all employes be reinstated. The secretary for the printers said the proprietors would not oppose application to court for a 40-hour, five-day week and four weeks annual leave to replace the present 44-hour week.

Dispute Explained

This was the crux of one of the strangest disputes in Australian industrial history. Printers on the Sun had walked out when their demand for a shorter work week was refused by publishers, who said the matter was already before compulsory conference.

The dispute spread to the Daily Mirror when the Sun asked for a composite paper, and then to the Sydney Morning Herald and Daily Telegraph when publishers decided on a composite paper for the entire city.

Journalists Refuse

Journalists came into the dispute when they refused to work for the composite paper on the grounds they would then be acting as strikebreakers.

The resulting dispute involved 12 unions and 2,250 employes. Publishers issued a composite paper during the dispute and journalists issued a river tabloid which will make its final appearance tomorrow with a 16-page edition.

From Bombs To Matches

Melbourne, Australia, Oct. 19 (AP). Unserviceable American bombs saved Australia from an acute wartime safety match shortage, the Australian Scientific Liaison Bureau disclosed today.

Ninety tons of prosphorous were recovered from discarded United States army ammunition, enough to keep a little fire in the match situation.

Australian Pacific War Plan Outlined By Curtin

Perth, Australia, Oct. 19 (AP)—Australian war achievements and Australia's preparations to play her part in the massive war effort that will be required in the Pacific following defeat of Germany, were outlined today by Prime Minister John Curtin.

"An effort has been under way for some time to fit Australia as an organizing base for the Pacific as Britain was fitted for the war in Europe," Curtin said.

The expansion of the American effort in the Pacific, he added, had enabled Australia to divert her manpower and resources increasingly to food production and the manufacture of war materials.

Besides feeding Australians and the military services, Curtin said the commonwealth was supplying food to Allied forces based on Australia and to Britain, the British Admiralty and British overseas forces.

Islands In Indian Ocean Hit 3 Days, Japs Say

San Francisco, Oct. 19 (AP)—Tokyo radio reported today that an Allied task force has been bombing and shelling the Nicobar Islands, in the Indian Ocean, for three days.

The attack began on Tuesday (Tokyo time) and fighting continued through Thursday morning, the broadcast said. The report was unconfirmed by Allied sources.

Force Not Identified

Tokyo said one Allied carrier and one destroyer were sunk today.

The Japanese did not identify the nationality of the attacking force, but the Indian Ocean has been the province of the British Far Eastern fleet.

The Nicobar Islands lie athwart Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's pathway back to Singapore. The attack, Tokyo said, was directed against Car Nicobar, northernmost of the chain.

Tokyo said 24 carrier-borne planes attacked Tuesday morning and five were shot down. Another wave followed Wednesday morning, at which time the naval bombardment opened. The Japanese counterattack was reported on the third day.

Reports Political Tension in Guatemala

Mexico City, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—David Vela, editor of El Imparcial of Guatemala City, arrived here today and said that he had fled his country after first taking refuge at the Mexican Embassy. Political conditions in Guatemala areare heated, he declared.

"There is no doubt that the dark-horse candidate in the coming elections is Provisional President Ponce," he added. "Next Sunday there will be a demonstration in the streets of Guatemala City, for which thousands of Indians will be mobilized; but the people have decided not to leave the doors of their homes."

Two Die in Mid-Air Crash.

Balboa, Canal Zone, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—Capt. Robert B. Koster, 26 years old, of Gainesville, Tex., were fatally injured on Monday when their fighter planes collided near France Field, Panama Canal, Army headquarters has announced.

RATIONING OF TOBACCO ANNOUNCED BY JAPS

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19—(AP) Rationing of tobacco in Japan because of a shortage of "raw materials, lack of factory workers, difficulty of transportation and other reasons" will start Nov. 1, the Tokyo radio said today in a domestic broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications commission.

Tobacco is a state monopoly in Japan and a source of much government revenue.

The broadcast said Makoto Fukazawa, head of the monopoly bureau's tobacco manufacturing section, declared:

"For the nation as a whole, wasting time in buying tobacco is truly wasteful at the time of a grave situation, when the people must work with their fullest might for strengthening fighting power."

Warsaw, Dutch Port Held Key To Victory

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP)—The possibility of victory in Europe this year will very likely be decided by the speed with which Allied armies can turn to their own use the two great strategic keys to Hitler's fortress Germany—the Dutch port city of Antwerp and Poland's devastated capital, Warsaw.

Full use of the unloading facilities of Antwerp could solve much of the Western front supply problem and support a crushing thrust into the Reich over the shortest route to Berlin.

Antwerp is in Allied hands but enemy guns still dominate its approaches, barring the way to shipping. Clearing those approaches is conceded by military men here to be one of the top priority jobs on the Western front.

Strategy Outlined

Unless they are cleared very promptly it appears highly improbable that the Allies can muster full strength against all the enemy's vulnerable points for multiple heavy blows this fall.

This would sharply limit what appears to be the grand strategy for a 1944 victory in Europe—final twin offensives by the Russians in the east and the Anglo-American-Allied forces in the west before winter closes in.

To this grand strategy many of the present operations are contributing only indirectly in that they (1) maintain pressure on the enemy, (2) continue to wear down his forces, (3) deprive him of the moral support of his satellites and (4) straighten lines, especially on the Soviet front, for the grand push.

Russ Driven Out

The main trend of Russian front events and their significance in the broad picture of the war—often obscure—can now be reported on high authority as having developed in this manner:

The Russian summer campaign paralleled the Anglo-American invasion of Normandy and contributed much to its success. The campaign reached its most advanced point in the suburbs of Warsaw at the end of July. The Germans had determined to hold the city and counterattacks drove the Russians out.

Stalled Before City

Subsequently toward the middle of September the Russians made another, limited, try in the Warsaw area and again they suffered a setback or as some authorities now call it, "a mild defeat." Thus they were stalled on the central front, as their high command apparently had realized from the time of the July reverse, and required much reorganization and supply of forces, which presumably is still going on.

Meanwhile they undertook their cleanup campaigns in the Baltic and Balkan areas. In those it is frankly recognized by officials here that Soviet military interest in maintaining some kind of pressure on the Germans coincided with Soviet political interests, especially in the Balkans. The Balkan campaign, which has been advanced at relatively light cost, became one of opportunity as first Romania, then Bulgaria and finally Hungary fell from the Hitler fringe.

Moves Questioned

These events put the emphasis on political rather than military measures of Russia and prompted many inquiries here as to whether the Russians had suddenly put aside their hope of beating Hitler this year to concentrate on establishing their power in the Balkans.

The political profit accruing to Russia from the Balkans drive is freely admitted by officials here, but there is no information to bear out the view that they have for the time forsaken primary military objectives.

On the contrary, it is expected that after adequate preparations for a grand-scale assault the Allied armies on the Eastern front will join with those on the west in a major, unlimited campaign to defeat Hitler this year. But to do so they must take Warsaw.

The convergence of transportation lines, according to competent military opinion here, is such that they cannot afford to leave the battered city in German hands. The first capital taken by Hitler in his drive to conquer Europe remains in his last months one of the keys to his defeat.

Army Reveals 62,000 Casualties On Western Front Since August 6

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP) Two months of fighting on the Western Front from the breakthrough on the Normandy peninsula to the time when German territory was invaded cost about 62,000 casualties among American troops.

This was disclosed today in a War department announcement that the total American army casualties for that theater through October 3 were 174,780. An announcement last month by Supreme headquarters of the Allied expeditionary force said that the total for Western France through August 6 was 112,321.

Of the total casualties from the landing in Normandy on June 6 through October 3, the dead amounted to 29,842, wounded 130,227 and missing 14,711.

An exact comparison of the two casualty announcements, however, was impossible, since the August 6 total included air force casualties whereas that covering the period through October 3 did not.

American Army and Navy casualties in all theaters since Pearl Harbor now total 453,375. The War department reported that through Oct. 6 Army casualties aggregated 384,895. The latest Navy casualty list reports 68,478.

The Army total, which included 75,562 killed, was an increase of 33,602 since the last casualty announcement on October 5, covering casualties reported through September 21.

The Department said part of this increase was due to a revision of its statistical system to provide more up-to-date figures. It added, however, that there remains a time lag of about 19 days between actual casualties and the receipt of individual reports for compilation at the Department.

ARMY CASUALTIES 384,895 TO OCT. 6

Washington, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—United States Army casualties on the western land front, from the invasion on June 6 through October 3, numbered 174,780. Air Force casualties are not included in this figure, announced today by the War Department.

Of the total 29,842 were killed, 130,227 wounded and 14,711 missing. Since the start of the war the combined Army and Navy casualty total is 453,375, compared with 417,085 two weeks ago.

Army casualties for all theaters through October 6 were 384,895, an increase of 33,602 since the last announcement of casualty figures on October 5. Of the 384,895 casualties 75,562 are dead, including those who died of wounds as well as battlefield deaths; 208,392 are wounded (excluding those who died of wounds); 48,404 are missing and 52,537 are captured and interned.

The latest naval casualty figure is 68,480, an increase of 2,688 in two weeks. The comparative naval figures for today and October 5, respectively, are: killed, 27,047 and 25,963; wounded, 27,368 and 25,588; missing, 9,586 and 9,761; prisoners, 4,480, unchanged.

WAR CAPTIVES GET FURLOUGH FIRST

OCT 20 1944

Washington, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—The War Department has announced that military personnel who have been prisoners of war for sixty days or more will be returned to the United States as soon as possible after being freed unless they specifically ask to remain overseas.

The ruling applies to prisoners freed either before or after the defeat of Germany. The War Department said it was in accord with its policy "of regarding the problems and future welfare of prisoners of war as matters of prime interest to the military establishment and to the country."

The returning prisoners will get transportation priority over all other casual personnel except sick and wounded.

While the announcement did not specify the length of furloughs to be granted former prisoners, it was explained officially that they would be subject to reassignment, either in this country or overseas, after a period of rehabilitation.

General Staff Groups Formed For Post-War

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP)—Two general staff committees to draft policies affecting reserve components of the post-war army have been organized, the War Department announced today.

One, composed of three regular army officers and three reserve officers, will prepare policies and regulations covering the organized reserve. The other, made up of three regular, three reserve and three National Guard officers, will be concerned with both reserve and National Guard components of the peacetime army.

A separate National Guard committee was organized last August. All three groups, the War Department said, "are giving priority to the study of post-war military organization."

U. S. Cool To Air Plan Of British

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP)—Publication in London of a British White Paper advocating a supreme international air organization to assign and regulate the post-war airlines of the world is causing scarcely a ripple in official Washington.

This apparent lack of concern is taken to indicate the confidence with which American negotiators approach the coming international air conference opening at Chicago November 1. They believe that the United States, holding a fistful of post-war aviation trumps, will have much to say as to what that conference will recommend to regulate post-war civil aviation.

America's Advantages

Cards this nation holds are the planes, pilots and experience which war-time American airlines have built up in global flight in recent years.

It is well known that American officials do not favor the British proposal of a supreme international organization which would tell whom what air routes they could fly and how often they could fly them.

Instead Americans insist upon the right of their planes to fly anywhere that the host country concerned is willing to welcome them and after landing agreements have been reached to fly as often as the traffic requires.

Ickes Hopes Hawaii's Martial Law May Go

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP)—Arguments in favor of lifting martial law in Hawaii are getting "stronger and stronger," Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes observed at his news conference today.

Other officials said they hoped there would not be "much more delay" before a proclamation lifting martial law in the territory was completed and placed before the President.

Representatives of the War, Navy, Justice and Interior departments are continuing conferences on the proclamation in an attempt to adjust what were described as "technical" problems.

KIMMEL, SHORT BEFORE PROBERS

Pearl Harbor Commanders Said To Have Testified

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP)—Circumstances surrounding the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor have been discussed before a naval board of inquiry by the men who commanded army and navy forces there at the time of the December 7, 1941, assault.

This was learned today from responsible sources who cannot be identified. No information was disclosed by these sources on what the officers said.

The board of inquiry operates under procedure closely approximating that of a grand jury, and information developed at its sessions is not public record.

Report To Go To Forrestal

Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, navy commander at Pearl Harbor at the time of the attack, is understood to have testified at length before the board which will submit its findings to Secretary Forrestal. The Secretary will study the record of the board hearing to determine what further action should be taken.

Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, army commander in the Pacific when the Japanese attacked, also is understood to have given his story of circumstances of the raid in testimony before the board.

Forrestal has said that he expects the board's report to be turned over to him in the near future. There has been no indication when the army might act.

CALLS HITLER MAD AT SEDITION TRIAL

OCT 20 1944

Washington, Oct. 19 (A. P.).—Hitler, the jury at the mass sedition trial has been told, may not be mad in a clinical sense, but he is mad "in a popular sense."

The testimony came from Dr. Hermann Rauschning, former president of the Free City of Danzig who fled Germany several years ago after a break with the Fuehrer. It was elicited by Albert W. Dilling, a defense attorney, during cross-examination of the witness yesterday on his earlier testimony recounting conversations with Hitler.

Another defense attorney, Ellis O. Jones, asked if the Nazi leader depended on soothsayers and fortune tellers.

"Partly yes," Dr. Rauschning replied, "but largely on the advice of advisers like Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop."

"He did have a crystal ball when he talked to you about America?"

"No," the witness replied.

Lawrence Dennis, a defendant, who is acting as his own counsel, asked Dr. Rauschning's views on a book Dennis wrote, "The Dynamics of war and revolution," which has figured in the trial.

"One cannot say the author was making National Socialist propaganda," the witness said, "but the book is definitely anti-democratic."

"Are my doctrines peculiarly Nazi?" Dennis asked, and Dr. Rauschning replied, "No."

GIs Use Big Bills In Dice Games

OCT 20 1944

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP) — The size of stakes in army crap games became an economic issue today, as if it already weren't.

Spang in the middle of a scholarly discussion of Allied military currency used by our army in Italy, Economists Donald L. Kemmerer and T. Eugene Beattie observed that the soldiers customarily are handed their pay in the biggest bills available "and incidentally stakes in crap games are kept high."

Aid To Transportation

"To keep transportation costs to a minimum, our soldiers are generally paid in the largest denominations possible," the economists stated in a folder distributed by the Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy.

"For example, a soldier entitled to $46.50 on pay day will get four 1,000-lire notes, one 500-lire note, one 100 and one 50."

It doesn't take an assistant professor of economists, such as Kemmerer is at the University of Illinois, to deduce that this procedure is virtually a command invitation for high rolling on the vagaries of that "Old Eighter from Decatur" and "Little Joe from Kokomo."

Made In Washington

The currency, which Kemmerer and Beattie say looks like cigar coupons lithographed on mediocre paper, is turned out in Washington and shipped to Italy where it has been declared legal tender.

The exchange rate is 100 lire to the dollar, and soldiers with a sense of thrift, a smart pair of dice, or both, frequently convert the lire to dollar money orders which they dispatch home after the payday flurries.

Another Angle

There's another crapshooting angle to the currency situation, Messrs. K. and B. declare:

"If it is attempted to redeem money in full for American soldiers there arise possibilities, difficult to deal with, of soldiers buying native-held Allied military currency at a discount and making a profit.

"Who is to say that a GI turning up with a wad of bills did not win them at a crap game?"

Negroes In WAVES Approved By Roosevelt

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP) — The navy announced tonight that President Roosevelt has approved enrollment of Negro women in the WAVES.

A "limited number of especially qualified Negro women," the navy said, will be commissioned immediately as administrative officers. They will assist in planning and supervising a program for enlistment of Negro women. The navy estimated that the first enlisted women will enter training shortly after January 1.

"Officer candidates and enlisted women will be trained at existing schools of WAVES," the navy said. "The number to be enlisted will be determined by the needs of the service."

Kaiser Plan for Reconversion

Industrialist Says He's Sure President Will Seek to Foster Free Enterprise

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 (AP).—Henry J. Kaiser, industrialist, laid what he called a "specific pattern" for reconversion before President Roosevelt today and left the conference asserting the belief that the Chief Executive "will continue to do everything in his power to foster and encourage" free enterprise.

Mr. Kaiser predicted that government departments will be increasingly concerned with "anticipation of the cut-backs (in war production) and plans that will permit very rapid conversion to post-war work and continuity of employment."

"The President seemed determined to do this job thoroughly and I am now confident that we are well on our way," he said.

He asserted there was no doubt in his mind that the President "not only believes as thoroughly as I do in our American system of free enterprise and free competition, but that he will continue to do everything in his power to foster and encourage it."

Mr. Kaiser is chairman of the newly formed Non-Partisan Committee for Franchise Education, which he has said is "NOT plumping for any particular candidate or party."

Mr. Kaiser said he and other industrialists, whom he did not name, are ready now to put into effect the reconversion program he laid before Mr. Roosevelt.

Under it he and others of like mind would take over war plants about to shut down and continue manufacturing war materials in them, letting the original contractors go back to their peace-time production.

Where materials were available, the group also would move into war factories already closed and go into war manufacture. Mr. Kaiser, who now is engaged in twenty industries producing at least 100 different articles, said he would convert to peace production himself some day, but he was not ready to say what or where.

In a speech before the New York Herald Tribune Forum Tuesday night he envisoned employment for 30,000,000 persons after the war in four industries alone—construction of homes, hospitals and highways, and transportation.

In a statement today he said: "I have stated before and state now that industry faces its greatest task, namely, to continue every essential war effort and, at the same time, to organize for peace. After talking with the President, I am convinced he believes that this pattern of aiding industry is an important step to assure now the transition to full employment in peace time."

DEWEY'S CHARGES ON ROMANIA DRAW STATE DEPT. REPLY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP) Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's blast at what he termed President Roosevelt's "personal, secret diplomacy" brought an administration volley in reply today including a formal State department statement of "facts" it said the Republican presidential candidate left out in discussing Romania.

Senator O'Mahoney of Wyoming, chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign committee, declared in a statement that Dewey "recklessly demands what amounts to an open break with Russia while the war is still on." He called Dewey's address last night to the New York Herald-Tribune Forum "the most effective argument" yet advanced for re-election of President Roosevelt.

The State department's statement was confined entirely to Romania although Dewey had been critical of administration handling of the cases of Italy, Poland, Germany and France as well as Romania.

There were indications, however, that the administration will have still more to say about the Dewey speech. Mr. Roosevelt himself may reply on some points when he addresses a dinner of the Foreign Policy association in New York Saturday.

The President began work today on his Saturday speech. The White House also confirmed that he will make a campaign speech in Boston but did not give the date. There have been reports it would be Nov. 4—the Saturday before Election day.

Statement on Romania

The State department said this government "participated at all stages" in formulation of the terms of surrender for Romania. "Precisely because it was a military document and not a peace settlement it was presented by Marshal Malinovski, the theater commander, duly authorized by the governments of the United States, the USSR and the United Kingdom," the statement said. "This action by Marshal Malinovski followed directly the pattern of General Eisenhower in signing the armistice with Italy on behalf of the United States, the United Kingdom, and the USSR."

Dewey had declared the document signed with Romania was "no mere military armistice," adding:

"That agreement fixed the future frontiers of Romania. It disposed of Bessarabia and Transylvania, two of the worst trouble spots of Europe. It dealt with economic matters.

"Now, who negotiated and signed that agreement? It was signed 'by the authority of the governments of the USSR, the United Kingdom and the United States by Melinosky (Malinovski).' That treaty was signed by a representative of Soviet Russia acting in behalf of the United States.

"The day after it was signed, the Secretary of State of the United States declined to comment on the grounds that the terms had not been received from Moscow in time for study."

Details Given

The State department said that as for the Romanian armistice terms Secretary Hull had pointed out Sept. 20 that "final disposition of Transylvania would depend upon confirmation at the time of the general peace settlement." Cession of Bessarabia to Russia, it was added, "merely restores the frontier between the two states as established by the Soviet-Romanian agreement on June 8, 1940."

Also on Sept. 20, it added, Hull made clear that the American government had participated in the discussions leading to the surrender terms "and he stated specifically that this government had been kept fully advised of the terms regarding Transylvania."

Roosevelt, Dewey Statues On Exhibit

Washington, Oct. 19 (AP)—President Roosevelt is sitting in a big arm chair with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in a smaller chair, ten feet away, each looking serene and content, but neither smiling.

It is at the Smithsonian Institution, which has put on display 43 statues of wartime leaders executed in bronze by Sculptor Max Kalish, of New York.

The selections were made by a private group headed by W. M. Kiplinger, of Washington, who conceived the idea, bore the costs and presented the collection to the Smithsonian.

On hand to give a final dusting to each statue, the 53-year-old sculptor said he found all the subjects easy to get along with.

OUTBURSTS MARK O'DANIEL INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 — (AP) The wife of Senator O'Daniel (D.-Tex.) weeping on the witness stand, accused Senate investigators today of making a personal attack on her and her two sons in service. She testified in the Campaign Expenditures committee's inquiry into the financing and management of the anti-New Deal "W. Lee O'Daniel News."

The Senator himself engaged in a sharp exchange when he was challenged after whispering to Mrs. O'Daniel during her testimony on the circulation of the Texas weekly.

"I suggest that the Senator not prompt the witness," Senator Tunnell (D.-Del.) cut in.

"I suggest that if you don't like the Senator from Texas sitting here by his wife, that you remove the Senator from Texas," O'Daniel flared back.

"I make that suggestion, Mr. Chairman," Tunnell said, turning to Chairman Green (D.-R. I.).

Green ignored the exchange, and Mrs. O'Daniel proceeded with testimony that approximately 70,000 copies of the publication are printed weekly in Fort Worth.

She said she is in charge of editing and does that work here.

Telling the committee she is manager of the weekly and her sons Pat and Mike are officers of it, she declared that Senator O'Daniel actually has no official connection with the O'Daniel News.

Her voice broke and she dabbed away tears as she said the boys had gone to the Army and she was trying to carry on not only her own duties but their work for the paper.

Bitterly she told Chairman Green that she resented his attitude and that of the committee, charging that they had "by insinuation" made a "vicious and unwarranted attack" against not only her husband and her sons but against her personally as well.

The testimony of the attractive, gray-haired wife of the junior Texas Senator was sandwiched into that of Garfield Crawford, who said he was receiving $10,000 for his work throughout 1944 in seeing that the O'Daniel News gets off the press.

OUTPUT DEFICIT DISCLOSED BY WPB

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP) There is an output deficit in a small but vital segment of the munitions program, and if it continues it may delay victory in Europe indefinitely, War Production Board officials said today.

Chairman J. A. Krug told a news conference that while war production as a whole is "going well," a highly important ten per cent of the program—including heavy trucks and tires, tanks and heavy artillery ammunition—is lagging.

"If we can keep the heat on for three or four months, V-E day will come sooner," Krug said. "If we can't get those trucks and tires, V-E day is shoved back an indefinite number of months."

Hiland G. Batcheller, WPB operations chief, said September output of heavy trucks was 2,600 units behind the scheduled 8,600, he warned that efficient operation of the famed red ball express—the Allies' truck supply line to the German West Wall—is dependent on this production.

To step up output of heavy tires for these vehicles he said it has been necessary to trim production of other types—even "run flat" tires designed to function in action despite bullet holes.

Both Krug and Batcheller said there is an impression around the country that current war production is adequate. This is not true, they emphasized, adding that there has been too much talk of reconversion.

PROFITS TAX SEEN ERASED AFTER WAR

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 19—(AP) The excess-profits tax on corporations appears to be headed for the scrap heap after the war, a Treasury official said today.

Roy Blough, director of the division of tax research, said no plan yet submitted to congressional and treasury post-war tax planners calls for keeping the excess-profits tax.

In a speech on corporate tax simplication, prepared for delivery before the American Institute of Accountants, Blough said, "It appears that simplification of the excess-profits tax will come by erasure rather than by erosion."

He said this war-time tax is to blame for the major complexities of the corporation tax structure.

Blough also disclosed that Congressional and Treasury experts are making progress in their study of post-war taxation and hope to make preliminary reports soon.

He criticized the capital-stock tax and the declared-value excess-profits tax, saying they "have no relation to any accepted principle of tax distribution." He suggested that both taxes "be simplified concurred in by business—namely, repeal."

He said the next few years promise to be "an auspicious time" to promote simplication in the corporate tax structure because it will be possible to make some tax reductions.

He emphasized throughout the speech taht simplification is a laudable goal but should be placed in its "proper perspective" and not be put above everything else.

Basically, most tax complexity is caused by the necessity of being fair and equitable in a complicated situation in which many specific refinements are necessary to meet charges of unfairness, he said.

"You are well aware," he told the accountants, "that problems of tax policy, of eliminating hardships, and of plugging up loopholes are responsible for many of the complexities in our tax laws."

CONGRESS TO CONSIDER WELDING LIBERTY BELL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—(AP) Right in the midst of election battling plopped another hot issue for Congress today—should the crack in the Liberty bell be welded?

"Never," said Senator Reynolds (D-NC). "It should be left as it is in its sacred cloister."

"Why not?" asked Rep. Disney (D-Okla). "It seems a good idea to me. "We lead a radio life nowadays and to have its ringing heard over the air would keep the youngsters reminded of the fact there is an old Liberty bell. If it has a voice it should be heard."

The suggestion that the bell be repaired came from W. J. Conley, consulting engineer for the Lincoln Electric company, Cleveland. In a letter to Speaker Sam Rayburn, Conley said a study "indicates full tone can be restored to the Liberty bell by arc welding."

Nothing official can be done about Conley's idea until Congress reconvenes Nov. 14, but indications are that debate will ring louder than the Old Bell did when it cracked in 1835.

The bell has long been enshrined in an honored resting place in Independence Hall, Philadelphia.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—(AP) Film star Bette Davis had tea with President Roosevelt late today. She had nothing to say to reporters about her visit.

ICKES SEES 'CLOSE' RACE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19 — Interior Secretary Ickes said today that the presidential campaign had been a "resonably close" affair up to now but asserted that a "trend toward Mr. Roosevelt" has set in.

"The registration, if that means anything, ought to mean that — a large vote and a Democratic vote," he told his news conference, asserting that things developed the same way four years ago.

PRESIDENT PLANS TOUR OF NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 19—(AP) A 50-mile motor tour by President Roosevelt which will take him through the heart of New York city before Saturday's midday throngs, became definite today with official announcement of his four-borough itinerary.

Police arrangements, probably the most extensive since the visit of England's King and Queen in 1939, indicated they were expecting several million persons to see the President, who is coming here to speak Saturday night before the Foreign Policy association.

The itinerary, which was announced simultaneously by Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan, and Mayor F. H. La Guardia, will take the President through Brooklyn, Queens, the Bronx and Manhattan, skipping only Richmond (Staten Island).

The President will inspect the Brooklyn Navy Yard, then go to Ebbets Field for a campaign rally for U. S. Senator Robert F. Wagner, then to the Bronx to inspect the U. S. Naval training station for Waves at Hunter College, and finally Manhattan. The itinerary includes Harlem, the West Side garment district and Times Square.

The area, with the exception of Queens, is overwhelmingly Democratic and it is here that the Democrats hope to pile up the majority to win New York's 47 electoral votes.

The National chairman said that "after the President has made the trip the people who see him can make up their own minds as to his vigor and health."

The trip, Hannegan said, will go on regardless of the weather. It was indicated the only talk the President plans is at Ebbets Field, in the nature of a greeting for Senator Wagner.

Hannegan disclosed also that the National committee was paying for the radio time for the President's foreign policy speech. Presidential Secretary Stephen Early said in Washington yesterday that the White House would not attempt to classify the speech as political or non-political.

U. S. Veterans Pledged Aid of State After War

MaurinCitesNewYorkPlans to Avert Repetition of World War I Experience

BUFFALO, Oct. 19 (AP).—New York State "is determined that at the end of this war no service man will suffer the plight of those following World War I," Frank D. Maurin, member of the New York State Industrial Board, said today.

"New York has taken the lead throughout the country in veterans' legislation," he declared at a one-day session of the New York Association of Small Loan Companies. "We, in this state, have not forgotten our obligation to our boys in service."

Mr. Maurin told the group that "there is no problem of more serious concern to the nation, as well as New York State, than to broaden every opportunity for the returning service man's domestic tranquillity."

30. 24 — 19697

"Whether this be jobs, or whatever their requirements may be, it is our obligation to make adequate provisions," he said.

Mr. Maurin said New York State is facing the responsibility of caring for veterans by setting up unemployment benefits, creating a state-wide public works program designed to provide jobs until reconversion takes place, safeguarding their civil service rights and "taking every conceivable means to make sure they do not have to sell apples on our street corners when they come back home."

The meeting was attended by representatives of government, organized labor, industry, civic agencies and various veterans' groups. W. A. Bean, of Albany, president of the association, said the purpose of the session was to "help bring about a clearer understanding of the functions which the various groups represented here must perform during these war years and the post-war period."

Mrs. Roosevelt at Club Where She Was Satirized

Tells Buffalo Group Women Must Set Pace for Peace

BUFFALO, Oct. 19 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today that American women must help prevent future wars and create the kind of government that "will meet the needs of those who fought the war and will furnish leadership and an example to other nations in the post-war world."

"Unless we give leadership to the world, the world is going to be a sorry place," she told a group of women at a meeting sponsored by the Citizens Committee for the Re-election of President Roosevelt at the Twentieth Century Club, where only last week she was satirized in a skit.

"We have not had our strength sapped through malnutrition and disease as have the nations where the war is actually being fought," she added. "It will be some time before these nations are going to have the vitality to do things that we have."

Commenting on the skit, which resulted in the resignation from the club of her friend, Mrs. Norman E. Mack, widow of a former Democratic national chairman, Mrs. Roosevelt said she was accustomed to seeing herself caricatured.

She asserted that lampooning never bothered her, but "a great deal depends on the spirit in which it is done, whether in the spirit of fun or in a bitter, malicious way."

COX COMPARES TWO CAMPAIGNS

OCT 20 1944

Sees Similarity Between GOP Of 1920 And Today

Dayton, Ohio Oct. 19 (AP)—James M. Cox, a stanch advocate of the League of Nations, which the United States Senate rejected after the last war, declared tonight "the powers that directed the conspiracy of 1920 control the Republican party still."

The former Ohio Governor and Democratic Presidential nominee, who campaigned in 1920 on a platform calling for participation in the League, urged the reelection of President Roosevelt, saying:

"The Allied nations which are winning the war together must lead in winning the peace together. And that trio, Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin, whose united leadership is winning the war—are not they, standing together, the best guarantee of the victory for peace for which our people yearn?"

1920 Anti-League Block

Speaking on a coast-to-coast CBS broadcast sponsored by the Democratic National Committee, Cox said in a prepared text released by his office:

"The American people are to decide whether, at the crisis of the war and the hour of opportunity for the peace, we are to dissolve the leadership which has brought us thus far so gloriously on our way. I believe our people know their duty too well to desert this great cause now."

He asserted that a "minority of Senators" blocked America's entrance into the League in 1920, and the Republican convention adopted that year a "platform ambiguous enough to insure a Republican President by gaining the support of both friends of the peace and isolationists."

He added:

"It could be interpreted, as Wendell Willkie said the 1944 plank of that party could be, as either isolationist or for the peace. To allay the doubts which this 1920 platform aroused, a group of eminent pro-peace Republicans were induced to sign a promise that their party would be a path to peace. . . . By their act, millions of Republican voters were misled. The election won, Harding proclaimed the League dead. Harding deserted our allies, made a separate peace with Germany. There the record stands.

"You will note that no such array of independent Republicans, devoted to peace, has come forward to vouch for their present candidate. The burnt child dreads the fire.

"Now to the present: The same doubtful platform, the same reassuring words by the candidate. Behind it all, the powers that directed the conspiracy of 1920 control the Republican party still. In fear of patriotic and peace-loving Republican voters, they will again conceal their plans till their chance to act has come. . . .

Varieties Of Isolationists

"We must be vigilant if we are not again to be betrayed."

Cox declared there were "varieties of isolationists"—some who believe sincerely we should not share in problems of the world, another type whom he called the "economic isolationist."

"It was he," Cox declared, "who carried through the 1920 plot. It was he who, in the period before and throughout the Republican convention, spurned Wendell Willkie and sent him, in the flower of his manhood, to his grave, a broken-hearted man. He chose, not Wendell Willkie, but Herbert Hoover to speak the party creed. Willkie was the one man in whom peace-loving, independent Republicans had put their trust that their party could be kept, in the present emergency, on the path to peace. When he died, their hope was lost."

Rickenbacker 'Regrets' Memphis Club Apology

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 19 (AP)—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker says he "regrets" that the Memphis Kiwanis Club apologized to Mayor Walter Chandler "for statements I made during my talk at the auditorium."

"I thought it was understood before accepting your invitation that I was free to say what I wished without criticism from anyone," the air hero asserted in a letter to the club. "This apparently is not permissible in Memphis, which I regret."

Chandler introduced Rickenbacker at a Kiwanis-sponsored public meeting here October 4 and the president of Eastern Air Lines climaxed a talk on the war effort with a comment on "the man America needs" for President.

The Kiwanis Club later apologized to the Mayor "for any embarrassment" that may have been caused him by the aviator's political remarks.

BRICKER HITS PAC 'PRESSURE'

Vice-Presidential Candidate, Hillman In Verbal Duel

Fresno, Cal., Oct. 19 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker and Sidney Hillman dueled at a range of 3,000 miles today over whether the Political Action Committee was putting pressure on the labor vote.

The Republican candidate for Vice-President, winding up a six-day campaign in California, declared at Bakersfield that he had been informed PAC agents were resorting to "threats and intimidation" to swing industrial workers to President Roosevelt.

Reply From New York

PAC Director Hillman replied from New York that Bricker had "gone wild with fear at the sight of the grim specter of defeat" and was trying to "scare" labor into voting for him.

Arriving here, the Ohio Governor retorted that Hillman's reply "is the best proof of the truth of my statement."

In his speech tonight in this extensive vegetable and fruit growing section of the San Joaquin Valley, Bricker said the Republicans were prepared to establish "a practical and experienced Department of Agriculture—free from regimentation and confusing governmental manipulation and control of farm programs."

Cites Farmer's Wants

He asserted further in a prepared text released by his campaign staff:

"The farmer wants his income through prices and not through subsidies which chain him to his Government. American agriculture is entitled to an orderly administration of surplus war commodities so as to protect its market and to encourage production.

"We assure the protection of prices to the American farmer through support prices, commodity loans. Agriculture is entitled to a fair and equitable portion of the income in comparison with industry and labor."

He said, too, that the Department of Agriculture could "render a great service" to farm producers through research, development of foreign markets, aid in distribution and protection against "unquestionable domestic surpluses."

Says GOP Backs Cooperatives

He also asserted that the Republicans assured support to "bonafide farmer-owned and farmer-operated cooperatives" and believed that Government "should do everything within its proper sphere to encourage the family-type farm."

The Vice-Presidential nominee's Bakersfield speech was the climax of a fight he has been waging against the Political Action Committee since he began touring the country in mid-September.

He said that during his trip through California he had received reports that "men and women in industrial plants have been told by Sidney Hillman's PAC agents that they must vote for the New Deal—that means are available for knowing how they vote—and that if they don't vote right they will be taken care of."

"Will Lose Jobs"

The implication, Bricker added, was "that if those workers do not vote for Mr. Roosevelt they will lose their jobs—or will fail to get better jobs—or will be let out first when war production ends—or will not be able to get peacetime jobs."

Calling it a "campaign of threats and intimidation," he assured his listeners that "we still have a secret ballot in this country" and "there is no possible way for anybody to know how you vote without committing an election fraud or crime."

Hillman declared in a formal statement that Bricker resembled "the man who knows so many things that ain't so."

No Proof, Hillman Says

"No one," he said, "has ever been able to find a single specific instance to prove PAC coercion," and "Governor Bricker knows that he has no evidence to prove this or any of the other wild charges he has been making."

He continued:

"This is all of a piece with Governor Bricker's other charges, the charges of a candidate gone wild with fear at the sight of the grim specter of defeat constantly stalking him and his running mate. If he can't win the votes of labor, he's going to scare them into voting for him."

The PAC chieftain remarked that Bricker "explodes his whole ridiculous thesis by assuring labor" of the secrecy of the ballot.

"Terrified Of Registration"

He declared that the Ohioan was "terrified at the size of registration, and of the job that PAC has helped to do to get millions of citizens to register."

He added that Bricker was also "terrified because he knows what will happen with a heavy vote."

The Republican candidate, in a press conference here, said of Hillman's reply:

"What he said is the best proof of the truth of my statement. It is a typical New Deal trick to make a statement exactly contrary to what it's thinking. When a man works underhanded for selfish purposes and get caught, he always squeals."

Bricker expressed belief that the Republicans would benefit most from a heavy vote.

He will speak tomorrow in Reno, Sparks and Lovelock, Nev., and in Ogden, Utah.

PAC Opens 'Intimidation' Campaign, Says Bricker

Bakersfield, Cal., Oct. 19 (AP)—Gov. John W. Bricker said today he had been informed that agents of the Political Action Committee had launched a "campaign of threats and intimidation" to line up labor voters for the Roosevelt Administration.

"The implication of all this," said the Republican candidate for Vice-President, "is that if those workers do not vote for Mr. Roosevelt they will lose their jobs—or will fail to get better jobs—or will be let out first when war production ends—or will not be able to get peace-time jobs."

Ending California Trip

The Ohio Governor, winding up a six-day campaign for California's 25 electoral votes after an unprecedented demonstration by supporters at Los Angeles, said no voter should allow himself to be intimidated.

"To those workers and any others who have been approached in this manner," he added in a prepared speech, "It want to give this assurance. We still have a secret ballot in this country.

"When you enter the voting booth, you enter it alone. There is no possible way for anybody to know how you vote without committing an election fraud or crime. You are not required to tell anybody how you vote—and no one can compel you to do so."

Reports Received On Tour

Bricker said reports of the purported intimidation had been received by him as he toured California.

"To be specific," he added, "it has been reported that men and women in industrial plants have been told by Sidney Hillman's PAC agents that they must vote for the New Deal—that means are available for knowing how they vote—and that if they don't vote right they will be taken care of."

Bricker remarked that "it is not surprising to learn of this campaign of threats and intimidation. One of the most serious indictments of the New Deal is the charge that it has thwarted free voting in this country."

Other Train Stops

The candidate's eight-car special train was to stop also at Tulare, Selma and Fresno before leaving a State in which, he said, he found "much encouragement."

"I like the way you have campaigned in California," Bricker last night told a Los Angeles audience estimated at 7,000 persons.

The Ohio Governor, who has devoted more time to California than any other State in his four-week, 9,250-mile Western swing, earlier had predicted a Republican victory. California has given a majority to the Democrats in the last three Presidential contests.

Staff In High Spirits

Bricker's campaign staff appeared to be in high spirits as a result of his reception in Los Angeles' Shrine auditorium, where Senator Harry S. Truman, the Democratic candidate for Vice-President, spoke two days before.

Karl B. Pauly, the Governor's press representative, said the audience applauded more than 40 times and was the most enthusiastic Bricker has faced on his current tour.

But what impressed the Bricker managers were the cries of "More! More!" which arose when he completed a 25-minute radio broadcast, and which caused him to return to the rostrum to speak an additional six minutes.

First Such Request

The Ohioan asserted it was the first time an audience had ever asked him to continue a political speech.

Bricker, taking a cue from Truman's Los Angeles address, said the Democratic candidate had given the Roosevelt Administration credit for "the miracle of war production—indeed, for winning the war itself."

"That," the Republican declared, "is an insult to American industry and labor, and to the countless American men and women who are fighting and dying around the world tonight."

WAC Casualty Was Wounded By A Robot

Chula Vista, Cal., Oct. 19—Private Ruth M. Brady, a WAC who recently was named in a War Department casualty list, was wounded by a robot bomb in England, her husband, James S. Brady, said today.

Mrs. Brady, a native of Mansfield, Ohio, was driving a jeep when the bomb exploded near her last June, her husband said. In a recent letter to her husband she wrote:

"It was like battle scenes in 'Gone With the Wind.' When I regained consciousness, bodies were strewn all around me."

Brady said his wife has recovered fully and is on active duty in Paris. The War Department has reported seven other WAC casualties, all presumably robot bomb victims.

Guam Hero's Wife Asks Share In Book Profits

San Diego, Cal., Oct. 19 (AP)—Hearing on a petition to set aside a divorce decree granted George Ray Tweed, 45, rescued from Guam last July after eluding the Japanese there for 31 months, was continued today until next Tuesday.

Lester Penry, attorney for the navy man, told Superior Judge Jacob Weinberger that Tweed was out of the country, but probably would return next Tuesday.

The petition to set aside the interlocutory decree, awarded last August 6, was filed by Mrs. Mary Tweed, 27, who contended in an affidavit that she should share in possibly $250,000 Tweed may receive from film and book rights to his "Ghost of Guam" experiences.

TRUMAN PLEDGES PUBLIC POWER AID

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 19.—(AP) Senator Harry S. Truman pledged President Roosevelt tonight to sponsor private industry's use of the government's $20,000,000,000 worth of war plants and to the completion of government power projects to provide "the nucleus for a great prosperity for the entire nation."

The President's fourth term running mate declared government must make "a well-conceived and well-directed effort to encourage private business to utilize the plants to stimulate postwar production and employment for returning soldiers and war workers.

"I mean," he said, "a government that will place the operation of these plants and the welfare of millions of workers above the selfish interests of those who fear competition."

Truman opposed abandoning the war plant investment in an address at a Democratic rally in the Civic auditorium here, and broadcast to the Pacific Coast.

In a five-minute speech an hour earlier on a nation-wide radio hookup, he also asked President Roosevelt's re-election and asserted "we can not take a chance on either a reactionary or a political trickster."

He said Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican standard bearer, came West to convince it he and his "reactionary backers" favored the Grand Coulee, Bonneville and other power projects and later, at Charleston, West Va., "sought the votes of the reactionaries by charging the President with being a fellow traveler with the Communists" for sponsoring government corporations and credit agencies as "un-American."

Truman said that if Dewey is not in favor of destroying these services "he was guilty of a cheap political trick when he cited them as proof the President is a fellow traveler."

Million In Population Rise Seen For Alaska

Seattle, Oct. 19 (AP)—The Territory of Alaska will gain 1,000,000 in population immediately after the war, Gov. Ernest Gruening predicts.

"Thousands of servicemen who have learned of the opportunities Alaska has to offer while stationed in the North are eager to return and live there," the Alaskan executive said last night. He is en route to Washington, D. C., for conferences on the Territory's post-war program.

AROUND THE GREAT HIGHWAY AND ROAD JUNCTION OF DEBRECEN IN EASTERN HUNGARY THE RUSSIANS CAPTURED SARAND, SEVEN MILES ON THE SOUTH, UJLETA, 10 MILES ON THE SOUTHEAST, HAJDU-VAMOSPERCS, 10 MILES ON THE EAST, AND A NUMBER OF OTHER LOCALITIES, INCLUDING THE JUNCTION TOWN OF BERETTYOUJFALU, 20 MILES SOUTH OF DEBRECEN.

BESIDES CAPTURING 11,000 GERMANS AND HUNGARIANS IN FIVE DAYS, THE BULLETIN SAID MARSHAL RODION Y.MALINOVSKY'S SECOND UKRAINE ARMY UNITS SEIZED 91 PLANES, 29 TANKS AND SELF-PROPELLED GUNS AND 222 GUNS OF VARIOUS CALIBER IN THIS AREA. (KASISCHAWE)

IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA COL.GEN.IVAN PETROV'S FOURTH UKRAINE ARMY GAINED UP TO SIX MILES IN AN ARC AROUND SIGHET, CAPTURED TRANSYLVANIAN TOWN ON THE SOUTHEASTERN BORDER. NEWLY-WON VILLAGES INCLUDED KOBLYLECKA-POLJANA, 11 MILES NORTHWEST OF SIGHET; VIZNI-APSA, THREE MILES ON THE NORTH, AND NIZNI-APSA, FIVE MILES NORTHWEST OF SIGHET AND 26 MILES FROM THE CARPATHO-UKRAINE TOWN OF CHUST.

THE RUSSIANS IN THIS AREA WERE STRIKING ALONG THE SIGHET-DEBRECEN RAILWAY NORTHWEST OF SATU-MARE, LAST IMPORTANT AXIS-HELD TOWN IN HUNGARIAN-ANNEXED TRANSYLVANIA WHICH ALSO IS MENACED FROM THREE SIDES BY OTHER SOVIET AND ROMANIAN FORCES ROLLING UP THAT AXIS SALIENT.

AMONG 60 LOCALITIES CAPTURED IN NORTHERN TRANSYLVANIA WAS BAIA-MARE, 19 MILES SOUTHWEST OF SIGHET. SOVIET UNITS ATTACKING FIVE MILES NORTHWEST OF BAIA-MARE SEIZED BAIA-SPRIE, ONLY 27 MILES FROM SATU-MARE, AND ANOTHER GROUPE TOOK THE RAIL STATION OF BUSAG, SIX MILES WEST OF BAIA-MARE.

AT THE LOWER END OF THE 50-MILE TRANSYLVANIAN FRONT THE BULLETIN ANNOUNCED THE CAPTURE OF BAITA AND CAMAR, 20 MILES SOUTHEAST AND 29 MILES SOUTH, RESPECTIVELY, OF SATU-MARE.

IN A STEADY MOPPING UP OF A GERMAN FORCE TRAPPED SOUTHEAST OF BELGRADE IN YUGOSLAVIA THE RUSSIANS SAID THEIR TROOPS DURING WEDNESDAY HAD CAPTURED MORE THAN 2,000 TRUCKS, 1,200 CARTS WITH MILITARY SUPPLIES, 18 TANKS, 300 GUNS AND OTHER BOOTY IN ADDITION TO THE 5,700 PRISONERS.

IN ANOTHER FIVE-MILE ADVANCE IN LATVIA THE RUSSIANS CAPTURED A NUMBER OF LOCALITIES, INCLUDING THE COASTAL VILLAGE OF RAGACIEMS, 20 MILES WEST OF THE FALLEN CAPITAL OF RIGA, AND 13 MILES NORTHEAST OF TUKUMS RAIL JUNCTION.

CAUGHT AGAIN BY FLAK THREE DAYS AGO, HE RODE BACK TO ENGLAND IN A PLANE HE SAYS NO MAN WITH SENSE WOULD HAVE STAYED IN A MINUTE, SMASHED UP WHAT WAS LEFT OF IT ON AN EMERGENCY LANDING FIELD, AND STEPPED UNSCRATCHED FROM THE WRECKAGE.

OCT 201944

MAGEL, WHO IS 21, AND HIS TWIN BROTHER, FLIGHT OFFICER ROBERT W.MAGEL, STARTED OUT TOGETHER AS AVIATION CADETS A YEAR AND A HALF AGO. THEY ARE THE SONS OF MR.AND MRS.F.L.MAGEL OF DEMAREST, N.J., WHO ALSO HAVE TWO SONS IN THE ARMY.

ROBERT WOUND UP IN THE THUNDERBOLT WOLFPACK HERE, AND ONLY THE SAME OUTFIT WOULD SATISFY HIS BROTHER. IN AUGUST, DAVID REACHED THE WOLFPACK BASE AND WALKED RIGHT INTO THE SHOCK OF AN ANNOUNCEMENT THAT ROBERT WAS MISSING IN ACTION.

"THAT WAS TOUGH," SAYS DAVID, "BUT HE'S NOW REPORTED A PRISONER, SO I'M NOT WORRYING ANY MORE."

AACHEN, OCT 19-(AP)-THE SIEGE OF AACHEN PROCEEDED SLOWLY IN ITS 11TH DAY TODAY. THE GERMANS FOUGHT WITH UNDIMINISHED SAVAGERY AND DETERMINATION AMID MOUNTAINS OF DEBRIS.

IN SPITE OF THE PATTERN OF RESISTANCE, DISTURBING IF IT IS TO BE FOLLOWED IN EVERY CITY ACROSS GERMANY, THE AMERICAN ADVANCE IS UNBROKEN AND THE DOUGHBOYS NOW HOLD HALF THE CITY.

THE AMERICAN ATTACK IS BEING CARRIED OUT WITH EXTRAORDINARLY SMALL LOSSES, CONSIDERING HOW NASTY STREET FIGHTING IS.

THIS IS MAINLY BECAUSE THE AMERICAN COMMAND REFUSES TO PUT THE DOUGHBOYS OUT IN THE OPEN STREET IN FULL VIEW OF THE NAZIS. THE TROOPS APPROACH THE ENEMY OBLIQUELY, USING THE COVER OF BUILDINGS. WHEN THEY NEED A NEW AVENUE, THE HEAVY GUNS SIMPLY SHOOT HOLES IN BUILDINGS AND OPEN A LANE.

NORTHEAST OF AACHEN, THE SCENE OF A SERIES OF GERMAN COUNTER-ATTACKS AGAINST CRUCIFIX HILL, ENEMY PRESSURE IS STILL ON.

IN LUXEMBOURG, OCT. 18 (DELAYED) -(AP)-WORKERS WHO ONCE WERE PRISONERS OF THE GERMANS ARE HELPING U.S. NINTH AIR FORCE ENGINEERS TO BUILD AN AIR STRIP WITHIN A FEW MILES OF THE FRONT LINE.

MANY WERE CAPTIVES FROM THE RUSSIAN ARMY, ALL OF WHOM ESCAPED SINGLY OR IN SMALL GROUPS AND HID IN THE WOODS, WHERE THEY BANDED TOGETHER AND WAITED UNTIL AMERICAN TROOPS LIBERATED THIS TINY COUNTRY. THEN THEY EMERGED AND OFFERED THEIR SERVICES.

"THEY ARE THE BEST WORKERS WE HAVE HAD SINCE WE BEGAN BUILDING AIR STRIPS ON THE CONTINENT," SAID STAFF SGT. EDWARD FRONCEZK OF (81ST ST.) MC KEE ROCK, PA., WHO AS PLATOON SERGEANT IN AN ENGINEERING BATTALION SUPERVISES THE RUSSIANS ON THE JOB.

FRONCEZK, OF POLISH EXTRACTION, CAN CONVERSE WITH THE RUSSIANS, BUT HE HAS HAD THE HELP OF CPL. JOHN FIRKO OF (2027 FORBES ST.) PITTSBURGH, PA., WHOSE PARENTS CAME FROM THE UKRAINE AND WHO SPEAKS RUSSIAN FLUENTLY.

OCT 201944

STANDING AT THE EDGE OF A FIELD UNDER CONSTRUCTION, FIRKO SHOUTED TO A GROUP OF RUSSIANS UNROLLING LENGTHS OF METAL MATTING. A STOCKY LEADER OF A GROUP OF RUSSIANS CAME OVER TO FIRKO, FRONCEZK AND A TRIO OF CORRESPONDENTS.

THIS MAN, WE LEARNED, WAS NAMED VASIL. HE WOULDN'T GIVE HIS LAST NAME. ONCE HE WAS A SENIOR LIEUTENANT IN THE RUSSIAN ARMY AND NOW HE IS A LEADER OF A LABOR CREW AND HIS MEN UNDERSTAND FRONCZECK'S ORDERS.

OCT 201944

VASIL WAS RELUCTANT TO TALK AT FIRST, BUT WITH FIRKO AS INTERPRETER WE DREW BITS OF INFORMATION FROM HIM. HIS HOME WAS AT NOWA ALEXANDROVESKOMO, NEAR ROSTOV. HE WAS CAPTURED AT SMOLENSK IN AUGUST, 1943.

HE AND OTHER RUSSIANS WITH THEIR FAMILIES WERE TAKEN TO FRANCE WHERE THEY WERE FORCED TO WORK IN THE MINES. TOP PAY WAS EQUIVALENT TO FOUR DOLLARS A MONTH AND THEY GOT ONE MEAL--SOUP, CARROTS AND BREAD--DAILY, HE SAID. FOOD WAS TAKEN AWAY FROM ANY MAN FAILING IN HIS MINE QUOTA EACH DAY, HE SAID.

THE GERMANS KEPT THE WORKERS UNDER GUARD, BUT PERMITTED THE FAMILIES TO LIVE NEARBY IN THE BASEMENTS OF RUINED BUILDINGS.

MORE THAN 200 OF THESE PERSONS, INCLUDING WOMEN AND CHILDREN, ARE LIVING IN AN ABANDONED SCHOOL BUILDING. FIFTY OF THEM WERE HIRED BY THE NINTH AIR FORCE ENGINEER COMMAND AT THE LOCAL WAGE SCALE TO WORK ON THE AIR STRIP AND THE OTHERS ARE FINDING WORK ELSEWHERE.

OCT 201944

THOSE EMPLOYED AT THE FIELD MARCH TO WORK SINGING EACH MORNING, EAT THE SAME FOOD AS THE AMERICANS AT NOON AND MARCH HOME AT NIGHT, SINGING ALL THE WAY.

A LARGE PICTURE OF STALIN HANGS IN FRONT OF THEIR BUILDING. INSIDE THERE ARE A SOVIET FLAG, A PICTURE OF STALIN AND OTHER PICTURES OF THE BETTER KNOWN RUSSIAN GENERALS. THE COMMANDANT OF THE CAMP IS MICHEL KRISCHTSCHUK, ALSO A FORMER SENIOR LIEUTENANT IN THE RUSSIAN ARMY, WHO WAS CAPTURED NEAR SMOLENSK EARLY IN

30. 24 —— 19701

1942. WE MISSED SEEING THE COMMANDANT. HE HAD BUSINESS TODAY WITH THE RUSSIAN CONSUL IN THE CITY OF LUXEMBOURG.

WHILE MOST OF THE GROUP WERE SOLDIERS, THERE ALSO WERE FORMER MINERS AND FACTORY WORKERS. THEY ARE EXTREMELY CHEERFUL AND WILLING TO DO WHAT IS ASSIGNED THEM, ALTHOUGH SOME STILL CAN'T UNDERSTAND THE FREEDOM THEY HAVE BEEN GIVEN ON THE JOB.

"THEY DON'T SEEM TO CARE WHETHER THEY GET PAID OR NOT," SAID LT. PETER BEAGAN (521 RECTOR ST.), SLINGER, WIS., AN ENGINEERING OFFICER AT THE FIELD. "ALL THEY WANT IS TO WORK FOR THE U.S. ARMY AND GET A SQUARE MEAL EVERY DAY."

SIMULTANEOUSLY FRENCH TROOPS TO THE SOUTH FLANKED THE VILLAGE OF VENTRON AND DROVE FORWARD NORTHEAST OF LE THILLOT IN THE SECTOR SOME 30 MILES NORTH OF BELFORT. THREE HUNDRED PRISONERS WERE TAKEN NEAR LE THILLOT.

ALL ALONG THE VOSGES LINE THE GERMAN DEFENDERS, WHO HAVE BEEN REPULSED IN A SERIES OF FUTILE COUNTERATTACKS, WERE RESORTING TO EXTENSIVE USE OF ONE OF THE LAST WAR'S MAJOR DEFENSIVE WEAPONS -- BARBED WIRE ENTANGLEMENTS. THEY ALSO WERE EMPLOYING HEVY ARILLERY paris,oct.19-(ap)- war minister andre diethelm said today

gen.george c.marshall, american chief of staff, had given small encouragement to his request for arms for french forces of the interior divisions.

diethelm told the newspaper liberation that marshall was "not very encouraging," but the war minister added the allies were preoccupied in supplying equipment to their own armies.

the americans, according to diethelm, asked the french to organize security reconnaissance units, whereas the french want a larger number of modern fighting organizations, which require large amounts of materiel.

"to resume her place in the world," diethelm was quoted, "france ought to resume as soon as possible her place in the inter-allied battle in order to be worthy of her great military traditions."

efforts will be made, he said, to equip such units from france's own resources.

MOSCOW, OCT 19-(AP)-SWIFT RUSSIAN ADVANCES THROUGH THE CARPATHIAN MOUNTAINS HAVE LIBERATED ONE THIRD OF THE CARPATHO-UKRAINE, EASTERN-MOST PROVINCE OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA, AND ESTABLISHED VIRTUALLY A SOLID FRONT FOR THE RED ARMY ACROSS THE WEDGE OF HIGH GROUND BETWEEN THE POLISH AND HUNGARIAN PLAINS.

MOSCOW ANNOUNCED EARLY TODAY THAT COL.GEN.IVAN D.PETROV'S FOURTH UKRANIAN COMMAND, POURING THROUGH GAPS LEFT IN ENEMY DEFENSES BY HUNGARY'S MILITARY COLLAPSE, HAD DEALT STUNNING BLOWS TO GERMAN POSITIONS IN THE RICH DANUBIAN BASIN.

THE HIGH COMMAND DISCLOSED THAT RUSSIAN TROOPS HAD CAPTURED SEVEN IMPORTANT CARPATHIAN PASSES IN ADVANCES RANGING FROM 12 1/2 TO 31 MILES ALONG A 170-MILE FRONT.

ONE OF PETROV'S COLUMNS COMPLETELY TRAVERSED THE CARPATHO-UKRAINE FROM NORTH TO SOUTH, ENTERING THROUGH THE TATAR PASS AND SWEEPING PAST KOROSMEZO AND RAHO TO SIGHET IN TRANSYLVANIA.

IT ALSO WAS DISCLOSED THAT RUSSIAN AND ROMANIAN FORCES UNDER MARSHAL RODION Y.MALINOVSKY, COMMANDER OF THE SECOND UKRANIAN ARMY, HAVE BEEN FIGHTING NEAR SIGHET FOR TWO DAYS AFTER A DRIVE NORTHWARD THROUGH TRANSYLVANIA.

ANOTHER PETROV ARMORED UNIT STRUCK FROM VERECZKE PASS TO WITHIN 15 MILES OF MUNKACS, ONE OF THE THREE LEADING TOWNS IN THE CARPATHO-UKRAINE, OR RUTHENIA, WHICH HUNGARY SEIZED BACK FROM CZECHOSLOVAKIA IN APRIL, 1939.

UNGVAR, SEAT OF THE PROVINCIAL ADMINISTRATION, WAS THE IMMEDIATE GOAL OF RUSSIAN TANKS AND INFANTRY LESS THAN 20 MILES DISTANT IN THE HIGHER HILLS.

DESTRUCTION OF THE ENEMY'S CARPATHIAN LINE AFTER A MONTH LONG STRUGGLE COSTING HEAVILY IN BLOOD OVERSHADOWED OTHER IMPORTANT SUCCESSES ON THE EASTERN FRONT.

FRONT DISPATCHES SAID THE MOP-UP OF BELGRADE WAS PROGRESSING STEADILY, WITH GERMANS FIGHTING AND DYING LIKE WILD ANIMALS IN BLAZING HILLSIDE BUILDINGS FROM WHICH THEY COULD NOT ESCAPE.

SOUTHEAST OF BELGRADE ELEMENTS OF AT LEAST TWO GERMAN DIVISIONS WERE REPORTED SURROUNDED BY RUSSIAN AND YUGOSLAV PARTISAN FORCES.

BULGARIAN TROOPS SPEARHEADED AN ALL-SLAVIC DRIVE ACROSS THE WIDTH OF SERBIA WHICH HAS NOW REACHED KURSUMLIJA, 40 AIRIMILES WEST OF NIS, AND ONLY 130 MILES FROM THE ADRIATIC SEA.

FOR THE SEVENTH DAY THERE WAS NO OFFICIAL NEWS OF THE RED ARMY'S CRUCIAL BATTLE AT THE APPROACHES TO BUDAPEST. THERE WAS THE POSSIBILITY HUNGARIAN FORCES LOYAL TO REGENT NICHOLAS HORTHY MAY BE REGROUPING FOR COMBINED ACTION AGAINST THE NAZIS WITH THE RUSSIANS.

A NEW ADVANCE WAS REPORTED NORTHWARD ALONG THE BORDER OF HUNGARY AND NORTHERN TRANSYLVANIA, WHERE THE GERMANS WERE SWEPT OUT OF VALEA-MUI-MIHAI.

A NEW DEFEAT WAS INFLICTED ON THE REMNANTS OF THE GERMAN ARMY IN WESTERN LATVIA AS RUSSIANS CROSSED THE LIELUPE RIVER BETWEEN JELGAVA AND THE BALTIC, MOSCOW SAID.

THE RUSSIANS REMAINED SILENT ON THE OFFENSIVE OPERATIONS AGAINST EAST PRUSSIA, EITHER FROM LITHUANIA OR NORTHERN POLAND, WHICH HAVE BEEN REPORTED BY BERLIN.

MOSCOW'S IN THE PAST HAS FOLLOWED THE POLICY OF SILENCE WHEN A BIG ATTACK IS IMMINENT OR JUST UNDERWAY.

AN ADVANCED U.S. 14TH AIR FORCE BASE IN CHINA--FIRST ADD SUPERFORTRESS XXX NOT TOUCHED.

"I WAS JUST GETTING READY TO SHOOT SOME PICTURES OUT MY WINDOW," WEINBERG SAID FROM HIS HOSPITAL COT.

"IT DIDN'T REALLY HURT, LIKE YOU'D EXPECT," SAID KLAVER, FROM AN ADJACENT BED. "IT FELT LIKE SOMEONE HIT ME HARD OVER THE LEGS WITH A BOARD. THEN I SAW I WAS BLEEDING THROUGH THE FLIGHT COVERALS."

"THINGS WERE ALL HAPPENING AT ONCE," SAID MAJ.MOSS. "I WAS PRETTY BUSY. THE SUDDEN LOSS OF PRESSURIZATION MADE THE AIR FOG FOR A MOMENT, LIKE LIGHT SMOKE. WE ALL STARTED GRABBING FOR OXYGEN MASKS. MOST OF US HAD THEM HANGING AROUND OUR NECKS. ALL THE GUNS HAD BEEN GOING. I SAW FIGHTERS COMING FOR US HEAD-ON AND PASS. WE KEPT IN FORMATION. I DON'T KNOW HOW MANY FIGHTERS IN ALL ATTACKED THE FORMATION, BUT THREE OF THEM MADE A COORDINATED ATTACK ON US."

OCT 201944

"I WAS POURING IT ON ONE FIGHTER," SAID A GUNNER, STAFF SGT. JOSEPH DUEMIG, 23, MASPETH, N.Y. "HE MADE A PASS ENDING IN A CLIMBING TURN. HIS BELLY WAS EXPOSED. HE WAS ONLY 50 YARDS AWAY. I SAW THE FIRE HITTING INTO HIS UNDERSIDE AND THEN HE BURST INTO SMOKE AND FLAMES AND DIVED TOWARD THE SEA."

"I SAW HIM GO IN," SAID TAILGUNNER EDWARD G.COX, 2[illegible], OF WILLIAMSTOWN, N.Y. "DUEMIG POURED IT ON ALL THE WAY DOWN."

IN ONE FLASHING SECOND DUEMIG TURNED FROM THE GUNSIGHT IN HIS OWN BLISTER WHEN THE BLISTER OPPOSITE BROKE, AND HE SAW HIS GUN MATE DISAPPEAR THROUGH THE HOLE.

THE ATTACK LASTED PERHAPS 15 MINUTES. WEINBERG WAS NOT WOUNDED TOO PAINFULLY TO HELP KLAVER GET HIS OXYGEN MASK, WHICH HE BADLY NEEDED AT THE ALTITUDE THE MONSOON MINNIE WAS FLYING.

THE OXYGEN SITUATION WAS COMPLICATED BY THE FACT THAT A SHELL HIT ONE OR SEVERAL MACHINEGUN SLUGS AND KNOCKED OUT THE LINE INTENDED TO SUPPLY THE RADIOMAN AS WELL AS ENGINEER HAGGERTY.

"I PLUGGED KLAVER'S TUBE TO MY OUTLET," THE NAVIGATOR SAID, "AND CONNECTED MY MASK TO THE PORTABLE TANK WHICH I COULD REFILL FROM THE LINE."

OCT 201944

WEINBERG SPRINKLED KLAVER'S WOUNDS WITH SULFANILAMIDE AND BANDAGED IT, USING MORPHINE TO EASE THE PAIN WHICH GRIPPED THE RADIOMAN AFTER THE FIRST SHOCK. DUEMIG THEN DRESSED HIS OWN INJURY.

BECAUSE KLAVER WAS INCAPACITATED, PILOT MOSS CALLED TO ANOTHER PLANE IN THE FORMATION AND HAD ITS RADIOMAN GET THE WEATHER AT THIS 14TH AIR FORCE BASE, AND HE DECIDED ON COMING HERE TO GET PROMPTER TREATMENT FOR KLAVER. MOREOVER, THE OXYGEN WAS GIVING OUT AND THE FUEL WAS GETTING LOW.

LONDON, OCT 19--AMERICAN WARSHIPS AND TRANSPORTS INVADED LEYTE GULF IN THE CENTRAL PHILIPPINES TUESDAY, TOKYO ANNOUNCED OFFICIALLY TODAY, AND THE GERMAN RADIO SAID A LANDING HAD BEEN MADE ON SULUAN ISLAND OFF THE MOUTH OF THE GULF.
AN IMPERIAL COMMUNIQUE ISSUED IN A SPECIAL JAPANESE BROADCAST SAID "AN ENEMY NAVAL FORCE"--PRESUMABLY ADM.WILLIAM F.HALSEY'S POWERFUL THIRD U.S.FLEET--BEGAN RAKING THE GULF SHORELINE WITH SHELLFIRE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON (TOKYO TIME) WHILE SUPPORTING AIRCRAFT ATTACKED THE AREA WITH BOMBS.
THE COMMUNIQUE DID NOT SAY THAT A LANDING HAD BEEN MADE ON THE BEACHES OF THE GULF, WHICH YAWNS FROM THE NARROWS BETWEEN THE ISLANDS OF LEYTE AND SAMAR TOWARD THE SOUTHEAST ON THE PACIFIC SIDE OF THE PHILIPPINE ARCHIPELAGO OFF THE NORTHERN TIP OF MINDANAO.
A GERMAN (TRANSOCEAN) BROADCAST, HOWEVER, QUOTED AN "OFFICIAL" JAPANESE ANNOUNCEMENT AS SAYING THAT THE LONG-EXPECTED INVASION OF THE PHILIPPINES BEGAN WITH SUCCESSFUL LANDINGS ON THE PIN-POINT OF SULAN IN LEYTE GULX

SULUAN IN LEYTE GULF.
OCT 201944
THE ONLY DIRECT JAPANESE WORD OF SULUAN INVASION CAME IN A PRE-COMMUNIQUE BROADCAST WHICH QUOTED A "FRONT REPORT" THAT ATTACKING FORCES HAD STORMED ASHORE.
THE PHRASING OF THE IMPERIAL COMMAND'S SPECIAL COMMUNIQUES SUGGESTE, HOWEVER, THAT AMERICAN TROOPS ALREADY MIGHT HAVE CARVED OUT A BEACHHEAD ON LEYTE GULF.
THE BULLETIN, BROADCAST BY THE TOKYO RADIO, DECLARED THAT JAPANESE LAND AND SEA FORCES WERE STRIKING BACK AT THE INVADING ARMADA, BUT GAVE NO DETAILS ON THE PROGRESS OF THE BATTLE, WHICH WAS SAID TO HAVE STARTED TUESDAY MORNING (TOKYO TIME).
THERE WAS NO IMMEDIATE CONFIRMATION OF THE BOLD THRUST FROM U.S. QUARTERS--BUT IT WAS RECALLED HERE THAT THE JAPANESE FREQUENTLY HAVE BEEN THE FIRST TO ANNOUNCE SUCH ASSAULTS.
LEYTE BAY IS SITUATED ON THE NORTH COAST OF LEYTE ISLAND, ONE OF THE LARGER ISLANDS IN THE PHILIPPINES GROUP IMMEDIATELY NORTH OF MINDANAO. THE NEARBY VILLAGE OF LEYTE HAS A POPULATION OF ABOUT 6,700.
EARLIER THE TOKYO RADIO HAD REPORTED AN ATTEMPTED LANDING ON SULUAN--A SMALL ISLAND JUST NORTHEAST OF MINDANAO.
THE TWO BROADCASTS SUGGESTED THAT THE LONG-AWAITED INVASION OF THE PHILIPPINES MAY BE UNDER WAY ON A LARGE SCALE WITH ASSAULTS AT MORE THAN ONE POINT SIMULTANEOUSLY.
THE BROADCAST TOKYO COMMUNIQUE SAID JAPANESE ARMY AND NAVAL FORCES WERE ATTACKING THE FLEET WHICH ACCOMPANIED THE TRANSPORTS.
THE MENTION OF JAPANESE ARMY ACTION SUGGESTED THE INVADERS SUCCEEDED IN ESTABLISHING BEACHHEADS.
THE JAPANESE REPORT SAID THE LEYTE BAY COAST WAS SUBJECTED TO HEAVY BOMBARDMENT BY THE INVADING FLEET AND AIRCRAFT YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.
THE SPECIAL COMMUNIQUE WHICH MADE THE INVASION ANNOUNCEMENT WAS BROADCAST SHORTLY AFTER THE TOKYO RADIO HAD ANNOUNCED THAT OCT.20 HAD BEEN DESIGNATED FOR A CELEBRATION OF A "VICTORY" OVER UNITED STATES NAVAL FORCES OFF FORMOSA.
THE JAPANESE "VICTORY" CLAIM HAS BEEN COUNTERED BY ADMIRAL CHESTER W.NIMITZ WITH THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT JAPANESE NAVAL FORCES WHICH SET OUT TO INTERCEPT THE U.S.FLEET OFF FORMOSA FLED AFTER DISCOVERING THE STRENGTH OF THE AMERICAN FORCES.

WITH THE U.S. INVASION CONVOY OFF THE PHILIPPINES, OCT.19-(DELAYED)-(AP)-IN THIS PART OF THE PACIFIC AS FAR AS THE EYE CAN SEE IS A HUGE AMERICAN CONVOY PLYING ONWARD.
AS THIS IS WRITTEN WE ARE ONLY 75 MILES SOUTH OF THE ENTRANCE TO LEYTE GULF. IN THIS CONVOY IS EVERY AVAILABLE MAN WHO WAS LIFTED FROM CORREGIDOR TWO AND ONE-HALF YEARS AGO.
THIS IS THE MAILED-FIST ANSWER TO THE ENEMY AND TO THE HOPES OF THOSE GRIM, SILENT, MEN OF MACARTHUR WHO REMAINED BEHIND BUT REMEMBERED HIS PLEDGE:
"I WILL RETURN."
LONG HARD MONTHS OF JUNGLE FIGHTING IN NEW GUINEA--MILNE BAY--NEW BRITAIN--AND HOLLANDIA--ARE BEHIND US.
THIS IS THE BEGINNING OF THE LIBERATION OF THE PHILIPPINES.

NEW YORK, OCT 20--THE COLUMBIA BROADCASTING SYSTEM DISTRIBUTED THE FOLLOWING DISPATCH TO THE PRESS TODAY:

OCT 201944

BY GORDON WALKER

WITH GENERAL MAC ARTHUR'S TROOPS IN THE PHILIPPINES, OCT 20--(BY RADIO)--THIS LONG-AWAITED ATTACK ON THE PHILIPPINES IS WITHOUT A DOUBT THE MOST INCREDIBLE INVASION OF THIS WAR.

I HAVE JUST COME DOWN FROM A TRIP WITH ONE OF THE INVASION SHIPS HERE IN THE CENTRAL PHILIPPINES. THROUGH GLASSES I WATCHED TENS OF THOUSANDS OF AMERICAN DOUGHBOYS PLUNGE INTO THE BLACK SMOKE WHICH STILL CROWDS THE TWO FULL LANDING BEACHES ON LEYTE ISLAND. RIGHT NOW OUT THERE IN FRONT OF US THEY ARE PUSHING SWIFTLY INTO THE INTERIOR OF THE ENEMY'S DEFENSES.

OCT 201944

THE MOST AMAZING PART OF THE INVASION IS THE FACT THAT UP TO THIS TIME, WHEN THE TROOPS WADED ASHORE, THE ENEMY HAS MADE NO ATTEMPT TO INTERFERE WITH THIS GRAVEST THREAT TO THEIR CONQUERED EMPIRE. FOR DAYS HUGE CONVOYS OF SHIPS CONVERGED FROM DOZENS OF AMERICAN FORWARD

30. 24 — 19709

BASES SCATTERED OVER THE CENTRAL PHILIPPINES, AND WITH THE FIRST CRACK OF DAWN, HUNDREDS OF SHIPS OF EVERY TYPE BEGAN FILING SLOWLY THROUGH THE ENTRANCE OF LEYTE GULF.

OCT 201944

ON THE UPPER DECK, STEEL HELMETS AND LIFE PRESERVERS WERE READY FOR THE EXPECTED ENEMY ATTACK. IT DIDN'T COME. SHORTLY AFTER DARK, A SINGLE TWIN-ENGINED ENEMY BOMBER WINGED DOWN THROUGH A TERRIFIC ANTI-AIRCRAFT BARRAGE AND DROPPED A SINGLE BOMB COMICALLY INTO THE WATER. THEN THE ENEMY BOMBER ITSELF PLUNGED INTO A WATERY GRAVE.

BUT THIS COULDN'T REALLY BE CALLED AN ATTACK. IT WAS HARDLY AGGRESSIVE. OF COURSE, ENEMY AIRCRAFT MAY SWEEP IN OVER THE MOUNTAINS HERE AT ANY MINUTE. TONIGHT AFTER DARK THEY ARE ALMOST SURE TO MAKE SOME SORT OF ATTACK ON THE HUNDREDS OF SHIPS MILLING AROUND US HERE IN THE GULF. BUT THE FACT REMAINS THAT UP TO NOW THE ENEMY HAS NOT MADE A SINGLE CONCERTED EFFORT EITHER WITH SUBMARINES, PLANES OR MOTOR TORPEDO BOATS, TO INTERFERE WITH THIS HISTORY MAKING INVASION. AS FAR AS IS KNOWN NOW, NOT A SINGLE AMERICAN SHIP HAS BEEN LOST. IT IS AS THOUGH A PROTECTIVE SHIELD WAS HELD OVER OUR INVASION CONVOY.

RIGHT AT THIS MINUTE IN FRONT OF ME, INVASION CRAFT CONTINUE IN DISGORGE THE MEN AND MECHANIZED EQUIPMENT. A BIG CRAFT WITH ROLLING BULLDOZERS, JEEPS, TANKS AND ALL THE IMPLEMENTS OF AMERICAN MECHANIZED WARFARE. ALREADY THE SPEARHEADS OF OUR ATTACK COLUMNS ARE PUSHING INLAND, TOWARDS THE CITY OF TACLOBAN IN THE NORTH, AND TOWARDS THE CLUSTER OF ENEMY AIRFIELDS AT THE LOWER END OF LEYTE ISLAND.

PRELIMINARY REPORTS STATE THAT OUR CASUALTIES HAVE BEEN UNBELIEVABLY LOW. THERE MAY BE TOUGH DAYS AHEAD BEFORE GENERAL MACARTHUR LEADS HIS TROOPS DOWN THE STREETS OF MANILA. BUT UP TO NOW THE COMBINED SKILL OF THE AMERICAN ARMY AND NAVY IN THE PACIFIC HAS CAUGHT THE ENEMY COMPLETELY OFF BALANCE. THE AMERICAN FLAG FLIES ONCE AGAIN ON HER FILIPINO SOIL.

AMERICAN FORCES HAVE BEEN PAVING THE WAY FOR REINVASION OF THE PHILIPPINES FOR MONTHS. WHILE MACARTHUR WAS PUSHING HIS ARMY FORWARD ON THE SOUTHERN FLANK, OTHER YANK ARMY AND NAVY FORCES INVADED THE MARIANAS AND TTTK OVER SAIPAN, TINIAN AND GUAM ISLANDS.

THEN CAME THE INVASION OF THE PALAU ISLANDS, MAIN GUARDIANS OF THE PHILIPPINES EASTERN FLANK.

RECENTLY THE MIGHTY U.S.THIRD FLEET WARSHIPS AND CARRIERS KNOCKED AT JAPAN'S FRONT DOOR. WAVES OF CARRIER PLANES BLASTED THE RYUKYUS, FORMOSA AND THE NORTHERN PHILIPPINES, SMASHING SHIPPING AND AIRFIELDS. AMERICAN SUPERFORTRESS BOMBERS FROM CHINA ADDED THEIR MIGHT TO THE ATTACKS ON FORMOSA AIR CENTERS.

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC BOMBERS COOPERATED BY BATTERING JAPANESE AIRFIE IN THE SOUTHERN AND CENTRAL PHILIPPINES AS THE CARRIER PILOTS HIT AIRDROMES IN THE MANILA AREA AND TO THE NORTH.

IT WAS A THREE-WAY SQUEEZE PLAY AND, IF JAPANESE REPORTS ARE TRUE, RESULTED IN MACARTHUR'S RETURN TO THE RICH ARCHIPELAGO WHERE THE AMERICAN FLAG WAS HAULED DOWN, EXCEPT IN GUERRILLA STRONGHOLDS, IN MAY, 1942.

SAN FRANCISCO,OCT.20-(AP)-TWO NEW AMERICAN LANDINGS ON LEYTE LAND IN THE PHILIPPINES, IN ADDITION TO THAT REPORTED ON SULUAN, RE REPORTED TODAY BY TOKYO RADIO.

IN A BROADCAST RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, JAPANESE DOMEI NEWS AGENCY SAID AMERICAN FORCES HAD GONE ASHORE AT TACLOBAN ON THE NORTHEASTERN PART OF LEYTE AND IN THE CABALIAN AREA ON THE SOUTHERN TIP.

THESE LANDINGS, UNCONFIRMED BY ALLIED SOURCES, WOULD APPEAR TO PRESAGE A QUICK BID FOR CONTROL OF ALL THAT IMPORTANT ISLAND IN THE LEYTE GULF AREA WHICH IS AT THE CENTER OF THE PHILIPPINES.

A157FX (CORRECT)
CONTROL OF THAT ISLAND WOULD SEPARATE LUZON, ON WHICH MANILA IS SITUATED, FROM MINDANAO, BIG SOUTHERN ISLAND OF THE ARCHIPELAGO.

DOMEI SAID THE LANDING OPERATIONS BEGAN THURSDAY NOON (MANILA TIME).

IT REPORTED INFANTRY FORCES LANDED AT TACLOBAN "UNDER COVER OF A SMOKE SCREEN."

DOMEI GAVE THE TIME OF THE SECOND LANDING AS AT 7 O'CLOCK THURSDAY NIGHT.

OCT 20 1944

THE TRANSMITTED TEXT READ:

"MANILA,OCT.20--THE JAPANESE FORCES ON LEYTE ISLAND INTERCEPTED AND LAUNCHED FIERCE COUNTERATTACKS AGAINST THE ENEMY INVADERS WHO STARTED LANDING ON TWO POINTS OF THE ISLAND YESTERDAY.

"ABOUT NOON YESTERDAY ENEMY INFANTRY FORCES, UNDER COVER OF A SMOKE SCREEN, COMMENCED LANDING OPERATIONS AT TACLOBAN ON THE NORTHEASTERN PART OF THE ISLAND.

"LATER AT 7 P.M., IN THE EVENING OTHER ENEMY INFANTRY FORCES ALSO STARTED LANDING IN THE CABALIAN AREA ON THE SOUTHERN TIP OF THE ISLAND.

"THE JAPANESE FORCES IN BOTH SECTORS ARE AT PRESENT ENGAGED IN STRONG COUNTERATTACKS AGAINST THE ENEMY INVADERS."

OCT 20 1944

"THE SUFFERING, HUMILIATION AND MENTAL TORE THAT YOU HAVE ENDURED SINCE THE BARBAROUS, UNPROVOKED AND TREACHEROUS ATTACK UPON THE PHILIPPINES NEARLY THREE LONG YEARS AGO HAVE AROUSED IN THI HEARTS OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE A RIGHTEOUS ANGER, A STERN DETERMINATION TO PUNISH THE GUILTY AND A FIXED RESOLVE TO RESTORE PEACE AND ORDER AND DECENCY TO AN OUTRAGED WORLD.

WHEN THE JAPANESE INVADERS HAVE BEEN DRIVEN OUT, THE PHILIPPINES WILL TAKE THEIR PLACE AS A FREE AND INDEPENDENT MEMBER OF THE FAMILY OF NATIONS.

"ON THIS OCCASION OF THE RETURN OF GENERAL MACARTHUR TO PHILIPPINE SOIL WITH OUR AIRMEN, OUR SOLDIERS AND OUR SAILORS, WE RENEW OUR PLEDGE. WE AND OUR PHILIPPINE BROTHERS IN ARMS--WITH THE HELP OF ALMIGHTY GOD--WILL DRIVE OUT THE INVADER; WE WILL DESTROY HIS POWER TO WAGE WAR AGAIN, AND WE WILL RESTORE A WORLD OF DIGNITY AND FREEDOM--A WORLD OF CONFIDENCE AND HONESTY AND PEACE."

WASHINGTON,OCT.19-(AP)-OUSTING OF THE JAPANESE FROM THE PHILIPPINES WILL REGAIN FOR THE ALLIED NATIONS ONE OF THE FEW CRITICAL MATERIALS FOR WHICH NO ADEQUATE SUBSTITUTE HAS BEEN FOUND -- MANILA FIBER.

AND WITH THE ECONOMIC REHABILITATION OF THE ISLANDS WILL COME THE REBIRTH OF TRADE. THE PHILIPPINES IN PEACE WERE THE BIGGEST BUYERS OF AMERICAN-PRODUCED COMMODITIES IN MORE THAN ONE HUNDRED CATEGORIES

A THIRD FACET OF THE RETURN TO NORMALCY WILL REOPEN MAJOR SOURCES OF COCONUT OIL, 80 PER CENT OF WHICH WENT INTO AMERICA'S SOAP; CHROME ORE OF WHICH ONE-FOURTH OF THE U.S. SUPPLY CAME FROM THE PHILIPPINES; AND PROBABLY MUCH OF THE SUGAR WHICH WAS SHIPPED HERE ANNUALLY IN QUANTITIES TOTALING NEARLY 1,000,000 TONS.

ABACA, THE PLANT WHICH IS THE SOURCE OF HEMP, WAS PRODUCED CHIEFLY ON MINDANAO, THE ISLAND SOUTH OF THE PATH WHICH THE JAPANESE SAY U.S. FORCES ARE TAKING. PHILIPPINE ABACA ACCOUNTED FOR MORE THAN 90 PER CENT OF THE WORLD'S SUPPLY BEFORE THE WAR. ONE THIRD OF IT CAME TO THE UNITED STATES.

THE ABACA SITUATION IS SO CRITICAL THAT NO EVEN THE NAVY HAS BEEN GRANTED A BLANKET PRIORITY, AND MAY REQUISITION IT ONLY FOR CERTAIN USES.

BEFORE THE WAR, THE PHILIPPINES LED THE WORLD IN IMPORTS OF SUCH AMERICAN PRODUCTS AS COTTON TEXTILES, CIGARETS, SHEET STEEL, CONDENSED MILK, AND WHEAT FLOUR.

SECRETARY ICKES, ACTING HIGH COMMISSIONER, SAID TODAY THAT INDUSTRIAL REHABILITATION WILL BE NECESSARY ONCE THE JAPANESE ARE O THE U.S., HE ADDED, MUST AND WILL HELP.

UNDATED LEYTE GULF (WITH PHILIPPINES)
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

LEYTE GULF, WHICH THE JAPANESE RADIO REPORTED TODAY WAS THE SITE OF GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S RETURN TO THE PHILIPPINES, IS IDEALLY SUITED FOR AERIAL OPERATIONS AGAINST ENEMY HOLDINGS AT MANILA AND CORREGIDOR.

TINY SULUAN ISLAND, MENTIONED BY THE JAPANESE AS THE POINT OF ACTUAL LANDINGS, LIES AT THE EASTERN ENTRANCE TO THE GULF AND APPROXIMATELY 415 AIRLINE MILES FROM MANILA, TO THE NORTHWEST. ITS MAXIMUM ELEVATION OF 125 FEET WOULD MAKE IT SUITABLE FOR CONSTRUCTION OF LANDING STRIPS FROM WHICH BOMBERS COULD OPERATE EITHER AGAINST THE ISLAND OF LUZON OR LEYTE ISLAND, 80 MILES TO THE WEST.

THE JAPANESE HAVE AT LEAST FOUR AIRSTRIPS ON LEYTE ISLAND.

LEYTE ISLAND LIES 300 MILES SOUTHEAST OF MANILA AT ITS CLOSEST POINT AND EXTENDS 125 MILES SOUTH. ITS COASTS ARE HIGH WITH GOOD NATURAL HARBORS, WITH INLAND TOPOGRAPHY IRREGULARLY RISING TO AN ELEVATION OF 1,400 FEET. IT IS 20 MILES WIDE AT LEYTE GULF, EXPANDING IN HOURGLASS FASHION TO THE NORTH AND SOUTH. THE POPULATION IS ABOUT 270,000.

SAMAR, NORTH-NORTHEAST OF SULUAN AND SEPARATED FROM LEYTE BY THE NARROW SAN JUANICO CHANNEL, REPRESENTS AN UNLIKELY LANDING SITE WITH ITS HIGH, STEEP COASTLINE AND DENSELY FORESTED MOUNTAINOUS TERRAIN. IT IS TRAVERSED FROM NORTHWEST TO SOUTHEAST BY A MOUNTAINOUS CHAIN RANGING IN ELEVATION FROM 1,500 TO 1,800 FEET. THE POPULATION IS APPROXIMATELY 225,000.

WASHINGTON,OCT.19-(AP)-THE TEXT OF A STATE DEPARTMENT STATEMENT CONCERNING GOVERNOR DEWEY'S REMARKS IN HIS ADDRESS AT NEW YORK LAST NIGHT ON SURRENDER TERMS FOR RUMANIA: (ABOUT 300)

"GOVERNOR DEWEY'S STATEMENT LEAVES OUT THE FOLLOWING FACTS:

"THE TERMS OF SURRENDER FOR RUMANIA WERE IN THE FORM OF AN ARMISTICE AGREEMENT IN WHICH THIS GOVERNMENT PARTICIPATED AT ALL STAGES. PRECISELY BECAUSE IT WAS A MILITARY DOCUMENT AND NOT A PEACE SETTLEMENT IT WAS PRESENTED BY MARSHAL MALINOVSKI, THE THEATRE COMMANDER, DULY AUTHORIZED BY THE GOVERNMENTS OF THE UNITED STATES, THE USSR AND THE UNITED KINGDOM. THIS ACTION BY MARSHALL MALINOVSKI FOLLOWED DIRECTLY THE PATTERN OF GENERAL EISENHOWER IN SIGNING THE ARMISTICE WITH ITALY ON BEHALF OF THE UNITED TATES, THE UNITED KINGDOM AND THE USSR.

"WITH REGARD TO THE TERMS THEMSELVES, SECRETARY HULL ON SEPT.20, 1944, POINTED OUT IN A STATEMENT TO THE PRESS THAT THE QUESTION OF THE FINAL DISPOSITION OF TRANSYLVANIA WOULD DEPEND UPON CONFIRMATION

AT THE TIME OF THE GENERAL PEACE SETTLEMENT. THE SETTLEMENT WITH REGARD TO BESSARABIA MERELY RESTORES THE FRONTIER BETWEEN THE TWO STATES AS ESTABLISHED BY THE SOVIET-RUMANIAN AGREEMENT ON JUNE 8, 1940.

OCT 201944

"SECRETARY HULL MADE IT CLEAR TO CORRESPONDENTS THAT THIS GOVERNMENT PARTICIPATED AT ALL STAGES IN THE DISCUSSION LEADING TO THE ARMISTICE AGREEMENT WITH RUMANIA WHEN, IN A PRESS STATEMENT ON SEPTEMBER 20, 1944, HE POINTED OUT THAT THIS GOVERNMENT HAD PARTICIPATED IN THE DISCUSSIONS LEADING TO THE SURRENDER TERMS AND HE STATED SPECIFICALLY THAT THIS GOVERNMENT HAD BEEN KEPT FULLY ADVISED OF THE TERMS REGARDING TRANSYLVANIA.

"WHEN THE SECRETARY OF STATE AT HIS PRESS AND RADIO NEWS CONFERENCE ON SEPTEMBER 13 ANNOUNCED THAT THE RUMANIAN ARMISTICE HAD BEEN AGREED TO AND INDICATED THAT HE HAD NOT RECEIVED ITS CONTENTS, HE, OF COURSE, REFERRED TO THE FINAL OFFICIAL TEXT, THE PROVISIONS OF WHICH HAD BEEN AGREED TO BY THIS GOVERNMENT'S REPRESENTATIVE ON THE BASIS OF HIS SPECIFIC INSTRUCTIONS FROM THIS GOVERNMENT AND THE DISCUSSIONS IN WHICH THE DEPARTMENT HAD PARTICIPATED. THE DEFINITIVE TEXT WAS RECEIVED LATER THE SAME DAY AND IMMEDIATELY RELEASED TO THE PRESS."

WITH U.S. INVASION CONVOY OFF PHILIPPINES--FIRST ADD SCHEDLER'S INVASION EYEWITNESS XXX THE PHILIPPINES.

THIS IS ONE OF THE MOST FAR-REACHING AMPHIBIOUS OPERATIONS OF ALL-TIME--EXTENDING 1,300 MILES. THIS HUGE CONVOY ASSEMBLED AT BASES IN DUTCH NEW GUINEA THE AFTERNOON OF FRIDAY THE 13TH. SHIPS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION MOVED SLOWLY INTO ECHALON POSITION. WE ADVANCED IN STRICT RADIO SILENCE AND IN STEALTHY BLACKOUT.

AHEAD OF US AND IN THE CENTER OF THE CONVOY ARE TROOP AND EQUIPMENT PACKED TRANSPORTS. THE SHIPS CARRY HUNDREDS OF BATTLE-TESTED JUNGLE TROOPS. AROUND THEM ARE LANDING CRAFT AND BARGES OF EVERY DESCRIPTION AND SIZE.

THE TROOPS TAKE ADVANTAGE OF WHAT SPACE THERE IS TO STRETCH THEIR LEGS AMIDST THE CONFINEMENT OF WAR EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING HUGE BULLDOZERS BOLTED TO THE DECKS.

ON THE WALLOWING INFANTRY CARRIERS WE SEE EVIDENCES OF YANKEE INGENUITY OF BATTLE-DRESSED TROOPS WASHING THEIR CLOTHING WITH SELF-DEVISED LAUNDRY FACILITIES.

AT BEST THE LANDING CRAFT LOOK LIKE A PARADE OF NEW YORK FIRE BOATS, WITH GREAT STREAMS OF SALT WATER SPOUTING IN THE AIR WHILE TROOPS DRENCH DOWN THEIR SWEATING BODIES.

Foe's Air Force Emerges, Hits One Ship of 600; Gunfire Blasts Another

By The Associated Press

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Oct. 21 (Saturday).—American ground forces have consolidated all beachheads on Leyte in the central Philippines and are moving inland, headquarters announced today in its second communique on the invasion. Ground casualties were reported comparatively light.

"I am pleased with Program D. We are moving according to schedule"—thus General Douglas MacArthur summed up the over-all results of the first twelve hours of the battle for the Philippines.

Food and supplies are pouring ashore as the invaders come to grips with the same Japanese who tortured the Americans and Filipinos following the surrender at Bataan in 1942.

The Japanese air force dealt counter-blows and succeeded in damaging one of the vessels of the 600-ship convoy, the communique said. Another was hit by shore fire.

NIGHT

Airfield Reported Seized

The communique made no reference to a report from the invasion scene that the 6,000-foot airfield at Tacloban on Leyte had been seized.

Enemy opposition to the continued landings was reported light.

MacArthur, who is backed by the greatest naval, air and troop masses ever assembled for an amphibious operation in the Pacific, issued his new communique after he had stood, rain-drenched, in a broken-down signal truck and broadcast over a hand microphone an appeal to the Filipinos to strike the foe as their liberators advanced.

Front-line dispatches reported bitter beachhead opposition to yesterday's landings only at one point, but there four landing craft and several small craft were lost.

Advance Further South

[Gordon Walker, a correspondent of the Mutual Broadcasting System, said in a broadcast that Tacloban airfield had fallen to the Americans, but other front-line correspondents reported today the invaders were near the outskirts of that field.]

The bid for Tacloban airfield and the capital city of Tacloban is being made at one of the two chief points of attack on Leyte's east coast. At the other, farther south, front line reports said today forces have moved well inland at Dulag and have made adequate preparations against any possible enemy counter-attacks.

The Japanese air force made frantic efforts to interfere with the operation but were handicapped by the preparatory attacks which knocked out Philippines airfields. The enemy, however, managed to send some bombers over the Leyte Gulf area for the familiar night attacks on shipping.

Planes Aid Advance

Associated Press war correspondents reported today that planes from escort carriers had offered pin-point support, blowing up pillboxes and attacking motor convoys seeking to bring up reinforcements.

OCT 21 1944

Al Dopking, who went ashore at Dulag, said today the men who hit the beach there advanced so swiftly that it was difficult to keep up with them and within two hours were on the outskirts of an air strip. A Japanese counter-attack along a road leading toward Dulag was repulsed. The airfield menaced, one of several in the area, is one mile from the town of Dulag.

Murlin Spencer, Associated Press war correspondent with the invaders, said the mammoth convoy, exceeding that which took the Allies to landings in North Africa, carried as many men as—perhaps more than—were put ashore on French Normandy on D-day. Prime Minister Churchill has disclosed that nearly 250,000 men were landed in Normandy on the first day.

Altho casualties since the Leyte landings started yesterday have been kept low by constant coverage of the airforces and ships' guns, including the 16-inchers of battleships, front line dispatches made clear that the Japanese have mustered their bewildered forces sufficiently to put up bitter resistance in some sectors.

A Pearl Harbor communique of Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, detailing how carrier planes helped clear the way for landing on Leyte, listed the destruction of 87 Japanese planes and the sinking of a large cargo ship.

Japs' Position "Hopeless"

General MacArthur, who went ashore with his forces, was quoted in a field dispatch as saying that there was little more than one Japanese division on Leyte and that its position was hopeless.

Recoiling from the surprise landings, the Nipponese were reported shelling the invaders with mortars and artillery.

The Yanks however, pushed into open country despite this resistance, said an American network pool broadcast from Leyte, and one column was "closing in on the city of Tacloban."

ONE DIVISION ON ISLAND

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who went ashore with his forces Thursday (U. S. time) was quoted in a field dispatch as saying that there was little more than one Japanese division on Leyte.

Its position was hopeless, he told William B. Dickinson, representing the combined American press. American naval and air power, he explained, would make reinforcement impossible.

There was no late word from the forces that landed farther south on Leyte near San Jose and the southern tip of the island.

While his assault forces streamed ashore along the eastern coast of Leyte island, MacArthur dramatically broadcast this appeal to the islanders:

"I have returned. . . . Rally to me. Let the indomitable spirit of Bataan and Corregidor lead on. As the lines of battle roll forward to bring you within the zone of operation, rise and strike."

CASUALTIES SMALL

In announcing the reinvasion, MacArthur said the operation caught the enemy by surprise and beachheads were secured "with small casualties."

Speaking over the radio "Voice of Freedom," as reported by the office of war information, MacArthur informed the Filipinos that their president, Sergio Osmena, and members of his cabinet were at his side.

"The seat of your government is now therefore firmly re-established on Philippine soil," he continued. "The hour of your redemption is here. . . . I now call upon your supreme effort that the enemy may know the temper of an aroused and outraged people within that he has a force to contend with no less violent than is the force committed from without."

SIXTH ARMY LANDS

MacArthur's appeal, made a few hours after he had landed with his assault forces after a terrific air and naval bombardment, came two and a half years after his memorable words, "I shall return," spoken upon reaching Australia from Corregidor.

Every available able-bodied survivor of historic Bataan and Corregidor was with him.

Elements of Lt.-Gen. Walter Krueger's Sixth army, veterans of New Guinea warfare, and attached units from the Central Pacific with supporting forces made the long expected landings.

Americans Smash Inland On Mid-Philippine Isle

General MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 20 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur landed powerful invasion forces in the heart of the Philippines, announced to the people of the archipelago "I have returned" and called upon them to "rise and strike" their Japanese conquerors.

Ground forces poured ashore in Leyte Gulf from a huge convoy under protection of a terrific naval and air bombardment, quickly seized three strong beachheads along Leyte Island's east coast. While they pressed inland toward the fertile valleys General MacArthur took to the air over the "Voice of Freedom" radio, telling the people he had fulfilled his two-and-a-half-year-old vow to return.

MacArthur told the Filipinos their President, Sergio Osmena, and his cabinet were with him on Leyte and had reestablished the government on Philippine soil.

Corregidor Heroes There

The Japanese, expecting landings to teh south, at Mindanao, were so completely surprised that beachheads in the Tacloban area were secured with small casualties, the special communique declared.

Reinforcements and supplies poured ashore as the Americans started their drive against an estimated 225,000 Japanese troops in the Philippines headed by Field Marshal Juichi Terauchi.

The Japanese military, previously disclosing the invasion in broadcasts of the Tokyo radio, said that they began on Tuesday when the Americans landed on Suluan Island at the mouth of Leyte Gulf, and that they went forward in great force on Thursday on Leyte at Tacloban on the northeast and Cabalian on the south,

MacArthur went back to the islands aboard a warship, part of a giant convoy, sailing from New Guinea, which stretched out further than the eye could see.

The American navy, in unchallenged strength, ruled the invasion scene and the seas about it. Allied air forces virtually monopolized the skies.

Jap Forces Divided

"In a major amphibious operation, we have seized the eastern coast of Leyte Island in the Philippines, 600 miles north of Morotai and 2,500 miles from Milne Bay, (New Guinea) from where our offensive started nearly 16 months ago," the communique stated.

"This point of entry in the Visayas (group of islands of which Leyte is one) is midway between Luzon (site of Manila) and Mindanao and at one stroke splits in two the Japanese forces in the Philippines.

Casualties Light

"The enemy's anticipation of attack in Mindanao (southern island blasted daily since September by MacArthur's southwest Pacific air arm) caused him to be caught unawares in Leyte and beachheads in the Tacloban area were secured with small casualties.

"The landing was preceded by heavy naval and air bombardment which was devastating in effect."

Participating in the preparatory blows were carrier planes of Admiral William F. Halsey's Third Fleet, which since October 9 destroyed more than 1,300 Japanese aircraft, sank 86 ships and damaged 127 more in forays extending from the Ryukyus within 200 miles of Japan south across Formosa into the Philippines.

"Our ground troops are rapidly extending their positions and supplies and heavy equipment are already flowing ashore in great volumes," the communique said.

These ground troops, comprising elements of the Sixth Army and units from the Central Pacific, included every able-bodied man who escaped from Corregidor in Manila Bay prior to its surrender on May 6, 1942. Those heroes came back bent on avenging the men who died there and helping liberate the imprisoned men of Lieut. Gen. Jonathan Wainwright's force.

Supported By Navy

The United States Seventh Fleet, elements of the Third Fleet and an Australian squadron made up the naval forces in the invasion.

"Air support was given by navy carrier forces, by the Far East Air Force and by the Royal Australian Air Force," the communique said.

The invasion brought the Americans against the largest segement of the Japanese army yet encountered in the Pacific war. The estimated 225,000 defenders included Terauchi's 14th Army troops. Seven divisions, the 16th, 25th, 30th, 100th, 102nd, 103th and 106th or 107th have been identified.

Meanwhile, MacArthur said, "the strategic result of capturing the Philippines will be decesive."

Supply Lines Cut

"The enemy's so-called greatest East Asia coprosperity sphere will be cut in two. His conquered empire to the south, comprising the Dutch East Indies and the British possessions of Borneo, Malaya and Burma will be served from Japan proper. The great flow of transportation and supply upon which Japan's vital war industry depends will be cut as will the countersupply of his forces to the south.

"A half million men will be cut off without hope of support and with ultimate destruction at the leisure of the Allies, a certainty in the broad strategical conception.

"The defensive line of the Japanese which extends along the coast of Asia from Japan islands through Formosa, the Philippines, the East Indies to Singapore and Burma will be pierced in the center, permitting an envelopment to the south and to the north.

Flanks Held Vulnerable

"Either flank will be vulnerable and can be rolled up at will."

The Japanese landed on Luzon December 9, 1941, after air raids the day before. Manila, bombed by the Japanese after it was declared an open city, was occupied along with the Cavite Naval Base January 2, 1942. Thereafter began the siege of Bataan, whose defenders fought until they were without food and arms, then surrendered, only to be mustered into the "Death March" of bitter memory for every American.

Corregidor surrendered May 6, 1942. The previous March, MacArthur arrived in Australia and soon opened the offensive which was climaxed by the Philippines invasion.

Air Bases Knocked Out

In a communique last night at Pearl Harbor, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz reported carrier plane strikes Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday in the Manila area and to the north. These were combined with land-based strikes of MacArthur's bombers to knock out every Philippines air base which might interfere with the invasion.

Dean Schedler, Associated Press war correspondent with the invasion forces, reported that the landings occurred at three points.

One force landed bteween San Ricardo, approximately three miles south of the main city of Tacloban and Palo.

Another strong force landed along the coast line between San Jose and Dulag.

Eleven Miles Apart

A combat team went ashore at Panaon on the southern tip of Leyte.

The beach fronts are three and one half miles in width and approximately 11 miles apart.

Schedler said that combat teams landed previously on the northern tip of Dinagat Island and the southern portion of Homonhon to secure enemy installations and command the entrance to Leyte Gulf for passage of the main assault forces.

Leyte is geographically suitable for the quick establishment of American airfields from which to dominate all other enemy bases in the Philippines.

Harassed By Guerrillas

The Japanese war machine in the Philippines has been deprived of rich sources of aviation gasoline and lubricating oil at Borneo by MacArthur's destructive air attacks on Balikpapan.

Last week's power-house carrier-plane assaults on Formosa are believed to have cut it off as a source of reinforcement.

On the Philippines, guerrillas long have been operating against the Japanese in preparation for the return of the Americans. Last week a Japanese authority frankly acknowledged these guerrillas were effectively cutting up communications.

"I have returned," Gen. Douglas MacArthur told the Filipino people in a broadcast today calling upon them to "rise and strike" the Japanese.

Here is the text of his broadcast over the "Voice of Freedom" radio, as reported by the Office of War Information:

'I Am Pleased With Program D'

By C. YATES McDANIEL

MacArthur's Headquarters, Philippines, Oct. 20 (AP—Via Army Radio)—"I am pleased with Program D. We are moving according to schedule."

Thus, Gen. Douglas MacArthur sums up the over-all results of the first 12 hours of the battle for the Philippines, a battle which opened this morning when the general, who left Corregidor two and a half years ago with a handful of officers in a torpedo boat, returned aboard the cruiser Nashville with a 600-ship armada.

Initial Drive Held Up

The initial drive inland on Leyte today was held up on only one sector of the main front, extending nearly 18 miles south of Tacloban, the main city.

There, highly accurate and strongly entrenched Japanese light artillery, mortar and shiper fire pinned down to shallow beachheads the American patrol troops and supporting engineer and field artillery units. Then navy dive bombers and cruiser and destroyer fire knocked out the Japanese emplacements or forced the enemy to withdraw.

Cruisers Pound Japs

The American cruisers Phoenix and Boise and the Australian eight-inchers, Shropshire and Australia, pounded enemy positions through the midafternoon. At the same time, the West Virginia and the California and other battlships stood off in San Pedro bay ready to resume their heavy bombardment.

These battlewagons had hurled 14 and 16 inch salvos into Leyte beach for three days prior to the landings.

"Rally to me," MacArthur said to the Filipinos. "Let the indomitable spirit of Bataan and Corregidor lead on. As the lines of battle roll forward to bring you within the zone of operation, rise and strike."

With MacArthur was every able-bodied survivor of Corregidor.

While men and supplies poured in to meet an estimated 225,000 Japanese in the Philippines under Field Marshal Juichi Terauchi, President Roosevelt sent this message from Washington:

"The whole American nation today exults at the news that the gallant men under your command have landed on Philippine soil."

The Leyte landings put the invaders within 415 miles of Manila to the northwest and marked an advance of 600 miles north from MacArthur's base at Morotai.

Gulf Swept Clear

Frontline dispatches said the Leyte landings were preceded three days ago by landings on small islands guarding the entrance to Leyte Gulf and mine-sweeping operations of the gulf to make it safe for the passage of convoys.

MacArthur said the invaders comprised Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger's Sixth United States Army and units from the central Pacific without further identification. Frontline dispatches specified these participants:

The First Cavalry Division, the Seventh Division, the 96th Division.

eastern side of the archipelago, were "rapidly extended" by ground forces, MacArthur said.

MacArthur, in personal command at the scene, said the operation "at one stroke splits in two the Japanese forces in the Philippines." He estimated these at 225,000, commanded by Field Marshal Count Terauchi, and pointed out that Japanese on the big southern island of Mindanao were virtually isolated by the operation.

STRIKE AT THREE POINTS

A dispatch from AP war correspondent Dean Schedler, on Leyte, said the assault troops struck simultaneously at three points. One beachhead extended from San Ricardo, about three miles south of the island's principal city of Tacloban, to Palo. Another was between San Jose and Dulag. A third was reported at Panaon "on the southern tip of Leyte," but probably referring to the island of Panaon, immediately south of Leyte.

These main landings were preceded by lodgements on Dinagat and Homonhon islands, commanding the entrance to Leyte gulf.

The Seventh fleet commanded by Vice-Adm. Thomas Kincaid, and elements of Adm. William F. Halsey's rampaging Third fleet covered the landing forces. In commanding of the Seventh amphibious corps was Rear Adm. Daniel E. Barbey.

Assault troops on scores of landing craft hit the shores under ceiling of naval gunfire ranging from 16-inch shells of American battleships to smaller projectiles from American and Australian cruisers and destroyers.

CARRIERS BACK UP M'ARTHUR

Naval air strikes at the Philippines, coordinated with landings by General MacArthur's forces, heavily damaged enemy ground defenses on Leyte Island and adjacent Cebu and Negros islands, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

In striking at other targets in the archipelago, Nimitz said carrier pilots knocked out 87 more enemy planes and sank a large cargo ship and five small craft.

Twenty-three additional Japanese ships and 28 small vessels were probably sunk or damaged.

Sixth Straight Day

These aerial slashes fell yesterday, bringing the sustained carrier-plane attacks on Luzon and other islands through the sixth consecutive day.

In the latest attack, Nimitz said, carrier aircraft dropping bombs and firing rockets inflicted heavy damage on Clark, Nichols and Nielson airfields in the Manila area.

Carrier planes from Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher's flattops, units of Admiral William F. Halsey's Third Fleet, now have destroyed more than 1,420 Japanese planes from October 9 to 18.

87 Jap Ships Sunk

In addition, they have sunk 87 Nipponese ships and 80 small craft and damaged 160 ships and 108 small craft.

These losses were dealt the enemy in strikes at the Ryukyu islands, immediately south of Japan; at Formosa, within 100 miles of the China coast, and in the central and northern Philippines.

Additional losses were piled up by American Superfortresses which made several massive strikes at Formosa from a base in China.

In immediate support of the MacArthur landings, Halsey-Mitscher Hellcats, Corsairs, Avengers and Helldivers bombed and rocket-strafed ground installations at the San Pablo and Dulag airfields on Leyte. Dagami town was bombed heavily and a bridge was knocked out.

Japs Strafed On Cebu

Five Japanese planes on the ground were strafed on Cebu. The fighter sweep over Negros found little enemy activity.

Proof of the effectiveness of the carrier sweeps throughout the Philippines preceding the landings was contained in this sentence:

"There was no enemy airborne opposition during these raids."

However, a lone single-engine torpedo plane was shot down in the vicinity of the surface ships.

Very few Japanese planes took the air over Luzon. Four plus "several" more were shot out of the skies, 52 were destroyed aground and 31 damaged aground.

These include 30 twin-engine craft destroyed on the ground at Mabalacat, Tarlac and Legaspi.

Nimitz said aviation installations were bombed and rocket-strafed at Clark and Mabalacat Tuesday. The following day Clark, Nielson, Pasig and Nichols airfields were further reduced against only slight airborne opposition.

Two Barracks Wrecked

Two barracks were destroyed at Clark Field, some 60 miles north of Manila. Three hangars were blown up at Nielson airport, a short distance from the capital, and two fuel dumps were destroyed.

Extensive damage also was done to dispersal areas and airport facilities in these strikes.

All this activity cost only six American planes, Nimitz said, and the crew of one plane was rescued.

Land-based Corsairs, Venturas, Hellcats and Dauntless dive-bombers meantime set fire to two planes on Yap Island, 800 miles east of the Philippines. The main town and bridges were bombed.

Central Pacific planes also attacked runways on the airfield at Rota Island, in the Marianas, and continued neutralization raids on by-passed islets in the Marshalls.

600 Vessels in Convoy Striking at Philippines

BY MURLIN SPENCER

GENERAL MAC ARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Saturday, Oct. 21. (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur's convoy for the invasion of Leyte in the Philippines included approximately 600 ships, and carried as many or perhaps more men than were landed the first day of the invasion of Normandy.

There were more large vessels than were used in the invasion of Normandy, and the whole convoy was larger than the giant force which carried the invasion troops to North Africa.

From the first minute of the opening day of Philippine liberation reports came in of Filipino cooperation.

One native, picked up by a destroyer, rode with the Americans along the coast of Samar island, near Leyte, and pointed out Japanese gun positions.

Thirty-one months ago, MacArthur slipped thru Japanese lines with all that remained of his navy—12 PT boats. Today, the navy has given him everything he needed, and more.

He had everything—battleships for the first time, aircraft carriers, transports, and equally important, the men and guns, tanks and planes.

The Japanese were unable to make one major move to stop the convoys. The ships, stretching as far as the eye could see and beyond, sailed unchallenged into the back door of the Philippines.

The support of Adm. William F. Halsey's Third fleet, which had battered the Japanese airforce unmercifully for more than 20 days, contributed much to the success of the landings.

Tough Road Ahead

Talking informally aboard the cruiser over a chocolate soda, MacArthur said tough fighting may lie ahead before the Philippines are freed of the enemy, but he left no doubt that the Leyte operation seals the fate of the Japanese on that island. He indicated no time will be lost in following up advantages gained in the present move and that American losses will not be heavy.

Thruout the voyage, the sunbronzed MacArthur, returning at last to gain his revenge for Bataan and Corregidor, scorned precautions, as usual, for his personal safety. He was asked if he wanted a lifebelt.

"No, thank you," he replied. "I have too much faith in this ship for that."

Dirty Japs' from Bataan Face Yankees at Leyte

BY WILLIAM B. DICKINSON

(Representing the Combined American Press)

OCT 21 1944

WITH GEN. MAC ARTHUR IN THE PHILIPPINES, Oct. 20. (AP)—The Americans and Filipinos who died so gallantly in the dark days of 1942 will sleep easier tonight, for here on Leyte we are fighting the Japanese division which did the "dirty work" on Bataan.

Before going ashore from the cruiser Nashville a few hours behind the assault waves of American forces, Gen. Douglas MacArthur told me:

"I am particularly anxious to get at the division which is on Leyte. It's the 15th, the outfit that did the dirty work at Bataan. They've been living off the fat of the land for more than two years and I believe they'll be a little softer now.

"But soft or not, we'll get them."

Despite the compliment to a ship he considers one of the most efficient in the U. S. navy, military men closest to the general expressed belief that his disregard of personal danger stemmed from an implicit belief that it is his destiny to liberate the Philippines and that nothing can happen to prevent it.

COMPLETE SURPRISE

"We have achieved complete surprise in the fullest military sense," MacArthur said during the informal discussion. "The Japs expected an attack in Mindanao or the Northern Philippines. Their best divisions have been concentrated in Mindanao and their reinforcements have been sent there.

"Our air strikes were made there and Adm. Halsey's strikes were to the north. There are about 225,000 enemy combat troops in the Philippines. Our Leyte landing will cut them in two. We will have losses, but they will not be large."

MacArthur said the Japanese have little more than one division on Leyte and American naval and air power will make it impossible for them to reinforce the island.

The trip to the Philippines was uneventful. MacArthur was completely relaxed. His plans had been made. With him was a skeleton staff and his offices were set up in a cabin.

Miles beyond us was an unbroken stream of aircraft carriers and other warships.

Even as the hour of landing drew near MacArthur was unruffled. He slept well, ate a hearty breakfast, then went briefly on deck smoking his familier corn-cob pipe.

CRUISER MOVES IN

Then he napped for about an hour. About 15 minutes before the scheduled landing at 10 a. m. the cruiser moved in toward the beach.

The general then went to the bridge. We could see shells from battleships exploding in the hills behind the prospective beachheads. At 9.58 a. m. the first waves of landing craft hit the shore ahead of schedule.

Ten minutes later word was flashed back that the troops were 500 yards inland and advancing thru open country without opposition.

Satisfied that everything was going according to schedule, MacArthur went to his cabin for an early luncheon preparatory to going ashore.

With him in the landing barge were Filipino President Sergio Osmena; Brig.-Gen. Carlos Romulo, resident commissioner of the Philippines; Lt. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, American chief of staff who left the Philippines in 1942 with MacArthur; and Lt.-Gen. George Kenney, commander of the Far East air forces.

A bright sun was shining.

MacArthur sat upright at the stern; with Sutherland, Osmena, Kenney and Romulo standing just below him.

As he sat down, the general remarked to Sutherland with a broad smile: "Well, believe it or not, we're here."

Leyte Is A Relatively Well-Developed Island

OCT 21 1944

By C. Yates McDaniel

With MacArthur on Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 20 (AP)—Thrusting deep into the heart of the Philippine archipelago, a powerful American army which Gen. Douglas MacArthur led to Leyte today was making the first strike of the Southwest Pacific campaign at a relatively well-developed island.

It is the first time since MacArthur's forces started the long fighting way back to the Philippines, two and a half years ago, that they weren't plunging into a jungle campaign.

Orderly rows of coconut palms fringe the sandy beaches of the eastern coastline of Leyte for 40 miles south of Tacloban, the provincial capital.

All-Weather Highway

Skirting this coast is an all-weather highway, joined at several points by lateral roads leading through the broad Leyte valley northward to Carigara Bay and the inland sea of the Philippines.

For the first time since Bataan, MacArthur's army and artillery will have room to maneuver.

Leyte is the eighth largest of the Philippine Islands and has nearly a million citizens.

MacArthur's artillery will have wide fields of fire in the battle for valley roads and the island's half dozen airfields of which Tacloban, three miles from the town, is the most important.

Opposition Expected

There is no reason to believe the campaign will be virtually unopposed and bloodless, for the Japanese overran Leyte and took over most of the Visayan group virtually intact two and a half years ago.

Nature, too, may take a hand in the battle. This is the beginning of the rainy season and near the end of the typhoons. Some score of rivers and streams course down from flanking mountains to criss-cross Leyte Valley.

The advantages that Leyte offers a modern military machine are not to be found on Dinagat, Suluan and Homonhon islands, which command the approaches to Leyte Gulf.

Visited By Magellan

Reef-bound Homonhon, 55 miles southeast of Leyte, was the first island of the Philippines to be visited by Magellan on his way to his death on a Cebu beach.

Dinagat is 20 miles east of the southern end of Leyte. It is rugged and without roads.

Samar, separated from Leyte by narrow San Juanico Strait and Janabas Channel, has few roads and no good anchorages. But Samar has four airfields—Anahao and Borogan on the east coast, Catarman on the north and Calabayog on the west coast.

30. 24 — 19719

Neither the Americans nor the Japanese are likely to starve on Leyte. The fertile valleys produce abundant crops of rice, corn, sweet potatoes. There is plenty of water, too, but the Americans going back to the island know that dysentery and typhoid are prevalent. Cholera is not unknown, and there's always malaria.

Tons Of Explosives Rip Coast As Yanks Knife Ashore

This first eyewitness dispatch concerning the Philippines landing was written by Dean Schedler, one of the last American war correspondents to leave Bataan and among the first to return to the Philippines.

OCT 21 1944

By Dean Schedler

[Representing the Combined American Press]

With MacArthur at Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 20 (AP)—Under cover of devastating fire from Allied warships, American troops knifed ashore on Leyte island today, striking simultaneously at three points along the eastern beaches.

One assault force struck the beach from San Ricardo, approximately three miles south of the main city of Tacloban, to Palo. Another strong force struck along the coastlines between San Jose and Lulag, and a combat team landed at Panaon, on the southern tip of Leyte.

The beach fronts are three and a half miles in width and approximately 11 miles apart.

275 Miles From Davao

This quick, hard drive into the heart of the southern Philippines establishes American forces only 275 statute miles from Davao and 340 air miles southeast of Manila.

At the entrance to Leyte Gulf an American combat team landed three days ago on the northern tip of Dinagat Island and the southern portion of Homonhon to take over enemy installations and establish command of the entrance to the gulf for the main assault forces.

The big landings were made along the level coastal Leyte Valley. Unopposed by Japan's navy, American battleships and American and Australian cruisers laid a thunderous fire along the beaches.

At H-hour an enemy plane appeared. Strong ship anti-aircraft fire brought it down.

As the heavy naval fire raised a cloud of cordite and huge billowing columns of smoke, carrier-based planes from Admiral William F. Halsey's Third Fleet and Vice-Admiral Thomas Kincaid's Seventh Fleet, bombed and strafed the beach, augmented by close inshore fire from rocket firing craft.

With brazen boldness great battleships worked slowly along the shore, splitting the air with belching flame as their guns cracked round after round over the heads of crouching infantrymen.

This invasion armada of hundreds of ships goes busily about the business of landing troops and equipment on the smoke-filled shore under protection of surface and air power dash so far unmolested.

"Mailed-Fist Answer"

In the following dispatch, Schedler describes the approach to the Philippines by McArthur's armada.

With the United States Invasion Convoy off the Philippines, Oct. 19 (AP — Delayed)—In this part of the Pacific as far as the eye can see is a huge American convoy plying onward.

As this is written we are only 75 miles south of the entrance to Leyte Gulf. In this convoy is every available man who was lifted from Corregidor two and a half years ago.

This is the mailed-fist answer to the enemy and to the hopes of those grim, silent men of MacArthur, who remained behind but remembered his pledge:

"I will return."

Long hard months of jungle fighting in New Guinea—Milne Bay—New Britain—and Hollandia—are behind us.

This is the beginning of the liberation of the Philippines.

Operation Over 1,300 Miles

This is one of the most far-reaching amphibious operations of all time—extending 1,300 miles. This huge convoy assembled at bases in Dutch New Guinea the afternoon of Friday the 13th. Ships of every description moved slowly into echelon position. We advanced in strict radio silence and in stealthy blackout.

Ahead of us and in the center of the convoy are troop and equipment packed transports. The ships carry hundreds of battle-tested jungle troops. Around them are landing craft and barges of every description and size.

The troops take advantage of what space there is to stretch their legs amidst the confinement of war equipment, including huge bulldozers bolted to the decks.

On the wallowing infantry carriers we see evidences of Yankee ingenuity of battle-dressed troops washing their clothing with self-devised laundry facilities.

At best the landing craft look like a parade of New York fireboats, with streams of salt water spouting in the air while troops drench down their sweating bodies.

GUERRILLA BANDS ROVE PHILIPPINES

By Associated Press.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's call to arms was a summons to thousands of Filipinos who have been operating in roving bands throughout the islands, sometimes under American leadership, ever since the fall of Bataan. And it was a plea for others to join their numbers.

The extent of guerrilla activities was recognized by the Japanese puppet government a year ago when it voted to grant amnesty to any guerrilla who would swear "to become a good citizen."

San Jose Found Mass Of Rubble

OCT 21 1944

By ASAHEL BUSH

Outside San Jose, Leyte, Philippines, Oct. 20 (AP)—At this moment, an hour and a half after the first platoon landed, these assault units are about to move into San Jose, which lies on the road inland toward Tacloban, Leyte's capital city.

That is, they are about to capture what once was San Jose, a place of 1,000 people. Now the place is a pathetic testimonial to the effectiveness of three days of pre-landing bombardment. It is little more than a mass of rubble.

The first opposition of the day, machine-gun fire, mostly, has developed in the past few minutes.

We have received some casualties.

However, the advance to this point was made without encountering a sign of a live Japanese, but there were frequent signs of their recent presence. We traversed about 300 yards of broken palm groves and 200 more of open swamps.

I rode on the foredeck of a tank, piloted by Sergt. Philip Ross, of Brooklyn, past abandoned trenches and pillboxes, past roads of demolished bamboo and thatched huts. We also went past a machine shop, miraculously untouched by our gunfire.

Attu Veterans In Philippines

United States Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Oct. 20 (AP)—The army's Seventh Division, which recaptured Attu in the Aleutian Islands, and the 96th Division, new in combat, participated in the Philippines landing, Lieut. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., commander of the army forces in the Pacific Ocean area, announced tonight.

PhilippineInvadersPay In 'Victory Currency'

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Oct. 20 (AP).—Currency issued by the commonwealth government of the Philippines for use by the invasion forces of General Douglas MacArthur has been named "victory currency" by Brigadier General Carlos P. Romulo, the resident commissioner.

One-peso bills carry the serial number "66," the age of President Sergio Osmena. The value of the peso, which has the backing of the gold standard, has been fixed at the pre-war valuation of 50 cents.

Philippines, Arthur Feldman, Blue Network correspondent, reported today.

Before the correspondents embarked from New Guinea with the invasion forces, Feldman said, they spent hours making recordings of undated, featurized newscasts to be played during their absence at their regular broadcast periods.

These broadcasts were transmitted to American networks during the period of more than a week when the correspondents actually were aboard ships in the huge Philippine-bound convoy.

"This ruse prevented Jap monitors in western Dutch New Guinea who listen regularly to the New Guinea Signal Corps transmitter which beams broadcasts to the networks in America, from learning of the correspondents' absence," Feldman said. "If this had not been done, it would have been an obvious tip-off to the enemy."

War In Decisive Stage, Tokyo Press Says

OCT 21 1944

San Francisco, Oct. 20 (AP)—"Decisive battles" are shaping up in the Philippines, Tokyo newspapers warned their readers today.

"With the enemy shifting his position for another frontal clash after the disastrous defeat off Taiwan (Formosa), the Pacific war is entering the decisive stage," Domei news agency said in a broadcast recorded here.

"Decisive Battleground

"The Philippines," said the newspaper Yomiuri Hochi Shimbun, "has become a battleground for decisive battles between the United States and Japan."

Domei's report on what the three leading Tokyo newspapers had to say about the American invasion of the Philippines indicated that the Japanese press was still receiving a limited picture of the action.

'anned' Radio Ruse Kept Japs In Dark

OCT 21 1944

New York, Oct. 20—A ruse carried out by radio correspondents with the United States Signal Corps attached to General MacArthur's headquarters was a factor in keeping the Japanese in the dark about the invasion of the

Japs Claim British Carrier And Destroyer

San Francisco, Oct. 20 (AP)—Japanese imperial headquarters asserted today that Japanese airmen had sunk a British aircraft carrier and a destroyer yesterday in an engagement with a naval task force which Tokyo earlier had reported attacking the Nicobar Islands off the northwestern tip of Sumatra.

In addition, said a communique broadcast from Tokyo, Japanese flyers damaged a battleship and a destroyer. The action was said to have occurred south of the Nicobars.

No Allied Confirmation

There was no immediate report from Allied quarters on any operations near the Nicobars which Tokyo first announced yesterday.

The text of today's communique:

"On October 19 our air units intercepted a British task force that had raided Car Nicobar in the Nicobar Islands and sank one enemy carrier and one destroyer and damaged one battleship and one destroyer in waters south of the Nicobar Islands."

San Francisco, Oct. 20 (AP)—The Tokyo radio claimed today an American battleship had run aground Tuesday evening (Japanese time) at Bunga Point on Samar Island "in its desperate attempt to attack the Philippines." The broadcast said the ship's stern was submerged and its bow was high aground.

Foe "About" to Counter-Attack

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20 (AP).—The Tokyo radio said in an English-language broadcast today that "Japanese forces are about to launch a full-scale onslaught on the enemy, which landed on the southern tip and eastern shore of Leyte Island" in the Philippines.

Premier General Kuniaki Koiso told a Tokyo audience, according to a Domei news agency broadcast, that the Japanese in the "decisive battles that are to come" will fight "until the enemy licks the dust."

The broadcast said the occasion was a "people's rally," arranged for the purpose of "stirring up 100,000,000 people for the destruction of America and Britain."

Premier Koiso made no direct reference to fighting in the Philippines, but emphasized that "the long-awaited battle that will decide the future of our empire finally has begun."

Filipinos Given Chance To Mark 'Independence'

San Francisco, Oct. 20 (AP)—Filipinos interested will be able to attend a concert celebrating the Philippine "independence" anniversery Sunday and "the charge for which will be admission free," the Japanese-controlled Manila radio said today in an English language broadcast.

A feature of the concert to be conducted by Professor Felipe de Leon at the Metropolitan Theater in Manila will be a "Grand March" written by a Japanese composer, the broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said.

British Papers Play Up Invasion

OCT 21 1944

London, Oct. 20 (AP)—News about the Philippines received smash play today in London's evening newspapers, which usually fill their front pages with reports from the European battlefronts.

The Evening News said editorially:

"The Philippines will not be the end. Japan tried to win the game with loaded dice at Pearl Harbor. She will have to pay the price of a treachery that failed."

The Star's editorial said: "The entire situation in the Pacific is transformed. The enemy's calculated efforts must now be directed to holding MacArthur's men at bay, for the loss of the Philippines will spell doom to Japan."

British Responsibility

Members of Commons cheered when Ellis Smith, a Laborite declared the British people were prepared to accept their responsibility in the Far East.

American GI's stopped correspondents and telephoned newspaper offices to inquire about the latest from the Philippines.

British morning newspapers gave considerable prominence to earlier Japanese reports of the invasion.

Guardian Comment

The Manchester Guardian, discussing the invasion in an editorial, said:

"Taking the Philippines will be neither rapid nor easy. It may even provoke the Japanese to that major trial of strength which has been for long expected and for long denied."

The London Daily Telegraph declared the Japanese, by their own reports, "have convicted themselves of an elephantine lie about victory in the battle of Formosa."

The Times of London, commenting on Japanese reports of a British naval raid on the Nicobar Islands, said:

"The strengthening of British and Allied naval forces in the Indian Ocean and the activity which they have shown in recent months justify the expectation that the royal navy will soon be playing an important part in the general attack upon the aggressor."

Chiang Says Invasion Is Heartening to China

Cables Roosevelt That Landings Will Spur War Effort

CHUNGKING, Oct. 20 (AP).—President Chiang Kai-shek applauded the American invasion of the Philippines tonight and said it would encourage China to work for "the complete defeat of Japan in the shortest possible time."

He cabled to President Roosevelt:

"On behalf of the Chinese people I wish to send you heartiest congratulations for the successful landing of American forces returning to the Philippines. This grand achievement is vindication of the masterly strategy that has guided American forces throughout the world. The prospect which this Philippines action opens before us is immeasurably heartening to our people and will spur them to their utmost efforts to co-operate with you in encompassing the complete defeat of Japan in the shortest possible time."

Indo-China Aid By France Urged

Paris, Oct. 20 (AP)—The Communist newspaper Humanite, demanding active participation by the French in the liberation of French Indo-China, urged the government today to enroll and train 25,000 Indo-Chinese brought to France in the last decade as laborers.

The French press hailed the American invasion of the Philippines with big headlines.

President Voices U. S. Satisfaction

At Philippine Blow

BY ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (AP)—President Roosevelt expressed the nation's grim satisfaction over the invasion of the Philippines today but said nothing to lighten the sober view taken by military men here that the operation represents only a good beginning on a big job.

The president, reading from a message from Gen. Douglas MacArthur last night, told his news conference that operations were making "splendid progress" with landing losses "extremely light" and the enemy caught strategically off guard by the assault of Leyte island.

MacArthur's message, addressed to Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff:

"There were extremely light losses and all landings were made on schedule. The enemy was caught strategically unaware and there was splendid progress of operation in every respect. The enemy anticipated an attack more to the south. His Mindanao forces are no longer an immediate factor and are practically cut off."

DREAM COMES TRUE

The president said he was very happy that MacArthur had made good on his dream and statement that he would return to the islands. He said he discussed the plan of operations with the general when he visited Pearl Harbor last summer.

Earlier, in a formal statement on the Philippines action, Mr. Roosevelt had asserted that "we have the will and the power" and will teach Japan "the cost of treachery and deceit" so that she will never forget it.

In a message to President Sergio Osmena who went into the islands with MacArthur's forces, Mr Roosevelt promised that when the Japanese have been ousted "the Philippines will take their place as a free and independent member of the family of nations."

That independence pledge was reaffirmed later in a formal statement by Secretary of State Hull, who asserted that the Philippine operation exemplified "the fighting spirit of our officers and men—a guarantee of complete triumph over our enemy in the Pacific."

DIFFICULTIES AHEAD

While there was no shadow of doubt among the military here of ultimate recapture of the whole Philippine group, military students hastened to point out some of the difficulties ahead.

In this case the enemy is not located on a small atoll-type island where he has no place to withdraw, but on a land mass 100 miles long and as much as 30 miles wide, with mountains and forests to lend themselves to his usual dig-in tactics. Before any expansion can be started north, south or west, Leyte must be cleaned up.

The narrow waters between the Philippine islands make possible night operations to smuggle reinforcements and supplies despite the vigilance of the Allied airforce. These same waters are a menace to the operation of Allied surface craft until neighboring islands are cleared.

In the air, MacArthur has a strong but not absolute superiority and the island stepping stones will make possible the movement of such Japanese planes as remain in the Philippines and at Formosa.

Attack On Schedule, Losses Light, F. D. R. Announces

OCT 21 1944

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—President Roosevelt announced today that operations in the Philippines are proceeding on schedule with light losses and that the enemy was caught strategically off guard by the attack.

The President read to his news conference a message received last night from Gen. Douglas MacArthur and addressed to Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff. In it MacArthur said the troops he commanded in the Philippine landings suffered "extremely light losses" and added that the enemy was caught unawares because he expected the attack further to the south.

Large Force Cut Off

MacArthur's message said the attack left the Japanese forces on Mindanao, large island to the south of Leyte where he landed, "no longer an important factor" because they are practically cut off.

Mr. Roosevelt said the message confirming the attack, which reached Washington shortly before 1 A. M. today, may have been delayed through Japanese attempts to jam the air communications. It had been expected earlier.

There is general satisfaction all over the country, the President said, and he is particularly happy that General MacArthur has made good on his dream statement to return to the Philippines.

Text Of Message

Following is the text of the message from MacArthur to Marshall:

"There were extremely light losses and all landings were made on schedule. The enemy was caught strategically unaware and there was splendid progress of operation in every respect. The enemy anticipated an attack more to the south. His Mindanao forces are no longer an immediate factor and are practically cut off."

In a statement issued when first news of the landings reached Washington, Mr. Roosevelt said "we have the will and the power" to teach Japan "the cost of treachery and deceit."

Invasion Route Same As Magellan's in 1521

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP).—American forces, in driving into the central Philippines and landing on Leyte Island, appear to have followed a route pioneered by Magellan more than four hundred years ago.

Suluan Island in that area was the first land in the Philippines Magellan sighted and Homonhon Island in Leyte Gulf was the first he landed on when he made his voyage of discovery in 1521.

Gen. Wainwright's Wife Is 'So Excited' by News

Got Last Letter From Captured Husband 4 Weeks Ago

SKANEATELES, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Jonathan M. Wainwright, wife of the Lieutenant General of Bataan, said today "I am so excited I don't know what to do" over the news of the American invasion of the Philippines.

Mrs. Wainwright, who left the Philippines in May, 1941, on "about the last ship," said she last heard four weeks ago from her husband, now in Japanese prison camp. She added that the letter "was written in February." She said: "There was no address on any letter. There have been only seven in two and one-half years. The longest was forty words—printed."

Philippine Gold Mines' Proprietor Says 'Dandy!'

Haussermann Expects to Look After His $50,000,000 Shortly

CINCINNATI, Oct. 20 (AP).—John W. Haussermann, seventy-six-year-old "gold king" of the Philippines, received news of General Douglas MacArthur's return to the islands with these words:

"Boy, that's dandy! That's swell! Now I can get back there in a short while."

Haussermann, whose gold holdings in the islands have been valued at $50,000,000 or more, said he long since had engaged a "special engineer" to prepare plans for machinery and other equipment needed to reopen his mining activity. About four hundred Americans on his pay roll who were interned by the Japanese will be "sent back to the States for a year's vacation," he declared, adding, "I'll hire another staff to work during that time."

Haussermann was in the United States on business at the time the Philippines fell. Some $2,000,000 in gold bullion from his mines was brought out of the islands on an American submarine.

2,000 Sons Lost On Bataan, New Mexico Hails MacArthur

OCT 21 1944

Albuquerque, N. M., Oct. 20 (AP).—This is the day for which New Mexicans had waited, for this State of a half million people had more men in the Philippines than any other.

"This is truly D-day for New Mexico," said Carl W. Whittaker, local Bataan relief organization president. His son is a prisoner.

His words reechoed in countless homes where since that fateful April 9, 1942, when Bataan fell, mothers and fathers, wives and sweethearts have anxiously awaited the day when General MacArthur would fulfill his vow to return.

"I couldn't sleep all night, I was so thrilled," said Mrs. Max Miller, of Clovis. "It's just glorious." Her husband, a major, is a prisoner of the Japs.

Rejoicing Tempered

Rejoicing was tempered with continuing fear for the fate of loved ones.

"We're listening for all we can hear," said W. G. Smith, of Carlsbad, whose son is a prisoner. "What we want most is to find out how we can get messages through to our boys."

In Gallup, the State's coal-mining center which alone had 80 sons on Bataan, churches were filled this morning. In Santa Fe, Catholic Archbishop Edwin V. Byrne called for special services and prayers for the "prompt reconquest" of the islands.

192 Reported Dead

Of nearly 2,000 New Mexico soldiers in the 200th Coast Artillery (anti-aircraft) with MacArthur when the Japanese struck, 192 have been reported dead, 1,189 presumed prisoners and 420 missing.

Dr. V. H. Spensley, national president of the Federated Organizations for Bataan Relief, whose son died in a Japanese prison camp, said "rejoicing is the order of the day. . . . May it be the will of Almighty God that a minimum of other American lives be the cost of reconquest."

Salinas, Cal., Rejoices

Salinas, Cal., Oct. 20 (AP)—The Salinas area, which sent 105 young soldiers to Manila shortly before the Japanese invasion, rejoiced today with the news that General MacArthur had returned to the Philippines.

"Our hearts are overwhelmed with joy," said Mrs. S. A. Dolk, former president of the Bataan Mothers' Club. "This thing we have been expecting has come to pass at last. We just hope it won't be too long until our boys are released and can come home."

Her son, Corporal Myron Dolk, is a prisoner.

"A Dreadful Mixture"

Mrs. C. F. Lang, president of the club, whose son, Staff Sergeant Sidney G. Lang, is a prisoner, said:

"There is a dreadful mixture of fear and happiness—a lump in my throat I cannot swallow. It's good news—yes. But I am afraid its too late for some of the boys."

Of the 105 Salinas boys who arrived at Manila in October, 1941, two were reported killed in action, 19 died in Japanese prison camps, 57 were reported held prisoners, and no word ever was received of 27.

BRAINERD JUBILANT

Brainerd, Minn., Oct. 20 (A. P.).—Official announcement of the invasion of the Philippines by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces was greeted jubilantly today in Brainerd, home of eighty-five service men captured by the Japs at the fall of Bataan.

Mayor Frank B. Johnson, speaking for the community, said that the news was what Brainerd had been awaiting two and a half years.

"We just haven't thought anything else since that time," he said. "Everybody here has either a friend or a relative captured on Bataan."

The Brainerd men held prisoners were members of Company A, 194th Tank Battalion, a National Guard unit.

SCHELDE PUSH GAINS 5 MILES

Canadians Launch New Drive North Of Antwerp

OCT 21 1944

London, Oct. 20 (AP)—Canadian troops advanced five miles in a new offensive launched north of Antwerp today, and tonight were seven miles southeast of the Netherlands harbor town of Bergen op Zoom, midway between Antwerp and Rotterdam on the east Schelde estuary.

Leading elements of this forward thrust, designed to bolster the powerful Allied salient in Holland menacing Hitler's northern defenses, were reported in front dispatches to be one mile from the Rosendaal canal, about six miles south of Rosendaal, a highway junction town 20 miles north of Antwerp.

Jumping-off places for the Canadian drive were near the villages of Capellen and Maria-ter-Heide, north and northeast of Antwerp.

Flank Drive Gains

British infantry moving north from Brecht St. Leonard, five miles northeast of Maria-ter-Heide, swept forward more than three miles in a thrust designed to protect the Canadians' right flank.

Two columns of tanks and infantry continued the Canadian advance northward, front dispatches said.

Canadian troops below the Schelde estuary made a new crossing of the Leopold canal, reaching Oostkerke, seven miles west of the original crossing point, and capturing Aardenburg. The Germans have pulled out almost completely from positions guarding the canal between Oostkerke and Aardenburg, front advices said.

The prisoner count in the Schelde pocket fighting stands at almost 3,200.

Maas Drive Halts

Meanwhile, the British-American drive in the center of the Aachen-Arnhem line slithered to a halt in the mud and against stiffening German resistance. Though field dispatches placed British tanks within six miles of Venlo, the Maas

YANKS CAPTURE AACHEN AFTER A SHORT SIEGE

SINGLE TON

First German City Falls to Hodges Despite Stiff Nazi Resistance.

OCT 21 1944

FIRST ARMY LOSSES LIGHT

Town Virtually in Ruins but Cathedral Bears Few Scars of Terrific Battle.

London, Oct. 20 (A. P.).—Ruined Aachen, a sprawling city of death and destruction, fell today to Lieut.-Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's United States First Army on the seventh day of its siege. Tonight the victorious Yanks started mopping up the last remnants of the Nazi garrison, trapped on the outskirts.

The capture of the first major German city, a gateway to the Ruhr, was completed at 3:30 P. M. (10:30 A. M., Eastern war time), official announcements from the field said.

The city is 340 miles from Berlin and forty miles from Cologne on the Rhine. It had a peacetime population of 165,000.

The doughboys had been attacking since September 15, and for a week they had engaged in street-by-street fighting with bazookas, bayonets and self-propelled guns.

Aachen was left a mass of wreckage by fanatical German resistance.

The Aachen Cathedral, resting place of Charlemagne, is standing with only relatively minor scars, despite the fact that the city is in ruins. The cloister is damaged as is the octagon of the cathedral—a survival of the original octagon of Charlemagne.

In the roof of the gothic choir is a hole. The altar lies in wreckage and the tomb of Otto III has been smashed. But sculptures along the walls had been boxed up and are intact, as are the cathedral's holy relics in their concrete shelters.

The troops which captured Aachen, among which were those commanded by Lieut.-Col. John Corley of 308 Clinton street, Brooklyn, N. Y., tonight received the plaudits of the commanding general.

Young German officers, many of them not long back from the Russian front, threw away their lives to gain another Oak Leaf Cluster on their Iron Crosses—waging warfare for vanity.

Blast Last Stronghold.

The last convulsive gasp of resistance in the center of the city was at a large stone building in which 100 SS men had barricaded themselves in defiance of artillery which had pressed the defenders into an ever-narrowing space.

Troops under the command of Lieut.-Col. Merrill Daniel of Geneva, N. Y., knocked out this last major stronghold at 3:30 P. M. with direct fire from a 155-mm. gun. The gun literally knocked down the building.

"Aachen is ours," the officer said as he stood on the ruins of the building which had been used as a command post for the suicide stand.

"When we knocked out that building we knocked out the guts of their defense. Now we hold all the city proper and have only a cleanup job left in the outskirts."

The First Army fought a battle within a battle to win the ancient stronghold. Having closed a ring around the city, they fought off several German counter-attacks to the northeast in recent days.

American Losses Light.

Aachen which the Germans had sought to make their Stalingrad of the Western Front, was taken with an economy of American lives which was far better than had been expected—in the face of the fact that no fighting is more hazardous than a struggle through the streets of a ruined city and Aachen was the strongest German position yet encountered by the United States First Army.

Held Crucifix Hill.

The doughboys held on to their positions at Crucifix Hill, just northeast of the city, against all these desperate charges and went on with their methodical extermination of the garrison, which originally was estimated at 1,500 men.

That the garrison actually was larger, however, was indicated by dispatches from Aachen today which said from 500 to 1,000 Germans remained in isolated traps around the edges, while nearly 2,000 already had been captured.

During the siege the Germans had been able to feed a few hundred reinforcements into the garrison, but since Sunday they were forced to rely upon parachutes as their chief agency of supply.

OCT 21 1944

Made a Test City.

Aachen had been made a test city by the American command, giving the Germans the choice of surrendering or permitting one of the famous towns of the Reich to be knocked to pieces. The Germans rejected the ultimatum on October 11 and the Americans began their attack.

Aachen may have set the pattern for German resistance from city to city.

Only 10,000 or 15,000 civilians were believed to have remained in the city at the beginning of the attack. At least 3,000 were evacuated by the Americans after the attack began.

Canadian infantry and armor struck out in a new offensive through the mud and marshland north of Antwerp today to bolster the Allied powerhouse salient being built up in Holland against Adolf Hitler's northern defenses.

At the same time French infantry fighting along the ridges of the Vosges at the southern end of the Allied line outflanked the village of Ventron at the entrance to the fifteen-mile-long Bussang Pass which opens out on the Rhine floor only seven miles from Mulhouse.

The Americans of the Seventh Army on the latter front also captured Bruyeres, thirteen miles east of Epinal, in a further stab at two more passes leadjng through the Vosges to the Rhine flatlands around Colmar and Strasbourg.

The British Second Army, fighting to clear out the Germans west of the Maas (Meuse) along the Reich border fronting the Holland salient, made slow progress, almost bogged down by mud, and stiff German resistance.

The Canadian attack, sprung at 7:30 A. M., was launched from an area about eight miles north of Antwerp along the railroad and highway leading north to Rosendaal and Rotterdam.

Rocket-firing typhoons and fighter bombers supported the drive, designed to strengthen the Canadian column six miles to the west which has speared to the neck of Zuid Beveland and Walcheren, German-held islands blocking the Schelde entrances to Antwerp.

In the first few hours the Canadians rolled forward several miles.

Big Guns Knocked Out

Gales, giving impetus to floods pouring through bombarded breaches in the dikes, have knocked out a number of big German guns at Vlissingen (Flushing) on Walcheren, and rocket and bomb-carrying Typhoons made direct hits on buildings concealing other guns at Ellewoutsdijk on Zuid Beveland yesterday.

Other Canadian contingents were finishing the task of liquidating a pocket of 1,000 Germans holding an area about 6 by 12 miles south of the Schelde, and had advanced to within less than a mile south of Breskens, Schelde river port where other enemy guns are located.

They had thrust to within less than a mile of Oostburg, former center of the pocket, and had captured Middelbourg and Aardenburg, at the south side of the water-sealed sack.

New Gains Inside Aachen

"Our units made gains in the fighting inside Aachen," said Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's supreme headquarters communique.

Progress was made in mopping up the area just north of the city, and in the Haaren area to the northeast, where Aachen was recently sealed off from Germany, a number of Nazis were driven out of pillboxes into which they had filtered during the night.

The First Army's artillery broke up a fairly strong tank-and-infantry counterattack north of Haaren before it could reach the American lines.

OCT 21 1944

British Take 200 Prisoners

It was considered possible that the increased German artillery activity on the Maas river front was intended to screen a withdrawal southward to give additional support in the Aachen area.

The British forces moving from captured Venray toward the town of America ran into a difficult set of German positions. Wet and sticky ground prevented maneuvering and five British tanks were lost before a withdrawal was ordered.

An additional 200 prisoners were taken yesterday, raising the total to 1,700 since the British drive began October 12.

The Bruyeres Capture

The Americans drove the Germans out of Bruyeres, famous for its pipes, in house-to-house fighting that forced the Germans out of positions 16 miles from the Bonhomme and Schlucht Passes through the Vosges.

The French took more than 250 prisoners in fighting along ridges on either side of Ventron with tank support in the valleys, 20 miles north of Belfort and 14 miles southeast of Remiremont.

Six German counterattacks were beaten back by the French yesterday just to the south in the area northeast of Le Thillot. The Germans had made six counterattacks in that area the day before.

Much Barbed Wire

All along the Vosges line the German defenders, who have been repulsed in a series of futile counterattacks, were resorting to extensive use of one of the last war's major defensive weapons—barbed-wire entanglements. They also were employing heavy artillery and mortar fire.

The Germans sent a score of planes over Third Army lines in the Metz-Nancy sector in large-scale reconnaissance last night in evident fear that Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., was brewing trouble for them.

Alied planes showered bombs on a woods east of Luneville where the enemy was reported concentrating tanks. Hard fighting continued in Maizieres les Metz, on the Moselle five miles north of Metz.

Nazis Change Tune

Berlin speculated that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower might not wait for opening of Antwerp as a supply port to begin a heavy new drive into the Reich.

Some German radio commentators have been asserting for days that the Allied command could not begin an attempt to break through into the heart of Germany until Antwerp was opened up. But last night they began reversing their field. One even saw the possibility of another seaborne landing in the Rotterdam area of Holland.

U. S. Casualties Light Despite Bitter Fighting

GIs Commanded By Geneva Man Blast Strongpoint

BY DON WHITEHEAD

AACHEN, Germany, Oct. 20. (AP)—The German border city of Aachen, reduced to wreckage by American shells and bombing planes and torn by days of savage street fighting, fell today to American troops who drove the last of its desperately-resisting Nazi garrison from their burrows in the city proper.

Many Nazis Trapped

Tonight the victorious Yanks began mopping up the remnants of Nazis hopelessly trapped in pockets on the outskirts of this mass of wreckage. There were estimated to be between 500 and 1,000 Germans trapped in the vise, in addition to approximately 2,000 already captured.

Troops under the command of Lt.-Col. Merril Daniel of Geneva, N. Y. knocked out the last major German strongpoint in the city at 3.30 p. m (10.30 a. m. eastern war time) with direct fire from a 155 mm. rifle blasting at close range. The big gun literally knocked down a building in which SS elite guard troops had made a last desperate stand.

A Yank private, sitting in a window several yards in front of the gun, was blown from his perch by the muzzle blast and knocked all the way across the room. With the strongpoint reduced to smoke and rubble, the doughboys swiftly advanced thru the remainder of the ruined city and squeezed the Nazis into a final pocket.

ATTACK BEGUN SEPT. 15

"Aachen is ours," said an American officer, matter-of-factly announcing the capture of the first large German city by Allied invasion armies. "When we knocked out that building we knocked out the guts of their defense."

Lt.-Gen Courtney H. Hodges' First army troops have been attacking Aachen, medieval seat of Charlemagne's empire and important bastion of the Siegfried line, since Sept. 15. On Oct. 10, the city's German garrison was ordered to surrender within 24 hours or be annihilated by American guns and planes. When the ultimatum was rejected the Yanks launched an all-out assault that quickly settled into house-tohouse fighting with bayonets, bazookas and self-propelled guns.

OCT 21 1944

Aachen, whose peacetime population was 165,000, is 40 miles from Cologne on the Rhine and 340 miles from Berlin.

Its famous cathedral, resting place of Charlemagne, was standing tonight with only relatively minor wounds.

FRONT SOLIFIED

Aachen's fall nails down the right flank of a solid 85-mile front anchored at Arnhem in Holland, behind which the Germans declare Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is mounting a great offensive designed to knock Germany out of the war before winter snows set in.

(Canadian armor and infantry opened a new offensive Friday north of Antwerp along the main Antwerp-Rosendaal highway, aimed at giving flanking insurance to other Canadian forces who had sealed the neck of the peninsula leading onto South Beveland and Walcheren islands north of the Schelde estuary. The new drive gained more than five miles in the first few hours, a front dispatch said.

(The Canadian offensive was described as the second phase in the job of clearing the approaches to Antwerp, which the Allies badly need as a supply port for the western front. A dispatch from Associated Press War Correspondent Roger Greene said the German pocket near Breskens on the south bank of the Schelde was "collapsing like a pricked balloon." The count of Nazi prisoners in the Schelde pocket fighting stood at almost 3,200.

DAMAGE APPALLING

The damage in Aachen is appalling and if the German people in the cities to the east could see the havoc wrought by the decision of their leaders to fight in every street and every city it would be an object lesson they would never forget.

While the final struggle for Aachen began seven days ago, when the first Yank troops broke into the streets, the rehearsal for the fight was held in bomb-wrecked streets in England, where these victorious troops rehearsed street fighting before the invasion. What they learned there undoubtedly saved many lives in the assault on Aachen.

There was no grand rush to capture Aachen after the surrender ultimatum was ignored and our artillery and bombers lashed at the city in a fury of explosions. The doughboys went about the job slowly and methodically.

"That is why we were ale to take the city with so few losses," an officer said tonight. "One look at our casualty figure and it would appear that we had no opposition. As a matter of fact, the enemy fought hard and bitterly, but our boys outsmarted them."

RUINS INDESCRIBABLE

It means little to say that Aachen is wrecked, smashed and battered. Those overworked adjectives do not tell what one sees, feels and smells inside the town. Masonry and debris are piled 10 to 20 feet high. Lace curtains flutter crazily from glassless windows, and a forlorn loneliness lies over the city.

You smell and feel destruction as much as you see it—that depressing, deserted feeling of utter ruin and the dead, heavy smell that hangs over all deserted towns.

Even yet civilians trudge thru the wreckage to the safety of a little colony which has been established for refugees. They come from basements and dank shelters and holes in the ground like a procession of lost souls, pushing their little carts filled with a few belongings. Here was defeated Germany on parade.

Tonight the men who captured Aachen received the plaudits of their commanding general, who praised them for a great job. The ceremony took place in an old building battered by bullets and shells, and toasts were drunk from three bottles of champagne dug up from some German store.

While the troops inside Aachen were slowly squeezing the garrison to death, other Yank forces outside the city on the north and northeast did a job of at least equal and probably greater military importance in beating off five full-scale Nazi counter-attacks. Altogether, two German units have been effectively written off as offensive threats.

French Press Headlines Dewey's Declaration

Paris, Oct. 20 (AP)—The French press published under big headlines today the declaration by Gov. Thomas E. Dewey that President Roosevelt's "persistent refusal" to grant recognition to the Government of Gen. Charles de Gaulle was contributing to civilian chaos in France.

[Dewey said in a New York address Wednesday night that "we need France in our councils and we need her now."]

The Radical Socialist paper L'Aurore said that while it did not want to enter a discussion of American domestic affairs, "We can only say 'bravo,' and thanks."

The Communist newspaper Humanite published the remarks with the comment:

"We are pleased to publish this declaration on France by a representative of the Republican party which was always hostile to Europe and responsible in great part for the defeat of efforts to organize collective security for the nations of the world."

CALL CHAUTEMPS

Paris, Oct. 20 (A. P.).—Francois Dementhon, Minister of Justice, said today that former Premier Camille Chautemps, now a resident of Washington, would be called before a Paris court of justice which is scheduled to begin Monday the first of hundreds of "purge" trials.

M. Dementhon declined to say whether the French would attempt M. Chautemps's extradition, and he did not say what the former Premier was accused of.

In Washington Chautemps declined comment, saying he preferred to have more knowledge of the situation before making any statement.

France Divided Into 2 War Zones

Paris, Oct. 20 (AP)—In accordance with an Allied agreement the French Government tonight by decree divided France into an eastern "military zone" and a western "zone of the interior," with the latter coming under full French control.

The line of demarcation runs from Boulogne to Ardennes, thence to the Rhone river and along the Rhone to Marseille, both cities remaining within the military zone.

It was acknowledged that there still is fighting within the interior zone. Gen. Edgar de Larminat was named commander of French forces operating against German nests of resistance on the Atlantic coast.

REDS THRUST 12 MILES INTO EAST PRUSSIA

Berlin Reports Progress Of Big Drive As Belgrade Falls

London, Saturday, Oct. 21 (AP)—Russian and Partisan troops yesterday captured the Yugoslav capital of Belgrade and annihilated its Axis garrison in street battles, while Berlin announced that other Soviet forces had penetrated 12 miles inside East Prussia on an 80-mile front.

Moscow also announced a new invasion of Hungary from the south, with a nine-mile penetration to a point 90 miles below Budapest, and also the conquest in the east of Hungary's third city, Debrecen, where thousands of Germans were slaughtered or captured.

A late Berlin broadcast said Soviet troops already had rolled on 30 miles northwest of Debrecen, reaching the rail town of Tiszacsege, on the Tisza river 85 miles east of the menaced Hungarian capital.

Chilia Overrun

In Transylvania other Red army troops and Romanian units overran Chilia, a village only 12 miles southeast of Satu-Mare, last big Transylvanian locality still in enemy hands, and in one sector killed or captured an entire enemy battalion trying to flee toward neighboring Czechoslovakia.

Southeast of fallen Belgrade, the Russian bulletin said, a total of 17,147 trapped Germans were killed or captured in eliminating an enemy pocket.

Although Moscow was silent about the three-sided onslaught against East Prussia, an Associated Press correspondent there was allowed to radio that "the Russians have entered Reich territory."

"Breaches" Admitted

A German high command statement broadcast late last night from Berlin said the Russians had "achieved several breaches" north and south of the Kaunas-Konigsberg highway in the battle now entering its fifth day.

This report said the Germans had "retreated to new positions after grim battles" around Wehrkirchen, 20 miles south of Soviet-captured Eydtkau on the Kaunas-Konigsberg highway, and northwest of Schlossberg (Pillkallen).

Schlossberg is 12 miles west of Schirwindt, German village on the western Lithuanian border, and 10 miles north of Ebenrode (Stalluponen), a communications center seven miles inside the Junker province along the Konigsberg road. Soviet troops also have reached Ebenrode, Berlin said.

Hundreds Of Big Tanks

A Nazi commentator, Martin Hallensleben, said the Russians have driven from nine to 12 miles into East Prussia, using hundreds of big tanks.

In addition to cracking the German frontier on a 30-mile front opposite western Lithuania, the Berlin radio said another Russian force with an array of equipment had crossed the frontier on a 50-mile front on the northeast, presumably pushing into annexed Memel territory.

The third Soviet drive was battering at tthe German frontier defenses in the south, beyond the Narew river in northern Poland, Berlin said.

The Germans implied that the drive launched by General Ivan D. Cherniakhovsky, also was fanning out north of Eydtkau, indicating that armored spearheads were engaged in turning the flank defenses of Tilsit, already menaced by a third Russian army arrayed along the northern side of East Prussia in the Memel area.

The crack "Greater Germany" Division has been thrown into the struggle, one Nazi broadcast said. Berlin also announced that units of Heinrich Himmler's home army of males between sixteen and sixty already had been hurled in as reserves, and Colonel Ernst von Hammer, Nazi radio commentator, declared "the battle for East Prussia is heading for a climax."

Belgrade Falls

The 2,000-year-old city of Belgrade, on the Danube, captured by the Germans on April 13, 1941, fell after almost a week of siege to 3d Ukraine Army units under General Feodor I. Tolbukhin.

Berlin acknowledged the fall of Belgrade. Participating in the house-to-house fight were Marshal Josip Broz's (Tito's) Yugoslav Partisans, Premier-Marshal Josef V. Stalin announced in an order of the day.

Belgrade was the fourteenth European capital to come under Allied domination in less than six months—beginning with Rome's capture on June 4.

Belgrade's fall robbed the enemy of the main crossroads of the Balkans, opened the way for a drive on Zagreb, puppet Croat capital, and southern Hungary and Austria. Zagreb already is under Partisan artillery fire, Marshal Tito announced.

The conquest also effectively trapped thousands of Axis troops between Belgrade in the north and British troops advancing through Greece in the south. At intermediate points the foe was being battered by combined Bulgarian and Yugoslav forces.

A Soviet communique announced completion of the destruction of one Nazi force pocketed southeast of Belgrade, with 9,000 Germans killed and 8,147 captured. The toll of those killed inside Belgrade was not announced, but was reported to have run into the thousands.

Marshal Tito also announced yesterday that his forces had captured the important Dalmatian port of Dubrovnik.

[The Bern radio, recorded by the Columbia Broadcasting System, reported Friday that General Draja Mihailovitch, formerly Yugoslav Minister of War and leader of the Chetniks, had gone to Italy. No source for the report was given.]

The capture of Debrecen came after an eleven-day tank battle on the plains outside the fourteen-way road and rail junction which has a population of 122,000. Lying 115 miles east of Budapest, capital of the tottering Hungarian satellite, Debrecen was a link between Hungary and the collapsing Axis fronts in Transylvania to the east and eastern Czechoslovakia to the northeast. Because of its strategic importance Debrecen several times was a target of Italy-based American heavy bombers.

ALLIED TROOPS TAKE BELGRADE FROM GERMANS

Stalin Also Announces Fall of Debrecen, Third City of Hungary.

London, Oct. 20 (A. P.).—Belgrade, capital of Yugoslavia, has been liberated, Marshal Stalin announced tonight.

It was the second order of the day to set Moscow's victory guns to lighting the skies with flares and it marked the end of days of savage street fighting by the Red Army and the Yugoslav Partisans of Marshal Tito.

Earlier, the Russians announced the capture of Debrecen, Hungary's third city, 116 miles east of Budapest.

Belgrade is 2,000 years old and a city of 266,849. It lies on the Danube at its confluence with the Save. Extensive fortifications were stretched between the rivers and the brow of a 150-foot hill. Once possessed by the Turks and Austria-Hungary in turn, the city had been a battleground in past centuries between those antagonists.

Debrecen's Fall Announced.

Stalin's order said that Belgrade, held by the Germans since the conquest of Yugoslavia in 1941, fell to the combined forces of Marshal Fedor Tolbukhin's Third Ukrainian Army group and Tito's National Army of Liberation "after stubborn fighting which completed mopping up the German garrison." He ordered a salute of twenty-four salvoes from 324 guns.

The fall of Debrecen was announced an hour before.

Earlier, the Germans announced the loss of the city of 122,517 and said the Red Army had pulled up to another section of the east Prussian frontier twenty miles south of fallen Eydtkau, massing vast tank forces in the Rominter Heide, a favorite deer forest of the late Kaiser Wilhelm II.

A tank battle raged two weeks before Debrecen, a road and rail center, toppled. The old walled city resembles an endless village, but it is a busy industrial center where such things are manufactured as pipes, woolens, cloth, leather goods and shoes.

The Brussels radio said tonight that Cossack vanguards of the Russian army already are in the outskirts of Budapest. The German radio said that Red troops who captured Debrechen already were thirty miles beyond it with a spearhead at the rail town of Tiszaacsege.

Stalin's announcement said Debrecen fell to Marshal Rodion Malinovsky's Russian and Romanian forces "as the result of an outflanking maneuver of cavalry and tank units in co-ordination with a frontal attack."

Salutes Ordered.

The victory was ordered saluted in Moscow with twenty salvos from 224 guns. Other Russian forces were last reported within fifty miles of Budapest.

Possibly a decisive battle was shaping up along the north, east and south frontiers of East Prussia. Berlin frankly asserted that the twin battle for East Prussia is nearing a climax.

Moscow said nothing of the four-day offensive but allowed AP correspondents to radio that "the Russians entered Reich territory." Three enormous Russian Army groups are drawn up along the borders of the province where the Junkers generals maintain vast estates. Berlin insisted that another group was striking toward Danzig on the Baltic from the Narew River above Warsaw in a supreme bid to cut off the entire province of 14,000 square miles.

The Russians at midnight announced 11,000 prisoners were taken south of the old walled town which has become the junction of several railroads. A great tank battle had been raging there for two weeks and the Germans said 418 Russian tanks were destroyed. Moscow said the Germans lost 1,528 tanks.

Berlin Admits Climax Near

Possibly a decisive battle was shaping up on the north, east and south frontiers of East Prussia. Berlin frankly asserted that "the twin battle for East Prussia is nearing a climax."

Moscow said nothing of the four-day offensive, but allowed Associated Press correspondents to radio that "the Russians entered Reich territory."

The Rominter Heide is a preserve of 81 square miles near the Rominte river, northeast of the Prussian town of Goldap.

Chaotic Conditions Reported

Dispatches telephoned from Moscow reported chaotic conditions in

30. 24 — 19723

Belgrade and Budapest, where German positions were declared deteriorating by the hour.

The Moscow newspaper Izvestia said heavy smoke clouds enveloped the center of Belgrade, the Yugoslav capital of 266,849, where street fighting has been in progress most of the week. Smoke also shrouded the northwest suburbs; shells constantly were exploding in the streets; German SS troops fought from dug-in tanks in one section, Izvestia said.

OCT 21 1944

Nazis Hold One Bridge

Russian and Yugoslav forces were said to have captured the Sava river railroad bridge and driven the Germans from the port works on the Danube, but the Nazis still held the Alexander highway bridge.

Yugoslav Partisan forces have captured the important Dalmatian port of Dubrovnik, Marshal Tito announced today in a communique broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio.

Zagreb Positions Shelled

The bulletin also announced that Partisan artillery was shelling German positions in Zagreb, capital of Croatia, and said the power station in the city had been knocked out.

Berlin said the new Russian offensive along 60 miles of the Narew river between Warsaw and East Prussia had resulted in enormous Red army losses. Russian breakthrough attempts between Suwalki and Schirwindt on the eastern frontier of East Prussia were frustrated and the tank army in the Kaiser's deer forest was unable "to achieve a penetration," Berlin said.

Moscow reported further large-scale successes in Czechoslovakia, Transylvania, Hungary and Yugoslavia.

The "Greater Germany Division," one of the crack units of the German Army, has been thrown against attacking Russian forces in East Prussia northwest of Eydtkau, the German Transocean Agency said today in a Berlin broadcast.

RUSSIA, BRITAIN REACH ENTENTE

Yugoslav Policies Merged, Polish Deadlock Broken

London, Oct. 20—Ankara radio broadcast today reports from Sofia that Bulgaria had signed an armistice with the United States, Russia and Great Britain.

Moscow, Saturday, Oct. 21 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin have ended their conference here after making important progress toward settlement of the Polish question and establishing a joint British-Russian policy toward Yugoslavia, it was announced today.

The two statesmen also reached accord on the remaining points of the Bulgarian armistice in 11 days of conference here in the Soviet capital.

Agree On Joint Efforts

Britain and Russia agreed upon joint efforts to expel the Germans from Yugoslavia and to bring about a union of the royal Yugoslav Government and Marshal Tito's national liberation movement, and both great powers agreed that the Yugoslav people have the inalienable right to settle their constitutional future after the war.

The agreements were reached with the full approval and knowledge of the United States Government.

The two Allied chiefs were able to report that the Polish differences which had shaken the United Nations structure have been notably narrowed as a result of the Moscow conferences, and that misconceptions have been dispelled.

Sitting in one of these sessions were Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk and Foreign Minister Tadeusz Romer, of the Polish Government in London; President Boleslaw Berut, Polish National Council chairman, and Edward Osubka-Morawski, of the Polish Committee of National Liberation.

The Polish conversations are continuing, with harmony established between the Soviet Union and both Polish camps.

The outcome of the conference was announced more than a day after Churchill and Stalin exchanged friendly farewells in a drizzling rain at the Moscow airport Thursday morning.

Mikolajczyk Happy

... whom Churchill hailed as friend and war comrade," and the British Prime Minister also discussed military conclusions of the Roosevelt-Churchill Quebec conference regarding winning of the war in western Europe, and they shared the utmost confidence in the future progress of Allied operations on all fronts.

It was declared authoritatively that issues were cleared up on Soviet-Polish relations.

Premier Mikolajczyk after he saw Stalin three days ago was described as "completely happy," and he was said to have gained an understanding he never before had had. Mikolajczyk, who left for London Friday morning, is expected to return to Moscow in a matter of days." He was reported to have been confident that the London Poles would give him a mandate for constructing a unified government.

Stalin Braves The Rain

Again breaking precedent as evidence of the cordiality of the Anglo-Soviet alliance, Stalin braved the rain to see Churchill off at the airport. Churchill, wearing an RAF air commodore's uniform, spoke over a microphone for Soviet newsreels, declaring it his earnest belief that Russia, the British commonwealth and the United States would march in unison through years of peace.

"I have now come to the end of a most strenuous and at the same time a most agreeable visit to Moscow," Churchill said. "We have worked very hard. As I said last night, we have been a council of workmen and soldiers, but the generous hospitality and cordial friendship with which we have been welcomed and sustained has left me and my friend and colleague, Foreign Secretary Mr. Eden, with most pleasant memories in these crowded and serious days.

Friend And War Comrade

"Most of all has it been pleasant to me and an honor to have so many long and intimate talks with my friend and war comrade, Marshal Stalin, and to deal with the many difficult questions inseparable from a united forward march of the great nations through the many vicissitudes of war.

"I hope most earnestly and I believe with deep conviction that the warrior statesman at the head of Russia will lead the Russian peoples, all the peoples of Russia, through these years of storm and tempest into the sunlight of a broader and happier age for all, and with him in this task will march the British Commonwealth of Nations and the mighty United States of America."

Churchill-Stalin Text

OCT 21 1944

MOSCOW, Saturday, Oct. 21 (AP)—A communiqué concerning the Moscow meetings of Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin:

Meetings were held at Moscow from Oct. 9 to 18 between Mr. Churchill and Mr. Eden, representing the United Kingdom, and Marshall Stalin and Mr. Molotoff, assisted by their political and military advisors.

The unfolding of military plans agreed upon at Teheran was comprehensively reviewed in the light of recent events and conclusions of the Quebec conference on the war in western Europe. Utmost confidence was expressed in the future progress of Allied operations on all fronts.

Free and intimate exchange of views took place on many political questions of common interest. Important progress was made toward solution of the Polish question, which was closely discussed between the Soviet and British Governments.

They held consultations both with the Prime Minister and Minister for Foreign Affairs of the Polish Government and with the president of the National Council and chairman of the Committee of National Liberation at Lublin.

These discussions have notably narrowed differences and dispelled misconceptions. Conversations are continuing on outstanding points.

The march of events in southeast Europe was fully considered and agreement was reached on main points in the Bulgarian armistice terms.

The two Governments agreed to pursue a joint policy in Yugoslavia designed to concentrate all energies against the retreating Germans and bring about a solution of Yugoslav internal difficulties by a union between the Royal Yugoslav Government and the National Liberation movement.

The right of the Yugoslav people to settle their future Constitution for themselves after the war is of course recognized as inalienable.

The meeting took place with the knowledge and approval of the United States Government, which was represented at the conversations by the United States Ambassador at Moscow, Mr. Averell Harriman, acting in the capacity of observer.

POLISH GROUPS NEAR FULL ACCORD

Moscow, Oct. 20 (A. P.).—Leaders of the Soviet-sponsored Polish Committee of National Liberation have reached a tentative understanding with Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk of the London Government in Exile, and a spokesman for Mikolajczyk's delegation said:

"We expect it will be only a matter of weeks before both Polish camps start working together in Poland."

Leaders of the Lublin committee headed for home, while Mikolajczyk arranged to return to London and submit the tentative settlement to his Cabinet in Exile for approval.

The spokesman for the London group said the Mikolajczyk had an important conference two days ago with strongman Bierut of the Lublin regime, and found him "conciliatory."

"The Poles in London are realistic," said this source. "You can expect them to take notice of the real situation regarding Poland. Definite progress has been made in Moscow, which will become apparent to the whole world in the near future."

In the last forty-eight hours the mood of Mikolajczyk's delegation has progressed from extreme pessimism to solid optimism, and it is in the latter frame of mind that the delegation returns to London.

Dubrovnik Captured.

London, Oct. 20 (A. P.).—Yugoslav Partisan forces have captured the important Dalmatian port of Dubrovnik, Marshal Tito announced today in a communique, broadcast by the Free Yugoslav radio.

Hungarian Soldiers Fight Nazis In Streets

London, Oct. 20 (AP)—Hungarian soldiers are reported joining in street fighting against the Nazis and the Berlin radio said special courts martial had been set up, empowered to inflict the death penalty on persons who "spread panic or disorder."

The Paris radio, meanwhile, reported a general strike which started in Budapest now was spreading rapidly through the country, and that Hungarian patriots have set up liberation committees in many towns and villages.

In Bari, Italy, Associated Press Correspondent Sid Feder said Hungarian sources had information of street fighting in Bulapest, and a rapid advance of Russian forces toward the Danube, in the vicinity of Baja.

Nazis Attack Peace Crowd in Budapest

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 20. (AP) — Thousands of Budapest citizens demonstrated for peace after Adm. Horthy retired as regent of Hungary, and were attacked by German troops, a Hungarian woman just arrived in Sweden said today.

Szalasi Asks Hitler For Aid, Report

Stockholm, Oct. 20 (AP) — The Budapest correspondent of Stockholm's Tidningen said today that Ferenc Szalasi, Premier of Hungary's new puppet government, had visited Adolf Hitler at Berchtesgaden to appeal for German reinforcements to bolster his regime.

The correspondent said that instead of granting the request Hitler had demanded that Szalasi organize "suicide units" to cover German forces withdrawing from Hungary.

The dispatch also quoted "well-informed Budapest circles" as saying Szalasi's regime was facing a crisis which probably would come to a head within the next day or two.

14 Capitals Taken, Nine Yet To Go

London, Oct. 20 (AP)—Belgrade was the 14th European capital to come under Allied domination since June 4, but nine remain to be wrested from the Germans.

The capitals fell from German control in this order:

1. Rome, Italy, June 4.
2. Wilno, Lithuania, July 13.
3. Paris, France, August 25.
4. Bucharest, Romania, August 31.
5. Brussels, Belgium, September 4.
6. Monaco, Monaco, September 4.
7. Luxembourg, Luxembourg, September 15.
8. Sofia, Bulgaria, September 17.
9. Helsinki, Finland, September 19.
10. Tallinn, Estonia, September 22.
11. San Marino, San Marino, September 23.
12. Riga, Latvia, October 13.
13. Athens, Greece, October 14.
14. Belgrade, Yugoslavia, October 20.

Capitals still controlled by Germany are Tirana, Albania; Budapest, Hungary; Warsaw, Poland; The Hague, Netherlands; Oslo, Norway; Copenhagen, Denmark; Prague, Czechoslovakia, Vienna, Austria and Berlin.

NAZI OUTPUT OF OIL SLUMPS

1,750 Heavy Bombers Maintain Pounding Of Reich

LONDON

London, Oct. 20 (AP)—More than 1,750 heavy bombers from Italy and Britain hit German industries and communications last night and today as official estimates declared Nazi finished-oil production had been cut 77 per cent. below its May potential.

More than 1,000 RAF night bombers hit Stuttgart twice, made a third large-scale assault on Nurnberg and attacked Wiesbaden in the Rhineland with slightly less force. Nine bombers were lost.

About 750 Fortresses and Liberators from Italy today attacked the Rosenheim rail yards, 35 miles southeast of Munich on the Brenner Pass line, oil storage tanks at Regensburg, on the Danube 60 miles north of Munich, unspecified objectives in the Brux area, 50 miles northwest of Prague in Czechoslovakia, the Isotta-Fraschini tank and motor plant and Breda armament works at Milan in northern Italy, and the Bad Aibling airdrome, 30 miles southeast of Munich.

Out Again Today

Despite bad weather, Allied fighter-bombers were out in force today, attacking objectives in Germany and that part of France still held by the Germans, and giving close support to the Canadian drive in Holland.

Allied bombers blew a 15-foot gap in a dam near Dieuze, 25 miles northeast of Nancy, and at last reports water was pouring through the breach, inundating the countryside.

Fighter-bombers also struck at Hamm in the Ruhr Valley, attacking rail traffic moving westward toward Metz.

Eighth Is Grounded

Weather grounded the American Eighth Air Force based in Britain.

The British Halifax and Lancaster crews of the second wave found fires at Stuttgart from the first attack and by the time they left a deep red glow lighted the clouds and smoke was rising two miles.

Stuttgart, less than 70 miles from the Swiss border, is on the main railway from Munich to Zurich, Switzerland, and produces a big share of Germany's Diesel engines, armaments, tanks and electrical equipment. Like Rosenheim and Nurnberg, it is an important link in Germany's communications hetween the western and southern front and behind the Siegfried Line.

American, British and Russian bomber fleets coordinated their blows against plants producing lubricating oil and high-octane gasoline in an aerial offensive that reached its greatest intensity in July when 37 per cent. of Germany's finished-oil potential was destroyed.

Oil His Headache

By September 1 the production of the industry had been reduced to 39 per cent., officials estimated today, and only 23 per cent. remained when this month began.

Many of these strikes were aimed at such Balkan points as the Ploesti oil fields in Romania before the Germans lost them to the Red army.

"Now the perimeter is narrowing and our thousands of bombers will concentrate on Germany, flying day and night from three sides," an air force spokesman said.

2 Blows Dealt Stuttgart In Night

London, Oct. 20 (AP)—The RAF made a shattering double-header attack last night on Stuttgart, one of the main centers of electrical engineering industries in Germany, with two large forces of Halifaxes and Lancasters pounding the city four hours apart.

A third large-scale attack was carried out simultaneously on Nurnberg, another engineering center, and a lighter raid was made on Wiesbaden in the Rhineland. More than 1,000 bombers participated in the four attacks.

While not a common practice, it was not the first time that RAF night raiders have struck twice in the same place. Several months ago they hit Cologne three times between sunset and sunrise.

Fires Still Burning

The first wave was over Stuttgart last night about 8.30 P. M., and when the second force reached the city shortly before 1 A. M. crews said fires were still burning from the initial blow. The bombers battled storms and icing conditions to and from the target, and both attacks were made through thick clouds.

It is a roundtrip of approximately 1,000 miles to both Stuttgart and Nurnberg. A few German night fighters were seen but there were few combats.

Crews said by the time the last ship started its bomb run over Stuttgart the clouds were lit up by a deep new glow, with planes showing through in places and smoke rising to a height of two miles. A large explosion occurred during the first attack.

A Favorite Target

Stuttgart, less than 70 miles from the Swiss border on the main line from Zurich and Munich, is one of the favorite targets of both British and American bombers. Many of its key factories have been seriously damaged, but the Germans always made an effort to repair them quickly.

Nurnberg produces a big share of Germany's diesel engines, armaments, tanks and electrical equipment. It likewise is an important railway center.

Brief Robot Attack

Meanwhile, for the ninth successive night the Germans launched flying bombs at southern England and the London area last night. Only a few got through night fighters and a barrage of anti-aircraft fire.

The attack was brief and first reports indicated the damage was small. Some of the buzzbombs came from the North Sea, indicating the Germans were launching them from aircraft.

Polish Council Ponders 'Freedom Of The Press'

London, Oct. 20 (AP)—A new press law to free Polish newspapers from the obligation to print Government communiques and other "official acts" is being considered by the Polish National Council, Karol Popiel, Minister of Reconstruction, said today in a broadcast from Lublin.

"The starting point of the new press law is freedom of the press," he said.

"Far Eastern Areas" Photographs Sought

London, Oct. 20 (AP) — Photographs of the "Far Eastern areas" are being sought by the Admiralty for use by the Allied forces commanded by Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten.

The request from Naval Affairs said 700,000 of these personally contributed pictures went to Normandy with the forces on D-day.

"Operations against the Japanese by forces under the supreme command of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten are urgently needing all the valuable help that photographs can give," the request said.

Laval, Galliard Condemned

London, Oct. 20 (AP)—Pierre Laval has been sentenced to death in absentia by a Marseille tribunal, the Paris radio said today.

A warrant for the arrest of the Vichy Chief of Government, now either sheltering with or held by the Germans, was issued by the tribunal two weeks ago, and it was stated then that he would be tried whether he was present or not.

The Algiers radio reported that Jean Galliard, former director of the newspaper Petit Marseille was condemned to death in absentia by the same tribunal at the same time.

Jap Admiral Killed: Nazis

London, Oct. 20 (AP)—Vice-Admiral Nashaharu Arima, of the Japanese Navy, was killed October 15 when his torpedo plane "attacked and hit a big United States aircraft carrier" off the Philippines, the Berlin radio said today in reporting a Tokyo dispatch.

(Just why an admiral was riding a torpedo plane, one of the most hazardous of naval weapons, was not disclosed.)

The Tokyo dispatch said the Admiral crashed his torpedo plane against the command bridge of the carrier, when his plane failed to climb, and added: "He will remain an example of Japanese heroism." Before he crashed, he was said to have torpedoed the carrier, but no such damage has been reported by Allied naval authorities.

Asks Commons For Five Billions

London, Oct. 20 (A. P.).—Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Anderson asked Commons today for a supplementary vote of credit of $5,000,000,000, an amount which he said should carry Britain until about the end of January, 1945.

The present vote of credit will be exhausted the first week in November.

Sir John said for three months ended June 30, Britain's daily expenditures average slightly more than $53,000,000, then increased to nearly $56,000,000 in the succeeding three months ended September 30.

U. S. Navy Quits British Seaports

A BRITISH PORT, Oct. 20. (AP)—Hundreds of United States navy personnel who jammed English ports before D-day have been freed by the reduction of amphibious activity in the English channel and are returning home for leave and reassignment, or going direct to other war zones.

The navy is rapidly "closing up shop" here and moving many of its European bases to France.

Three thousand Americans waved goodby at one coastal village last week.

The British view the Americans' departure with mixed emotions. They are glad of the elbow room after two years of crowded conditions, but they also miss the fun-loving sailors.

Swedish Paper Urges War Entry

Stockholm, Oct. 20 (AP)—Under the headline "What Can Sweden Do? Terror in Norway and Denmark," the newspaper Aftontidningen suggested tentatively in an editorial today that "Sweden should go into the war."

"It cannot be denied such action would be convincing evidence of our solidarity with our neighbors," the Social Democratic party's newspaper said.

Aftontidningen said Swedish military power now is certainly sufficient to free Norway from Germany.

The Free Danish Press Service reported the Nazi Gestapo, conducting raids throughout Denmark since Saturday in an attempt to smash the underground, has arrested 50 persons.

ALLIES FIGHT INSIDE CESENA

Gains In Italy Small; No Change Foreseen

New York, Oct. 20—The Bern radio, recorded by CBS, reported today that Gen. Draja Mihailovic, former Yugoslav Minister of War and leader of the Chetniks, has gone to Italy. No source for the report was given, CBS said.

Rome, Oct. 20 (AP)—Eighth Army troops clashed with the Germans today in Cesena, a fortress town and junction 50 miles southeast of Bologna on strategic Highway 9, as the Allies forced small gains all along the rocky, muddy north Italian front.

The Allied communique told of continued heavy fighting, but there was no suggestion that the Allied forces were about to smash out of their dreary positions for the long-awaited conclusive struggle with Field Marshal General Albert Kesserling's troops.

On the Adriatic coastal sector troops of the First German Parachute Division withdrew slowly and with repeated counterattacks. They were apparently correcting their line to conform with the Eighth Army advances in the Cesena area, where a strong bridgehead has been established across the Pisciatello river.

Lorenzone Taken

British troops of the Fifth Army captured several objectives in the vicinity of Monte la Pieve and the Americans took the road junction of Lorenzone, seven miles south of Highway 9.

Eighth Army troops captured Celincordia, just southeast of Cesena, and several villages and hills were cleared of the enemy in the mountainous sector south of Galeata, about 18 miles southwest of Cesena.

Fifth Army forces fighting toward Bologna from the south were faced by an enemy force estimated at ten divisions. The heaviest clashes were in the vicinity of Monte Belmonte, eight miles south of Bologna's outskirts, and on Highway 65 above captured Livergnano.

From Monte Belmonte the Germans were able to use tanks, mortar and artillery fire. On Highway 64, farther west, American armored units reached Marano, 23 miles southwest of Bologna.

Rome, Oct. 20 (AP)—British and Indian troops have entered Cesena, former German administration center on the main Bologna-Rimini highway in the Adriatic sector, Allied headquarters announced today.

Meanwhile, other Eighth Army troops made additional progress in bitter fighting in the mountainous areas southwest of Cesena, while the Fifth Army made local gains in the central Italian sector south of Bologna, flanking the Bologna-Florence highway.

Nazi Position Periled

Cesena, Forli province town on the historic Emilian Way, is 12 miles southeast of the town of Forli and about 20 miles inland from the Adriatic.

The penetration of Cesena apparently was only in the eastern part of the town, the communique indicated, but gains by other Eighth Army troops to the south made the German position in Cesena extremely difficult.

Headquarters said the bridgehead across the Pisciatello river, above the highway and west of Macerone, has reached a depth of two miles and has been joined with a bridgehead farther to the west established three days ago.

Villages Occupied

South of the Emilian Way, Celincordia has been captured, and farther west several villages and hills have been cleared of the enemy south of Galeata, the communique said.

The heaviest fighting in the central sector in the Po Valley drive was reported in the vicinity of Monte Belmonte and on Route 65, north of Poggioli. The Germans were putting in heavy counter-attacks from their positions at Monte Belmonte, using tanks, mortar and artillery fire.

American armored units have reached Marano, on the Pistoia-Bologna road west of Highway 65.

ITALIAN TROOPS FIGHT SICILIAN MOB

Rome, Oct. 20 (A. P.).—Nineteen persons died as the result of a street battle yesterday in Palermo, Sicily, between a mob and a detachment of Italian troops.

Salvatore Aldisio, Italian High Commissioner, said today that the disorder followed a demonstration by the employees of private concerns who wanted wage rises equivalent to those granted to the state and local government employees.

The crowd of demonstrators had been "joined by low elements" which marched on the headquarters of the High Commissioner, and the police called on the troops when it was evident that the mob was too big to handle, Aldisio said. As a truckload of troops arrived, a bomb was thrown, and a shot fired at the troops. They retaliated, killing sixteen and wounding 105, of whom three died later.

Nine soldiers were injured, three seriously.

Aldisio said Sicily has only enough grain to last until mid-December, and expressed concern for the island's welfare.

Germans Evacuate Island Of Lemnos

Rome, Oct. 20 (AP)—Greek guerrilla forces were credited by the Allied high command today with aiding in speeding the withdrawal of the Germans through northern Greece toward Yugoslavia, while British troops occupied the city of Thebes, 32 miles northwest of Athens.

A reliable Cairo source said the Germans were evacuating the large island of Lemnos in the northern Aegean Sea, leaving probably the equivalent of two divisions spread out over western Crete, Rhodes, Coo, Leros and Melos.

Heavy demolitions at Piraeus were hindering the unloading of food and supplies, but civilian relief measures were already under way in Athens.

There was still no word of contact between Allied troops and the fleeing Germans. Occupation of Thebes put the British about 75 airline miles below the area where the Nazi columns were last reported.

Ægean only fifty miles from the mouth of the Dardanelles, it was reported reliably today, and complete liberation of the island was believed only a matter of hours.

As far as known this would leave Germans, totaling the equivalent of about two divisions, only on western Crete, Rhodes, Coo and Lero in the Dodecanese and Melos in the Cyclades southeast of Greece.

Thebes Occupied

Rome, Oct. 20 (AP)—British troops have occupied Thebes, 32 miles northwest of Athens, while German troops, harassed by Greek guerrillas, have speeded up their withdrawal from northern Greece toward Yugoslavia, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Germans yesterday acknowledged withdrawal from Thebes. Its occupation put British units roughly 75 airline miles from the area in which German columns were last reported fleeing.

Contact Not Reported

There was no indication in the Allied communique whether advance British elements had made any contact with the retreating Nazis.

FALAM GIVEN UP BY JAPANESE

Invaders Withdraw From Capital Of Central Chin Hills

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 20 (AP)—Under pressure of British troops driving southward from captured Tiddim in northwest Burma, the Japanese have evacuated Falam, headquarters of civil administration in the central Chin Hills 30 miles below Tiddim, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's command announced today.

Japanese political influence over the 40,000 Chin Hills tribesmen, already weak, was regarded as being further lessened by the evacuation of Falam, geographically the natural seat for administration of the hills.

Hillsmen Aid British

Chin Hillsmen already have been active allies of the British 14th Army in this sector, and have inflicted more than 1,000 casualties upon the Japanese with raids upon enemy outposts and by ambushing Japanese supply convoys in a campaign beginning with the Japanese retreat from the Imphal area earlier this year.

Meanwhile the Allied troops have been pursuing the Japanese southeastward from the Tiddim area along the road to Kalemyo, 28 miles from Tiddim, headquarters announced, and have maintained contact with the enemy.

Mitchells Hit Escape Road

American Mitchells bombed a bottleneck section of this road, which is narrow with precipitous banks.

Other Allied bombers attacked the Japanese supply base at Prome, 160 miles north of Rangoon, setting off explosions in the central dumps.

West African troops occupied Labawa on the southern Burmese Indian border.

Japs Evacuate Falam In Burma

Southeast Asia Command Headquarters, Kandy, Ceylon, Oct. 20 (AP)—British pressure exerted southward from captured Tiddim in northwestern Burma has forced the Japanese to evacuate the town of Falam, it was announced today.

The withdrawal was described as important in that it weakened Japanese political influence over some 40,000 natives of the Chin Hills. The town, 30 miles south of Tiddim, geographically is the natural seat of administration for the central Chin Hills.

The hillsmen have been operating in advance units of the 14th Army throughout the present campaign beginning in India at Imphal. More than 1,000 Japanese casualties have been inflicted by them.

The Japanese now withdrawing along the Tiddim-Kalewa road were under attack by American Mitchell bombers of the Eastern Air Command, as well as British Hurricanes.

Chinese Hold Foe North Of Kweilin

Chungking, Oct. 20 (AP)—Chinese troops are holding the Japanese at bay in the vicinity of Tajungkiang, 23 miles north of the imperiled provincial capital of Kweilin, Maj. Gen. Chang Tung-chuen, a Chinese army spokesman, said today.

The Japanese have sent a column from Hingan in an advance east of the Hunan-Kwangsi railway to a point 23 miles northeast of Kweilin, however. Hingan, on the railway 35 miles northeast of Kweilin, is now a base for enemy drives to the west, southwest and south.

A Liberator of the United States 14th Air Force sank a Japanese destroyer of the Mutsuki class 90 miles southwest of Hongkong the night of October 18, a communique announced. Last Monday a 14th Air Force Liberator knocked off a Japanese cruiser.

General Chang declared that the Japanese, fearing an American landing on the eastern coast of China, have fortified the area between Shanghai and Hangchow Bay, and are building submarine bases at Wenchow, Foochow and Amoy, all on the coast below Shanghai.

Japs Fear U. S. Invasion On China Coast

Chungking, Oct. 20 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Chang Tung-chuen, Chinese army spokesman, said today that Japanese preparing for a feared American landing in China had fortified the coastal area between Shanghai and Hangchow Bay and were building submarine bases at Wenchow, Foochow and Amoy.

The high command spokesman said inland fighting continued in Kwangsi province both east and west of the Hunan-Kwangsi railway, with Chinese troops holding the Japanese at bay around Tajungkiang, 23 miles above Kweilin.

Northward, west of Hengyang, Chinese troops recaptured two Japanese strong points near Paoching. They are also attacking in the direction of Changning, south of Hengyang and toward Anjen and Chaling, east of Hengyang, the spokesman said.

'One-Bomber Plane Force'

An Advance United States 14th Air Force Base in China, Oct. 19 (AP—Delayed)—A B-24 team of almost the same lineup which knocked off a Japanese cruiser last Monday blew up a destroyer last night.

Skimming the South China Sea on the first bomb run against a formidable Japanese naval formation, this "one-plane air force" sank a destroyer of the Mutsuki class 90 miles southwest of Hongkong and made a second pass at a cruiser and a large freighter.

They desisted only after the bombing apparatus got out of kilter.

PONCE OUSTED IN GUATEMALA

Revolutionists Blow Up Two Forts, Take Over Capital

Guatemala City, Oct. 20 (AP)—President Federico Ponce was overthrown today in a revolt led by young officers of the Guatemalan army and university students.

A new government was promptly formed by a triumvirate of Capt. Jacobo Arben, Major Arana and Jorge Toriello, a civilian.

The movement started at 2 A. M. among officers and soldiers of the barracks Guardia de Honor, which was strongly supplied with modern weapons, including tanks, armored cars and machine guns.

The commander of the guard, Gen. Federico Corado, was killed at the beginning and a 12-hour battle followed in the streets of this capital.

Blew Up Two Forts

The revolutionists blew up the forts at San Jose and Matamoros, which dominated the city, and laid siege to the national palace.

The unconditional surrender of President Ponce, his Cabinet and his personal staff was demnaded.

Ponce undertook to negotiate terms, agreeing to surrender if he were allowed to remain in Guatemala and guaranteed security for himself and his Cabinet, but the insurgents insisted upon unconditional surrender.

They delivered a 15-minute ultimatum, threatening to blow up the palace, and Ponce then surrendered.

No Counterrevolt Expected

The city was quieting down tonight with only single shots being heard now and then.

The new government made an appeal to the nation to be calm.

Several army units patrolled the streets to control the situation, but no counterrevolt was expected.

[Pan American Airways suspended service to Guatemala today and planned to fly out of the capital, without passengers, two planes that were there between flights.]

Report From Honduras

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Oct. 20 (AP)—Bombs from two Government planes succeeded in disbanding revolutionists gathered on the Salvadorean border, the Honduran Government said today.

[A report from San Jose, Costa Rica, quoting sources close to the Costa Rican Government, said at least 40 persons were killed in clashes continuing in Honduras.]

Ordre Restored In Guatemala

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. (AP)—Order was reported being restored tonight in Guatemala, where unrest was said earlier to have flared into violent disorder, but censorship withheld details.

Reports of Guatemalan disorder came from Mexico City, where information thru private channels said roads around the center of the capital were blocked.

Argentina In Business

Buenos Aires, Oct. 20 (AP)—The Argentine Government has created a mixed company to produce synthetic rubber (thioprene) and synthetic chemicals used for explosives. Of the subscribed capital of 4,500,000 pesos (about $125,000) the Government contributed a third, private capital the remainder.

REPORT IS SECRET ON PEARL HARBOR

Naval Board Submits Findings To Forrestal

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, announced tonight that he had received a report from the naval court which investigated the Pearl Harbor disaster, but that the court had marked it secret.

He added that he was asking Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the fleet, to review the report and the records of the proceedings to determine how much must be kept secret.

Representative Maas (R., Minn.) and others have charged that the report is being withheld from the public because of political reasons. Announcing that he was determined to force publication before the election, Maas has declared that high Government officials knew of the forthcoming attack on Pearl Harbor six hours before it occurred but failed to notify Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, commanders on the scene.

Forrestal's Letter

Forrestal did not mention these charges in his announcement, which took the form of a letter to Admiral G. Orin Murfin, president of the naval court of inquiry. The letter follows:

"1. You have today handed me a report of the court of inquiry of which you are president. You have also handed me the record of the proceedings before the court. I note that this record and your report are each in two parts, one of which you have classified 'secret' and the other 'top secret.' I shall ask Admiral King to review this record and this report with a view to determining how much thereof bears such a relation to present military operations as to require that it be accorded these high security classifications.

"2. After this report and this record have been examined and approved by the judge advocate general of the navy as to legal form, they will be immediately examined by me. Pursuant to naval regulation, the court of inquiry, in the meantime, will remain in Washington subject to call."

"Top Secret" Defined

The navy defines "top-secret" material as "certain secret documents, information and materiel, the security aspect of which is paramount and whose unauthorized disclosure would cause exceptionally grave damage to the nation."

The "secret" classification is defined as "documents, information or materiel, the unauthorized disclosure of which would endanger national security, cause serious injury to the interest or prestige of the nation or any governmental activity thereof, or would be of advantage to a foreign nation."

President Roosevelt, saying he knew nothing about it, declined today to be drawn into a discussion of Representative Maas' assertion that the court's report is being kept secret for political reasons.

BY WILLIAM T. PEACOCK

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (AP)—President Roosevelt, saying he knew nothing about it, declined today to be drawn into a discussion of an assertion by Rep. Maas (R) Minn. that a naval inquiry board's report on Pearl Harbor is being withheld from the public for political reasons.

Maas' comment was made in an address at St. Paul last night and brought from Frank T. Starkey, his Democratic-Farmer Labor opponent for congress, a retort that Maas was "concocting a last-minute shocker in his allegattion that President Roosevelt was responsible for Pearl Harbor."

When a reporter brought the subject up at the presidential news conference, Mr. Roosevelt, with a wave of his hand, said simply that he did not know anything about it and went on to other matters.

Asked for comment, navy department officials said there was nothing to be added to news conference remarks made by Secretary Forrestal last Wednesday. At that time, Forrestal said he had not received the report but expected it in the near future and would not know until he had studied it whether further action might be taken.

It was ascertained that the men who commanded army and navy forces at Pearl Harbor at the time of the attack have testified before the navy board, but it was not learned whether the board's hearings have been completed.

The two commanders — Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, and Maj-Gen. Walter C. Short—were suspended from active duty shortly after Pearl Harbor.

Army and navy boards of investigation were appointed last July in response to a congressional directive in the form of a resolution sponsored by Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich. Ferguson said late last month that

F. R. Denies Knowledge Of Pearl Harbor Report

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (AP)—Navy Secretary Forrestal disclosed tonight that a board of inquiry has completed its investigation of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, and submitted to [illegible] report on which he will [illegible]ine what future action [illegible] be taken. The board di[illegible] its report into two sec[illegible]tions, one bearing the "top secret" classification—the highest category of restricted information, and the other classified as "secret."

he understood the boards had about completed their work and that he was 'hopeful we may have a complete report" in two weeks.

Maas' assertion that the naval board's report had not been made [illegible]blic because it would be "politi[illegible]ly embarrassing to the adminis[illegible]tion" was coupled with the an[illegible]ncement that he intended to force its publication before the election if possible.

He had declared the day before that "high officials of the government, civilian and military, knew six hours before the attack that Pearl Harbor and the Philippines were to be attacked and the hour at which the attack was to take place," but "failed to take steps to notify Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short in advance of the attack."

LAST SIX-MASTED SCHOONER IS SUNK

Washington, Oct. 20 (A. P.).—The last of the six-masted schooners to sail the seas went to the bottom of the South Atlantic nearly two years ago, the victim of a German submarine. The sinking of the schooner Star of Scotland on November 13, 1942, while en route from Cape Town, South Africa, to Paranagua, Brazil, was disclosed today by the War Shipping Administration in connection with the awarding of its combat bar with star to Capt. Constantin A. Flink, Costa Mesa, Cal., master, and Harry J. Carmichael, St. John, N. B., who served as an able seaman.

The Germans threatened to take Capt. Flink aboard the submarine as a prisoner, but he talked them out of it by saying that survivors in a whaleboat would be unable to make the African shore, 750 miles away, without him.

Three New Civil Air Attaches Appointed

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—Three new American civil air attaches have been appointed by the Department of State to posts abroad "in recognition of the growing importance of civil aviation," the department announced today.

Until now the only such attache was Livingston Satterthwaite, who was assigned to London several months ago.

The three new attaches are Ogden Pierrot, Lisbon and Madrid; Holard B. Railey, Paris, and Charles M. Howell, Jr., Rio de Janeiro.

Japanese Repeat Offer To Ship Relief Supplies

New Safe Conduct Demands Are Made by Tokyo

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP).—Japan has again expressed willingness to send a ship to a Soviet port to pick up relief supplies for imprisoned Allied nationals but has made new demands concerning safe conduct for the ship.

Disclosing this today, Under Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius jr., told a news conference that when the supplies are moved will depend upon negotiations with Russia over Japan's new stipulations.

The negotiations with the Japanese on relief supplies have gone on since early in the war. On Sept. 1 the State Department announced arrangements had been made for the Japanese to take one shipload, but so far the ship has not been sent.

Where U. S. Soldiers Are

Units Fighting in Pacific, Italy and Western Europe Are Listed

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP).—Here is a list of American divisions whose assignment to principal fighting fronts have been disclosed to date (the list does not purport to be complete, being confined to official announcements up to now):

South and southwest Pacific (assigned since start of war)—7th, 24th, 32d, 37th, 40th, 41st, 43d and 96th Infantry Divisions; 1st Cavalry Divisions.

Italian campaign—34th, 36th, 45th, 85th, 88th and 92d Infantry Divisions.

Western European front—2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th Armored Divisions; 82d and 101st Air-borne Divisions; 1st, 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, 8th, 9th, 28th, 29th, 30th, 35th, 36th, 45th, 79th, 80th, 83d and 90th Infantry Divisions.

Washington, Oct. 20 (A. P.).—The War Department announced today the names of 1,645 United States Army soldiers held prisoners of war by enemy nations. Included in the list are the following with their next of kin:

Two Largest Carriers Named

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP).—Two of the world's largest aircraft carriers will carry the names of famous battles in the Pacific—Coral Sea and Midway—the Navy announced today. The two 45,000-ton flattops are under construction at the New York Navy Yard, Brooklyn, and the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company., Newport News, Va. They will be the largest ships of their type in the world and will serve as the base of operations for planes larger than any which heretofore have operated from carrier decks. The Navy has estimated that the carriers will be completed some time next year.

General Persons Gets D. S. M.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP).—The distinguished service medal was presented today to Major General John Cecil Persons by General George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff. General Persons commanded the 31st Infantry Division from its activation into Federal service in November, 1940, through two campaigns in the southwest Pacific. The Army said he is returning, at his own request, to civil life and will resume the presidency of the First National Bank of Birmingham, Ala.

D.S.M. Awarded to Gen. Hardin

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP).—The Distinguished Service Medal was awarded to Brigadier General Thomas Otis Hardin, of Fort Worth, Tex., today for developing the aerial "lifeline" to China. Until recently General Hardin commanded the Indo-China Division of the Army Transportation Corps and returned to this country to take another assignment.

Lindbergh Joins U. S. Air Confab

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who recently toured the Pacific fighting zones, is helping the war and navy departments co-ordinate combat-gained information on performance of fighter planes.

He is participating this week in a joint army-navy conference on fighter planes at the navy's Patuxent, Md. experimental air station near here. The conference, first of its kind, was called "to evaluate and compare the performance of all types of fighter aircraft."

Lindbergh now is a representative of the United Aircraft Corp. which manufactures the navy's Corsair fighter plane.

Non-Combat Plane Output Drops

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—Reflecting the continued emphasis on bigger and more powerful combat planes, training planes and other non tactical types now account for only two per cent. by weight of the entire American aircraft production.

This contrasts with 1942 when 15 per cent. of the airframe weight accepted was in trainers, communications and special purpose types.

Tactical Types Pushed

A review by the War Production Board today of shifting emphasis in aircraft production since the fall of France in 1940 stressed that the output now is concentrated in tactical types — bombers, fighters, naval reconnaissance and transports.

In the beginning of the vast construction program, the average airframe weight of an American warplane was only 3,020 pounds.

By September of this year it had increased to nearly 10,300 pounds, and will continue to increase as more and more giant planes, such as the Boeing Superfortress and Consolidated Dominator are produced.

About 49,000 Pounds

The airframe weight of one of these bombers is about 49,000 pounds, roughly twice the weight of a Flying Fortress or a Liberator. (Airframe weight is the weight of a plane without motor, propeller, tires, radio and similar equipment.)

September production underscored the trend toward more powerful planes: 7,698 planes of all types were accepted, compared with 9,117 in March, the peak month numerically, and 7,937 in August.

Weights Compared

Airframe weight in September (excluding spare parts) amounted to 78,900,000 pounds, compared with 79,700,000 in August. Weight per plane, at 10,270 pounds, was two per cent. greater in September than August.

Combat planes constitute 64 per cent. of all planes (230,000) produced since July, 1940. Here is the division by weight: Bombers, 32 per cent.; fighters and naval reconnaissance, 32; trainers, 23; transports, 8, and communications, 5.

U. S. Participation In A World Setup Favored By Farmers

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—The Bureau of Agriculture Economics said today a survey of representative farmers in 28 States disclosed that three out of four think the United States should participate in a world association of nations.

And a majority want price controls and supports continued for at least two years after V-day.

Small Sample

The limited survey of 613 farmers was made, the Government agency said, to find out what farmers are thinking about doing when peace comes so the information can be used in planning peacetime agriculture programs.

Farmers interviewed represented major farm areas, two thirds of them farm owners and one third tenants or hired workers. The bureau noted that the sample was small and said findings were only a "rough indication" of farmer thinking at present.

Two out of every three thought there would be no depression during the first three post-war years and one half believed there would be better business. They saw high demands for agriculture products continuing for at least two years after the war, but nearly all expected a depression "eventually."

War Prisoners' Labor Praised

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—Ten thousand prisoners of war working in American forests have given a "substantial life" to pulpwood and timber production despite low output per worker, Government officials reported today.

The number is being increased, but no great expansion is likely, it was stated, despite the continuing shortage of newsprint, lumber, shipping containers and other forest products.

Slow-down tactics and early refusals to work held output per prisoner to about one-third of a cord of pulpwood daily, but this has been remedied somewhat. Bread and water diets were sufficient in most cases to convince the German prisoners of the error of being balky.

Prisoner-Use Satisfactory

"In general, the use of prisoners has been a satisfactory operation and a considerable help," said Howard Hopkins, chief of the timber production war project.

"They are not as good as free labor—we don't want them to be. But they have given a substantial lift in a bad shortage situation."

Prisoners get 80 cents a day. Trouble has been avoided by segregating the Nazis from other Germans. The Nazis usually refuse to help the Allied war effort.

A considerable number of the prisoners were transferred from timber production to farms during the harvest season, but these are now being returned.

Scott Medal for Penicillin

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP).—The Earl of Halifax, British Ambassador to the United States, will accept the John Scott Medal for outstanding scientific discovery, on behalf of Sir Alexander Fleming, discoverer of penicillin, at Philadelphia Monday. The presentation will be made at a dinner of the board of director of the City Trust by E. T. Trigg, president of the board. The medal was established in 1819 by John Scott.

LAGUARDIA ASKED TO AID NAVY YARD

Washington, Oct. 20 (A. P.).—Representative O'Toole (D.-N. Y.) today called on New York's Mayor LaGuardia to co-operate with him in an effort to assure normal peacetime activity at the Navy yard in Brooklyn.

In a letter to the Mayor, Mr. O'Toole, relating the part the yard has played in Brooklyn's economic life for more than a century, said there was "no doubt" in his mind that "political and commercial interests" would endeavor to extend the facilities of the Bayonne, N. J., branch of the Yard after the war.

The Bayonne adjunct was established after it became apparent that the Brooklyn yard was unable to handle the Navy's wartime demands, due mainly to lack of space.

Mr. O'Toole said that if any effort to continue operations at the Bayonne yard in peacetime, proved successful "thousands of workmen and mechanics employed [in Brooklyn] are bound to be affected."

Asserting that the economic life of Brooklyn "in no small measure" depended on Navy yard employment, Mr. O'Toole told the Mayor "we can not afford to allow any industry to slip from our grasp and go to a neighboring State."

U. S. Art Treasures Return From Storage

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—The National Gallery of Art's great treasures of painting and sculpture are back from their secret wartime hiding place, it was announced tonight.

The gallery revealed that the rare works, absent from their display rooms since the time of Pearl Harbor, have been kept in long-prepared quarters at Biltmore House, Biltmore, N. C., famous French renaissance chateau built in the Blue Ridge Mountains near Asheville by the late George Vanderbilt in the 1890's.

The art works are being reinstalled in the gallery, Finley said, and as rooms are readied they will be opened to the public without special ceremony.

Hull in Hospital For Checkup

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (AP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull, 73, who has been kept from his office for three weeks by a throat irritation, is entering the Naval hospital at nearby Bethesda, Md., for a checkup.

Undersecretary Edward Stettinius said today that Hull's physicians had decided to have him get a thoro examination before returning to his desk.

The secretary has had a general throat irritation for some time, Stettinius said, emphasizing that the condition was not considered serious. He said it simply was a case of getting a thoro going over in view of his indisposition and the fact that he has been very hard at work for several months.

The throat condition which confined him to his hotel apartment has not prevented Hull from keeping in close touch with his office and aids said he had been regularly consulted on important questions.

joking vein, that it depended somewhat on how the paper treated him from now on.

Roosevelt Set For N. Y. Trip

Washington, Oct. 20 (AP)—President Roosevelt dusted off his old campaign hat and favorite navy cape tonight and was all ready for a major political sortie tomorrow into vote-heavy New York city.

It is not as President, not as Commander in Chief, but as Candidate Roosevelt that he is invading New York for a full day's electioneering and an expanded foreign-policy address.

Censor Ban Lifted

Censorship restrictions which have cloaked all movements of the Chief Executive were lifted for the first time since the war began. And, as in pre-war days, the President took a full crew of reporters and photographers aboard his special train.

Mr. Roosevelt left the whole day free to complete the speech he will deliver at a Foreign Policy Association dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel tomorrow night, presumably in answer to Thomas E. Dewey's foreign-affairs address last Wednesday.

Extra Radio Time

The Chief Executive disclosed that an extra 15 minutes of radio time, making a total of 45, have been reserved for his New York speech. Grinning, he said it wasn't that he would use all that time, but it was just so he wouldn't get cut off the air as was Orson Welles, movie and radio star, Wednesday night. Welles, a fourth-term supporter, addressed the New York Herald Tribune Forum, as did Dewey.

Mr. Roosevelt's New York schedule was as heavy as in 1940. A motor tour has been arranged through four of the city's five boroughs. It will take in Harlem and the garment district, with a stop at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn at a political rally for Senator Robert F. Wagner, who is up for another term.

"Any further information on campaign speaking dates?" a reporter asked Mr. Roosevelt today.

"Looks Like Rain"

"Well," he observed, "it looks like rain and a 50-mile gale tomorrow; not a very cheerful prospect."

He said he had no information on a date in Chicago or anywhere else. He told a reporter for the Chicago Daily News, again in an apparently

In Chicago, Mayor Edward Kelly announced a tremendous rally for Saturday night, October 28, but said he was not authorized to announce the Chief Executive would be there. Mr. Roosevelt speaks the night before in Philadelphia, and has a date in Boston early in November.

UNRRA Seeks 22Million Yards Of Woolen Goods

New York, Oct. 20 (AP)—The nation's wool manufacturers had before them today the first request for textiles from the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration—a bid for 8,288,000 yards of woolens for the last quarter of 1944 and 14,000,000 yards for the first quarter of 1945.

The procurement division of the Treasury Department also announced bids were sought on more than 2,300,000 women's, misses' and children's coats and dresses for the Foreign Economic Administration, to be distributed by the army in liberated areas.

When advised of the Treasury request, Arthur Besse, president of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, said he could not be optimistic about the Government's chances of getting the woolen goods because of recent heavy army demands.

Rex Stout Quits Post With Freedom House

New York, Oct. 20 (AP)—Writer Rex Stout said today he had resigned from the board of trustees of Freedom House, an organization with world freedom as its announced goal, because of a reference to him by Dorothy Thompson, columnist and president of Freedom House.

In his letter of resignation which he made public, Stout wrote:

"Miss Dorothy Thompson, president of Fredom House, wrote in her column in the New York Post on October 4: 'In contrast, Lord Vansittart, Rex Stout and associates, and many others, have been furnishing Goebbels with his most effective propaganda.'"

In the column Stout referred to, Miss Thompson asserted that those who advocate stern revenge on Germany give the Nazis propaganda material they can use to stiffen resistance. Stout described that view as "poppycock," and added: "Freedom House under Dorothy Thompson is no place for me."

18 Union Leaders Back Roosevelt

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. (AP)—Daniel J. Tobin, chairman of the labor division of the Democratic national campaign committee, announced today that 18 leaders of American Federation of Labor unions, including eight AFL vice-presidents, had joined the committee as advisory members and had indorsed President Roosevelt for re-election.

The AFL vice-presidents listed include: George Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks; Harvey Brown, president International Association of Machinists; D. W. Mahon, general president Amalgamated Association of Street Railway employes; Joseph N. Weber, honorary president American Federation of Musicians; Felix H. Knight, general president, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen; Harry C. Bates, international president Bricklayer and Plasterers' union; Edward Flore, general president, Hotel and Restaurant employes, and W. C. Birthright, of the Barbers' International union.

"Foreign Policy A Myth"---Mrs. Luce

Worcester, Mass., Oct. 20 (AP)—Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R., Conn.) said tonight "the existence of a Roosevelt foreign policy is largely a political legend, a myth, a fairy tale" and that its only consistent phase was "appeasement of Soviet Russia."

"Frankly, I suspect that Stalin, the realist, can only despise us and our Government for such a foreign policy," she declared in a political rally at Memorial Auditorium.

"In his relations with Stalin, what has Mr. Roosevelt stood up for?" Mrs. Luce asked.

She declared the United States had "laid bare its industrial, technical and military secrets" to Soviet Russia and that in exchange "we have not even had the right to send capable military observers to the Russian front to see how our own lend-lease equipment functions in battle."

"The fundamental trouble in Mr. Roosevelt's relations with Russia," she said, "is that Mr. Roosevelt is in no position to negotiate with Stalin because Mr. Roosevelt has no clear idea of what American interests he ought to advance or what American principles he ought to stand up for the sake of ourselves and for the future of Christian civilization.

"That is, Mr. Roosevelt has no American foreign policy to offer either to Europe or to Asia, or the world."

Dewey Looses New Barrage At 1-Man Rule

Says F. R. Makes Capital of Gains Started by GOP

BY GARDNER BRIDGE

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 20. (AP)—Loosing a new barrage at what he calls "one-man government," Thomas E. Dewey tonight declared that President Roosevelt is trying to make political capital out of social gains which, he said, were initiated by Republican administrations.

Promises New Gains

The New York governor promised to expand and broaden these gains if elected.

After declaring that Democrats resent "the kidnaping of their party by the communists and the political action committee," the Republican presidential nominee said in a prepared broadcast:

"It is time to face the fact that the new deal is a bankrupt organization, living only to extend its powers over the daily lives of our people."

He conceded the new deal "did some good things in its youth," but declared that "now it seeks to live on its past."

"In this great national campaign," he said, "my opponent has not offered to the people of this country even the pretense of a program for the future. He tells the working men and women of America to trust him, to do as they are told and ask no questions. That is the end result under one-man government, always."

"It is the inevitable end of a philosophy which sees no real future for America. It is the result of a viewpoint that can see nothing ahead but a repetition of its own peacetime failures—a return after the war to unemployment, with leaf raking and doles.

SWIFT PROGRESS

"I am sure America will never submit to that dreary prospect," he continued. "We are going forward to swift, total victory over our enemies abroad. We are going to take the lead in building a world organization for lasting peace, and here at home, we are going to establish a government which will make possible a vigorous productive economy with jobs and opportunity for all."

The New York governor, who came here from Albany for a one-speech appearance and planned to return to the New York capital immediately, earlier expressed belief that Mr. Roosevelt's decision to campaign actively in Philadelphia, New York and other cities indicated fear of defeat.

"The natural inference," he told a press conference, "would be that Roosevelt is trying to reverse a trend which is now so strong that it indicates a Republican victory in November."

This was in response to a request for comment on the apparent deviation from Mr. Roosevelt's earlier statement that he would not campaign in the usual sense.

SEES 10 MILLION JOBLESS

In his speech at the Hunt armory here, which was broadcast nationally, Dewey asserted the slogan of the new deal is:

"Back to normalcy with 10 million unemployed."

He said improved labor relations began under Republican administrations with the railway labor act, anti-child labor laws, the anti-injunction bill of rights for labor, and other measures, adding:

"This program was a part of the social trend which has continued since in the social security law, the wage and hour law and the national labor relations act.

"There is no reason why our social trend should not continue.

"There is no reason except one—the new deal—tired out and too long in office. It distrusts the people. It treats the social gains of the 1930's as its private property."

DENIES CREDIT TO PARTY

"I say," Dewey declared, "that social gains are not the property of any party. They are the property of the people of the United States and no party can exploit them for its political profit."

Asserting the new deal has "posed for years as the friend of labor," he said:

"But today it has turned collective bargaining into political bargaining."

Citing a case in which he said "political cash" as well as political power was the profit, the GOP nominee said the Railway Brotherhoods "had to hire" Edward J. Flynn, Mr. Roosevelt's third-term national chairman, last year in their wage increase negotiations.

Describing the New York state Democratic national committeeman as "that eminent authority in Belgian paving blocks," Dewey said, "the price of his services for the railroad workers was $25,000."

WAR OF NERVES

"That sort of business must come to an end in this country," he said. "Political bosses and one-man government must not be allowed to keep a stranglehold on the rights of our working people."

Mr. Roosevelt himself "did nothing but wage a war of nerves against the railway workers," Dewey said, adding:

"Finally Mr. Roosevelt seized the railroads to forestall a national disaster which he himself had prepared. After he did that, he graciously gave the very wage increase to which the railway workers had been entitled for over a year."

Dewey referred to last year's strike vote by the railway workers after Economic Stablizer Fred M. Vinson had set aside a mediation board recommendation for an increase of eight cents an hour to meet higher living costs.

Said Dewey:

"Three presidents of railway brotherhoods declared, and I quote: 'The whole thing had all the earmarks of a political setup.'"

Declaring he believed "with all my heart in collective bargaining," Dewey said, "it must again be free collective bargaining."

"It must be bargaining for the rights of working people and not for the profit of political bosses," he went on.

"Only thus can we maintain social progress and make secure the rights of free labor."

In addition to firing the "hordes of bungling bureaucrats" which he said are now weighing down the backs of farmers and businessmen, Dewey reiterated his promise to appoint "an active, able secretary of labor from the ranks of labor."

"We shall work for a broader social security act to include those not now covered," he said.

"We shall work to widen the provisions of unemployment insurance to include the groups now unprotected."

Text Of Dewey Talk

Pittsburgh, Oct. 20 (AP)—Following is the prepared text of the address Gov. Thomas E. Dewey delivered here tonight:

I am happy to come to Pennsylvania again and report that a great upsurge is sweeping the country. Everywhere, from coast to coast, the American people are coming to the decision that it's time for a change.

Republicans are confident of winning. Democrats, who deeply resent the kidnapping of their party by the Communists and the Political Action Committee, are also confident of winning—with us. Together with independents, they are fed up with 12 years of quarreling, waste and decay. They agree that 16 years would be intolerable. They want a fresh and vigorous government with faith in the future of America.

That's why it's time for a change.

26 Republican States

In 26 Republican States, having two thirds of our population, our people have found that we can have good progressive government without wrangling, waste and confusion. We have learned that we can change State administrations and greatly strengthen our unity for war and our capacity to hasten victory. With our great military command continued, a similar change in civilian Washington will speed total victory and will also speed our work for a just and lasting peace.

In the same way, a change of Administration offers the only future to the working people of America. The slogan of the New Deal is: Back to normalcy with 10,000,000 unemployed. That's where we still were in 1940, after seven years of the New Deal. But we Americans are not going backward.

When the war is won a tremendous job will just begin. No one man and no single group will be able to hold all the forces released by war in constructive channels. Every group in our population—agriculture, business, labor and government—will have to pull together.

Rebellious Congress

Can this great effort be led by an Administration which is both worn out and torn to shreds by internal dissensions? Can it be done by a President who has warred with a Congress of his own party year after year until that Congress is in open rebellion?

Let me recall to you what happened at the end of the last war under another tired Administration. The year 1919 brought soup kitchens into our cities—not for the helpless—but for returning soldiers. In the best organized communities it took a returning soldier an average of two and a half months to find a job. While that veteran walked the streets, this nation was shaken by its first general strike.

The same year brought the great steel strike, the meat-packing strike, the lockout in the building trades. Making the strife more bitter were the assaults of the Democratic Attorney General, A. Mitchell Palmer, on union halls and civil liberties. This nation was so torn by cleavage and insecurity that it was in that year, 1919, that the Communist Party of the United States of America was organized, dedicated to revolution.

Improved labor relations and advances for the working people of the country came only with good times. Labor leaders joined with a Republican Congress to establish the women's bureau of the Department of Labor. They helped a Republican Administration set up the Railway Labor Act, which is today still the model law in employer-employe relations.

Child Labor Legislation

Under Republican administrations came legislation against child labor, limitation of interstate distribution of the products of prison labor, laws for payment of prevailing rates of pay on Government jobs, and the anti-injunction bill of rights for labor.

This program was a part of the social trend which has continued since in the social security law, the wage-and-hour law and the National Labor Relations Act. There is no reason why our social trend should not continue. There is no reason except one—the New Deal—tired out and too long in office. It distrusts the people. It treats the social gains of the 1930's as its private property.

The New Deal sits by the fireside and gazes back on its long-lost youth with happy contemplation. It hopes to spend its declining days clipping coupons on its political investments of the 1930's. It wants to hold office forever in stalemated idleness. I say that social gains are not the property of any party. They are the property of the people of the United States and no party can exploit them for its political profit. Good laws are necessary but they are not enough. Social progress needs vigorous protection and promotion all the time. It needs the nourishment of competent, free government.

Collective Bargaining

Let's look at what has happened to the right of collective bargaining under one-man government. The New Deal has posed for years as the friend of labor. But today it has turned collective bargaining into political bargaining.

Take just one example. In the autumn of 1942, the 1,100,000 non-operating railroad employes and then the 350,000 operating workers requested a wage increase to meet the higher living costs. Since 1926, the machinery of the law had always worked successfully in such matters. And it started to operate properly this time, with the regular hearings before the national mediation emergency boards.

But, the grasping hand of one-man rule reached in and set itself above the law. Mr. Roosevelt's Economic Stabilization Director Vinson completely destroyed the effectiveness of the Railway Labor Act by setting aside the recommendation of the mediation board for an increase of 8 cents an hour. Desperate, the railway workers of the nation decided to walk out, if necessary, by a vote of 97.7 per cent.

For six months last year, while uncertainty and tension increased, Mr. Roosevelt did nothing but wage a war of nerves against the railway workers. Finally he decided the stage was set for making political capital. He called the union leaders to the White House. They met there four times. Mr. Roosevelt demanded that he, instead of the legally established mediation board, be selected as the final arbitrator. Three presidents of railway brotherhoods declared, and I quote: "The whole thing had all the earmarks of a political setup."

Rising Tension

The tension rose higher. Finally Mr. Roosevelt seized the railroads to forestall a national disaster which he himself had prepared. After he did that, he graciously gave the very wage increase to which the railway workers had been entitled for over a year.

The comment of the three brotherhood leaders was, and I quote: "The trouble was that the Administration was not content to follow the law."

"We are firmly convinced," they said, "that if the Administration had kept its hands off and had permitted the rail unions to proceed under the Railway Labor Act, we could have reached a satisfactory settlement with our employers without stopping work for a single day and without causing the slightest bitterness.

Hired Boss Flynn

"But the Administration did not do that. It insisted on changing rules in the middle of the game."
